Ramblin' Around Lincoln County

(G. A. Rowland, now 82, recently re-visited Lincoln County, where he worked at various jobs in the early '30s. The following type recording was made at the News office.)

By G. A. ROWLAND

"Well, he said 'Both ways.' They passed a few words and left. I said to the gentleman 'Why did you ask him that question?' Well sir, he said, 'I have heard you could sit on the highest seat and hear a pin drop in front of the organ and I believe it is a fact.'

The roof and the walls of the tabernacle have no square corners. They can open the doors and turn 10,000 people out in four minutes. Brigham Young built the tabernacle and started a foundation for the temple in Mormon Square, east of the tabernacle. They said the foundation of that temple was 14 feet in the ground and the foundation was out of the same blue granite as the Capitol building.

The solid stone blocks, 14 feet square, were built together like cakes of ice. Brigham Young said he wanted the temple to stand as long as the world did. Although he never lived to finish it, it was finished according to his plan. It is a wonderful building. I never got within 40 feet of the temple. Nobody but a good Mormon, with his dues paid up in advance, will ever get into that building. They tell me that.

I walked around to the east side, which I thought was the gate to go in on the sidewalk. I found a gap there in the stone wall, with iron bars about 15 or 18 feet high and about 4 inches apart. There was no chance on earth to get through into that temple. I just wanted to see if I could get in there. The Mormons furnish a guide every day at 8:30 to lead the sight-seers through Mormon Square.

They have a monument in Mormon Square in Salt Lake City made out of that great granite about 15 or 20 feet high and chiseled out within a circle are a man and a woman. The man has a handful of brush and the woman has a worn out broom. They were fighting the black crickets off their wheat the first year after they landed in Salt Lake City, Utah, so the guide told me. They had planted all the wheat seed that they had brought with them. The black crickets were about to eat the wheat up and the men and women were fighting them with brush and broom. Brigham Young told every one to fall on their knees and pray to their Maker to save their bread of life.

The next day, the guide told me, the sky was darkened with seagulls. They landed in the wheat fields and ate up all the crickets, saving the Mormons' bread of life. If you ever go to Salt Lake City don't fail to see this solid stone monument inside Mormon Square.

South of Mormon Square there is a red brick building that seats about 500 people. They allow any denomination to preach in that building.

The last time I was in Salt Lake City was in 1953. We saw a little log cabin where Brigham Young first lived in when he landed in Salt Lake City. The bark is still on the logs of the building. They won't allow anyone to get close enough to that building to put their hands on it. I took a sight seeing bus after I left there and the driver of the bus was an Irishman. He said we are going to pass Brigham Young's last house he lived in. He started many gables on it because he had that many wives when he died. I counted seven gables on that house.

When we got to the capitol building we went through it. It is the only capitol building. I have ever seen that has a display showroom in the lobby of the capitol. There was an old fashioned buckboard, some canes, pieces of old leather harness, and an ax. They said that was the buggy that Brigham Young drove to Salt Lake City.

We went on upstairs into the federal court room. There was a federal judge up there and he had a rope stretched on the outside of his carpet, about 18 inches off the floor. He was walking up and down the carpet and he says, 'Gentlemen, please let the ladies stand in front because you are taller and you can see.'

VA Compensation and Pension Law Modified

Compensation and pension payments to veterans and their dependents are not affected by the recently enacted Veterans Benefits Act of 1957, VA said this week.

The new act, Public Law 85-56, is designed primarily to consolidate and make more uniform the laws administered by VA. It re-states, amends or repeals a large number of veterans' laws, some of which date back to the reconstruction era after the Civil War.

Effective January 1, 1958, the main features of the new law include: (1) Establishment, for widows' compensation purposes, of the uniform requirement that the widow married the veteran (1) within 10 years after his service, or (2) at least 10 years before his death. However, a saving clause protects widows who, as to date of marriage, do not meet either of these requirements, but who were qualified to be, or were on VA compensation rolls before January 1, 1958.

(2) A provision that a widow's remarriage would permanently end her eligibility for VA benefits. A saving clause protects any remarried widow on the rolls as of January 1, 1958. Under certain conditions, previous laws allowing remarried Civil War, Indian War, and Spanish-American War widows to have their VA benefits restored after the remarriage was terminated.

(3) Establishment of a uniform definition of "child" (generally under age 18), thus liberalizing the definition of a "child" (generally under 16, as defined by previous laws) to a veteran of the Civil War or the Indian wars. This new definition also will bring about an increase in the amount of pension paid certain helpless children of Spanish-American War veterans.

(4) Removal of the conditions of dependency and age 60 for certain widows' pensions. Under previous laws, widows of Civil War, Indian Wars, and Spanish-American War veterans might be barred from pension because of their date of marriage, yet qualify for its payment by marriage for 10 or more years, showing dependency and attaining age 60.

(5) Provision that VA may provide medical treatment for service-connected disabilities and hospitalization benefits to certain retired members of the Armed Forces, without a requirement that such members waive their retired pay in order to qualify for disability compensation.

(6) Establishment of a uniform discharge requirement of "under other than dishonorable conditions" for eligibility for VA benefits.

