GIFT TO SCHOOLER IRKS LEGISLATORS

SANTA FE — Legislators, already severely critical of the amount of money going for school administration, got a fresh shot of fuel when Auditor Alex Armijo challenged a $4800 going away gift voted by the Espanola school board...

POLITICOS ONLY IN LEGAL POST

The plan to appoint Waldo Spless to the $1000-a-month part-time job as head of the highway department's legal section succeeding Pat Hamilton who was terminated January 16, points up the political nature of the highway department plums.

STATE'S TANKERS IN ROUGH SEAS

The two huge oil tankers on which New Mexico is carrying $37 million in mortgages have both taken the option to skip two years of principal payments and pick them up at the end of the 20-year mortgage period...

BRINGING IN FOREIGN OIL

The National Defender took the two-year moratorium in 1960 and only recently started interest payments. The Manhattan has just asked for the moratorium after making quarterly interest payments for one year.

CAMPBELL'S FACE IMPORTANT ISSUE

Democratic legislators who want to advance the sales tax from two to three per cent to raise the huge sum needs to get the state on a break-even basis are racking their minds for a device in which Gov. Jack Campbell could save face in accepting it.

MOST LEGISLATORS FAVOR SALES TAX

There is a decided majority in the Legislature for the sales tax if Campbell would give a green light. The levy would raise about $24 million a year along with associated taxes which would also be increased.

The Produce and Marketing Act, House Bill 155, was passed by the agricultural committee this (Wednesday) morning with no dissenting votes.

House Bill 174 raising minimum wages for restaurant, hotels, etc., passed the labor committee yesterday afternoon.

Going Away Party For Balls

A going-away party will be given in honor of Mr. and Mrs. W. F. Ball Wednesday, February 13, at 6:30 at the Baptist Church.

The state department of education has said they can not live with the proposed reduction decided on by the appropriation and finance committee.

Shrecongost serves on this committee. The proposal to the welfare department was that they remain on the same budget as for the last fiscal year.

Under study are two proposals concerning public school finance. The state department of education proposal and Sen. Green's proposal.

Heck of a row stirred up yesterday over right-to-work bill. It was saved at one time only by house rule.

Sen Shrecongost left Lincoln County late Sunday evening and hit the storm this side of Corona.

REPORT FROM SEN. JOE SKEEN

Increased income tax proposal expected to solve state difficulty

Governor Campbell came before the Joint Session of the House and Senate to deliver his executive budget last week.

Campbell will refuse to sign it and permit it to become law without his signature. In this manner, he can avoid the adverse publicity of having anything to do with a tax he has, so many times, spoken against.

Introduction of bills is over, 350 or more in the Senate, over 400 in the House.

Mr. Campbell knows as well as anyone that an increase in the income tax, of the magnitude needed to close the deficit gap, would be twice as unpopular as an increase in the sales tax.

The labor lobbyists are even worse than the liquor lobbyists according to Skeen, a lot rougher and more persistent.

What will happen, in all likelihood, is that the legislature will pass a one-cent increase in the sales tax, anyway, and

THE LONG and SHORT OF IT IS . . .

Indian buffalo and vicious Indian tiger are latest Bolack trophy additions

TOM BOLACK'S already bulging big game trophy room on his B-Square Ranch in Farmington will soon acquire "new faces" as late word comes from Bombay, India, that his January safari has already met with success.

The enthusiastic hunter's latest kill in one of the favorite hunting sports of big game nimrods includes a huge Indian buffalo and a prize capture of the feared, vicious Indian tiger!

Mrs. Tom Bolack did not accompany the white-headed sportsman on the hunt. She remained in Farmington where the children are in school.

The former New Mexico governor, former lieutenant-governor, oil magnate of the San Juan Basin of northwestern New Mexico, will return shortly after the 1st of March. His return to the States, however, will be of short duration—just long enough to make preparations for another safari into the depths of the teeming jungles of Africa, as a futherance of his big game expeditions.

This columnist, with Mrs. Carson, Sam Carson, Tom's oil field cronie, and Billie Joe Short, who worked a few years back in the "grease path" when Tom was "just one of the boys," toured his interesting trophy room on the outstanding ranch in Farmington.

