

Ramblin' Around Lincoln County

Tape Recorded Interviews With People Who Helped Build Lincoln County

MRS. MAGGIE PFINGSTEN

I was living in Nogal when I married Fred Pfingsten on November 1, 1894. My husband was born in Omaha. He called himself a mule skinner and hauled freight from Socorro and El Paso to the merchants in Nogal and Bonito City.

Soon after we were married we moved to Nogal Mesa and farmed. Our homestead is where Peg Pfingsten and family live now. My husband still freighted a little in 1907, when it was so dry, he went to work at the Vera Cruz mine.

For three or four years after we moved to the Mesa we had to carry water from a spring a quarter of a mile away. Then Mr. Pfingsten laid a pipeline on top of the ground from the spring to our house.

Coyotes used to give us a good deal of trouble. They would sometimes hamstring the calves. One day, while two coyotes watched from a hill nearby, another coyote raided our chicken house. I had eight or nine hens. I ran out with a boomstick and hit the coyote over the head as it was coming out of the chicken house with a hen in its mouth.

Some of our neighbors on the Mesa were Bob, Cleve and Bill Bourne, Sally White, the Ferrisses, Lamays and Zumwalt. Grandma and Grandma Zumwalt lived on the Mesa when we did. A little school was built on the Ed Pfingsten place and school was held there for two or three years. It was called the Mesa school. My children had to walk a mile and a half to get there.

Mr. and Mrs. John Skinner used to come over from the Bonito and hold Sunday School. We had Sunday School at Angua, too, when we lived there. Everyone took an interest in that. An elderly couple by the name of Parker, who came from Boston, had charge of the Angua Sunday School. They had a little place on the Bonito, two or three miles away.

There were lots of Indians around when we first moved to Angua. They would walk up to the house and put their hands up to their faces and peep in. They didn't cause any trouble, but my mother was so afraid of them. The Indians were usually begging for sugar or coffee or tobacco or something like that.

An old character came to the ranch one day. Peg had just got home from school. The man had two horses and he wanted some feed. He said he was hunting for a lost mine in the Capitan Mountains. It was something I had never heard of. I fixed him some supper and Peg fed his horses. Just before dark he pulled out for the mountains and I never heard of him again.

The VV ranch was a big ranch when we came here. My father used to do blacksmith work for them. The headquarters was two or two and a half miles from the Alto store, on Angua Mesa, about a mile below the Charlie Feebles place. As I remember, the ranch was operated by the Greas until around 1910. When we lived at Angua they shipped in a big herd of hogs from Scotland. A Mr. Woodward was in charge of the herd. It came by our place and I thought there must have been five hundred, but someone said it was nearer two hundred head.

Wayne H. Hamilton To Join Local Bank

Wayne H. Hamilton of El Paso has accepted a position as teller in Carrizozo's Lincoln County Agency, State Bank of Vaughn. He will replace M. O. Briggs who is returning around February 15 to his home in Dallas.

To take the position in Carrizozo's bank, Mr. Hamilton has resigned as secretary of the Robert E. McKee Construction Company of El Paso, a firm he has been connected with since 1924. Prior to that he was with the City National Bank in El Paso.

Both Mr. and Mrs. Hamilton are well known in Lincoln County. His father, H. B. Hamilton, was district attorney in Carrizozo from 1912 to 1920. Mrs. Hamilton is a daughter of Mrs. Haley, former publisher of the Carrizozo News. Both Mr. and Mrs. Hamilton attended school in Carrizozo. After their marriage in 1919 they moved to El Paso.

CARRIZOZO CUB SCOUTS TAKE PRIDE IN PERSONAL APPEARANCE

Twenty-two Cub Scouts took part in the inspection. A number of mothers and dads were also present at the meeting, held in the fire hall.

The Carrizozo Cub Scouts will take part in the 47th anniversary celebration of Cub Scouting February 9 at Roswell, beginning with a parade at 9 in the morning. Cubmaster Conrad Vance hopes that as many parents as possible will attend the anniversary fest.

