

RAMBLIN' AROUND

By PAUL BAKER

The growing problem of assistance to transients by communities along the route of the new Highway 54 was brought into focus Wednesday at a meeting in Carrizozo.

Mrs. M. J. Price of Ft. Stanton, chairman of the Lincoln County Chapter of the American Red Cross, called the meeting to try to find an answer to numerous requests made recently for assistance by transients stranded in the County, en route to other points.

Mrs. Price pointed out that the Red Cross with its budget of $50 monthly, was unable to continue to give assistance to transients and at the same time assist active service men, their families and dependents. "This," she said, "we are honor bound to do."

Appeals to the Red Cross for help are being made by itinerants and their families in growing numbers—ten of them in the past 2 1/2 weeks.

The most recent request for help came from two couples traveling in one car with two small children each. Their car broke down Monday in Carrizozo and, without funds, they appealed to the Red Cross for money to buy new parts for the engine. Another family recently arrived in Carrizozo with small children and appealed for money to buy food. Mrs. Price, in her many years' experience in welfare work, has met up with many chiselers, but when small children are concerned, she can't refuse them help. In this case she instructed that they be given a meal at a local restaurant. The family insisted on being served in their car and when the meal was finished they drove off with the restaurant's dishes.

However, Mrs. Price told the group, occasionally there are cases of real need that deserve help. She suggested that a plan be worked out in Carrizozo and in neighboring communities for processing the cases of transients who appeal for help.

Those in the discussion group were, Mrs. Price, Mrs. Nan Boylan, secretary, Lincoln County Red Cross; H. T. Ray, pastor of the Carrizozo Baptist Church; D. K. Gillespie, County Welfare Director; Mrs. Dorothy Current, Red Cross home service worker in Coronado; Mrs. Lala Brewster, County nurse and James L. Harwood, County clerk.

Following a group discussion, it was suggested that the Red Cross office in Carrizozo be re-activated and staffed with volunteer workers. All appeals for assistance would be processed and classified in this office. The Salvation Army, County Welfare Department and American Red Cross give assistance in varying amounts under certain conditions.

Ray, Mr. Harwood and Marvin H. Roberts were appointed on a committee to contact organizations and individuals to find out if sufficient volunteer workers could be secured to reopen the Red Cross office for stated hours daily.

Mayor Cleve Brown of Corona was a Tuesday business visitor in Carrizozo. He states that the Southern Pacific has offered to give the town a reservoir and pipelines, but without water to put in them, it is not a solution of Corona's water needs.

At their meeting Monday night, members of the Carrizozo Lions Club spent most of their business meeting discussing recreation projects for youth. Truman Spencer, club president, asked the members to give serious consideration to making the swimming pool a No. 1 project for the club in the coming months. Others who spoke on the swimming pool and other recreation needs in Carrizozo were Joe Sargent, Supt. R. G. Firman and Coach Ken Willis.

Mrs. E. E. Berry has received many telephone calls and letters from friends far and near since the widespread publication of news about the shooting down by the Russians of an American plane. Her son, E. E. Berry, was one of the crew members who bailed out to safety. One of the letters was from Mrs. Ann Kinnard, who sent news items and pictures of the incident, clipped from the San Francisco Call-Bulletin and the San Mateo Times. Manuel Chavez, who was in charge of the Carrizozo checking station during the hunting season, wants to thank the hunters for their fine cooperation in checking in and out.

BUTTONS BY THE THOUSANDS—Pictured above is the button collection of Mrs. A. F. Roselle of Carrizozo, which was recently given nationwide publicity in the Chevrolet magazine 'Friends'. Mrs. Roselle has recently added many new buttons to her collection, among them, four old mother-of-pearl buttons with hand-painted New Mexico scenery by Mrs. Bertha May; four walrus ivory buttons given her by Olga Boone, and a hand-carved wooden leaf of Ruidoso pine, the gift of Mrs. Key of the Key Hobby Shop in Ruidoso. Since publication of her picture and button collection in 'Friends', Mrs. Roselle has received a number of letters from distant points, such as New York City.

It took many years to collect the buttons pictured above—part of a collection of more than 15,000. The designs, suitable to the type of button, were originated by Mrs. Roselle. "Pearly Gates" is made of all white pearls. A dress is made up of hard-to-get calicoes from wash dresses of 1940. A flower pot is covered with flower design buttons. A star is composed of white crystal buttons, including several famous and rare "paperweights." A black spade, made of all-black buttons, is called "What is Trump?"

As a hobby button collecting is now outranked in popularity in the United States only by stamp and coin collecting. Mrs. Roselle has tried to include in her collection every type of button made. She adds to it by gifts and exchanges coming from collections, antique shows, auction sales and old clothing stores.

