PETER M. SHAVER, M. D.

My name is Peter M. Shaver. I was born December 20, 1880. My father was James F. Shaver and my mother was Elizabeth Shaver. I was born and raised in northeast Arkansas.

I attended public schools and finally I attended private schools. I got my higher education and decided to study medicine, beginning my medical work in 1896 at the Barnes Medical College in St. Louis, Mo. I graduated in the spring of 1900 and first practiced in northeast Arkansas. I was located in a little town by the name of Biggers.

One winter day during the early days of my practice in Arkansas, about 1905 I guess, the roads were slick and icy when a man came after me, riding a mule. They didn't have any telephones there in those days. We came to a road where there was quite a bit of ice on the road. The road was slanting and the mule and man were on the upper side. The mule slipped and fell on my horse and knocked my horse down. Both the horse and mule were down. We jumped off and got out of the way. My horse got a big gunk but he couldn't get up, kept falling back. I said "Here mister, we will just take hold of their tails and pull them." We pulled them down where the ground was in better condition and they could get up.

I traveled within a radius of about thirty miles by buggy. I first began practicing in a little town by the name of Warm Springs. It was close to the Missouri line and I would have to make trips over in Missouri quite often.

In 1916 I decided to come to this western country. I moved to Vaughn in 1916 and practiced there for two years but believing the altitude was a little high for me came further south and located Vaughn was a small town with a population of about 1200 and had two railroads that helped it out, but the winters were very rough and I didn't like that very much.

I came to Carrizozo in 1914 and began inquiring about the town. I had a friend living here who told me there were just two doctors here, Dr. Paden and Dr. Johnson. This friend told me Dr. Johnson had enlisted in the Army and was leaving and he said I might get his location so I hunted him up and I bought his office, instruments and everything he had. I stepped into a practice. Dr. Paden had the only hospital in town.

I also had the county health work and I had to make trips in my Model Ford quite a distance to Corona 50 miles away, and I made trips over in the Rabinson country, about 40 miles away, also trips to the Ruidoso I would have to quarantine all contagious diseases.

When I first came here there was lots of smallpox, diphtheria, and scarlet fever all over the country. I had to quarantine the people who had contagious diseases. That was the law, and I would have to make trips to quarantine them. We had quite a bit of typhoid in those days. Polio was almost unheard of.

As the years went by we used preventives against all of these contagious diseases and they were almost wiped out. I have not seen a case of diphtheria or smallpox in years.

After I came here I got acquainted with Dr. Paden and we worked together. He had a nurse.

I remember the winter was very severe in 1923. During a blizzard the snow drifted across the railroad tracks. It blocked the trains. There was a train blocked about seven miles from town and another train ran into the back of it. The collision broke the windows out of the coaches and the wind blew the snow in. Dr. Paden and I had

Capitan C. of C. Endorses Pipeline to the Village of Capitan

At a recent meeting of the Capitan Chamber of Commerce the water situation was discussed at length. During the discussion it was pointed out, with regard to the forthcoming election in connection with General Obligation Bonds of some $85,000, that these and present water system obligations could more than likely be met almost entirely through the consumption of use and sale of water. Following the meeting, the following letter was released to the press:

As the village uses more and more water there is no question that these obligations would be more than offset by increased sales.

At present Capitan cannot only boast having the hardest water of any town in the State but also perhaps the smallest percentages of meters in use of any place in the State. Of some 208 meters, only 130 are in use.

In addition to being indescribably hard, Capitan's present water has the most corrosive action on plumbing fixtures imaginable. It literally riddles pipes in a very few years and clogs hot water heaters in less time. When heated it turns a rusty opaque reddish brown, and when placed in aluminum pans it turns the color of ink in seconds.

Those bad holes common to our streets are seldom caused from superficial rain or snow but from holes eaten in our water pipes. As a result, digging around town is not construction just repair of water pipes. Everyone is afraid to dig a hole to a lawn or a garden. A tourist was observed taking a shot of water out of a local tap. The expression on his face would be impossible to describe. It hasn't been back since.

Water is the life blood of every town in the west and Carrizozo is attacked by the extreme and far reaching evils some towns have resorted to in obtaining this precious fluid. San Francisco has pipelines carrying water distances of more than 400 miles into that city. The over three million dollar pipeline which will go into Alamogordo and Holloman Air Force Base is an indication that the water is pretty valuable.

Capitan is worried about a six mile pipeline. Even if it should cost a few pennies in additional taxes for a year or two, the overwhelming advantages of having plenty of good, wholesome water far outweigh any disadvantages anyone can think of. It should be realized that the destiny of Capitan hinges, maybe not entirely, but certainly largely on our ability to keep up with our needs.

The Chamber strongly urges every eligible voter to vote for water on April 3, 1956.

Carrizozo Given Class 8 Rating on Fire Insurance

Carrizozo property owners are in line for a reduction in fire insurance rates, Mayor Marvin H. Roberts was informed Tuesday.

Following a visit of two representatives of the Mountain States Inspection Bureau, Carrizozo was reclassified from Class 9 to Class 8.

As a result of the new classification, both residential and commercial buildings in Carrizozo, with few exceptions, will benefit from lower rates, averaging overall from 25% to 35%.

The reduction in rates, it is pointed out, apply only to fire insurance and not to extended coverage provisions in policies.

Three Cases of Rabies Reported in Santa Fe

An outbreak of rabies was reported in Santa Fe this week, with three known cases.

Bob Bond, local veterinarian, states that this area has been fortunate in not having a rabies outbreak since the 1930's when a number of head of cattle were infected.

The presence of rabies in the state however, he advises, should alert people to the ever-present danger that the disease may be spread among domestic or wild animals.

Yearly vaccination and stray dog control are important preventive measures, he says.

Easter Seal Sale Begins March 10

The New Mexico Society for Crippled Children and Adults will begin its annual fund raising drive on Saturday, March 10.

