LEGISLATURE AGAINST MORE WELFARE MONEY

SANTA FE, Jan. 26—Prospects for 45,000 relief-rollers taking a cut in their payments later this year came alive this week when a poll of legislators revealed a tax increase to raise the millions needed by the welfare department.

HOSPITALS, HOMES FIRST TO FEEL IT

The welfare board has already pledged to request authorities that the money coming in to the department will be used to maintain the assistance program (that's mainly for the aged and dependent children) which means that the first blows will fall on the institutions operated by the department—the Socorro TB san, Fort Stanton hospital and homes for the aged in Las Vegas and Rio Arriba county.

WELFARE DEPARTMENT OFFICIALS CLAIM, HOWEVER, THAT EVEN A SOBER CURTALMENT IN SPENDING AT THE INSTITUTIONS WOULD NOT LEAVE ENOUGH TO MEET THE ANTICIPATED RELIEF LOAD COST.

Presently the payments for the old age assistance are averaging $39.49 per person with a top of $50. The average payment for children is $19 with some families drawing payments for as high as 11 children. The problem developed from three fronts—a decrease in tax collections, a big increase in the number qualifying for relief, and the department's loading itself with the operation of two additional institutions, Fort Stanton and El Mirador home for the aged.

SENTIMENT IN THE LEGISLATURE, PRESENTLY ANYWAY, IS DEFINITELY ONE OF FORCING THE DEPARTMENT TO GET ALONG ON WHAT IS AVAILABLE. MEMBERS HAVE SHOWN FAVOR FOR THREE PROPOSALS WHICH THEY HOPE WOULD REDUCE THE NUMBER CLAIMING RELIEF—OPENING OF RELIEF CLIENT LISTS TO PUBLIC INSPECTION, REQUIRING SONS AND DAUGHTERS TO SUPPORT THEIR PARENTS IF ABLE, AND GIVING THE STATE THE RIGHT TO RECOVER RELIEF MONEY ADVANCED FROM THE ESTATES OF RELIEF CLIENTS.

THE MOST FORMIDABLE ROAD BLOCKS AGAINST MORE MONEY FOR THE RELIEF PROGRAM ARE THE TAXATION COMMITTEES IN THE HOUSE HEADED BY REP. ANDERSON CARTER OF PORTALES AND THE APPROPRIATIONS COMMITTEE HEADED BY REP. VIRGIL MCCOLLUM OF CARLSBAD. BOTH ARE LOADED WITH ANTI-SPENDERS.

THE SITUATION IS THREATENING POLITICAL TROUBLE FOR GOV. JOHN SIMMS. HE INDICATED IN HIS MESSAGE TO THE LEGISLATURE THAT MORE MONEY SHOULD BE PROVIDED. THE POLITICAL CONSEQUENCES OF A REDUCED WELFARE PROGRAM COULD BE SERIOUS, NOT ONLY FROM THE 45,000 ON THE ROLLS BUT ALSO FROM THE COMMUNITIES WHERE THE INSTITUTIONS ARE LOCATED.

MOVIE LOTTERIES ARE UNREGULATED

Theaters which enjoy lottery privileges beyond those granted churches, orphanages or other are in for a jousting from the legislature. Theaters not only have a special right to conduct "bank night" lotteries, but they also are almost unheard-of privilege of running them without any legal regulations. Rep. J. W. Garcia of Santa Fe would set up some. He notes that some theaters draw bank night winners from lists that have accumulated for years, that there is no legal supervision over drawings, no legal recourse for those who think they might have been

BANK FACTS FOR YOU

HOW TO SAVE MORE MONEY

Everyone knows the answer—spend less. So easily said . . . not so easily done; yet there is a way to do it. Here's the key: Count savings as a fixed obligation, like rent or taxes. Each pay period "pay yourself"—bank a definite sum—BEFORE you start to spend. That way, to judge by the experience of others, you'll almost certainly save MORE in the long run.