Carrizozo Slated To Receive Twenty New Families Soon

The three million-plus contract recently awarded to the Radioplans Company of El Paso for the production of a new supersonic target drone, that operates above the 60,000-foot altitude will have its effect upon Carrizozo, the News was told today.

It is expected that this contract plus the $4.5 million contract awarded to Radioplans for a rocket propelled drone to be used in guided missile firings at Red Canyon will bring about twenty to thirty new families to Carrizozo in the near future.

These new arrivals-to-be are connected with this new expansion occasioned by these contracts, it was said.

Telephone Company Lays New Cable Across The Pacific

The cables ship Monarch, grey bulled veteran of scores of deep-water ventures, is scheduled to leave San Pedro, Calif., July 12 on her biggest assignment—laying of the first undersea telephone link with Hawaii, according to Ruse Eddings, Mountain States Telephone manager here.

Monarch, her four cable tanks brimming with some 1,900 miles of armored cable, is playing the leading role in a multi-ship laying operation.

The vessel is to sail for a spot 10 miles off Point Arena, Calif., site of the eastern terminus of the underwater twin cable system. It will pick up the end of a shore section placed there earlier this year, splice it to the cable in her tanks and head for Hawaii. It will pay out the cable at approximately six knots an hour as she steams along on her 2,400 mile course.

Mr. Eddings pointed out that the cable would enable an operator in Honolulu to dial direct to any number in an estimated 6,500 communities on the mainland in like manner, mainland operators in hundreds of cities can dial any subscriber on the island of Oahu, where 85% of Hawaii telephones are located.

This will be the first of A.T. & T.'s ocean cable systems to be equipped for operator dialing. The Hawaiian cables will generally be in deeper water than either the existing Alaskan or Atlantic cables. At one point they will strike a depth of about three miles.

Cables are of the coaxial type, especially designed to withstand the tremendous pressures of the ocean bottom. And sturdy, flexible repeaters are built into the cable about every 40 miles to boost the strength of signals when they reach the fading point along their deep-sea course.

The Hawaiian cables will substantially augment the 14 radio circuits presently operating between these points.

Mr. Eddings said that telephone service to Hawaii was first inaugurated on December 23, 1931. During the first year 1,100 calls were made at a cost of $21 for each three minute conversation. Last year 200,000 calls were made at a cost varying from $7.50 to $9 depending on whether they originated in California or New York. Over 1,000 of the calls made to Hawaii last year originated in New Mexico, Mr. Eddings concluded.

Taxpayer Group Opposes Federal Aid To School

The minority report of House Committee on Education and Labor on HR 1 lists seven reasons why they believe this bill to provide Federal aid for school buildings is unwise and undesirable. The Taxpayers Association of New Mexico said. They present the following reasons:

(1) Based on evidence presented to the Committee in 1955 there was a claimed shortage of 407,000 classrooms. Testimony presented this year claimed a shortage of 155,000 classrooms. This figure, when reduced by 69,200 classrooms scheduled for completion during 1956-57 as reported by the Department of Health, Education and Welfare and further reduced by the 18,116 classrooms applied in Department of Health, Education and Welfare Circular 490 for States that refused to report shortages, leaves an estimated shortage of 71,684 classrooms. Thus the existing shortage estimated by the U. S. Office of Education has been cut to one-fifth of the original reported 407,000 classrooms during the past 24 months — conclusive proof that the communities and States are able to do the job of building their own classrooms.

(2) At no time during the hearings of 1955 or 1957 did any responsible official of a non-Federal State claim that his State was unable to take care of its own classroom needs.

(3) The legislation presented by the proponents does not, as claimed, assist those school districts wherein a temporary shortage exists. For example, of the $2,250 million authorized for grants-in-aid and bond par-chases out of the Federal Treasury, $500,000,000 or 22% of the total, will be set aside for distribution to 9 States which, as of July 1, 1957, have no reported shortages of classrooms whatever.

(4) The bill would require the States to match the Federal grants-in-aid and bond par-chases out of the Federal Treasury, $500,000,000 or 22% of the total, will be set aside for distribution to 9 States which, as of July 1, 1957, have no reported shortages of classrooms whatever.

Selective Service Announces New Draft Changes

Men serving satisfactorily as members of units of the Ready Reserve will be classified as not available for induction by Selective Service Local boards, Brigadier General John P. McFarland, State Director of Selective Service announced this week.

The changes in Selective Service Regulations making ready reservists eligible for classification in Class 1-D were contained in Executive Order No. 10714 signed by the President on June 13.

The latest change in the regulations was prompted by the recent efforts to build up the Ready Reserve, a program which had been lagging up to a few months ago, the State Director said.

The executive order also exempts from registration and liability for induction aliens who are in the United States temporarily as bona fide representatives of foreign press media. Another provision calls for aliens, exempt from induction because they served in the forces of nations associated in mutual defense with the United States, to furnish proof of such service direct to their local boards.

On another phase of Selective Service, the order permits deferment of persons in case of extreme hardship to dependents. Formerly such registrants were required to show both extreme hardship and privation to dependents.

