

Interviews With People Who Helped Build Lincoln County

GRACE E. COMREY

Harry Comrey was one who dressed well when the occasion called for it. He wore tailor made clothes, custom made boots and an expensive felt hat. He was all dressed up like this one Sunday when he went into White Oaks after being out on a well drilling job for eight weeks. White Oaks was a lively place. Saloons and gambling games were running 24 hours a day, seven days a week. There were also three Protestant churches. Harry's first thought when he went into White Oaks that Sunday was that he'd go up to church. Maybe he could see someone he could do business with. The way led past Hudgens saloon. He thought he'd see who was in there, maybe he could do some business or some trading. There was no one in the saloon but the bartender and a man Harry had never seen before. He was a tough cowman. Harry was dressed up like a city man.

The stranger said: "And who may this be — dressed up — be?"

Harry said: "Meaning me?"

Stranger: "There ain't nobody else here but me and you and the bartender."

Harry said: "Nobody talks to me like that and gets away with it."

They started fighting. The cowman was 30 pounds heavier than Harry but he wasn't as strong or as hard. The stranger drew the first blood. When Harry saw blood running onto his new suit he said it drove him crazy. He threw all his weight into every punch.

People on their way to church stopped to see the fight. The preacher even came down to watch. Someone went across the canyon and told Ed: "There's an awful fight on at Hudgens bar and Harry's in it." Ed reached for his six-gun and went to see the fight. He walked up to the crowd and said: "You all know me boys. We never butt in. The Comrey boys can take care of themselves. Nobody doubles up on this fight. The first man who does drops. Harry can take care of himself."

The fight went on until the bar was wrecked. Hudgens came in and ordered everyone out. Harry said to the stranger: "I'm not half licked yet. I'll see you in the morning." By morning the stranger was nowhere around. He got his horse out of the corral that night and left and no one saw him in town again. That fight cost the Comrey boys $1200. That was the bill to repair the damage to the bar.

I had quite an experience one time when I was teaching school in San Patricio. I wanted to go home for Christmas even though it had been raining for days. I left on my horse for Lincoln over the Gonzales trail. The mud was a foot deep when I got to Lincoln. I met Beulah Brazel who was teaching there. We left together and made it to Captain where we slept together that night. The next day we took a cow trail over Indian Divide and came on into the Carrizozo flats. The weather was so bad that some said they were sure we wouldn't come, but my mother said she was sure I would. Next Kemp and Ben Grelson were saddled up and ready to start out looking for me when we rode up shortly after noon Christmas Day. Beulah rode on into Carrizozo.

Another time when I was boarding with the Kemps, I decided to come home. It was in June, and it was raining this time too. I've never seen it rain so hard before or since. You could hardly see your horse's head. The Carrizozo flats were covered with a foot of water. I was riding a fine horse but it did not belong to me. I had on a yellow slicker and a slicker hat. At the culvert at the old Vera Cruz mine a man stepped out on each side of the culvert and pulled down on me. I thought it was a joke. I reined the horse and said: "Why, hello, boys. What's up?" They let their guns down and stood there while I rode on. They were looking for a certain man to come riding down that trail, and the man they were looking for was also looking for them. If I'd been that certain man they would probably have shot first and answered questions later.

Harry Comrey was a veteran of the Spanish-American War—the only war in history with 100 per cent volunteers. He was a private under the command of Col. A. B. Fall. Harry passed away in December, 1907. He is buried in the Carrizozo cemetery. Ed Comrey, who left this earth March 18, 1943 also sleeps there in the family plot.

After Harry's death I worked the ranch for two years until I secured the price that Harry set before he died. It was the water that sold the ranch. I had a

The Comrey boys were not geologists, but they studied the dirt when they drilled a well. They could tell after they had gone down a short distance whether the location was good. They didn't believe in water witching.

My sister came to New Mexico about 1918. She married Mr. Fisher. She had two children. Ben Grelson is my nephew.

My mother passed away in 1928 at the age of 95. She is buried at Angus in a spot picked out by her. Mrs. Fisher is also buried there.

Return Body of Traffic Victim to Home in Missouri

The body of Mrs. Agnes May Seckler, 42, Lincoln County's fourth traffic casualty this year, was shipped Monday by the Shaw Mortuary to her home in Mexico, Mo. Funeral services for her were held in that city Thursday morning.

Mrs. Seckler's daughter, Jo Ann, 19, and Vincent Blackwell, 18, also of Mexico, Mo., were released from Carrizozo Hospital this week and returned to their homes.

The three were en route to Tucson when their empty pickup left Highway 54 in Tecolote Canyon early Friday morning, plunged down a rocky slope and overturned 1 1/2 times.

