

Report Funds Available For Bonito Pipeline

An Associated Press dispatch from Washington late last week stated that Sen. Dennis Chavez had been informed by Assistant Air Secretary Lyle Garlock that the budget bureau had released $3,700,000 for construction of a water pipeline from Lake Bonito to Alamogordo and Holloman Air Force Base.

It was stated that the Army Engineers district office in Alamogordo would ask for bids to build the 70-mile pipeline.

For every new pupil in public school, taxpayers must shell out an average of $250.62 for current expenses and $80.52 for buildings, books, etc.

American Bar Ass'n Seeks New Members

LaFol E. Oman, Las Cruces, New Mexico, attorney, who has been appointed chairman for the Third Judicial District of New Mexico in the American Bar Association's nation-wide campaign for 50,000 new members, this week announced that the ABA, national organization of the legal profession, is engaged in the biggest membership development ever undertaken by a professional organization.

Responsible for the local success of the campaign, Mr. Oman in concert with thousands of his colleagues will conduct a person-to-person canvass of prospective members in this area during the climatic week of February 10-17.

Key to the campaign is this statement by ABA President E. Smythe Gambrell of Atlanta: "Our task is to keep the legal profession abreast of changing conditions in today's social and economic orders."

"We must immediately double our membership if the legal profession is to carry out its great objectives. These include improving the administration of justice, maintaining high standards of ethics and education, and providing legal assistance for all who need it."

and can be mailed safely. A month or two passed before the lady again saw our teller—having meanwhile acted on his suggestion. "And thanks to your collaboration," the story has a satisfying ending, beamed the authoress—whose name (had you guessed?) was Mrs. D.

YOUR SOCIAL SECURITY is important protection for you and your family. It is wise to check your own record of your account periodically, to be sure that no errors have been made. Simply write to the Social Security Administration, Baltimore, Md., asking for a statement of your account. You may do this an often as once a year—and should do it at least once every three years, as there is a limit to the period within which certain corrections can be made.

HAFB Family Wins Trip to Disneyland

A Holloman Air Force Base family, Lt. and Mrs. A. M. Crews and their three children, were this week announced winners of an all-expense-paid trip to Disneyland in a monthly contest sponsored by Food Mart, Inc.

The entire Crews family, including Jann Carol, 4, Nancy Lee, 2½, and Patrick Alan, 2 months, flew to California via American Airlines, Monday, Jan. 9. Their prize also includes accommodations at the Hotel Knickerbocker in Hollywood and $100 spending money.

Questions and Answers On Tax Problems

(R. A. Doughty, certified public accountant, who has opened an office in Carrizozo, answers questions of a general nature on income tax problems. Questions may be addressed to his office, Lincoln County Savings & Loan Association, in Carrizozo, Below. Mr. Doughty answers three questions.)

Q—"Are farmers and ranchers required to pay Social Security on what they make on the farm or ranch?"

A—"Farmers and ranchers are required to pay 'Self-Employment Tax' which is equivalent to Social Security, and in most cases are required to pay Social Security on their farm and ranch employees.

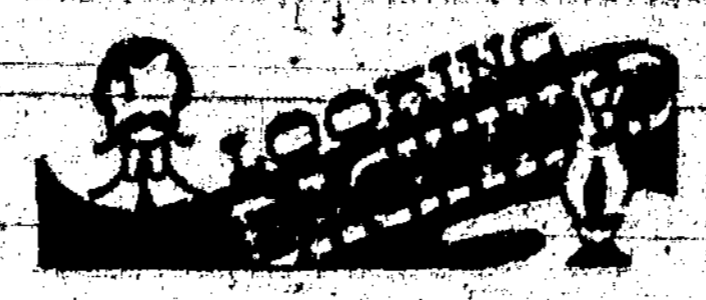

Q—"Are ministers and pastors of churches required to pay Social Security on their earnings from their churches?"

A—"Ordained and licensed ministers and pastors may voluntarily elect to be covered by the provisions of the Self-Employment Tax Act by filing Form 2031 with the proper agency. If the election is made to be covered by the provisions of the act is made and the form is filed, the election cannot be revoked.

Q—"Must I report and pay taxes on the sale of my home if I buy a new home or invest the money from the sale in a business or farm?"

A—"If a residence is sold at a gain or profit over the cost or basis to the seller, and a new home is built or bought within one year, generally speaking, before or after the sale of the old home, there would be no taxable gain on the sale. If the price of the new home is less than the sale price of the old home further facts would be needed before answering. If the proceeds from the sale of the home are invested in a business or farm, generally the gain would be taxable.

