New Zozo dial system ends switchboard in N.M. Attending Boys State is memorable experience

PAYTON APPOINTED TO TB HOSPITAL BOARD

Gov. Jack Campbell at a final meeting of the New Mexico Press Association Saturday announced that Paul Payton of Carrizozo will be officially appointed to the Fort Stanton Tuberculosis Hospital Board. Payton is editor and publisher of the Lincoln County News.

FARM NEWS

By County Agent Ralph Dunlap

A bumper peach crop is expected this year in Lincoln County. The trees are heavily loaded and many may require propping to prevent limb breakage. This is the first crop in three years.

The apples in the area are sizing well. Heavy yields of Golden Delicious, Jonathan, Rome and Stamen apples are expected.

I put out some trial samples of Harvester Ant bait this last week. Mirex was used in four concentrations and three different rates to see which is the more effective on the Western Harvester and the Texas Harvester Ants. It will take at least two weeks to see any results and a year to be sure if the den is dead.

This bait is 25% soybean on a ground corncob carrier. The Harvester Ant likes the oil and readily takes it in the hill. The small ant around the house likes plant juice, sugar or sweet substances and will not touch the oil bait.

In the Fruitgrower this month, they estimate a large increase in the national apple production. The Golden Delicious shows the greatest increase of any variety followed by the Jonathan and Rome.

Lanes back at Tastes Freez

Mr. and Mrs. Wade Lane, Lois, Wade, Jr., and Kevin took over the operation of the Tastes Freez Monday from Frank McBride. The Lanes have operated this business for a number of years.

Hear about the car that will run all the way from New York to Los Angeles on $100 worth of electricity? Only difficulty is that the extension cord would cost about $300,000.

Everything went according to plans and the telephone system in Carrizozo was completed to dial operation last Saturday, (June 20) midnight.

At a few seconds past midnight, Mountain States Telephone technicians cut the cables going into the old office and threw a switch which will route all incoming and outgoing calls into the new dial office. A few seconds later, Mayor Vernon Petty made the first local call over the new system.

This is a milestone in the history of Mountain States Telephone as it signals the conversion of the last telephone system in the State, belonging to that firm, from manual operation to dial.

The first telephone in New Mexico was installed in Las Vegas in 1881. The following year, telephones were installed in Albuquerque and Santa Fe, and in 1883 the first long distance line connected those three communities.

The first dial telephone system in the State was installed in Bernalillo on July 8, 1939. Ray Gabehart, local manager for Mountain States telephone announced. After that there was a rapid spread of the new dial system until World War II called a sudden halt to the conversion. It was not until after 1946 that enough equipment could be made available to convert any additional exchanges or add to those that were already in existence.

Sabino Vidaurri, according to the local records, has held service in Carrizozo longer than anyone else. He had telephone number 47 since 1917 and was active in the ceremonies converting Carrizozo to dial operation.

Concurrent with the inauguration of dial system, Carrizozo telephone users now can dial their own long distance calls across the nation as easily as across the city. Known as Direct Distance Dialing or DDD, this service utilizes a vast network of telephone routes which have been established over the past several years.

As a matter of fact, the inauguration of dial service in Carrizozo comes just three days and fifty years after the day in 1914 when the first long distance call across the nation was completed. This occurred on June 17, 1914 and the last telephone pole for the intercontinental telephone line was placed near Wendover, Utah.

For the first time, people could call directly from New York to San Francisco. At that time, a three-minute coast-to-coast call cost $20. Now, any telephone user can call any place in the United States after 9 o'clock at night for just $1, Gabehart said.

Some wild events at White Oaks

The White Oaks Roping Club sponsors a "Frontier Day" on July 4 at White Oaks with some real wild rodeo events. Wild cow milking gets to be a contest of who can hold the cow. Bareback riding with a loose rope separates the men from the boys. The youngsters have a burro and goat scramble for excitement.

Youngsters rodeo events start at 9:00 a.m. and run to noon. The adult rodeo events start at 1:00 p.m.

There is no charge for spectators at this special day.

PATROLMAN BROOKS TRANSFERS TO MORIARTY

Jess Brooks of the State Police stationed in Corona for several years was recently transferred to Moriarty. Albert Clouse from Moriarty replaced Brooks in Corona.

Capitan pushing for rest stop

At a meeting of the Rural Area Development Assn. last week in Capitán Mayor Gerald Dean told the group that the Town of Capitán was working to have rest stops constructed along the new road being constructed near Indian Divide. The construction is being done with forest funds and it was thought the Forest Service would favor the project.

Dean also told the group of the need to form an association to work for bringing natural gas into this area of the county.

The IAD will have a float in the Smokey Bear Stampede parade.

Other talk covered forest camps, possible new industrial development, and interesting more of the county in the RAD.

Attending the meeting were: Duane Darling, Ralph Soelther, Gerald Dean, Johnson Stearns, Paul Payton, Jerry Gordon, Walt Wilson, Ralph Dunlap, Fred English, Herman McKibben and Bill Shreengost.

Attending Boys State is memorable experience

By Gerald Peery

Our past week in Boys State was one of the most memorable events in our lives, because I feel that we will remember the things we learned and the people we met many years from now.

The main purpose of Boys State is to teach the youth of America how our government operates and, just as important, you make good friends with boys from all over the state. In Boys State you learn how the government operates the best possible way (by actual participation in Boys State government).

Manny Torres

livered to Mrs. Jack Kennedy by the Boys Nation delegates in honor of her late husband.

Also in Boys State this year we were given 4 lectures on law by experts in their respective fields of law. Every boy had to take 2 law examinations after the lectures were over, but these tests weren't too difficult. On Thursday night Gov. Campbell visited Boy State and gave a talk.

On the closing night we were given a fine talk on Communism by Dr. C. L. Kay from Lubbock Christian College.

We the 1964 delegates to Boys State would like to thank again everyone who made it possible for us to attend; it was a great experience.

