Fair time is just around corner

The Lincoln County Fair board, meeting at the city hall in Capitán on August 18, agreed to pay Frank Pino $1,000 for six acres of land he owns adjoining the Fair grounds on the west side. Conclusion of the sale is pending on Pino furnishing an up-to-date abstract.

The board members agreed that youngsters would not be allowed to enter both the junior and adult rodeo events. They'll have to declare themselves either man or boy.

Saturday, September 9, at 10 a.m. Twelve prizes will be awarded and each band will be paid $20 travel money and 50c a member for meals.

Mrs. Charles A. Jones gave the treasurer's report. The Smokey Bear Stampede had receipts of $2,624 and debts of $3,649. The difference was made up with $800 on hand and $670 received from the brand board. About $1,800 was spent on improving the Fair grounds this summer. The board expects to be able to pay for the Pino land within a year.

Entries for Fair premiums will be limited to those in Lincoln County. Several requests from outside the county have been received to enter certain divisions and they will be refused. The year has been a little dry, up to recent weeks, which is expected to cut down on the range beef cattle division. Dry weather doesn't make for fat cattle. There are 11 classes in the beef division, all open to entries from Lincoln County.

Mrs. N. E. Britton was complimented on the fine parade last year. She'll be the chairman again this year. The parade will be held

Mounted patrol launches safety campaign to reduce accidents

Safety on highways, in the home, and elsewhere is to be the subject of a safety campaign being launched by the local Troop 5, New Mexico Mounted Patrol. In a letter to business firms and others in the area, Lt. Charles A. Jones of the Mounted Patrol said:

stopped. We do not hope to have a cure-all for the large number of accidents that have occurred in the last few months on the highways, or in the home, but we do feel that if we urge people to use more caution in work, play and in the home, that we can help the local authorities and various organizations that have for so long a time carried the ball for the safety of our citizens.

County draft call takes a whopping jump

The U. S. military buildup was being felt in Lincoln County this week as the draft call was issued for given men in September. Only one was called in August.

Traffic fatalities are almost double in Lincoln County this year over last year, and percentage-wise, Lincoln County leads the state in fatality increase.

The program will be carried on through publicity in the newspapers, through the schools, use of window posters, a telephone campaign urging everyone to practice safety, the issue of a small safety card and bumper strips, and the holding of several contests. Among them will be a safety slogan contest, and for 10 days we will try to find the most courteous driver in the county.

Joe Skeen gets nod as GOP head

It took the Lincoln County state senator Joe Skeen in virtual assurance of the state Republican party chairmanship.

At a central committee meeting in Albuquerque last weekend all of the delegates approved Joe for the position—but a legal technicality prevented his official recognition as party leader.

Seems he can't be a senator and GOP chairman both as a minor change was made in the party rules. After a 30-day wait another central committee meeting will be held to officially elect Skeen to the position.

Attending the Albuquerque meeting from Lincoln County were these members of the state central committee:

Mrs. Gladys Knox, Ruidoso; Mrs. Pauline McFright and George Sienoras, Honda; Mrs. Geraldine Randall, Capitán; Willis Lovelace, Corona; and Lloyd Vigil, Carrizozo.

Also attending were H. H. Shier and daughter Linda, and Ralph McGuire of Ruidoso, and Mrs. Mildred Moore, Carrizozo.

THE OLD MASTER IS AT IT AGAIN

Sharty Miller, sole proprietor of a local liquid refreshment emporium, this week announced the inauguration of a "Toll Tale Contest."

"Anyone," says Sharty, "may enter. I will accept Republicans and Democrats alike, and each story will be judged on its merits alone. Since I am probably the greatest liar in the county, I will disqualify myself from participating in order to give all a chance." (And that's no lie.)

Last minute Fair information

Word from Mrs. Charles Jones is that the "Broad Board" at Capitán will be repainted soon and those who want their brands or name on the board should send in their donation immediately.

