PLEASING MORRIS GROWING MUSCLES Santa Fe, Dec. 30—Tom Morris, political fledgling who got into Congress by the circumstance of winning a compromise appointment to the Democratic ticket last year, looks like he may have grown strong enough to hang on to the place. The modest Quay county farmer seems to have the support of the Farm and Livestock Bureau which in New Mexico is the most influential organized group in politics, and has also developed a small but determined group of backers who won't talk compromise on any ground. FARMERS, FRIENDS STAYING WITH HIM Morris' strength began to show after three or four better known figures in Democratic politics hinted about going against him in the primary, and after it appeared that he might be forsaken by some of the staunchest leaders in favor of former legislator Calvin Horn of Albuquerque. That was when his backers started speaking up. Horn learned about it during a state tour this month. The suggestion that he heard most often about his own candidacy was that he lay off Morris and run against Congressman Joe Montoya. Morris needs his friends. He doesn't have the kind of dough it takes to buy support, or the political alliances that more experienced candidates can command. JOE HAS CRITICS BUT NO OPPONENT It's Montoya who is presently hurting, but not very painfully. There is a habble of new criticism of Montoya that has been heard in many areas but he doesn't have a challenger for re-nomination. Horn has told many that he would not run against Montoya. ROBINSON CHECKED ON PRIMARY RUN Dick Robinson, the former attorney general (1953-56) who developed a yen for a place on the corporation commission missed a good chance when G. Y. Falls named him out for appointment to the Jim Lamb place, and looks like he may have been frustrated in a second shot at the place. The widely known Robinson looked like a good bet to beat the politically unknown Falls in this spring's Democratic primary, but that was before other candidates (Continued on Back Page)

Highway 54 north was closed from Sunday evening until Monday morning, and for a short time Monday morning. Northbound auto traffic during this time was re-routed through Socorro and Roswell. CORONA—Five or six inches of new snow fell in Corona Sunday, starting about 9 a.m., and continuing until about 3 in the afternoon, after which the sun came out. Around 50 cars were stalled at the overpass north of Corona on Highway 54 for a time Sunday. Travelers were trying to get home after their holiday visits. Dynamic decade for New Mexico

Surging population, labor force and spectacular business opportunities predicted during next 10 years

Dynamic economic and social dimensions for New Mexico in the 1960-70 decade at hand have been charted in a new National Association of Manufacturers' research project. Soaring, rocket-steady fashion, along with New Mexico's breath-taking population climb will be the state's: 1. Household formations — nearly a 26 per cent boost, far ahead of the 18 per cent national increase. 2. Business population increases — a 30 per cent increase, matching the ratio of California's climb. 3. Labor force growth — an additional 100,000-worker corps, up 33 per cent in the next decade. 4. Job opportunities — Spectacular advances in several job categories. Covering the 11 continental western states, the NAM project takes a studied look at five primary facets of the future. Titled "1960-1970: The Dynamic Decade," it leads to some striking conclusions; conclusions about a ten-year period which will no doubt see great changes in the life of this state. These conclusions, plus additional data and estimates, are presented in the accompanying illustrated feature article.

Greater employment totals will be required for state before 1970

JOBS WANTED — 100,800 new and productive industrial jobs for both men and women by 1970. Positions with strong, growing New Mexico firms preferred. New Mexico's expanding economy, with its continuing demands for more goods and services, will be accompanied by a growing need for men and women available for jobs. It is estimated that New Mexico's total labor force will grow by 100,800 persons or 33% during the next ten years; from 308,400 in 1960 to 409,200 in 1970. This overall rise will include an increase of 64,700 men and 36,100 women. Nevertheless, employers in the state will have a proportionately smaller pool of male workers to draw upon to fill the expanded number of jobs which are predicted by the NAM. One bright prospect is that more women will be available and willing to help balance the relative decline in the number of male participants. The overall decline in participation of New Mexico's men in the state's labor force, first charted for 1950 by NAM, continues. Standing at 77% then, the ratio has fallen to 75% and is forecast at 74% by 1970. Youth in the 14-19 age group, and elders in the 65-and-over bracket, account for the entire decline in the next decade, although men over 50—the heart of an experienced labor force—will still be in short supply. Describing the next decade's population age structure as an "hour glass" in which the flaring bowls of younger and older groups are supported by the smaller neck of middle-aged persons, the NAM points to some resultant problems: "Increasing demands on productive capacities already strained to meet current needs can threaten living standards progress, weaken America's economic leadership and compound inflationary dangers beyond present proportions." Both management and labor must get their houses in order—find mutual grounds of agreement—and surge ahead together, the report says. Even the automated processes may not be a complete solution to needed productivity increases. The "all western picture, however, is one of continued manufacturing growth for the coming years, with manufacturing employment gaining on the trades and services. "By its very nature, automation often creates more job openings than it eliminates and the overall labor force shortage might actually be augmented. Automated devices require servicing, as well as maintenance, and more technicians are required to fill the gap."

Population will soar 295,500 during Sixties

A spectacular population surge sufficient to add a metropolitan city of more than 295,500 persons within New Mexico's borders is forecast by 1970. During the dynamic 1960-70 decade New Mexico's population will reach and pass the one million mark. The certain surge in New Mexico's population won't be concentrated in a single community, to be sure, but the resultant change in the state will be equally dramatic. New Mexico is one of the all-stars on the Far West team of 11 states, outdistancing the rest of the United States with phenomenal growth. At the threshold of the 1960-70 decade, New Mexico has a 1960 population estimated at 948,000. Ten years hence it is expected to be 1,243,500 a 31% increase. The needs of a population climbing towards double that in 1980 raises issues of immense economic and social significance. Unprecedented buying power impact of $6,413 new households will be thrust upon New Mexico's market places by 1970, the NAM study reveals. The 10-year projected increase of new households is a healthy 26%, well ahead of the national average. As a result, New Mexico firms of today and tomorrow will share in a greater proportion of the soaring spending for goods, services,