School Needs to Grow At Tremendous Rate

Ten years from now 23% more children will be entering elementary schools than today, 55% more in high schools and 40% more in colleges. We will need some 600,000 more classrooms to accommodate them—a jump of about 60%, according to the Kiplinger Letter.

We'll also need 200,000 more teachers every year for ten years to cover school growth and to replace those who quit and retire.

The main problem, of course, is money, which in the end means more taxes. The total cost of schools, public and private, now is eight to ten billion dollars a year. In the next ten years this may double and most of it must come from taxes.

What kind of taxes will support the schools? Most property taxes collected in states go to the schools. So there will be higher local taxes, higher property assessments, and fewer exemptions.

AN EYE-WITNESS ACCOUNT OF THE FINAL BATTLE OF THE LINCOLN COUNTY WAR

More than 77 years ago Frank Phillips of Alamogordo sat on a hillside at Lincoln and watched the final battle of the Lincoln County War between the Murphy-Dolan and Alexander McSween factions.

Several other boys sat on the hill with Phillips on two July days in 1878 and saw the end to a murderous chapter in New Mexico history. One of the boys was John Pepping. Phillips said. The last names of two others were Pacheco and Kindo. As far as Phillips knows, they're all dead now.

Phillips is 82 years old. He said: "I tell what I saw, and knew at the time. I don't tell big stories."

Phillips and his parents lived about one-fourth of a mile west of the Murphy-Dolan store, now the Old Lincoln County Court-house. The battle started on the main street of Lincoln about 2 o'clock in the afternoon, and shortly afterward Phillips and the other boys went up on the hillside about 200 yards away to watch the fighting.

This is Phillips' story: In the afternoon there was a bloody fight in the street. Horses were shot in the battle and some men were wounded. McSween men shot from behind their dead horses at the Murphy-Dolan store. I don't think anyone was killed that afternoon.

Late that afternoon the McSween men holed up in his adobe house. McSween had good fighting men. Billy the Kid was one of them. The factions were about evenly matched for fighting men.

Leader of the fighting men of the opposing faction was Joe Evans, one-time friend of Billy the Kid. This group was in the Dolan store, which was diagonally across from the McSween home.

Late that day, according to Phillips, James J. Dolan, owner of the store, asked for troops from Fort Stanton ten miles away. The troops came to Lincoln but they didn't stop the fighting and they went back to the fort the next day. There was firing back and forth between the store and the McSween house off and on during day.

The other boys and myself went up on the hill again the next morning. I saw McSween step out on the porch of his house. (He had a Bible in his hand.) Then I heard a burst of fire from the Dolan store and saw McSween fall. No one came out of the house to pick him up right away. He lived for some hours. The soldiers were supposed to have surrounded his house.

Mrs. McSween was staying in Green Wilson's house diagonally across the street from her home. I saw her start across the street. She was wearing a white dress. Bullets from the store sang in front of and behind her, but aimed so they wouldn't hit her. Susan McSween didn't run or act scared, she walked straight across the street, stopped a moment by her husband and stood on the porch.

(Phillips' memory of Susan McSween went back to more than her courage. Twice he said: "She was an awful pretty woman.")

I didn't see any men come out of McSween's house, but I know McSween's friends carried him into the house after he was shot, and I think his body was taken to Wilson's house. I know McSween's body didn't burn in the house after it was set afire.

About dark that night, after the soldiers had left, some of the Murphy-Dolan men slipped around to the back end of the McSween house and set it afire. I saw the house burn from the hill. The first of McSween's men to jump through a window was Jose Salazar. Men hidden among the willow trees near the house shot at him. Jose fell in a ditch. They came up to where Jose was lying, and one of them said, "Don't spend another bullet on him." Jose played dead and later slipped away.

The Kid was playing the piano in the burning house. Jose Salazar's brother came up to the Kid and said the rest of them better get out or they'd burn alive. The Kid escaped next but didn't have to shoot his way out. About ten of them got out of the burning house. They all met at Henry Farmer's place about two miles west of Lincoln.

Ruidoso Band Marched With Wyoming Team

From all reports the Ruidoso High School band had a marvelous trip to El Paso for the Sun Carnival. They covered themselves with glory and enjoyed playing and marching in the parade. But, the highlight of the whole affair was when they were asked to march out on the football field with the Wyoming team.