Lincoln. It is where the Edgar Phillips live now. There was a big spring that we used for irrigation and we had a nice garden. The spring no longer flows the way it used to. Mr. Pfingsten passed away in 1905 and in 1907 I moved back to the Mesa. I also lived in Carrizozo one winter. In 1950 I bought this place in Lincoln. I like it here and I think I'll stay.

Hondo to Be Host To Music Festival

It's music festival time again in Lincoln county—a time when the bands from Carrizozo, Capitan, Hondo and Ruidoso meet for a day of fun, practice and a massed band concert.

This year Hondo High School will be host for the Music Festival, which is to take place on February 7.

C. M. Stutkey, chairman of the music department, and Florin Thompson, band director from Eastern New Mexico University, will be the clinicians and conductors again this year.

The evening concert by the combined bands will be in the Hondo High School gymnasium at 7:30, and in open to the public. Tickets will be 50 cents for adults and 25 cents for children. There will be no advance sale of tickets this year but they may be bought at concert time at the school. Everyone is urged to attend.

Around 120 to 150 students are expected to attend from the four participating schools. Their day, beginning at 8:30 in the morning and ending around 6:30 in the evening, will be one of closely scheduled activities.

The morning hours will include a two-hour rehearsal of the massed bands and a series of half-hour sectional rehearsals handled by the visiting clinicians.

At the sectional rehearsals the band members will be given lectures and demonstrations on good instrumental performance. After lunch, there will be individual performances on instruments, followed by another combined bands rehearsal.

A varied program of band music will be presented at the evening concert. Included will be solo and ensemble pieces by members from each school. Miss Mary Nichols will represent Carrizozo's band by playing a flute solo.

First Test Well To Be Developed

The Carrizozo town officials were making preparations this week to develop the source of water found in the first test well drilled three weeks ago.

Attention was turned again to this well after a second test well, completed last week proved a disappointment. Test well No. 2 was sunk a half mile southeast of test well No. 1 in the hope of striking a stronger flow. Though water was encountered it was not a strong flow and tests showed it to be harder than the water in test well 1.

Geologists from the School of Mines expressed the opinion that the quality of water in the first test well justified further development.

Plans are being made to "acidize" the well. By this method a chemical is injected into the well under pressure. The chemical, with its heat and pressure, creates an underground basin for the accumulation of water.

The second test well was drilled last week to a depth of 218 feet and was first tested Friday evening and again Saturday morning. Its exact flow could not be measured, but the well had previously been baled out in excess of 40 g.p.m.

Alamogordo Pipeline Nears Lake Bonito

The new pipeline from Alamogordo to Bonito Lake this week had stretched to a point approximately five miles east of Carrizozo.

About nine miles farther on a junction is to be made with the present Bonito pipeline at the top of Nogal hill. Target date for turning in Bonito water for a test of the line is April 1.

The Glencoe area selected Rev. Charles L. Conder on their delegate and Kenneth Necker an alternate.

The Arabela area selected John Cooper, delegate and George Slenoras as alternate. The annual meeting of the Lincoln County Road Planning Committee will be March 4, in Carrizozo.

Mrs. Martinez had been a resident of Carrizozo for three years. She came here from Tularosa where she had made her home for many years.

Mr. and Mrs. Martinez ranched at Three Rivers for about thirty years. Their children, a son and two daughters, attended school at Three Rivers. Mrs. Martinez had been a widow for 20 years.

Co. Wool Growers Form Association

At the county wool growers meeting held in Carrizozo last Saturday, January 26, the wool growers present decided to form a county organization to work on their various problems.

They elected Charles A. Jones, Capitan president; Joe Skeen, Picoche, vice-president and Robert Fred Corn of Roswell, secretary-treasurer. About 80 attended the meeting.

The group decided to cooperate in a county-wide eagle control project to reduce lamb losses from the eagles. Mr. Jones, who was in charge of the program last year, stated that the cost per ranch was $3.50.

Any rancher wishing to have eagle control on his ranch may write Mr. Corn at 900 South Plains Park Drive, Roswell.

The group also decided to have a county-wide sheep demonstration in June at the Joe Skeen ranch south of Picoche.

The demonstration of the wool squeeze machine was well received by the group, with considerable interest shown in getting one for the area.

Ivan Watson made the final remark that of the six national wool shows this year, Lincoln County wool growers had five grand champion fleeces, with

Along the Way..