Rise in number of skilled workers reflected in study completed by NAM

The changing nature of New Mexico's economy during the new decade is reflected in the estimate that by 1970 there will be proportionately more white collar workers, more highly skilled manual workers and fewer unskilled-laborers. These changes in the composition of New Mexico's labor force are projected in a study of occupational trends, 1960-70, just completed by the NAM. white collar workers (including professional, technical, managerial and sales people) up 44%, from 113,700 in 1950 to 164,000 by 1970; manual workers (which includes craftsmen, foremen operatives and laborers) up 34% from 163,800 to 220,900; service workers (waiters, cooks, firemen, policemen, barbers) up 32% from 23,700 to 31,100. The NAM study of occupations suggests that the significance of New Mexico's growing labor force is not simply the increase in numbers but also the shifts which probably will continue to take place within the various occupational groups. By way of highlighting this, the report shows that while white-collar workers accounted for 20% of the state's work force in 1940, by 1970 it is estimated they will comprise 42% of New Mexico's civilian labor force. This, coupled with an increase in the number of skilled craftsmen—based on manual workers as well as the decrease in so-called laborers—reflects the continued development of what might be called the second industrial revolution; an age of trained technicians and highly-skilled specialists operating new and sometimes fantastic machinery. "This has definite ramifications for society," the report says. For one thing, it takes much of the physical effort out of many once-burdensome tasks, thus opening these fields to women.

NEW MEXICO'S OCCUPATIONAL OPPORTUNITIES

Category	1950	1970
WHITE COLLAR (Up 44%)	113,700	164,000
NEW JOBS	50,300	164,000
MANUAL (Up 34%)	163,800	220,900
NEW JOBS	35,000	138,800
SERVICE (Up 32%)	23,700	31,100
NEW JOBS	9,400	39,100
FARM (Up 5%)	43,600	45,700

Industry must grow to match bigger markets

A superior market climate in which old and new businesses alike should flourish is forecast on the eve of New Mexico's Dynamic Decade of 1960-70. At a pace matching New Mexico's great forward strides in population, the state can expect to host 7,400 more business firms in the next ten years, the NAM study predicts. This 30% increase over the present business population matches California's percentage climb and is a reflection of a western trait where high ratio of businesses to resident population is a historic tendency. New Mexico's business population, estimated at 24,323 on the eve of the dynamic decade, will surge to 31,732 by 1970, according to NAM projections. An important aspect of the imminent above-normal period for business enterprise is the continuing importance of small businesses, says the NAM.

ROBINSON CHECKED ON PRIMARY RUN

Dick Robinson, the former attorney general (1952-56) who developed a run for a place on the corporation commission missed a good chance when G. Y. Falls used him out for appointment to the Jim Lamb place, and looks like he may have been frustrated in a second shot at the place.

The widely known Robinson looked like a good bet to beat the politically unknown Falls in this year's Democratic primary, but that was before other candidates (Continued on Back Page)

Icy pavement causes collision near Corona

E. A. Caldwell of Tularosa was injured at mid-morning Sunday when two vehicles collided on slick Highway 54 pavement a mile south of Corona.

The Corona Fire Department brought Mr. Caldwell into Carrizozo hospital where he was treated for lacerations on his forehead and a back injury.

A '60 Ford pickup, going north, driven by Ralph E. Anderson, came tractor of Lakeview, Calif., was the other car involved. Its bumper was damaged and Mr. Anderson proceeded to Corona, where he reported the accident.

The Caldwell car was damaged to the extent of at least $100, it was estimated.

Robbery at Corona under investigation

Still being investigated is a robbery last week at the Corona Trading Company in Corona. A sum of $645 in silver and currency was reported taken by robbers who broke into the store safe.

The Sheriff's office and State Police are looking for a 1958 Edsel, reported stolen in Capitan some time around midnight Tuesday. The car's owner is Frenchy Guillot.

On Mission of Charity

Eighteen needy families in Lincoln County had their Christmas brightened because of the generosity of the Elks Lodge of Ruidoso. Above, Frank Burleson, order sheriff and a member of the lodge, has a pick-up truck well stocked with gift boxes containing hams, chickens and other appreciated ingredients for holiday dinners. The distribution will be various parts of the county.

Dynamic decade for New Mexico

NEW MEXICO'S DYNAMIC DECADE!

Surging population, labor force and spectacular business opportunities predicted during next 10 years

Dynamic economic and social dimensions for New Mexico in the 1960-70 decade at hand have been charted in a new National Association of Manufacturers' research project.

Soaring, rocket-stage fashion, along with New Mexico's breath-taking population climb will be the state's:

1. Household formations — nearly a 26 per cent boost, far ahead of the 18 per cent national increase.
2. Business population increases — a 30 per cent increase, matching the ratio of California's climb.
3. Labor force growth — an additional 100,000-worker corps, up 33 per cent in the next decade.

4. Job opportunities — Spectacular advances in several job categories.

Covering the 11 continental western states, the NAM project takes a studied look at five primary facets of the future. Titled "1960-1970: The Dynamic Decade," it leads to some striking conclusions; conclusions about a ten-year period which will no doubt see great changes in the life of this state.

These conclusions, plus additional data and estimates, are presented in the accompanying illustrated feature article.

Greater employment totals will be required for state before 1970

JOBS WANTED — 100,800 new and productive industrial jobs for both men and women by 1970. Positions with strong, growing New Mexico firms preferred.

New Mexico's expanding economy, with its continuing demands for more goods and services, will be accompanied by a growing number of men and women available for jobs.

It is estimated that New Mexico's total labor force will grow by 100,800 persons or 33% during the next ten years, from 303,000 in 1950 to 403,800 in 1970. This overall rise will include an increase of 64,700 men and 36,100 women.

Nevertheless, employers in the state will have a proportionately smaller pool of male workers to draw upon to fill the expanded number of jobs which are predicted by the NAM. One bright prospect is that more women will be available and willing to help balance the relative decline in the number of male participants.

The overall decline in participation of New Mexico's men in the state's labor force, first charted for 1950 by NAM, continues. Standing at 75% then, the ratio has fallen to 73% and is forecast at 72 by 1970.

Youths in the 14-19 age group, and elders in the 65-and-over bracket, account for the entire decline. In the next decade, although males over 30—the heart of an experienced labor force—will still be in short supply.

Describing the next decade's population age structure as an "hour glass" in which the flaring bowls of younger and older groups are supported by the smaller neck of middle-aged persons, the NAM points to some resultant problems:

"Increasing demands on productive capacities already strained to meet current needs can threaten living standards progress, weaken America's economic leadership and compound inflationary dangers beyond present proportions."

