

Spelling of name could disturb activities of traveling chinchillas

Mr. and Mrs. Sam Allen went to El Paso Friday to ship three male chinchillas via air to Wladyslaw I Elwira Rzewscy in Powiat Targ, Poland.

The chinchillas, two mutations and one standard dark, were shipped in three compartment containers filled with timothy hay. Each had a third of an apple and half a carrot which should be ample food and moisture for five days. If by any chance the animals did not reach their destination in five days a tag was attached with instructions for replenishing the food supply.

The animals left El Paso at 4:45 p.m. Friday via Continental Air Lines for Los Angeles. There they left at noon Saturday on a non stop flight over the pole to London arriving at 6:40 a.m. Sunday. At 2:00 p.m. Sunday a Polish Air Line took them to Warsaw arriving at 7:15 p.m. There they were met by Mr. Rzewscy for the last lap of their journey to Powiat Nowy Targ, Poland.

Shortly after the Allens returned Saturday they received a cable from Mr. Rzewscy informing them he was leaving by plane for Warsaw Saturday to take delivery of the animals on their arrival.

Considerable details had to be taken care of before the chinchillas could be shipped. The Allens contacted several airlines, the Polish Embassy and other agencies involved before shipment could be made.

Mr. Rzewscy behind the Iron Curtain in Poland, had many difficulties to dispose of before receipt of the animals could be guaranteed.

In correspondence leading up to the transaction Mr. Rzewscy was unable to understand that the Allens could make shipment of the animals without payment in advance. An interesting event took place last November when the Allens shipped anti-biotics to Poland and made the mistake of wrapping them in a newspaper that contained the story of the assassination of President Kennedy. Correspondence with the recipient in Poland showed that the newspaper had been removed by the censors.

Spring concert well attended

The audience at the Spring Band Concert Monday evening was well pleased with the performance of both the beginning band and the concert band and Mr. Arnold Boyce, director, deserves much credit for shaping up such a band in one school year.

The Junior High auditorium had been tastefully decorated in the spring theme by Mrs. Tom Knight and the audience was entertained before the band concert by a guitar group, consisting of Kathy Bancroft, Patti English, Era Dell Hemphill and Rodman Alpine.

The beginning band played a group of four numbers, followed by four numbers by the senior high choir. Then the senior band played eight numbers ending with the Mexican Overture. Bill Murfin, student director, conducted one number.

The proceeds which totaled $32.45 will be used for future band activities.

"Once upon a dream" is theme of home economics style show

Using the theme "Once Upon a Dream" some 70 ladies and matrons floated through the dreams of an FHA member wearing the costumes they had made in their home economics classes in the Junior High Auditorium, April 17.

The show was divided into 3 "dreams". The first consisted of dresses made by 7th and 8th grade home ec students. Several of them had made shifts and matching purses. Blouses and skirts also proved popular with this group.

The second "dream" was freshmen and sophomore classes. Again shifts, both one-piece and two-piece, proved quite popular. Also many had learned to set in sleeves and put on collars in this group. More attention was given to becomingness of color and dress suitable for the occasion.

The Advanced Home Economics class and the Adult Class were in the last "dream". These groups displayed tailored garments in wool, corduroy, velvet, and synthetic fabrics. Many skirts were completely or partially lined. Jackets were lined with contrasting and matching colors. Blouse and jacket linings were made of the same cloth in some of the suits. One showed what could be done with a little ingenuity in making over a garment. Colors were used most pleasingly, both in contrasting color harmonies and in matching color harmonies.

All told, it was a dreamy evening of entertainment for those who like to see the young girls model and for those who like to see pretty clothes.

Norman Crider in London Palladium

This is the second time Norman has had the honor of appearing at the Palladium in London.

Norman visited his home in Socorro in February and returned to Europe by way of Chicago, New York and London, Paris and Nice.

bers, folk songs, and songs of America. In addition to the blending of their distinctive voices, each has a starring act of her own to incorporate into what is sure to be an exceptional presentation of captivating entertainment.

The trio will present their songs, Saturday, May 23rd, at 8:30 p.m. at the State Fair Coliseum in Albuquerque. Other acts which will appear at the "Go Go Party Spectacular" include Frank Fontaine, the Kirby Stone Four, Leo Diamond and the ten Sue Charles Dancers.

