 An Albuquerque fisherman at Fenton Lake on a recent Sunday morning caught 3 brown trout in 1 1/2 hours. They weighed 6 pounds, 5-3/4 and 3-3/4, respectively. PEEPING BRUIN
 A glass-paned door in the home of a respectable retired couple proves irresistible to a visiting bear. Mr. and Mrs. F. J. Lyman of Jemez Springs have more than once seen bear-paw prints and the imprint of a bear's snout on their door pane. The bear, a 500- to 600-pounder, according to Mannen Clements of the Department of Game and Fish, is doing no damage beyond overturning garbage cans, but he takes a turn around the Seven Springs Hatchery from time to time.
TROUT PLANTINGS
 The Department of Game and Fish planted the following waters with trout 8 inches or bigger, in the period July 29-Aug. 3: Rivers: Cimarron (upper and lower), Brazos, Rio Grande (below Elephant Butte), Rio Las Vacas (lower). Creeks: Buldoso, Willow, Gilita, Laker, Cabresto, McGaffey, Santa Cruz, Nogal, San Gregorio. (Continued on Page 5).

N. M. Magazine Tells Story of "Hermit Paul"

A holy man and hermit for whom a mountain in New Mexico is named "SAN HERMITAS" in influence in northern New Mexico in the area in which he roamed 90 years ago.
 Ann Nolan Clark has collected stories of the hermit and in an inspirational story titled "The Hermit and Father Paul," in the August issue of New Mexico Magazine, brings into focus the nebulous figure of Juan Maria Augustini Ana, the hermit of Hermit's Peak near Las Vegas.
 The hermit, through his piety and example, gave new spirit to the depressed and ill in the Sangre de Cristo area, and infused new courage into many who felt themselves weakening under misfortune.
 Father Paul, in Mrs. Clark's story, admired the hermit because he was doing God's work among the people the same as he himself was trying to do, and in some cases, he thought, getting the job done a little more effectively.
 The hermit was reputed to have been an Italian nobleman who gave up riches and nobility. Mrs. Clark, one of New Mexico's better known writers, tells the story with feeling and simplicity. The issue with this article will make a valuable addition to collections of New Mexicans.

THE JUVENILE CODE OF NEW MEXICO

By GINA ALLEN
 Executive Secretary, Third Judicial District Youth Commission

13-9-53 — Provisions for commitment of juveniles. — When any juvenile has been found to be within the provisions of this Code (13-9-19 to 13-9-73), the judge may issue an order to commit such juvenile: (a) To the care and custody of his parents or to a reputable citizen of good moral character, subject to such conditions as the juvenile court may impose; (b) To any suitable institution, association, public or private agency or school willing to receive such juvenile, subject to such conditions as the juvenile court may impose; (c) In the event the juvenile is a boy, to the New Mexico Industrial School for Boys, until 21 years of age, unless sooner discharged by the order of the juvenile court; (d) In the event the juvenile is a girl, to the Girls' Welfare Home, until 21 years of age, unless sooner discharged by the order of the juvenile court; (e) Or take such other action as the court deems necessary in the best interest of the child.
 13-9-54 — Finding that juveniles commit within provisions of Code. — No juvenile shall be committed to either the Industrial School for Boys or to the Girls' Welfare Home, unless such juvenile has been adjudicated to come within the provisions of this Code (13-9-19 to 13-9-73).
 This section needs no explanation as it is self-explanatory, with the exception that the section should read the New Mexico Industrial School rather than the New Mexico Industrial School for Boys.
 13-9-55 — Commitment to be made in accordance with religious belief. — All commitments shall be, so far as possible, to institutions or placements in family homes of the same religious belief as that of the parent so committed or placed, of his parents, or to institutions affording opportunity for instruction in such religious belief.
 When the court commits a boy to the care and custody of people other than the parents or the probation office or private institutions, insofar as reasonable he must adhere to the religious faith of the juvenile. In other words, this means that if he is to be paroled to an individual, this individual should be of the same faith, same church or that the school must be of the same faith or the same church unless it is a public school, and that if he is placed anywhere other than with his parents the child must receive instruction in his own faith and religion and not in another.
 13-9-56 — Transmission of information concerning juvenile. — Whenever the court shall commit a juvenile to any institution or agency, it shall transmit with the order of commitment, a summary of its information concerning the juvenile, and such institution or agency shall give to the court such information concerning such juvenile as the court may at any time require.
 This section provides that when a juvenile is committed that copies of his social report must be given to the person or institution so receiving him. This social case history is made up of the following items: Reason for referral; statement of the problem; the child's statements; home and school adjustment; physical and emotional evaluation; interpretation; prognosis and recommendations. There is not space here to explain to you what goes into such items, but your probation officer will be glad to explain this to anyone who is interested.