Now, decide on the sum that you'll set aside each payday; then, next payday, make your first regular deposit in a savings account here.

New Forms Available For Oil, Gas Leases

The New Mexico office of the Bureau of Land Management announces that it has received a supply of new forms of application for leasing of oil and gas on lands acquired by the United States. The forms are a combination Offer to Lease and Lease and embody recent amendments of the Mineral Leasing Act for the public domain which are applicable to acquired lands.

The term "acquired lands" denotes lands owned by the Government but differ from public lands in that they are reacquired by the Government through purchase. A revision of the acquired lands regulations applicable to leaseable minerals including oil and gas, to become effective on January 31, 1955, was recently approved by Secretary of the Interior, McKay. Under the revised regulations the use of the new acquired lands oil and gas lease form is mandatory on and after January 31, 1955.

The new forms (No. 4-1196) and the revised acquired lands regulations (Circular No. 1890) may be obtained from the Land Office, Bureau of Land Management, Department of the Interior, which is located in the Post Office Building at Santa Fe. Requests by mail should be addressed to Manager, Land Office, Bureau of Land Management, P. O. Box 1251, Santa Fe, New Mexico.

All offers to lease for oil and gas and all other minerals for acquired lands in the States of New Mexico, Oklahoma and Texas must be filed in the Land Office at Santa Fe, according to E. R. Smith, State Supervisor.

State Champion Is Award Winner
In National Wool Sewing Contest

SALT LAKE CITY, Utah—Miss Norena Baca, 15, of Belen, New Mexico's junior sewing champion in the 1954 "Make It Yourself With Wool" contest has been named winner of fourth place award in the junior division at the contest's national finals.

She will receive a $100 Savings Bond, presented by the Wool Bureau. Her award was announced following her participation in the National Fashion Revue, where top home sewing experts from 14 Western wool-growing states modeled their own home-sewn fashions. Miss Baca, youngest national finalist and award winner in the contest, represented New Mexico in the national finals, together with Mrs. Phyllis Roark Townsend, 18, of Lovington.

Miss Baca won her award with her simple basic dress of black and copper novelty woven, with a turtleneck collar and three-quarter-length sleeves. Mrs. Townsend's entry was a sky-blue coat of Juilliard's pure wool fleeco, with a deeply pleated belted back, an adjustable collar, and buttonhole pockets.

The two young women won the right to represent New Mexico by winning local and district eliminations held throughout the state.

The two state home sewing champions received all-expense-paid trips to Salt Lake City, to be guests at the 90th annual convention of the National Wool Growers Association and to participate December 8 in the National Fashion Show. They traveled to and from Salt Lake City as guests of the F. W. Woolworth Company.

Designed to create interest in the art of sewing at home with virgin wool fabric, the "Make It Yourself With Wool" Contest is held in all states of the Western wool-growing empire. It is open to all girls from 14 through 22 years of age. Those from 14 through 17 enter the junior division; those from 18 through 22, the senior division.

The New Mexico Wool Growers Association sponsors the "Make It Yourself With Wool" contest each year throughout the state with the cooperation of the Women's Auxiliary of the National Wool Growers Association and the Wool Bureau. Mrs. Thomas Burns III, of Chama is State Promotion Chairman and the State Contest Director is Mrs. Frank McWilliams of Carlsbad.

PUEBLO BONITO:
An Example of Peaceful Co-existence

Washington — Prehistoric Indians of the American Southwest offer an example to today's discordant world of how man once solved a co-existence problem—successfully.

More than 900 years ago two contrasting cultures met head-on within the confining walls of a remarkable communal dwelling, Pueblo Bonito, in what is now northwestern New Mexico. As different as were their ways of life, the two peoples, about 1,000 in all, lived peacefully together for a century.

The story of Pueblo Bonito is detailed in a new book, "The Material Culture of Pueblo Bonito," written by Neil M. Judd, associate in anthropology at the United States National Museum of the Smithsonian Institution and leader of a series of National Geographic Society expeditions to the site.