There is still room for some booths at the Fair and organizations should contact Mrs. Jones, Box 123, at Capitán.

County Agent Ralph Dunlap points out that the Lincoln County Fair has the only range livestock show in the state and urges ranchers to show their cattle—even if affected by the early dry spell.

"Things are not as bad as most think," said Ralph.

More than 25 trophies will be awarded to the winners at the Fair.

MARRIAGE LICENSES ISSUED

August 18 — Charlyne F. Byers, 19, Ruidoso Downs, to Edward Lee Nicol, 23, Marysville, Ohio.

JOE SARGENT being removed from debris of blown-up house. Attending him is Dr. A. N. Spencer. In this photo, taken minutes after the explosion, Joe was still pinned in the rubble. He was coherent, despite multiple injuries and shock, but later his condition worsened. Behind him is Dick Butts, off-duty Red Canyon soldier who helped lift adobe wall to release Joe.

Tragedy strikes Sargents as house blown to bits

An explosion Saturday morning, apparently caused by accumulated gas, completely demolished the home of Mr. and Mrs. Joe Sargent in Carrizozo and put Joe in the hospital in extremely critical condition.

M. A. Romero, deputy state plumbing inspector, checked the plumbing Monday and said the explosion couldn't have been caused by sewer gas, reported Means.

Mrs. Sargent was blown from the house, but Joe was in bed and the walls and roof fell in on him—nearly a ton of frantically heavy adobe brick was lifted off his body to release him.

Means said the double blast that occurred when the house blew up apparently were from two gas pockets under the floor. Said he: "The north section of the living room blew up first—it could have been ignited by a pilot light, static electricity, most anything—and that ignited the second blast, under the south side of the house. The roof went up, the walls went in."

One of the first men on the scene, Tom O'Neil, cleared rubble from Joe's head and asked if he was hurt. "My feelings and my leg," whispered Joe. He was lifted onto a stretcher and rushed to the hospital—where his condition became critically worse. At first he was thought to have only a broken leg, but Saturday evening he went into a coma and was still unconscious four days later.

The house is considered a total wreck, with nothing salvaged except some pieces of silverware and Mrs. Sargent's jewelry. It was only partially covered by insurance, she said.

Dr. J. E. Turner, who attended Mrs. Sargent, said his injuries included: brain injury, multiple contusions over the entire body, fractured ribs, fracture of the left eye, and pneumonia complicating the fractured ribs.

Mr. and Mrs. Sargent have owned and operated the Yucca Bar in Carrizozo for many years, and they owned their home which was on Highway 64 north of the town business district.

Charon Sargent, his wife, was in the bathroom applying make-up when the blast occurred at 9 a.m. She was blown from the house and suffered a leg cut. Later that day she went into shock and was given sedation at the hospital, but was reported to be improved Wednesday.

He has been active in civic work, currently is president of the Chamber of Commerce and chief ramrod for the rodeo association.

Dr. Turner said at 11:28 a.m. Wednesday that "There hasn't been a great deal of change but what changes have occurred have been in his favor. He's holding his own at the present time."

Superintendent J. T. Clapp said he expects total enrollment to hit 300 when all new children are in. Last year there were 406 enrolled initially.

The state gas inspector, A. V. Peterson, arrived the same day as the blast. His conclusion, said Carrizozo fire chief Rex Means, was that the "valve on the water heater wasn't functioning, allowing propane to accumulate."

The enrollment, by grades: First, 21; second, 31; third, 18; fourth, 23; fifth, 21; sixth, 23; seventh, 24; eighth, 19; seventh-eighth grade group, 20; ninth, 51; tenth, 34; eleventh, 40; twelfth, 23.

TORRENTIAL RAINS last weekend caused minor flooding in the east part of town. Here's scene as the muddy overflow courses through town during the height of the storm.

Quarrel begins after city sales tax is passed

The city council tentatively passed a one-cent city sales tax Monday evening.