Their new act started by pure coincidence when the three were appearing at a church benefit. Each performed individually, but they needed a finale. They hadn't sung together before but in just ten minutes they worked out part harmony on "Do Lord." It was the hit of the show.

They contacted Coral Records and two weeks later recorded it. The record became their biggest hit. Following the recording of a number of singles and albums for Coral and Capitol, they appeared together on several top network shows.

Today the trio belts out songs from a large repertoire which includes both popular and standard tunes, blues, special num-

Pavilion draws 10,000 visitors

An estimated ten thousand visitors saw New Mexico's Pavilion area during the first weekend of the New York World's Fair. Registrants in the State Tourist building showed representation from twelve foreign countries, twenty-five states, and numbers of New Mexicans from nine different cities in the State. Written comments on the exhibits were most favorable. The Halahoyz family of Hopi Indians were a major attraction over the weekend performing a variety of dances, drawing large responsive crowds as they danced on the raised circular platform which holds New Mexico's State flag. Spectators were invited to join in the Indian's Round Dance and participated enthusiastically.

New Mexico's official girl guides in the three exhibit buildings reported the visitors were constantly surprised that the State has mountains, ski areas, streams, lakes, modern roads and is not the dry and arid country they had pictured, as they viewed the Tourist Department's pictorial slides of New Mexico. The Fish and Game Department's authentic Beaver Dam from the Taos area has amazed visitors that the beaver's teeth marks on the logs are not the work of a man's axe. Photo murals of Mountain scenes, ranching country, Taos Pueblo and Carlsbad Caverns surround the beaver dam and small trout pond on the rear wall to show New Mexico's land of contrasts. Visitors from all over the country and world are fascinated to know the Navajo, Apache, Ute and Pueblo Indian reservations are now open to the public for vacation trips offering fishing, camping, hunting, boating and skiing. The size of the Navajo Reservation, three times that of the state of Massachusetts, has been a startling fact.

New Mexico's State Museum display telling a brief historic story of the Indian, Spanish and Anglo heritage of the State with a Photo Mural of the Palace of the Governors has surprised visitors that it is the oldest Government building in the United States and built twenty years before the Pilgrims landed at Plymouth Rock and still in use as a Museum in Santa Fe.

Hondo Valley

By Nina Nelson

Residents around the Hondo area underwent quite a frightening period when a brush fire of undetermined source began spreading during a gusty wind Saturday afternoon. The Tinnie Volunteer Fire Dept., headed by Frank Tisworth with many Valley residents were able to extinguish the fire before any damage was caused, much to the case of surrounding helvborg close to the old saw mill west of the Hondo Junction.

George Simeros, Republican County Chairman, accompanied by Lucio Zamora from Hondo, Mrs. Gladys Knox of Ruidoso, and Ben Sanchez from San Patricio attended the Republican "lunchout" in Portales on Saturday evening, where they were to meet Sen. Ed Mecham and other state candidates.

"A page for independent thought"

The art of taxation

Jean Baptiste Colbert, finance minister for France's free-spendng Louis XIV, described taxes as follows, "The art of taxation consists in so plucking the goose as to obtain the largest amount of feathers with the least possible amount of hissing."

The historical background of such plucking has unusual features. The French Government thought to tax the wealthy on their fireplaces, result: homes were built with a minimum number of fireplaces. A special tax was at one time placed on powdered wigs in both Europe and America: the wigs disappeared.

In England and Holland taxes were levied on the number of windows, result: homes built without them. At one time the French Government taxed newspapers on the number of pages in the paper, result, publishers enlarged their page size.

A farmer in Cheshire, England, turned to riding a cow rather than pay a horse tax. Tax relief has often been designed to encourage large families, today however inflation has caught up with dependent deductions. Federal revenue officers were tarred and feathered over a Federal excise imposed on distilled spirits in 1794. The government got even in this instance when President Washington called out the militia and enforced the levy.

Having paid your taxes for the year 1964 A. D., with the knowledge that you are a goose — do you still have a pot to hiss in?