Contributions in past years have been used for treating throughout the state involving diagnosis, surgery and therapy, statewide epilepsy treatment program, support to the Cerebral Palsy Clinic, statewide wheelchair and crutch loan services and adult education and special school programs.

This year three new and extremely vital activities will be added to the program. A summer camp for crippled children will be held in Ruidoso. A group of volunteer workers headed by C. V. Cunningham has offered to help the association with the work involved in a camp such as this, and Carrizozo Lodge has been selected as the camp site.

The lodge has been generously offered to the organization for two weeks in August for the cost of operation only. Another new activity will be that of a mobile unit to serve the entire state.

REHABILITATION CENTER

The last and greatest of all projects undertaken will be the building and operating of a rehabilitation center in Albuquerque to serve crippled children and adults in all counties.

The Carrizozo Woman's Club is sponsoring the Easter Seal Campaign in Carrizozo under the chairmanship of Mrs. A. N. Spencer. R. E. Lemon has offered his services as treasurer.

"The need for aid to the crippled in our state is very great," Mrs. Spencer said this week. "We should all redouble our efforts to help these unfortunate people. It is certain that one of us in the community will need the help of this great organization sometime during our lives. It may be you. Give generously, for the interest of each of us is involved."

Need for New Sewage Plant is Evident

By CHARLES G. CALDWELL, Director Environmental Sanitation Services, N. M. Dept. of Public Health

Health authorities have for years been telling Carrizozo that a new sewage treatment plant is needed.

The old plant given to the town by the Southern Pacific Railway Company was built many years ago when the town was very small. It is not and never was a complete treatment plant.

The sewage simply flows into a concrete box where some of the solid material is removed and then the liquid flows out. The liquid or effluent is just as dangerous as the raw sewage. It is full of bacteria and there it is right in town. As the town has grown and as sewer connections have been made, the problem has become acute.

A pondful of this highly dangerous material overflowing on the ground is a public health hazard. The point of disposal is near habitations and the hospital. Flies can feed on the sewage and then fly right into our homes, spreading disease.

Carrizozo needs a new sewage treatment plant. Go look at the present situation and vote YES on the bond issue.

 aid in solving their recreational problems.

At the March 17 conference city and county officials will be asked to air local problems.
 State officials will discuss in de-

"KEEPING YOUR CAR look-matter of 100% just as much as of 100% because you have a sense of pride about the appearance of your car, and because you may wish to resell some day, you will probably want to take these cautions: by making auto manufacturers' recom-

 don't wipe dust and dirt
 when the car is dry. Wash

A PIONEER DRUGGIST

Frank Rolland is one of the pioneer druggists of New Mexico. He has lived in Alamogordo over 50 years, and some 40 of those he is a druggist. He's rolled out thousands of pills by hand, filled thousands of powders by hand. It was exacting work, and often slow. He was once official anesthetist for a doctor. He has also been his own bookkeeper and janitor.

Rolland jokes about the contraption that was a soda fountain. "I don't know whether customers ever came back a second time," he says.

The druggist's hours were long. He opened the store at 6:30 or 7 o'clock in the morning and stayed open until 10 o'clock at night. Those hours applied virtually seven days a week, although he did take a little time off Sundays.

It's a lot easier today with the great improvements in the drug business, but Rolland says the same rules apply now as then: "Be honest with yourself and fair with your customers."

Rolland had worked in a drug store in Alamogordo before he and Henry Sutherland bought out Manuel Aragon in 1901. Aragon had moved his stock from Hillsboro to Alamogordo and operated a drugstore on the site of the present Rolland store, now run by Rolland's son.

The soda fountain would be a museum piece today. Imagine a tight, 10-gallon can of carbonated water, with a draught arm, Rolland said. The fizz effect was produced when the syrup, then very strong in citric acid, was poured into the carbonated water. It was a pretty flat fizz, Rolland recalls.

Prescriptions were the main business. At that time doctors had to figure what should go into a medicine to cure the illness. It was the druggist's job to put in the exact amount. Today, Rolland said, if a doctor prescribes an ounce of a certain medicine, that and many other medicines are already prepared by pharmaceutical chemists.

A doctor in earlier days would prescribe what went into each powder. The druggist mixed the powder—ingredients—and then separated the mixture into the number of doses prescribed for a patient.

In earlier days, Rolland said, the druggist had to make infusions, all tinctures, and many fluid extracts. Making tincture of iodine from crystals was quite simple.

Rolland was once anesthetist for Dr. George C. Bryan, physician for the railroad hospital, which stood where the Methodist Church now is. Ether then was used as an anesthetic. The hospital nurse was the Methodist minister.

RIDDLES

The following riddles were contributed to the Folklore Archives of Highlands University, Las Vegas, by Estevan Lopez of Fenasco, with the exception of No. 6:

1. Horse from bank to bank that does not eat, drink, or walk.
2. On the plains is Mariano. He has a cross but he is not a Christian.
3. He who makes it sells it. He who sells it doesn't use it. He who uses it doesn't see it.
4. I came out of my home white. At the field I became green. Upon going back home, I dressed myself red.
5. My exterior is always white. My interior is black. Sometimes I give pleasure. Sometimes I bring back your sleep. People always carry me in their chest pocket. Making a thousand gestures, they cover me with fire. What I really hate is that at the end I find myself on the ground.
6. In what month do women talk to us. (Eleanor Ortiz, Santa Fe.)

Answers to the riddles are:

1. A bridge.
2. The burro.
3. A coffin.
4. The chile.
5. The cigarette.
6. The month is February, of course, the shortest month in the year.

The Bewitched Cheese

Some people were going to eat some cheese one night. The man brought the dish with the cheese in it into the room and set it on the window sill. In a minute they looked again, and there was only blood on the dish where the cheese had been. The cheese had been bewitched. (This item from the Folklore Archives of Highlands University was told to Norma Jean Witte by Elvira Sanchez.)

