Ramblin' Around Lincoln County

Interviews With People Who Helped Build Lincoln County

(Continuing the account, as recorded in a diary of a trip made in a covered wagon from Lone Elm, Kansas, to Capitan, New Mexico, by Mr. and Mrs. William Ferguson, Mr. and Mrs. L. E. Lamay, their six-month-old daughter, Fay, and Bales Burnham, Mrs. Ferguson's brother. Times Fall of 1899.)

Oct. 16—Monday—Took dinner on banks of Conejo. Will shot a wolf. Got a little soft water at a man's place. Drove down to the windmill and spent the night. Quite cold. Froze ice in the bucket.

Oct. 17—Quite a pleasant day after yesterday's cold. Took dinner out on the prairie and reached Matchez about half past four. Quite a rocky road to travel, but very pretty place to camp. Will and Bales are both asleep, so I guess I had better stop (Mac).

Oct. 18—Very rocky and plenty of hills. We are camped for dinner about 10 miles from the Block tank. Mules will likely not get any water until we reach there, but as they had water this morning they will not expect much before then. Very fine day and all are feeling contented as we just finished dinner. Failed to find water in Matchez at camping time and as the mules had none since morning and kegs were empty we had to drive on to the Block tank. Got off the road and after a long search Will finally found the tank but it was nearly dry. By stepping on several dead cows Will managed to get enough water for our supper, which we ate about 10 p. m. and all retired. Turned our plates upside down for the first time.

Oct. 19—Thursday—Got up very late and on looking around found about a half mile away a fine tank full of nice clear water. Roy walked over and got enough for breakfast. Left camp about 9 a. m., watered mules and filled kegs at tank. Got some fine beef at Block house. Camped for dinner at foot of the Capitan Mountains. Roy shot three quail. Are now camped for night on top of divide, but rather high up for Kansas folks. Will shot two more quail which we will have in a pot pie tomorrow. If nothing happens, this will be our last night out.

Oct. 20—Friday—Got down off the mountains safely and reached Grey's about 11 a. m. Drove a few miles this side, then camped for dinner. It was quite a sight, us trying to dress up. Roy kneeling down by a tree, trying to shave. Bales off in another direction, scrubbing. Will and I tried to bake our pot pie and clean up at the same time. Will said anyone could tell we had dressed for the occasion. Got everything loaded up and left camp for the last time about 3 p. m., and after a serious time we reached our destination—Bowen Zumwalt's place—about 5 o'clock, where we were glad to alight and go in a house once more. While our trip has not been one continual round of pleasure, it has been one that we all will never regret. Once more we will try the realities of building a home in New Mexico. (The End)

Fruit Packing Well Under Way in Valley

Last week over 7,000 bushels of Red Delicious apples were packed through the shed, with over 10,000 anticipated during this week.

Even the apples have shown the effect of the drought. This year, the apples are smaller than last year. As much as two-thirds of some lots are under 2 1/2 inches in diameter.

FRUIT GROWERS MEETING

A meeting of fruit growers was held for 7:30 p. m., September 14, at the packing shed. All fruit growers are urged to attend.

H. E. Baxter reports sales are doing well and expects to start packing Jonathan and Golden Delicious this week. He also reports that the apples from the Pacific Northwest will hit the market September 15. This will likely cause a price drop—so the grower should make every effort to get all No. 1 fruit to the shed before then.

Guests of the club were Coach Albert Burch and Buster Smoot. Bill Potter, Food Mart manager, is a new member.

The club voted to pay $2 toward the expense of buying insurance for all Grizzly football squad members.

To show their appreciation for the help given school athletics, members of the "C" Club offered to assist in selling tickets to the annual Chuck Wagon Dinner—an offer which the Lions Club accepted.

Coach Burch thanked the club for the assistance given high school athletics. He said the Grizzly squad is in good condition, has fine team spirit and might possibly upset Tularosa in the game here this Friday night.