The house of trophies can justly be called the largest individual collection of big game trophies in the nation. And a jaunt through the great trophy-crowded hall will readily justify such a statement.

In the interesting hall, where many visit to marvel at the bag results of the former governor's daring and courageous hunting expeditions, are mountings of practically every species of beast that could possibly magnify the hunter's gun, and from every outstanding game wilderness on the face of the earth, including mountings of reptiles, alligators, and what-have-you.

The story of each and its capture and the daring moments and thrilling experiences required to accumulate such a collection would, no doubt, fill a huge volume. Photos sprinkled throughout the room clearly define the exciting moments—if not hours, sometimes days—of each capture and the grapple with the wild beasts of the choice hunting grounds of the world. They combine to tell an exciting story of the oil magnate's courageous, hair-raising hunts. In none of the photos, when Tom for some reason or other chose to let his whiskers grow long, he has a very similar likeness to the late Ernest Hemingway, famed novelist and hunter. The photos of the natives, with strange rings hanging from noses and various other decorations of which we know nothing, the escorts, and the guides under Tom's selection during the hunts tell that he had no idle time as he tromped and wandered through the wilderness of the world. How they forced jungle streams, teeming with crocodiles and hacked their paths through almost impenetrable undergrowth of the snake-infested jungles, surmounting the almost insurmountable barriers to capture "none but the best" of trophies.

Five trips have been required to secure the several hundred specimens mounted expertly and ornamentally displayed in the interesting room. Hugo elephant tusks stand prominently around in corners, and hoofs of the same beast have been converted into rest-stools and cleverly tanned skins line the comfortable lounges throughout.

A trip through the room is educationally beneficial to Boy Scouts and many other organizations who arrange tours for instructive and educational outings. Mrs. Bobbie Sues grants each and all a welcome and expertly explains many of the circumstances and origins of the surrounding entries.

In one corner is a great polar bear—Yes, it's already lived its day and is in the mounted stage—and nearby hangs a certificate from the Boone and Crockett Club pronouncing it as "the world's record polar bear," which measures four and one half inches larger than the one so boastfully displayed during the recent World's Fair. The certificate was dated 15th of March, 1960. Tom killed the bear near the Arctic Circle.

Despite all these trophies, the hard-driving, successful former governor, oil tycoon—a character that grew from rags to riches in the oil fields of San Juan Basin of northwestern New Mexico, even more exalted in a successive manner than the famous Harrold Alger characters—seeks more trophies and enjoys more hunts. The man is seemingly very successful at whatever he lays a hand on.

Time was also spent on the interesting B-Square Ranch acres, where in abundance and of many varieties, proving what the wonderful soil of New Mexico can produce with proper attention. Lordly peacocks strutted about the grounds, and the cocks crew, and guinea cackled their strange tones as they craftily sought their courses in and about the buildings. Horses were in the patches and the general outline proved of great interest in agricultural development.

Mr. Bolack's B-Square Ranch, trophy room and ranch headquarters are all located just east of Farmington on State Route 44, on the banks of the San Juan River.

New Mexico State University news

Infestation of grasshoppers on New Mexico rangelands may be much lighter in 1963 than they were last year, reports Stanley Coppock, entomologist with the New Mexico State University Extension Service.

He points out that the insects were found on only 173,000 acres of grazing land in the state last fall by USDA's Agricultural Research Service. A year earlier, 790,000 acres were infested. An acre is considered infested when it has eight or more adult grasshoppers per square yard.

The entomologist attributes the decline in grasshopper populations to last year's cold spring and unusually wet summer. Relative freedom from grasshoppers last year, plus a good growing season, resulted in high forage yields on the rangelands, he says.

In spite of prospects for lighter infestations this year, Coppock urges ranchers to continue control measures against the pests to avoid the risk of a buildup later in the season.

The Agricultural Research Service will conduct new surveys this spring to provide more accurate estimates of expected populations and will pinpoint areas where control operations may be necessary. In community-wide programs on rangeland, ARS finances up to one-third of the cost of grasshopper control operations. On croplands, it provides technical assistance to farmers.