Litterbugs vs. Wildlife

A skunk with its head caught in a mayonnaise jar posed a problem for Jim Harrelson of the Grazing Service, stationed near Socorro. Fully aware of the possible unpleasantness to himself, Harrelson was determined to free the skunk. It would have been relatively easy to break the jar with a stone, but that might have left a ring of glass around the skunk's neck. There was no alternative but a well-placed shot, which broke the ring and freed the skunk.

A squirrel with its head lodged in a sausage can, posed a similar problem for Conservation Officer Bear Turner of the Department of Game and Fish, at Magdalena. A squirrel has teeth and claws that must be reckoned with, but Turner took his chances. He also succeeded in freeing the victim.

It is not unusual to find a deer or sheep or cow with its foot irretrievably caught in a tin can, and this makes one more good reason for not littering the land with rubbish.

How many people have government jobs? As of this spring 7,232,000 persons were on federal, state and local government payrolls.—Changing Times

ED MECHEM TAKES DARING POSITION

SANTA FE, March 7.—Ed Mechem, the former Republican governor, is bolder than most in attempting a comeback for a third term in that office.

Dick Dillon tried it in 1932 after winning in 1926 and '28 and was defeated by Arthur Seligman by 16,000; Clyde Tingley tried it in the 1940 primary after having been elected governor in 1934 and '36 and went under by 31,000; John Miles went for a third term in 1950 after having been elected in 1938 and '40 lost by 15,000. That's the complete record of comeback efforts.

Dillon's experience had several points of similarity with the present situation. Like Mechem he ran for a second term with a popular Republican candidate for president, Herbert Hoover, (he was popular in 1928) and came back to the ticket when Hoover was up for re-election, like Mechem and President Eisenhower. There isn't any disastrous depression now to carry out the parallel but who knows what might happen in eight months.

IKE, ED DID WELL THE FIRST TIME

The last time Mechem and Eisenhower were on the ticket Mechem won by 19,000 and carried all but six counties; Ike had a 27,000 margin and carried all but eight counties. It appears that Eisenhower will have the same opponent, Adlai Stevenson.

That's a tough challenge even with the so-called two-term tradition operating in favor of the Democratic governor. It should be noted that the two term thing will also be operating for the Republican president.

With the election two-thirds of a year away political observers are inclined to think that the Republican challenge is limited to the president and governor. Secondary possibilities are thought to be for the land office (probably Republican Frank Wortman of Dexter against John Miles) and for lieutenant governor (probably Phil Hubbell of Albuquerque against the incumbent, Joe Montoya).

When Eisenhower and Mechem were running at a very high level of popularity and winning by the big scores racked up in 1952, only one other Republican on the state ticket came within striking distance—Frank Ortiz for lieutenant governor who lost by 2,000 to Tibbo Chavez. Next closest was George Shipley who lost a supreme court bid to Justice Eugene Lujan by 4,000. Dub Evans, going for land commissioner, and Pat Hurley for the senate were 5,000 behind in the canvassing figures. Others went down by margins up to 12,000.

It adds up to a big hill to climb for all except Mechem and Ike.

DEMOCRATS GATHER TO BEEP AND JEER

Announcement of big increases in monthly welfare checks was greeted in Taos with a meeting attended by several hundred still protesting the property liens on those accepting old age assistance payments and in Rio Arriba, another place where the lien law is bitterly hated, with a Sunday gathering in Old Castle of more than a hundred dissatisfied old-guard Democrats who talked privately of going Republican unless changes are made.

The Taos indignation gathering was led by Tom McGrath of San Miguel who has organized groups of protesting oldsters throughout the northern part of the state, and is a candidate for Demo nomination for auditor.

The Rio Arriba gathering included some of the best known Democratic figures in the county—E. D. Trujillo, former auditor and county chairman; J. O. Garcia, former auditor and county chairman; Charles Manzanarez, former county chairman, and a

What have TIN CANS and PINE LOGS to do with copper?

Tin cans and pine logs—rags and reagents—dry ice and power shovels. Chino's shopping list is as varied as it is long. Every year, the purchasing agent at Kennecott's New Mexico operations places nearly 6,000 orders with 1,500 different suppliers—many of them New Mexico firms.

This means not only millions of dollars worth of business for merchants and manufacturers in the area but also a return to the state in the form of sales taxes which help to support our schools. It's one of the ways in which a modern industry contributes to the growth of the Southwest.

Turn Porch Into a Room

When enclosing a porch, the home-owner will generally find that complete window units of ponderosa pine are easiest to install. They are fitted to each other at the factory for smooth operation and are chemically treated to prevent sticking. The friendly atmosphere of this enclosed porch is highlighted by the colorful draperies, the knotty pine paneling, and the handsome panel door.

Converting a porch into a year-round room may be the solution to the space problem of many home-owners.

According to A. B. Campen, remodeling expert from Peoria, Ill., there are two main questions to be answered before going ahead with conversion work. Is the porch in good condition? Will sufficient space be gained to warrant remodeling?

Campen says that frequently porches are only 8 feet wide. For most practical purposes this is too narrow, it often is more economical in the long run to build a wing than to remodel a porch this narrow. He suggests a porch should be about 12 feet wide to be eligible as a year-round room.