The accident was investigated by Patrolman James Clayton and Sheriff W. G. Bradley. They reported evidence that a tire blowout sent the pickup out of control.

Mrs. Seckler was dead when the officers arrived. She received deep lacerations of the scalp, a fractured arm and one leg was nearly severed. These facts were noted in a coroner's jury report later that morning in Carrizozo.

A passing motorist picked up Mrs. Seckler's daughter, as she was walking in a dazed condition two miles north of the accident. He was Paul DeCock, pulling a house trailer.

Property owners in Carrizozo were cleaning up around their places Thursday as the result of a flash flood that poured into town Tuesday afternoon from the flat south of town.

A second downpour in the same area Wednesday afternoon caused an additional runoff into town.

Tuesday's cloudburst was concentrated in a comparatively small area between Carrizozo and Water Canyon. Arroyos and draws funneled the water into the south side of town, which was heaviest hit. One person said it looked like a sheet of approaching water.

The flood poured down all streets on the south side and began to build up in front of the Southern Pacific tracks when the culverts could not take care of the runoff. Water entered at least four homes. They were those of Sally Ortiz, Sabino San Roman, Speedie Jauregui and Tony Luceras; also the poultry building of Leandro Vega and Sons.

Principal damage resulting from the flood was to the town's streets and to Southern Pacific property.

Mayor Wayne Withers said Wednesday evening that the streets "are going to take a lot of grading and a lot of fixing." The strip of paving on upper E Avenue, south of the tracks, was broken and washed out.

RED CANYON RESPONDS TO CALL FOR ASSISTANCE

In response to a call, via Oscura, that Carrizozo was threatened by a serious flood, Lt. Col. John J. McCarthy promptly dispatched Army personnel to give assistance. About 125 men, accompanied by Col. McCarthy, Staff Engineer Major George L. Burch and Chief Warrant Officer Rice, arrived in town at 4:15.

The troops brought 2,000 sandbags, two jeeps, a wrecking truck and an ambulance.

When they arrived, flood water was pouring into the business and residential district north of the tracks mainly through two dikes—one on First Street and the other on upper E Avenue.

The soldiers started to work at once, filling sacks with dirt and plugging the holes in the dikes.

Utilities Manager H. G. Welk Tuesday night credited the Army's work in sandbagging with diverting enough water to prevent flooding of business houses and homes.

When the troops arrived the flood water, running south along the S. P. right of way, had washed out the dike at the E Avenue crossing. Part of the water flowed across the tracks but most of it ran west a quarter of a mile to a culvert under Highway 54. The tracks were completely covered by the rushing water.

The board of the directors of the club will meet this Friday noon at the Yuca Grill.

GVERNOR RATES HARRIMAN LOST

SANTA FE, Aug. 1—Corporation Commissioner Seven Foot Pickett who has his section of the statehouse plastered with three by four foot pictures of Averell Harriman has written the 32 delegates to the national Demo convention pledging with them to take a poll among local Democrats and vote accordingly at Chicago.

Pickett indicated some weeks back that he had six half-vote delegates for Harriman and is now hinting of twice that number. How many finally go with the New York governor will be largely determined on the position taken by Sen. Dennis Chavez who has been flirting with Harriman and who has some followers in the delegation. Meanwhile Gov. John Simms who joined Sen. Clinton Anderson almost a year ago in support of Adlai Stevenson continued to place Harriman far down the list.

The governor told reporters that after Stevenson New Mexico voters would prefer Senator Stuart Symington of Missouri or Sen. Lyndon Johnson of Texas.

He said that Harriman was unacceptable here because he was an extreme liberal and had too much money for New Mexico voters' taste.

The Pickett agitation for Harriman is the only ripple of interest that has shown up in the Demo delegation. They're obliged to give a courtesy vote for Our Clint if he wants it and after that are kind of lukewarm for Adlai.

Woman of Samaria

SITE OF JACOB'S WELL: Near Nablus in the Kingdom of Jordan, one of the Bible Lands, Jacob's Well still attracts visitors. It lies in the center of a parcel of grazing land purchased by Jacob for a "Hundred pieces of silver", and inherited by Joseph, who is reputed to be buried nearby. It was here that Jesus is believed to have met the Woman of Samaria and asked her for a drink of water (John 4:7). Here we see a modern Samaritan girl drawing water much as her ancient ancestor did.

YOUR HEALTH

EATING, FOR LIFE

"It doesn't matter what I eat at my age," says Grandmother pushing the spinach to the side of her plate.

And she was just telling Junior to eat his spinach.

Junior has a perfect right to think she's being unreasonable. She is. Her diet needs are almost the same as his, except that she can manage with fewer calories because she climbs fewer trees.