Both management and labor must get their houses in order—find mutual grounds of agreement—and surge ahead together, the report says. Even the automated processes may not be a complete solution to needed productivity increases.

The study also points to a growing national trend of greater employment increases in trades and services than manufacturing, a circumstance affording less opportunity for introduction of automated processes.

The over-all western picture, however, is one of continued manufacturing growth for the coming years, with manufacturing employment gaining on the trades and services.

"By its very nature, automation often creates more job openings than it eliminates and the over-all labor force shortage might actually be augmented. Automated devices require servicing, as well as manufacture, and more technicians are required to fill this need."

Population will soar 295,500 during Sixties

A spectacular population surge sufficient to add a metropolitan city of more than 235,500 persons within New Mexico's borders is forecast by 1970.

During the dynamic 1960-70 decade New Mexico's population will reach and pass the one million mark.

The certain surge in New Mexico's population won't be concentrated in a single community, to be sure, but the resultant change in the state will be equally dramatic.

New Mexico is one of the all-star states, outdistancing the rest of the United States with phenomenal growth.

At the threshold of the 1960-70 decade, New Mexico has a 1960 population estimated at 948,000. Ten years hence it is expected to be 1,244,400 a 31% increase.

The needs of a population climbing towards double that in 1950 raises issues of immense economic and social significance.

Unprecedented buying power impact of 86,413 new households will be thrust upon New Mexico's market places by 1970, the NAM study reveals.

The 10-year projected increase of new households is a healthy 26%, well ahead of the national average.

As a result, New Mexico firms of today and tomorrow will share in a greater proportion of the soaring spending for goods, services,

Rise in number of skilled workers reflected in study completed by NAM

The changing nature of New Mexico's economy during the next decade is reflected in the estimate that by 1970 there will be proportionately more white collar workers, more highly skilled manual workers and fewer unskilled laborers.

These changes in the composition of New Mexico's labor force are projected in a study of occupational trends, 1960-70, just completed by the NAM.

white collar workers (including professional, technical, managerial and sales people) up 44% from 113,700 in 1960 to 164,000 by 1970; manual workers (which includes craftsmen, foremen operatives and laborers) up 34% from 103,800 to 138,800; service workers (waiters, cooks, firemen, policemen, barbers) up 32% from 29,700 to 39,100.

The NAM study of occupations suggests that the significance of New Mexico's growing labor force is not simply the increase in numbers but also the shifts which probably will continue to take place within the various occupational groups.

By way of highlighting this, the report shows that while white-collar workers accounted for 20% of the state's work force in 1960, by 1970 it is estimated they will comprise 42% of New Mexico's civilian labor force. This, coupled with an increase in the number of skilled craftsmen—listed under manual workers as well as the decrease in so-called laborers, reflects the continued development of what might be called the second industrial revolution; an age of trained technicians and highly-skilled specialists operating new and sometimes fantastic machinery.

"This has definite ramifications for society," the report says. For one thing, it takes much of the physical effort out of many once-burdensome tasks, thus opening these fields to women.

NEW BUSINESS FIRMS

Industry must grow to match bigger markets

A superior market climate in which old and new businesses alike should flourish is forecast on the eve of New Mexico's Dynamic Decade of 1960-70.

At a pace matching New Mexico's great forward strides in population, the state can expect to host 7,400 more business firms in the next ten years, the NAM study predicts.

This 30% increase over the present business population matches California's percentage climb and is a reflection of a western trend where high ratio of business to resident population is a historic tendency.

New Mexico's business population, estimated at 24,323 on the eve of the dynamic decade, will surge to 31,723 by 1970, according to NAM projections.

An important aspect of the imminent above-normal period for business enterprises is the continuing importance of small businesses, says the NAM.

State acquires pair of big-scale boosters

When Greer Gayson married Buddy Fogelson and set up house-keeping on the Forked Lightning Ranch east of Santa Fe, the state gained a pair of big-scale boosters, according to George Fitzpatrick, editor of New Mexico Magazine.

In the magazine's first cover story, January issue, Fitzpatrick tells how Greer talks up New Mexico from New York to Hollywood, and Fogelson drills wells and risks a fortune to see if Santa Gertrudis cattle can thrive at 7,000-ft. altitude in the Pecos Valley.

The Fogelsons, the article says, spend as much time as they can on their 20,000-acre ranch. They enjoy the historical lore of the area, like to ride the range and practice at sunset shooting.

Color pages in the issue by Harvey Caplin, photographer, show Greer inside and outside of the rambling ranch house, and cattle and field scenes.

LINCOLN COUNTY IN BYGONE YEARS

The Methodist Church in Carrizozo had a waltz night party for the young people with games, songs and a worship service.

Mrs. Walter Heckleman won the first prize, a cedar chest, in the annual Titworth Company Christmas contest. D. O. Jones won second prize, an occasional chair; Mrs. Grady Eldridge, third, set of dishes and Mrs. Harry Kelt, fourth, $5 in cash.

Pablo Garcia of San Antonio arrived to visit his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Joe Garcia.

A snow storm on Christmas Day covered the valleys and mountains of Lincoln County.

Mr. and Mrs. Roy Skinner visited his mother and brother in El Paso.

Mr. and Mrs. Lupe Gabaldon returned to their ranch after visiting for a few days with her mother, Mrs. Lucila Chavez, in Carrizozo.

Gov. Miles, for the first time, had special license plates issued for the press.

Mr. and Mrs. Wm. Ferguson and Mrs. Champ Ferguson were in San Francisco visiting Mr. and Mrs. Don Ferguson.

Mr. and Mrs. Jack Sargent were to spend New Year's Day with Mr. and Mrs. Herman Kelt.

The unoccupied house of William Lane in White Oaks was destroyed by fire. Gabino Gonzales, J. H. Curron and Ed Sullivan, fighting the blaze, kept it to the one dwelling.

Augustin Chavez of Rabenton was appointed county commissioner from the third district by Governor Larrazolo.

R. D. Armstrong, one time county sheriff, was over from White Oaks. He predicted that some oil derricks would be up in this part of the county before the year was over.

The Red Path Lyceum was bringing the Altos Players, violinists, to give an entertainment at the Methodist Church in Carrizozo.