Tickets for the Chuck Wagon Dinner are available from all club members. The dinner will feature barbecued beef and all the trimmings, at the usual price of $1. Funds raised will be used to beautify a park in

Carrizozo Reduces Rates on Water

The Carrizozo town board of trustees at their regular meeting Tuesday night adopted a new schedule of water rates.

The new rates, which are retroactive to August 22, are considerably lower than those in effect the previous month, due to the present use of cheaper well water. It was stated that the new rate structure is subject to revision. The new trial rates are as follows:

Minimum chge, 3000 gals...$2.50
3001 to 5000 gals, 45 cents per 1000 gals.

3001 to 5000 gals, $1 per 1000 gals.
All over 5000 gals, 90 cents per 1000 gals.

The council room was again crowded, making the use of benches necessary. Several spoke on the high cost of water and power in Carrizozo.

Lt. Col. John J. McCarthy submitted to the trustees a Medical Report of Water Supplies by Capt. Thomas E. Terrell, medical officer, USA, dispensary, Ft. Bliss, Texas. It stated:

"Water obtained from the following sources has been cultivated for bacterial contamination, and therefore fitness for human consumption.

Town Clerk Johnson Stearns brought two boxes of Nogal apples to the meeting and placed a sign on them: "Help Yourself."

Angered Jockey Sabotages Auto

A car shot full of holes, beaten up and tires slashed, called Sheriff W. C. Bradley and State Patrolman Bill Driggers to Ruidoso Saturday night.

They arrested R. D. Hay, a jockey, who admitted the car sabotage, also pouring sugar in the car's oil intake, when its owner refused to leave the premises of his house trailer.

Hay was charged with discharging firearms in a settlement and after appearing before Judge Herbert Smith was bound over to district court under $500 cash bond.

The car, a '55 Mercury, belonged to Richard Plaine of BIGGS AFB.

Ample Workers for Quay County Harvest

The supply of domestic labor in Quay county for broomcorn harvest has remained more than sufficient to meet the demands of growers and is sufficient for all needs through at least the middle of September, Fred C.
 Barron, chairman, executive director of the Employment Security Commission, noted last week. He said reports from Tucumcari show that the local supply of about 300 farm workers has been augmented by 300 labor crews comprising over 300 workers from other northern New Mexico counties, going to the area "on their own."
 In addition to those already in the area, the Santa Fe, Espanola and Las Vegas local offices still have applications from approximately 500 workers willing and desirous of going to the area for work. Some 170 Navajo agricultural workers have also registered with the State Employment Service as available for the Quay county harvest.

The peak demand, as seen in Tucumcari will come in late September and October, but a labor shortage now appears unlikely, Mr. Barron, says. He suggests that all applicants for harvest work contact the Alamo-gordo State Employment office before traveling to the Quay area.

Best Keep Daily Record Of Tax Deductions

If you expect to claim itemized deductions for contributions, taxes, interest, medical expense, etc. on your 1956 income tax return, then you had better keep a daily record of the exact amounts paid, according to S. P. Vidal, district director of the Internal Revenue Service in New Mexico.

"The reason for this is clear," Mr. Vidal said, "since the taxpayers must be able to substantiate in full each deduction claimed if his return is selected for audit."

"The record need not be complicated," Mr. Vidal explained. "A simple pocket diary or desk calendar pad is sufficient to list deductible expenses. This record, supported by receipts, is worth many times the cost of keeping it. Ordinary records should not be destroyed for at least three years after you file your return, since all income tax returns are subject to examination," Mr. Vidal cautioned.

Amendment to Public Law 566 Explained

Every farmer and rancher should understand the provisions of the new Public Law 1018, which amends the Watershed Protection and Flood Prevention Act. Here's what the Act, as amended, means to soil conservation:

1. Federal assistance is available for planning and carrying out work of improvement for (a) flood prevention; (b) the agricultural phases of water management, including irrigation and drainage; (c) municipal and industrial water supplies and streamflow regulation.

