

Carrizozo Planning Board promised cooperation in cleanup campaign

With several property owners present, the new planning board of Carrizozo got down to business last Tuesday night and before the evening was over had been promised cooperation in getting certain properties cleaned up.

Board members present were Joe O. Sargent, chairman, and members Dr. A. N. Spencer, Mrs. C. A. Snow, Fred English and Jete Voes, secretary.

Sargent opened the meeting by stating its purpose was to improve the appearance of Carrizozo. "We would like everyone's cooperation toward this end," he said, "as it will make our town more attractive to tourists who pass through or who may stop for a while; also a clean town will enhance property values."

At a previous meeting the planning board had discussed certain properties that they felt detracted from the appearance of the business district. They sent letters to these property owners and asked them to come to Tuesday's meeting and meet with the board.

Unable to attend the meeting, Harkey wrote that "we are all 100% in favor of this move and will assist in any way possible."

His letter continued: "This is to state that Ralph F. Petty, who owns a half interest in the old Western Lumber Yard, and I have discussed that particular piece of property and wish to advise that just as soon as the weather permits we will clean it up in a very presentable condition and it may be possible that we will put some type of business in at that location."

H. Elfred Jones, who was present at the meeting said that with regard to his property at the intersection of 4th street and U. S. 54, the board has his permission to remove any trees that might be obstructing traffic view and that he would replace the wooden fence around the property as soon as feasible. "I would consider that the improvement of property along Highway 64 through town would be your first goal," he said.

Mr. and Mrs. Vincent Reil, also present at the meeting, said they were in favor of the cleanup program and intended to do quite a bit of work on their business property when the weather would permit.

Reil said specifically that they had in mind repairing and stuccoing the old City Garage building, cleaning up the old camp ground and the tin building next to it and that they "might consider" taking down the old laundry building.

Regarding their vacant business property on 13th street, Mrs. Reil said most of it was being used for storage and that it was valuable to them for that purpose.

"We have had trouble keeping windows in those buildings," she said. "I don't know how many times we have put in new windows, only to have drunks come along and throw bottles through them."

Asked about the outhouses in the rear of the Mayer Apartments, Otto Frehm said they planned to remove them. "Also," he said, "we plan to do some painting this summer." He thought the cleanup idea was a good one.

One board member remarked that all property owners in town should get rid of unused outhouses and remove or replace worn-out wooden fences.

The planning board will draw up a set of recommendations to present to the town council at its meeting next Tuesday.

Honored for saving life of fellow employee

CAPTAIN — George R. Devara, whose home is in Capitán, has been honored for saving a fellow workman's life by his quick thinking and action.

Lt.-Col. Lee I. Peterson, chief installation engineer at Holloman Air Force Base, presented a certificate of award and $300 to Devara, an electrical lineman, for an act which was instrumental in saving the life of a fellow employee, Marvin Bule.

Bule and Devara were dispatched to the Boles Well area to check a power outage there. In the process of making repairs, Bule came in contact with a wire carrying 13,200 volts.

With complete presence of mind, Devara immediately pulled the switches to turn off the power. Noting that Bule was badly burned, and did not seem to be breathing, Devara applied artificial respiration at once. This he continued until Bule was again breathing normally.

Tasty maple syrup made from box elder trees growing in Hondo Valley

"Pure Maple Syrup—Produced in Lincoln County, New Mexico." Such a label upon a bottle on the breakfast table, before a stack of hotcakes, might seem a little out of line to many Lincoln County residents, but not to Ernest McDaniel and Stanley Thomas of Glencoe.

As proof that maple syrup can have a different label from the common one "Made in Vermont," McDaniel this week was letting his friends taste a sample of maple syrup made in Lincoln County.

The syrup came in its natural state from box elder trees that grow wild all over and down the mountain valleys in this county.

McDaniel has known for some time that these trees are relatives of the sugar maple and last year when in New York he did considerable research and decided this year to try an experiment that he has had in mind for some time.

Along with his "partner" Stanley (Squee) Thomas, he determined when the "sapping" of season should begin here and they set caps into a number of trees in mid-February. True to form, the box elders began to drip into buckets, and in due time the partners had enough sap to begin the "boiling down" process.

Building a fire under a large tub, they boiled the sap until it had lost about 20 times its volume and became a tasty syrup. Thirty gallons of sap made a gallon of syrup.

The maple tree belt extends over a wide area of the United States, through eastern part of the country, middle west and into parts of the mountain states, including New Mexico. Locally the maple trees are known as box elders, hardy, fast-growing trees that like plenty of water, hence are most common along water-courses in the valleys.

McDaniel believes the production of maple sugar here on a commercial scale is economically feasible. He suggests that groups of people could form their associations, have a community vat and perhaps add several thousand dollars annually to the economy of the county.

District Court

In district court Tuesday, presiding Judge W. T. Scoggin granted two divorces: To Robert Peres Eyan, pl. from Mary Lois Fayas, def., and to Rafaela Pryor, pl., from Earl Fryor, def.

A plea of no contest was entered and sentence pronounced: To serve from 6 months to 3 years in the state penitentiary and to pay costs of prosecution. The sentence was suspended.