Here are some general things to check for porch conversions:

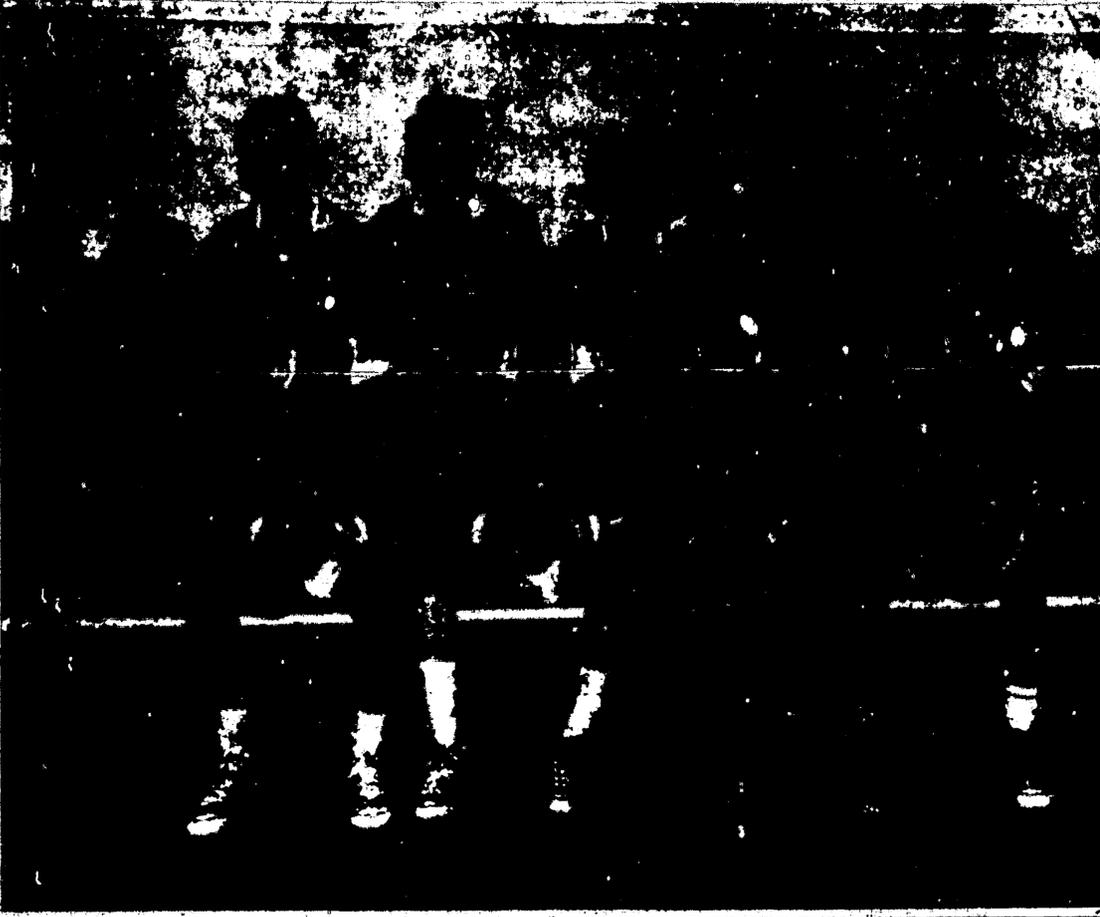

1. Are the porch supports strong? If not, erect a masonry foundation.
2. Is the flooring in good shape? The porch flooring must serve as the base for the finish flooring.
3. Are the floor and walls insulated? The room will have two or three outside walls and will tend to be cold without insulation. This and blankets, or four inches of blown wool will add to winter and summer comfort.
4. Will the new room get enough heat? The Coleman Heating Institute, Wichita, Kan., suggests that if the central heating system doesn't have the capacity to heat the extra space, a space-saving wall heater, a floor furnace or a room heater can be added as supplementary equipment.
5. Is the roof weather-tight? If not, a new roof of asphalt shingles will give long life. The shingles come in a great number of different colors to satisfy any color-preference. Roofing on various parts of the house wears out at about the same rate. If the porch needs reroofing, chances are the main roof does too.

Try Frame Garden For Long Season

Are you interested in a small compact garden which will give you lots of fresh vegetables with less time, space, water and effort? Try a frame garden and you'll have just that.

Many New Mexico gardeners are now growing successful, productive frame gardens.

Planted in early spring and late fall, frame gardens produce fresh, homegrown vegetables when it would be impossible to do so in a regular outdoor garden. In dry, windy areas, they also provide protection from high winds. In areas with short growing season, they protect tender plants in the spring and allow warm season vegetables to be grown successfully.

Follow these directions for making a frame garden:

Select a site with fertile soil and protected, if possible, from the north and west. Choose a spot which is handy to your water supply and the house.

The frame around the garden should be from three to six feet wide and the length adjusted to the amount of vegetables you want to grow. A 6 x 20 foot frame garden will produce enough for the average family of four or five persons.

Build the walls of the frame with lumber, cinder blocks, or similar materials and at least 12 inches high. In northern areas, the south wall is built 12 inches high and the north wall, 24 inches high. This tips the cover toward the sun and increases sunlight exposure. In windy areas, high back frames will catch sand and weeds, so it's best to build the front and back the same height. After the frame is finished, throw dirt around the front, back and sides for additional protection.

COVER FRAME

Cover the frame with cheesecloth, light muslin, plastic screen, or old window sash. Provide means for opening and closing the cover. The cover can be tacked to the back and rolled onto a pole from the front, or hinged lids can be built to hold the cover material.

For best results, plant hardy, cool season vegetables such as beets, turnips, carrots, radishes, onions, leaf lettuce, mustard, Swiss chard and spinach. Warm-season crops can be started in the frame and either transplanted to the outside garden or left in the frame to grow.

After planting, control the temperature by opening and closing the cover. When daytime temperature is above 50 degrees, open the frame completely. On extremely cold nights, cover the frame with an old rug, tarp or blanket for additional protection.

You'll be pleasantly surprised with the amount of vegetables and the enjoyment you'll get from your frame garden.

REPLENISH ORGANIC MATTER IN SOIL

By ROBERT L. GUICE
Extension Soil Conservationist
New Mexico A&M College

Organic matter in the soil helps make it more productive by returning nutrients and increasing the water intake and aeration. Under some present farm management systems in New Mexico, the organic content of soil is continuing to decrease.