Don't Wait For Me!

Two Cajans got into a hot argument and decided to settle things the way they do in the old country—with guns.

On the appointed morning, Francois was on hand with his pistol, second and his physician. After about an hour a message arrived with a telegram from Boudreaux.

"Dear Francois," it read, "if I am late don't wait for me. Go ahead and shoot."

Holloman AF Sharpshooting Engineers shoot 350-lb. package thru concrete

Holloman AFB, New Mexico Sharpshooting Air Force engineers have succeeded in firing a 350-pound package at speeds up to 520 m.p.h. through a 36-inch hole in a block of concrete, the Air Force Systems Command revealed today.

The tests were made by the Track Test Division of the Air Force Missile Development Center, using a SNAP (System of Nuclear Auxiliary Power) reactor test item. Purpose of the tests was to determine what would happen to the reactor, particularly the sodium potassium liquid metal used as a heat exchange, in the event of a missile failure during launch. The reactor did not contain fuel or other radioactive material.

Reactors had previously been submerged in water, dropped 100 feet onto concrete, subject to the blast of 250 pound of TNT and doused with liquid oxygen. In the final track testing phase, the reactors were impacted into concrete and water at speeds ranging from 380 to 520 m.p.h.

The "thread-the-needle" test resulted from the need to impact the 18x24 inch cylindrical reactor into water without any rocket sled debris. To solve this knotty problem, sled designers turned to wood.

The reactor was suspended by nylon webbing in a sled made of maple. A concrete block, with a 36-inch diameter conduit in the center, was placed on the track rails. At peak velocity, the wooden sled destroyed itself against the concrete block, throwing the reactor through the hole and into a tank of water. High speed cameras recorded the impact through plastic walls of the 8x8 x15 foot tank.

Results obtained in this series of tests will be turned over to the Air Force Special Weapons Center, Kirtland AFB, New Mexico, for further analysis.

NATURAL RESOURCES ARE F. B. CONVENTION THEME

ALBUQUERQUE — Natural resource development and the role of chemicals in agriculture will be spotlighted in a Farm Bureau sponsored conference at the Hilton Hotel here February 14-15.

U. S. Senator Clinton P. Anderson and Governor Jack M. Campbell have accepted invitations to discuss resource development in New Mexico. Dr. R. B. Corbett, president of the New Mexico State University, will be one of the featured ing New Mexico's resources.

The following morning at 8:30 a.m. Taylor will go into Farm Bureau's role in the development of natural resources, followed by a panel discussion of recreation. Bigbee, second vice president of the state Farm Bureau, will moderate the group consisting of Cloud, Anholder, St. John and a representative of the Fish and Wildlife Service. A second panel on the morning of February 15 will delve into the generation and transmission of electrical power. Fletcher will be the moderator with panelists Schreiber, Taylor and Turner.

That afternoon, the final panel discussion of the conference will be held on development and control of water resources. Taylor will be moderator with Olsen, Reynolds, and Roy Hunter, director of the natural resources department of the California Farm Bureau.

The conference is the first of its kind sponsored by Farm Bureau. Everyone who is interested in the subjects under discussion is urged to attend. There will be question and answer periods after each panel review. Registration fee will be $5.00 and will include the dinner, supplies and copies of talks.