Two juvenile boys from Carrizozo were processed for alleged traffic offenses. One youth, who was charged with not having a driver's license, admitted the charge and was assessed $6 costs. The other youth, charged with failure to give proper signals as defined in the allegation, a hearing was set for March 9.

NO. 1015 S. SANTA FE BLVD.

INTIMATES RESENT FITZPATRICK DEAL

Santa Fe, March 3—The squeeze-out of George Fitzpatrick, popular 25-year editor of New Mexico Magazine, is burning the hottest among people who know the intimate circumstances of the case.

Fitz didn't have any right to lifelong tenure on the job, and in fact had conducted only a mediocre publication, with mediocre money, but had achieved great public respect.

He was forced out by Fred Phelps, $14,400 director of the department of development, working on a job that pays about three times as much as he ever made on his own, according to the information I have. He was once director of the Clovis chamber of commerce and got fired. He had been a school teacher and a real estate and insurance operator before hitting the jackpot in the department of development appointment.

AGILE OPERATOR FROM NEW YORK

Flynn is fresh out of the Madison Avenue publications scramble where standard tactics of scratching and clawing over the backs of the guys in front aren't even known out here.

The new magazine as designed by Flynn and Phelps stands to develop into the throw-away, shopper-type publication that usually flourishes briefly and fold.

It is set up to promote local communities in a manner that should be interesting to the local communities promoted and to few others.

BANKERS CARELESS WITH OUR BONDS

The syndicate of ten bankers which is peddling a chunk of $1,000,000 of tax-free New Mexico securities in a "Second Edition Special Offering of New Mexico General Obligation Bonds" describes Belen as "30 miles north of Albuquerque."

It probably doesn't make any difference in the sale of $32,000 of Belen bonds whether the city is 30 miles north or south but the carelessness with the facts is typical of the entire transaction in which the state investment council turned over to the bankers $27 million worth of New Mexico securities without competitive bids or expert analysis of the bankers' offer.

A BIG PITCH FOR LAS VEGAS

In a pitch to sell $123,000 of Las Vegas water and sewer bonds the banks say that Vegas is the county seat of San Miguel, which it is not, the courthouse being in West Las Vegas which did not issue the bonds.

That the city owns its own water works—which has shown substantial yearly earnings, which it does not, the water system being owned by the Public Service Company of New Mexico;

That the city is served by Continental Airlines, which is not true.

Misrepresentation of stock or bond offerings in private enterprise is a serious offense, good for jailing, but they can apparently say anything they like about public issues.

REPUBLICANS SHY AWAY FROM PRIMARY

This year's contest in the Republican primary recalls that the biggest turnout the Republicans ever attracted in a primary battle was in 1932 when it was Pat Hurley going against the field on almost everybody else in the party for nomination for the Senate.

There were 31,853 votes cast in the contest with Hurley getting 10,000, Wes Quinn 8,000 and John W. Knorr 5,000.

Gov. Ed Mechem, the same who is running for governor again, and State Republican Chairman Harry Robins, the same who is fighting Mechem this year, backed Quinn of Clovis against Hurley. Knorr, the third candidate, was the Republican state chairman in 1930 when the Republicans won the governorship for the first time in 20 years, but soon after the election was replaced by Robins who had been chairman in Albuquerque.

Republicans often attract 100,000 votes in the November general election but have never had more than the 31,853 counted in 1932 in a primary election.

ALBUQUERQUE HOLDS ELECTION OUTCOME

Political experts, assuming that the run for governor will be Dem. Gov. John Burroughs vs. Republican Ed Mechem are guessing that the race will be won or lost in Albuquerque.

Mechem carried Albuquerque against Burroughs in 1938 by 10,600 and lost the state by 1,900.

In 1950 Mechem carried Albuquerque against Gov. John Simms by 11,682 and won the state election by 11,225.

In 1950 and 1952 Mechem came out of Albuquerque with big margins that put him well ahead of John Miles and Everett Graham.

The Rio Grande city is getting so big and politically conscious that it could produce margins as high as 20,000 for popular candidates.

The first president to ride in an automobile was William McKinley. He was taken to a hospital in an electric ambulance after being shot by an assassin in 1901.

Desert Dan says:

Two super salesmen are on the road selling their goods—our President Ike and Russia's Kruschoff. Ike has a message for cooperation and freedom in his briefcase, while Kruschoff has a package of state control with "security." I believe Ike'll win the gold medal on this one, even though the Russians did whip us in the Winter Olympics.

Ancho U. P. W. studies "Hymnbook of Ages"

The Ancho U. P. W. met at the home of Mrs. B. A. Hightower on Thursday, Feb. 18. Following a covered dish luncheon, the meeting was called to order by President Dorothy Straley.

Ethel Hightower led the devotional and also reviewed the previous chapters in the study guide, "Hymnbook of the Ages."

Lillian Richard, Elva Wilson, Dorothy Straley, Ethel Hightower and Ruth Wilson were program leaders discussing the Psalms, placing emphasis on nature, historical psalms and psalms of confession and forgiveness.

Following the business meeting and reports of secretaries, the meeting was adjourned, with the group repeating the purposes of the U. P. W.

