MONTOYA FRIENDS SNARL AT SIMMS

SANTA FE — Selection of former Gov. John Simms as a major officer in Jack Campbell's campaign for governor has stirred anxiety and animosity among the followers of U. S. Rep. Joe Montoya.

PARTY CHAIRMAN PICK CANDIDATES

Montoya's buddies are concerned not only about possible appointment by a Democratic governor but also about control of the Democratic party if the Republican Mechem is re-elected.

NATURAL PLACE FOR CAMPBELL

Many political observers think that Montoya and Simms should put aside any dreams they might have of being appointed to the Senate by Campbell.

GOVERNOR SERVICE HARD IN LAWYERS

Law practices don't wait on lawyers who take time out to be governor as Gov. Tom Mabry, John Simms and Ed Mechem can testify.

NOTHING WRONG IN EYEING SENATE

There is nothing reprehensible in any ambition Campbell might have for the United States Senate, aside from the presidency itself it is the highest level of American politics.

Fort Stanton

By J. S. C.

The folks of Mike and Victor Martinez were here from Carlsbad last weekend to visit them and their other three brothers. It was a family reunion with the majority of the family here in Fort Stanton. They had to bring clothing for Mike, as he has outgrown what he brought with him. He doesn't grow upwards, but keeps putting on weight around his torso and hips. No reducing for Pachuco Mike—he eats a whole chicken in one serving and brings some home for a night snack while he watches TV.

Fernando Martinez had visitors from Tucuman last Sunday. Fernando is one of our old friends of Tucuman, when we resided at that place from 1952 until the fall of 1958.

Carmen Maes of Alamogordo has been re-admitted to the hospital.

FORT STANTON GETS IN WIN COLUMN

The Fort Stanton Blues have finally won two baseball games, without exerting themselves. They won both games via the forfeit route. Scores 9 to 0.

They went to Mesquero on August 5 and the Apaches failed to show up on the field. Last Sunday they were scheduled to come here and again they failed to show up.

The crowd contented themselves with waving and patronizing the Trading Post, where ladies Gomez, Aldaz and Baca dispensed the usual drinks and confections and also Hot Dogs.

There were quite a number of cars on the picnic grounds.

Felicia Castillo had visitors from Livingston last Sunday.

Read in Will Harrison's column a short time back, where a certain superintendent of a State Institution, was patting his head on the chopping block (resigning.) Undoubtedly the gentleman is of high intelligence and well-qualified for the responsible position he held at still holds, but we cannot fathom how anyone with his name could even pass the Personnel Act. Let you guess the name and figure it out for yourself.

Mrs. Wilbur Wren spent Monday here with her husband, leaving on the evening bus for her home in Roswell.

Louis Derrick went out on a short pass to visit his parents at Nogal.

All the people of Fort Stanton tender their sympathy to Mrs. Hatfield Lacy, our schoolteacher and family, on the death of her husband, John Lacy, who died at his home in Captain, August 9.

Mr. Lacy was one of the oldtime cowboys of the Block Ranch at Cienega del Macho.

Mrs. Eltha Merrell of Captain assists Mrs. Frances Shaw in the local postoffice, when the former is absent. Mrs. Merrell is an old-timer in Fort Stanton, when her husband worked here for the U. S. Marine Hospital many years ago.

We have a good flock of humming birds in the lilac bushes around the large evergreen in the center of the parade grounds, so we ask the girls to please close their eyes when they go near there. But look first for pests underneath the evergreen.

"My husband sure is mad at you because you called him a 'Missus' in the paper the other day." "You tell your husband that we newspaper people don't know what we are talking about half of the time. And besides, you two have been together so long, that it's hard to tell you apart. We are not apologizing, because we never make a mistake or tell a lie. What's writ is writ!" The trouble with many people is, that you say something nice about them and it will go unnoticed, but say something detrimental and they detonate like retarded gas.

Patricia Romero is giving Typing instructions to the older girls of No. 12 in the Typing Room adjoining the Library.

Dr. H. C. Jernigan and Mrs. Jernigan spent a few days boating and fishing at Elephant Butte Dam. A much-needed relaxation for Dr. Jernigan, as he was here alone in the hospital during Dr. Rosenblatt's vacation and Dr. Logan's stay in the Hospital in Albuquerque.

Members of the Maintenance Crew and everyone in Fort Stanton extend their sympathy to Epifanio Carabajal, whose sister passed away in the Carrizozo Hospital last week.

Saw an old picture at the O. T. Department, of a detachment of Cavalry on the parade grounds in Fort Stanton in 1853. Our grandfather, Jesus Sandoval Esca, carried the mail for the post at that time on mule back with lead pack mule. As far as we know, he might be in that group of cowboys on the parade grounds.

A party of four Top Brass and a woman from Walker A.F.B. near Roswell, visited Fort Stanton one day last week and Dr. Jernigan took them on the rounds of the different installations in Fort Stanton.

The carpenters were busy in the O. T. Department last week, building the Fort Stanton Float for the County Fair at Captain on Sept. 7 and 8.

