Aliens Required to Report in January

Kennecott to Curtail Output of Copper

Salt Lake City — Continued lack of domestic demand for copper will force Kennecott Copper Corporation to curtail production in Utah, Nevada and New Mexico beginning in January, it was announced last week by C. D. Michaelson, general manager for the company's Western Mining Divisions.

The company will cut its production by nearly 12% in the three states by adopting a shorter production week, he said. Plans call for the divisions to operate six days per week instead of seven. Under this schedule, divisions will operate 12 consecutive days and shut down for two days, Mr. Michaelson said.

The company's Ray Mines Division in Arizona has been working a six-day production week since last April.

The curtailment will necessitate furloughs for nearly 800 employees in the three divisions as follows: 525 Utah, Nevada 190, and New Mexico 182. The company currently employs approximately 11,000 in the four western divisions.

Effect of the curtailment will be to decrease the monthly copper output by an estimated 3,800 tons.

Copper to Coins by Mule Train

Mule trains hauling crude copper bars 400 miles to Chihuahua made possible the first profitable operation at Santa Rita. It was 1804 and the new owner, Don Francisco Manuel Elgueta, a Mexican banker and merchant, had solved the transportation and Indian problems that had plagued the mine's founder, Carrasco.

In addition, Elgueta had the capital Carrasco lacked. And a contract to supply copper for coins gave him an assured market.

Problems with raiding Apaches were eased greatly by giving them cloth, guns, horses and "strangely shaped casks of ardent spirits." Indian chief Juan Jose, after sampling the spirits, gave permission to establish Santa Rita. Elgueta, playing it safe, also built a triangular fort.

By solving the problems of capital, Indians, transportation and a market, the mine prospered from 1804 to 1809.

Today Kennecott's Chino Mines Division also faces a problem — soaring costs.

To solve the problem, Kennecott is seeking economies in a wide variety of ways: through work simplification, expanded use of employee suggestions, improved methods, better use of supplies and equipment and the most efficient use of the work force.

This program is of tremendous importance to Kennecott and to New Mexico. It will help Kennecott continue to operate successfully. And successful operations mean continued benefits, including tax payments that aid in the development of New Mexico.

This is the third of a series of advertisements featuring our mule trains as a component of the copper industry in New Mexico.

Christmas Program Beautiful, Impressive

The Nogal Presbyterian church was the setting for a very beautiful and impressive Christmas program, Sunday at 7 p.m. The church was filled to overflowing capacity, with visitors from Bonito City, Carrizozo and Capitan.

The primary and kindergarten classes told the Christmas story under the direction of Mrs. A. E. Roselle.

"A Christmas Pageant" was presented by the Juniors, directed by Mrs. Lorraine Brimberry. Donna Zumwalt at the piano and Mrs. Betty Nickels, violin, furnished the lovely background music.

Following this, the Corona Presbyterian choir presented a lovely and beautiful Cantata "Love Transcending" directed by Rev. Bill Lytle, accompanied on the piano by Helen Kaye Atkinson.

Also participating in the cantata were several members of the Corona Jr. choir, singing "A Christmas Lullaby" with soloist, Michael Dayton and pianist, Sherill Perkins.

I do believe little Michael's singing was the highlight of the evening. He has such a wonderful, clear, singing voice.

We hope the choir will come back again soon.

A big thanks of praise goes to all those who participated and those who put so much time and effort to make the program such a success.

Mr. and Mrs. Dick Cox and David of Las Cruces and Mr. and Mrs. Mel Houx of Lubbock are home for the holidays, visiting the Cox's and friends and relatives in Capitan.

Mr. and Mrs. Doc Douglas and family of Alamogordo are visiting the Albert Mays this week.

Mr. and Mrs. A. P. Sifton were Tularosa and Alamogordo visitors Monday.

Homer McDaniel is home on leave from the Veterans' hospital for the holidays.

Home Dale McDaniel is improving but will still have to stay in the hospital for some time. He also is in the Veterans' hospital.

Ben Pfingsten is expecting Bobby Pfingsten of El Paso to visit him sometime during the holidays.