Members attending were June Straley, Dixie Bond, Ethel Hightower, Rose Harley, Vernelle Hightower, Lillian Richard, Elva Wilson, Dorothy Straley, Ruth Wilson and Lavona Miller.

Our picture show has been running on the usual schedule of 6 o'clock in the evening for the past two weeks. The tentative change, as announced by Mr. Vigil previously, was only a fair warning to avoid unnecessary disciplinary measures to be imposed on ambulatory patients for infraction of rules of the hospital. Let's keep our records unblemished and return to our homes well and happy!

The maintenance crew boys keep the walks well sprinkled with heavy salt these icy mornings, preparatory to the early arrival of Dixie. Experience is the best teacher and Dixie now wears heavy akids and slows her gait as she walks on the Fort Stanton sidewalks. Some happy hooligan wisecracked that she should wear chains on her shoes. "No," Dixie remonstrated. "I have attracted enough attention already to be a contestant on 'Queen for a Day'."

We celebrated Washington's birthday with a white blanket of snow. We had snow all day and night, but it fell very light and soaked right in.

An Italian designer says your favorite suit someday may be the color of your favorite wine, and he adds: "Winos can wear pale clothing mornings after." Palo is right, for confirmed winos will have no pants to wear let alone a suit the color of their favorite brand.

"I won't ever again let my mind run in the channels of evil," said hubby to his wife, as he embraced her and gave her a passionate kiss. "No," said wife, "it's already overspilt in the torrent!"

It is an identical photo or reproduction of one taken of Theodoro Garcia in the Fort Stanton shoe shop several months ago, and which appeared with other Fort Stanton photographs in a Sunday edition of the Albuquerque "Journal."

To be sure about this, we showed the picture to Garcia and he vouched that it was himself; but how the picture went from Albuquerque to Santa Fe is a deep mystery. Garcia has not a twin brother who is a cobbler, so if it's not Theodoro, he certainly has a "double" in Santa Fe.

Hasta la vista, Louise Rummel!

TALKING BACK

By HOMER REID

Many letters I receive as the writer of this column express indignation because I state views that do not conform to theirs—and therefore must be wrong. They tell me that I'm not interpreting the Bible correctly (although "correctness" is meant to mean—according to their idea), and doing more harm than good, etc.

Frankly I expected controversy and would have been deeply concerned if no one had written and if no expression of interest had been made at all. Complacency is the greatest of all sins. Perhaps then we can discuss this whole idea of "interpretation" with some chance of helping each other—please don't think that I set myself up as an "authority" in any way whatsoever; but I do consider myself a "seeker." I do not claim to have all the answers—and I don't think anyone has them all. I don't think anyone is infallible and I don't think the last word has been said on anything yet.

Now I know that many of us believe that Jesus Christ is the last word in man's discovery of God, and that therefore all progress in our religious thinking ends in the manifestation of him, who was God's Son, who was the fullest expression of God that any human life could carry. But even so, inasmuch as we are still exploring the character and teaching of Jesus and still finding new implications and revelations in what He said and was, progress goes on and will go on until, if ever, all that He said and was and is exhausted by human understanding.

It is not disparagement of the Old Testament to state quite definitely that the revelation of the nature of God which we find in it is gradual. Some people imagine that although science is continually brought up to date and its older views discarded, religion, because its approach to truth is different, is content to be static.

Science finds its way by experiment and discovery; religion finds its way by experience and revelation. But in a sense these are two aspects of the same thing. Nothing could be discovered unless God revealed it, and nothing is revealed until men discover it. The scientist of today repudiates the scientific assertions which passed as truth a hundred years ago. Science corrects its former judgments by repudiating the false ideas of earlier days.

Now I know that to the "orthodox mind" such a statement as the above one will horrify them, but before jumping to conclusions let us look at this a little further. We know that some parts of the Old Testament were written hundreds of years before Christ, and it is incredible that there should have been no progress in men's thoughts about God from those early times until the present day.

While we may find in the Old Testament words expressing such spiritual insight that they may still be used to clothe our own ideas and aspirations, that true fact ought not to blind us to another fact that some verbal pictures of God in the Old Testament are inadequate, that some words which describe God cannot possibly be true, that some teaching concerning the ways of God to men is utterly misleading.

Just as a scientist would find himself in unutterable confusion if he sought to meet the demands of today with the scientific knowledge of the First Century, so a modern Christian who really loves truth must be ready to relinquish those ideas about God which belong to a time when men had not thought their way through the problems they tackled, and had not received the light which Jesus threw upon the nature and methods of God.

Let us now apply that thought progress in religious thinking to some of the problems that many people are trying to face in the light of the Old Testament, when they should be trying to face them in the light of the New.

For instance, the problem of physical safety. In Old Testament days men were taught that they could rely on a kind of bargain with God: If a man trusts in God, it is up to God to take care of him. But Jesus did not talk like that. He never promised safety to His men. There is no magical insurance against physical peril for Christ's followers. Religion would be unspeakably degraded if it were so, and to be religious would be a wonderful insurance policy to take out, for the dividend would be the guarantee of personal safety, however foolish or fatuous one might be, or whatever peril one encountered. The flower of physical courage would be cut through at the root, for if one is guaranteed safety, one has no need to be courageous.