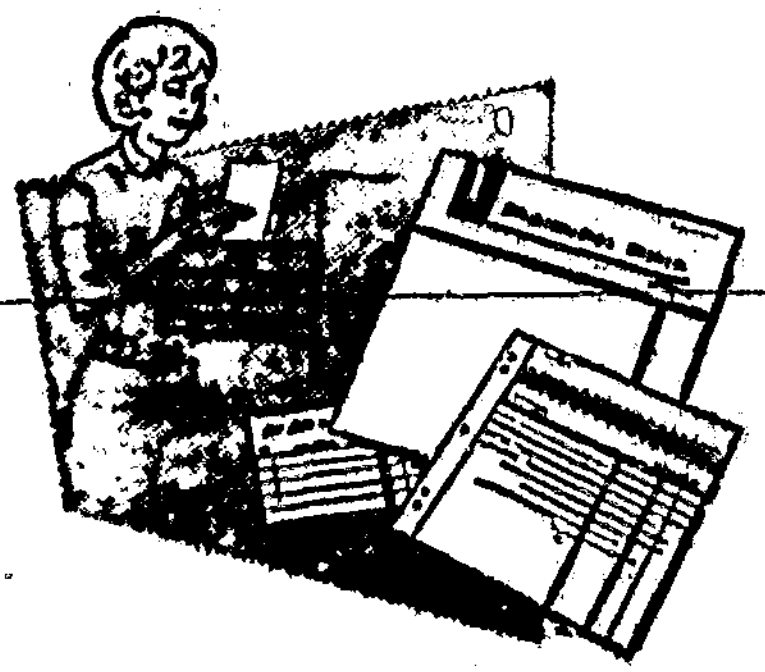

Monkeying around on a sheep ranch

Melbourne, Australia—Sheep farmer Lindsay Schmidt says his best worker drives a tractor, rounds up sheep, cleans fleeces, and never asks for pay.

He is Johnnie, an eight-year-old rhesus monkey who started as a farmhand years ago.

Mr. Schmidt was given the monkey after he had helped put out a fire in a travelling showman's truck. He trained the monkey to work on his farm at Balmoral, 220 miles from Melbourne.

Johnnie steers the tractor accurately, rides a horse to round up sheep, and eats the same kind of sandwich and soft drink lunch as Mr. Schmidt.

Measure the brown sugar (packing it firmly into the cup) and add, then put in the cut fruit and nuts and mix well with the dry ingredients. Melt the butter in one large, or two small loaf pans. Beat the egg, stir in the milk and melted butter, add to the first mixture and beat well. Turn into the well buttered loaf pan and let stand 15 minutes. Then bake in a moderate oven (350) for an hour, or until done when tested with a toothpick. Can be baked in two small loaf pans.

Charlie Peebles is home after spending a few days in the Ruidoso hospital. At this time the report is good and he's recuperating nicely.

Mr. and Mrs. Robert Lowman and Mr. and Mrs. H. E. Harris of El Paso and Helen Walker of Denver, who is visiting her sister Mrs. Harris and Mr. Harris, in El Paso came up the past weekend to Ruidoso. On Sunday they went to the Ski Run stopping to see the Lindwoods on their return trip.

Mr. and Mrs. W. F. Evans of El Paso were here to see the Sons Aloes Saturday. They are chinchilla people and brought some animals with them to compare them with some animals the Aloes have at present.

Monday Mrs. Marie Martin of Ruidoso stopped in for a visit. Mrs. John Emde of Ruidoso stopped by at the same time and a nice visit was enjoyed by all.

Wednesday Mr. and Mrs. H. C. Harder of Clovis were visitors in the community.

Sue Waymon and Harley Parnell of Ruidoso Downs stopped by to see us on Monday.

Friday Louise Runnels stopped by on her way to Ruidoso Downs where she was going to assist people of that area in declaring their county taxes.

Monday Mr. and Mrs. Jim Howard of Capitan stopped to see us on their way home from Ruidoso.

Thursday Mmes. George Dingwall and T. A. Spencer, Jr. were here from Carrizozo.

The J. B. Hightowers spent Monday of last week in Alamo-gordo.

Friday evening Mr. and Mrs. S. B. Russell were in Carrizozo. Saturday Vernon Petty of Carrizozo was here.

Neal Chapman and Nelson Hanley of Carlsbad are in the community this week on business.

The weekend arrived and so did a variety of weather. Saturday late it began to rain and we had rain off and on all night and a part of Sunday. About dark Sunday it turned to snow and Monday morning we had a foot on the ground and still coming. Might add that it was cold—10 degrees above at 7:00 a.m. and the temp. isn't getting much higher as yet as the wonderful sun hasn't been out enough to do us any good.

