Letters to Editor
WHAT'S DELAYED THE NOGAL ROAD OILING?
 Editor, News:
 What's happened to the oiling of the Nogal road? Last fall it got too cold to finish the road. The understanding was that it was to be done this summer. Summer's nearly over. Can't the county commissioners do something about getting this road finished before the cold weather sets in again? The old timers like to drive up from Carrizozo to this beautiful little town and get out of the heat for a few hours.
 What's been done on the road has been a big improvement, but we'd appreciate having it oiled and completed this year.
 JOHN W. HARKEY.

LIFE MAGAZINE THANKS HISTORICAL SOCIETY
 Editor, News:
 I wonder if you can grant me a few lines of space to thank all the people in the Lincoln County Historical Society and all the cast of "The Last Escape of Billy the Kid" for the fine assistance they gave our Life Magazine photographers and writers August 1-3.
 The assignment called for action shots of the pageant and its audience in color. This is very difficult to get at night, and Life sent J. R. Eyerman, one of the top photographers listed on Life's masthead; Ernie Stout, a color specialist, and George McCue, writer, all from the Los Angeles bureau. When they saw the beauty of Lincoln's Rio Bonito landscape, they asked the folks in the pageant to recreate some of the scenes during daylight hours so that the whole setting could be included.
 The assistance given by the cast and the audience was marvelous and we appreciate it very much. Despite our chores, we enjoyed the pageant, and I hope to re-visit Lincoln County again at leisure.
 The pressure of news events frequently causes Life to omit excellent photos and this may happen again. But right at this moment, the editors are tentatively planning to include the Lincoln pageant in a piece that will open a series on the history of the American West. I will try to let you know when it starts.

"How does a joint checking account work?"
 When starting such an account, the two people who are to use it sign an agreement that either may draw checks against it. Either may also make deposits. Many couples find special advantages in maintaining a joint account: For example, any bill can be paid by husband or wife, suiting their convenience. Other couples prefer having separate accounts. Either way, two people enjoy the four advantages of paying by check: Convenience, speed, safety, and accuracy. We'll welcome your checking account at our bank!