A recent study of fertility levels of New Mexico soils, conducted by soil scientists, shows that soils in New Mexico having the highest average organic matter content were found in the mountainous counties, except Chaves and Union counties. Soils with the lowest organic matter levels were found in the eastern and southwestern counties where higher temperatures contributed to a more rapid oxidation of organic matter. Some of the best soil in the state has only 2.5% organic matter. In order to maintain maximum yields, it is essential that the organic material in the soil be maintained at a high level. Indeed, the importance of organic matter cannot be overemphasized.

Organic matter can be renewed by growing soil building crops in rotation. All cultivated crops result in loss of organic matter. Row crops have very little residue of roots and stubble. Furthermore, cultivation makes the organic material rot faster and at the same time cuts off renewal. Sod crops are the soil builders as they eliminate cultivation and leave more residue. Every rotation plan should include a soil building sod.

Green manure crops is another source of organic matter. Fertilizer should be used if necessary to insure the success of green manure crops, especially if the crop is non-legume.

Barnyard manure is an excellent source of organic matter. Each ton of available farm manure supplies about 500 pounds of organic matter. In addition, it also supplies some plant nutrients.

Waste products of the farm are valuable sources of organic matter. Straws, weeds, stalks, stubble, vines, cones and leaves should be returned to the soil. The value of waste products to make humus is about in proportion to their nitrogen content. Straw and similar products should be supplemented with nitrogenous fertilizers.

Legumes are unsurpassed for renewing organic matter. They contain sufficient nitrogen to rot quickly and their decay liberates large amounts of plant nutrients.

Whether a farmer grows cotton, corn, grain or vegetables, potatoes or fruit, his soil will be benefited by providing fresh organic matter each year. In decaying, it will maintain soil structures, release nutrients, make other plant foods available, and insure the most efficient use of commercial fertilizers.

Carrizozo Fresh Win from Weed

The Carrizozo Freshman basketball team wound up its basketball season by beating the Weed freshman team last Friday night, 65 to 47.

Carrizozo had a 30 to 9 half-time lead and the final outcome was never in doubt after the opening few minutes of play.

The score was 14-2 at the end of the first quarter and 46 to 26 at the end of the third quarter.

Hefker, Beltran and Agullar played their best games of the season.

The Freshman team won 13 games and lost 5, three of which were to Alamogordo.

JEST IN FUN

A castaway on a desert island, following another shipwreck, pulled ashore a girl clinging to a barrel.

"How long have you been here?" she asked.

"Fifteen years," he replied.

"All alone? Then you're going to have something you've missed all those years."

"Gosh! Is there any beer in the barrel?"

The social investigator was going through the home of a poor mountaineer.

Social Investigator: "Do you think it's healthy to have those hogs in the house?"

Old Man: "Well," (spitting contemptuously) "I've had hogs in this yare house for forty odd years, and I ain't had one die on me yet."

On a questionnaire asking: "What has been the principal contribution of the automobile age?" a bright college freshman gave the following answer: "It has practically stopped horse stealing."

Three little boys were boasting about their fathers, when the conversation turned to earning capacity. One was the son of a doctor, another the son of a lawyer, and the third the son of a minister.

"My father makes money fast," said the first boy. "He just goes to the hospital, performs an operation, and sometimes gets $500."

"My father," said the second, "does better than that. All he has to do is go to the courtroom and talk for about a day and he charges his client a thousand dollars."

The minister's boy, however, topped them all. "My dad," he said, "does practically nothing all week, then talks about 20 minutes on Sunday morning, and it takes four men to bring the money to him."

One of two women riding on a bus suddenly realized she hadn't paid her fare.

"I'll go right up and pay it," she declared.

"Why bother?" her friend replied. "You got away with it—so what?"

"I've found that honesty always pays," the other said virtuously, and went up to pay the driver.

"See, I told you honesty pays!" she said when she returned. "I handed the driver a quarter and he gave change me for 50 cents."

Now is the time to get rid of the winter's accumulation of trash and junk—in the attic, basement, barn, and other buildings.

SURPRISED BATSMAN

Umpire Babe Pinelli told a correspondent for The Sporting News that he'll never forget the first time he went to bat in the major leagues. With the White Sox in a game against Cleveland in 1918, he was sent up to pinch hit with one man out and a runner on third. He hit a drive to center which he thought was a sure hit. But the great Tris Speaker made one of his amazing catches. Oh, well, thought Pinelli, I at least sacrificed the runner in. But Speaker fired home and nailed the runner at the plate. All Pinelli had to show for his fine effort was hitting into a double play.

News and Views from Your Nation's Capitol

By JOHN J. DEMPSEY
Congressman from New Mexico

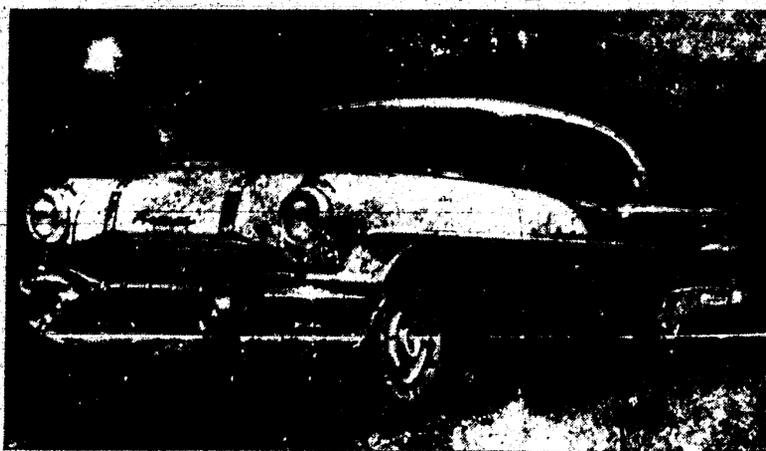

WASHINGTON, Mar. 7.—This election year session of the Congress, now approximately one-third completed, has taken a trend which most seasoned observers find hard to explain. Instead of narrowing down the legislative program to less controversial measures the leadership has pursued what I believe to be the wise course in seeking determination on all important proposals. It is the more unusual in view of the divided control—a Democratic Congress and a Republican Administration.