But protest petitions were being prepared 24 hours later.

The city sales tax was conditional on the sale of the city's power distribution system to Otero County Co-Op.

Proponents say REA would provide lower electricity rates, as well as assuming the city's $228,000 debt which is paid from power revenues.

(That wouldn't put the city out of debt—we'd still owe $300,000.)

But opponents prefer to see the city remain independent as to power distribution, and believe the system brings in enough profits to pay the indebtedness and keep the lines in repair.

The one-cent city sales tax would be necessary to make up for the loss in income from the power distribution system.

Only three of the city trustees were at the meeting Monday night: Albert Roberts, Duff May and Jete Voss. Absent was Leonardo Vega.

Also on hand were 14 spectators, and each of them favored the sales tax and sale of the system. Dr. J. P. Turner presented a petition with about 33 signatures urging the same thing.

But another petition was shown by Albert Roberts, protesting a sales tax, with about the same number of names.

Actually, the sales tax proposition will go to a vote of the people in 60 days — if they reject sale of the power system, there will be no need for the sales tax and the city will continue to rely on power profits for operation.

That's assuming the sale of the system ever comes to a vote. If the protest petitions now being circulated get enough signatures (less than 100 needed) the sales tax ordinance would probably be voided on at a special city election, and if defeated, would preclude the power system election.

Mayor W. F. Ball has been personally active to replace the power system profit with a sales tax, and in a statement (which follows) outlines his reasons. A number of Carrizozo power users have been invited to meetings to discuss and give support for the proposition in the last few weeks. Trustee Leonardo Vega appeared at the council meeting, then left before it opened, protesting the meetings held with smaller groups in the days before council met Monday.

Here's Mayor Ball's statement:

"So the people may know . . ."

"A special meeting of the town board of trustees was held Monday evening at which appeared 23 or 24 citizens of Carrizozo who presented the following petition to the board:

"We the undersigned citizens and taxpayers of Carrizozo, being mindful of the fact that your board has been discussing the sale of the power distribution system of this town and also mindful of the fact that a large part of the revenues derived from the present operation of said system have been necessarily used for the operation and expenses of this town, and being further mindful of the fact that if the system is sold, these necessary revenues for the town's operation must be obtained from some other source, and further being mindful of the fact that the laws of the state permit the board of trustees, by ordinance, to adopt a 1 per cent sales tax on the sale of certain commodities sold within the town limits,

Now therefore, we petition your board to pass an ordinance adopting a 1 per cent sales tax on those commodities sold within the town limits of which a state sales tax is now being paid, with the proviso that said funds will be used to replace such revenues or profits that might be lost should the sale of the power system be made, and with the further proviso that if the sale of the system is NOT approved . . ."

$15 cash each week for football contest wins

The Lincoln County News, with the cooperation of business places in Capitán, Corona and Carrizozo, has a new feature this week—a football guessing contest with a $15 cash award.

Don't follow fire truck!

Fire Chief Kenneth Means said this week that traffic tickets will be given to anyone other than firemen and police who follow the fire truck.

Next week and each week thereafter the contest will list eight games. The first contest, games played September 1, should be a lot of fun with only a three-game list. The winner will probably have to guess close to the exact score each team makes.

To enter the contest, simply clip out the list of games from this issue of the News (for week of September 1), fill in the scores you think each team will make and mail to the News, Box 303, Carrizozo.

To make it easier the News will distribute to all business places in the contest a set of self-addressed postcards containing the contest list. You may get these cards each week at your favorite merchant and use them to make your entry.

The deadline for entries is Friday noon, the day of the games on the contest list. It costs nothing to enter, and you can win $15 each week and have lots of fun following the success of high school teams in the area.

Remember, your entry for the first contest must be postmarked or delivered to the News by noon, September 1.

Sandia Crest suggested for trip of week

ALBUQUERQUE—Long before Sandia and Kirkland Air Force Base were instrumental in turning Albuquerque into the vital and progressive place that it is today, the Duke City attracted hordes of visitors, annually.

