

Ramblin' Around Lincoln County

(Recollections of Lincoln County as it was years ago are recalled in a letter to the News, written by Oscar C. Watson...)

The Santa Fe Railroad at San Antonio, New Mexico, was the nearest shipping point and bullion had to be sent via stage, mule drawn. It was reported that as a stage was crossing the Mal Falls it was blocked and the value of the two bricks was $35,000. I have always wondered what the robbers did with the gold. I was absent the night Billy the Kid shot up the town. No damage was done. Dad saw him.

Pat Garrett was a personal friend of my father and was well known to me.

My pal, Guy H. Herbert, some older, worked in a dry goods store. He suggested we needed more education, to which I agreed. We pooled our savings, not much, and either his father or brother took us to "Little Eagle," I think on the Rio Grande.

We three boys went hunting turkeys on three saddle horses and with two dogs. The boys said: "There is no use packing a lot of food 'cause we will get meat." About the second day out we were hungry and shot a rabbit. How good it was!

One evening we ran into some turkeys and one of the boys shot a young one. I shall never forget our camp on the banks of a little bubbling stream, with grass knee high. We staked the horses and tied up the dogs, cooked that turkey and almost devoured it raw. The boys were discouraged after telling me about the fine hunting in the Mesalero reservation - "full of turkeys."

About dark we heard a terrific noise, like a windstorm in those high White Mountains. The boys said the turkeys had come in to roost. Early next morning we turned the dogs loose, me with a shotgun and the others with rifle and shotgun, walked up under those tall pine trees. The dogs started barking. We picked up 50 turkeys we had killed, and had a fine breakfast. We had to blindfold the horses to pack on the turkeys, then took a short cut to the ranch.

A lovely sister and Mother Herbert baked the kill and we had a feast. The next morning Father Herbert and sons hitched up a team with two saddle horses and drove us to A & M College at Mesilla Park. We boys batched at a ranch near Mesilla and rode to college, about four miles away. The Herberts entered college, while I took a preparatory course.

During vacation I returned to White Oaks and worked in the Old Abe mine. I went back to A & M in the fall of 1894 and entered the first shorthand class with five girls. F. E. Lester, now deceased, was registrar of the college and also an instructor. I think Professor Hiram Hladky was president, but am not sure. He may have been later or earlier.

Clarence Rhodes, brother of Gene Rhodes, the noted New Mexico cowboy and writer, was in the college. Guy Herbert was a very successful merchant at Tularosa for years. He married Agnes Williams, the first girl to graduate from the college. They are retired and now live at Aztec, N. M.

During the month of October my youngest sister, Laura Merritt (the only Watson born in White Oaks left in New Mexico) now living at Carlsbad, and her husband, Lester, took my oldest sister Ella and her daughter Theima on a visit to White Oaks and other places. Sister Ella writes:

"It was the real thrill of my trip to go to White Oaks, even though it was a pitiful old ghost town. The old schoolhouse where I won the scholarship medal in 1896, also took the examination for a teacher's certificate in 1897 when I was 17 years old, was still in good shape and brought back many memories. They use the building for meetings and dances now.

"Fifteen families live in White Oaks now. The old house where we lived looked natural even though windows and doors were gone. Two palatial houses still stood. One I am sure was where Governor McDonald used to live. I could see the Old Abe mine where you used to work. I was in White Oaks when the fire in the Old Abe killed eight men and I went with others to help feed the men who were working to get them out of the mine. Do not think you were there at the time. Before that happened, I went down in the mine on a big bucket with some one.

"I was the first girl, also, who went in an engine with an engine driver that narrow railroad to Cloudcroft. That railroad is all taken up now and Cloudcroft is being rebuilt. The autumn leaves on the way there were so perfectly beautiful. We had a wonderful trip, thanks to Lena and Lester."

CARRIZOZO, NEW MEXICO, FRIDAY, DECEMBER 13, 1957

(Outlook - Volume 56, No. 33)

Bids Asked for New Filtration Plant to Use Bonito Water

At a special meeting Wednesday the Carrizozo town board of trustees voted to ask for bids for the construction of a filtration plant.