By PAUL BAKER

We were recently discussing in three separate conversations with local businessmen, the pinch that the average retailer finds himself in these days, with prices constantly on the rise and the cost of doing business going along with them.

The retailer can and must, to stay in business, pass on to his customers the increases he is forced to pay on wholesale merchandise. But what about his other fixed expenses, such as many types of services, rent, labor and taxes, to name a few. These are constantly on the rise. It takes more dollars every year to meet these expenses. In most cases the small town retailer absorbs at least a part of them. In other words, it comes out of his profit of running a business.

In theory, during a period of inflation, as prices go up every one has more to spend and the wheels of commerce are oiled by easy money. But it doesn't always work that way. Prosperity is not spread over our nation like a blanket. Money is not so easy, for instance, in a drought area. Who knows better than the small town businessman the number of his customers who can't afford to pay more for the necessities of life? When he is forced to raise prices he is well aware of the hardship it will cause those with low or fixed incomes.

He has no control over price increases. They are set by the great industries, such as steel, petroleum refining, food processors and paper products.

We do not believe in government price controls in time of peace. We do believe it is the function of government to examine price increases by great industries to see whether they are justified. Government regulation of private utilities and common carriers was apparently in the public interest. Perhaps the time has come for Congress to look in other directions.

Both political parties have given lip service to helping the small businessman. So far he has managed to survive party platforms, higher taxes and shrinking profits. But the squeeze is growing and somewhere along the line the upward spiral has to be checked. This is a good time for Congress to apply the power brakes to further price increases.

Mr. and Mrs. Tom Babers of San Patricio are still looking for their favorite pet—a small black female cocker "Nochie."

The little dog was lost in Tularosa. Mrs. Babers writes that "Nochie" was not stolen: "She got away from Mr. Babers and was on the highway. We found out that a man in a pickup, with a 26 license took her and tried to find out to whom she belonged, but couldn't and he said he was going to take her to keep her from being run over." Nochie is very small, with a little sharp nose, and though eight years old, looks like a little pup. Mr. Babers said a boy they talked to in Tularosa said the man was driving a "dirty green" pickup that might be an International and it had mud grip tires. The Babers will pay a reward for the return of Nochie.

MONEY AND BANKING

In Everyday Living

IF THERE'S A MORTGAGE on your home, do you have the amount of the mortgage covered by life insurance? If you take out a policy for this purpose, the proceeds will pay off the mortgage in the event of your death, so that your family would have no further payments to make. Such insurance offers another advantage: As the years go by, the policy builds up a cash-surrender or loanable value, which you can borrow against during your lifetime should emergencies arise.

"I'd like to pay you now," said a lady we know to the man who had refinanced her floors, "but my husband has the checking account in the family. I'll have to wait until he gets home." The solution for this couple might be a joint checking account with us: One account opened by two people. Either person may make a deposit. Both sign an agreement that either may draw checks against the account; thus either may pay a bill by check promptly and conveniently.

A BANK'S "ACCOUNTING" of the conduct of its business is its periodic Statement of Condition. Ours tells where we stand financially: Tells you, for example, what part of total deposits is invested in mortgages and other loans to local individuals and businesses. You see how we put depositors' money to work soundly, and in the interest of serving the whole community. Stop in for our latest statement of condition; ask us any questions about it that may occur to you; and find out how we can best serve you.

EARLY-DAY WATER SUPPLY

At the site of this old wooden windmill, a quarter mile north-west of Lake Valley, D. S. (Sam) Miller struck water in the late 1890s while digging for ore and went into the water-hauling business to supply the Sierra County mining town. At the left is an old water storage tank. The windmill now swings useless in the wind. (Photo by Sam Learned)

It's been nearly a half century since the water wagon clattered a quarter of a mile down the hill into Lake Valley with a load of five 50-gallon barrels, and the driver began the round of homes and business places in the Sierra County mining town.

The driver stopped the wagon at the side door, the front- or back porch, depending on the place that the people kept their water barrels. The water was run into barrels at homes and business places with a 1 1/2 or two-inch hose. The people used empty, oak-charged whiskey barrels from which the whiskey had been soaked. They bought the barrels in town for $1 to $1.50.