The News announced that this date was the beginning of its 21st year of publication in Lincoln County. "Even if the drills now going down don't produce gushers," Editor Jno. Haley commented, "our other natural resources are many and varied."

Miss Ola Casey, primary teacher at Ruidoso, was spending the holidays with her parents at Vaughn.

Ed Hower, secretary of the Oscura Business Club, and Mrs. Hower, were visiting their old home in Missouri.

Oscura was getting into the oil picture, with visiting oil men and possibility of three wells being drilled.

Fins Jones of Alto, was home on furlough from the Navy.

The New Mexico legislature was to have a special session.

A. W. Shartzer of Corona was a Carrizozo visitor, also W. L. Brock of Alto, Geo. Castle of Oscura, Frank Gurney of El Paso and Millicent B. Treat of Great Bend, Kansas.

Judging from the way many people splurged this year for Christmas, it is wondered if they thought money carried an early expiration date.

News Notes from Along the Bonito

By LOUISE RUNNELS

Time do fly! With no bear hunter's excitement after deer season, news sports slowed down, too, but even any natives coming up in the canyon to get Christmas trees and stop by for a friendly chat—believe Eva and Heavy Stewart were the only ones I saw. This has been a winter snowy land since a couple weeks before Christmas (18 inches of snow), but the "little blood-shot thermometer" hasn't dropped too low as yet—down around 10-15°.

The F. E. Currells from Tucuman spent a few days after Thanksgiving in their Bonito cabin. They spent Thanksgiving day in Roswell with their 16-year-old son Craig who is a junior at N.M.M.L.; then he and the Currell family were together at their Bonito cabin. The oldest Currell boy, Dennis, had his girl friend along from Las Cruces, Miss Lynne Brown. Dennis is a sophomore at New Mexico State University. They took a jeep ride up toward Montezuma Lookout as far as they could pull in the snow.

It was a mighty pleasant surprise to have Mr. and Mrs. Charlie Peobles drop by before Christmas to wish us a happy holiday season. They had been over to see about sister Lydia's ranch near Nogal.

From California recently were Mr. and Mrs. Bill Jackson and family to visit Bill's sister, Mary Hedgecock and family and Bill's mother, Mrs. Jim Jackson. They visited Mrs. Jackson's folks in Roswell and West Texas and quite a few folks in Lincoln county. Bill was sorry he missed "Ole Zapo Leslie." Bill and Gracie have three girls.

Bryan Cazier was on the Bonito visiting with his caretaker, Mr. Welch and son Bill during the first snow. The Welches spent Christmas in Tucuman with Mrs. Welch's father.

Mrs. J. D. Faulkner and two little girls spent Christmas in Roswell with her sister and family.

Fred Sweet who has been in T or C a few weeks wrote that they had had two inches of snow there. He spent Christmas with Fred Jr. and family in Alamogordo.

Mr. and Mrs. Paul Schriener of Carlsbad spent a week end before Christmas in their cabin. Their daughter and family from South America are in the U.-S. for a couple of months and came to the Bonito with them to enjoy the snow with their three small children—snow was a real treat to them and for us, by the way, it isn't bad anymore either—just 'cause the county road maintenance crews are up and grading when the snow falls. They helped Bill Edgar make way to a lot of cattle that were moved in on roads impassable and soon as possible made way for the school buses to run—that the kids said "could wait"—they're always ready for a vacation. I know three or four thanks go to LeRoy McNight, Tommy Laffay and Henry Lacey who worked several days in the snow, clearing roads all over the county.

Rudy Hutchinson whose home in Alamogordo but has been in boot camp in the Marines in South Carolina was on the Bonito last week. He is going back to camp to begin playing baseball on one of the Marine teams that travel all over the U.S.

Tom Crume and Ralph Vance were Donito City visitors last week. Both are in school at New Mexico State University.

Fern Sweet, Mary Lou and I went to Alamogordo recently to get Fern's new glasses adjusted. We visited in Mr. and Mrs. Fred Sweet's pretty home and Rosie is active in the Methodist Church there, besides teaching the kindergarten class of many little ones, she writes a column each week in the Methodist paper about how to work and live with our little ones and her articles are good for you and me.

Alco Wright spent Christmas with her daughter, Mrs. Laffay Bailey and family in Capitlan—snow is banked up around her house but Alco can get out and the snow doesn't bother her, she has gas for cooking, melts snow for water and has a cellar with canned meat, vegetables and fruit enough for herself to last thru one or two cold spells, but take these Texas people from Odessa who have a cabin out far from Alco or Tom Bragg; they came up Saturday to spend some time in the know-at their cabin and could only stand it one night.

All the snow, rain—and wind didn't stop the "Old Dude Cousins." There were 12 in the party, all relatives, who came up to their cabin in Bear Canyon and spent a week. They had their Jeep for any snowy emergency. Spence Ely's parents of Clay Center, Kansas, were with them for their first visit in

Item recalls German liner's prize crew interned at Ft. Stanton

Reading the column of 20 years ago in the El Paso Times, we came to the item—where the Germans scuttled their large ocean liner Columbus in the Atlantic Coast, to evade capture of same.

The large crew was placed in a concentration camp in New York State, but later were transferred to New Mexico and placed in a concentration camp in Fort Stanton. A very large building and smaller ones, some of which still stand, were erected to accommodate the seafaring men.

The old Civilian Conservation Corps barracks were remodeled and served as their home for the duration of the war.

At first, they were only hostages of Uncle Sam, but when the United States entered into the conflict, they were reclassified as prisoners of war.

We recall when they arrived in Carrizozo by train. They carried all their luggage with them and several alighted from the train carrying musical instruments. The Columbus was a luxurious liner and it even carried a large band for the amusement of the passengers.

Eugene Dow and the late Meyer Barnett of Carrizozo worked as guards in the camp during that period.

They had a barbed-wire enclosure around the buildings, but in an escape attempt, one prisoner succeeded in making his getaway. He was captured near Alto shortly after, and he was more than glad, for he had walked all that distance without anything to eat, and his feet were sorely blistered.

The large building including a few of smaller size, remain as a grim reminder of 20 years ago, below and across the creek from Fort Stanton.

Ramon Ventura of Albuquerque was here a few days before Christmas to take his mother-in-law back with him. She had been visiting here with her daughter, Mrs. Joe Escobedo and family. The Escobedos have been spending the holidays with relatives in the Duke City. Ramon also visited his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Lucas Ventura, in Carrizozo.