The board went over specifications of the proposed plant with Jim Wilson, engineer with W. F. Turney & Associates of Santa Fe.

The plant is similar to the one recently put in operation at Capitan, but is larger, with a capacity of 150 gals. a minute. Estimated cost is $35,000.

Water will be taken from the Bonito line south of town, filtered and treated, and returned to the town's 10-inch main where it will either flow directly to consumers or be pumped into the storage tank.

Bids for construction of the plant will be opened January 7 next year, at a regular meeting of the town board. Mr. Wilson said delivery of the parts for the plant might take up to four months and installation an additional two weeks.

In other council business the trustees discussed home building plans with Mark Walters of Artesia. They agreed to lease the town grader and operator to him for the purpose of clearing the homestead land.

The board also heard a proposal of Clyde Linticum of Albuquerque to build a municipal swimming pool. He represents the Swimquip Company of California which is completing swimming pools in Alamogordo. He estimated a large-sized pool, without accessories, could be built by his firm for $14,000. He suggested the City Park as a central location for the pool.

Business Licenses Due Jan. 1

Carrizozo town clerk Johnson Stearns was mailing out business application licenses this week. They are payable January 1 and become delinquent March 31, with a 10% penalty per month thereafter.

Town Trustees Look at New Garbage Trucks

The Carrizozo town board of trustees recently inspected garbage trucks of two different types—one in Carlsbad and the other in El Paso.

Last week trustees Leonard Vega, E. L. Sherrill and A. T. Roberts were flown to Carlsbad in an R. L. Harrison Company Beechcraft plane to look at a hydraulic pack type truck being used by the Carlsbad sanitation department.

This truck has a low bed pick-up and hydraulically packs and dumps the garbage.

Last Sunday members of the town council went to El Paso to inspect a truck in use there. They unanimously agreed that the Carlsbad operation was the most efficient and labor-saving.

The council has been made an offer by the Harrison company to sell a new 1958 truck on a lease-purchase plan.

Catherine Chavez, age 4, is reported to be making satisfactory recovery at the Carrizozo hospital from first and second degree burns received last week when playing with matches.

editor of a weekly newspaper in Las Cruces, and who assisted in getting an appropriation to build the A. & M. College, was general agent of the first American Life Insurance Company, The Mutual Life Insurance Co. of New York, whose first policy was written in February, 1843, wrote to Professor Lester stating it had always been interested in the welfare of the college and wanted a boy stenographer out of the first stenographic class.

Since I was the only boy in the class, I reported to the Mutual Life office in Albuquerque on May 10, 1865. From stenographer I was advanced to cashier at Phoenix, then superintendent of agents and district manager. I moved to Santa Fe on January 1, 1900, and operated a general insurance office with Carl A. Bishop (the also studied stenography at A. & M. College) as a partner until July 1, 1906. At that time I was appointed manager of Mutual Life at Pueblo, Colo., then at Denver, being retired in 1923 following 38 years of service.

The baby lost his life in a tragic accident. He had been put to bed for his nap and in some way got a small plastic bag over his mouth, resulting in suffocation. The bag seemed to be a harmless plaything.

Mrs. Lara and two of the couple's older children were visiting at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Barton Pavey in Hondo.

Along the Way..

By PAUL BAKER

We've been pretty fed up for some time with the lip service both major political parties have been paying to the small businessman. There is even a government bureau to grind out propaganda to send the tens of thousands of small businessmen in America.

Now and then we get a circular from this bureau inviting us to bid on items such as 500 surplus typewriters or 10,000 Army blankets. This is about as useful to the small businessman as flight tickets on a rocket to the moon.

Now comes the new income tax ruling on expense accounts which requires itemization of all expense accounts, requiring additional bookkeeping, records and filling out forms. The little fellow already acts as tax collector for the government, without pay, for employees' social security, unemployment and withholding taxes. He doesn't have time for this during his busy day, so he comes back to the office after supper to work on the government books.