Although efforts are being made to place political interpretations on virtually every major legislative action, it is my opinion that in this, the sixth Congress of which I have been a member, there has been an increased tendency to put the public interest before partisan expediency. This does not indicate a weakening in loyalty to party principles, but it reveals a growing awareness of the need for independence of thought and action by the individual legislator based on the best interests of those whom he represents, with regard for the nation as a whole.

SCHOOL LUNCH FUNDS SOUGHT

Several states, including New Mexico, are confronted with such a serious shortage in school lunch funds that this very essential program is being crippled. Rapid increase of school population, a growth not anticipated a few years ago, is the cause.

Plans were made to the Agriculture subcommittee of the House Appropriations Committee Tuesday by Congressmen and come before the Easter recess, set for March 29 to April 9. That was announced by Speaker Sam Rayburn, who reaffirmed his belief that the measure will be passed at this session. It is unfortunate that controversy has been holding up the bill in the House Rules Committee.

I have received many communications from educators and other citizens in New Mexico urging passage of the Kelley Bill, because of the critical classroom shortage in our state. This is denying many of our children, particularly in the less affluent districts and communities, the opportunity for a proper education, something that is their inherent right. I have assured those who have written me that I am for the measure 100 per cent and shall do all I can to further its enactment as soon as possible. To my mind it is one of the most important measures now before the Congress.

SCHOOL AID BILL AFTER RECESS

Action by the House on the Kelley Bill, which would authorize federal aid for school construction, is not expected to educators to recommend supplemental funds for this year and next to prevent malnutrition among those growing youngsters. Mrs. Georgia Lusk, State Superintendent of Public Instruction for New Mexico, and I told the committee of New Mexico's plight, documented by reports by educators in all parts of the state.

We are hopeful for a favorable committee recommendation soon enough to bring an early end to the deplorable situation in so many of our schools.

HIGHWAY BILL ABOUT READY

Final draft of legislation authorizing completion of the 40,000-mile Interstate and Defense Highway System and concurrent gradual expansion of primary, secondary and urban highways over a 13-year period is nearing completion by the House Roads Subcommittee. It is expected the bill and a tax measure to finance the program will be combined.

Although the Fallon Bill does not meet with the wide variance in views encountered by the Ways and Means Committee in hearings on the finance-raising measure, we on the Roads Subcommittee have found some differences to reconcile. They deal chiefly with the basis on which the Interstate System funds are to be apportioned among the states and who shall have final authority to locate the highways as well as the necessary access roads. I am insisting that an exact formula for apportionment of those funds to the states be spelled out by the Congress along lines approved in the 1954 Highway Act, and that the respective states shall pay where the roads are to be located as Junior having been carefully drilled in table manners for the pastor's visit, suddenly burped. "Junior, what do you say?" asked his horrified mother. "Happy New Year," said Junior.

Vacations are great levelers. The person who takes one returns home just as broke as the person who remained at home because he couldn't afford to go away.

STATE GAME DEPARTMENT

ANTELOPE ACTIVITIES

Antelope trapping for 1956 is terminated, and Wildlife Supervisor Bryon Perry of the Department of Game and Fish says the crew did an exceptionally good job this year. The most recent trapping operation fulfilled an agreement with Oklahoma by furnishing them with 83 head of brood stock. Virgil Jones, foreman of the trapping crew, profited by his handling of wildlife in past years, by making this year's operation a true success, declared Perry.

The Oklahoma Game and Fish Department had sent biologist Jerome F. Sykora, TV photographer Tom Jesse, deer trapper Bernard Randall, and assistant game manager Ralph Rose, to help in the trapping operation and photograph for television.

TROUT PLANTING

Rainbow trout over nine inches were planted during the week of February 19 by the Department of Game and Fish, in the Animas River, Albuquerque-Riverside and Atrisco drains, Riverside Pond, and lower and middle Rio Grande. Brown fry were planted in the Navajo and San Juan Rivers, lower Cow Creek, Rio Los Pinos, lower Red River and lower Hondo, and middle Rio Grande.

The rainbow plantings came to 5,500 (2000) pounds, and the brown fry numbered 228,760.

WELCOME HELP

The Department of Game and Fish likes to recognize the various organizations that from time to time assist in game surveys and fish plantings. During January the Los Alamos Boy Scouts helped to carry fish in, to plant in the Rio Grande in the Sunshine area. Fish had to be carried down the steep canyon walls by bucket. In early February the Santa Fe GPA helped plant the Rio Grande from Rinconada up. On February 15 the Santa Fe GPA helped plant the Rio Grande from the Hondo bridge down and from the Taos bridge up. This was done by canoe.

GPA EXPANDING

Two more chapters of the New Mexico Game Protective Association have recently been organized. The San Miguel County GPA, inactive for several years, was reorganized in Las Vegas on February 15. Joe Charlton was elected president, and Jose Armijo secretary. They are planning to develop a recreational area on their property at Storrie Lake; and improvement of fishing streams and ponds. A new GPA chapter has been organized at Tatum with 74 charter members. T. H. McElhenny was elected president and Edd Hoff secretary. They plan to join with other chapters in that area in developing conservation projects; and to sponsor a Junior GPA.

U. S. Has More Than 22 Million Veterans

The average age of Uncle Sam's more than 22 million living veterans now is 38½ years. Veterans Administration said the extremes range from 109 for the oldest veteran to under 18 for the youngest.

The oldest veteran on VA rolls is Albert Woolson, of Duluth, Minn., the lone Union Army Veteran of the Civil War who celebrated his 109th birthday last month.

Woolson, a drummer boy in the Nashville campaign, is the only survivor of 2,213,000 men who fought for the Union cause. There were 364,000 Union Army deaths in service.