Much credit is due to Mr. and Mrs. Fred A. Vigil for cleaning and decorating the Catholic Church for the Yuletide season. In the interior of the church near the altar, they placed in miniature Nativity Scene with miniature statues and decorated with wreaths and blue lights.

The two evergreens on each side of the entrance to the church were beautifully lighted with colored bulbs, and the illuminations arched over the door top. Father Dennis and Father Chavez are ever grateful to this devoted couple for their services to the church.

The Fort Stanton Women's Service Club were hostesses at a Yuletide party at the community home December 21, from 8 to 7 p.m., for all the children of the employees. They had a Christmas tree and Santa Claus was ever alert to see that each child received a present and his share of candy and other Christmas edibles. Joe Escobedo played the role of Jolly Santa Claus.

Services were conducted at the Nativity Manager by Rev. Brown at 7:30, followed by a social hour in the dining room.

Fort Stanton being almost deserted until after New Year's day, we found very little of which to write for the New Year's edition of the Lincoln County News.

We sincerely wish everyone a happier and better year in 1960 than the one of 1959, soon to be Over the Hill.

We spent a very Merry Christmas with relatives and old friends in Carrizozo, but we have returned to help the few remaining here, to keep the "home fires burning" until all the rest have checked in.

Several employees of Fort Stanton are reminding the fact that the Lincoln County Board of Commissioners have done nothing to improve the road through Devil's Canyon, during their tenure of office. They travel that route daily so and from work and during the last snow, they really had it rough and could not get here in time for duty. They kindly ask of that body that something be done to alleviate the road conditions in the near future.

We were blessed in No. 3 with five little new neighbors for the holidays. The five remaining children in No. 12 were moved to an apartment in 3 for the time being. Somewhat noisy, but we don't mind it at all.

TALKING BACK

By HOMER REID

Dear Rev. Reid: I didn't feel like writing to your daughter — since she was a teenager and what could she know about life or problems that come up? Now that you have taken over, so to speak, what can you know about life and problems? A preacher or a priest, it seems to me, is a person rather removed from the ordinary daily life of a regular human being. You say preachers try to be on their best behavior around you; they don't drink, they don't talk dirty stories, they don't drink — not that this is bad; but it removes you from ordinary life and that's the point I'm trying to make. How can you know enough about our problems to give a practical answer or a usable solution? — "A Talk Backer"

Dear "Talk Backer": Thank you for your letter. I'm glad you wrote because I can see you are "laboring" under an idea that should have gone out during the Middle Ages. My own personal experience has been that since I've entered the ministry I've learned more about life than I ever did before. I hear in one week more stories of human misery, suffering and downright villainy than I ever heard before. I also hear more stories of human faith and courage and "spirituality" than ever before. When one enters the ministry one's

He became magnified, as he speak. The training and the education was received in "talks" toward helping people in their problems and showing them how they might possibly solve them. It's true that people are more careful how they talk and act around a preacher (unless they are deliberately asserting their independence and go overboard to be vulgar) but I think that in respect for what one is a preacher, represents—not in respect for the person. Sort of like a soldier saluting the officer's insignia—not the person. Of course, I don't know that you are Catholic; but the Protestant's attitude toward the preacher is different. Essentially there is no difference between the lay and the "clergy" — a preacher is a "layman" who because of special ability and willingness to devote a major portion of his time to "clerical work" — is "set-aside" to study and serve in the capacity of a preacher or minister. This is "convenient" in the sense that one person devoting all his time to the study of the gospels and in learning to serve people in their time of need can do a better job than say, a man who must devote the major portion of his time to earning a living, running a business, etc. I do believe that a minister is "called" in the sense that he must want to preach and minister more than anything else.

It is not a question of choosing between one "calling" or another — this one thing he must do! We believe in "the priesthood of all believers." I, as a minister, could probably give you a better answer to your problems than a "layman" simply because that's my job—and I'm constantly studying for that end. Hope this helps to clear things up in regard to my qualifications: Homer Reid.

Dear Homer: I was really sorry to learn that Pam was dropping the Teenster's Union column—and when it didn't appear I felt very "let down." She had a duty to us Teensters that I feel she didn't fulfill. I don't know why she stopped writing the column, but I'll bet she'll be sorry about it before very long. Well, I've got a problem but since you are an adult I can tell just what you'll say about it before I tell you what it is—and I don't want to do that. So, just skip it, huh?—"Frustrated Teenster"

Dear F. T.: You do sound kinda frustrated. I would like to say something, though. You are the reason for your frustration! You criticize Pam about not continuing the Teenster's column — and I'll bet you never wrote one letter to her while she was writing it. You want your problems solved for you but since you don't want to hear the solution you just refuse to mention it! How frustrated can you get? You know something — someday you might grow up; but don't forget you can be six feet tall and still a little child, emotionally.

ALTO BRIEFS

By AILEEN LINDAMOOD

The Bob Moore family from Ruidoso stopped in last Saturday on their way up Montezuma to do some sledding.

The R. O. Pittillo of Tularosa visited the George Creels recently. Donald Martin and son Charlie of Roswell visited the Sonney Wrights last week.

Robert Creel was here from Carrizozo a week ago Sunday.

Mr. and Mrs. Alan Johnson and Mrs. Edith Crawford came up from Carrizozo last Wednesday and picked up the George Dingwells on their way to spend Christmas with the V. L. Andersons in Las Cruces. Lined White of Captain stopped in last Tuesday.

Wednesday Mrs. Charlie Peebles and her grandchildren, Donna, Jim and Marshall went to Capitán to see the Steve Terbenzen family. Leonard Sarginer of Ruidoso was over last Tuesday.

The Sidney Preston family went to Dora, N. M. and then on to Lubbock for the Christmas week end. Harold Krouse and family of Roswell stopped by Friday with the Dean Jangens of Ruidoso.

The George Creel family went to Roswell Christmas Day to be with her mother, Mrs. Della Casey and brother Aubrey Casey. They came home with them, returning to Roswell on Saturday.

The Steve Terbenzen of Capitán enjoyed Christmas dinner with the Peebles.

Mr. and Mrs. Jim McEuen and "Corky" went to Maljamar Christmas Day.

speaking. Why don't you try again?—H. R.