There is much more to say on this subject, but space forbids it this week. I would like to have some letters expressing opinions on this. As a final suggestion to help in the true interpretation of the Scriptures I think that we as followers of Jesus Christ should realize that every idea about God is wrong if, when truly understood, it conflicts essentially with that picture of God which Jesus Christ gave the world in his words and in his life.

Only by doing so can we obey what Jesus called the greatest commandment and love God with all our minds!

P. S. — Will answer "Amused" next week.

Cherry Pie Time

The legend of George Washington and the cherry tree was a charming myth, but it set in motion a very real and pleasant custom—cherry pie in his honor. This year, as American and foreign champions get together at the Olympic Games in Squaw Valley, the custom may well go international.

Feeding a hungry crowd of 1,200 athletes three times a day is a monumental task, accomplished only with careful planning and a big assist from modern time-saving convenience foods. Among the foods selected for the Olympic contestants' menu are Simple Simon's delicious fresh-frozen fruit pies. They are served exclusively at Squaw Valley, and offer just as much help for you in your own kitchen. Just pop in the oven, directly from the freezer—and out come luscious pies, every one a perfection of golden, tender flaky crust, brimming with juicy fresh fruit filling.

Celebrate the season with a marvelous Simple Simon cherry pie, and treat your family to all the other delicious varieties—green apple, peach, blueberry, boysenberry, pineapple and apricot. Enjoy them often—good for the family, simple for you.

Capitan senior is award finalist

A senior at Capitan High School has been named finalist in the 1950-51 competition of the National Merit Scholarship Corporation program and will be awarded a Certificate of Merit, according to Principal Duane Darling.

Mrs. Carol Allyn Bonnell will receive the certificate which attests to her high academic promise.

Mrs. Bonnell, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. James Bonnell of Capitan, distinguished herself by her high scores on two college aptitude tests used in the National Merit Scholarship program. About six-tenths of 1 per cent of the seniors in each state received the awards. A national total of 10,000 students were honored.

The National Merit Scholarship Corporation was established in 1935 with grants of $20 million from the Ford Foundation and the Carnegie Corporation of New York. The current program is the fifth that has been conducted.

The sixth program will begin on March 8 (alternate date March 10) with the National Merit Scholarship qualifying test to be given in an estimated 15,000 of the nation's high schools.

Previous experience indicates that the finalists will be offered some $2.5 million worth of fresh, man-year scholarship assistance from these sources. In addition to the awards made to those selected as merit scholars.

His survivors are his widow and two children. He was laid to rest in the Portales cemetery.

Pontiac producing new type school bus

Pontiac, Mich.—To meet what has practically become a national demand, GMC Truck & Coach division is producing a "pudger-type" school-bus chassis with outstanding advantages, according to Calvin J. Werner, vice president of General Motors and general manager of the division.

By placing the engine in the rear of this new GMC series, (SP5000) the disadvantages and drawbacks of previous school bus units are immediately removed while many entirely new improvements are gained, Werner said. Being manufactured, the new bus is well within the price range of most school districts.

The engine is mounted at the extreme rear of the chassis, parallel to the frame rails. Through the use of a short drive line, power is applied to the rear axle from the rear.

The transmission is a five-speed, manual shift, controlled from the driver's location by a shaft running to the gearbox.

Lovely Marilyn Harkey of New Mexico State University spent the week end with Mr. and Mrs. Harkey at their ranch home.

Little Miss Gail Lynn Barnett, whose parents live in Hatch, is spending two weeks with her grandmother, Mrs. John Straley, Ruidoso, Tommy J. and Susan.

Methodists to have week of dedication

The week of February 22-March 7 is the week of dedication for all Methodists throughout the nation and throughout the world. Trinity Methodist Church in Carrizozo will observe the week by a series of prayer vigils, special services, visiting and devotionals.

On Ash Wednesday the church will be open all day for prayer. Friday, which is "World Day of Prayer," the church will be open all day for prayer, with special hours of prayer at 7 a.m., 12 noon and 5:30 p.m.

A "Worship Center" will be arranged in the sanctuary and special music will be played during these hours.

Sunday, March 7, is "Dedication Sunday." The church extends a welcome to all to use the facilities of the church during this week of dedication.

'Three C' Alliance to breakfast here

Rev. John Abney announced this week that the "Three C's" Ministerial Alliance will meet Monday, March 7, for breakfast at the Baptist Church in Carrizozo.

All ministers are urged to attend this meeting, which will establish the "policy" of the alliance in the county concerning such controversial subjects as Sunday funerals, joint meetings of churches and ways to further the spiritual life of the community.

Juvenile delinquency and the problem of obscene literature will also be discussed.

Rev. Abney, the new president of the alliance said in a letter to Rev. Homer Reid, publicity director that "I believe we can do some good things by working together. The main thing is to keep our alliance 'Christ centered' as possible. We will be working with material things, but through Jesus they can be made spiritual."