Older people too often think the rules of health no longer apply to them. They're apt to believe, for instance, that they're too old to catch an infectious disease such as tuberculosis. A glance at TB statistics would tell them another story. The TB case rate and death rate in people over 65 is considerably higher than in people between 15 and 44. And nutrition is one of the important factors in resistance to tuberculosis.

Why do so many older people eat poorly? The most common reason, doctors believe, is habit. Some of them never have eaten meat, vegetables and milk—and they don't want to change. Teeth also play a part. If older people will see their dentists for correction of decayed or missing teeth and ill-fitting dentures, they can enjoy solid, well-balanced meals. Money is another problem. Retired people with shrunken incomes often feel that the right foods are too expensive. Better knowledge of food values, careful marketing and budgeting will help.

What should older people eat to protect themselves from disease and make the late years of life comfortable? The daily diet of a 65 year old man should provide 1,900 to 2,400 calories, a woman's 1,500 to 1,900. Doctors recommend a pint of milk a day; butter or fortified margarine; peanut butter; one serving each of: citrus fruits or tomatoes; green or yellow vegetable, potatoes; other vegetable or fruit; whole grain cereal; eggs, meat, poultry or sea food and enriched or whole grain bread.

"We are paying for a car on the carfare we save, and we are paying for a washing machine on the laundry bill we save. It looks like we just can't afford to save any more at the present time," she explained.

Two hunters had been in the woods for several hours and one of them had been growing uneasy. Finally, panic overcame him.

"We're lost!" he said to his companion. "What are we going to do?"

"Take it easy," said his composed friend. "Shoot an extra deer and the game warden will be here in a minute and a hair."

Wife: "Oh, Henry, the lady next door has a hat just like my new one."

Hubby: "Now I suppose you want to buy another one."

Wife: "Well, it would be cheaper than moving."

Kennecott Employees Win Safety Awards

Certificates of honor from the Joseph A. Holmes Safety Association were given to the mine blacksmith shop, the power plant and to Frank Brown, long-time Kennecott employee and now general foreman at the division's smelter.

Colorado Has Two Highest Auto. Roads in U. S.

Washington—The highest automobile road in the United States winds up to the 14,260-foot summit of Mount Evans in Colorado, says the National Geographic Society. There scientists study cosmic rays in a University of Denver laboratory. Far better known and more traveled is the second loftiest highway, which climbs to the top of Pike's Peak at 14,110 feet.

Entered as second class matter July 30, 1926, at the Post Office at Carrizozo, New Mexico, under the Act of March 3, 1879.

I once worked with a man who failed to do his job one day and a mine shaft caved in. Nobody was hurt but there was a mess to clear up. The boss asked this feller if he would work overtime free to get the shaft opened up. The jerk said: "Nope, I ain't sharin' in yur profits so I ain't sharin' in yur losses." The last I heard of this feller he was still workin' for wages and not workin' very reglar.

A FORGOTTEN MINING DISTRICT

(Editor's note: Roy Tiley of Hillsboro writes about a forgotten mining district with which he has long been familiar.)

Down in southwestern New Mexico is an area, some 70 miles in length and 12 to 15 miles wide, which covers the Black Range of mountains up to 10,000 feet high, which produced over $20 million in gold and silver during the period from 1876 to 1893, and which has been practically forgotten for 63 years.

When the hardy prospectors of those old days tramped through the canyons and mountains of that section it was the stamping and hunting ground of the wild and bloody Apache Indians under their chiefs Geronimo and Victorio. Many a tough and unlucky prospector that was killed with his burro and scalped in the bargain, is buried in those mountains and some of their graves are still to be found.

Some of the names of places that were booming with miners, saloons, stores and gamblers have been forgotten except by the few remaining old-timers who were little boys in those days. Cook's Peak, at the southern end of the district has only one inhabitant, Wiley George who packed ore for his daddy in the 80's. Lake Valley, where the Bridal Chamber produced $10 million in silver, had a post office until two years ago, when there was no one left to keep the office open. Chloride, where a weekly newspaper flourished for a decade, has just two families occupying houses on its main street.

Just a few miles from Chloride was the town of Fairview. Its post office name was changed to Winston in honor of Frank Winston, who was a member of the New Mexico Constitutional Convention and who lived there until he died. Hermosa, meaning "beautiful," on the headwaters of the Palomas Creek, from which Black Canyon, across the Continental Divide, is only about 10 miles away, was a town until about 1921 and had many producing mines until the Silver Purchasing Bill was repealed. One of them was called the Antelope because the man who discovered it came from the Staked Plains. Another which was overburdened with a huge limestone ledge was called Ocean Wave because to a person from the seacoast it looked like one.