2. Help can be given if (a) the watershed is smaller than 250,000 acres; (b) the organization has legal authority from the state to carry out, operate, and maintain such works of improvement; (c) the agency designated by the Governor of the state approves the application; (d) the benefits of the project exceed the costs; (e) the Department of Agriculture agrees to the work plan; and (f) federal funds are appropriated to provide the help recommended in the plan.

3. The local organization shares in the costs of installing irrigation, drainage and other agricultural water management measures on the basis of direct identifiable benefits as determined by the Secretary of Agriculture.

4. The local organization pays all the costs of installing works of improvement for purposes other than flood prevention and agricultural water management.

5. The federal government pays the entire construction cost of works of improvement applicable to flood prevention and features relating thereto.

6. Water users, as well as landowners, must acquire needed water rights.

7. When the project has been authorized for operations, you have the option of obtaining professional engineering services or using the engineering services of employees of the federal government. If non-government engineering services are used for installation work, the Secretary of Agriculture can advance to the organization, to pay for such engineering service, up to 5% of the estimated total cost of the works of improvement.

8. If the work plan includes structures for municipal or industrial water supplies, the local organization must obtain professional engineers for the installation work.

9. The Secretary of Agriculture can make loans or advances to the organization to finance local costs. The loans can be for periods up to 50 years, at the federal long-term borrowing rate, with a limit of $3 million for any one project.

10. The amendments apply to all watershed projects that have been authorized for operation.

New Book Describes New Mexico Birds

A new book on the birds of New Mexico will be off the press just about 30 years after the previous book on the subject was published in 1923. The present project, a book by the nationally known ornithologist J. Stokley Ligon of Carlsbad, is sponsored by the Department of Game and Fish. Much of the art work has been sponsored by interested individuals. The publisher will be the University of New Mexico Press.

The 1928 book, Birds of New Mexico, has been out of print for many years. Occasional second-hand copies turn up in book dealers' catalogs, at a cost of about $20. This price is out of range for most persons not birds, and the new book will fill a long-expressed want.

The go-ahead was given by the State Game Commission last week, for publication of the Ligon book; but the book has been in the process of development for five or six years. Price of the volume will be kept at a minimum by virtue of large investments by the Department of Game and Fish and others. It will be an expensive book to produce, with its many illustrations by famous ornithological artists; but because of its value to the public, the subsidies have been made in order to keep the selling price within popular range. The price has not yet been set.

BOOK ON NEW MEXICO FISHING

"My dope isn't the last word," says modest fishing expert Pop Reid (officially Jess T. Reid of the University of New Mexico faculty) in the foreword of his new book, Fishing in New Mexico. He then proceeds to give "a tip or two on how to snag fish in the Land of Enchantment."

This pocket-sized book, put out by University of New Mexico Press and selling at $2, tells new and experienced fishermen what kinds of game fish they will find in New Mexico, what tackle the author has found best suited to taking each kind of fish and the more important techniques that work in this part of the country, as well as some of the "gimmicks" picked up along the way.

New Mexico Joins In Tribute to Wool

Governor John F. Simms has joined the governors of 16 other Western wool-producing states in setting aside the week of September 2 as "Make It Yourself With Wool Week."

The observance focuses attention on the importance of wool in the U. S. economy and on the men and women in New Mexico engaged in sheep raising and the marketing of wool.

In proclaiming the week, Governor Simms noted the state's historic importance in American wool growing. He urges "mayors, other public officials, leaders of industry, labor, members of religious, civic, veterans, agricultural, women's and fraternal organizations to take part in the observance."

"Support for Wool Week is needed," the Governor emphasized, "to enlist the widest possible support of programs designated to increase the production and use of wool in New Mexico."

Wool Week serves to heighten the interest of young women of high school and college age in the annual "Make It Yourself With Wool" home sewing contest sponsored by U. S. wool growers. District finals in the contest are now in progress in New Mexico.

 ABOUT PEOPLE

Joy Dawn Bell, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Vincent Bell, was home, accompanied by her roommate, over the Labor Day week end.