George E. Sokolsky states it well in a recent column in the El Paso Times:

"Business cannot be done without business expense. The large corporation can afford to put on another 20 bookkeepers to keep a record of every dollar that goes out; the small businessman and self-employed citizen have too little margin left to keep records of every cup of coffee or cigar each one buys for a customer, the address, sex and age of the customer... etc."

If this trend keeps up the small businessman may say collectively to the government: "We're too tired to do our own bookkeeping and the government's too. Kindly make other arrangements."

While we're in a dark mood about the need for more bookkeeping, another thing comes to mind, entirely unrelated. As a small employer I have felt that lawmakers have been over zealous in protecting the welfare of teenagers and have passed too many restrictive child labor laws. Their intention has been to safeguard the welfare of teenagers, apparently operating under the theory that the sweat shop was a common American practice.

A juvenile judge on the Pacific Coast said the other day that many child labor laws have, in fact, worked an injustice on youth in that they have made their employment in gainful and useful work practically impossible.

The average American employer is not a sweat shop operator. If he gives a job to a youngster it is usually to give this youth a chance to earn a little and learn a little. But the restrictive laws place so many road blocks in the way that the employers shy away from giving youth a chance to work.

For many years the government subsidized employers to teach gainful trades to G.I.s. Why then should laws penalize employers who are willing to take the time to teach youngsters useful occupations, at the same time keeping them off the streets? Leisure time, unwisely spent can do a youngster a great deal of harm.

Why not encourage the small employer to hire teenagers, rather than say, in effect: "Be aware of hiring the youngster; the law may exact a fearful penalty if you make a misstep."

When Johnson Stearns, secretary of the Carrizozo Chamber of Commerce, read about an invalid boy back East who was lonesome and wanted to hear from people and about places, he sent the lad some Chamber of Commerce literature and other information on New Mexico.

Mr. Stearns has received a thank you letter from Mrs. Shaw Reynolds, mother of the boy Francis. He has cerebral palsy and is completely helpless. They live on Highland rd., Lohrville, Mass. Mrs. Reynolds wrote:

"Many thanks for the booklet on New Mexico. Francis has enjoyed them very much. It was very thoughtful of you to send them."

WALKER OFFERS TO OPEN BOOKS

Santa Fe, Dec. 11 — Johnny Walker, candidate for nomination for U. S. Senator and a former state land commissioner, has offered to open his tax records and his personal ledgers to account for his acquirement of extensive holdings since leaving the state job.

Walker went out of the land office the first of this year after holding the $11,000 job for four years. When he campaigned for the place he said that he was making a "poor boy" race without funds for expenses of the race.

Walker said that his financial records were subject to inspection and added that he believed all candidates for public office should open their financial affairs to public scrutiny.

He said he would particularly like to see a financial statement from Sen. Dennis Chavez, his opponent for the Demo nomination for the Senate.

$37,000 LOAN FROM FIELD MAN

Walker who has acquired several business firms and other personal holdings in recent months said that he had borrowed $37,000 from Guyton (Shepherd) Hayes, a field man for the land office who was employed by Walker, and that he still owes the sum to Hayes.

He said that he had profited on stock investments and had exercised his credit in Albuquerque and Santa Fe banks to raise the money for his business ventures.

He said that he had profited on stock investments and had exercised his credit in Albuquerque and Santa Fe banks to raise the money for his business ventures.

PAIR PURCHASE $175,000 MOTEL

Walker and Santos Quintana of Santa Fe who worked for Walker in the land office are presently operating the Adobe Motel of Santa Fe, a property described by them as of $175,000 value.

Walker said it had been purchased on credit and that the first payment of $15,000 is due December 15.

Walker and Quintana also have the distributorship for voting machine and parking meter lines purchased from the late Wilbur Rhea of Santa Fe.