Dear Rev. Merry Christmas to you and yours. I, for one, am delighted to know that you will be writing the column, "Talking Back." We need something like that here in Carrizozo. As I drive around town this Christmas season I just wonder why the people don't let go some of their money and pave at least a few of the more beat-up streets. I wonder why they don't clean up their yards and plant a little grass and dump the junk someplace besides on their front lawn. Carrizozo is in a beautiful location and the people are wonderful; but they seem to be living from day-to-day, with no forward look. What can be done about it? How can I, an unimportant citizen help to make this town as beautiful and as desirable a place to live as I know it can be? "Zozozan"

Dear Zozozan: I think you have taken the first step and that's getting the right mental attitude. If everyone felt about Carrizozo the way you apparently do — then I know things would "get done." Just keep talking in that optimistic mood and the more people who hear you, the better. If you hear remarks of a disparaging kind—then TALK BACK—let 'em know how you feel. Just keep talking! That much you can do!

Along the Bonito

this part of New Mexico for any length of time.

On Christmas Day with snow flying every way the Bear Canyon cabin was alive with Christmas cheer.

Mr. and Mrs. Joe Coe and family, J. D. Paullney, Melvin Coe and Mr. and Mrs. Axel Runnels and children had Christmas dinner with the crowd. There were checker games, the record player, and guitar music inside, while out on the hillside sleds were buzzing down, or you had to watch out for old Dobbin pulling a sleigh thru the flying snow taking the "next turn" for a circle.

Mr. and Mrs. D. G. Johnson and two boys from El Paso spent a couple of nights in their cabin in Bear Canyon, formerly owned by Scrubnecks of El Paso.

Mr. and Mrs. Lora Morris and Buddy have moved to Ben Pfingsten's ranch over near Nogal.

Thelma and Paul Taylor brought us the prettiest fruit basket I've ever seen the day after Christmas—apples from Washington as big as big grapefruit, red and yellow. I was sure glad to see my good friend Thelma. She brought news of her sister Mrs. Elmer Peyton and Bethel Cunningham, from Arkansas, Mr. and Mrs. Arnold from Roswell (Peyton's two daughters) and their sons and families, Roy and Edward were with them for Christmas. Paul Taylor said the road job at Tucuman would be finished in two weeks. The snow storm stopped the job.

Visitors at the Roy LaMay ranch over the holidays were Mr. and Mrs. R. G. Stewart (newlyweds who now live in Alamogordo), Mr. and Mrs. Joe West, and son Joe G. and family, Mr. and Mrs. LeRoy McKnight, Mr. and Mrs. Ralph Barber from Mountainair, and Mr. and Mrs. Tommy LaMay and family.

Johnnie Billy and Bobby LaMay got new bicycles from their aunt Fanny in El Paso — and are they happy little boys! Christmas is wonderful!

Mr. and Mrs. Marvin Jones and son Dick spent their holiday vacation at Reserve, N. M.

I was glad to see Jimmy Clayton and his family's picture in the Lincoln County News — 'twas a cute picture and Jimmy deserves all the praise he received for his time in the cold and willing efforts during the snow blockade around Vaughn.

The Corders from Corder's Store at Angus have been in Texas a couple weeks visiting.

Mr. and Mrs. Walter Meeker from Lovington who recently bought a home in Ruidoso are taking care of Corder's store while they're gone. Welcome to Lincoln County, Meekers!

Mr. and Mrs. Ira Young and Wilma June visited relatives and friends in Indiana and Pennsylvania over the holidays.

Mr. and Mrs. Collins Walker spent Christmas with her parents in Texas.

By MARGARET RENCH

A Happy New Year to you, one and all.

Remember the Smokey dance, Saturday, Jan. 2, at the American Legion Hall, music by the Moonshiners whose good music makes you want to dance. Meet us there.

The late Christmas tree lights were—Cummings' tree in the yard in front of their home and Manuel G. Miller in their front yard. The inside trees were those of Dean Hardware, Louise Ferguson, Ellen Sherrill, Louie Serna and Eva Hickman. The school had a pretty tree; also an interesting school program. Bags were distributed Wednesday noon, Dec. 23. Many families left to spend vacation time away.

Snow came Christmas night the 25th, beginning with rain for several hours then followed a few inches of snow which did gladden our hearts. Then before it melted, another 2-inch snow followed Sunday. Traffic seems to have been directed through Capitán so it was a very busy day in the ice and snow.

The mountains were beautiful, with the trees white and lots of snow which made a real picture. All of the snow in all three of these storms was very wet.

Mrs. Beatie Mungesser of Albuquerque has been seriously ill. The first part of this month one of her legs was amputated above the knee. Her daughter, Mrs. Emma Howard, who resides in California, is with her and intends to be indefinitely.

Jess Harris of Ruidoso Downs came Thursday noon to pick up his sister Maude with her husband (Mr. and Mrs. R. D. Kingston) and took them home with him where they spent the night and enjoyed the tree with their sister, Miss Lou Harris Christmas Day they all went to fasswell to have dinner with Jess's daughter Ione and husband. Kingston arrived safely home that night.

Rose Anneratone chosen "Sweetheart" of Texas A&M College

Rose Anneratone, niece of Johnnie Anneratone, and fashion dress designer (a junior clothing and costume designing major at the Texas Woman's University) at Denton, Texas, was bestowed the honor of being chosen the new A&M Sweetheart October 15.

There were 3600 members of the A&M in the parade down the streets of Ft. Worth. The famed Aggie band provided the music. Rose Ann received as close to full military honors as a girl could get—an honor guard and cadet review. She attended yell practice, dined with the students and made a short speech.

Her home is in Memphis, Tenn. Her father is Louis Anneratone and is a contractor.

Mr. and Mrs. Joe Sims and Alan left Christmas morning to spend the day with his parents in Santa Rosa.

Mr. and Mrs. Liréal White and four children purchased the Roby home on north hill several weeks ago. They are anxious to have their friends know that they have a phone. They own a home in Ruidoso and lived there for ten years. They formerly were from Roswell. He works for the Forest Service six months of the year. Welcome to Capitán!

Mr. and Mrs. Dean of the Hardware Company left for Lovington last Thursday to spend Christmas with their children there. Their son who owns this store has had a back injury and has had to be in a cast therefore he has not been able to be here as they had planned, though they were to be here for the holidays.