News of County Episcopal Churches

Meeting Sunday, Jan. 8, at Bonnell Ranch, members of St. Anne's Episcopal Church, Glencoe, elected Dan Storm, Elzy Perry, Edna Schlerenberg, Elzy Perry, Jr., and Bart M. Pavey to the Bishop's Committee. Rev. Charles L. Conder, Vicar, appointed Dan Storm and Bart M. Pavey as lay readers. The meeting followed potluck dinner at 1 p.m. Holy Communion having been celebrated that morning.

Noting a communicant membership of 23 and baptized membership of 37 representing 17 families along the Ruidoso River, Mr. Conder expressed gratification at the growth of the life of the congregation, attendance having doubled in the past two years.

Treasurer Kenneth Nosker reported that offerings also had doubled since 1953, and moved the adoption of a $1,341.12 budget, which met unanimous approval.

Edna Schlerenberg reported the activities of the Bishop's Committee and the development of the book of History of St. Anne's, recording the first Sunday School organized by Mrs. Frank Coe about 1885 and the subsequent occasional services and the eventual building of the Chapel on June 3, 1934.

Twelve ministers at least have served the congregation through the years. Dan Storm, warden, reported on the care of the physical properties, with Mrs. Bart Pavey and Mrs. E. Nosker telling of the work of the women of the Church, and Mrs. Fred LaMay, County Chairman for Episcopal Women, reported on the united work of the three Episcopal women's groups in Lincoln County.

Purchase of a memorial chalice and paten in memory of the late Miss Sydney Bonnell and L. W. Boon were authorized. Mr. and Mrs. Ralph Bonnell were gracious hosts for the meeting.

Rancher Tests Commercial Fertilizers

Can New Mexico rangeland benefit from commercial fertilizers? Floyd Lee, San Mateo rancher, would like to know the answer. Last fall, Mr. Lee applied fertilizers on four different types of rangeland on his ranch. Fertilizers used were nitrogen, phosphorus and potash, applied both singly and in combination at varying rates. Eight different treatments were applied on each of these four types of rangeland.

- (1) Light, rocky soil on a hillside, with blue grama cover.
- (2) Heavy, lake-bottom soil, with blue-grama and Arizona fescue cover.
- (3) Heavy, lake-bottom soil, with alkali sacatongrass cover.
- (4) Light, sandy mesa soil, with blue grama and gutierrez-grass cover.

The plots, which are 40 x 80 feet square, will be fenced in with closely woven wire to prevent range animals from grazing.

Lee is being assisted in the experiment by Valencia County Extension Agent Henry Chavez and the Department of Agriculture Services at New Mexico A&M College.

"Our results will depend a lot, of course, on how much rain we get," Lee explains. "If we get plenty of snow this winter, our plots will really stand out against the rest of the range."

The plots will be clipped next season and the forage production will be weighed and compared with non-fertilized plots.

Cost of fertilizing rangeland would run from $5.50 to $12 an acre, estimates show. Hay production would have to be increased less than a half-ton per acre to make the practice profitable.

Livestock Breeders' School to Follow A&M Feeders' Day

The program for the 17th annual Feeders' Day at New Mexico A&M College next month will feature information of mutual interest to both livestock feeders and breeders, J. H. Knox, head of A&M's Animal Husbandry Department, said this week.

The Feeders' Day, slated for February 27, will be followed by a two-day school for New Mexico cattle breeders on February 28 and 29. The school agenda is being planned by the Beef Cattle Improvement Committee of the New Mexico Cattle Growers' Association and the A&M Animal Husbandry staff.

One of the most interesting reports on the Feeders' Day program will be a summary of A&M's research findings on feeding Silchester, and a general review of research and factual information on the pros and cons of feeding this relatively new hormone.

Two discussions which should be of particular interest to both feeders and breeders are those on "the effect of shade of color on feeder cattle" and "the influence of type on carcass."

The program will also highlight current research at A&M, a discussion of the marketing situation, and an inspection of the College's experimentally-fed animals.

Ivan Watson, extension animal husbandman, will chair the program which will begin at 8:30 a. m. in Milton Hall on the College campus.

The Cattle Breeders' School will include training in genetics, plans of breeding, selection, and reproduction.

Genetics and plans of breeding will include principles of inheritance, heritability of productive factors and hereditary defects.