Walker and an associate own a Santa Fe pharmacy; with other associates the former land commissioner is half owner of a plumbing and heating company in Albuquerque and an insurance agency in Silver City.

Walker said that his Santa Fe home, valued in excess of $35,000, was "mortgaged like everybody else's."

TALKED FREELY ABOUT AFFAIRS

The candidate showed no reluctance to answering questions about his financial affairs.

He said it ceased to be private business when he became a candidate for the Senate.

Walker's announcement last week that he would go against Chavez was perhaps the biggest political development of 1957.

WALKER SETS PARTY IN SPIN

Johnny Walker (now they're calling him Poor Boy, getting even farther from his real name of Elmer Stephen Walker) set the Demos in a spin in his announcement for the Senate.

First development was the emergence of State Sen. Gene Luak of Carlsbad for governor with the backing of Chavez.

There were immediate prospects that the Chavez people would bring out a candidate against Land Commissioner Murray Morgan to keep him occupied with his own affairs rather than working for Walker.

And there is a good possibility that one or more candidates may be thrown into the congressional race with the thought of neutralizing Congressman Joe Montoya and keeping him from meddling in the Senate fight in behalf of Sen. Chavez.

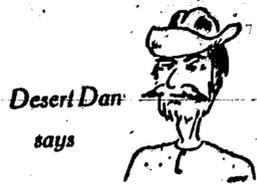

The politico think Joe wants to save the Chavez job for himself at a later date.

WILEY GETTING NEW ATTENTION

There is a movement developing among Democrats in Santa Fe and Albuquerque aimed at bringing out Tom Wiley as a coalition candidate for governor to run along for the nomination against the fearful Seven-Foot-Pickett who refuses to have anything to do with the party organization group.

The Wiley backers, including former Gov. John Miles and others of the older group would try to clear the field of other candidates including John Burroughs of Portales, Joe Bursay of Santa Fe, Gene Luak, and possibly others who may be scheming to get in the run.

Wiley is the director of the New Mexico Education Assn., a (Continued on Back Page)

Harley Farnell, Barry Swanson, Bennie Sullivan and Ronnie Dodson of Ruidoso High School went to Albuquerque to join the other high school band members from all over the state. There were 150 there to entertain at half time at the BYU-Lobo football game at Zimmerman Field. The boys went up in Charles Butler's car, with Ray Dean Carpenter along as their sponsor. They spent Friday before the game working with the other band members perfecting many formations.

The most effective of these was the Salk theme and the accompanying song "I've Got You Under My Skin."

Carrizozo Grade School Activities

By SELMA TEAGUE

Thanks to Mr. Skelton for giving the Elementary and Junior High school pupils a free Christmas picture show December 5. We are indeed grateful for this courtesy.

The teachers of the grade school are very busy getting their all-school Christmas program ready for presentation Wednesday evening, Dec. 18, at 7:30 p.m.

Mrs. Eaker is director of our Christmas program, assisted by all the elementary teachers.

Mrs. Harris and Mrs. Ferguson are real busy designing costumes for the children. The mothers are busy trying to get all of these costumes made in time.

We extend a hearty welcome to everyone to come and enjoy this program with us.

On Thursday, Dec. 12, we will all enjoy a movie entitled "A Christmas Carol" which is to be shown at 12:50 p. m. for the elementary pupils and their parents in the Junior High School building auditorium.

A second showing of the same movie will be at 2:15 p.m. for the Junior and High School students and parents.

This is a beautiful production, very appropriate for the Christmas season.

On December 16 the women teachers of the Carrizozo schools meet for their annual Christmas dinner. We all go to Mrs. Teague's house at 6 p.m. for our appetizer, then to Mrs. Wilson's home for the main dinner of turkey with all the trimmings. We go to Mrs. Eaker's house for our dessert, then to Miss Nellie's for our Christmas free and exchange of gifts.

Our annual Christmas parties will be given by respective home room mothers in each of our rooms December 20, from 12:45 until 2 p.m.