Climate, a heritage of history and romance, scenery and Indian Pueblos—these were some of the things that drew the visitors to the largest city in New Mexico. These elements are still very much present, and still attract sightseers in ever growing numbers.

Although atomic energy and jet planes have provided fuel for the spectacular growth of Albuquerque since World War II, the city has not lost sight of its strictly tourist attractions. Albuquerque has wrapped its principal tourist attractions in one colorful package, and titled it "The Turquoise Trail."

"The Turquoise Trail is a loop drive, beginning and ending in Albuquerque. Each year, thousands of travelers take this handy detour from busy highways to go exploring in areas of New Mexico which are off the beaten path. A good way to begin a tour of the Turquoise Trail is to travel east from Albuquerque on U. S. 66 for 26 miles to the little town of Tijeras, and there turn north on State Road 10, directly into the Sandia Mountains.

The Sandias, themselves, were not created in the usual manner. They consist of a geological fault which slopes upward from the east, and then drops down from the cliff walls facing west. At some time during the earth's period of great upheavals, the ground tore upward and created this vast stepping stone.

Sandia Crest is easily reached via a good mountain road. The official altitude is 10,678 feet at the peak, offering an unparalleled panorama of central New Mexico stretched out below.

Glistening with pinpricks of reflected sunlight, Albuquerque is seen as a sprawling little map. The Rio Grande lies like a bright ribbon, extending from north of Santa Fe to Socorro. On the horizon, isolated peaks stand against the skyline. Winds whistle through the trees, and Sandia Crest seems like the top of the World to the visitor.

A few feet from the Crest itself, coffee, refreshments and souvenirs are available at the Sandia Crest Trading Post.

Leaving the astonishing views from the Crest, the Turquoise Trail leads downward through the colorful village of Placitas to state road 422, a new highway leading to the Pueblo of Santo Domingo, 40 miles north of Albuquerque.

Here is one of the most conservative of New Mexico's pueblos. Camerons are tabna, and the Indians cling to their ancient ways. Although the Corn Dance at Santo Domingo on August 4th is always heavily attended, the Pueblo insists on strict observance of their rules by visitors. Great quantities of pottery and jewelry are produced here, which is sold primarily to the tourist trade. A trading post is adjacent to the pueblo.

From Santo Domingo, the Turquoise Trail leads south to Colorado State Monument, which is at present going through a struggle for survival. The Monument might be considered "the cradle of New Mexico history, since it was here, or nearby, that Coronado made his headquarters during his great journey of exploration in 1540.

The Monument consists of the remains of Kanau Pueblo, which has been excavated and partially restored by the University of New Mexico. It gives perhaps the clearest picture in the state of what a pueblo looked like at the time the Spaniards first visited their wild northern province of New Mexico.

The lava or ceremonial chamber at Kanau is famous for its fantastic painted murals, depicting religious ideas which held—and may still hold—vast inner significance with the Indians.

Back to Albuquerque after a day of thrilling sights, Old Town Plaza is a fine place to refresh the spirit and satisfy the appetite. The original site of Albuquerque, more than 250 years ago, Old Town now contains picturesque shops and excellent restaurants.

For those in search of atmosphere, Old Town is hard to beat. The Plaza contains a little wrought iron bandstand and lanterns, also of wrought iron, stand about the Plaza. Lacy metal benches are useful as well as decorative.

The Church of San Felipe de Neri, constructed in 1706, looms majestically on the north side of the Plaza. The overall effect is one of charm and quiet beauty, closely linked with a past that has long since faded from view in most other places.

Mosquitoes have definite ideas about what they like

University Park, N. M.—Why do mosquitoes bother some people and leave others alone? There's no simple answer. Entomologists who study these pesky insects know many things affect the way mosquitoes are attracted to man and animal.