The program includes a devotion to be read by Rev. James Wells of the Assembly of God Church in Carrizozo. "A Sunday purchase is a vote for Sunday business," Clarence Shaw will talk on "Sunday Funerals."

During the regular business meeting Rev. Bill Lytle will outline the organization and policy of other, older established ministerial alliances.

The ministers' wives will meet at the Baptist parsonage March 21 for a luncheon—a change in the date previously set.

OUR TOWN

Local artist exhibiting group of her paintings

One of Tularosa's own very talented ladies, Evelyn Campbell, will show a group of her paintings this month at Don Quixote's European Coffee House at 1004 Tenth street in Alamogordo.

Evelyn graduated from Tularosa High School, attended the University of New Mexico and now lives here with her husband and five children. She also has one grandchild.

Her interest in art was stimulated by a two weeks' class for beginners that she attended two years ago at Ruidoso. The class was taught by Mrs. Jane Davidson of Roswell.

Her pictures, all oils, will be on display from March 1 to April 1 and will be for sale at the coffee house. Evelyn has exhibited pictures at the Otero County Fair and was awarded ribbons. This will be a very outstanding show that we should all try to see.

The political pot is boiling and the candidates have all declared themselves. Everyone should find out all they can about what each candidate stands for—make your choice and then be sure to vote at the May primary. The majority voice of the people will be expressed if everyone gets out and votes.

Contestants for Maid of Cotton

Miss Viola Sartin and Miss Kay Campbell are two of the contestants in the Otero County Maid of Cotton show to be held April 23 at 8 p.m. in the Tularosa High School gymnasium.

Viola is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. E. B. Sartin of Tularosa. She is a senior at Tularosa High and is active in school affairs.

Judge Landon files for district judgeship

James A. (Jim) Landon, attorney-at-law, stopped in Carrizozo Monday, en route to Santa Fe to file as a candidate for election to Division I of the Third Judicial District of New Mexico.

His candidacy will be in opposition to Judge W. T. Seoggin, incumbent, in the Democratic primary of May 10.

In announcing his candidacy for district judge, he states that his only endeavors in public life have been in the interest of improved administration of justice in magistrate court in Las Cruces where he has presided since January of 1950.

Judge Landon married in Milwaukee in 1937 and took up residence in the Mesilla Valley the following June, where he owns his own home and where he is presently engaged in the private practice of law. Both he and his wife, Peppie, have taught in the public schools.

He received his bachelor of science degree from New Mexico A & M, in May of 1942, and was soon thereafter called into active service in World War II, serving his country honorably until his discharge brought about by disabilities incurred in service.

He received his legal training in residence from 1945 to 1949 at the College of Law, University of Arizona, graduating with his bachelor of law degree in May of 1949. He was examined for proficiency in the law by the bar examiners of the state of Arizona, and admitted to the practice of law in Arizona on October 2, 1949, of which bar he is still a member.

Kennecott Copper Corp. declares dividend

At the meeting of the board of directors of Kennecott Copper Corp. in New York a cash dividend of $1.25 per share was declared, payable March 24, 1950, to stockholders of record at the close of business March 2, 1950.

It was estimated that some 11,000 shares were born in the United States on February 23—the record day on the 1950 calendar.

Grizzlies fourth in district tourney

The Eunice Cardinals advanced to the regional tournament of the New Mexico Class 5B basketball competition last Friday night by handing the Grizzlies of Carrizozo a 79 to 62 defeat in the district playoff in the Roswell gymnasium.

Zona turned on a full court press in the second half in an attempt to slow the taller Cardinals' scoring spree, but the resultant fouls were costly to the Grizzlies as starters Fred Vega and Bobby Richardson fouled out.

The Carrizozo five played a fine game but just could not match the sharp shooting of their opponents. The Grizzlies missed 22 free throws which partly accounted for the big deficit at the game's end.

High point men for Carrizozo were B. Greenhaw with 22 and J. Beltran with 14. High for Eunice were Smith with 17 and Hall 12.

The box score:

Carrizozo	fg	ft	pt	tp
Beltran	5	4	2	14

Herrera	5	1	4	11
Greenhaw	9	4	4	22

USING GRAIN SORGHUMS CAN REDUCE FEEDING COSTS
Although the moisture conditions are good for spring weeds, plan to keep your livestock thrifty so they can take the best advantage of these spring weeds. It's much easier to keep them in good condition than it is to try to build them back.
There is no set feed that is best, but many ranchers prefer a pellet feed as it blows less and is easier to feed. Salt can also be added to these pellets to limit the amount used. Generally, never add over 30% salt to any feed mixture. Cottonseed meal or cake is used in nearly all range feeds. As grain sorghums are cheap, many feeders use them. One salt mixture I like is 200 cottonseed meal, 200 grain and 100 salt, or add 10% molasses and have it made into a pellet.
With alfalfa hay getting scarce, use grain sorghums to replace part of the hay and cut the cost of feeding.