School will be dismissed for the school Christmas holidays Friday, Dec. 20 at 2 p.m., until January 2, 1958.

We return to school after Christmas vacation January 2. School will be resumed as usual at 8:50 a.m. It is necessary for us to have school these two days in order to make up for the time lost during the hunting season.

We hope every one has the real spirit of Christmas, which is, believing, sharing, beauty joy and love. So at this Christmas time we greet you with profound esteem and with the prayer that for you now and forever the day breaks, and the shadows flee away.

A merry, merry Christmas and a happy New Year to everyone!

Tigers Edge Corona In Thrilling Game

By JERRY LOBB

The Capitan Tigers came back fired up for victory last weekend after being defeated by Fort Sumner in their first game of the season. The Tigers took on Tularosa Friday night, downing them by a score of 54-49.

Saturday night the spectators attending the Capitan-Corona game witnessed one of the most exciting, fastest moving contests they will ever see, as the Capitan boys edged the Corona Cardinals 57-55.

In their Friday night game with the Tularosa Wildcats, the Tigers jumped to an early 6 point lead at the end of the first quarter. McKnight, Vance and Herrera hit the bucket with 7, 5, and 4 points respectively. Kerr and Purcella came through on the free throw line to add four more points. For Tularosa, Montoya and Bookout took over on the scoring end and at the end of the first quarter, score: Capitan 20, Tularosa 14.

The 2nd and 3rd periods saw the Tigers always holding a 3 or 4 point lead over the Wildcats. In the final stanza, Montoya and Bookout came to life for Tularosa with Montoya getting the majority of the rebounds and Bookout shooting for a total of 10 points. Both teams fought tooth and nail through the entire fourth quarter and each team scored 13 points. The buzzer sounded with the score: Capitan 54, Tularosa 49.

TIGERS CLIP CORONA

The Tigers again came back Saturday night and edged the Corona Cardinals 57-55 on the Capitan court.

This second game of the Tigers' full schedule weekend was a hard fought struggle all the way through, with neither team getting over a few points ahead at anytime.

Vance, Kerr, McKnight and Herrera proved to be the top men on the score board for the Tigers, while Hayes, Proctor, Mulkey and Erramoupe racked up a total of 53 points for the Cards.

At the end of the first half the scoreboard read: Corona 27, Capitan 24, but hustle proved to be the determining factor throughout the second half as the Tigers continued to spark on both defense and offense.

All eyes were on Corona's right forward, Proctor, as he got hot and sank 5 field goals in the closing minutes of the game, however, Proctor's efforts were not enough to pull Corona out of the hole and the buzzer sounded with the final score: Capitan 57, Corona 55.

The annual Round Robin

Tournament will be held at Capitan this year, with the first game starting Wednesday, Dec. 11 when Carrizozo will take on Ruidoso and Capitan will play Hondo. The tournament will continue Friday and Saturday. All you basketball fans are urged to attend.

Grizzlies Divide Weekend Games

By BILLY LOPEZ

The Grizzlies lost their third game of the season 38-49 to the Hagerman Bobcats Friday, Dec. 6 at Hagerman. This was also their third conference game.

The Zozo squad just couldn't hit from the outside or inside against the zone defense of the Bobcats.

The Zozo defense tightened down the second half of the game and Zozo cut the lead at one-time-to-6 points, but by controlling the ball the Bobcats put the game on ice in the last two minutes of play.

The Grizzlies downed Ruidoso Saturday night by the score of 37-34 for the 3rd win of the season and giving the Warriors their first defeat. The Warriors record is now 2-1 for the young season.

The game was slowed down by the Warriors zone defense and both teams' inability to get their offense machine in gear. The Grizzlies led 7 to 5 at the end of the first quarter but were trailing 18-11 at halftime.

The third quarter saw the Grizzlies come back to knot the score at 24 all.

The final quarter was packed with excitement, with the score changing hands several times. Benny Herrera came to life in the third quarter along with Maxie Saucedo, with David Laabs in the fourth to start the offense moving. Ruidoso was slowed down by the rebounding of Joe Petty throughout the final quarter.