In selection of breeding animals, weight-for-age will receive prominent attention at the school. Other matters to be considered under this subject will be correction factors in a breeding program, results obtained from a plan of selecting range bulls, the effect of shade of color on production of Herefords, rec-

Offer New Booklet On Dairy Cattle

An easy-to-read and well-illustrated circular on feeding and management of dairy cattle is just off the press at New Mexico A&M College's Agricultural Extension Service.

The circular, written by E. E. Anderson, extension dairy specialist, covers various steps of raising the dairy heifer, feeding the dairy cow; maintenance of production records, and pointers on fitting, showing, and judging of dairy animals.

The circular also contains graphs, charts, tables, and pictures which help to explain feeding and management practices; illustrated steps of milk testing; a section on making a rope halter; and an explanation of the organization and functions of a 4-H dairy club.

A free copy of the Circular No. 262, entitled "Dairy Cattle Feeding and Management," may be procured from the county extension agent's office or by writing to the Department of Information, New Mexico A&M College, P. O. Box 757, State College.

Ordinary visual selection of animals, and selection procedure.

The course on reproduction will be highlighted by a discussion on causes of breeding failures in range bulls.

The school will get under way Tuesday morning, February 28 and continue through noon, February 29.

On hand to provide technical information at the school will be members of the A&M Experiment Service, and teaching staffs. Producers and other livestock specialists will also assist with the program.

Livestock feeders and breeders are invited to attend both the Feeders' Day and Breeders' School.

Coats for Sheep In Popular Demand

Sheep coats seem to be in popular demand, with many growers considering buying them for part or all of their flock. The sheep coat, made of cotton ducking, is made in three types. The most used type is the non-adjustable one that is sewn at the neck opening. The other two types have a tie string or zipper to allow for adjustment. Each type has its advantages and should be selected to suit the needs of the herd.

Before buying a large number, the rancher should get several samples to try on his own sheep for size and fit. By doing this, the rancher can be assured of a good fit on his sheep. Several ranchers have told me about their trouble when they just guessed at the size.

The county agent's office also has a booklet on making your own sheep coats.

A little denatured alcohol applied with a brush will remove stubborn tobacco stains from copper or brass ash trays. Rinse with hot water after cleaning.

FUNERAL RITES FOR MRS. TOM HIGH

The following was taken from the Walters Herald, Walters, Okla. Many readers of the News will remember that Mr. and Mrs. Tom High visited around the county last August when they were here to celebrate their golden wedding anniversary. At that time they visited Mr. and Mrs. Charlie Peebles.)

Funeral services for Mrs. Tom High, 73, well known Walters resident, were conducted Wednesday afternoon at 2:30 o'clock from the First Baptist church by Rev. W. E. Russell, pastor, and Rev. John J. Evans of Lawton.

Interment was in Walters cemetery. Mrs. High died at 10:35 o'clock Sunday evening, December 25, at Memorial Hospital in Frederick. She had been ill three weeks.

Lucy Jane Wylder, daughter of Rev. F. M. and Lucy Ann Wylder, was born February 15, 1882, at Allen, Texas. Her father was a minister and during her childhood she lived at a number of places.

She attended Baylor University with the intention of going to China as a foreign missionary, but her health prevented her going. She retained a high interest in mission work, and did much to promote it during her life.

She taught school for a number of years. On August 30, 1905, she was married to Thomas J. High at Capitan, N. Mex. They moved to Walters in October of that year, making the trip in a covered wagon. They had lived in that community since that time.

Last August 30 they celebrated their golden wedding anniversary with an open house at their home on the southwest edge of Walters.

Ten children were born to the union, and with their father survive her. They are: Mrs. Edith Rose of Prentiss, Miss; Mrs. Josephine Damron of Rio Vista, Calif.; Mrs. Ruth Addison and Mrs. Lorene Gilliam, both of Walters; Dick High of Pasadena, Texas; Pat High of Snyder, Tex.; Joe of Faxon, Charles High of Frederick, and Jim and Gomer High of Walters.

Also included in the survivors are two sisters, Mrs. Ollie Anthony of Elda, N. Mex., and Mrs. Charity Simmons of Walters; three brothers, Walter Wylder of Duncan and Gomer Wylder of Walters; 21 grandchildren and eight great-grandchildren.

PEAK STATE EMPLOYMENT

During the past month, more New Mexicans were at work than at any other time in the State's history. New Mexico employers have reported a net payroll increase of 400 workers for the month to reach a mid-November total of 184,000 non-farm wage and salaried jobs. Seasonal factors, particularly in Trade and Government, accounted for the month's gain.