Leave the Highway Commission alone

The Highway Commission is a wholly independent agency in New Mexico. After listening to the "ands" and "buts" of this situation for a number of years we have arrived at the conclusion this is a good thing for New Mexico.

The agency men are appointed by the governor. In most instances he will pick honest and capable men. Once the commissioners are appointed by the governor he ceases to have any control of them.

One of the advantages of this arrangement, sure one hoped for when the constitutional amendment was passed, is the elimination of road politics stemming from the governor's office. Such elimination is not complete but the desire of one man (governor) do not supercede the thinking of five (the commissioners).

A recent critic of the commission said they held an arrogant and independent attitude. There surely will be many times in the career of a highway commissioner when he will need adopt an independent attitude to stave off the pressure groups, of the metropolitan areas. And, by staying independent a commissioner could easily be called arrogant in the next breath.

Highway business is one of our biggest. We much prefer an independent group in charge to making such business a political football.

Could the Valley of Fire Park die?

Lots of people come down through New Mexico from mid-western states to visit friends and relatives in the southwest. All of those stopping to see the editor and wife ask about the Mal Pais.

Attendance at National Park Service areas increased from 21,752,000 in 1946 to 72,854,000 in 1960. Attendance at New Mexico state parks was estimated at 1,180,000 during the year 1963.

After years of work by Carrizozo Women's Club, much help from Rep. W. G. Shreengost, an appropriation of funds to get the park going, considerable help from the State Park Commission — where are we now? About where we started.

Why are we there? Because a site is not available.

Who should get to work? All of Carrizozo and especially the motel, cafe, and service station people who profit most directly from park facilities and tourists staying longer in the area.

What about a site? Pick one right away where the land can be bought for $2.50 an acre. The tentative site may be the best but it's worthless if the seller won't sell. There's lots of Mal Pais and should be other good sites.

Will the Women's Club accept help? Sure, they'd be delighted to have help from any source.

When should you start helping, pick a site, move along the purchase, and see that the park is brought to completion? Right now, today!

In New Mexico...
after a swim, beer is a natural

On a hot summer day, a dip in a cool stream can be wonderfully refreshing. Equally refreshing when you're relaxing afterwards with friends is a hearty glass of beer. There's hardly another beverage around that suits what you do for fun as much as beer. Camping, hiking, or just lounging on a lawn chair—beer brings to each just the right touch of extra good living.

Your favorite glass of beer is also a pleasant reminder that we live in a land of personal freedom—and that our right to enjoy beer and ale, if we so desire, is just one, but an important one, of these personal freedoms.

Work begins on Lincoln forest roads

Santa Fe — A spokesman for the Bureau of Public Roads in Santa Fe said work will probably start within two weeks on two national forest road projects in New Mexico.

Lowdermilk, Inc., Espanola, offered the low bid of $416,584 for improvement of a 2.6 mile stretch of US 380 east of Carrizozo in Lincoln National Forest.

Estimate was $500,000 on the Lincoln National Forest project.

Compliments go to the News printer's devil, Frank Hoff, who printed election cards for several candidates for student council election. The candidates probably don't know, we'll tell them that the printing was first grade and they certainly got a good deal out of whatever Frank charged them.

Paul Ortiz and Paul Payton were talking about stomachs Tuesday. We agreed that when the physical condition of the individual is in a receptive condition most anything can upset the works. A bug of some sort bracketed Payton (inward) and put him in the hospital for 3 nights. The last two thoroughly enjoyed.

Do have a bit of advice for people about to go into a hospital. If you want to complete your nap best leave a portion of your backside here. Then the nurse can quietly come in, jab the exposed skin with a shot and you'll hardly miss a snore, considering of course that you are tough in that area.

Would have never finished "The Agony and the Ecstasy", a 785-page book about the life of Michelangelo had we not been in the hospital. This great artist fought all kinds of battles during his 90 years with a great love for life. The night before his death, these were his thoughts, "Life has been good. God did not create me to abandon me. I have loved marble, yes, and paint too. I have loved architecture, and poetry too. I have loved my family and my friends. I have loved God, the forms of the earth and the heavens, and people too. I have loved life to the full, and now I love death as its natural termination."

And so we scorn the codfish.

It pays to advertise.