Mrs. Maymo Greisen enjoyed Christmas by having her son and family, Mr. and Mrs. Pat Coor of Aztec, with her.

Mr. and Mrs. Bert Cheney, Mrs. Joe Bert Cheney and two children, Mrs. Maude Clark and Dub and Mrs. Evelyn Smoot attended, the Jehovah Witnesses Assembly at Mesa, Ariz., for four days, Dec. 18 to 21. They had a good trip and enjoyed the meetings. They were impressed with the mild winter climate in Mesa.

Mr. and Mrs. Newt Robinson of Las Cruces and his son (Mr. and Mrs. Sonny Robinson) and two children of Farmington were visitors for a few hours last Sunday at the home of Mrs. Daisy Gehring.

Billy Ferguson flew from his post in Rhode Island to spend the holidays with his mother, Mrs. Louise Ferguson and Wally, Mrs. Maude Eshon and Bobbie of Santa Fe joined them here. Christmas they and the LeRoy McKelcham family spent the day and had dinner with Mrs. Mary Johnson and their mother, Mrs. Fritz in Carrizozo. Bobbie and Billy enjoyed a day of skiing on the Ruidoso last Saturday.

Mr. and Mrs. Eddie Zamora and his sister Adelina (Mr. and Mrs. Max Montoya) spent Christmas with their mother and children, Mrs. Mary Zamora Trujillo.

Mr. and Mrs. Odell Hickman of Albuquerque and his sister Faye and husband of Hope, spent Christmas with their parents, Mr. and Mrs. Dee Hickman.

Mr. and Mrs. Fred Gehring and his brother Clarence of Grants came in Christmas eve and spent Christmas Day with their mother, Mrs. Daisy Gehring.

Mr. and Mrs. Chester Gable, Bob and Melinda of Lovington and Dean Campbell and Jerry of Ft. Worth spent the 26th with their parents, Mr. and Mrs. Newt Campbell, at the Buena Vista Hotel. The Newt Campbells are enjoying their new business—the Buena Vista hotel and the Conoco. They like Capitán and we welcome them with open arms.

The cheery Christmas season is over for another year. The joyous spirit of Christmas truly lifts many an aching heart.

Christmas 1959, has come and gone. We have all celebrated after our own fashion. Most of us happily (to some tragedy has struck), but we will all get our house in order and do everything we can to be here to greet Christmas 1960.

There was much visiting and being visited, among Tularosans over the long week end. At the Deo Simpsom home for Christmas dinner were Mr. and Mrs. Tom Dingham and Mrs. Bingham's mother, Mrs. Clara Miles, Mr. and Mrs. A. Pruitt, Mr. and Mrs. Edward Leo Livingston and children from El Paso; Mr. and Mrs. Pruitt and Mrs. Miles, all from Glen Rose, Texas, and visited here several days. Mrs. Cecil Terry claims she has had the best Christmas holiday of all. Her nephew and wife, Mr. and Mrs. Nathaniel Vincent were here from Santa Monica, and since her parents moved here last month, she and Cecil have had a family Christmas for the first time in 15 years. And they really made it a time to remember.

Reyes Salas, graduate of T.H.S. now in the Air Force called his brother Tony from his station in Washington, D. C. Christmas Day. Reyes is in communications and works on the first floor of the Pentagon. We are all very proud of our boys in the service and elsewhere who have gone ahead and are doing such a good job. Reyes is one of our best.

Mr. and Mrs. Fred King and Johnny were in Albuquerque and Cedar Crest for the holidays. The Kings have a new granddaughter, born December 6 to Mr. and Mrs. Freddy King of Cedar Crest.

Present Biblical drama at Church of Nazarene

(Contributed)

If you weren't at the Church of the Nazarene in Capitán at 7:30 p.m. December 23, you missed a treat, indeed. For they presented "Glorious to God," a Biblical drama, by Pearl Holloway. 'Twas a wonderful story, well done by local talent. Each character gave peak performance. Best of all, the story contained a timely message for our day. "I sincerely hoped this fact was not overlooked."

Rev. and Mrs. John Abney, are the pastors of the Nazarene Church, as of now, coming to our town last June. They are a wonderful couple, of whom many can truly be said, "It is a joy to know them."

After the five-act drama, they opened their home, new door to the church for a special hour, which everyone enjoyed supremely. Refreshments were served, and games appropriate to the season were played.

This is a time of year, when people, everywhere, tend to take a backward look, consequently, remembering old friends, as well as some newer acquaintances. More and more, there seems a tendency to send a letter, along with that traditional Christmas card. And through this channel we learn that the Edwin Hawkins family are very happy, still residing at Farmington, with the exception of Artie, who graduated last summer from a dental surgical college in Chicago, and who is now with a motor surgical unit in Japan. However, before going to Japan he and Mr. Hawkins did a bit of deep sea fishing, which both enjoyed fully.

Barbara and her husband, live near the parents, and are now the proud parents of two, a girl about two years old, and a boy who arrived last April. Both Mr. Hawkins and can-in-law John teach in Farmington schools. Mrs. Hawkins is about to resign her position in a dental office.

From Mrs. Mattie Swedlund, comes a note from which we learn that John is married, and that he is preparing for the ministry, and James is in Atlanta, Ga. Soory, did not learn much about James, except location. Mrs. Swedlund and her daughter live at New Castle, Texas.

It wasn't feasible this year for Mrs. Ethel Keathley to go to either of her boys homes, nor that they come home, but the telephone saved the day. She had a nice chat with both the Reads at Ft. Smith, and the Hydies at Pasadena, Calif.

Incidentally, the Reads planned to eat a Christmas feast with Oliver's cousins, the former Ada and Elsie Read, sisters, who are cousins of Oliver. They (the Read sisters) live at Mansfield, Ark., some 40 miles or so from Ft. Smith, where Oliver is located.

The Hydies had a wonderful family get together at Mrs. Hyde's home. The only fly in the ointment was the fact that the two Garths both had the flu just prior to Christmas, and Garth Sr. wasn't completely out of the woods. No need to worry, they both felt better, in a good old fashioned way. Garth, did miss the snow, as Pasadena was "all out of the same."