Mr. and Mrs. C. L. Wetzel of El Paso were in White Oaks from Friday night until Labor Day evening. They visited D. L. Jackson. Mrs. Wetzel (Larue Lane) is the daughter of Allen Lane. She attended school in White Oaks and Carrizozo.

A service family has moved into Bud Crenshaw's rent house in White Oaks.

Mrs. Charles Canter of Tulsa is visiting her sister, Mrs. E. T. Collier before she leaves Carrizozo this week for Fort Worth.

Legend links a ghost and buried treasure with the Grant House (above) in the former mining town of Shakespeare, near Lordsburg.

THE GHOSTS OF SHAKESPEARE

It was a hazy, moonlight night in Shakespeare. Shadows lay indistinctly in the old ghost mining town and on the surrounding hills. It was a good night for a ghost to come back.

Mrs. Frank Hill had heard the story years ago of the man who walked south from the creek at night towards the rear of the Grant House, former stagecoach station stop, and always disappeared before reaching the building.

On the hazy, moonlight night, Mrs. Hill's husband, Frank, was away, and she and her daughter, Jan, then 8 or 9 years old, were alone. Mrs. Hill was walking outside. Suddenly, the dogs started to bark and ran up on the railroad track. She walked up on the track to see if she had closed the door of the old assay office, where the chickens were kept. Some animal might have got in there. The door was closed.

Then, she saw a man walking up from the creek towards the Grant House, just as the person did in the ghost story. Probably a wetback, Mrs. Hill thought, for they occasionally found wetbacks in some of the buildings in the ghost town. She ran into the former general store, now the Hill's home, where her daughter was sleeping, locked the back door, and grabbed a gun and flashlight. She went outside and looked all around, but found no one. Ghost or wetback, the man walking towards the Grant House had disappeared.

Later that night, Mrs. Hill remembered the ghost story. There was a sequel to the incident of the vanishing figure.

Some time later, a Spanish-American, nicknamed the "Ambassador," turned up in Shakespeare with a map of buried treasure. He didn't show the Hills his map, but he asked if he could dig just at the rear of the Grant House. It was the spot towards which the man in the ghost story walked from the creek. Hill told the Ambassador he could dig but that he would have to fill up the hole afterwards.

Apparently the map had precise directions because the treasure hunter went to work with pick and shovel in a spot where the earth was soft. He had dug five or six feet deep in the earth when he found a bone and an old-fashioned, high-counter boot. The Ambassador quit digging immediately after finding the boot and bone, but he gave no explanation.

However, there is a superstition that the spirit of a murdered man guards buried treasure. Apparently the power of the superstition was greater than the Ambassador's desire for treasure, for he filled up the hole and left.

Later, a man who had had considerable experience in digging for buried treasure visited Shakespeare, and Mrs. Hill told him the story. He asked the Hills if they had dug deeper into the hole. But the Hills are ranchers and they can't find time to dig for treasure. The visitor said a hole must have been dug at that spot at some time, after Mrs. Hill added that it was virtually solid rock and almost impossible to sink a fence post hole, except at the place where the Ambassador had dug.

Whose bone and boot were those in the hole and did they lie just above buried treasure? Were they the bone and boot of a man who had been killed by his outlaw partner after they had buried treasure, perhaps years before Shakespeare? And was it the murdered man's ghost which walked south from the creek towards the rear of the Grant House, where the treasure was buried?

There is an earlier story of a ghost and buried treasure—the little dancing light that Spanish-American women saw in the evenings as they went to the spring for water.

A Lordsburg girl, who had heard the story from her grandmother, told it to Mrs. Hill.

Some bandits buried treasure at Shakespeare, probably very early in the 1830's or before that. When women walked to the spring on the flat in the evening a little light danced ahead of them. They said the light led to hidden treasure.

There is no story of persons digging for or finding treasure at the spring. And the spring, towards which the light danced, was ruined by an earthquake in 1837, which extended from El Paso to Arizona, Mrs. Hill said.