It's that time of year — the 6th grade had been told to make a list of their choices for the 9 greatest Americans of all time and given 15 minutes to do it. At the end of the time one boy had not yet finished. The teacher asked if he couldn't think of nine great Americans. "Oh, yes," the boy replied. Inside The Capitol By WIN Harrison

TEAM CANDIDATES FOR FIRST TEAM

SANTA FE — The candidates for governor and lieutenant governor will win or lose together in November in the first trial of backing the candidates to avoid a Republican governor serving with a Demo foot gov. or the other way around.

The constitutional change, approved by the 1960 election, was designed to avoid the awkward circumstances of the six years when Republican Gov. Ed Mecham served with Democratic lieutenant governors. But it could create new problems.

ALWAYS DANGER OF BAD BUDDY

It is possible that a candidate for lieutenant governor might be nominated in a convention or primary election who is completely incompatible with the nominee for governor.

And think of this:
Suppose a strong, sure winner candidate is running for governor with a lieutenant governor candidate who turns out to be a criminal or a complete slob in the course of the campaign. The bad candidate could get the good candidate defeated.

CLEAN PAIRS RUNNING LOW

There is nothing like that this time as far as anybody can tell.

Both tickets have clean pairs in Democrats Gov. Jack Campbell and Lieut. Gov. Mack Eastley, and Republicans Meric Tucker and Joe Leonard for lieutenant governor.

OTHER GOVERNORS HAD TO TROUBLE

Governor Mecham is not this only governor who served with a lieutenant governor of the other party.

Democrat Esquivel Cabera de Baca was elected the second governor of New Mexico in 1916 with a Republican lieutenant governor, Washington E. Lindsay.

Cabera de Baca died two months after taking office and the Republican served most of his term.

HANNETT, SARGENT OPPOSITE PARTIES

In 1924 Democrat A. T. Hannett was elected governor with Republican Ed Sargent as his lieutenant governor.

Hannett, of course, lived out his term, and went on to write a delightful book forty years later, Sagebrush Lawyer, which incidentally, contained no complaint about the Republican lieutenant governor.

TENDS TO KEEP GOVERNOR HOME

The rule that calls for the lieutenant governor to be governor when the real governor is out of the state tends to make a governor of one party a captive within the state when he is serving with a lieutenant governor of the other party.

Mecham stayed home many times during the period that he was serving with Demos Lt. Govs. Tibo Chavez and Joe M. Montoya.

It should be said, however, that the Democratic officials did have opportunities to undercut the Republican governor and never did.

TIBO CHAVEZ STOOD FIRM

There was one particular case when Corporation Commissioner Eugene Allison was killed in an automobile accident, Lt. Gov. Tibo Chavez, serving as governor had the opportunity to appoint his successor but did not in spite of tremendous pressure on him to take control.

When Tibo Chavez refused to make an appointment it was urged on him to drive across the state line to Colorado or Arizona for an hour of fishing so that the secretary of the state, Bea Roach, could make the appointment, but he would not do that either.

When both the governor and the lieutenant governor are out of the state the secretary of state becomes governor, and when she is also outside it falls on the president pro tempore of the state senate, presently Bill Wheatley.

DEMOCRATS FEARED MECHAM STRENGTH

The rule for candidates for governor and lieutenant governor running together came about in an interesting manner in the 1961 legislature.

That legislature approved 13 proposals for amendment of the constitution and designated that 12 of them be considered at a special election in September 1961.

The thirteenth, governor-lieutenant teaming, was put over until the general election of 1962 by the Democratic legislature to shut off the possibility of the popular Republican Mecham running for re-election and carrying in a Republican lieutenant governor. The precaution was unnecessary. Mecham lost to Demo Jack Campbell.

REAL AUTHORITY FOR THE ACTORS

An acting governor operates with the full authority of the real governor and can do many things that the real governor cannot undo when he returns.

Pardoned criminals cannot be un-pardoned, appointees to vacancies in elective posts cannot be removed, nor appointees to the boards of regents of the educational institutions.

Faith is not a sense, nor sight, nor reason, but taking God at his word.

Like corn on the cob!

You've got to chomp off a mouthfull to know how good it is!

People who don't want anyone to know they are in business are all the time telling us -- "No one reads the ads."