Among other changes to the regulations included in the order is a provision that appeals of conscientious objectors will be referred to the Department of Justice only when the appeal board has decided not to grant the claim of conscientious objection and not to defer or exempt the registrant for any other reason. This change is designed to relieve the Department of Justice of the burden of unnecessary investigations such as was frequent when the investigations were made before the appeal was decided.

Another change in the regulations simplifies procedure for the transfer of a registrant to another local board for physical examination or induction. Two changes affect the critical skills program. One grants an employer, who has requested the selection of a registrant for the enlistment in the Ready Reserve Critical Skill program, the same appeal rights as the registrant is granted.

Another requires the local boards to inform registrants and employers of their appeal rights with notification of the board's, or appeal board's, action on all requests to enter the Ready Reserve Critical Skill program.

Red Canyon Camp Busy Installation

The local Chamber of Commerce is preparing information concerning points of interest in this locality. The following report on Red Canyon Range Camp was given to the News:

Red Canyon Range Camp is located at the northeast corner of White Sands Proving Ground and was organized in June, 1953. The first Nike Ajax Guided Missile was fired at Red Canyon range on October 28, that same year.

The organization of Red Canyon Camp consists of Red Canyon Range Battalion, Headquarters Battery and Range Operations Battery. In addition it includes Red Canyon Engineer Detachment and Red Canyon Ordnance Detachment.

The mission of Red Canyon was originally two-fold, according to Captain Walter J. Alling, Executive Officer: 1) All continental Nike Ajax Battalions Yired at Red Canyon prior to moving to on-site locations; 2) All continental Nike Ajax Battalions which defend the various Metropolitan Areas in the United States return to Red Canyon Range for their annual service practice.

Because of the increase in the second missile, Red Canyon was relieved of the lesser important mission in the spring of 1957 and now fires all Nike Ajax Annual Service Practice organizations, Captain Alling further stated.

Red Canyon Range Battalion is commanded by Lt. Col John J. McCarthy and is under the command of the 2nd Guided Missile Group of the 1st Guided Missile Brigade located at Fort Bliss, Texas.

Among its other activities, Red Canyon was host to over 2000 dignitaries representing all NATO countries, various branches of the U. S. Government and officials of many cities within the United States during 1954.

Ranchmen Cautious Against Peddlers of Miracle Stock Tonics

Beware of peddlers selling miracle dairy stock tonics, warns E. E. Anderson, extension dairyman at New Mexico A&M College. Dairy let high pressure salesmen sell you something you don't need or which costs more than it's worth.

Stock tonics usually contain a lot of things that aren't needed. The claims may range from prevention and cure of mastitis to clearing up all breeding troubles of your cows.

Let's take a look at a label of a typical stock tonic and check it against the cow's needs. One contains charcoal, sulfur, salt, bicarbonate of soda, magnesium sulfate sodium sulfate, calcium carbonate, calcium phosphate, sulfate of iron, potassium iodide, sulfate-carbonate, nax vomica, quassia, fenugreek, ginger, capicum, anise and a long list of vitamins.

According to the label, the charcoal is to absorb gas. It would take much more than is in this tonic to be of any value. There is plenty of sulfur in the ordinary feed. If it were needed it can be bought for three or four cents per pound.

Salt is sold, why pay 15 to 20 cents per pound in a tonic? The bicarbonate of soda is said to relieve stomach acidity. The cow uses and re-uses a pound or more of soda per day in her saliva. What she needs she makes herself from the salt she eats.

Magnesium and sodium sulfate are laxatives. When needed, it takes a pound or more for a cow but a quart a pint will do the trick.

MECHER SEIZES SALARY CONTROL

Santa Fe, July 18.—Consternation was high in Democratic offices here this week after Gov. Ed Mechem slapped controls on salaries above $800 a month.

The directive calls for finance board approval of all salary increases above the $800 mark. The only exception is teaching personnel in state institutions.

The directive hits hardest at the state land office, which was held by a former attorney general to be independent of the governor and the legislature, and the state highway department, which has been operating in a little autonomy of its own. Both are in Democratic control.

GOVERNOR CRITICAL OF HIGH RATES

Mechem has been privately critical of salary rates that in recent years have climbed into the $10,000 to $15,000 range. He lowered the salary for a couple of posts in the bureau of revenue.

The order takes in college executives and all the high salaried ones in the state colleges, with the exception of teachers.

PREPARE TO SUB HIGHWAY BOARD

On a second offensive front, Mechem is preparing to go to court in an effort to force recognition of his highway commission appointments.

He's already scrapping with the legislature having turned down Sen. Dido Salas $320 convention expenses after the legislator had already spent the $400, and with State Secretary Natalie Buck on quarters for his tourist bureau. And then there was that supreme court scrap last week in forcing the auditor to turn over his operation of the comptroller.

Inter-office contention has never been so high.

GUARD FROZE TURNER KEMOUE

The National Guard investigation, which at first appeared to have involved a mass of half-innocent irregularities, has turned deadly serious in late developments.

Both the attorney general, Fred Standley, and Dist. Atty. Walter Kegle of Santa Fe, are considering criminal charges against some of the officers involved. Among the charges being considered are forgery and falsification of records.

Adl. Gen. Gordon Sage, saying that he was acting on "command of the governor," discharged from the guard Col. Sanford Caudill of Tucuman, one of his major critics, and it appeared that other heads might roll before the fracas is settled.