In 1920 the Society initiated a program of archeological research into the remains of the vanished Indian culture in Chaco Canyon National Monument. Mr. Judd conducted preliminary surveys of the vast abandoned "apartment house" of Pueblo Bonito there. Extensive excavations followed from 1921 through 1927.

Today the ruins stand as a broken pile of terraced homes dug from thousands of tons of earth, stone and sand. A maze of rooms revealed the record of the past in earthenware vessels, agricultural tools, ornaments and ceremonial paraphernalia, some displaying great beauty of form and decoration. No written material was found.

Pueblo Bonito originated in the ninth or early tenth century as a cluster of rudely built masonry houses. Newcomers, presumably from the north, joined the older farm settlers near the mid-eleventh century.

These immigrants were culturally more advanced. They took over management of the community without destroying the old inhabitants. They possessed progressive architectural ideas and completely surrounded the first village in their initial building program. Twice thereafter they unhesitatingly razed their own and neighboring houses to make way for new structures.

They made the pueblo nearly impregnable and added third and fourth stories to some dwellings.

"Differences between the two peoples are evident in many ways," Mr. Judd says. "The one group was old-fashioned, unchanging; the other, alert and progressive. Each had its preferences in architecture; each had its favored shapes for kitchen utensils."

"Old Bonitian houses were built of sandstone slabs as wide as the wall thickness. Quantities of mud were required to bed the slabs evenly. In contrast, late Bonitian architecture consists of a core of rubble and adobe faced on both sides by neatly laid stonework."

The original settlers stayed longer at Pueblo Bonito. When the farm soil deteriorated the eleventh-century immigrants, used to a higher standard of living, left for greener pastures.

Margaret and her daughter Gail were Sunday visitors at the Robinson Ranch north of Capitán.

Farm and Ranch

By RALPH DUNLAP
Lincoln County Extension Agent

Feb. 15 to See Close of Drought Feed Program

After considering the drought situation, the State Drought Committee set February 15, 1955 as the closing date for Lincoln County drought feed program. Any rancher needing grain or hay should apply for it at the ASC office in the Courthouse, Carrizozo.

Relaxed Regulations On Crop Allotments

Questions are coming in now from farmers who want to know how the dropping of cross-compliance requirements for price support eligibility, announced recently by the Department of Agriculture, will affect their particular operations.

Briefly, this how the new regulations apply to you. If you expect to put your 1955 corn crop under price support loan, you will need to stay within your corn acreage allotment, if there is one for your farm. The same is true of any other allotment crop for which you might want a Commodity Credit Corporation loan and purchase agreement. But don't worry about cross-compliance between allotment crops. You will not need to comply with all allotments for your farm in order to get a loan on any one crop.

If a marketing quota has been voted into effect—as it was last year for wheat, cotton, peanuts, and major types of tobacco—quota penalties will also apply if allotted acreage for a crop is exceeded. The regulation establishing quota penalties, as well as the one prohibiting price support for any individual crop on which the farm acreage allotment is exceeded, is provided for by law and cannot be changed by the Department of Agriculture.

Another regulation established by law applies to Agriculture Conservation Program cost-sharing. Compliance with all crop allotments which apply to a farm is a requirement for eligibility for ACP assistance in carrying out conservation measures. Therefore, if you want ACP assistance in carrying out conservation plans for your farm, you will need to stay within acreage allotments for all crops on your farm.

Farmers Urged to Use Certified Planting Seed

Farmers can't afford to take chances with inferior seed, or seed not adapted to their particular areas, says Edward L. Davis, field inspector for the New Mexico Crop Improvement Association at State College. It takes time and labor to get seed into the ground. If they fail to germinate or come up to a poor stand, the producer will wind up throwing good money after bad to make a poor crop.