There will be many entries from Fort Stanton in the Fair.

Chris Zeulas of No. 4, genuinely Greek from Athens, Greece, is very short in stature, but loud in vocabulary. The other morning he went to feed the ground squirrels and had a handful of lettuce. Just so the poor little birds would not get their share, he struck his hand in the hole with the verdure and one squirrel bit his finger. He hastened back in the door, jabbering at the top of his lungs. It was in his native tongue (Greek to us) and we cannot get him to tell us what he was saying. Nothing worth repeating, you can bet on that.

Medical Orderly Harold Martin, (also Greek) has short grey curly hair and the girls call him "God-dess." He lives up to his nickname and goes out of his way to do an errand for some patient, especially at mealtime.

Orderly Joe Montano is the castor of good nature and is called "Patience." Joe never talks unless talked to and you never see him fly-off-the-handle.

There are a few males and females who are the reverse. They are like Louisiana Hot Sauce and ready to sting you at the least provocation. (That's why we choose not to mention their names.) Ouch!

Chidreella lost one of her golden slippers. Big Jim went down to the creek on one of his forays one day last week, and returned minus one of his moccasins. He accused everyone in his room of having stolen the golden slipper. One of the boys from Bachelor's quarters traversed the baseball field, to go to the laundry, and found Big Jim's treasure where he had bedded down for the biggest part of the afternoon.

Mrs. Floyd Burdick was here from Captain to spend Thursday with Mr. Burdick.

Mr. and Mrs. Serapio Montes of Captain have returned to duty after their vacation, which they spent visiting relatives in Belen, Tono and Albuquerque.

The Roadrunner, which had been restricted to quarters for several weeks due to insubordination, has been given her release and she has joined the other members of the Menagerie. Asked her how she felt after her long confinement and she replied: "Give me liberty or give me death!"

Two more Beauties have joined the Fort Stanton Nursing Staff, namely: G. Vanderhaeven, L. P. N., of Roswell, and R. Duran, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Barney Aldaz of Rancho de Torres.

We still have much respect for white uniforms, but these girls are irresistible, so we are jumping the traces to call them Beauties.

Looks like us and Henry Sanchez are about to sign a Peace Treaty. He got their names for our news column. Now, it not only gives us a hand in the institution.

Joe Duran of No. 3 is quite a Carlosty Soaker and we call him "The Bandolero" (the Rover Boy). Joe is not very tall, but he takes long strides when walking and no sooner you see him in one place, when you see him in another. The only trouble with him is that he is never at the right place at the right time. If the Roadrunner was not under parole, we'd suggest that he would team up with her, but Joe giggles.

Scientific advances step by step

By Walter Hubbard

In closing the subject of concentrations & selective froth-flotation it is pointed out that the scientific advances in any field seem complicated unless the sequences are followed with one step logically following the other. We simply creep, then learn to walk, and then run; the steps taken make it easy for those following. The early work in flotation led later to the discovery of natural phenomena which permitted the physico-chemical concepts about the importance of the condition of the surface of a mineral particle and the attractive forces of re-agents that could be absorbed on such a surface to repel water yet attract an air-bubble. The bubble of air or gas can then carry the filmed mineral particle to surface. Here again another agent, a frother can assist in holding the bubbles together as a mass for removal from the flotation-machine as a concentrate of minerals in a froth. The work of separations of minerals can then be made on a tonnage basis very cheaply. This is what makes flotation so important to mining and marketing of ores. A mine can market its ore profitably when such means are available, as the history of mining has revealed.

From the steps developed by men, machines and ideas, the need for water-content control in a pulp was seen; the use of special re-agents to act on a mineral and not another also demanded a need to know whether the circuit was acid or basic, and the degree. This brought in pH (hydrogen ion content) control. The timing of re-agent to change the surface of a mineral leaving another inactive also was evolved from experience. Too fine a grinding, "aiming," seemed to create colloids and they behave differently than a mineral-particle. So work in this direction with other re-agents were developed. All in all there is much to the fineness of the art of flotation, and things yet to learn, but it can never be a true science because surfaces respond differently. It is known that even identical mineral, but belonging to different ages of depositions, do not respond exactly alike.

So despite the scientific "know-how," there can not always be duplication between laboratory and practice. Yet the pattern for proceeding in making mineral separation with optimum recoveries on giving ore can be plotted in the laboratories which are equipped to do all phases of such testing from concentration of plant design "flow-sheets," as the circuits are called in the mill.

The tendency for small mines and mills, too many times, is to make investments in the work and equipment, but leave little for the control end. The mill operator, has to be able to know where to make his adjustments in a flotation plant immediately, for once the mineral goes by the cell it is lost. Although a long experienced operator in a mill can spot the trouble and know what to do from experience, it is well to have something more than "eye" to go by to determine pulp densities, and recoveries. If a high efficiency is to be expected, the absence of controls and assays is much like building a house by "eye," having no level to work with. It can be done, but that is about all. The "flat" size, batch flotation-machine is also an invaluable aid to a flotation plant particularly when different ores are to be run. No successful mine, or mill, is without out controls. Profitable effect in mining; and efficient milling require them.