A Christmas letter from Jerry Cuffman, McClung and family, tell us that they are snug in their new home on the coast, and all seem to be exuberantly happy. Their home is in a new construction area and they said, "this is our first experience of living in a large tract under construction—with all the top soil in constant motion." Hat, that should make it seem very home-like to them, since folks who have never resided in New Mexico know what they mean, even though perhaps it isn't the wind that puts their top soil in motion.

Ups and downs plagued agriculture in New Mexico during year 1959

"Seventy-five percent luck, 25% guts, and the balance, brains"—that's the old gag for success in agriculture. You couldn't prove it wrong by the seemingly haphazard ups and downs in New Mexico agriculture during 1959, according to the year-end survey by New Mexico Farm and Ranch magazine. The "breaks of the game" for the New Mexican producer last year were partly bad, partly good. The magazine reports that the "hot" markets failed to materialize for feeder cattle last fall, lamb feeding in early '59 (and apparently, again in early '60), and the early summer onion market. Too many New Mexico sheepmen sold their wool clips cheap before the price began rising in the spring. The support price for grain sorghum—a major field crop in the state—was slashed by 17% in a surprise move by the Secretary of Agriculture in February. A freak outbreak of cotton rust suddenly wrecked the Hidalgo county cotton crop and the state's biggest outbreak of khapra beetles—one of the world's worst enemies of food and fiber—broke out in the spring (fortunately, to be quelled soon after through quick action of the Federal and state governments).

But Lady Luck smiled on some New Mexico ag producers during the year, too, according to New Mexico Farm and Ranch. The state's winter wheat producers reaped up a 3.4 million bushel bumper crop—biggest in the past decade, except for 1958—thanks to good rains arriving at opportune times. The hay price level became buoyant in the fall—$7 above a year ago, at $25 per ton—bringing grins to the state's alfalfa growers, who've been in considerable price trouble in past years. New Mexico farmers in the Elephant Butte Irrigation District of Dona Ana county were awarded their biggest initial water allotment in ten years—bolstered by a 1.2 million acre water storage, largest since 1946. About one in every five New Mexico cotton growers chose the new B Plan under the Federal cotton program which allowed more acreage in return for accepting a lower price—and the added acreage turned the 1959 harvest into the biggest cotton crop in New Mexico history—backed by the state Farm Bureau and expected to save consumers thousands of dollars in unfair weight charges.

The year saw a waning of vocal opposition to the changing of the name of New Mexico A&M to New Mexico State University, which has caused bitter controversy among farmers and ranchers with opponents seeing a down-grading of agriculture in the move. The Federal Government turned down a proposed extension of the Federal milk order in the Texas Panhandle to five southeastern New Mexico counties, which the Dairy Farmers Assn. of New Mexico had opposed.

The big $81 million San Juan-Chama project to divert water from the San Juan via the Chama into the Rio Grande above Albuquerque, remained bogged down in the House at year's end, after receiving Senate approval for the second time. The gigantic Navajo Dam in San Juan county—meanwhile moved close to the half-way stage in completion, and work continued on the $10 million Abiquiu Dam in Rio Arriba county.

The state's three major agricultural organizations—the Farm and Livestock Bureau, Cattle Growers Assn., and Wool Growers Assn.—retained their stand against the wildflower preservation bill expected to come before Congress in 1960, on grounds that the bill would "moth-ball" large areas and wrongfully deny their commercial use.

The farm-ranch organizations also called for improved policing by game wardens to cut down on acts of vandalism by the minority of irresponsible hunters on farm-ranch property in hunting areas. In an effort to acquaint their city neighbors with the facts on farm problems, members of the Eddy County Farm Bureau showered downtown Artesia with a pamphlet air-drop from a crop-duster plane.

The year saw the biggest New Mexico State Fair attendance on record—472,000 for the nine-day stand—and the biggest attendance on record at the annual convolve at Tucuman of the state's biggest agricultural organization, the New Mexico Farm and Livestock Bureau.

Heading the big Farm Bureau convention was a tall Fortuna chairman with a foot in a cast—W. D. McAllister, Farm Bureau president, whose share of good and bad luck in '59 included a tumble from an over-turning tractor which brushed his ankle.

Said McAllister recently in commenting on the agricultural outlook in New Mexico for 1960: "The outlook looks about the same as last year, except for the cost-price squeeze which will continue to make profits in agriculture harder to come by, as it has for the past several years. In fact, I disagree with the old formula for what it takes to be a success in agriculture. Nowadays, it takes brains and plenty of it!"

INSIDE THE CAPITAL

muddled the water.

Jako Barth, corporation commission employee ($650 a month), and a Fox and so is David Branch, state president of the Young Democrats and second place runner in the commission race last year. The more in that race the merrier it is for Folio who stands to have administration support.

Two Commissioners CONTROL THE HELP

The circumstance of Barth running against one of his bosses is possible under the three-headed commission. Commissioners John Block and Seven-Foot Pickett don't owe Folio anything and have given Barth the green light for the run.

If he gets beat they have agreed to take him back on the payroll.

Barth hasn't left the payroll, doesn't intend to until he files March 1.

CAMPAIGN AIDS LOSE THEIR JOBS

That old gang of the John Burroughs campaign trail of 1958 is breaking up.

Dennis Herrera, the sound truck driver for the Burroughs party, was ousted from his job in the bureau of revenue a while back and has joined the opposition Democrats in Santa Fe.

Herb Trout, an officer in the Burroughs Albuquerque office during the primary campaign and state Democratic headquarters in Santa Fe during the general election run, had been cut off his $400 place in the bureau of revenue.

Trout had had a run of hard luck. He lost his job shortly after going into bankruptcy court as the result of business setbacks in Farmington.

CROSS AND SABU FOR MEAD PLACE

Floyd Cross of (ugh) Truth or Consequences is being encouraged to try again for Demo nomination for lieutenant governor if Ed Mead does not go for a second term.

Cross has a pretty good job as state personnel officer at $700 a month.

Right (Sabu) Gallegos, Santa Fe state representative, is selling that he is going for the lost job place whether Mead runs or stays out.

MEAD IS GLUM ABOUT BIG RUN

Friends of Mead think that he may pull a Rockefeller next week and bow out of the prospective list of candidates for governor. There doesn't seem to be any hope of getting Joe Burney out and Mead probably doesn't fancy a place in a three-way run.