Boys from Carrizozo participating in this year's session of Boys State were Gerald Peery, Mike Ortiz and Mammie Torres.

Alumni dance is Saturday night

Carrizozo Alumni will have their annual dance Saturday night, June 27. The Saddlelites of Alamogordo will furnish the music.

The Saddlelites' all originally came from Lincoln County, Nogal, Capitán and Corona. The annual alumni picnic will be held Sunday, June 28, at Nogal Canyon.

Covering flares endangers lives

State Policeman Darrell Austin has reported that persons have piled dirt on road flares in the Indian Divide construction area, a criminal offense, which puts the flares out of action and could cause a serious accident.

Reflectors have been stolen and a barricade was taken one night.

Austin suspects it to be the work of a bunch of kids. In any case, the vandals will be prosecuted to the full extent of the law when caught and he warns parents to caution their youngsters about such vandalism.

Mike Ortiz

When you arrive you are assigned to a certain city, a certain county, and a party. The cities are Castillo, Cortez, Mendocino, Coronado, Monterey, Montezuma, Trujillo, and Armiño. The counties are as follows: De Baca, De Castro, De Leon and De Vargas. There are two parties in Boys State, the Federalist and the Nationalist.

The first day is spent getting acquainted with people and settling down. From the first day on every day is busy. You rise at 6:30 a.m. and are busy until 10:30 or 11:00 p.m. when you have to retire for the night.

Gerald Peery

First, every city elects their city officials and pass laws pertaining to that respective city. Then the city officials appoint positions such as police chief, fire chief, policemen, etc., to enforce their city ordinances.

Next the county and state elections are held and the county and state governments are put into action.

One important bill passed by the Boys State legislature this year was one which provided for a plaque which was to be de-