FARMING AROUND
By Mark Welsh
Will you be farming in 1975? Those who will, according to Oklahoma researchers, will have farms double the present size and will be in special rather than general farming. Producers are expected to meet high quality standards at specified times and they will have a quarter- to a half-million dollars invested in each farm. Why don't you get out your crystal ball and see what your holds for you? I busted mine.
Alcohol As Fuel
Can alcohol from surplus grain, waste potatoes, little apples, and other farm crops be made to run farm tractors and machines?
This idea comes up every year. Some see this alcohol business as a solution to the whole farm problem. Unfortunately, the expert committee on the appropriate study this could not find such an easy answer. They reported that if we were to give the distillers the grain free of charge and they used the best methods now known, a gallon of the alcohol would cost about as much as a gallon of gasoline. Even then the farmer wouldn't buy it because its octano rating

By Mark Welsh
Will you be farming in 1975? Those who will, according to Oklahoma researchers, will have farms double the present size and will be in special rather than general farming. Producers are expected to meet high quality standards at specified times and they will have a quarter- to a half-million dollars invested in each farm. Why don't you get out your crystal ball and see what your holds for you? I busted mine.
Alcohol As Fuel
Can alcohol from surplus grain, waste potatoes, little apples, and other farm crops be made to run farm tractors and machines?
This idea comes up every year. Some see this alcohol business as a solution to the whole farm problem. Unfortunately, the expert committee on the appropriate study this could not find such an easy answer. They reported that if we were to give the distillers the grain free of charge and they used the best methods now known, a gallon of the alcohol would cost about as much as a gallon of gasoline. Even then the farmer wouldn't buy it because its octano rating

"Some of the cavalry men of the Mounted Rifle ran for their horses, threw on their saddles, and most of them would have made good their escape but for the cowardly action of their superiors who ordered them to stop and turn over. A few reached Fort Craig a few days afterwards in bad condition; their horses given out, and themselves almost dead from hunger, thirst and fatigue."

"For many hours after, struggling teams and men on foot, in wagons, and horseback arrived to learn of their chame. One plucky infantry man, coming down the hill a few miles from camp, cutting straddled on his field piece, was not by a few rangers who ordered him to 'get off there and surrender this cannon, Mayor Lynd has turned over the whole outfit.'"

"The temporary artilleryman laughed at them, and thinking perhaps that his fellow stragglers would aid in his efforts, answered 'never shall this here piece be turned against the North as long as I have life in me and hands to defend it.' But the poor fellow, he quickly fell off the field piece, ridden by the rangers."

"Major Lynd and his men were marched back to Mesilla, and then sent up to Fort Craig with only enough arms to keep guard. When the men reached Albuquerque, each carrying only a stick, the regular troops and volunteers stationed there were kept back only by almost superhuman efforts of their officers from stealing Major Lynd and such of the officers, who, either through cowardice, or treason to the government who had educated them at the nation's expense, had helped to advise surrender. The whole force had orders to continue their march to the States, where they were kept doing garrison duty on the frontier in Michigan until relieved from patrol."