Whether Sage will survive or go under is a common topic of speculation.

SEVEN-FOOT PICKETT IN CANDIDATES' MAIL

Democrats scheming to get the nomination for governor are becoming resigned to the handicap of running against Corporation Commissioner Seven-Foot Pickett.

For a while there was wishful thinking that the troublesome Pickett wouldn't go next spring, but that's all out now, and Pickett seems to be further advanced in the campaign than any of the others.

Farmer's Tax Refund Booklet Available

Derrigdo With Billy, Lincoln Courthouse August 2, 3, 4

Lincoln, N. M. — The quiet ranch town of Old Lincoln in southern New Mexico will relive the blazing, violent days of the notorious outlaw, William Bonney, on August 2, 3, and 4, when the citizens of Lincoln present their historical pageant "The Last Escape of Billy the Kid."

Some 150 townspeople, and men and women for the surrounding ranches, will re-enact the Kid's daring escape of April 28, 1881, when he shot his way out of jail in the Lincoln County Courthouse, killing his two guards.

Presented every year by the Lincoln County Historical Society, the pageant turns the community back into a frontier cattle town of the 1870's and 1880's and brings back the days when the soft-spoken desperado was the terror of the New Mexico territory.

The pageant will be presented at 2 p.m. during the three successive nights of the Old Lincoln celebration. The actors—all enthusiastic amateurs, many of whom are descended from the law officers and ranchers who lived during Billy the Kid's day—re-enact the violent events that took place during the Lincoln County Range War of the late 1870's, a bitter feud that set much of the territory ablaze with horse-rustling and vengeance killing.

In an arena built especially for the pageant, just a few yards from America's most authentic folk-plays, the drama is as exciting as a cowboy movie, and has considerably more gunplay in it. Warring factions fight it out on horseback, and on foot, riders charge across the stage and thousands of rounds of blank ammunition are expended as the performers re-live the range war in which Billy the Kid took such an important part.

Historically, the Kid was imprisoned in Lincoln by Sheriff Pat Garrett for the murder of Major William Brady. Chained in his cell on the second floor of the Lincoln County Courthouse, the Kid starved himself for several days to make his wrists smaller, slipped out of his manacles, shot the jailer and a guard, and rode out of Lincoln with chains still attached to his ankles.

His dramatic escape made headlines all over the county, as did his death several months later at the hands of Pat Garrett, who tracked him to nearby Fort Sumner and shot him.

The pageant will be presented each evening during the celebration in the new 2,000-seat auditorium built beside the courthouse, restored by the Lincoln County Historical Society, the town of Lincoln is a living museum—almost a preserved battlefield—with many of the range war's highlights marked with plaques, and the buildings restored to retain their frontier style.

Accommodations for visitors at the Billy the Kid Pageant are available nearby at Capitlan, Carrizozo, Ruidoso and Roswell. Lincoln lies on U. S. Highway 380, nestled in a narrow valley of the Capitan Mountains in the southern part of the state between Carrizozo and Roswell.

"The Last Escape of Billy the Kid" is only part of a three-day festival in Lincoln recreating the days of the New Mexico frontier. The citizens will dress in authentic pioneer costume, and the celebration includes barbecues, street dances, fiddlers' contests, quadrilles and parades. Indians from the nearby Mesajero Apache Reservation have been invited to Lincoln and will perform a series of ceremonial dances. The drama itself will be staged and directed by John Meigs, an artist and noted Little Theatre director from nearby San Patricio, N. M.

It is not difficult to reach New Mexico, the Land of Enchantment. The state is served by a score of Federal highways; the transcontinental facilities of the Southern Pacific and Santa Fe Railways; TWA, Continental, Frontier, and Pioneer-Alhambra; and Southwestern Greyhound and Continental Trailway buses.

THE CEMETERY AT RED ROCK

Sallie Swan died of typhoid fever in 1896 at Red Rock in the Gila Valley when she was 15 years old. One of the comforts during her illness was a sturdy cedar tree on a hill, which she could see plainly from the window of her room. The child greatly admired the tree and often wished it were in her family's ranch yard.

When Sallie died, her mother, Mrs. Robert Swan, said: "She loved that tree so well we will bury her there."

According to Claude Fuller, Lordsburg old-timer, the child was the first person buried in Red Rock Cemetery, which is in Grant County and some 30 miles northwest of Lordsburg. The casket was borne in a wagon drawn by a team of horses up the steep, rough hillside. The tree, probably a century old, now still stands sturdily outside the cemetery fence and just a few feet from Sallie Swan's grave.

The inscription on one side of the tombstone says: "Sallie Swan, Born Dec. 14, 1880, Died July 4, 1896." The tombstone, once about six feet high, was set at the head of and between the graves of Sallie and her father, "R. Swan, Died July 15, 1897, Age 63 Yrs." Parts of the stone have broken off and lie along the fence at the foot of the graves.

The Swan family originally lived in Silver City, where Robert Swan ran a meat market. The family was a friend of Mr. Rose, a bachelor without relatives, who owned a ranch at Red Rock. He willed the ranch to Elizabeth Swan, Sallie's sister, and another girl in Silver City. The Swan family came to the Red Rock ranch to live.