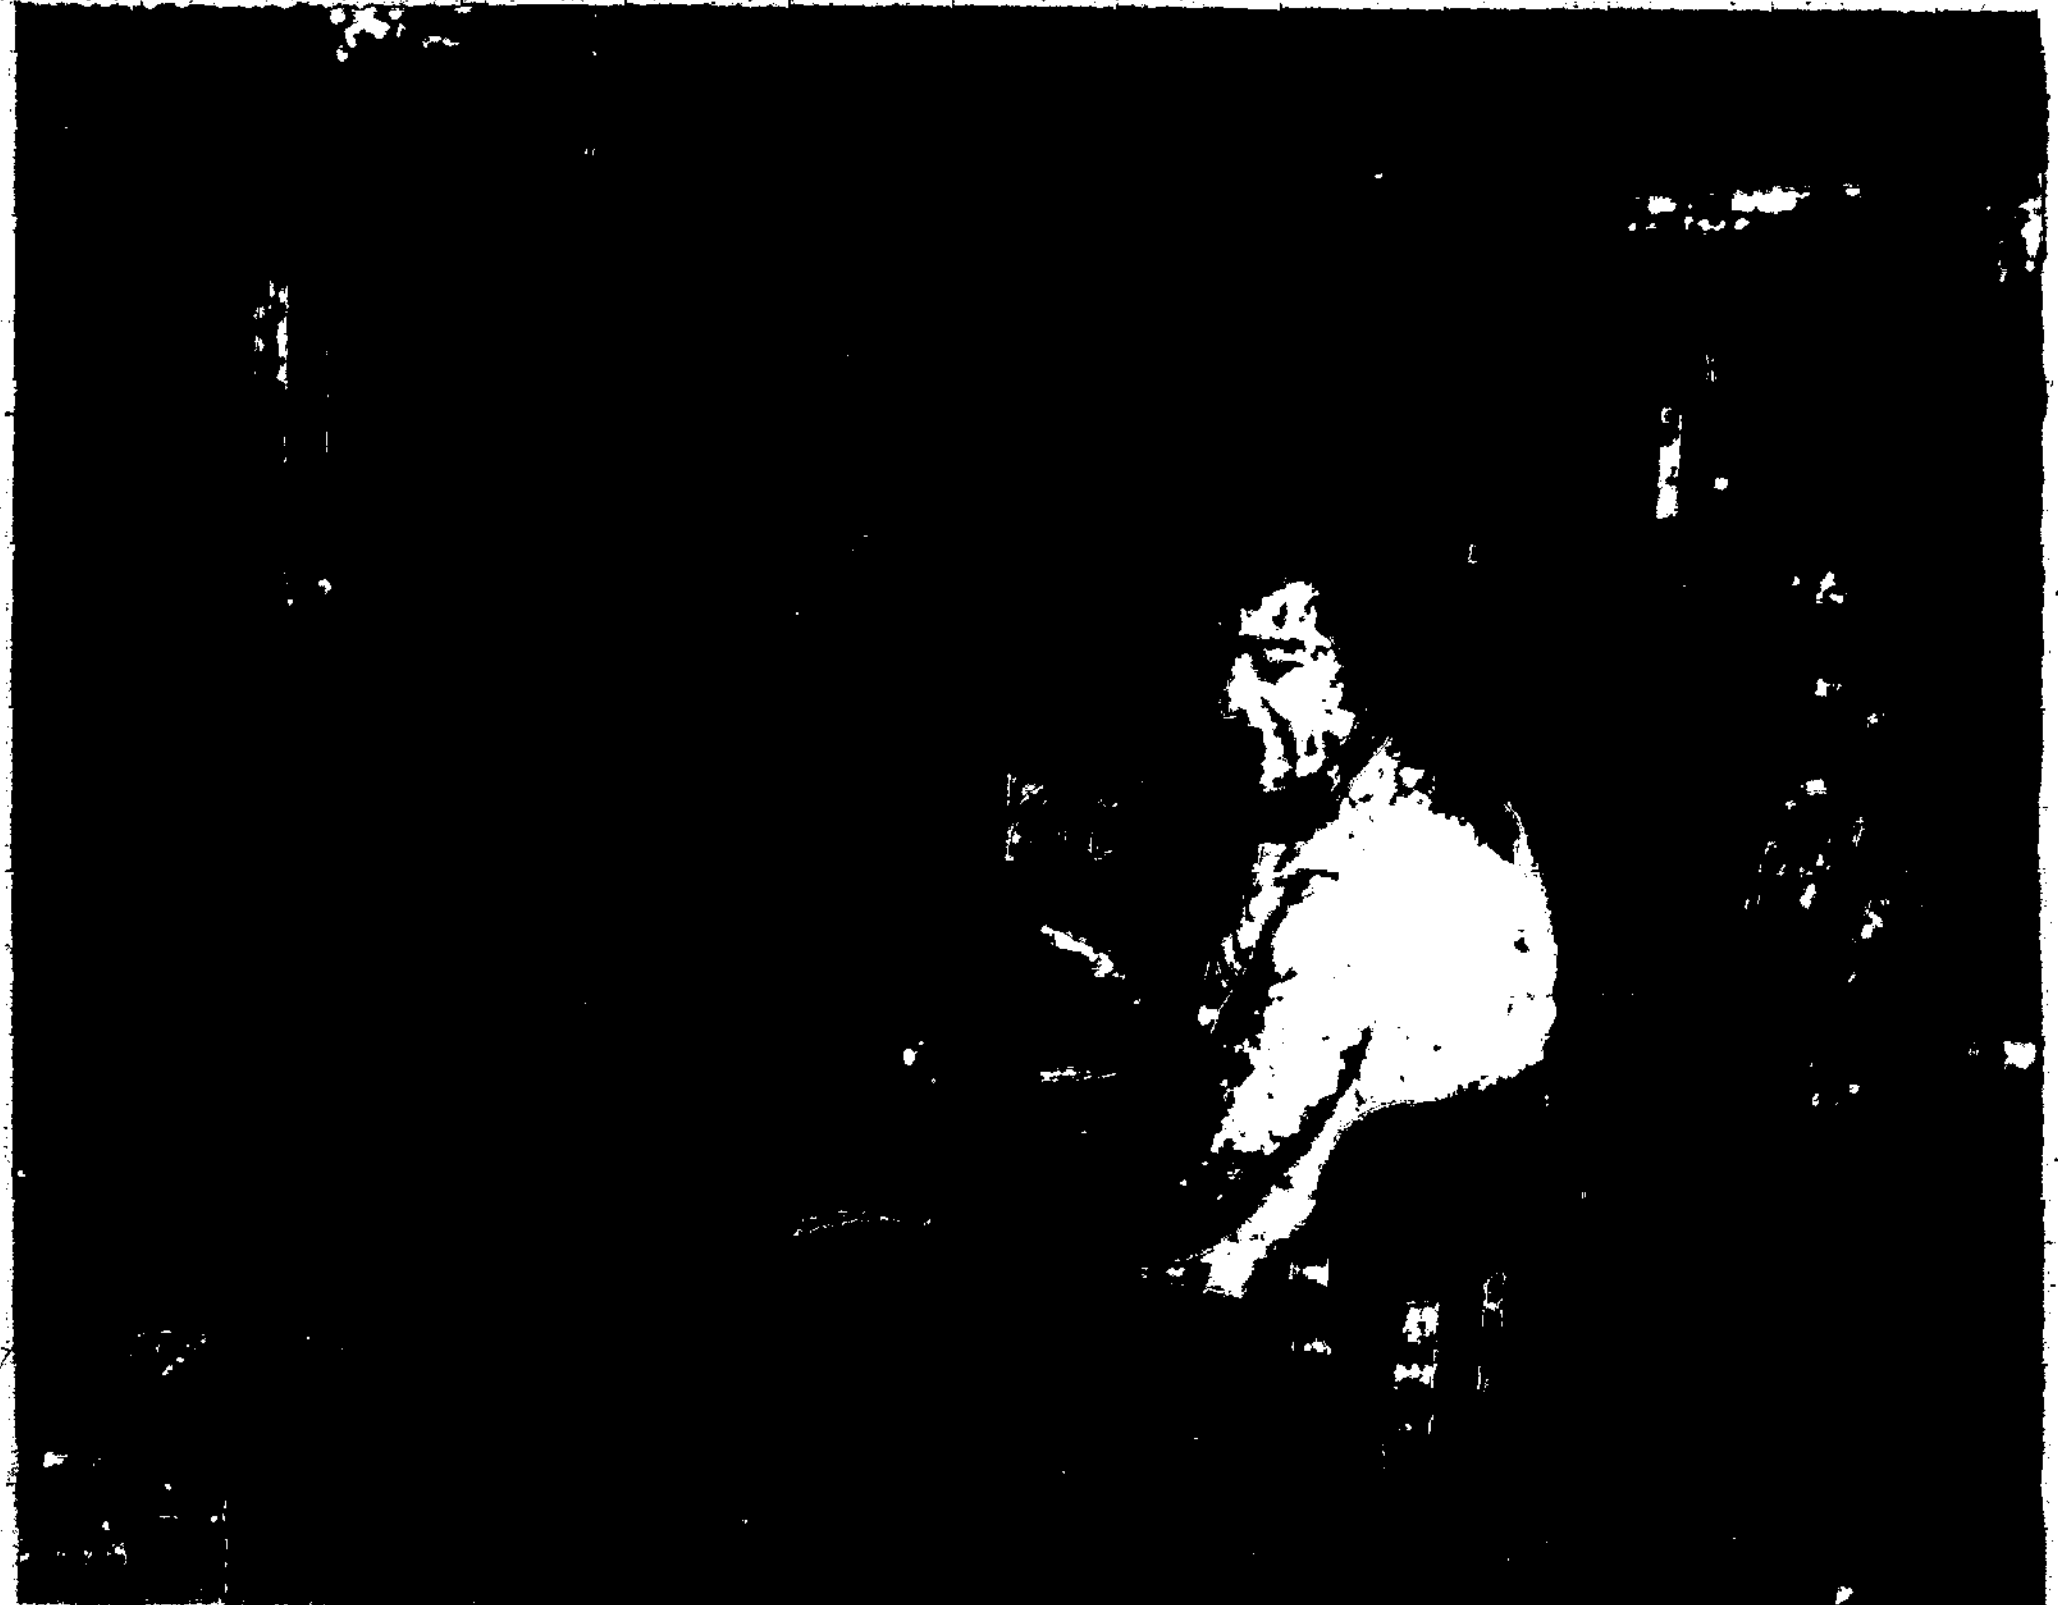

Oldest records in Lincoln County courthouse date from June 12, 1869

Lucien A. Files has compiled a listing of county mining records for counties of New Mexico which is a source list of books and records pertaining to mining which may be found in the official records of counties studied.

The oldest book in the clerk's office, Lincoln County Court House at Carrizozo, is Book E miscellaneous. The first entry in this book is a land claim on June 12, 1869, in English and Spanish. The last entry is a quit-claim deed with pages missing. The next to last entry was made June 4, 1876.

The compilation by File lists mining records, location notices, mining claims and records, lode book, of which there is a long list. Also included in the compilation is a list of dates noted in each book.

The introduction by Mr. File says, "The records of New Mexico for the Colonial Period are sadly lacking. The area is rich in history and therefore should be rich in records, but there is very little to be found in county archives that antedates the American occupancy of New Mexico."

LAST LOOK AT OLD SYSTEM — This picture taken the day before the new dial system was put into operation could become a collector's item. Carrizozo was the last town in the state to go dial, and Mrs. Berry (left) and Cora Beene are two of the last of a vanishing breed of "hollo gals". Pictures taken in the old phone office, now closed forever to this type of business.

Marriages:
Jay T. Posey to Linda Peters both of Ruidoso. They were married June 20 by Alfred Richard, pastor of the First Baptist church in Ruidoso.
James Ray Greene of El Paso and Maria Antonia Hernandez of Bisbee, Arizona. They were married June 17 by Justice of the Peace R. L. Sherrill in Carrizozo.
Andrew James Clemmons of Roswell and Dorothy Jean Marchbanks of Corona. They were married June 17 by Justice of the Peace R. L. Sherrill.

A land of an eye for an eye

Abqain, Saudia Arabia — When news spread over the world of the decree that dived King Ibn Abdul Aziz al Faisal al Saud of his power and left him as only a "figure head" in the Saudi Arabia kingdom, people became interested in accounts of the colorful Saud family, and its dynasty. And, of course, along with the cold facts, strange legends sprang to light, and tales of treasures and storehouses of wealth — some that would almost tickle the horns off one of the Kingdom's tough old billy goats! And from what I've seen scattered around in the camel herds there are some galloping jests.

These bits are mostly about King Saud, father of the king who has just been stripped of power in favor of his brother, Crown Prince Faisal. The former king passed in 1953, leaving his son with a threatened bankrupt kingdom, and lots of stories telling how he had come to power. From the straits of the bankruptcy, however, his son was not long in tightening the strings on a full purse, from the all-out development of the oil reserve in his land. It has been recently noted that a million dollars a day is grossed from oil sales in the land. This is split 50-50, Aramco (Arabian American Oil Co.) and the kingdom.