The youngest group of veterans, those under 20 years, who served during the Korean Conflict period, number 34,000. There are only 4,000 veterans 85 or over.

The largest group of veterans, mostly those of World War II, fall within the 30 to 34 age bracket. That group numbers approximately 5,588,000. The next largest group, approximately 4,081,000, is in the 35 to 39 age bracket.

Knoxville, Iowa, "Express": "The man who is hopelessly in debt is a lot worse off than the national government which is in the same fix. The individual is subject to laws which can seize his property; the government just raises the debt limit a few more billions and pays more interest which accounts for much of your high taxes of today."

Roswell Speakers Address County Hospital Auxiliary

By MRS. A. N. SPENCER

Two speakers from Roswell gave interesting and informative talks to members of the Lincoln County Municipal Hospital Auxiliary at a meeting Tuesday evening.

The guest speakers were Mrs. Truman Saunders, president of the auxiliary of the Eastern New Mexico Medical Center in Roswell, and Mrs. A. R. Pruitt, volunteer placement chairman for that group.

They outlined their organizational setup and achievements over the past year and a half. Their auxiliary, numbering 600, has been an invaluable help to the new Roswell hospital and the Carrizozo club was given many valuable ideas for their own use.

The reports of the Lincoln County Hospital Auxiliary were something to be proud of in a club of only 65 members.

Mrs. J. P. Turner reported that the Valentine dance given jointly by the Auxiliary and the Future Nurses' group, made $100.

Mrs. H. T. Ray reported to the club that her sewing committee to date has mended every salvagable bit of torn linen in the hospital and in the past month made 57 pillow cases, 44 draw sheets, 36 bedpan covers, 50 hand towels and 15 scrub suits for the doctors in surgery.

Mrs. Wendell Watson described many of the attractive tray favors made for the hospital by the primary school and junior high school children. These attractive and amusing decorations were enjoyed by the hospital patients on every holiday or special occasion.

Mrs. Marvin H. Roberts, who was unable to be at the meeting sent in the report that at least one nurse's aid was scheduled to be on duty every morning of the week and every evening.

The Auxiliary is lacking aides for four afternoons a week, and it is hoped to fill in these vacant periods with new members.

Mrs. Fay Harkey has scheduled workers to pass beverages and magazines every afternoon of the week and Mrs. Wanda Harvey has worked hard to supply attractive plants for all the rooms.

Mrs. Saunders complimented the Carrizozo auxiliary on its fine start. She invited all the members to visit the Eastern New Mexico Medical Center and see its auxiliary in operation.

New Mexico's History Advertising Topics

Albuquerque, March 9 — (Special)—The new state advertising series of the United States Brewers' Foundation will spotlight important phases in progress and history of New Mexico, according to Chas. J. Huff, director. The first four of these monthly advertisements, which appear in 43 leading dailies and weeklies, use the Goodnight Trail cattle drives, the arrival of the first railroad train, the pack train shipment of goods over the Santa Fe Trail and opening of the Butterfield Stage Route as themes. In 12 years of in-state adver-

Mr. and Mrs. Charles Hughes of the Corona Motel made a business trip to Big Springs and Midland, Texas, last week end. After leaving Corona Friday and nearing Roswell, their dog, Susie, had a heart attack. Arriving in Roswell Mr. Hughes stopped to get some medicine and while he was gone Susie had another attack and died. Susie was too fat for her own good, but a very lovable dog and will be missed very much by both Mr. and Mrs. Hughes.

Mrs. J. E. Yandell had as her guest a friend and former roommate last week, Miss Bonnie Newby of Independence, Mo. Both Mrs. Yandell and Miss Newby are formerly from Seattle, Washington.

Miss Juanita Willingham, school teacher from Aztec, was home visiting her mother, Mrs. Lena Mae McKibben. Mrs. McKibben has been ill for several weeks.

Miss Jeanne Fuller was home from college the past week end.

Glen Greer of Albuquerque, a nephew of Mrs. V. C. Waldon, was visiting in Corona recently.

Fort Bliss Sends Personnel to Fight Fire Near Mayhill

Fort Bliss, Texas—Two hundred Fort Bliss firefighting troops assisted Mescalero Indian "Red Hats" rangers, rangers and other civilians in subduing the forest fire which started in the Lincoln National Forest near Mayhill, N. M., Tuesday.

After the assistance of Fort Bliss had been asked, the Bliss troops with supporting personnel forming a self-sustaining unit were alerted and on their way to the New Mexico mountains in four hours. They reached the Mayhill area at 1 a.m. Wednesday, and went into camp until daylight.

The Bliss firefighters went into the lines at 7 a.m., Wednesday, relieving the Mescaleros and other civilian fighters. Snow during the night had slowed the fire and aided the fighters. By mid-morning Forestry officials said the blaze was under control.

Fort Bliss troops continued "mopping up" operations, widening of firelines, and other tasks during the day to prevent recurrence of the 1000-acre blaze.

Commanding the Fort Bliss unit is Lt. Col. Bernard I. Greenberg. The Blissmen, most of them trained for forest fire fighting during an exercise at Cloudcroft in the summer of 1935, are organized into two firefighting companies led by Capt. John B. Lewis and Capt. Robert March. They are further subdivided into 25-man platoons.

During the Foundation has utilized material showing dates of community affairs over the state, recreational facilities and pastimes, and a series of recipes typical of the southwest. Huff said.

DR. P. M. SHAVER

to go up the track a piece and the section men had to go out and shovel out the snow for the train to move on a few feet at a time. We got on the train and began treating the patients who were injured. Finally they got the train to town and the patients were taken to Dr. Paden's hospital where we dressed thirty-five people.

The roads then were just dirt roads. To get to Ruidoso we would go by Nogal, the same way that we go now.