The Grizzlies next game will be Wednesday night, Dec. 11, when they meet the Ruidoso Warriors at the Round Robin tournament at 7 p.m. with Capitan and Hondo playing at 8:30.

The tournament schedule is as follows:

Wednesday night, Dec. 11, Carrizozo vs. Ruidoso at 7 p.m. and Capitan vs. Hondo at 8:30 p.m.

Thursday night, Dec. 12, Ruidoso vs. Hondo at 7 p.m. and Carrizozo vs. Capitan at 8:30 p.m.

Saturday night, Dec. 14, Carrizozo vs. Hondo at 7 p.m. and Ruidoso vs. Capitan at 8:30 p.m.

The Carrizozo "B" team kept their undefeated string alive Saturday by winning their 4th straight against the Ruidoso "B" squad.

In a game that was fairly close throughout the first three quarters saw the Zozo club build up a lead that gave them a 25 to 25 win.

High point men for the losers was Graham with 7 and Glascock with 7.

The Zozo leaders were M. Vega and H. Rickerson with 12 and 7 points respectively.

'Tween Us Teens

By MARY (Ginger) NICKELS

Just think! Only twelve more days till Christmas! I know that all of us can hardly wait! I think Christmas is the most wonderful holiday of the year. There is so much anticipation leading up to it and then there is the beautiful Christmas story. I like it best of all, how about you?

On the Ed Sullivan show Sunday night, Eileen O'Dara, did the most wonderful dance! It was a combination of acrobatics, ballet, and interpretive. It must have taken her years to learn how to dance like that! Then Noel Coward sang a song called "What's Going to Happen to the Children When There Are No Grownups?" That's food for thought isn't it? I know one thing, there sure would be a lot of child labor!

We all extend to Mr. Lara our deepest sympathy in this hour of sorrow. Everyone wishes there was something they could do and we all feel at such a loss. And because of this tragedy, he was unable to accompany Opal McBrayer and me to the all-state band tryouts in Las Cruces last Friday. (We hope to represent Carrizozo in Albuquerque in January.)

Boy, you don't know what you missed if you didn't go to the game Saturday night! We played Ruidoso, and what a game! The score was 37-34 and I'm happy to say we won! Our team work was outstanding! Then there was a game at Hagerman Friday night with a score of 49-38. We won't talk about that!

Speaking of things in the air, a mother eagle and her baby were out on a flight the other day when a jet flew by. The little eagle looked at his mother and said, "Ma, why was that guy in such a hurry?" The mother said, "He's hunting" for a water hole silly, can't you see his tail is on fire!"

Adios, amigos!—Ginger.

Hondo Takes Measure Of El Paso Tech

The Hondo Eagles made it 5 wins out of 7 after two games last week. They slaughtered Lako Arthur and took the measure of El Paso Tech.

The Eagles looked to be outclassed as the tall Tech team took to the court Friday afternoon. As the game started, it was a different story as the Eagles' full court press paid off.

The Eagles had a 17-1 lead before El Paso realized what was happening. The first quarter ended with Hondo setting the pace at 17-3.

The El Paso team rallied and outscored the Eagles by 3 in the second quarter. With Hondo leading by 9 at the half El Paso had the Eagles behind 1 point in the third quarter.

The Eagles went all out in the last quarter to turn down Tech by a score of 16-53. Gerald Macz of Hondo was high for both teams, hitting for 28 points. The Eagles hit 75% of their free throws which spelled the big difference in two clubs.

Ruidoso's Application For Sewage Assistance Tentatively Approved

RUIDOSO—A federal grant of $104,000 for Ruidoso's sewerage project has been approved. The project's total cost is estimated around $400,000.

Santa Fe (Special)—The federal grant of $104,000 which would aid in the construction of a $590,575 sewerage system for Ruidoso, conditionally approved by the Governor's Advisory Council on Water Pollution Control and the State Board of Health, is now under final review of the Dallas regional office of the Public Health Service.