The Sunday School classes of Nogal went catalog Monday night, ending up at the home of Mr. and Mrs. A. F. Roselle, who were hosts to a Christmas party.

Several attended the school program Wednesday evening.

Miss Della Joiner

Becomes Bride of David Bonnell

In a lovely candlelight service at the First Baptist Church at Tinnie, Della Joiner, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Leo A. Joiner of Hondo, became the bride of David Bonnell, son of Mr. and Mrs. Ralph Bonnell of Glencoe. The vows were said at 7 o'clock in the evening of December 14, before a group of close friends and relatives.

The church was decorated with evergreens and white doves with bows and streamers of white satin ribbon and white candles. Solid brass antique candelabra from a church in England held tall white tapers on each side of the sanctuary. In the center a tall candelabra festooned with evergreens and ribbon held seven white tapers which lighted the altar.

Preceding the ceremony the candle lighters, Renee Nosker and Edith Joiner, entered and lighted the candles to wedding music.

Mrs. Richard Phillips sang "Because" and the groom, best man, and the minister took their places. To the strains of the wedding processional Miss Patsy Joiner, the bride's only attendant, entered followed by the bride on the arm of her father.

The impressive double ring ceremony was read by Rev. J. W. Henderson, pastor of the church. The groom's attendant was his brother, Harvey Bonnell. Ushers were Pat Joiner and Kenneth Nosker.

Mrs. Fletcher Hall Jr. at the piano played "I Love You Truly" softly throughout the ceremony and was the accompanist for the processional, the recessional, and for Mrs. Phillips. From a flower-decked basket made by friends of the bride, Ruth Joiner gave each wedding guest little green and white net bags of rice.

The bride's dress, a winter white of ballerina length velvet designed by herself and made by her mother, featured a very full ten gored skirt scalloped to the torso length fitted bodice and fastened down the back with small covered buttons, the traditional sweetheart neckline, and long petal-tipped sleeves closed with small covered buttons.

Of shoulder length her veil fell from a small head band of seed pearls and sequins. For something old the bride wore pearls and ear screws belonging to her mother, the something borrowed was her veil which belonged to a dear friend, and something new was her dress, the something blue was a garter given to her by a friend of her mother's. She carried a bridal bouquet of white carnations.

The maid of honor wore a forest green ballerina length dress of lace over tulle with fitted bodice and wide flaring skirt with chiffon streamers falling from the neckline to the hem in the back. A head band fashioned from material of the bride's dress and bouquet of pink carnations completed her ensemble. The candlelighters wore dresses of dark green velvet with full gathered skirts, head bands made of material from the bride's dress, and wrist corsages of pink carnations. The bride's mother chose a golden brown silk suit with black accessories and corsage of gold chrysanthemums.

The groom's mother attired in a gray suit with rose accessories wore a pink carnation corsage.

Immediately following the ceremony the bride, party and friends journeyed to the Bonnell Ranch, home of the groom's parents, where the reception was held. After forming the receiving line and welcoming the many friends of the couple the bride and groom cut the lovely four tiered wedding cake which centered the beautiful serving table which carried out the same decorative motif as the church.

The pink and white striped linen and tall white tapers were set off by clusters of evergreens sprinkled with gold and silver on each side of the cake.

Mrs. Wilbur Coe poured and Mrs. Fletcher Hall, Mrs. Dinnitt Bond, Mrs. Marshall Sellman, Mrs. Floyd Hale, Mrs. Gladys Nosker, Mrs. Morris McClendon, and Mrs. Mayme Perry assisted with the serving of wedding cake and punch. The Wilbur Coe orchestra played for dancing later in the evening.

For a going away outfit the bride wore a soft gray wool suit with black accessories. After a honeymoon in the western states the couple plan to make their home at Glencoe.

The bride is a graduate of the Hondo Valley High School, a member of Rainbow, and an active worker in 4-H and in all high school activities. She attended Eastern New Mexico University.

The groom, a descendant of a pioneer Lincoln County family, graduated from the Baldoon High School, attended New Mexico A&M and served his full time in the United States Air Force during the Korean Conflict. At present he is engaged in the ranching and overhead business with his father.