But there is a story that an Old Mexico outlaw used to buy his supplies at Ralston, which later became Shakespeare. In return for this accommodation, he never railed the town. Did he bury his treasure near the spring on the flat and was the little dancing light his ghost? Well, these are the ghost stories. But don't conclude the Hills believe in ghosts. They don't.

Carrizozo Grade School News

BY SELMA TEAGUE

Teachers and their families of the Carrizozo school system met at Nogal Lake after school Monday for their annual potluck dinner.

Our new teachers and their families were our guests of honor. They were Coach Alfred Burch Jr., his wife and children; Mr. and Mrs. Ben Maas, Mrs. Pauline Pherigo and daughter; Callie Chamis, and Ann Bohm.

We all enjoyed our chicken dinner, with all of the trimmings, very much. Thanks to our new Association president, Miss Minnie Lee Neill, and her foods committee for the excellent manner in which everything was so well planned for all of us.

We were glad to have Miss Chisholm's mother, Mrs. T. J. Chisholm from Vicksburg, Miss., with us. We also appreciate our school nurse, Mrs. Lela Brewster, being with us this year. Kino Ortiz was also a welcome guest. Miss Dolores Teague, the daughter of Mrs. Teague, from Oklahoma City, was also with us. Those who attended were:

Coke is so good with a barbecue

There's something special about food cooked outdoors—and serving Coca-Cola with it makes it extra special.

statehouse. It still looks like a hard pull for Democratic Gov. John Simms in the Nov. 6 count.

CHAVEZ POSITION HURTS DEMOCRATS

Senator Chavez' decision to stay out of the state campaign is regarded all around as one of opposition to the re-election of Governor Simms. If he stays with it, it could mean perhaps four or five thousand votes mostly in Albuquerque, Clovis, Gallup and Valencia county.

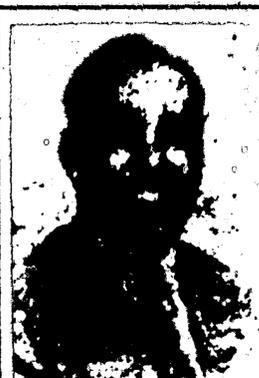

There would be some Chavez pull in the predominantly Spanish-American counties but his old influence in that area has been watered down by large numbers of residents enjoying places on the Simms payroll.

Ed Mechem, the Republican candidate for governor, had a sympathetic understanding with Chavez when he was Governor 1931-34 and enjoyed a nice vote from the areas where Chavez had influence. That was after the senator's brother, David Chavez, had been defeated in his primary run for Democratic nomination for governor.

Senator Chavez has set up protection for what might be interpreted as disloyalty to his party. Pretty soon he is going to announce $300,000 Reserve Training Halls for Silver City, Las Cruces and Las Vegas which he secured through his chairmanship of the military appropriations sub-committee.

He is taking the lead in protecting ranchers and small business men from exclusion from the new interstate highway system, and is planning inspection tours of flood control jobs on the Pecos and Rio Grande over the length and breadth of the state.

He also has under wraps at least two big deals for Las Vegas which is perhaps the most seriously depressed city of the state. The Fort Union National Monument near Las Vegas and Highlands University are the

"JACK" ZEPEDA BECOMES SALES REPRESENTATIVE

H. E. "Pat" O'Brien, General Sales Manager of the Pearl Browning Company has announced the appointment of Mr. "Jack" Zepeda as a territorial representative for Pearl Beer.

Mr. Zepeda served four years with the Air Transport Command, U.S. Air Force, stationed in North Africa. After being honorably discharged he was employed by the San Antonio Fire Department for nine years; he is a member of the Knights of Columbus Council No. 785 and the American Legion.

Jack and his wife, Emma, have one child, David. They live at 280 Pawnee Drive in San Antonio.

DEMPEY ALSO PLAYING COY

Senator Chavez Congressional buddy, Rep. John J. Dempsey, is also playing coy about helping the local Democrats. He has a long series of commitments which will keep him from joining the campaign parties any time soon.

Dempsey, however, doesn't amount to much vote-wise. He can do alright in his own run but doesn't have the influence to affect other races.