When Ibn Saud was relieved of his power, he at first refused to abide by the decree. But his brother, Faisal, ordered out the "White Army" — to us the National Guard — to surround the palace at Riyadh, a few kilometers to the south of this date line. Ibn Saud then was not long in changing his mind. The bearded six-foot-six inch tall King has succeeded his father to power at the age of 51. In some lands it might be appropriate to say THRONE; but in this land, I wouldn't think it correct. During the time his harem mounted to a reputed 80 to 100 members, and gave him, according to gossip, 247 children. With the oil income he purchased fleets of Cadillacs for his 23 brothers, and the other 1000 or so members. There is also a rumor that he bought one load of silver ornaments and dishes in Europe, far in excess of a ton, and caused it to be delivered to his storeroom in the two-mile-square palace, which he had constructed to order in the capital city of Riyadh.

But that is all a different story now, since the king is stripped of everything except his title and half his former income $40 million and, of course, his multitudinous harem and never-ending fleets of Cadillacs. However, this recent news has caused legends of his father to renew vigor around over the desert land, in the black tents and among the camel herders, that caused plenty of laughs and some thoughts.

The deceased King Saud is said to have given much attention to domestic cases during his reign. He sought unity and justice for the desert nomads of the land. These incidents almost parallel some of the long ago Arabian Nights stories, even though they are only of this generation.

This was a case of a woman whose husband had been killed when another man fell upon him from a palm tree. A suit was filed in the law of the land by the unfortunate's wife. The first judge urged the plaintiff to accept money as a settlement.

But the widow, like the greater percentage of people of the Middle East, was devout Moslem, and believed in following the words of the Koran. She refused the money, thinking she should live by the verse, "an eye for an eye." Hence the case was passed through the various courts of the land, until finally it reached the supreme court of Saudi Arabia.

When it reached this court, King Saud decreed: "It is your right under the Koranic law to insist on the death of this man. It is only fair, however, that he be killed as he has killed. He will therefore be tied underneath a palm tree and someone will be dropped on him until he is dead. Since you are the person most directly concerned, you will be dropped."

The woman decided to take the money!

Another instance in which King Saud poured his wisdom out upon the desert Bedouins. One of the straggling nomads arrived at his palace, as far south as the Empty Quarter, which is another name for the vicious Rub al-Khali desert. He had come upon a sack of Yemeni coffee somewhere in his desert travels, which he had ambition to report.

"Good", King Saud is reported to have said. And, turning to his guards, he instructed, "Give this man three Riyadh for having passed on this information. Also give him three lashes with a heavy whip."