In summary, the first article brought out the starting point, a need for geological assurance for preliminary work before too much is involved. Is there a body of ore? Is there an average value to justify more investment? Then what are the marketing conditions at present, or near future?

The second phase and all important, though often missed to one's sorrow afterward, is the need for right-thinking, and the continuance in its moral, ethical, and spiritual premises always, — or there is unprincipled failure and decadence into greater illusions, — no matter how rich the mine, or how much mine can be thrown into the gap.

LINCOLN COUNTY NEWS THURSDAY, AUGUST 23, 1962

to off-set what is missing, right thinking. To build on sand is like trying to use two multiplication tables and expect to get an answer. The Principle of Truth is violated, and nothing can be substantial. What seems to be gain, only compounds the error carried along as loss finally multiplied.

The third demand is for economical practices. A saving is simply an added profit, and it does not pay to ship ores any great distance. The actual values say of 100 pounds of copper which makes 60 pounds at smaller minus their deductions process losses, treatment charges etc. But to pay for hauling 20 times the mineral weight to smelter, then to pay for tonnage of rock there also is not good sense, and generally totally uneconomical. No merchant could afford to stay in business and act in such a ruinous way; nor can mining. Hence the imperative need for a contractor to make mining a business, particularly if the added values of other minerals in an ore are to be paid for.

An effort has been made to show how false steps may be avoided in mining just as in any business, but it has also been shown how mining as a business, can bring in a great new wealth to inaugurate a solid economy. In fact with out the business of mining, there would have been no national progress, a stone age.

Bringing the potential of Lincoln home to the thought of each, and especially to the future of Carrizozo which because of its strategic location at the cross-roads and having a main railroad-line serving it, with four trains daily together with the great undeveloped mineral wealth surrounding it on all sides, has a potential that few have. But even false thinking militate against any progress, whereas it is a civic pride with the individual and collective urge and effort to attain a high goal that created proud monuments for future generations.

Properly with the development of such great wealth, coming slow at a time when economic re-adjustments can not be longer avoided by the continual raising of the national debt. It is well to give serious consideration to the potentials at hand. A mineral wealth is not to be squandered recklessly, but as a natural gift must be used effectively to bring social and economic benefits, or it might just as well be left in the ground, dead and buried as it has been awaiting an understanding for its wise use, perhaps even by future generations. But this need not be, if we each learn by past mistakes and realize that "one must give to receive" and that extraction alone can destroy just as our taxes have been doing to venture-capital to bring out an impending economic re-adjustment. The Golden Rule is still the positive rule for all peoples for all times. Arawakening of civic pride and an effort to make one place of living, as well as that of others attractive, not only invites tourists to stay but wins a favorable report instead of a "by-pass" by any business survey, if some new and novel business seeks a location.

Good Health Through Better Living the 4-H Way

Prepared by National 4-H Service Committee

There were not always four H's in the 4-H Club clover emblem. About 1909, a three-leaf clover overlaid with three H's was designed, and made into pins. These were awarded to prize-winning corn club members, forerunners of the 4-H movement. The original H's stood for head, heart and hands, as they still do.

Then in 1911 at a meeting of club leaders in Washington, D. C., a pioneer of boys' and girls club work, O. B. Martin recommended a fourth H be added. This represented "health," and thus the purpose of the clubs became fourfold. A half century later, the health H continues to fulfill the expectation of those farighted Americans who pioneered the now world-wide youth organization. The fourth H inspires boys and girls from both farm and city to strive for "better health" and prepare them to resist disease, enjoy life, and make for efficiency," as stated 50 years ago.

Next November, six 1962 national 4-H Health program award winners will be selected by the Cooperative Extension Service. Each will receive an all-expense trip to the National 4-H Club Congress plus a $400 college scholarship. It is a fact that all 2.3 million 4-H club members pledge their "health to better living." But more specifically, well over three-quarter million members are engaged in the national 4-H Health program, according to the Cooperative Extension Service.

This space-age health program has well defined objectives, and offers gratifying awards. Members themselves gain physical fitness through exercise, proper diet, rest and recreation. What's more they participate in county-wide health projects, and give leadership to health activities locally.

BONITO BITS

By Louise Ruppels

We have a jack rabbit's head with short horns mounted by Lewis Farris in Carrizozo about 8 years ago when he was doing mounting work. This old hop-a-long trophie pecially with Texas. I wish Lewis could hear some of the questions and answers.

Mr. and Mrs. Hall, who own their own home in Capitan and now have their home in Albuquerque, were in Kinloch last week. They are retired and wealthy and healthy looking. I know cause they visited me Ruppels one morning. They are still interested in Lincoln County and are thrilled over its growth since they raised their family here. There was a big crowd for the chuck wagon dinner and will be more next year, so be ready John!

Post office construction concentrated in areas where need is most urgent

Construction of the new post office at Capitan was further advanced yesterday with the announcement by Postmaster J. Edward Day that a contract has been awarded to Hollis O. Cummins, P. O. Box 267, Capitan, to build and rent the building to the Post Office Department.