We don't argue with them much, just figure they don't want business from Lincoln County News readers, and that's about the truth -- because people do read the ads.

A moderate sized ad last week told our readers that the local drive-in movie was opening and the name of the show -- the turnout was exceptionally good -- and the movie was the only advertising used.

People who do not want business from News readers have a great variety of excuses -- the only one of which really concerns us is when they say, "No one reads the ads." It simply is not true.

You'll find more good entertainment at the drive-in this weekend. Read about it in the Lincoln County News.

"How can I benefit from joining" is question most frequently asked

"I have heard of the Upper Hondo Soil and Water Conservation District for several years now, but I would like to know just what a soil conservation district is and how I can benefit by becoming a cooperator with the district." In everyday contacts with ranchers and farmers in Lincoln County over the past several years this question has been asked several times.

A Soil and Water Conservation District is a group of ranchers and farmers who are interested in preventing further soil erosion and water waste and in learning to better manage the resources upon which they make their living. A District is created after petitions, public hearings and a referendum show that the landowners of a county, community or certain area want a local agency to assist them in dealing with their conservation problems. A certificate of organization is issued by the State of New Mexico creating a Soil and Water Conservation District as a governmental subdivision of the State.

As soon as the district is officially organized, the local farmers and ranchers in the area elect five fellow landowners to serve as supervisors of the district. The first step the supervisors take after a district is organized, is to develop a district-wide program and decide on a plan of action. As soon as this is done they request assistance from public and private sources to carry out this program. The supervisors then manage the affairs of the district by assisting the landowners in developing a plan or program whereby better use of the land is made, surface water is managed properly, soil erosion is controlled and soil fertility is maintained. Note here that the Soil Conservation Districts are operated and controlled by the landowners in the area and not by the agencies assisting them. The responsibility of carrying out the wishes of the landowners in a district is set squarely on the shoulders of the five men who are selected as supervisors. These elected supervisors serve without pay. Their reward lies in the knowledge of widespread acceptance of conservation ranching and farming by you, their neighbors. These men devote many hours of their time in the interest of furthering the conservation program.

At the present time our Upper Hondo Soil and Water Conservation District supervisors are A. T. Pfingsten, Peter Hurd, Ernest McDaniel, Ralph Bonnell and Charles A. Jones. These men have arranged for help to the landowners in the district by entering into a memorandum of understanding with the Soil Conservation Service in which the Service agrees to furnish, according to a schedule of assistance, the technical personnel and other assistance necessary to meet the district's objective.

Now that we know what a district is, the next question is, how can you, a landowner within the district boundaries, benefit by becoming a cooperator with the district? You don't have to be a large land owner to receive assistance. If you only have an acre or two which you need conservation assistance on, the district stands ready to help you.

When a landowner enters into a cooperative agreement with the district, he receives technical help in first preparing a plan as to what, when and how he plans to conserve and build up his soil. This district provides him with a map of his land, prepared by the Soil Conservation Service technicians, showing him the kinds of soil in each field or pasture and what it is capable of being used for. The Soil Conservation Service personnel assigned to the district will explain to him various ways he can use the land and measures that can be taken to prevent further soil and water waste. What the landowner decides to do is then written down and becomes an agreement between him and the district. When Mr. Rancher, Farmer or small tract owner decides to go to work carrying out the things he has planned to improve and conserve his soil and water, which he may do as fast or slowly as he pleases, Soil Conservation Service technicians will assist him with applying the planned practice. In most instances, there is Federal cost sharing available to landowners in carrying out conservation work. For example, under the Great Plains Conservation Program, the Federal government will cost share 60 per cent of the total costs of erosion control work.

Landowners who are not as yet cooperators in their soil conservation districts are invited to join in combating further soil and water loss. Drop by the home of one of the supervisors mentioned for the Upper Hondo District and have a talk with him. I'm sure you will find that he will have plenty of time to talk over your conservation problems and assist you in starting on a program to stop further erosion. If you find it more convenient, stop by the Soil Conservation Service Office in Capitan; you will be welcomed and every effort will be made to assist you with conservation problems.

I'm sure that you will benefit by becoming a cooperator with the Upper Hondo District and that in the end conservation farming or ranching will PAY for our generation and those to come.