Kingston, which once boasted 2000 people, a church, a theatre, and many dance halls, and where the sidewalks were familiar to the pretty ladies who lived on Virtue Alley, so named on the town map; where A. B. Fall, later senator from New Mexico, and secretary of the Interior, practiced law, and where Ed Doherty, later the famous oil millionaire, had to rely on his friends to keep him alive—Kingston is now a summer resort for folks from El Paso and other Texas points who like to enjoy cool weather and the gurgling Middle Percha—gurgling when the drought does not prevail.

The production of wealth in gold and silver ores by the Kingston camp is estimated at around $6 million. The black Jack and other not well-regarded ores were thrown over the dump. It was the Sherman's Act repeal in 1893 that closed down Kingston.

But there is a lot of life left in the old girl, and someone is going to make a big stake there if he employs modern mining methods. In the old days they used hand steel and hand windlasses, and when they could they used adits and tunnels which were cheaper than shafts. Transporting the ores to the smelters was slow and difficult. Ox teams hauled heavy wagons over rough roads 22 miles to the railroad. Their loads were limited and two days for a loaded wagon was fast time.

Now there is a fine highway to within two miles of all those mines and a big truck will haul 10 tons in an hour and a half. Instead of hand steel and hand windlasses you have power drills which can drill a foot a minute where the hand steel took an hour or more. It took two men to handle a windlass, and the shafts were single and nothing like the size which is used now. Smelter charges are also down and low grade ores were not wanted. While labor gets higher wages, it produces around 300 percent more ore than it did then. But what is lacking today is guts. Another obstacle in those days was water. No wonder the miners liked old Kaintuck better because when they got water in the mines there were no powerful pumps to get it out and many a good shaft had to be abandoned because of that.

About the only good town left in Hillsboro about halfway between Kingston and Lake Valley. But Hillsboro is and was a gold country. Its placers produced an untold million in nuggets and dust. With gold the ore contained copper. Low grade ore ran from 0.9 to 2 percent copper and the rich ores which returned up to $500 a ton in gold ran from 10 to 15 percent copper. But copper was worth from six to ten cents a pound. There was just enough copper in the low grades to make cyaniding too costly, while fine gold was covered with an acid which repelled mercury and amalgamation was unsuccessful. No bona fide effort was ever been made to use the flotation process but in laboratory tests it has worked.

Home of Mark Twain Draws Many Tourists

Washington—Aug. 1—Beside the Mississippi River, in northeast Missouri, is a Main Street home town that attracted more American visitors last year than Hawaii, and a fourth as many as saw Europe.

The town is Hannibal, Mark Twain's boyhood home and scene of the adventures of Tom Sawyer, Huckleberry Finn, and other youngsters of fiction who are better known to millions today than many real-life persons in their daily newspapers.

Jerry Allen—author of a recent biography on the writer, humorist who is seldom remembered by his actual name, Samuel Clemens—tells in the July issue of the National Geographic Magazine how Hannibal lives its literary legend.

NAME IS EVERYWHERE

Many of the buildings Mark Twain knew are still in use, Miss Allen points out. The city shows its pride in its famous citizen of a century ago by restorations, monuments, and landmarks. His name is everywhere, in shop signs for Mark Twain printers, jewelers, cleaning company, confectionery; at hotel, taxi office, movie house and rest home.

Hannibal's best known address is 208 Hill Street. Out of his upstairs bedroom window, young Sam Clemens climbed to join his friend, Tom Blankenship (Huck Finn) for the moonlight duels he later immortalized in the "Adventures of Tom Sawyer." Against the Clemens' modest clapboard house leans a high, white board fence, copy of the one Tom graciously permitted his pals to whitewash for him.

Next door to the old home-stand is the Mark Twain Museum. Opened in 1937, it exhibits the author's early typewriter, the scarred cherry desk at which he wrote, and a huge pilot's wheel from a Mississippi steamboat.

Behind such a wheel Mark Twain learned to steer his craft so as to "shave steamships as close as you'd peel an apple." His pen name came from the river term "Mark Twain," for a safe depth of two fathoms (12 feet).

CAREFREE YOUTH

Hannibal treasures the law office of Mark Twain's father, and the home of his first girl, Laura Hawkins, immortalized as Tom Sawyer's Becky Thatcher.

At the foot of Cardiff Hill the city has set up a bronze monument showing young Tom and Huck marching along barefoot and carefree. In a riverdale park stands a giant statue of Mark Twain in late years, looking out on his beloved Mississippi. Farther along the white Mark Twain Memorial Light-house, and nearby the Mark Twain Memorial Bridge.