"We are continuing to build new post offices where they are needed," Mr. Day said, "but we are constantly re-assessing our lease construction program to determine whether present buildings can be altered or remodeled to take care of our expanding volume of mail."

The construction program is being concentrated in those areas where the need is urgent and suitable space cannot be obtained except through new construction.

"We now have about 45,000 post office locations throughout the country, handling a volume of 65 billion pieces of mail a year. By 1970 it is expected to rise to 90 billion. It is clear, therefore, that we must redouble our efforts, not only in expanding our capacity but also in devising new postal techniques to meet the demands of our growing population."

Under the Department's Lease Construction program Hollis Cummins will construct the new building on the northwest corner of First and Bonito Streets and rent it to the Department for five years.

The Department's capital investment is limited substantially to postal equipment, while the building remains under private ownership, with the owner paying local real estate taxes.

"This formula," Mr. Day said, "utilizes the resources and investment funds of private enterprise for needed postal buildings."

The new post office at Capitan will have an interior space of 1,271 square feet, and an area of 3,692 square feet for parking and movement of vehicles.

was selected from a large number of applicants to receive this training which carried a stipend from the National Science Foundation. The purpose of the Institute is to assist teachers in providing subject matter necessary for effective and stimulating instruction, including recent advances in science.

Outstanding nationally known scientists gave lectures and demonstrations. Field trips, laboratory studies, and experiments featuring the "do it" approach received emphasis in order to help the teacher interest his students and channel them into science careers where the need is great and is becoming greater.

Tours included the Reelfoot Lake, Kentucky Woodlands and Tennessee Wildlife Refuges, the Calvert City industrial area and others. On the trips plants, rocks, birds and insects were studied. In the laboratory the minute structure of living things was observed through the microscope and outdoors the heavens were watched through the telescope.

THE LONG and SHORT OF IT IS

Fences - Barbed Wire Fences

SOME TIME AGO I had a little to say about rail fences, their appearance in the timber country, the amount of work involved in their construction, and that barbed wire followed immediately in their wake over the prairie sections. But no detailed mention was then made of the strife and trouble that transpired among the plainsmen when the wire was introduced.

This is a little about the subject, even though volumes would be required to cover it thoroughly - and their certain portions would be omitted, as the impudence of this era was of such a scope as to be most difficult to annotate.

SOME genius who more than likely during the time was called a damn smart-aleck, if not names of stronger nature - around St. Louis, shortly after the civil war, invented barbed wire. I believe this date is at least approximate. Everybody knows something about the commodity, because its introduction created such a turmoil that it has never been forgotten. Its mention then, almost the same as, today in many ways, was a first cousin to fighting terms. Everybody has had their problems, and it is to be remembered that every fence has had problems, too!

When the timber country with its virgin forests petered out, and the back-breaking process of splitting rails faded out of the picture, barbed wire appeared as a method of enclosing homesteads and certain parcels of land which individuals laid claim to, as their property. It was a method much faster for enclosing a piece of land than that of the rail fence, and served many purposes. Operators on the free range had no use whatsoever for a fence, and with its appearance, range wars rapidly dominated the plains country.

Many of the western pioneers had left the eastern sections because fences were crowding them and they sought space. Those who sought elbow room, can be no better described than one of their remarks: "That has been handed down from the times. He had pulled his small caravan onto the east plains, and halted. No sign of man was to be seen.

With rifle resting in the folded crooks of his arms, with the eye on a eagle, and with portrayal of powerful light and determination, he declared, "Yep, this is what I've been huntin'." This is my land, as far as eye can see!" And we fire to be reminded that such a statement covered a large scope for as he traveled, he could still see farther!

These frontiersmen had already been antagonized by the rail fences of the country which they left, and they did not yield readily to the barbed wire fence - you can bet your bottom dollar on that!

However, despite the first howls about the fencing operation, it was not stopped. The issue at once, as a flashing meteor, flared up, hotter than hell. And a wagon-load of barbed wire and a fencing operation spelled nothing short of bloodspill and endless property damage.

With its first appearance, the resulting problems became so hot that politicians backed away from it, and refused to have anything to do with the matter. Therefore, each homesteader, each freeranger, each rancher, and each free-range operator fought his own battle, in his own way, with blood in his eye, with sharp fangs, and hot-barbed wire - shoot-out!

TEXAS felt the heat of the bloody issue first. Other states soon followed. By 1883, practically every county in the prairie country of the Lone-Star State was bogged down, to their necks, much of it blood, in the mire of the fencing problem. Most cattlemen either owned or leased the land they operated, and they enclosed it with barbed wire - many times including lands of the public domain, as convenience of the fencing was sufficient, usually following the path of least resistance, and probably never thinking out any acreage which was possible to incorporate into their own holdings. And there's a fence law on that too - after the fence of an individual has enclosed a certain acreage for a certain time, it becomes legal, his property, regardless of the former boundary lines.

Those first fence enclosures included the choice water holes of the country, public roads, and everything that was convenient to fence. This enhanced the value of the property.