Ft. Stanton Postmaster Dies in Car Accident
Carl Alfie Terrell, 54, postmaster at Fort Stanton, lost his life Saturday afternoon in a one-car accident on Highway 380, 7 1/2 miles east of Capitan.

According to officers who made the investigation, Mr. Terrell's car ran off the highway and plunged down an embankment overturning several times. The occupant apparently was killed instantly.

Officers who arrived at the scene following the accident were Sheriff Glen Bradley, Deputy Sheriff Albert Richardson and State Patrolmen Bill Driggers and Don Smith. The body was brought to the Shaw Mortuary.

Local Savings & Loan Assn May Be Organized
J. G. Moore and Frank C. Boyce announced this week they are investigating the possibility of forming a savings and loan association in Carrizozo.

The purpose of the association would be to encourage building homes and repairing old buildings by making real estate loans.

To form such an association, it is stated, it will be necessary to sell 200 shares of stock at $200 each, of which about one-fourth would have to be paid in cash.

The association, if it is formed, would be housed in the old Library building, located next to the City Hall.

Mr. Moore said that formation of the association depends upon the amount of local interest that develops.

TOWNS BUY EAGLE CK. WATER, LAND

Meeting at Fort Stanton Wednesday night, directors of the Eagle Creek Water Association voted to accept the Southern Pacific's offer on Eagle Creek. The price put on water rights, pipelines and land was $10,000.

The directors worked on plans for sale of revenue bonds to finance the construction of pipelines to Ruidoso and Capitan, estimated to cost approximately $200,000.

Engineer W. F. Turney, who attended the meeting expressed the hope the bonds could be sold in time to have the pipelines in operation by next summer.

The next meeting of the directors was set for December 8, at which time by-laws are to be adopted and permanent officers elected.

AWOL Soldier Is Snafu on Hunting Trip

John W. Grimes, an AWOL soldier from Ft. Bliss who decided to do some deer hunting in New Mexico, was crossed up and then tried to pay his way out of trouble with a flock of bad checks.

Grimes was picked up by a district game warden because he had bought a resident license. In justice of the peace court in Corona he was fined $100 and $350 costs. To settle this debt, Grimes cashed a check to pay the fine. Then he wrote another check to buy a non-resident license for $50. He also cashed a few other sundry checks, totaling around $300. All were written on a non-existent bank in El Paso.

Sheriff Bradley returned the AWOL soldier to El Paso authorities in El Paso Tuesday.

They were escorted by Band Director Leon White and Supt. E. G. Firman. The outcome of the trials will not be known until some time in December. The successful contestants will go to Albuquerque in January for several days rehearsal and then take part in a concert with the all-state band.

SPANISH VETERANS WATCH REVENUE JOB

SANTA FE, Nov. 17. — A 10-year custom of appointing persons of Spanish ancestry to the important post of state revenue commissioner is on the block before Gov.-elect John Simms.

Northern New Mexico Democrats are pushing for continuation of the practice that started with Gov. John Miles in 1939 and has been broken only for two brief intervals in the meantime.

J. O. Gallegos of Socorro served as commissioner for Miles and also for Gov. John J. Dempsey except for a brief period in which he was replaced by Robert Ormsbee of Santa Fe. Victor Salazar was revenue commissioner under Gov. Tom Mabry and Manuel Lujan presently holds the job, taking over after Maj. Gen. Pete Corlett served a short time as Gov. Ed Mechem's original appointee.

The appointment is the most important one to come before the new governor. It involves the employment and management of more than 400 workers and contact with most everybody in the state in the administration of 11 taxes that produce some $65 million a year.

Several have been nominated for the place in political discussions around the capital. Foremost among them is lawyer Louis Lujan of Albuquerque, brother of the supreme court justice and commissioner of the bureau for several months at the close of the Mabry administration. He had longer experience as chief legal counsel for the bureau.

Next in order in the conversations is Mike Gallegos of Quay county, long time bureau employe and director of the motor vehicle division under Mabry. John Romero, McKinley county Democratic chairman, has been mentioned and so has Horace DeVargas of Espanola, like Romero in the insurance business, but not a very lively prospect because as a state senator he would be ineligible for a state job until 1957. The job presently pays $4500 but could be upped without much trouble.

JOHN SIMMS MUM BUT CONSIDERING

John Simms has given no hint of what he intends to do but he is certain to give some consideration to the 16-year practice. The bureau has become the last stronghold of the Spanish-American voting segment.