D. M. (Dan) Miller of Lake Valley rode the rounds on his father's water wagon many times as a boy in the late 1890's. The wagon carried a load of five barrels.

His father, D. S. (Sam) Miller, got into the water-hauling business quite by accident. About 1896 or 1897, Miller was digging through solid limestone for ore one fourth of a mile northeast of town when he struck a good supply of water at a depth of 165 feet. The water was fairly soft, it stood about 50 feet in the well, and the supply was sufficient for the town and some stock.

Miller went into water-hauling competition with Roger Sherman, who was supplying Lake Valley from a 25-foot well a mile or so north of town. Sherman sold water for 50 cents a barrel. Because of Miller's shrier haul and the town's declining population — Lake Valley then had about 200 inhabitants compared to 1000 in its boom mining days—he cut the price to 35 cents a barrel. Eventually Sherman went out of business as a town supplier and his well provided water for stock only.

While the population was sufficient to justify it, the Sherman wagons hauled water from 5 a.m. to 9 p.m. daily, and brought from 15 to 16 loads a day into the town. The Sherman wagons were hauled by four mules; the Miller wagon by a team of horses, due to the shorter haul and smaller loads.

The Sherman well was always operated by horsepower. The Miller well was pumped by horsepower at first and later by a windmill.

Water from Lake Valley first was hauled from Little Well, which was more distant than the Sherman well and was shallow, being about eight or nine feet deep. The Little Well was mainly for travelers in the early days, and was used before discovery of the mines led to the settlement of Lake Valley.

Every night when the people of the United States sit down to dinner, there are 7,000 more to reach for the platter. This daily increase in population is like adding a city about the size of Providence, R. I., every month, or a state the size of Indiana every year.

Strong 1st Quarter Gives Bobcats Win

By JOE ALDAS

The Capitan Tigers lost a basketball game to Hagerman in a game played at Hagerman, January 25. A strong first quarter gave the Bobcats a win, 54-45.

The Hagerman Bobcats out-hustled the Tigers in the first quarter. The Tigers could not find the range of the basket, and before the tide changed, the Bobcats led 17 points to only 5 for the Tigers.

The end of the first quarter saw the Bobcats ahead 9 points. Both teams tied each other in points, in the remaining quarters, but the 9 points in the first quarter meant the game.

Leading the Bobcats were Dan Gomez and E. Dearman. They ripped the net for 17 and 12 points. B. Vance was high for Capitan with 14, followed by P. McKnight with 10.

The Capitan B team earned a hard fought victory as they downed the Hagerman Bees 30 to 27. R. Herrera and J. Kerr paced the victors with 9 and 8 points. For Hagerman, Keleher had 15, followed by Hagood with 6.

Juvenile Authority Invited to Speak at Carrizozo Meeting

A meeting of the Lincoln County Youth Commission was held at the high school in Capitlan Tuesday night, Jan. 22.

Plans are being made for a visit on March 14, of Judge Leo Blessing of New Orleans, a distinguished authority on juvenile problems, to Carrizozo. He will speak at night. A juvenile panel, composed of censors and juniors from county high schools, will be heard in the morning.

Members and other interested people attended from Ruidoso, Capitlan and Carrizozo. Robert G. Firman of Carrizozo, Lincoln County chairman, presided.

Judge W. T. Scoggin opened the meeting with a talk on the history and functions of juvenile courts with special reference to the 3rd Judicial District. He pointed out that the juvenile courts have two important functions:

1. To protect the community from the child.
2. To protect the child from himself and, occasionally, from the community. He also outlined the procedure used in juvenile cases.

Kenneth Barnhill, chief probation officer of the Third Judicial District, gave an interesting talk on the functions of the probation officers, including a few examples of actual cases dealt with recently. He reported that some 234 children had been referred a total of 323 times in Lincoln County in 1955. In the third district six boys and two girls were sent to state correctional institutions.

Mrs. Gina Allen of Las Cruces, executive secretary of the District Youth Commission, gave a brief talk on the work and aims of the commission. She pointed out that taxpayers had been saved some $300,000 by rehabilitating a great majority of juvenile cases rather than sending them on to institutions.