News came one winter day that a sheepherder had died up close to the Claunch settlement. That's about 40 miles from here. The sheriff called me and said the deputy was going to pick me up and we were to investigate what had caused the man's death. We went up there and we found the man in the upper end of a canyon. He was lying under a cedar tree, very sick with smallpox.

We put him in our pickup truck and brought him into town. He recovered from the smallpox. I thought I was going up after a dead man and the deputy sheriff thought so too.

Another time I was called to see a sick man over in the Claunch settlement. A sheep man called me to see some of his folks. That was just over on the other side where this man had the smallpox, I went in and treated the man and on my way back (my daughter Nellie was driving) it began snowing so hard we could hardly see the road. I was afraid the snow would be so deep we would miss the road. So I told my daughter to drive as fast as she could. It was a country road and she was going along pretty fast and the car almost turned over. Then I thought that maybe we would have to blow up a little. As we went on farther the snow got lighter. When we got here it hadn't snowed much. I expect that was about 1925.

I was called one night about 1923, northeast of here and I had to drive 50 miles. When I got there it was a case of confinement. They didn't have anything but a coal oil lamp, a very dim light, and the case needed plenty of light. When I examined the patient I thought I would try to delay the birth until daylight and it worked out all right. I had daylight for the operation and when it was all over there were two babies.

I delivered triplets here in Carrizozo about 1930. I expect the family is still living across the tracks. The three babies were still-born.

I figure, in my practice, I've delivered around 4,000 babies. One time I was called up in Fortillo Canyon. The Aguayo family lived up there. They had a cow who was prospecting and he was up in the mountains looking around for different minerals when there came a sudden rainstorm. He found refuge in an old cave, or a tunnel, which some miners had dug. Lightning struck, a tree above the cave and came down the roots of the tree killing him instantly. The family called me at once and I went up there but there wasn't anything I could do. I do office work now. Sometimes people come and get me in their cars and take me to a place. I don't go out at night.

I started practicing in 1900. This is my 36th year.

MRS. P. M. SHAVER

My name is Virginia Ellen Conner Shaver. My father's name was Willoughby Conner and my mother was Virginia Ellen Conner.

I was born at De Funiak Springs, Florida on February 22, 1897. When I was quite young I moved with my parents to Searcy, Ark., where my father had a furniture store.

Later we moved to Biggers, Ark., where I met and married Dr. Shaver in 1906. We are having our 50th wedding anniversary the 10th of May.

We have four children: Mrs. E. R. Brown of Carrizozo, Mrs. E. W. Williams of Tucuman, Paul Mack Shaver of Fort Smith, Ark., and Mrs. Paul Wrye of Dallas, Texas.

All our children attended school in Carrizozo. Our daughter, Mrs. Williams, has taught school in New Mexico for 22 years. Nine years were in Carrizozo school. She is now teaching in Tucuman just finishing her eighth year there.

Our son, Mack, who is a civil engineer, spent 3 1/2 years in the service of his country during World War II doing construction work on the islands of the South Pacific. Our three older children were born in Arkansas and Thelma our youngest was born in Vaughn.

We have five grandchildren and two great grandchildren of whom we are very proud.

We all love New Mexico. It has a wonderful climate and a lot of sunshine. Our children are always happy to visit us and enjoy going to our beautiful mountains on picnics.

Along the Way..

By PAUL BAKER

Thanks, Elizabeth McVeigh for giving us a chance to look at ourselves and laugh. The laughs came from reading a book she loaned us, entitled "Minding Our Own Business." It's story about a couple with city newspaper experience who bought a weekly newspaper at Snoqualmie, Washington and their troubles read more like fact than fiction.

The book was written by the editor's wife, Charlotte Paul, and she looks at the newspaper business not only from a writer's standpoint, but as a practical housewife and mother. When the Pauls bought their newspaper they thought it would be a snap having to get-out only one paper a week instead of one every day. Their week ends were to be free for fishing, camping and hiking. But it didn't work out that way.

Instead, they spent most of their Sundays working in the printing office. They finally decided the ideal business would be to get out a yearly almanac. There are many instances in "Minding Your Own Business" of newspaper bungling that grows humorous only with the passing of time, such as the garbled birth announcement that read:

"A bouncing baby boy was born April 11 to Mr. and Mrs. Cavin Johnson, Mr. and Mrs. Alfred Dart, Mr. and Mrs. Lloyd Fitzhugh, and Mr. and Mrs. Jerry Townsend, who were on their way to Seattle to attend a lodge meeting. He weighed eight pounds, two ounces, at birth, and reportedly looks just like Daddy. . . . Then there was the unforgettable item that appeared in the Hospital Notes stating that "Mrs. Jane Worthington had given birth to a baby girl." The facts were that "Mrs. Jane Worthington" was an 11-year-old girl who was in the hospital for an entirely different reason.

And so on, through the pages of "Minding Your Own Business," proving that what has happened, to one weekly newspaper man probably has, or will, happen to his brother publisher over in the next county.

D. L. Jackson was asking Herby man Kelt the other day if he could remember the year of the fire in the Old Abe mine in which eight men perished. The disaster was several years before Mr. Jackson arrived in White Oaks. The eight men are buried side by side in nameless graves.

SIMMS TURNS ROSE ON POLITICAL FIRE

Meanwhile, however, there was a spreading opinion that the increased payments would eventually douse the fire that has been burning among the welfare clients against the Gov. John Simms administration.

The higher election-year payments, foretold in this space two months ago, are only part of a program now being undertaken to squelch opposition to the governor. Grease for the squeaking wheels, also anticipated in this space, is being applied in fat statehouse jobs for Sheriff Manuel Ortiz of San Miguel who is also county chairman and one of the most dangerous of the Simms critics, and for Joe Calloway of Springer whose recognition is calculated to put down trouble brewing in Colfax county.

Also coming up are higher salaries for a large number in the lower brackets in the bureau of revenue who have been in a slow burn about their pay.