Free-rangers had no use for such operations. It harassed them and obstructed open range grazing. And they lost no time in communicating to cut and slash the endless strands of barbed wire which was "hooking" them from free grass, and freedom of operations.

Drought conditions also poured a hot-hot fire onto the issue, when water became scarce and the choice water holes were all fenced in. Very shortly blood soaked the fence line, as bands of fence-enclosed men cut and destroyed the fence line, and the land-owners were soon hunting during the day.

THE LONG and SHORT OF IT IS

Fences - Barbed Wire Fences
SOME TIME AGO I had a little to say about rail fences; their appearances in the timber country, the amount of work involved in their construction, and that barbed wire followed immediately in their wake over the prairie sections. But no detailed mention was then made of the strife and trouble that transpired among the plainmen when the wire was introduced.
This is a little about the subject, even though volumes would be required to cover it thoroughly — and then certain portions would be omitted, as the turbulence of the era was of such a scope as to be so difficult to annotate.
SOME genius who more than likely during the time was called a damn smart-aleck, if not names of stronger nature — around St. Louis, shortly after the civil war, invented barbed wire. I believe this date is at least approximate. Everybody knows something about the commodity, because its introduction created such a turmoil that it has never been forgotten. Its mention then, almost the same as today in many ways, was a first cousin to fighting terms. Everybody had their problems, and it is to be remembered that every fence has had problems, too!

When the timber country with its virgin forests petered out, and the back-breaking process of splitting rails faded out of the picture, barbed wire appeared as a method of enclosing homesteads and certain parcels of land which individuals laid claim to as their property. It was a method much faster for enclosing a piece of land than that of the rail fence, and served many purposes. Operators on the free range had no use whatsoever for a fence, and with its appearance, range wars rapidly dominated the plains country.
Many of the western pioneers had left the eastern sections because fences were crowding them and the felt "humped in." And they sought space. Those old plainmen who sought "elbow room" can be no better described than one of their remarks that has been handed down from the times. He had pulled his small caravan onto the east plain, and halted. No sign of man was to be seen.
With villa resting in the folded crook of his arm, with the eye of an eagle, and with portrayal of powerful fight and determination, he declared, "Yep, this is what I've been huntin'. This is my land, as far as eye can see!" — And we are to be reminded that such a statement covered a large scope for as he traveled, he could still see farther!

These frontiersmen had already been antagonized by the rail fences in the country which they left, and they did not yield readily to the barbed wire fence—you can bet your bottom dollar on that!
However, despite the first howls about the fencing operation, it was not stopped. The issue at once was a fencing contest, flared up, hotter than hell. And a wagon-load of barbed wire and a fencing operation spelled nothing short of bloodspill and endless property damage.

With its first appearance, the resulting problems became so hot that politicians backed away from it, and refused to have anything to do with the matter. Therefore, each homesteader, each landowner, each rancher, and each free-range operator fought on his own, in his own way, with blood in his eye, with cheap gangs, and hot-sharred blades—shooters!
TEXAS felt the brunt of the bloody issue first. Other states soon followed. By 1863, practically every county in the prairie country of the Lone-Star State was bogged down to their necks, much of it blood, in the mire of the fencing contest's mad, cat-and-mouse game. On leased the land the owner fenced and they enclosed it with barbed wire—many times including lands of the public domain, as consequence of the fencing task, usually following the path of least resistance, and certainty never closing out any acreage which was possible to incorporate into their own holdings. And there's a fence law on that too—after the fence of an individual has enclosed a certain acreage for a certain time, it becomes, legally, his property, regardless of the former boundary lines.
Those first fence enclosures included the choice water holes of the country, public roads, and everything that was convenient to fence in—and enhance the value of the property.
Free-rangers had no use for such operations. It harassed them and obstructed open range grazing. And they lost no time in commencing to cut and slash the endless strands of barbed wire which was "hooking" them from free grass, and freedom of operations.
Drought conditions also poured a hot-hot fire onto the issue, when water became scarce and the choice water holes were all fenced in. Very shortly blood marked the fence line, as bands of fence-busters broke, and destroyed the fences by hand, at the head-chargers constructed during the day.

Suppression of fencing feuds was a die-hard proposition for all concerned, and required more than a decade to simmer it down. Fence destruction slowly dwindled away, but never completely eradicated; as one might think. And even today fencing problems continue to exist, and rarely does a month pass without the notation of some major fence complexity. However, today, they are handled in milder manner!

Today, it will be noted, the fencing problem continues to be a headache to the legislative branches, and laws are piled high onto the already huge stack, making research difficult.
Many people contend that a law still exists in Texas which prohibits the possession of pilers, or any other fence cutting tool, while traveling about over the country, which brands it as an unlawful act. But the long catalogue of enactments concerning fences almost defies the researcher who would verify such an enactment, even if they declare they'll scrape the bottom of the barrel, or else find it. While the search, other laws are being dumped into the bin.
Only a short time ago, lawmakers were forced to pass new fence laws in Texas—laws to prevent the enclosure of public sections, and don't become excited when you pick up the newspaper today, or tomorrow, and read of fencing troubles; because you will not have read any NEWS. It happens all the time!