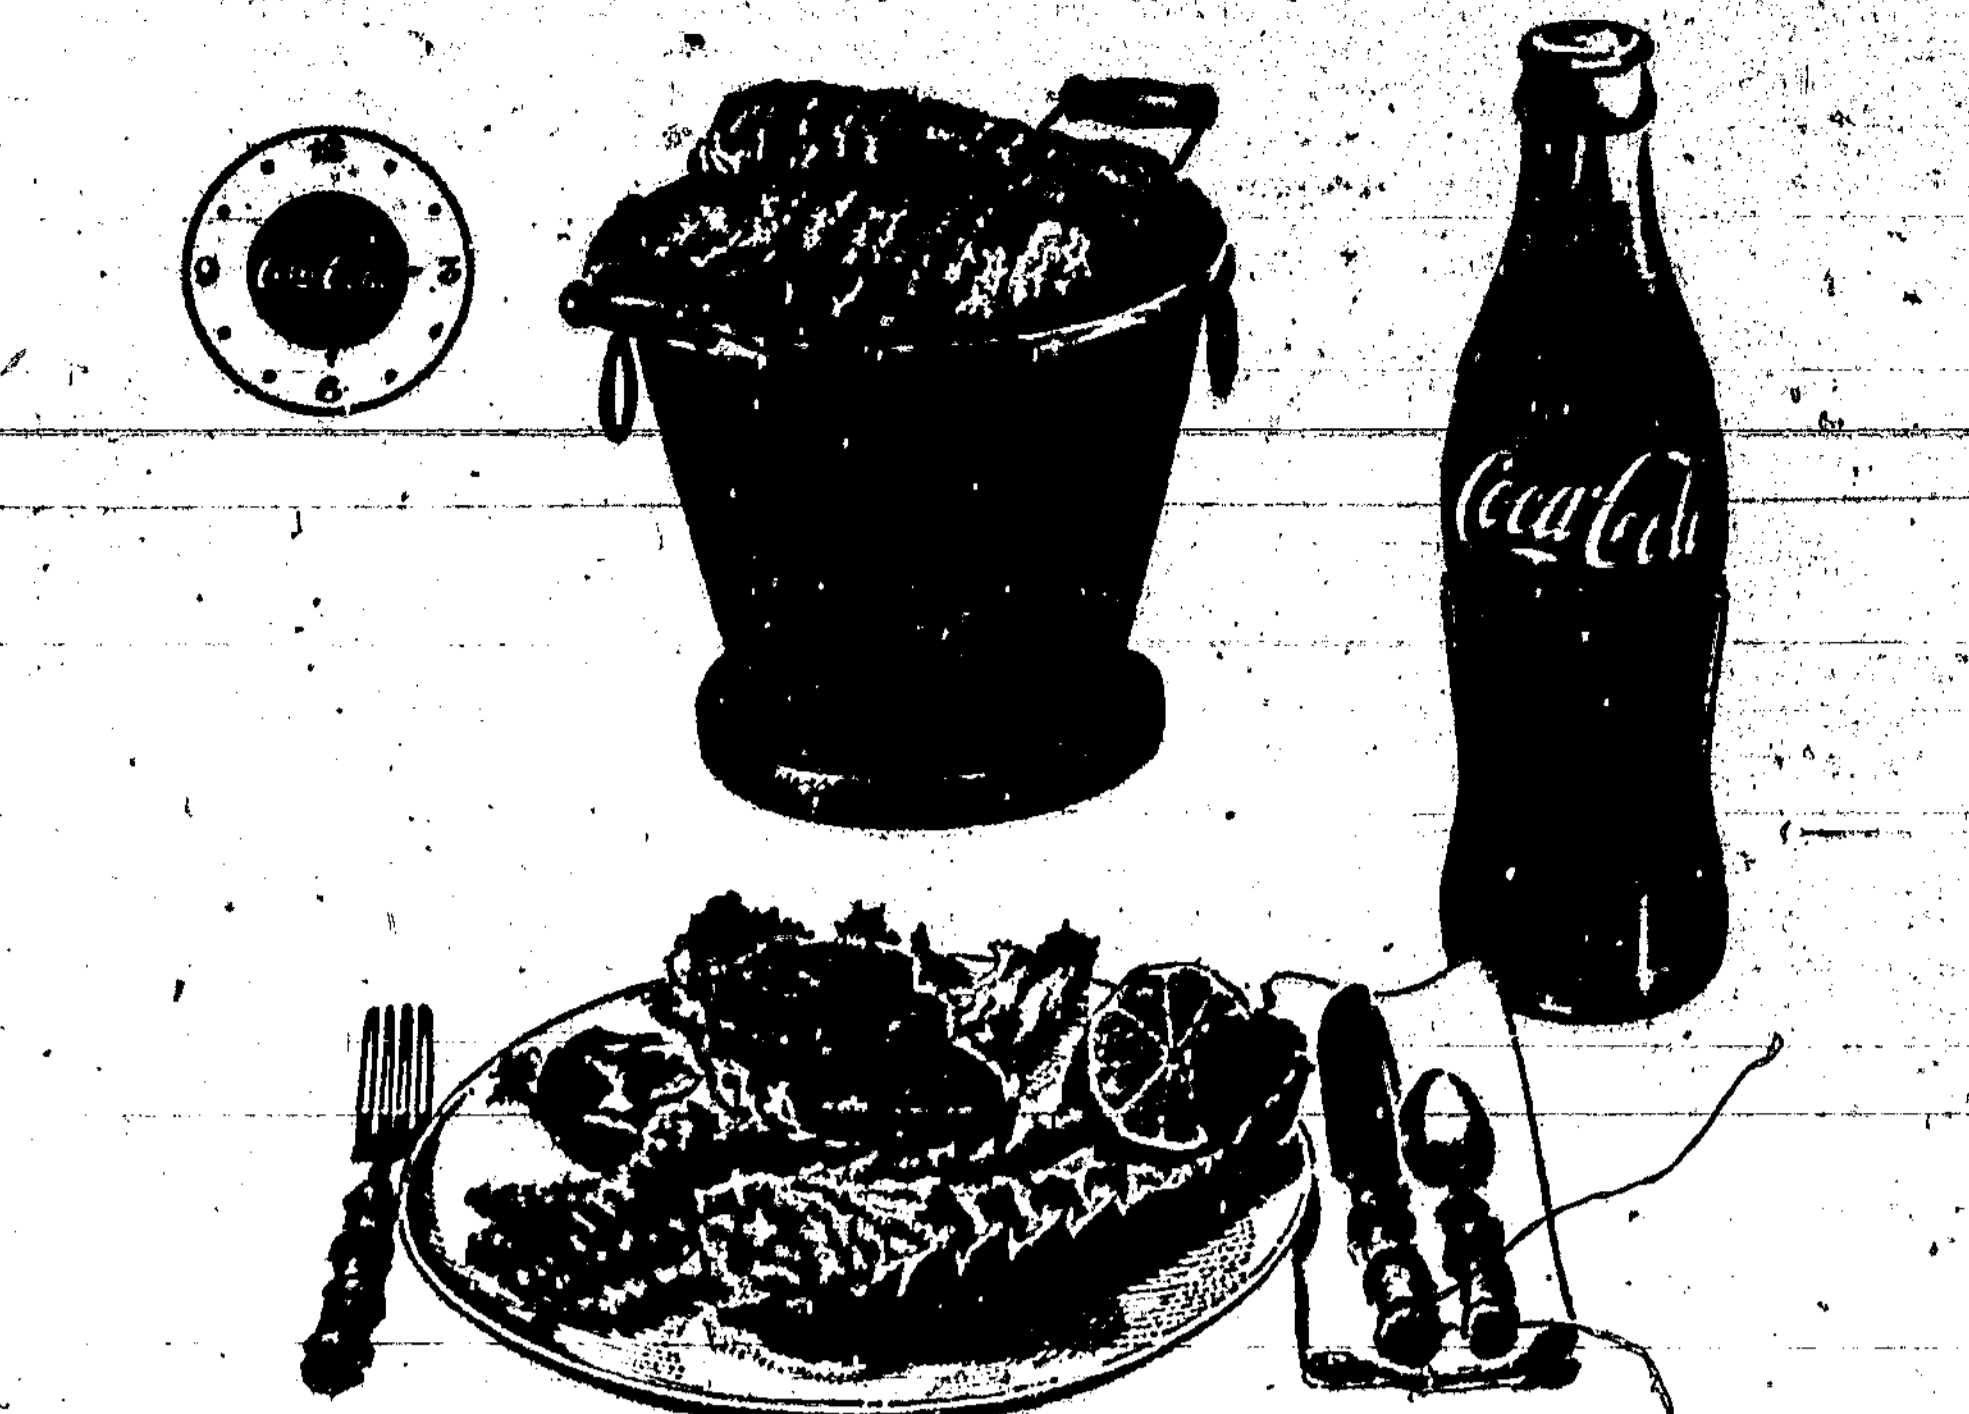

"Colonel Loring had left the department of New Mexico, leaving thereby Colonel Canby in command. One of the officers then stationed in New Mexico as paymaster was Mayor Longstreet. He resigned and was furnished transportation to Fort Bliss, Tex. There he turned over ambulance, mules, and all the funds in his hands, with a clean balance sheet, saying, 'Although circumstances have forced me to be henceforth a foe, the Government of the United States shall have no cause to say that I am not a gentleman.' Indeed he was one of the many who left their position of trust and honor without blemish to his character other than that he thought to be on the right side."

"Volunteers were called out and nearly four thousand men formed themselves into five volunteer regiments. They under the following officers: 1st New Mexican Vol., Colonel St. Vrain, who soon thereafter resigning left his command in the hands of the renowned Kit Carson. The second under Colonel Manuel Pino; the third under Colonel Gallegos; the fourth under Colonel Diego Archuleta, and the 5th under Colonel Ben. Roberts, Captain of Mounted Rifles. Most of these were concentrating about Forts Craig and Union."

"The winter of 1861-62 came along and the volunteer companies, composed mostly of native Mexicans with here and there an American, German, Frenchman or other foreigner, as commissioned officers or non-coms, had ample time to be instructed in the rules and regulations of war and manual of arms."

"My friend, Captain Mink of Anton Chito, was then assigned with his company down the river, along the Jornada, to watch the enemy. Dad Luck had it that the Confederate scouts in the vicinity learned of his whereabouts and one fine morning he found himself surrounded. Though trying to make his men cut themselves through, his efforts were of no avail, and

Diamond Panes Add Beauty