The snow on the ski road was so deep this morning (Monday the 11th) the crew couldn't get up to work. The state equipment is working on cleaning the road and by noon they hope to have it open. This is as good an opportunity as any to hand out orchids to the men who keep the ski road open. Some people do not seem to understand that the men work day and night to keep it open in a storm like this. Would it be presumptuous at this point to remind people of the good service the state is giving the people who use the ski road???

EDITORIAL

"A page for independent thought"

Second Thought

Seems that a well-formed opinion about driver education in high schools could stand some revision. We've put this type of education in the flossy and unnecessary category ever since the inception of such training not too many years back. There still remain a few things that young people should learn from their parents, guardians, preachers, by via the route of experience — could be merit of a sort in driver education that we did not understand.

Witness this paragraph from "El Asegurador". Unless standard driver education courses are given in most of its public high schools, New Mexico's young men — or their parents — will pay an extra $1,778,000 in automobile liability insurance premiums over the next nine years, merely because many youthful drivers will not be able to take advantage of the 10 per cent premium discount for driver education.

Where We Fall

The national system of interstate and defense highways is getting nation-wide publicity. The kind that can easily funnel traffic away from Lincoln County. A recent release to all newspapers of the nation carried a map of the United States showing the complete system. In New Mexico this system crosses east-to-west a bit north of state center. The north-south route enters on the east side and swings west to go down the Rio Grande Valley, about 75 miles west of Lincoln County.

This is not the shortest route to Carrizozo, Alamogordo, or El Paso for travelers coming from the east and north-central portions of the nation.

A meeting was held in Carrizozo last Wednesday on highway business. Whether or not the purpose of the meeting was good, was best understood by those present. Hardly a service station, cafe, or motel operator showed up at this meeting.

For reasons most parents will understand... driver education has not been able to take the heat out of the hot rods but maybe it does make them more skillful hotrodders, like for instance; they maybe learn not to apply the brakes after hitting a dip at 60 MPH, or to hold off braking on slick surfaces.

For reasons we understand, when an insurance company put premium value on driver education it must have merit.

and a settlement devoted to pleasure was started on the river a mile and half away with no limitation in title. With ill-concerned irony, its promoters called it Hagerman, after the high-minded gentleman developing the land they desired to exploit. Liquor flowed freely to offset the alkaline nature of the Pecos water, and Dave Kemp, the sheriff and a warm friend of Martin Rose, and Walter Bush, another Texan, opened a dance hall and sporting house there."

Especially for local store owners we pass on this informative bit from Forbes Business & Finance magazine, 15th annual report on American Industry. In discussing the retail outlet move-to-suburban areas Sears started first quickly joined by three other top retailers: Federated Department Stores, J. C. Penney and May Department Stores. Here is the part of interest to any store owner — "But Federated, Penney and May did not just move pell-mell into the suburbs. They saw to it that each store and each branch had a distinct character, stood for an easily recognizable kind of goods and service." As J. C. Penney president W. M. Ballen expresses it: "One of the most deadly sins in retailing is to be just another store."

We have a nice new annual report of N. M. Department of Public Health. It well covers the subject except for a count-down on the outdoor plumbing situation in Lincoln County. Graduation time is not far off and here is an idea for the occasion. The customer was buying a fountain pen for his son's graduation present. "It's to be a surprise, I suppose," observed the clerk. "Fill say it is," the father replied. "He's expecting a convertible."

Note from a reader in response to "Stalling" editorial. Reports of action around the State Capitol today reminds one of such conditions as must have existed in the early days when the horse swappers swamped the livery stables, with their many devious schemes, and methods of "swapping." Somebody will be hurt in the swap.

Letters to Editor

Dear Mr. Payton

I want to presume myself on a patient public and tell you some important Lincoln County history. Judge John Y. Hewitt and W. C. McDonald, first statehood governor and owner of the Bar W and Block ranches, were, it seems, very good friends.

McDonald prevailed on the White Oaks lawyer to run for representative to the legislature with the sole purpose in mind to have the county seat moved from the ancient town of Lincoln, 14 mi. E. of Capitan. This special law specified that to move a county seat it had to be moved more than 23 miles.