When he heard the decree of punishment, the coffee-finder whined, "Why am I to be punished?"

The monarch replied, "Since you report the bag was filled with Yemeni coffee, it is clear you must have opened it, and no one in my kingdom tampers with another's property."

Along in those days when the King's harem moved, each of the wives was given a plane ticket providing for her and her children, relatives, and servants. One of the harem members, in order to carry along more relatives than the ticket called for, did a little forgery act. It meant dangerously overloading the plane. The ticket originally called for 15 people, but the thoughtful wife changed it to read 35. The Saudi official — challenged the act. The wife complained to the king, and aroused him to fury.

Through the aide the king dispatched word to the officer in Jidda, saying "Don't leave your chair until my soldiers come to get you." One of the king's sons was in the "know" of the situation and whisked the official off to Mecca for the night. The next day the King Saud was explained to about the incident; he forgave his son Mansour and the official who had challenged the forgery, and turned his anger against his wife!

So the cookie crumbles in Saudi Arabia!

THE LONG AND SHORT OF IT IS . . . It would be far from my ambition to be branded as a prevaricator while visiting this strange-cruel-land; but for the one who has such thoughts, I would not wish him such unpleasantness as to follow in my paths, in order to clarify. But will answer in advance that it is all a part of a writer's desire to tell the truth, and to go to no ends that you may have it.

weekend guests in the home of Mr. and Mrs. Clarence Roper. Officer and Mrs. Al Clouse and sons, Lonnie 12, Bobby 8, and daughter, Teri Lee 4, of Moriarty, moved to Corona last Friday. Officer Jess Brooks has been transferred to Moriarty, to take the place of Officer Clouse.

The Corona Baptist Church was very pleased with the attendance of the children, during the two weeks of Bible School. Commencement night was last Friday.

renamed it "Alpine Garage". They will do all types of automotive repair work and welding. Jack is a 1958 graduate from Corona High School.

Bonito Water

By Louise Coe Rannels

To go above Bonito Dam on the weekend and see all the camps and fishermen around the lake is surprising, at night until about 9:00 you see little lights all around the dam. Folks must be catching fish or just like to camp in this beautiful valley, even if the water is lowest it has been in three years. Our little creek is barely running. The Forest Service is drilling a well in South Fork getting ready to start on the recreation area. Contract is to be let on more road building and the R. E. A. is going up the creek, so will be commercialized pretty soon.

One of our Lincoln County pioneers was here to visit Sunday, Mr. and Mrs. Jack Parnell brought him from Ruidoso Downs. Mr. Herbert Ruddy, Nina and Hugh Truitt took him home in the evening. Everyone enjoyed Mr. Ruddy's company.

Dorothy Parnell said their daughter, Jane was on her way to Detroit, Mich. to attend the National Convention of the American Home Economics Association as a delegate from Eastern New Mexico University. At the end of the convention Jane will go on to Canada to attend the Shakespearean Festival which is the celebration of William Shakespeare's 400th birthday. Jane is a fortunate girl and surely a deserving girl to have these trips added to her book of travels.

It is interesting to know that Herbert Lee and Alice Traylor from Alto are, and have been for several years collecting pioneer's pictures, and quotations. They would be very happy to receive new ones from relatives or friends of our Lincoln County pioneers. This collection is not for a book or for sale — only for a record and reading for folks interested.

a new dimension in telephoning FOR CARRIZOZO

Last Sunday, a new dial telephone system went into operation in Carrizozo. At that time all telephones in this exchange area received new seven-digit numbers, beginning with the prefix 648, followed by four additional figures—for example 648-6140.

At the same instant, the miracle of Direct Distance Dialing became a fact in Carrizozo. All subscribers here can now dial their own station-to-station Long Distance calls.

IMPORTANT HINTS ON LOCAL CALLING

- If you haven't already done so, be sure to dispose of your old directory.
- Look up all numbers before you dial—don't trust to memory!
- Correct your personal number lists. A handy place to keep local and out-of-town numbers is your Personal Directory, which was mailed to you recently.
- Be sure to listen for the steady hum of the dial tone, which means the equipment is ready to receive your call.
- Remember, 7 turns of the dial on all local calls—for example, dial 648, then each of the four remaining figures, such as 6140.
- If you need assistance, dial the figure "0" (Operator), ask for the assistance operator, and she will help you.

IT'S EASY TO DIAL A LONG DISTANCE CALL

Suppose you want to call 552-5898 in San Francisco—Here's all you need to do:

- Be sure to have the complete number you're calling, and the area code, in front of you.
- Listen for the dial tone; then dial the figure "1".
- Dial the area code, such as 4-1-5 (no area code is required for calls to other cities within New Mexico). You'll find a partial list of area code numbers in your new directory.
- Then dial the number exactly as you would dial a local number. That's all there is to it! Now you'll hear the phone you're calling begin to ring.

If you get a wrong number . . . find out the name of the city you reached while the other party is still on the line. Dial "O" (Operator) promptly and tell her what happened, so you won't be billed for the call.

For complete instructions on how to dial your own Long Distance calls and get information in distant cities, consult the information pages in your new directory.

Something we don't do enough of!

While Betsy Hooker, Claunch reporter is recovering from a spell in the hospital the News has a new reporter who is doing a fine job. Thanks to Betsy for keeping the news coming and to the news reporter, who ever she may be.

A paragraph in the Claunch news this week says, "Everyone had lots to eat and enjoyed visiting all their neighbors and friends. All had a good time as visiting is something we don't do enough of anymore. There were 55 present."

Don't know so much about the ranchers finding time to visit but the people in business that are doing business sure have their hands full and finding time to visit is hard.

One of our best institutions, visiting with neighbors, is about like the Model T, a thing of the past and we should fight this situation by making a conscious effort to go around where the visiting is done more often.