A 30-year custom of electing women of Spanish ancestry to the office of secretary of state was broken in 1950 with the election of Beatrice Roach to the place and it looks like the custom is gone for good now that Natalio Duck has been chosen as Mrs. Roach's successor.

The only candidate with a Spanish name to win a state post in the recent election was Joe M. Montoya, running for lieutenant governor. The big population group that not so long ago controlled elections in New Mexico remains well represented in Congress, however, with one of two senators and one of two representatives.

ATTORNEY GENERAL GOING FOR CONGRESS

Attorney General Dick Robinson is making no bones about running for Congress in the next election. The young Carlsbad attorney had double encouragement to make a stab for the bigger job. He was second high man on the ticket early this month, running behind only Ingram Pickett, the telephone commissioner. At the campaign end the story got out that Rep. John J. Dempsey was planning to retire after this term, leaving an opening for an ambitious youngster. Talk of the Dempsey retirement has stirred ambitions in several others and if Dempsey's place does open up there is likely to be such a scramble as the state experienced in the early 1940's when eight or ten primary candidates for Congress was common.

Clinton Anderson won his first nomination for Congress in a field of ten. All of that is predicated, of course, on the return to the direct primary which was promised so often during the recent campaign. The possibility of the Dempsey retirement is also sure to revive the movement for dividing the state into congressional districts. As it is New Mexico is one of but two states that have two congressmen elected at large. Efforts to divide the state have been defeated by friends of Dempsey and of Rep. Antonio Fernandez because it would mean that one of them would have to step aside since both are residents of San-

 Hunters got a real break this year when the season was opened on deer, but I hate to hear about some meat being spoiled because it wasn't taken care of. Every hunter owes it to the rest of us to take proper care of the game he kills. The hunters around here are shootin' pretty straight this year. I ain't heard of any overanxious hunters gettin' bagged so far.

N. M. Cattle Growers To Meet in Las Cruces

'55 Dodge Features 'Horizontal' Windshield
 Detroit—Passengers in a 1955 Dodge enjoy greatly improved visibility with the "New Horizontal" windshield, announced R. C. Somerville, Dodge vice-president in charge of sales. He pointed out that the cockpit-like windshield in the flared Dodge provides a wider field of vision, enabling safe driving and more enjoyable sight-seeing. "Glass area has been increased 16% in the newly designed windshield. "Visibility is greatly increased because the glass is fully wrapped around at both top and bottom of the windshield," Somerville said. "This eliminates blind spots in driving vision and provides top of window visibility not found in other types of windshields." Styling of the windshield further enhances the Dodge swept-back styling and contributes to the built-in look of forward motion. In addition to its increased windshield area, the 1955 Dodge provides the biggest rear window visibility offered in the automotive industry. The enlarged back window glass area is designed to permit easier parking and safer rear vision.

NOW IS TIME TO STRIKE PEACH BORER

Fall is the season to control that important enemy of all stone fruits, the peach tree borer. This insect, uncontrolled, is capable of killing even the thriftiest tree within a few seasons, says W. J. Wiltbank, extension horticulturist at New Mexico A&M College.

The wise grower should be constantly on the alert for symptoms of this pest and act as soon as possible to prevent further damage.

Fortunately, symptoms of borer infestation are easily recognized. Masses of gum exude from the trunk of the tree near the base. After a season or two of uncontrolled activity on the part of the borer, this mass assumes considerable size and the tree steadily decreases in vigor.

Upon examination of the tree one or several white worms with brown heads will be found burrowing in the bark of the trunk. Control of this insect is accomplished through fumigation of the infested area with paradichlorobenzene or ethylene dichloride. These materials applied to the soil around the base of the tree give off poisonous fumes which penetrate the plant tissues and kill the worms.

The paradichlorobenzene crystals or ethylene dichloride emulsion is applied around the trunk in a ring one to two inches wide and about 2 1/2 inches from the trunk. Care should be taken not to let the chemical come in contact with the trunk of the tree. This ring is then covered with packed soil, thus preventing the fumes from escaping into the air.

For additional and more detailed information on the control of the peach borer, refer to USDA Farmer's Bulletin 1246, which is obtainable from the county agent's office or the New Mexico A&M College, State College, New Mexico.

STUDY OF LAND NECESSARY FOR RIGHT IRRIGATION

By H. J. MAKER
 State Soil Scientist
 State Conservation Service
 (Concluded from last week)

Soil depth is the third dimension of any tract of land, and this factor perhaps more than any other one, determines how much water a soil will hold.