Now then, the late George A. Thirworth was the "big squeeze" here at Capitan. He was a merchant and sold everything from a bottle to a trucking machine. He retailed and wholesaled and at the time of his passing had amassed a considerable fortune. Of course he did not want competition. The governor, a Democrat, and "George A." a Republican, used their influence and dealt out, I suspect, a lot of green backs and a lot of whistles were wet to make it look a little more presentable to the judge, borrowed a slice off of Socorro County. This law is discriminating. It legislates against one class of people in favor of another.

However since the courthouse is in a close proximity of Battle Snakes and a few sprigs of grass in a volcanic section of the rear anatomy of the county, why, make a few alternations and "white wash" it. Still stick by my guns, though it should have been in the center of the county.

Goodbye
S. J. Bigger

Dear Ed; I'll bet the crown seat of my last summers fishing pants that those Senators and Legislators at Santa Fe are getting the job done now. They are really taking after the liquor interests. Don't guess that the Liquor interests gave them any free liquor this year so far. Looks like maybe that spring will be here, I saw the Missus, looking at the flower beds this morning so I know that in a few days that I will be busy getting them spaded up. A fellow says to me the other day that that Capitan needs a Good Chamber of Commerce, something to sell the town, I told him that before you sell anything it has to be cleaned up. That goes for Capitan. It has to be cleaned up.

Fishing is going to be good in Nogal Lake this summer. One load of fish was put in in December. Two in January and I have a letter on file that they will continue putting two loads a month in Nogal Lake thru June then it will not be stocked again till next winter. Now we are getting some place. Saw a petition the other day to Game Commission in Santa Fe, to the effect to not to stock Nogal Lake any further unless it is opened to the public for fishing without charge. Never could see them stocking it with State owned fish then us suckers having to pay a dollar to catch them out. Where does that dollar go: "YOU KNOW" The same place our Water here in Lincoln County went.

J.F.K. is taking off soon, on another round the world trip. I think that an embargo should be placed on all these traveling politicians that we have. Any place our water here in Lincoln be out of bounds for them. And if they do go they should pay their own expenses. Makes me think, Gotta get my income tax finished up so J.F.K. will have a little spending money on his trip so long Paul will see you at Nogal Lake.

Golf, grandchildren, weather, & mail

"Golf, grandchildren, the weather, and third-class mail have much in common," says your Lincoln County Postmasters. "All are perennial subjects for both polite and impolite conversation."

According to the Postmasters, third-class mail is not the constant villain that it's frequently claimed to be. On the contrary, it is a legitimate and important part of America's system of free enterprise.

Those who do not wish to receive advertising circulars, or "junk" mail, should write directly to the mailer and request that their names be removed from his mailing list. "Though such requests are not always heeded, compliance is usually immediate," the postmasters say.

If unwanted circular matter continues to be received, patrons may write "Refused" on items placed in their box and promptly redeposit them in the mails. Matter that has been refused by the addressee is returned to the sender if it bears the sender's endorsement, "Return Requested." NEWSPAPER ADVERTISING AIDS BUSINESS, EMPLOYEES

Advertising does not need to be defended against its critics; it can defend itself. I am quite aware that tremendous sums of money have been wasted on advertising, but think how much money has gone down the drain in drilling for oil or mining for gold. When the right media and techniques are used in advertising, they can bring tremendous rewards, just as can drilling in oil-rich terrain or mining in promising lodes. Advertising is, of course, a risk, and it should be sold as such.

Nevertheless, it is a risk well worth taking. I can think of few gambles more likely to pay off. It is obvious from the record that officials of American companies agree with me on this, so their outlays must have been profitable indeed. When the final total is figured for 1962, I expect that both national and local advertisers will have shelled out about $8 billion for ads in newspapers and magazines. This represents a most spectacular channeling of cash into newspapers and advertising.

Proof of the success of advertising is found in its steady growth of popularity. Ten years ago, for example, expenditures for newspapers and magazines advertising totaled only $3.5 billion, while they amounted to only $1.5 billion just 30 years ago. For some years a steadily greater part of corporation costs have been going into advertising, and I am certain that this trend will continue over the years ahead. It is interesting to note that, along the way, those concerns doing the greatest amount of advertising have nearly always been at or near the top in their fields.