One of the very best features of life in a small town is knowing your neighbors — should get to know them better.

What the visitor said!

The News has had a rash of visitors from all sections of the country this summer so far. Some wanted literature (send them to the city hall), others asking if this is the newspaper (they buy one or more), others talking time to talk about what they want to see (getting directions), still others asking for county maps.

Without doubt the county seat of Lincoln County impresses them in different ways. A good number of people who saw Carrizozo years ago will say a lot of improvements have been made and the town is sure looking better.

A visitor from Illinois suggested that we must have had a recession here because of so many empty buildings. Our best answer was, "No we haven't had a recession. No one has got around to tearing down the old buildings that are no longer needed."

Maybe that was not the right answer, entirely, but we think so, Red Canyon did cause a let down, but it caused the wrong (temporary) kind of buildup in the first place. The railroad division point consolidation years ago did cause a severe change in the town but that was long enough ago that a town should have recovered by now.

Back to our original answer — for some reason, not entirely understandable, people move out of home and shack and they are left to rot, fall to pieces and become hazards in many ways, as well as giving the town a look of recession when our main source of strength, cattle and tourists, is about as good as ever. Some drop in cattle market, come gain in tourist travel.

Maybe the next travelers from other parts will see the new school, church, courthouse, swimming pool, paving, many beautiful homes and lawns, parks, phone office, and overlook the tumble-down shacks scattered over town.

No change of politics here!