Charles G. Caldwell, director of the Environmental Sanitation Services Division of the State Health Department, said the Ruidoso grant will be reviewed along with the federal allocations approved for nine other New Mexico communities. Approximately $43,000 was allocated to the ten applicants for new or improved sewage facilities.

Federal grants for improvements to sewerage facilities are made on a 50-50 federal and 50-50 local basis, with the individual communities raising their share through local bond issues and from other sources.

E. C. Axline of Wilson and Co., Albuquerque appeared before the council to explain Ruidoso's needs. He noted that the growth of Ruidoso and the heavy summer resort population create an urgent demand for municipal sewers and adequate sewage treatment.

"Most of the town's population lives on the tourist trade," said Axline, "therefore, there is both the health factor and the economic factor to consider."

"The end result," Caldwell added, "will be a more sanitary and therefore a more healthful environment, and in addition, the municipalities participating will have a more sound financial structure with planned revenues that will provide for efficient operation, maintenance and eventual replacement."

Caldwell noted that other New Mexico communities are planning future development on the assumption that this program will be continued. He said the Health Department has already received requests for more than $650,000 for federal aid during fiscal 1939, and it is expected that this will result in a total construction cost of more than 2 1/2 million dollars.

It is against the law for Ligon's famous fishwives to go barefoot. But bare feet are a tradition of centuries, so many Portuguese street vendors carry shoes in their baskets and pop them on only when a police officer comes into view.

Program for Great Plains Conservation Now Well Along

The task of organizing the Great Plains Conservation Program is now well along. R. A. Young, state conservationist, Albuquerque, says Soil Conservation Service fieldmen in the authorized Plains counties of New Mexico will soon begin to assist applicants to assemble their conservation plans for contracts with the Secretary of Agriculture.

Applicants who are able to develop the long-range conservation contracts will be assured of cost-sharing funds over a period of years needed to complete a conservation plan for correct land use and sound farming and ranching in the wind erosion areas. Producers who participate will be able to apply the conservation plan in an orderly manner, doing each part as it fits best into the plan.

"The average person has not heard much of this program since the announcement some two months ago that funds had been appropriated," Young says. "But any new program requires individual operation procedures to fit its peculiar needs and there has been a great deal of behind-the-scenes activity in getting the working machinery organized."

The Soil Conservation Service will carry on the program with the farmers and ranchers, the conservationist explains. However, the work of organizing the program and determining the local application is a job for all organized agricultural groups, which is being done by USDA agencies and leaders of local organizations, such as Soil Conservation Districts, Farm Bureaus, and others.

A series of on-the-ground meetings have been conducted in each area. These sessions have done much to develop understanding of the Great Plains Program, and, what is more important, have injected local problems and local ideas into its application.

The State Program Committee has held several meetings and has set up the practice list and cost-share rates for New Mexico. Young adds, "The practices and cost-share rates have been submitted to Washington for approval."

When Secretary Benson's office has approved the State practice and cost-share list, the County Committee will determine the adaptation needed to apply the practices and rates to the county. Anticipating clearance by the Secretary, most of the counties have given a considerable amount of thought to the job, and very little more time may be needed to handle this part. SCS technicians are working on the cost of producers to apply conservation measures.

Forms for filling application for participating in this program should be available soon. USDA agencies will receive the applications, which will be processed by the local Soil Conservation Service office.

THE HOG DOGS

Jack was one of the best hog dogs that ever caught and threw a wild, little pig for a cowboy to earmark. He was a Collie, black, with a yellow ring around a white breast. Mrs. Eva Pendleton Henderson of Lordsburg and her first husband, Tom Pendleton, had Jack when they owned the FN Ranch at Brushy near Smugglers Trail on Rough creek, about 30 miles northeast of Cloverdale in southwestern Hidalgo County.