Soil texture, another important soil factor, is undoubtedly more easily recognized and understood. Soils are, in general, made up of large particles called sand, medium sized particles called silt, and very fine particles called clay. The size and quantity of these particles within a given soil, determine its texture. A soil with a large percentage clay particles is called clay, while one with a large percentage of sand is called sandy loam. We also have silt loams, which are soils that have a large percentage of the medium size or silt particles. Soil texture has an influence on many soil properties, but to the irrigator, it is important as it influences the rate at which water will enter and move through the soil. For example, silty soils which are quite common, take water slowly. The irrigation system has to be planned with this in mind. The period of application usually needs to be prolonged in order to allow the water time enough to penetrate into the root zone. Production is frequently reduced

JIMMY STEWART, star of Columbia Pictures "Man From Laramie" filmed in New Mexico, agrees with Katie Kenney— "TB Christmas Seals are the best buy" Katie and her father, Eugene Kenney, M. D., who is president of the New Mexico Tuberculosis Association, live in Santa Fe. TB Christmas Seals will reach most New Mexico families this week.

Like soil depth, texture also has an important bearing on the water holding capacity of the soil. Sandy and sandy loams, of course, hold less water than clays. Therefore, in planning irrigation systems on sandy soils, it must be kept in mind that they take water rapidly and have limited water-holding capacities.

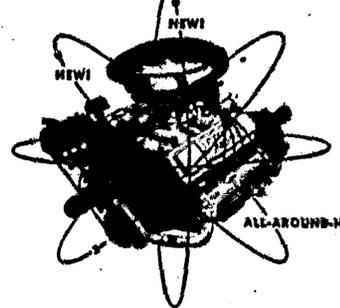

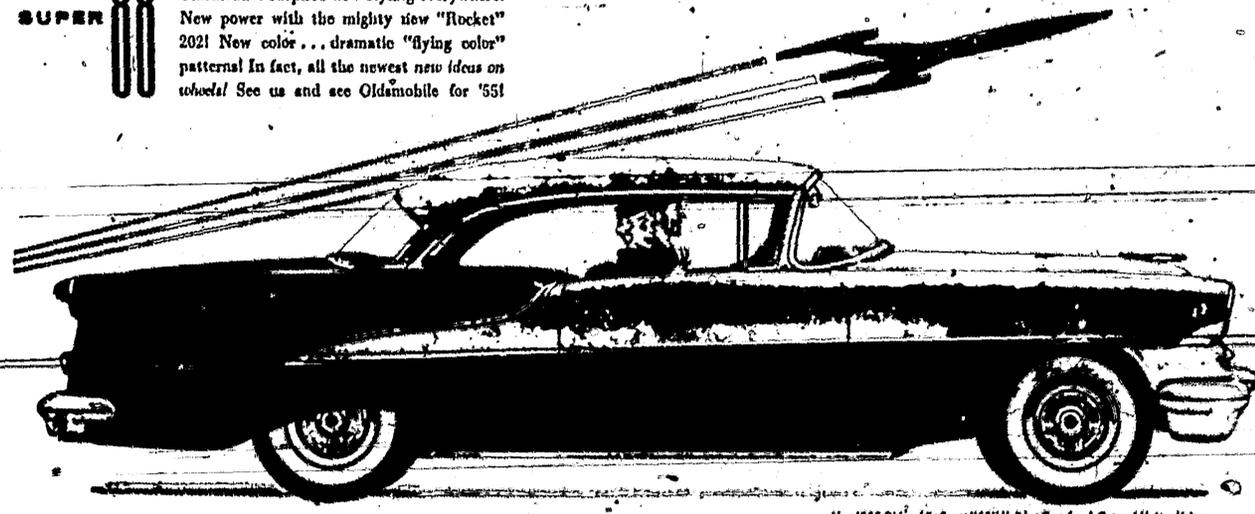

Permeability is another characteristic that must be evaluated and considered in planning an irrigation layout. Permeability may be defined as the capacity of a soil to transmit air and water. Soil texture influences rate-of-water-movement or the permeability of the soil. There are other factors that effect this rate, such as structure of the soil, pores, and how compact it is, as well as organic matter.

Your soil will continue to produce at the peak of its capacity if you take proper care of it. But first, you must know its characteristics and respect its needs.

MAKE A GUN RACK

For the sportsman's den a gun rack can be an attractive and handy piece of furniture. The rack is made of 3/4-inch lumber, selected to match other wood furnishings. All joints are made with finishing nails and glue, using 1 penny nails where two 3/4-inch faces are joined, and 4-penny nails for the other joints. Nail heads should be set for filing. The rack shown in the drawing will accommodate five guns. Add 4 inches to the length of the cross members for each additional gun space required. Round all sharp edges and sand the completed rack before applying a fine varnished finish.