Rev. and Mrs. Clyde Shults of Des Moines visited a couple of days with Mr. and Mrs. Lewis Farris of Carrizozo.

Mr. and Mrs. Alton Leonard of Tulare are the proud parents of a daughter born July 11, 1937, weighing 7 lbs. 2 oz. Mrs. Leonard is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Clyde Shults of Des Moines. Mrs. Shults is spending a couple of weeks in the Leonard home. Mr. Shults has returned to Des Moines.

Several new families have moved into Carrizozo within the past few days. They are with the Modern Construction Company, which is doing work at the U. S. Government installation at Adam Peak.

The Carrizozo Chamber of Commerce met with the City Council July 12, at 7:30 p.m. to formulate plans for the paving of some of the streets in town, using money derived from the motor fuel tax.

The Climax Corporation is now using two shifts of core drillers on their mining claims in Nogal Canyon.

Robert Swan was a native of England. He would tell his children jokingly, "I'm an American by choice. You're Americans because you were born here."

Once, while a meeting at Red Rock was discussing boarding of the school teacher and no one seemed to want to take in the man, Swan said:

"Send him to my house. I'll board him if I have to board him with a plank."

Besides Elizabeth Swan, who became the wife of Dr. E. C. Demoss, a Lordsburg physician for many years, Sallie had a sister, Jennie, who is the wife of Joe Woods of Lordsburg. A brother, Robert, after whom the Lordsburg American Legion Post is named, was killed in the Battle of the Marne in World War I. He is buried in Lordsburg's Mountain View Cemetery.

Among the approximately 50 other persons buried in Red Rock Cemetery are J. M. Harper and his wife, Lydia, early settlers at Red Rock; their sons, Sherman and Frank; and the Harpers' son-in-law, James O'Neal, who was shot to death in the Virden Valley.

O'Neal came to Red Rock as a teacher and later turned to farming. His death, apparently due to a misunderstanding by both parties involved, came about in this manner, Fuller said:

Believing an employe had taken some of his personal belongings, O'Neal had himself deputized and went in pursuit of the man. As O'Neal approached the house where he thought the suspect was staying, he saw the man step out of the door and start to mount a saddled horse.

O'Neal shouted to the man, a Mr. Siles, that he was under arrest. When Siles did not step forward with his hands up, O'Neal opened fire with a .44 Winchester rifle. As far as Siles knew, O'Neal was not deputized. He drew his six-shooter, fired across the cattle of his saddle, and the bullet hit O'Neal near an eye, killing him instantly.

The accused man left the country for two years, returned, was tried and acquitted. Siles claimed he had left O'Neal's employment because he had not received all of his pay. There was never any proof that Siles had taken some of O'Neal's personal belongings.

O'Neal was buried on a hillside near Red Rock. After Red Rock Cemetery was established, the body was removed there.

Invitation To Red Canyon

News Notes From Along the Bonito

By LOUISE BUNNELS

Rain fell amounted to about one inch last week.

The vacation Bible school at Nogal Church was a lot of fun for all the community youngsters. Bill Elyle took Bobby Pflingsten, Glenneth, Johnnie, Jeanette, Billie, Judy, Bobbie and Edith Fay LaMay, David, who is staying with Corders, and Benny Rannels each day from our community.

Rudy Hutchison is real proud of a 1950 brown Ford, Wilson Purcella and Bud Morris have a 1941 Chevrolet, and now these young folks are doing some skating in Ruidoso.

I'm proud of a 1937 Chevrolet Arvel says in our wedding anniversary present. I can think of several "old timers" anniversaries that will be coming up soon or have just passed. Seventeen or eighteen years ago, Joe and Bonnie Coe, Flech and Emma Jean Hall, Gerald and Wynema Tully, Roy and Mary Helen LaMay, Johnnie and Demmitt Bond, Johnson and Margaret Stearns, Harold and Almada Coe, and Orens and Bud Crenshaw promised the preacher they'd love, honor and obey. Guess most of us have done it up right one way or another. Our oldest son, Robert, 13 years old, asked when we were talking about our anniversary why he couldn't have been 18 now.

Si Simon from Makins Lodge, Ruidoso, and a guest friend, Grady Alcorn from Fort Worth, Texas, went up to Alice Wrights in Turkey Canyon to have a chicken dinner and visit Tom Bragg. Gladys has had a friend, Mrs. Zella Wall, also from Fort Worth, visiting with her in Ruidoso.

Mr. and Mrs. Chas. Jones of Oil Center and Mrs. Jones's sister, Mrs. A. A. Young of Carrizozo, came from Carrizozo via Nogal, picked up Al Witham up and all spent the day fishing in Bonito Dam this week.

Al Witham is leaving soon to go to Moran, Wyoming, to visit John and Dusty Thomson and do a little fishing in and around Jackson Lake in Wyoming.

Mrs. R. D. Callen, Linda, Dwight and Mrs. Callen's sister, Jean Yates, spent a few days in Callen's trailer house on the Bonito lately.