An angry man is Sylvester T. By,
 Who today was sold a piece of "Luce Sky."
 He'd stepped in a showroom—out of the rain,
 Was sold a new car before he could explain
 How he hated the styling—so high and square
 And in new features it was really bare.
 "I got a real bargain—the boy of my life—
 But how do I ever convince my own wife!"

Moral: You're paying for a new car... make sure you get one!
 When you buy a new car, put your money on tomorrow—not yesterday. Swept-Wing Dodge actually obsolete other cars in its field. Should you invest in high, boxy styling when Dodge offers the low, low look of tomorrow? Should you invest in outdated coil springs when Dodge offers new Torsion-Axle Ride? Should you invest in an old-fashioned lever-type transmission when Dodge offers the ease of Push-Button Driving? In other things, too—engines, brakes, interiors—Dodge is years ahead. So put your money on tomorrow. See your Dodge dealer. Join the swing to the Swept-Wing Dodge!

THE GOLD-LETTERED EGG

One afternoon more than a half century ago strange news spread through the Seven Rivers community, and people went hurriedly to Pete Corn's farmhouse east of the rock school near the now vanished town. A schoolboy, Bob Dow (who became New Mexico attorney general), was riding his paint horse homeward. He saw the people gathered at his kintfolk's home and he rode into the yard.

What Dow and others witnessed there was the beginning of the incident of the gold-lettered egg. On it were raised, gold letters such as might be found in an old family Bible. Mrs. Corn was virtually in hysterics.

That afternoon she had gathered the eggs in a zinc bucket, and one of the last which she took from a nest bore this message in golden letters: "Prepare to meet your God."

Mrs. Corn, dispatched runners to notify her neighbors of the miraculous egg. They came and saw, and all agreed that no human hand could have wrought the letters. Presently, the feeling grew that the end of the world was at hand. Dow recalled his tears as he rode the remainder of the way home that afternoon.

Now, at that time church was being held in the community, which was about 17 miles north of Carlsbad. What the circuit-riding preachers and the godly had been unable to accomplish, the miraculous egg effected. Old cowboys, who had steadfastly refused to go to church, attended and some were saved, as the message on the egg, or perhaps its warning, spread religious fervor in the community.

During one of the church services two cowboy brothers sat together. One was of a mind to join the church, but whenever he started to rise to go forward, the other pulled him back into the seat. But, finally, the brother who had been trying to go forward, did so, and the other soon followed. When they got outside and were walking towards their horses, the reluctant one said to his brother:

"Why in hell did you do it?"

Among those who were convinced that no human hand could have lettered the message on the egg was Hub Brogden, range boss for the S-Cross Ranch. He made the remark emphatically at church. Two young chaps, Homer Wilder, and one named Allen, heard him.

Allen bet Brogden $500 that he could make an egg like the one with the message, and the range boss said, "I'll give $500 to anyone who can make one like it."

By the time church was over Allen was back with a duplicate of the egg that had made the church meetings so successful. He and Wilder then admitted that they had lettered the first egg to play a prank on one of the Corn girls.

Attention from the message on the egg was diverted into indignation against the pranksters. The two young fellows were taken to Carlsbad, the county seat. But, as Dow recalled, no law against writing on eggs could be found, and the pair was turned loose.

How did the pranksters letter the message on the egg? Mrs. L. D. Clark of Carlsbad, daughter of the late Sam Jones, who remembered Seven Rivers when there was neither railroad nor barbed wire, recalled that her mother once showed her how the lettering was done: "Trace the letters in tallow on the egg, and then soak it in old-fashioned strong vinegar. The letters appear to be raised and to be gold."

The bride was dressed in a moire taffeta street-length gown with a fingertip illusion veil. She carried a white Bible, topped with a white carnation bridal bouquet. For something old she wore a coin in her shoe. Something borrowed, a pearl necklace and something blue, a blue garter.

At the reception immediately following the ceremony the guests were served wedding cake and punch.

The Fay Harkey family and granddaughter Kathy, 3 months old, and Eppy Nell were out in the mountains Sunday and stopped for coffee.

At the Nazarene camp meeting one night last week I had a pleasant visit with Lequena and Madge (Bailey). That's the way we natives remember them. Years ago they lived at Alto. The Bailey kids, the Luck kids, the Hightowers, Conder, Traylor and Cog kids, made about a houseful for one poor teacher.