So closely is Hannibal linked with the author, says Miss Allen, that its history is usually ignored before 1833, when a four-year-old red-headed boy came there to live and stayed until he was 17. Actually the town, older than the Oregon Trail, was settled in 1819. When the Clemenses lived there, it was an important steamboat center of some 1,000 people.

Today, Hannibal has more than 21,000 residents. Watching the Mississippi flow by, it looks for livelihood to factories, business, and trade with a prosperous farming countryside.

Yet the river is still a living force in the community and a mold of young. Fishing is an industry as well as pastime for every man and boy. On hot summer days Jackson's Island (where Huck and Jim set out on their famous raft) is a happy haunt for kids to camp, fish and swim.

With a mile-wide river as back yard, growing up is still as much fun in Hannibal as in the days of its famous pair of boys.

Windows 'Expand' Room

A small, dark living room can be made larger and brighter with this revolutionary idea from American Builders, the light construction technique. Make the garden or patio part of the living room with a floor-to-ceiling wall of portholes and picture windows. Because the 12 frame wall windows are four hinged sections that open inward for ventilation. For information, call American Builders today. We'll send you a free booklet, but hurry! It's yours while it lasts.

Add Wood Windows—Gain a Room

Three walls of wood window units turned this open porch into a comfortable "room with a view."

Nothing could be simpler than the way the open porch at left was transformed into a sunny, cozy sitting room. The owner merely enclosed the porch all around with wood picture windows, and put down a floor of asphalt tile. Roll-down blinds assure privacy and shade when desired.

Beneath the large fixed sash picture windows are awning windows which swing out and up for ventilation.

All the windows are factory-built ponderosa pine units, which were quick and easy to install. Precise fit of the window parts and full weatherstripping minimize air infiltration. In addition, the wood of which the sash and frames are made is a poor conductor of heat and cold, therefore a good insulator against outside temperature. The result, winter or summer, is greater room comfort and lower costs for heating or air conditioning.

The windows pictured are decorated with a clear varnish to reveal the attractive ponderosa pine grain. This wood has a smooth even surface which also takes paint or stain finishes well, and may be redecorated when the home-owner chooses.

News and Views from Your Nation's Capitol

By JOHN J. DEMPSEY
Congressman from New Mexico

Washington—When the people of New Mexico and the Nation have had full opportunity to appraise the record made by the Second Session of the 84th Congress, there is no question in my mind that they will agree that it is excellent. It is, in my considered opinion, outstanding, particularly from the standpoint of our State. This appraisal is based solely on the legislative record in relation to the public interest.

I cannot recall throughout my many years of public office tenure a session which enacted more legislation of lasting benefit to our State. True, virtually all of the laws enacted were based on the best interests of the Nation as a whole, but by the very nature of its economic structure, New Mexico is in a position to be a particularly fortunate beneficiary.

Ranking highest in importance to us, I believe, is the Federal-Aid Highway Act of 1956, the greatest construction program in world's highway history. To a state like New Mexico, which has always been hampered in its highway development by long mileage, low income and comparatively meager funds, this 13-year program is vastly important. In the next three years, $120 million will be invested in betterment of our roads, interstate, primary, secondary and urban. Of that amount, $95 million will be Federal aid. More than 1000 miles of Interstate Highways, all of them four-lane, will be constructed, with the State paying 7% of the cost. Equally important will be the modernization of the other categories. In our agricultural economy the development of the secondary, or farm-to-market, roads is a paramount factor. Relief in part from the unemployment scourge in our depressed areas is a much-needed economic lift, particularly in view of the failure of the aid-to-depressed areas bill to become law.

I want to congratulate New Mexico's Chief Highway Engineer, L. D. Wilson, for the firm stand he took at the recent meeting of the American Association of State Highway Officials in Chicago, against allowing the Bureau of Public Roads to dictate the location and number of access roads, even when it might do damage to a community's economy. The House Committee, in effect, sustained him in his stand. The roads are being built primarily for the people of the community and the State; secondarily for the benefit of the nation. I can assure the citizens of every community that, so long as I have a say-so in this road-building program, Federal regulations must be adjusted to and respect their welfare.

THE COLORADO RIVER PROGRAM
Running a close second in importance for New Mexico is the Upper Colorado River Development Project, for which we won a legislative victory after a prolonged and stubborn battle, a fitting climax to an effort of several years' duration. Equally vital to our economic progress was the comparatively quick appropriation of $13 million for this year's work on the program, including $300,000 for the Navajo Dam. That brings New Mexico many months closer to the time when the State will be able to derive full benefit from more than 800,000 acre-feet of water to which it is entitled annually under the Colorado River Compact. Most of that sorely-needed water has been flowing downstream, a great part of it into the ocean. In view of the enormous potential development of our State, accentuated in the northwest area by uranium mining and processing, and the restoration of thousands of the drought-parched acres to production through transmountain diversion of part of this water, we must regard this big project as a legislative achievement that will make the 84th Congress memorable.