They're back for the summer! Paul and Lois Mayer got home on Bonito Sunday, June 30. They had been visiting Paul's mother, Ina Mayer, and sister, Bertha Hunter, in Modesto, California. Mrs. Mayer will be 90 years old next January and have spent most of those years in White Oaks and Carrizozo. She wishes to be remembered to her many and sons of Ft. Worth were over on Sunday from Ruidoso where they were staying at the Apache Village. Mr. Simon belongs to the Archeological Society there, and they meet once a month to bring in their findings.

The D. A. Kincaids of Albuquerque were here the past week end and had a dinner party at their home Saturday night. It was in the form of a garden party, with a lovely out door setting and delicious food. The guests were the Raymond L. Kincaids of Kansas City, Kans., who were visiting them in Albuquerque, the John Von Rosenbergs, and Jeff of Albuquerque, the Wayne Hamiltons of Carrizozo and the P. B. Lindamoods.

To be eligible for selection under this program an individual must be highly motivated for flying and for Naval Service, must meet the high qualification standards, and successfully complete one of the finest courses of flight training in the world today. Because of the large expense (approx. $100,000) involved in training an individual to become a Naval Aviator, only top quality, highly motivated young men will be accepted for this program.

His Touch: The touch of Jesus makes all the difference in the world. At birth He touched time and gave us the calendar. On earth His touch meant healing and life. At His death and resurrection He touched history, science, art and music as well as men's hearts. But to be what you ought to be He must touch you.

His gracious touch awaits your presence in His House this week end. Don't disappoint Him or yourself. Attend the Nogal Camp meeting. A midweek reminder from the pastor: "Courage is fear that has said its prayers!"

A MESSAGE ADDRESSED TO TRAINERS OF RACE HORSES AND OTHERS

For some time we have known that the antibiotic, Terramycin, has great curative power in the group of illnesses affecting cattle, sheep and goats commonly grouped under the name of shipping fever (which may correspond to influenza, pneumonia, la grippe, etc., in humans) and we have therefore manufactured a high level terramycin livestock feed for which we make rather broad claims for curative powers, and we have permission of the Food and Drug administration to make those claims.

We feel it is now time to make a further announcement relative to this feed: We believe that we can unhesitatingly recommend it to you to cure distemper and pneumonia in horses. We suggest that you feed one pound to one pound and a half per day per head for six or seven days, after which elapsed time your animal should again be well. The name of the feed we make is RANGEDOCTOR, packed in fifty pound bags, tags bear all directions for ruminants.

Lastly, to horse trainers: we have observed that horses, like people, have good and bad days. For some reason, anytime you get 100 people together you will find that for one reason or another ten or fifteen are under the weather and below par. Horses are like this also. We suggest to you trainers that you feed five ounces every day of our RANGEDOCTOR to each horse, mare, filly or colt that is in your care if you would like that animal to be in top shape each and every day of the year. Old, sound horses have been known to start winning after about thirty days of extra good health brought about by a low level continuous antibiotic.

This message from the METOWELL BIRD AND GRAM CO. 211 of Roswell, N. M., since 1942.

P. S. We distribute the best Fly Killer, "DEPTEREX" 1 lb. to 5 lb. Containers.

Health Check-up Important For Pre-School Child

The summer months is the time for pre-school children to get their checkups on health and personal habits. Dr. Carl F. Tarlowski, acting district health officer said today.

Dr. Tarlowski said that according to State Education Department statistics more than 3,900 boys and girls in the four counties included in District 4 are expected to enter school for the first time next fall. (The anticipated first grade enrollment for the four counties are Dona Ana 2,340; Lincoln 323; Otero 932; and Sierra 210.)

The district health officer noted that between now and September several last minute checks should be made by the family physician to ensure that the children are starting school on the proper educational foot. He explained that examinations performed now may reveal defects which could be corrected before school begins next September.

"First of all," Dr. Tarlowski said, "each child should receive thorough medical and dental examinations. Vision, hearing and dental health in particular must be as near perfect as possible if the new pupil is to succeed in the classroom."

Dr. Tarlowski also noted that before school starts next fall each child's immunizations against contagious diseases should be completed or brought up to date with booster shots. The state law requires immunizations against smallpox and diphtheria (unless the parent has a certificate showing exemption). In addition, Dr. Tarlowski stated that health officials and physicians strongly urge that all children also be immunized against poliomyelitis, whooping cough and tetanus.

"A child can't do his best work in school if he has a physical impairment," Dr. Tarlowski observed. "The best time to find out if the child meets all health requirements is before he enters school."

Dr. Tarlowski explained that about one-third of the children entering the first grade have been estimated to have physical defects which could be corrected. If these defects are neglected, they may impair or hinder the child's progress in school. Many of these defects are not known to exist and can only be detected by means of a physical examination by a competent physician.

The health officer also noted that by the time a child is ready to start school he should have formed the basic habits associated with personal hygiene. He should hold a handkerchief over his mouth when coughing or sneezing; he should wash his hands with warm water and soap before eating and also after going to the toilet; he should brush his teeth regularly; and he should sleep at least eight hours every night.

Dr. Tarlowski also reminded parents that accidents are the leading cause of death and injury in the 1 to 15 age group.