THE LONG AND SHORT OF IT IS... The fencing operation will always be a problem, today as in the past. The term itself has a heritage—TROUBLE!
I've had my neck stuck out in fencing problems, in grazing country, as has every other man who needs fences. Once I enclosed a little piece of land, with a fence that would "turn" or "hold" my stock. The adjoining property-owner refused to "chip-in" his share of the cost of fence construction, declaring he needed no fence. And I told me, "If you want one, go ahead and build it!"
I did, and on the property line. Later, at the country store, he blazily boasted how he'd outfaced Old Carson. And added that if he had a few more neighbors, like as such, he'd have his land fenced without having to dig into his purse. Of course the word reached me. "Did my blood ever boil! I'll know next time, because there's a law that governs such a condition, in some states, provided you can dig it from the gigantic pile!"
Fencing problems were a common topic as I grew up. Every man that ever enclosed a piece of land, knows the trouble that can arise from them. Even the old zig-zag course of the rail fence and the fence-rows around the corn fields created eye and night mares, back in youth, whose zig-zag courses were always built on the most fertile soil of the farm, and weeds grew taller and more dense there than anywhere else in the world. When frost fell, they died, and a fire-hazard existed.
Therefore, annually, war was declared on the weeds and bushes in that zig-zag course and on that fence-row. A Moskeeb-hoe crusade was enacted, and the rubble was all cleaned out to prevent a possible fire destroying the old rail fence which had so laboriously been constructed many years before—and clear the bushes from the fence-row to prevent spreading and eventually "taking" the farm.
— And, too, very likely some junk will fence SPACE—whether it be of barbe wire, or with some other material yet unknown to man, we do not know. But we are inclined to believe the task will be no greater than the fencing of the Southwest! And we know it took blood and guts to perform that task!

By the fall of 1863, damage from wrecking fences in Texas was estimated at $20 million. Brown County alone claimed $1 million of that sum. The blood wasn't measured; neither were the sore knuckles for the rounds of ammunition accounted for. The strife discouraged farming and scared out of the country many prospective homesteaders. Tax valuations declined $30 million, and the issue was so hot state politicians would have nothing to do with it. Every free-ranger, every rancher, every homesteader, and every individual connected in any way whatsoever with barbed wire had blood in his eye, and an individual weapon of some sort with which to deal with the situation.

The Texas Governor John Ireland called a special session of the Legislative Branch for January of 1864, to enact some sort of measure to cope with the turmoil and bloodspill of the prairies. Lawheads raked their brains, and went to work. Crude and bungling laws were passed to cope with the tedious situation. And ever since that called session, an endless string of enactments have found the way into the statutes. Texas Rangers were dispatched into the field to enforce the legislative decisions. Their battle was most difficult, and many times taxed the ingenuity of that famous band of law-enforcing individuals.
Suppression of fencing feuds was a die-hard proposition for all concerned, and required more than a decade to simmer it down. Fence destruction slowly dwindled away, but never completely eradicated; as one might think. And even today fencing problems continue to exist, and rarely does a month pass without the notation of some major fence complexity. However, today, they are handled in milder manner!

Editor, Lincoln County News
Carrizozo, New Mexico
Dear Sir:
We would appreciate your letting us borrow some space in your "Letters to the Editor" column to express publicly our appreciation to some of the citizens of Carrizozo who helped make an unpleasant experience bearable.
On July 27 late in the afternoon we developed car trouble about twenty miles west of your city. Mr. W. H. Rickerson answered our call for service and was of great assistance that night in getting us into Carrizozo and finding a place to spend the night. When it became evident that parts were needed for our car, Mr. Rickerson loaned us his automobile to go to Albuquerque to purchase those parts. Mr. Rickerson's generosity allowed us to get our car in running condition at least one day earlier than was otherwise possible.

We are also indebted to Mr. Johnson Stearns at the Lincoln County Branch Bank who was so helpful and understanding in making necessary financial arrangements.
Finally we would like to say a

ANCHO

By Dorothy Straley

Guests at the home of the E. I. Harkeys for a patio supper Saturday night were Mr. and Mrs. Howard Harkey and children, Mr. and Mrs. Tom Knight and children and Mr. and Mrs. Shrivens, con Mark and Mrs. Shrivens' mother of Carrizozo.

Mr. A. C. Bodman of Radnor, Ohio, who-with his wife is visiting at the Jicarilla cabin of his son, Bob and family, sighted and killed a large rattlesnake Sunday morning about three miles from Ancho. The huge diamondback weighed five pounds, measured 4 feet 10 1/2 inches in length, and 8 inches in circumference.

Mr. and Mrs. Walt Wilson and sons are visiting in Las Cruces with Ruth's mother and family. Ruth's older sister, who resides in Illinois, surprised all the family by a trip to New Mexico, and Ruth made the trip to Las Cruces to visit with her there. It had been quite a few years since they had seen one another.