Experiments by entomologists at the U. S. Department of Agriculture's insect laboratory in Orlando, Fla., show that mosquitoes have definite "tastes" for certain things, according to John J. Durkin, entomologist with the New Mexico State University Extension Service.

The researchers dressed a man in a lightweight flying suit that kept water vapor, carbon dioxide, and other gases from escaping to the air around him. He was placed in a small room with three man-size dummies and 300 mosquitoes. His breath was drawn outside the room through a hose.

The mosquitoes seemed to notice no difference between the man and the dummies. But when the man seemed to breathe (carbon dioxide was released above his head at a rate about equal to normal breathing) he attracted more mosquitoes. The pests also were attracted when a cloth suit was put over the man's flying suit—regardless of whether or not he "breathed out" carbon dioxide.

The researchers then uncovered the man's face—no difference, but when his hands were uncovered, the mosquitoes were attracted. These mosquitoes, Aedes aegypti (scientific name), prefer the body. Another group (Aedes taeniorhynchus) is lured more to the face than the hands. This shows that different types of mosquitoes aren't always drawn to man and animals for the same reasons.

Other insects don't always respond alike, either. Horse flies prefer red cattle to white ones, entomologists found in one study. Stable flies showed little preference between red or white breeds—but both stable and horse flies liked black cattle best of all.

Why do the researchers make these studies? What do they hope to gain? If they can find the main reasons mosquitoes and other insects are attracted, this information can be used to develop repellents, insecticides and baits that have more effect than those known today. Perhaps repellents could help "cover up" these things that attract the insects. The information also could lead to better baits for drawing and trapping the insects.

Plastic Containers are new package for Fluid Milk

University Park, N. M.—Plastic-coated containers have been developed for packaging fluid milk. These new containers are designed to replace the present wax-coated cartons, says Gordon Ellis, dairy specialist with the New Mexico University Extension Service.

The new carton was introduced and became the big attraction at the Dairy Exposition in Chicago last November. It is a variation of the present wax-coated carton. It has a polyethylene coating on the fiber carton. The new carton does not require glue for forming, wax for coating or staples for closing. It comes with the plastic coating already on the carton. All that is necessary is to shape the carton and heat seal it into form, points out Ellis.

Manufacturers of the containers say the new cartons will eliminate the costs, inventories and handling of wax, glue and wire; prevent the contact of wax and milk and loose wax particles in the milk; and away with leaky milk cartons, and improve the appearance of the milk package.

Plastic containers are currently being used on a trial basis in several cities and other installations will follow as soon as additional packaging machines are manufactured.

He got the truck and went to the fire with his wife, Enla, called Mrs. Sam Allen and she in turn called Walter Schneider at Alto. Sam Allen, Walter Schneider, Gil Peters and Robert Rummels assisted Charles Carter in fighting the blaze. They used four tank loads of water and all agreed that the water hoses were adequate to do the job and were well pleased with all of the equipment.

The cause of the fire was due to the explosion of a gasoline stove in the cabin. Its location was just south of Rummel's Cafe and the firefighters worked very quickly and efficiently to keep the blaze from damaging other property.

Change of residence of a highway commissioner to a place outside of the highway commission district from which he was appointed shall automatically terminate the term of such commissioner. No more than three of the commissioners shall belong to the same political party. Each of the commissioners, in order to qualify as such, shall take the usual oath and execute in favor of the state a surety company bond, in a form approved by the attorney general, in the amount of twenty-five thousand dollars ($25,000) conditioned upon faithful performance of his duties.

The governor shall submit the appointment of commissioners to the senate for confirmation not later than the fifth day of each regular session of the legislature. If the senate confirms the appointment, the governor shall submit further appointments until one is confirmed. The senate shall act upon all appointments within ten days after submission by the governor.

The appointment of each commissioner shall become effective upon the date of confirmation by the senate and no commissioner shall be appointed in any event without confirmation of the senate except that when a vacancy occurs due to the death or resignation of a commissioner during the interim when the legislature is not in session, the governor may appoint a successor to fill the vacancy until the next regular session of the legislature, at which time an appointment shall be made for the balance of the unexpired term.