HELPS EVERYBODY

Some labor publications tend sometimes to complain that companies are putting too much money into this type of publicity. Union officials want higher wages for their members, and more and more expensive fringe benefits — and often think of advertising as mere diversion of money that should go to the employees in one form or another. Hence, company officials should make plain to their personnel the value of advertising in holding up production and keeping employment high. A well-run firm is careful not to waste funds in profitless advertising. Results are always carefully studied, and directions are pursued that bring about greater sales, which in turn lead to larger payrolls.

Newspaper advertising is to a great extent responsible for our having the highest wage rate and the best standard of living in the world. There could be no mass selling without newspaper advertising. Mass production would be an impossibility without mass selling. Without mass production, our standard of living could not conceivably have reached its present historic height.

SMALL CITIES IMPORTANT

Many corporations located in or immediately outside of big cities place most of their outlays in national media, but more and more are recognizing the value of local placement. For instance, even some of the biggest concerns are giving more attention to small dailies and weeklies. I expect this tendency to increase over the coming years. Surveys have indicated that people of small communities read advertisements with great care.

In fact, I should say that I still consider newspapers, both large and small, as a safe investment. This is particularly true where there is only one newspaper which controls the value of local placement. True, production costs are moving upward, but it is still relatively easy to raise the price of a newspaper by a cent or two. People still want written news, and the more they pay for a paper the more carefully they read both the news and the ads. This means that the advertising space becomes more valuable.

BY STATE THE WAY OF THE... West

The changing pattern of growth in New Mexico is cited by the highway department's recent booklet "Progress and Prospect". The state's population has trebled since 1912, while motor-vehicle registrations have multiplied approximately 600 times. With 930 motor vehicles registered at the time New Mexico became a state, there was one for every 359 residents. Today the ratio stands at approximately one car for every two persons.

A main difference between big and little towns is that big towns want to get bigger — and small towns want to get smaller.

Many of our readers will not know how Hagerman, N. M., got its start and we pass on this paragraph from the chapter, "Wes Hardin Will Got You", in the book, "The Southwest in Life and Literature" by C. L. Sonnichsen. Quote, "Then the southeastern corner of New Mexico was organized as Eddy county, and Kemp, an outlaw from Hamilton, Texas, became its sheriff. J. J. Hagerman was interested in the Pecos Valley, and C. B. Eddy, a broad-gauged man of the lower Pecos, spread out from ranching to irrigation and colonization. Talk of ditches and railroads was as thick as the dusty, alkaline air, and the town of Eddy, which turned into Carlsbad, grew in spite of the prohibition clauses restricting the use of its lots. Vice in the ascendancy, however, easily evades the legal limits of virtue,

New Mexico's population unofficially passes the one million mark

New Mexico's population unofficially passed the million person mark some time early this year and continued to increase at a rate double the national average.

According to the U. S. Bureau of Census, the state's total population last July 1 stood at 1,020,000, up from 989,000 a year earlier. This includes military or other types of more or less temporary personnel stationed there. The "civilian resident population" figure for last July 1 was 977,000 which actually shows a slightly higher percentage gain (7.6 per cent) than the overall population (7.2) for the period, April 1, 1960, to last July 1.

The percentage increase in the over-all population of the U. S. for a total of 6.5 million, making the over-all population almost 186 millions.

New Mexico has jumped to 36th in size, exceeding the population of these states; Hawaii, Alaska, Wyoming, Nevada, Utah, Montana, Delaware, South and North Dakota, Rhode Island, Vermont, New Hampshire and Maine.

The only other Rocky Mountain states to cross the one million mark are Colorado and Arizona.

Cold weather may prove a definite advantage in screwworm eradication

University Park - Unusually cold weather which has reached deep in the heart of Texas may prove a definite advantage to screwworm eradication in the Southwest, says William A. Ljungdahl, animal husbandman with the Cooperative Extension Service, NMSU, and executive secretary of the State Screwworm Eradication Committee.