Mr. and Mrs. J. A. Hightower and Lee Straley enjoyed a delicious covered dish luncheon at the Paul Westberg's in Corona Sunday prior to settling down to the business of a church session meeting.

Mr. and Mrs. Howard Harkey and children attended the Kid's Rodeo at Three Rivers Sunday. Visiting in Ancho last Thursday was Mrs. A. E. Copeland and children, Debbie Ann and Gary Paul from Albuquerque. Esther spent the week with her mother, June Straley, in Carrizozo, and took some time off to visit with us here.

Mr. and Mrs. W. Luch, and son Neal, of Hereford, Texas, were guests of the L. Y. Jacksons and Jacko Silvers the latter part of last week. They arrived on Wednesday night and got to take in the Three Rivers Rodeo on Sunday before leaving for home.

Among those seen at the Annual Kids' Rodeo Sunday at Three Rivers were the Cops Straley, L. Y. Jacksons, Tom Knight, Howard Harkey, and June Straley and wife. Among those bringing home prizes were Danny Knight who won first in the boys barrel race in the Junior Division. All Ancho is proud of the grand champion cowboy, George Wayne Lightfoot, who lives at the El Paso Natural Gas Plant. We all think of George Wayne as being an "Ancho boy".

Your reporter returned home from dental surgery at Prothro's Memorial in El Paso on Saturday and is doing fine "writing" but not so good at "eating". Mr. and Mrs. E. I. starkey left Wednesday on the Golden State enroute to Washington, D. C. to visit their son, Sport, and to take in the sights.

OCT. 6 TO NOV. 6 CRITICAL PERIOD
 If a vacancy should come up in the Senate between Oct. 6 and the Nov. 6 election date the person appointed by the governor would serve until after the election in 1964.

If a vacancy should come up after the election a special election could be called to fill the place but it would be most unlikely. New Mexico which has had more senators who started by appointment than who got in originally by election, has never had a special senatorial election.

Coin collectors go for commemorative coins

SANTA FE — Coin collectors throughout the 50 states are literally "gobbling up" the commemorative coin which has been cast in observance of New Mexico's 50th Anniversary, a survey of banks throughout the State revealed today. More than 100,000 of the coins have been sold by New Mexico banks, and the coins are being carried as pocket pieces throughout the entire week.

The New Mexico Bankers Association is sponsor of the coin sale, distributing coins through nearly 80 banking institutions.

Denton Hodgeford, executive secretary of the Bankers Association, today said, "because there will not be another 50th anniversary commemorative coin cast for 50 years, coin collectors realize the value of this particular item." Hodgeford referred to the fact that Alaska will be the next state to celebrate a Golden Anniversary in the year 2011. "This makes the New Mexico coin most valuable," he emphasized.

The New Mexico coin is being sold by banks for fifty cents, and the banks also are redeeming all coins turned in to them at full face value. All Golden Anniversary coins will carry a face value of fifty cents as negotiable coins within the state of New Mexico until October 1.

During the final days of the coin sale banks urge local residents who are collectors, or who have friends or relatives who are collectors to "stock up" before the termination of the pre-sale period, Hodgeford concluded.

The New Mexico coin already is listed in National Coin Collector's Publications at a sale price of one dollar.

Many students going to college

According to the requests that have been made for transcripts from the High School Principals' office, the following students will be entering college this fall:

Johnny Armstrong, Bobby Dan Crenshaw, Charles Barnum, Nick Serna and Lynn Stoneman, N. M. S. U., Las Cruces; Steve Duggar and John Clegg, U. N. M., Albuquerque; Dorothy Ann Garrison, Hotel Dieu, El Paso; Margaret Littleton, E. N. M. U., Fortale; David Ortiz, N. M. W. C., Silver City; Margaret Pizo, Draught's Business College, Albuquerque; Judy Stearns, Hastings College, Hastings, Nebraska and Rooke Straley, C. S. U., Fort Collins, Colo.

Esther Ortiz and Judy Sully have each received scholarships from Highlands U. at Las Vegas and will enter this fall on the accelerated program for Juniors who have a high scholastic rating. Other members of the last year's Junior class, Robert Lynn and Garvin Griffin, were invited to participate in this program but chose to complete their regular high school course before going to college.

Perhaps this is the largest number of students, percentage wise, of any graduating class from Carrizozo High School, who have seen fit to pursue higher education immediately upon graduation from high school. The Administration wishes to take this opportunity to compliment these students and their parents for taking advantage of the educational opportunities which are now available in the way of scholarships and student loans to high school graduates. This is the 14 out of the graduating class of '60.

N. M. APPLE COUNCIL PLANS PROMOTION PROGRAM

Lincoln, N.M. — Members of the New Mexico Apple Council have voted to assess themselves two cents per tree, on a voluntary basis, for promotion, according to W. G. Shrecongost, Lincoln, president. The assessment will be on trees of all ages.

The money will be used for promotion and advertising of New Mexico apples. This might include research and educational projects, if they are found to be necessary.

Council members may send their money to the secretary-treasurer, New Mexico Apple Council, P.O. Box 425, University Park, N.M. The money is payable on or before October 1. The October date was set so that the Council could approve the budget at its winter meeting.