OTHER BENEFITS FOR NEW MEXICO
The 84th Congress, in both sessions, particularly in this session, was mindful of the need for more adequate flood control, watershed protection, soil conservation and kindred programs in the Western and Southwestern States. This was evidenced by enactment, among others, of the following:

Liberalizing amendments to the Watershed Protection and Flood Prevention Act which provide additional Federal assistance to smaller areas and permit loans and grants to be made by the Federal Government up to $200 thousand to individuals and groups in making such developments without the requirements that such project shall be referred to the Congress. This does away with a 60-day waiting period which has retarded the work in several New Mexico areas. The amendment also available for this purpose will permit expansion of the program under which several additional New Mexico small projects are contemplated.

The Flood-Control Act also was liberalized to give Army Engineers' broader authority to approve and construct small projects not specifically authorized by law, when such work is warranted. This is particularly valuable in New Mexico, which has an excellent program of large flood-control projects underway, but with many smaller areas neglected.

Enactment of Soil Bank provisions in the Farm Bill, a program to work in conjunction with the provisions of the original Soil Conservation Act, which I sponsored in 1935, will bring annual cash benefits to many New Mexico farmers and serve to balance, at least in part, farm products supply and demand. It is too early yet to determine the full benefits to be derived from this program.

Passage of a provision in the Customs Simplification Bill, which would establish a separate Customs Collection District for the State of New Mexico. This also authorizes ports-of-entry where deemed necessary, probably at such places as Anapra and Antelope Wells. The principal port-of-entry designated would be at Columbus, with headquarters for the district at either Deming or Columbus. New Mexico is the only border state which has not had a separate Customs District, having been included in the Texas District, with El Paso as headquarters. This legislation will result in economic benefit for the State because the flow of exports and imports will no longer be diverted.

Federal aid for school construction and maintenance and operation of schools in Federally impacted communities, which has been of great assistance to those areas in our State, will be continued until June 30, 1958, by action in this Session. Basis of payment to the State was increased by revision of the law to include the State's contribution to the cost per pupil. This liberalization also permits a more advantageous contract for the State for education of Indian children in the public schools.

From the standpoint of financial return to the state from laws passed and appropriations made by the second session of the 84th Congress, New Mexico will be afforded an economic boost. Heavy expenditures for construction and operations at Atomic Energy installations, Air Force bases, and the numerous other Federal operations and activities in the State are authorized. It is estimated that they will exceed $700 million this fiscal year.

Bruised Apples Have Less Market Value
"Bruised" apples was the one complaint of the brokers of New Mexico fruit, stated H. E. Baxter, packer of Hondo Valley apples. To keep our market after the Washington apples get on the market, we must reduce the bruises on our apples. Mr. Baxter pointed out that any time an apple drops over six inches that it will be bruised.

ALTO BRIEFS

Family Reunion at High Mesa Ranch

While the Don Homesteads of Lodi, Calif., were visiting her parents in Carrizozo, the George Creels held a family reunion of the Creel clan at their home last Sunday. Many pleasant hours of visiting were enjoyed.

The inevitable delicious dinner was the climax to a happy occasion. The following Creel relatives were present:

Mrs. Belle Creel, Robert Creel, R. O. Pittillo, Mrs. Pittillo being the former May Creel; Mr. and Mrs. Virgil Beech of Roswell, Mrs. Beech, a former Creel; their daughters Mrs. Tommy Terry and Lauwana Beech also of Roswell. Mr. and Mrs. Joe Nunes of Lodi, Calif., were also present having come to Carrizozo with the Homesteads and Ernest Pittillo.

Mr. and Mrs. J. B. Hightower left for Crowell, Texas, Saturday to visit relatives.

When the Virgil Beech family returned to Roswell from the Creel reunion Barbara Ann Carol went with them. On Wednesday her parents went down and brought her home with them.

The L. J. Adams of El Paso did some fishing while week ending here.

Mrs. Ola Alken of Albuquerque is at Eagle Creek for a visit with her sisters, Hattie Coffee and Maggie Randel of El Paso.

Richard Moore of Alamogordo was also their house guest at the same time.

Mr. and Mrs. Ray Osbourne of Roswell, formerly of Alto, were up Sunday to see the Charlie Martins and Mrs. Osbourne's mother, Mrs. Mary Martin of Clay Center, Kans., who is visiting the Martins.