Had a letter from Ross Coe Sr. in Los Angeles recently. He is 90 years old and was raised on the Ruidoso Creek. He wrote to tell me how he was enjoying G. A. Rowland's story in the Lincoln County News. "Every word Rowland is telling is true," Ross says. He wants more Lincoln County News papers.

We sorta had an accident this week but no one was in a car that turned over on top of the bridge near the store. Mrs. Frank Wasson from Roswell left the car to bring some groceries to me and the durned emergency didn't hold and off it went. Bill Blakley's wrecker came from Ruidoso and got the Pontiac outta the creek. It caught fire but some survival boys from Roswell APB quickly put the fire out with fire extinguishers from their bus.

An Informative Week At State College

The week at State College was quite informative and interesting. In the home economics division, the demonstrators covered a wide field in general home economics, foods and clothing.

The dress revue girls were lovely and the state winner is from our neighboring county of Torrance. The winning team in home economics judging was from Union county.

On Friday morning a lady from one of El Paso's leading stores talked to the girls on teen fashions for this fall. Start looking in your older sister's and mother's discarded wardrobes, girls. Oversize bulky sweaters and the straight, dropped waistline are the height of fashion for this fall.

Maricetta Sultemeier and Judy McKnight attended this program, also. They have some excellent ideas on the more exotic fashions which we saw modeled and discussed.

Jams Must Stand at Room Temperature

I would like to mention one item about the article on uncooked jams which appeared in last week's paper. The jams must be allowed to stand at room temperature until jelled, even overnight if necessary. Once they have been refrigerated they will not jell. This point should have been emphasized more in the recipe, but in the process of leaving for State College, it was missed.

Dry Ice Handy When Power Fails

During the summer when the thunderstorms are especially bad in our area, temporary power failures are not unusual. Dry ice may save the food in your freezer, if the power fails this summer.

First, find out about how long the power is likely to be off. If it is only for a few hours, you won't need to do anything. But if it will be off longer, you can buy some dry ice. One 50-pound cake should protect the food in the freezer for as long as 36 hours.

Don't handle dry ice with your bare hands. It may burn you.

Move food in the freezing compartment into the storage compartment before you put in the dry ice. Place this ice on boards over the packages — not on the packages. This is most important. Do not place dry ice directly on the packaged food. Don't open the freezer when

Find Fishing Good In Colorado Mts.

Robert Runnel and Jimbo Coll have returned from a very successful fishing trip to Colorado. They met one of Jimbo's college buddies in Pagosa Springs. The three motored most of the night through mud, axle deep, to the Jewel Carrol ranch headquarters.

From there they packed by horse and mule 22 miles into the wild and rugged San Juan mountains to Flint Lake where camp was set up.

Robert said the first time he cast out with his spinning equipment, using a black F7 flat fish, he hooked a 24 1/2-inch cutthroat trout which took 15 minutes to land. He was using a 4-lb. test line.

The boys were fishing at about 12,000 feet altitude and consequently having no better way of storing their fish, packed them in snow.

They also fished in Granite Lake, the Pine and Snowslide rivers, returning home with some beautiful trophies.

Minnie Morris has had a longer stay in the Ruidoso Hospital than she expected. She and Lois were innocently hospitalized a week ago when a car hit their pickup from the rear, knocking the pickup over Loss as he was filling his radiator with water at the Conoco station in Capitán. Minnie and two granddaughters were in the cab.

News of the Carrizozo Methodist Church

By REV. H. DITTELREINE

You are welcome to attend any or all of our services.

The theme for the 11 o'clock service Sunday will be "The God of Our Faith." At the evening service the minister will speak on the subject "What Shall I Do With My Life?" Come and share with us the joy of worship and praise to God through His son Jesus Christ.

I call your attention to the following meetings for the coming week: Monday evening, the meeting of the Commission on Missions; Tues. evening, choir rehearsal; Wednesday evening, meeting of the Commission on Stewardship and Finance.

Now is the time. Have you ever noticed that tomorrow never comes, and yesterday is never with us—always behind us? Time is constantly changing. It's the one dimension we cannot "capture." The one thing which doesn't elude us in time is NOW. It is always here! The time for decision is now; the time to become an active church member is now; the time to accept Christ is now. These important decisions cannot be made tomorrow—they must be made now.

Low cost

Our services are reasonably priced — the casket alone, determines the final cost.

We give the finest service—no matter how much or how little is spent.

Our services are complete, regardless of cost. Call us day or night — in your hour of need.