The safest buy in New Mexico is certified seed, Davis says. Farmers who buy certified seed can depend on not only getting a variety that is suitable to growing conditions in the state, but also seed of proven germinating ability.

Certified seed are developed by plant breeders who are highly trained in their work. They develop superior varieties by crossing plants that have desirable characteristics such as high-yielding ability, seedling vigor, early maturity, and uniformity of plants. When new varieties have been tested and have proven economical and successful for New Mexico conditions, they are released to the New Mexico Crop Improvement Association for certification and distribution.

One of the biggest hazards to purchasing seed of unknown origin or questionable character is that oftentimes, such seed contains noxious weed seed. As a result, the farmer not only gets a poor stand, but also has the added expense of controlling or eradicating noxious weed plants.

Farmers who are desirous of procuring seed which is certified and specifically adapted to their areas should contact their county extension agent or the New Mexico Crop Improvement Association at State College for source of supply.

EDITOR'S NOTE: Don Thackrey has been a sports writer in the West since 1947, when he was transferred from the Marine Corps as an artillery captain after serving in active combat in the Pacific. Before that he was a sports reporter in the Midwest. He is currently working out of the San Francisco bureau of United Press.

Those who have been singing the blues in print and on the street corners about the decline of collegiate basketball in the West this year seem to be both premature and greedy.

Greedy because they seem to think that for West Coast basketball to be at its best, a Western team should be the pre-season choice, top all the weekly polls and then clean up on the post-season tournaments.

As a matter of fact, it is only the post-season tournaments that count anyway in the public mind. Who remembers which team topped the various polls at the end of the 1954 or 1952 seasons? All the fans can recollect are the champions—the teams that won the National Invitational and the NCAA crowns.

The West has only one representative in the top ten of the polls—University of San Francisco. But there are several more teams that may be more highly respected after tournament time.

Tularosa the Winner

Carrizozo lost to Tularosa last Saturday night, 59 to 71. The score was closer than the previous night's loss to Capitan, and again the game was decided at the free throw line. Both the Wildcats and the Grizzlies had the same number of field goals—20. Carrizozo tried 32 free throws and made 19 for 51%; Tularosa tried 40 and made good on 31, for a thumping 77%.

S. Harkey led the Grizzlies with 22 markers, followed by Robert Vega with 17. Johnny Marrujo for the winners had a good night with 25; Gerald Marr came up with 17 and L. Fairbanks with 12.

Score by quarters:
Carrizozo 20 32 48 60
Tularosa 18 33 51 71
The Grizzly Bees continued to hold the Indian sign over the Tullebabes, winning 43 to 38.

POINT OF ROCKS IN NEW MEXICO

By VEDA N. CONNER
(In Ford "Times")

In the northeast corner of New Mexico, a stone's throw from the famous guest house and luxury lodge region of Raton and the Pecos, lies a lesser known area of great beauty, with a great past and a great future.

Roughly speaking, this country forms a huge triangle. Its base is New Mexico Highway 58, between Springer and Clayton. Its hypotenuse is U. S. 64 and 87, Clayton to Raton. The short side is U. S. 83, Springer to Raton.

It is a country of solitary peaks made blue-green by juniper and pine, of extinct volcanoes, of small lakes known to deer, geese and antelope, and of great cattle ranches. Almost at its geographical center is Point of Rocks, a 600-foot red cliff jutting from the range.

Around the base of the cliff are the ruins of the Santa Fe Trail, here called the Cimarron Cutoff, or the Desert Route. No highway is more deeply engraved in the history of courage and heartbreak of the American West. Although seventy years have passed since the railroad supplanted the trail, the ruins of the wagon trains are still to be seen—in some places four feet deep.

It was at Point of Rocks in 1841 that Kit Carson wrote a new chapter in our expansion when he went to avenge an Indian attack on a wagon train of typically unwary, untrained Easterners, greenhorns of the most pitiful sort.