Fewer infestations of this livestock pest are being reported in the areas affected by cold, according to word received by Ljungdahl from the U. S. Department of Agriculture. This indicates a decreased screwworm population that can be more easily dealt a death blow, he stated. As screwworm cases decline, it becomes more and more vital that livestock producers report all suspected infestations, collect samples of larvae and eggs, and treat animals.

Successful operations during 1963 depend on (1) taking full advantage of the retarding effect of cold weather on screwworm increase and spread; (2) preventing entry of screwworm-infested animals into areas freed of the pest; (3) widespread use by producers of screwworm preventive measures and pesticide treatments; (4) quick discovery and reporting of all suspected screwworm cases by producers; and (5) effectiveness of an artificial barrier now being formed along the southern and western borders of the eradication area to prevent screwworm invasions.

Recent cold weather has lessened the number of infestations reported in the eradication area. Officials point out, however, that mild weather during the remainder of the winter could permit survival of scattered infestations of the pest over a relatively wide area, which could retard early eradication. Every effort is being made to free the overwintering area of screwworms this winter.

Federal livestock inspection stations are being established along the western border of New Mexico to prevent entry of screwworm-infested livestock into the eradication area. The stations will begin operation before the return of warm weather, and all eastbound animals will be inspected and treated

BASKETBALL

GAMES OF THE WEEK

St. Peter's, Hagerman win titles

St. Peter's and Hagerman each won its way into the Dist 5B tournament in two weeks with division clinching victories Friday night.

The Crusaders from Roswell won their second Mountain sub-district title with an easy 74-56 triumph over Capitan while Hagerman drubbed Eunice 61-52 in a Plains loop game.

The victory gave St. Peter's a 9-1 Mountain record and ended its sub-district campaign. Hagerman played Jal Saturday night but won the Plains title with a 7-0 mark.

Capitan was never really in the game after the second period when St. Peter's drove to a 33-19 lead. A typical third period for St. Peter's helped seal Capitan's fate.

Going into the game, Capitan was one game behind St. Peter's with a 7-2 record, but the hosts couldn't match the hot scoring or the three-on-two fast breaks worked successfully by St. Peter's.

Rodrigue scored 16 of his 32 points in the third period and although Capitan came back to close the gap to 10 points at 63-53 late in the game, the Crusaders just kept on pouring in the points, scoring 15 markers to Capitan's three the final three minutes.

Carrizozo slips past Dexter, 46-44

Dexter did something no other team has been able to accomplish all season, but the Demons still dropped a basketball game here Friday night.

Double-teaming Bob Ortiz all the time, Dexter held the second high scorer in the state to a meagly eight points — a season low for him. But Carrizozo held on to take a 46-44 decision in an intra-division Dist 5B game.

The loss was Dexter's 13th in 21 starts this year while the victorious Crusaders upped their record to 8-11. Dexter has now dropped six of their last seven games and ended its regular season play.

Ken Belyeu lead the Demons with 16 points while Gerald Posey dropped 12 points through the hoop to pace the 'Zozo forces.

After being tied 10-10 after one period and 22-22 at half-time, Carrizozo took a 36-30 lead after three periods and then just managed to hang on for the victory.

School and park legislature discussed

Sen. Joe Skeen was present in Carrizozo last Saturday afternoon for a meeting at the school where Valley of Fire Park and school legislation was discussed.

There are three plans before the legislature now. 1. The NM EA plan. 2. The state school board and state department plan. 3. Sen. Greer's plan. Sen. Greer is from San Juan County, his plan favors small schools.

Sen. Skeen thought the park bill would be passed but that the $32,000 construction and improvement money would not be approved. Probably the park would get $1,700 to purchase land.

Skeen told the people that state income tax would have to be advanced by 300% to get enough money for state needs. The only solution is a 1c sales tax increase — until June 1 then cut it off. This would buy time until the state can do better.

A lot of sentiment is being shown to do away with ad valorem tax; and let that money stay with local communities.

These figures were shown at the meeting, having to do with cost of keeping school in New Mexico. The figures are based on weighted average daily attendance.

Table with columns: N. M., Nat'l, R. M. Reg. Rows include $235.04, $245.10, $252.36; $308.39, $315.10, $327.64

The bottom line represents the total cost per student.