Mrs. Marcus Waltermire and children, Ann and Mark, arrived Wednesday for a vacation at Eagle Creek.

The Wayne Hamiltons, Edith Crawford, George Dingwall and F. B. Lindwood were in Carrizozo last Wednesday. Mr. Dingwall entrained for El Paso and returned with his brother and wife, the Bill Dingwalls, who came for the week end.

The Fred Van Dorans of Roswell were here for a few days last week.

Mrs. Ed Kelley of Carrizozo and her grandchildren Kelley and Charles Corbett of Albuquerque came up Monday to Eagle Creek for a few days.

The Neal Chapmans of Carlsbad were at their Gavilan Canyon home the past week end.

The Basil Byrns have returned to Eagle Creek after a short stay in El Paso where Mrs. Ryan received attention for a broken arm she suffered at the Lodge on July 4th.

The George Hightowers of Silver City were here the past week branding their cattle up Eagle Creek Canyon. He was assisted by his brother, J. B.

Mrs. Robert Williams of Amarillo and her daughter Mrs.

"Monk" Collins and children of Midland came last week for Mrs. Williams to participate in the golf tournament at Buldoso.

A group of men employed by Armstrong & Armstrong saw three black bears last week while working on the highway north of Peters Hill. It is rumored that they now watch daily for another sight of them.

Soil Bank Deposits Exceed 165,000 Acres

New Mexico farmers can earn $1,069,420 on cropland pledged to the Acreage Reserve through July 20, John O. Kling, extension economist at New Mexico A&M College, said this week.

Wheat farmers have signed 1,519 agreements allocating 163,311 acres of their land for the Reserve; upland cotton farmers, 163 agreements, covering 1,901 acres; and long staple cotton growers, four agreements involving only 10 acres.

Wheat farmers can earn $340,634 in Soil Bank payments on the acreages they've set aside. Long and short staple cotton growers can earn $122,780 on their "reserve" acres.

Rear Admiral Richard E. Byrd has made five visits to Antarctica between 1929 and 1956. Even today, however, scarcely more than half of the continent's 6,000,000 square miles has yet been seen by man, the National Geographic Society says.

STATE GFA MEETS

A State Game Protective Association meeting of directors took place at Alamogordo last week end. The Department of Game and Fish was represented by A. J. Garner, Levon Lee and Fred Patton from the Santa Fe office; and Conservation Officers, J. W. Beckum of Las Cruces, Marion Embrey of Capitan and Roy Owen of Alamogordo; and Biologist Robert Stewart of Hondo. George Hansen, the local GFA president, was in charge of arrangements. All interested members of the public were welcomed.

Visitors were taken through the Penasco soil-conservation district to see the site of a proposed watershed program, and to the Bonito Lake area for a look at the site of a proposed recreational area.

Plans were announced for the annual convention of the State GFA at Clayton, October 18-20. Other matters on the agenda were Junior Conservation Clubs, proposed conservation education program, and proposed rotating plaque award to the chapter that develops the most outstanding conservation project.

Current national legislation affecting wildlife was discussed and a report was given on the organization of new chapters.

APPLY FOR SPECIAL HUNTS
Application blanks are available for antelope, elk and Barbary sheep hunting. The blanks may be had from license vendors, conservation officers, and the Albuquerque and Santa Fe office by 10 a.m. on August 27.

Residents and non-residents are eligible to apply for elk and antelope licenses, provided they did not hunt the same species in the 1955 season. They may make multiple application up to four hunters, on a single form, if they so desire.

Only residents of New Mexico are eligible to apply for Barbary sheep licenses, and only provided they did not have licenses for any of the State's previous sheep hunts. Hunters must apply singly for sheep licenses.

HUNTING MAP IS READY

The 1956 Big Game Proclamation with fine colored maps is in the process of distribution. Get your copy from your license vendor or your local conservation officer. It contains four separate maps, each showing the areas and dates and other conditions; one for bear, one for deer, one for turkey, and one for elk, antelope and Barbary sheep. This separation of the species into their own maps makes for easy interpretation.

NEW CONSERVATION BILL UP IN CONGRESS

A new bill in Congress, H. R. 12163, would require Congressional approval for any proposed land withdrawal from the public domain if the area involved exceeds 5000 acres. Among other things, it stipulates that hunting, trapping and fishing shall be done in accordance with state game and fish laws.

Along the Way..