For the first time in the West, Carson was armed with Colt's new revolving pistol. Up to then the pioneers had one-shot rifles with which to face Indians who could shoot an arrow every two seconds from a quiver of forty. The Apaches attacked at dawn, were met with a single volley and then charged in to finish off the "unarmed" wagoners. Seconds later, the few panic-stricken Indians still able to do so ran away to spread the word that a new day had dawned on the Santa Fe Trail.

The points of interest in the region are many. At the village of Folsom was found a spear-point in the ribs of a bison, indicating that man was here 20,000 years ago. There is Mt. Capulin, called the world's most perfectly formed volcano, with a picnic area on top and views of Oklahoma, Texas and Colorado.

There is Clayton, where the notorious Jack Ketchum was hanged to the accompaniment of fiddles and guitars. There is Sleria Grande, 8000 feet of solitary majesty. And there is Springer, where the cattlemen make deals and the setting is right from a Western movie.

To visitors the great fascination of the Point of Rocks country lies in observing a kind of life they thought was passed—immense cattle ranches in action, stories of the two-gun days, and the rolling grass of the Great Plains under enormous skies.

Fishing and big game and turkey hunting are excellent; so are the motels and the restaurants of Clayton, and Springer.

CHECK '55 SEED CATALOGUES FOR NEW VARIETIES

The 1955 seed catalogues have started to arrive. If you have not already received yours, write for a market gardener's price list catalog from several seed concerns.

Carefully observe varieties that are making their first appearance, usually listed on the inside of the front page. These will be listed as 1955 specials.

Selection of disease resistant varieties is important and may mean success or failure in growing a crop. If the variety is new and has not already been tested in your community or in the state, get a small packet of seed and try it this year to see how it will perform under your conditions and also whether it will be acceptable to your market.

"Know New Mexico" Was January Theme For Woman's Club

By CLARA BAKER

"Know New Mexico" was the theme of the Carrizozo Woman's Club meeting held Friday, January 21, 1955 in the Clubhouse with Mrs. B. M. Shafer as program chairman.

Mrs. Shafer gave a few statistics on the wealth of New Mexico. The State receives $400 million dollars per year from the United States Government; $300 million from mining. Manufacturing and petroleum (gas and oil) came next.

Mrs. S. H. Nickels was then introduced by Mrs. Shafer. Mrs. Nickels was a former teacher of Jane Gallacher Shafer.

ENCHILADA SUPPER

The Carrizozo Woman's Club will give a public enchilada supper Saturday, Feb. 5, starting at 5 p.m. The price is $1 per plate. Mrs. Lewis Farris, chairman, will be assisted by the Mesas E. E. Lemon, Roy Shafer, E. M. Shafer, Kelley Stephenson, Mabel Reinhart, Grace Stevens, Bernice Nickels, Charles Hodgins, W. W. Gallacher, John Kelley.

Mrs. Nickels gave a very revealing account of the schools in New Mexico and stated that the standing of New Mexico schools was above the middle level throughout the nation, with Carrizozo at the top level in Lincoln County. It was also pointed out by Mrs. Nickels that grade and high school teachers are paid the same salaries. Carrizozo teachers are paid "below the average of other teachers in the state," she said, "because we don't have as large assessed property valuations or as large an attendance as other communities in the state." Teachers are paid by "average daily attendance."

Mrs. Nickels pointed out the many improvements made to the schools in the past two years and remarked that "we should never let up on improving our schools; it would be committing national suicide if our educational setup collapsed."

Mrs. C. A. Snow gave an interesting talk on the parks in New Mexico—there is one in almost every county in the State. The oldest parks are in the northwest part of the State and Indian artifacts found there show the ancient inhabitants were a very cultured people. She expressed the hope that the Mal Pais may eventually become a national monument. An artistic map of the roadside park in the Mal Pais (a project of the Carrizozo Woman's Club) and drawn by Carl Freeman, was displayed by Mrs. Snow. Mrs. Jane Shafer, in a brief