This will be an expansion of activities for the Council. In the past it has sponsored the sales of apples at the State Fair, pie baking contests and has made educational materials available to schools. Shrecongost says:

"Members hope this increased activity on the part of the Council will perk up interest in the organization and attract new members." The president concludes.

Several workmen were busy cleaning the weeds and raking grass at the new park Monday. This new park will surely let tourists know the people of the town are interested in keeping their town up-to-date and inviting.

Bob Means was a business visitor in Albuquerque Monday.

Mr. and Mrs. Dexter Seay from Silver City visited Mr. Seay's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Al Seay, this past weekend.

HAPPY anniversary to Mr. and Mrs. Ralph Barza.

Mr. and Mrs. G. F. Mitchell from Tucuman were visitors in Carrizozo last week. They were visiting Mr. Mitchell's aunt and family, Mr. and Mrs. Oscar Barnes, Mr. Barnes, and J. W. and the Mitchells, and Jay White went to T or C to take in some fishing and boating over the weekend.

Bill Skelton from Keams Canyon, Ariz., was in Carrizozo on Monday taking care of business matters.

Rev. Paul Westberg, the new Presbyterian minister for this area, who lives in Corona, was in Carrizozo on Friday. Rev. Westberg was looking for a place for his office but was unsuccessful, as there are not any spots for sale in town.

There was a visitor in the News office last week who enjoyed being back in their home town. But, this person found it very hard to travel on foot as the sidewalks are few and far between around town. It is a guess the majority of us are so used to driving cars that we forget about the sidewalks, until some one mentions the fact that they are in bad shape.

Mrs. Aster Jacobs visited her own and family, Mr. and Mrs. E. Larson in Alamogordo on Saturday and Sunday.

Mrs. Velma Cox of Las Cruces visited her mother, Mrs. Maggie Rustin over the weekend.

Mr. and Mrs. J. N. McDaniels are enjoying a vacation in the northern part of the state.

Mr. John Hernandez, engineer from the state health department was in town this week on official business. This is the second such visit Mr. Hernandez has made to Carrizozo in the past two weeks.

Mr. and Mrs. Fay Harkey, David and Roger McDaniel enjoyed the rodeo at Three Rivers Sunday. Mrs. Harkey said the crowd was very large, and the show enjoyable.

Happy birthday to: Dolores Zamora, Diana Jean Wells, Fay King, Minnie Nell, T. F. Pajila, Johnson Stearns, Frances Dagner, Joyce May, Mary Chavez, Julia Palmer, Ray Wells, Ronda Lindsay, Linda Simpson, Kay Taylor and Mollie Bosch.

Eric Lynch and family were Carrizozo visitors Tuesday. Mr. Lynch stopped in the News office to say hello and purchase some mining forms. He was also interested in the Fast Draw Contest to be held in Lincoln on September 22 and 23.

Several workmen were busy cleaning the weeds and raking grass at the new park Monday. This new park will surely let tourists know the people of the town are interested in keeping their town up-to-date and inviting.

Bob Means was a business visitor in Albuquerque Monday.

Mr. and Mrs. Dexter Seay from Silver City visited Mr. Seay's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Al Seay, this past weekend.

HAPPY anniversary to Mr. and Mrs. Ralph Barza.

Mr. and Mrs. G. F. Mitchell from Tucuman were visitors in Carrizozo last week. They were visiting Mr. Mitchell's aunt and family, Mr. and Mrs. Oscar Barnes, Mr. Barnes, and J. W. and the Mitchells, and Jay White went to T or C to take in some fishing and boating over the weekend.

Bill Skelton from Keams Canyon, Ariz., was in Carrizozo on Monday taking care of business matters.

Rev. Paul Westberg, the new Presbyterian minister for this area, who lives in Corona, was in Carrizozo on Friday. Rev. Westberg was looking for a place for his office but was unsuccessful, as there are not any spots for sale in town.

There was a visitor in the News office last week who enjoyed being back in their home town. But, this person found it very hard to travel on foot as the sidewalks are few and far between around town. It is a guess the majority of us are so used to driving cars that we forget about the sidewalks, until some one mentions the fact that they are in bad shape.

Mrs. Aster Jacobs visited her own and family, Mr. and Mrs. E. Larson in Alamogordo on Saturday and Sunday.

Mrs. Velma Cox of Las Cruces visited her mother, Mrs. Maggie Rustin over the weekend.

Sirs:

I was very interested in the item in last week's paper about the fight between the Bar W Cowboys and the Railroad men-but would like to know where J. S. C. got his information.

You see, I am Jett Rustin's daughter. I spent my entire girlhood on the Bar W Ranch -1919 to 1929.

Dad got quite a kick reading in the paper where he had passed away some time ago. He is very much alive and in excellent health for a man going on 80. He has made his home with me the past 3 years, here in Las Cruces.

You have no doubt been informed by others of the mistake, by now but I thought I would write in any way, for I know: Jett Rustin is not dead yet.

Sincerely
 Joseph R. Rustin