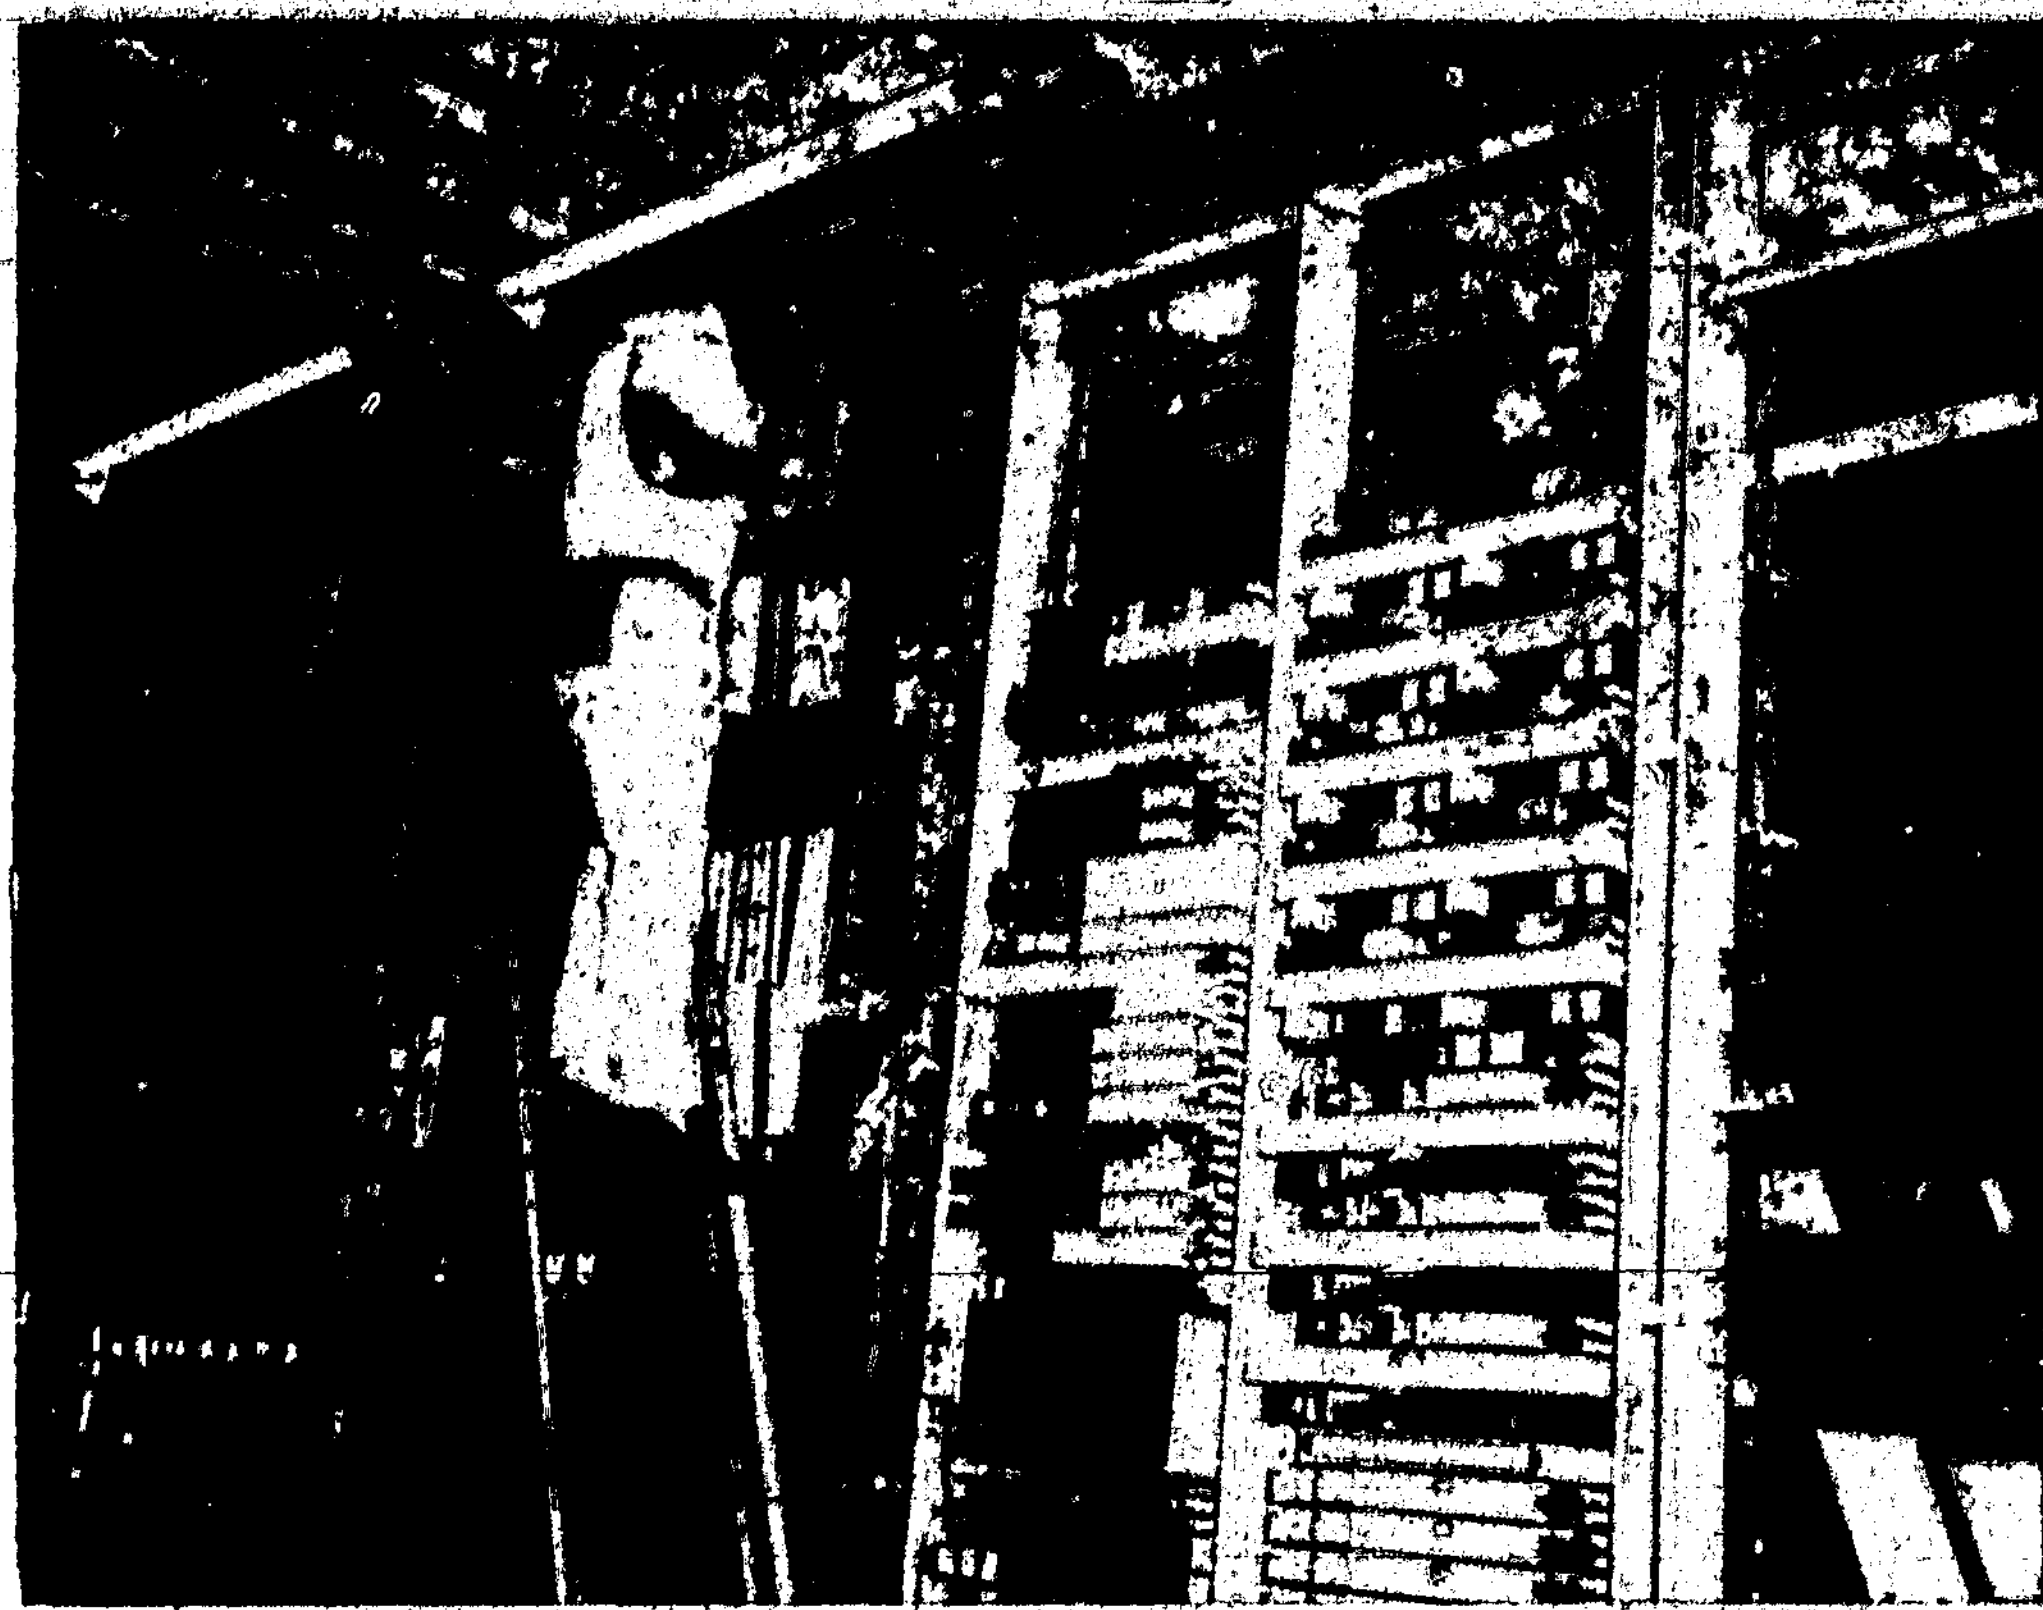

The News editor was slightly hogged this week by an appointment to a job of work and work it really is. We've seen the board of directors of the Fort Stanton TB Hospital work at their job, and with the help of some capable administrators they have been supervising the operation of one of the county's largest institutions. It takes both time and attention to detail. Hope we can be of help serving on this board.