"Your child needs to receive safety instructions to protect him while he is going to or coming from school," Dr. Tarlowski said. "He can learn the safest route to school if you will accompany him on home 'practice runs.'"

GETTING TO KNOW NEW MEXICO

Time has stood still, often for as much as fifty years, in some of New Mexico's abandoned villages and ghost towns and when you gaze inside the structures some of which are almost unrecognizable you almost feel as if the original owners might walk in momentarily. My suggestion is to see it first in the Old National Forest, Fort Huachuca, where the New Mexico State Tourist Bureau in Santa Fe, has to know, and enter, the wonderful New Mexico.

THE SCHOOLHOUSE AT ORGAN

Shortly after coming to Organ in 1903, the late L. B. Bentley became clerk of the schoolboard. At that time, the schoolhouse was a shack in the center of the mining camp. "A disgrace," said Bentley, a strong believer in education, "we must get rid of that shack and build a decent school."

Pioneer ingenuity, willing hands, and wholesalers' generosity built a school of which Organ, 12 miles east of Las Cruces, was proud.

Bentley got up a subscription paper and sent it to the wholesalers with whom he and the mines did business. The whole sale houses contributed $1,700 to erect a new school. As soon as Bentley had the money, he tore down the old schoolhouse "so that if anything happened to me, they couldn't use that shack for a school again."

Then Bentley and other men in Organ began building the school in their spare time. Into the new stone building, which stands today though long unused as a school, went the timbers of the old schoolhouse. Despite careful figuring and community labor, they lacked $200 of the material and equipment costs when the school was completed.

TAXPAYERS

It was admitted in the full committee that the only reason the bill was drafted to provide classrooms not needed or wanted was to get the necessary votes to pass the legislation.

Of the $2,250 million authorized for grants-in-aid and bond purchases out of the Federal Treasury, only $313,575,000, or 14%, is provided for 7 States where 57% of the reported "shortages" are supposed to be, on the basis of the Government's figures. They will still have serious need for classrooms long after this legislation is supposed to terminate.

(4) Of all the divisions of government, the Federal Government is the most impoverished (to the extent of $276 billion in debt), and least able to bear the financial burden under the provisions of this bill. The villages, towns, cities, counties and States the sources of all Federal revenue, are the more able to build schoolhouses.

(5) Nowhere in the Constitution of the United States is there a requirement upon the Federal Government to enter into the field of general education. All of the States specifically assume by their State constitutions the responsibility for education.

(6) The grave danger, which has been ignored by the proponents of H. R. 1, of creating a centralized education system in the United States is self-evident in this legislation.

(7) We have considered and thoroughly rejected the idea that this proposed legislation is to be temporary and would be used to stimulate action by the States to do what they ought to do in meeting schoolroom needs.

It would seem from this that proponents of Federal aid for schools are prepared to waste hundreds of millions of dollars in order to buy a centralized education system in the United States, concludes the Associated States.

completed. Bentley took the problem to the county school superintendent, who told him that if Organ would sign over the school to the county system, the county would pay the remaining $200. The deal was made.

"We didn't care about keeping control of the school," Barney said. "What we wanted was a good school, and we had one."

The two following items about early Las Cruces were told by B. G. Dyne, long-time druggist in the city.

THAT FINE SHERRIE WINE
An early-day bar in the first block of South Main Street, Las Cruces, did quite a business in selling sherry, which was bought in wood by the barrel.

Occasionally, the curiosity of customers was aroused when they saw small particles floating in the glasses of sherry. Whether or not the bartender knew differently, he told them that the particles were from the mother in the wine. The explanation satisfied the customers and they went on drinking the bar's fine sherry.

One day the bartender told a boy employed in the place to draw a jug of sherry from a barrel in a room back of the bar.

The wine would not flow out of the bung, and the bartender knocked in the head of the barrel. The barrel was a third full of cockroaches, which had plugged the bung. The pests also had a taste for sherry in which they had drowned. The particles in the glasses of sherry served to customers were the legs and wings of cockroaches.

THE SURPRISED HUSBAND
"Let's go over and talk to the young ladies," said the gambler to the cowboy.

It was after midnight when they walked into a rooming house which occupied part of a building where Penny's, Las Cruces store now stands.

The lamp light was low in the living room, and the two men indistinctly saw a couple cuddled in a big chair in a corner. The woman looked up, and the gambler recognized his wife. The husband spent his nights gambling and running about town and neglected his wife, but here, to his dismay, was his wife stepping out and taking advantage of him.

The gambler drew his revolver and fired at the couple in the chair. Perhaps it was the shock of finding his wife there, but the gambler's aim was poor, and his wife and her boy friend escaped.

(The above English proverbial sayings in New Mexico are from a list compiled by the New Mexico Committee for Collecting Proverbial Sayings.)

This story concerns a successful man who, when he was a boy, asked a farmer the price of a big fine melon.

"That's 40 cents," said the farmer.

"I have only four cents," the boy told him.

"Well," smiled the farmer and winked at his hired hand as he pointed to a very small and very green melon, "how about that one?"

"Fine. I'll take it," the boy said, "but don't cut it off the vine yet. I'll call for it in a week or so."

STOCK TONIC

of a spoonful every day will do no good.