In the event the governor refuses or fails to submit the highway commissioners to the senate for confirmation in the manner above provided, the senate shall appoint and confirm the highway commissioners.

The members first appointed shall determine by lot from among their group two members to serve two year terms, two members to serve six year terms, and one member to serve a four-year term.

Highway commissioners shall not be removed except for incompetence, neglect of duty or malfeasance in office. No removal shall be made without notice of hearing and an opportunity to be heard having first been given such commissioner.

The supreme court is given exclusive original jurisdiction over proceedings to remove highway commissioners under such rules as it may promulgate and its decision in connection with such matters shall be final.

The state highway commission shall appoint a competent chief highway engineer who shall be chief administrator of the state highway commission and shall have charge of the hiring and firing of employees of the state highway commission, subject to the control and supervision of the state highway commission.

Tax quarrel

proved by the voters of this town, as required by law, then the aforesaid sales tax will not be collected and said sales tax ordinance shall be rescinded or nullified.

"The Otero County Electric Co. Op., Inc., has offered to purchase the entire distribution system of the town. They propose to take over our indebtedness of $228,000, rebuild our entire system at a cost of over $100,000, and furnish free power service for the city hall, in return for a transfer of the distribution system and the generators.

Also, in lieu of the customary franchise tax, the Co-Op proposes to provide the town with free street lights and maintenance which would cost the town an estimated $4,000 a year if we chose to collect the franchise tax and maintain the street lights ourselves.

Such a deal would mean the saving of about $10,000 a year in interest alone on the bonded indebtedness, and a saving of several thousands a year on the expense of maintaining the distribution system. The ordinance under which the original power bonds were sold required a certain amount to be set aside each year to guarantee interest and bond payments in the event of default which reserve fund now amounts to over $30,000 which can not be tapped until the bond issue is paid. If the sale of the power system is approved, the $30,000 would be returned to the city to be used for the common good.

Now as we all know, electric rates in Carrizozo are high compared to other communities. The IEA or the Co-Op's rates are lower in all three schedules than our present rates. Anyone may obtain a copy of the comparative rates at the city hall. Our high rates have been necessary for the payment of principal and interest on the bonded indebtedness and have impeded the payments for the operation of the city such as salaries, cover service, garbage, etc. plant and many other necessary expenses.

So in order to get rid of this heavy debt burden, obtain a new and better distribution system, cheaper power rates and a not unimportant item—the advantage of industrial rates which we can not now offer, and still keep the city services which we need and deserve, we will need another source of income, hence the sales tax has been proposed. At a meeting last Monday evening such a tax was passed by ordinance by the board of trustees as provided by the state laws, with the understanding that if the sale or transfer of the distribution system is not approved by the voters, the sales tax ordinance would be rescinded or nullified.

One can readily see that in the final analysis the people of Carrizozo are being given the opportunity of actually voting on both propositions, to the sale of the distribution system and the sales tax. As the general public is aware, the mayor has, during the past 10 days, called together small groups of citizens at four different meetings to find out their feelings on the matter and the feasibility of the sale of the properties after a careful study of the matter, a large majority of the business people and citizens have expressed themselves very much in favor of both.

This brief summation is given to the Lincoln County News so that you people may have a better understanding of the entire situation.

W. F. Ball, mayor

One can readily see that in the final analysis the people of Carrizozo are being given the opportunity of actually voting on both propositions, to the sale of the distribution system and the sales tax. As the general public is aware, the mayor has, during the past 10 days, called together small groups of citizens at four different meetings to find out their feelings on the matter and the feasibility of the sale of the properties after a careful study of the matter, a large majority of the business people and citizens have expressed themselves very much in favor of both.

This brief summation is given to the Lincoln County News so that you people may have a better understanding of the entire situation.