There's no doubt that diamonds are a girl's best friend. You can have these unique new diamond-shaped window inserts of plexiglass in her home. The inserts, consisting of a frame and millions without glass, are slipped in place inside the window and can be removed to provide a single glass pane for easy washing. The inserts are a particularly important new product for the home because they are available from leading material dealers to fit every window manufactured by major wood window producers. The inserts are "diamond" shaped so they are called, combine the beauty, style, and traditional richness of diamond pane windows with ease of washing and painting.

'Togetherness' Works Out Best In Home With Two Living Rooms

Two 21-foot living rooms and complete air conditioning are among the unique features of this colonial-styled ranch house that would make it ideal for any family.

Emphasis is on family living. One of the living rooms is designed as a family room that may be used as a dining area, a TV room, a game room, or a study. Both rooms have fireplaces. Sliding glass doors open on a spacious terrace along the entire length of one of the living rooms.

Traditional styling is carried out with colonial stucco shutters, and a cupola atop the gable. Double-hung windows are of ponderosa pine, and a paneled door of ponderosa pine graces the covered entrance.

Stone facing on the center exterior wall accentuates the beauty of the wood siding and gives appearance of richness and strength. The stone is accented by asphalt shingles in a deep green shade on the roof. This deep tone adds color but preserves the traditional dignity of the design.

Built into the garage is a work bench for the home handyman. The full basement provides space for a work shop, recreation room, laundry area, and storage. The house also may be built without a basement.

Specifications for insulation call for 3 inches of mineral wool in the ceiling, at least 3 inches in the walls, and a minimum of 3 inches in floor over unheated areas. This lowers the initial cost of air conditioning equipment, makes its operation more efficient, and keeps heating costs at minimum levels in winter.

Additional details, blueprints, and specifications may be obtained from Home Plans, Inc., 2810 Grand Street, Detroit 17, Mich. Ask for design # 194.