By PAUL BAKER

Carrizozo is grateful to the officers and personnel of Red Canyon Range camp for their prompt response to a call for assistance in Tuesday's flood. Troops and equipment made the run into town before many of the residents were aware of the situation. No time was lost filling the sandbags and starting to work blugging the dikes. Some men filled the bags, a line was formed and the sacks of dirt were tossed along from man to man to those who stood in water knee deep to put them in place. There were probably some aching backs in camp that night. The people of Carrizozo will not forget their prompt response and effective work in our behalf. . . . No less appreciated is the concern our neighbors felt for us. First news releases about the flood were not complete and some got the impression the flood was the nature of a disaster. Telephone calls of offers of assistance came from the mayor of Ruidoso, the Ruidoso Chamber of Commerce and from the Ruidoso News. The Roswell telephone office had many calls inquiring about the situation in Carrizozo. . . . Miss Ruth Mellor, Red Cross representative in Roswell, called to ask if assistance was needed. . . . Another call was made to Marvin Roberts, secretary of the Chamber of Commerce, by Harold Smethill from El Paso. He represents a Federal agency, the Small Business Administration, which makes loans to property owners who need funds as a result of flood damage. Mr. Smethill called from the El Paso Chamber of Commerce after he had read a newspaper account of Carrizozo's flashflood. . . . Jiggs Sidwell, whose home is south of town near the center of Tuesday's cloud-burst, was marooned by the first runoff. He made it into town just before the second down-pour. . . . The only room in the Sally Ortiz home that got wet was Gilbert's room, which is lower than the rest of the house. The flood water came up under the rug and when Gilbert stepped into his room he sank in a foot of water. . . . D. S. Elliott, who started working for the S. P. in 1904, said the runoff of water into Carrizozo was the worst he has ever seen here. . . . The hole dug for Carrizozo's swimming pool was filled with water Tuesday and is a potential danger spot for youngsters until the water is drained away. Mayor Withers looked into the situation Thursday.

Army personnel at Red Canyon are still looking for housing of various types in Carrizozo. Anyone having property to rent is requested to notify the Adjutant at Red Canyon.

Congratulations to Friday and Alma Sherrill on expanding their business enterprise in Carrizozo by taking over the North Main Street Laundry. The cleaning business and laundry business should be a natural to be operated by one management. Best wishes also to J. B. and Betty Howell, managers of the new Holiday Inn Motel in Roswell. They extend a cordial invitation to Lincoln County people and their families to visit them on Sunday, opening day.

S. P. Buys Back Surplus Water Tank

John W. Hopkins, tax and right of way agent for the Southern Pacific Company, today returned to the town of Carrizozo the monies that the City had paid to the railroad company for the 630,000 gallon water tank at Three Rivers. This tank was retired and sold to Carrizozo as an accommodation at the nominal price of $1100. Subsequent to the sale to the town it developed that it would not be needed for this community and the town officials asked if the railroad company would be willing to take the tank back and refund their money. In cooperation with the city officials, approval was received by the action of Supt. Adair and Mr. Hopkins to refund the town's money.

By MRS. RALPH DUNLAP

Vacation Bible School Closes at Nogal

Approximately 25 youngsters attended the vacation Bible school last week. The school was under the direction of Rev. and Mrs. Roger Sitton, with Mrs. Lois Carl and Mrs. Rosalie Dunlap assisting. We are having a very good apple crop in Nogal this year. There are still a few summer apples left.

All this rain we have been enjoying has really helped all the ranchers and the surrounding country. To me Nogal is the most beautiful spot in the world, as you come up over the hill and see it nestled down below.

We had close to 434 inches of rain during July.

Mr. and Mrs. H. C. Adams of El Paso and Miss Diane Chives of Phoenix will be visiting Mrs. Pearl Stearns the latter part of this week.

Phil de Rosier Designs New Ruidoso Church

By AILEEN LINDAMOOD

The proposed new church for St. Eleanor's of Ruidoso is the work of Philip de Rosier, a church architect, who formerly lived at Lincoln but recently moved to Alamogordo. In the summer he is in Kansas City during the staging of the Starlight Theatre, as he designs the stage settings for the productions. He also does stage settings in New York City and Jacksonville, Fla., each year.

Mr. de Rosier is well qualified, having studied church architecture in Europe and the church building committee states that it is happy to have been able to secure his services.

The present St. Eleanor's was built in 1832 and is inadequate for the needs of the parish, especially in the summer. During the winter months it isn't necessary to have the same seating space needed in the summer and the building has been designed with this in mind.

It will have side entrances, as well as the main entrance, and in winter a part of it can be closed by means of accordion-type doors and the side doors will be used exclusively.

The Thrift Shop which ladies of the parish opened in the former Star Cafe in their method of obtaining money to make the dream of the new church come true. They will appreciate any help the community can give by selling them anything you