Most of the ranchers in that area had trained hog dogs which helped them catch wild pigs for earmarking in the Pecos and Animas Mountains in the spring. In the fall the ranchers and cowboys rode out, caught the hogs, tied them down and brought the animals to the ranches to fatten and butcher. The hogs were not javelinas but domestic hogs which foraged in the mountains and became pretty wild and vicious. There are still wild hogs in the Cloverdale area and a few trained hog dogs left. The dogs were and are part Collie, for they are the best breed to train for this task, Mrs. Henderson said.

The Pendletons did a lot of wild hog hunting in 1920-23, the years in which they had Jack. Start of the wild hog roundup on the FN Ranch was an event. Cowboys rode out into the mountains, and Jack ran with them. The children followed on burros, for the wild pig roundup was a sort of family affair.

When the riders spotted a sow with pigs, the cowboys and Jack would take after her. Jack's job was to catch and hold the little pigs. When he got to one, he would throw it on the ground gently and lie on it until the cowboy could dismount to earmark the pig. As soon as the cowboy had the pig in hand, Jack was off after another one. A second cowboy kept the sow and pigs in sight.

In the fall, Mrs. Henderson said, "we caught the big hogs and all sizes, and tied them. If the country was too rough to get to them with a wagon and team, we tied the hogs on horses with pack saddles and brought them into pens at the ranch. We built good pens with tops of poles."

Jack's help was essential on the fall roundup, too. He spotted the hogs, ran them out of thick brush into open spots where the cowboys could catch and tie them with pigging strings.

Wild hogs are very fleet of foot. They are dangerous to handle. A sow can be brave and vicious in protecting her pigs.

Fenced at the ranch, the wild hogs pined for their freedom and would not eat well at first. "When we went to feed them, they would bare their long tusks, rear up and lunge at us," Mrs. Henderson said.

In their wild state, the hogs made their living by overturning the thorny mescal plants on the hillside and eating the hearts of the plants. They rooted up the potatoes at the roots of wild herbs and they also were very fond of oak acorns. Many were very fat when captured, but it was a clear, soft fat so they had to be fed corn or other grain to harden and sweeten the meat. The penned hogs also were fed mescal heads.

Fattened and butchered, the hogs provided meat for the next year. The butchering was done when the weather was very cold in order to salt the meat which cooled quickly in a low temperature.

Jack was more than a first-rate hog dog.

After the Collie had seen cowboys driving away wild steers which came near the ranch and tried to break through fences to get salt, he took over. The dog would grab the wild steers' tails or nip at their hind feet, and if a steer turned on him he would grab the animal by the nose.

Jack could be a ketch dog, too. He could drive bushed cattle out of brush too thick for a cowboy to work a horse in. He would dash into the brush and nip the cattle's heels, and they would come out at a run.

Once when a Palomino was pitching with Pendleton, Jack rushed up and grabbed the horse's tail, which took the Palomino's mind off bucking. "Another time when Jack came in to help his master on a pitching horse, the dog was severely kicked. For a time, the Pendletons thought they were going to lose Jack because of his serious injuries. What he lacked in quickness after his injuries, Jack made up for in courage and intelligence.

Don Chappell of Las Cruces remembers a different kind of hog dog on the farm of his grandfather, Jimmie Chappell, in Torrance County on the east side of the Manzano Mountains.

A dog was trained from the time that he was a puppy to herd hogs. A weaned pup and a weaned pig were tied together with a stick between them. In that way the pup became used to hogs. Chappell had German Shepherds for hog dogs. The dogs also were blooded, for Chappell had found over a long time that this type of dog was more faithful and never went wild.

Chappell ran his hogs in a big, L-shaped pasture fenced with barbed wire, some 30 years ago. The dog lived with the hogs, herding them to the water and feed troughs, rounding up the strays that crawled through the barbed wire, and guarding them against predators.

The dogs also were taught to catch hogs by grabbing one by the nose. Instead of trying to fight the dog or lunge, a hog would back up slowly, and the dog was able to hold it until man grabbed or tied the hog.