Cows ordinarily get enough calcium in their feed. The calcium phosphate in the tonic is not enough to contribute much to the cow's needs.

Trace mineral salt can furnish the trace minerals a cow needs at a much lower cost than they're supplied in the tonic.

The hux vomics, quassia, fenugreek, ginger, capicum and anise all have value when used for a special purpose but not as used here in "shotgun treatments" like tonic. They're drugs used by your veterinarian, only when needed. The anise also makes the mixture smell good to the buyer.

The long list of vitamins is made up mostly of the B vitamins, which the cow makes in great plenty in her own stomach.

The amounts of the vitamins are not stated on the label, and there's no assurance of getting enough. If there's any reason to think any of these are needed, you can get known amounts at low cost in standard vitamin preparations.

As you can see, a shotgun mixture such as this tonic gives a little of a lot of things that aren't needed—and not enough to do much good for the things that may be needed.

TWENTY ATTEND A&M WOOL SCHOOL

About 20 wool growers attended the first in a series of two wool schools at New Mexico A&M College last week. The second and final school, is slated for August 12, 13 and 14.

The school last week dealt primarily with the fundamentals of the sheep and wool industry. The school in August will feature advanced courses in grading, marketing, breeding and management.

A&M Staff members who are assisting with the school include Prof. P. E. Neale of the College's Agricultural Experiment Station, Ivan Watson, extension animal husbandman, and Dick Souder, extension wool marketing specialist.

Wool growers and others who are interested in attending the school in August should make reservations through Neale or Watson.

FAIR TIME IS COMING

All clubs, organizations, stores and individuals interested in having a booth at the Lincoln County Fair on September 13 and 14, please make a reservation with Mrs. Charles Jones of Capitlan. The fee for a booth is $10. Please make all reservations before August 1. There is a limited amount of space, so please get your reservation in early in order to be sure of having a booth. At the workday held at the fairgrounds on July 12, Bill Edgar and his tractor were kept busy digging post holes. The holes for the post fence were dug as well as for the livestock barn. Plans are to hold the next workday the morning of July 19 to pour concrete for the livestock barn.

On the next workday, July 26, the building itself will be started.

Others helping at the workday were Mr. and Mrs. Charles Jones and son Walter, Grady Eldridge, Milton Jones, Fletcher Hall, Carrol Jones, Henry Feebles, "Heavy" Stewart, Bob Floyd, Vance Benton.

Some factors against twins is the higher death loss, slower gaining out and slightly lower wool production.

You cannot select too accurately for twins, as this seems to be affected more by feed conditions than anything. If you have lush pastures or creep feed, twins are definitely an advantage; otherwise, the advantage is small, if any.

By LOIS JASPAR

July is the beginning of the peach season. Although most of the peach crop in Lincoln County was killed this year, nationwide the crop is estimated to be above that of last year.

Fully ripe peaches have the best flavor and texture, are best for serving fresh, for canning and for freezing. No matter how beautiful the blush, never be guilty of pinching a peach. Handle them carefully. Select peaches that look fresh, have a creamy or yellow background color, and are free from wasteful blemishes. Avoid peaches that are too green. They will not ripen, will shrivel and wither and have an undesirable flavor and texture.

New Mexico's low humidity is not ideal for holding peaches more than a day or so. Store peaches in the refrigerator until ready to use. Plan to use peaches within a few days for best flavor and texture.

For freezing, allow 1-1/2 lbs. of peaches to each pint container to be filled. After washing the fruit, halve and pit it, and remove the skins by hand. The time saving method of dipping peaches into hot, and then cold water to loosen the skins may be used, but it may soften the outer flesh so that the slices have ragged edges after thawing.

So that the cut fruit won't darken in the air, slice peaches directly into the cold syrup which was prepared and cooled ahead of time. To make the syrup, dissolve 3 cups sugar in 4 cups water. This makes about 5 1/2 cups syrup, and 2/3 cup of syrup is needed for each pint of peaches. To help preserve the peach color and flavor while in the freezer, add powdered ascorbic acid to the cold syrup, using 1/2 teaspoon (1,000 milligrams) to each 4 cups of syrup. Ascorbic acid is sold at drug stores and some freezer-locker plants. Press the fruit down in the container, cover with syrup, and put crumpled parchment or locker paper on top to hold fruit under the syrup. Leave between 1/2 and 1 inch free at the top to allow for expansion during freezing.

Receive 1956 Payments

Herman McKibben, office manager of the Lincoln County ASC Committee, announced all payments are made for the 1956 wool program.

Payments were made to 168 producers of wool, and 108 producers of lambs. Several producers file their applications in Chavez County, although the wool was produced in Lincoln County. These are not included in the above number of producers.

Payments were made at 40% of the total net proceeds, which was $750,232.01 for this county on 1,069,699 pounds of wool. Producers received $308,622.80, of this amount $17,532.62 was taken out for the promotion fund, Mr. McKibben said.

This left a total of $290,100.18 paid directly to the producers.

Lambs payment was $23,153.32 on 3,261,031 pounds. Taken out of this amount for the promotion fund was $1,630.52. The net total paid to producers on wool and lambs was $207,682.98. Promotion funds total was $15,143.14. Mr. McKibben concluded.