Home for Large Family

For the large family with week-end income, American Builder magazine presents the split-level house in which conventional construction techniques provide maximum livable space at minimum cost. As a good example of split-level design, the Plan No. A-1000 is offered by American Builder, 75 West Monroe St., Chicago 2.

The 12-room house has four levels. It has been built on Long Island for $22,500, including a quarter-acre lot.

The lowest level has a utility room and a 12 by 24-foot garage. The next level up is a living room, dining room, kitchen, and terrace. The next highest level contains two bedrooms, a bathroom, and a study or playroom. The highest level are not illustrated here.

Architects Rudolph Mattern and Norman York specify fire-resistant and impact resistant for the roof. Stairways are skinned with a horizontal band of brick below the main level window.

General building plans are available from American Builder magazine, 75 West Monroe St., Chicago 2.

Bean Valley Cowbell Now at Corona

Corona's A and B basketball teams have won all games played to date. A twin bill was taken first from Hondo. The second games were with Stanley on November 12. All were easy victories. Saturday night, Nov. 13, Corona's B team defeated Moriarty's Bees in an easy game, but the A's emerged victorious after a hard-fought struggle. The final score: Moriarty 47, Corona 48.

The Bean Valley Cowbell was in Vaughn's possession at the close of last season. Moriarty won the cowbell from Vaughn in a hard-fought game last Tuesday night, only to lose it to Corona in an even closer tussle on Saturday night.

Vaughn comes to Corona this Friday, November 19.

Corona's basketball schedule through the rest of November and through December follows: Nov. 19—Vaughn at Corona. Nov. 24—Enclito at Corona. Dec. 4—Corona at Hondo. Dec. 10—Stanley at Corona.

Games during January and February will be played by Corona with Capitan, Estancia, Carrizozo, Tularosa and Mouth-tairaz.

The Corona Community chest committee is once again asking that you leave your donation at the DuBols Drug Store, the telephone office, Brown Hotel or at Roberts Mercantile. Figure what you would give if solicited separately by the eight benefiting agencies and make your donation accordingly.

A small plane marked "Luscombe 71997," crash landed in the Max Penix pasture a short distance southeast of Corona one day last week. The pilot, John W. Henry, whose address is 411 East Lake, Ladysmith, Wisc., escaped uninjured. He sold the wrecked plane to Mr. Hedgecock of Ruidoso.

Mr. and Mrs. C. R. Hiler returned Monday from Cleburne, Texas, where they were called by the death of Mrs. Hiler's mother.

Chano Baros, 7-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. Faustino Baros, was drowned Tuesday, Nov. 9, when he fell into an irrigation ditch near his home at Albuquerque. The Baros family formerly lived in Corona.

Student Council May Be Organized in H. S.

I. H. Burgess, Corona High School principal, says that the groundwork is being laid in the Corona school for the organization of a student council. At a meeting held Tuesday evening, Nov. 15, about fifty students and teachers, including a group of students from Alamogordo, were present at a covered dish supper.

After the supper students from Alamogordo told about their student council. Plans are to take a delegation to Alamogordo soon to sit in on a meeting of their student council.

"All of this," says Mr. Burgess, "is to help students decide whether or not they would like such an organization in Corona High School. Furthermore, it is the belief of the administration and faculty that through participation in organizations demonstrating the democratic processes, they will be preparing themselves better for participation in such governments in the adult world."

BIG CITY NEEDS IMPERIAL STATE

Some business and industrial groups around the state are fearful that big Albuquerque's need for more money is likely to bring a break in the property tax limitations that will affect the whole state. Albuquerque requests so far would more than double the present maximum levy. Aside from obligations for certain debts and judgment the maximum tax that may be levied is $2 on each $100 of assessed valuation. Albuquerque is asking for 30 cents more for hospital maintenance, 10 cents for a special purpose and $2.40 for municipal purposes. The requests would raise the limit from $2 to $4.80. Large taxpayers are planning to resist the movement with a demand that the state first make an effort to get in all the money available from present taxes. Some authorities in the bureau of revenue think that perhaps $40 million a year could be added by stepped-up efforts in the collection of the sales tax and income tax. Gov.-elect John Simms is commonly counted as an advocate of a higher property tax. During the campaign he often referred to the low property rate here, which is second lowest in the country. Trouble is that when people think of New Mexicans paying the second lowest property tax rate, they are inclined to forget that they also pay the second highest excise taxes, such as sales, tobacco, gasoline, liquor taxes, in the United States.

Forty-two votes were cast at Ancho, about the average voting turnout.