There will be no change of political affiliation around the News. Still a couple of Republicans in charge, though it might be said they are disappointed Republicans during the present times.

The Republican party in both state and nation has been carrying on its business like a parade of youngsters of Boy's State age. Very little maturity to the planning and the action. We think results at the polls in November will validate this statement.

All of which does not change our thinking. Republicanism is a good state of being, somewhere to the left of the radical fringes, and to the right of the big government guys... that way we like it.

Inside view of the new dial phone building in Carrizozo... it works fine!

were impressed with the birch-paneled bathrooms. So all of them in turn had their bathrooms paneled in birch. And that was the beginning of the Birch John Society.

The new dial system in Zozo turned into a real countdown. The thing all fell to pieces (Gabehart's words) about 11:15 and the crew got busy fixing. At 11:48 they were ready to go and Gabehart wanted to cut in, "No," said the boss, "We'll wait until 12:00 midnight." During these latter minutes people were making calls just to be "first" to use dial — the dial not being cut in, they couldn't. The plugs were pulled as scheduled and the dial did work... with few failures. The crew stayed on the job working out the bugs until 1:30 and figured to have all phones converted to dial by Monday night.

Watching the dial gadgets in the new building, is an interesting experience, in automation. The phrase "Look alive, you can be replaced by a button," is more than true in this instance.

We experienced some trouble in the News office during the winter when the LP gas furnace was on. Our Intertype mats (small pieces of brass that slide down a magazine channel) would get gummy and have to be cleaned much more frequently than in the summer. The phone company knew of this problem and could not use LP gas in their installation. The new building has both cooler and heater which maintains a constant temperature between 70-75 degree, all operated by electricity.

Eleanor Payton sat next to Robert Lee, editor of the El Paso Herald-Post at the noon luncheon of the N. M. Press convention in Ruidoso Saturday. Mr. Lee talked about his town a lot and Eleanor concluded that problems of both El Paso and Carrizozo are the same, only difference being the size of the town.

The Mesquero Tribe is having problems at the ski run. Help quit, Forest Service not too pleased we hear. Maybe by fall they will get this bad deal ironed out. A trip to Sierra Blanca was planned for visiting editors, it was on, off, on, off and finally stayed on, everything but the gondola rides.

Gov. Jack Campbell told N. M. editors Saturday night that we need to do more than hand out welfare and found everyone in agreement, we feel sure. Here is a new welfare statistic from the Kansas Free Lance — More people in the U. S. are receiving welfare relief checks than the combined population of Iowa, Kansas, Nebraska, and Oklahoma, costing over $35 billion yearly.

Tuesday is a special day at the News every week — the one when we have more than we can do, but need to get to the right stopping place to be sure of getting the paper in the post office around 6:00 p.m. Wednesday, Tuesday, June 23, was extra special. On that date the News publishers said their vows and the writing publisher knows for a certainty that this union was a happy instance for the News, its readers, and advertisers, and surely not the least... the publisher who was the groom at the occasion. We'll propose a toast to our "best with the best" sometime later this day.

N. M. Press Association will aid Will Harrison as friend of the court

RUIDOSO — Santa Fe Columnist Will Harrison told the New Mexico Press Association Saturday he would appeal to the State Supreme Court his contempt of court conviction.

Harrison was convicted in March by Dist. Court Judge Paul Tackett in connection with comment on the handling of a manslaughter case against a former assistant district attorney.

The association, which opened its summer convention Friday, agreed to continue its efforts on Harrison's behalf and attempt to enter the case as a friend of the court.

Harrison estimated it would be a year before the Supreme Court has a decision on the appeal.

Pick Cruces

In other action the association chose Las Cruces as the site for the winter convention with a date to be set later.

Four categories were added to the E. H. Shaffer Awards. They are: best sports story, best sports column, best general news column in daily and best news column in a weekly. First place winners will receive $25. Second and third places will receive certificates.

The association also changed the name of another Shaffer award category from typography award for weeklies to general excellence in a weekly publication.

Another area of discussion was complaints of government print shops competing with private industry for contracts. The University of New Mexico print shop was cited as an example.

No Law

First Asst. Atty. Gen. Boston Witt said there was no state law preventing government shops from competing but felt it was a bad situation because of the advantage enjoyed by the government shops. He suggested that the association seek legislation limiting the activities of government shops.

Association President Billy Holder, publisher of the Alamo-gordo Daily News, said legislation also was needed to tighten up laws dealing with open public meetings, and laws criminal libel and criminal contempt.

When a lady called an editor of the New York Times asking that a club notice be inserted, the newsmen called her attention to the fact the item had been heard on the radio earlier and asked why she now wanted it in the paper. The lady replied that "radio announcements are so hard to clip."

An object of the Way West editor has been to provide cultural uplift for our readers as much as possible, completely neglecting the physical. Above is the start of a remedy for that situation. We suggest you try this simple exercise each Thursday before reading the News. After doing 15 "too-ups" blood will be coursing through your eyeballs and brain and you will be ready to enjoy your weekly newspaper. If you want to make this exercise tougher, try reading the News and toe-upping at the same time.

Wayne Withers can stand up and take a bow for big improvements in two parks. Lots of elms and roots out of the downtown park, sprinkler system installed and working fine, grass will be planted there. A crop of grass will make a beautiful spot of this park. The island park at the intersection of "E" and 8th is a revelation. Elms taken out there so grass and shrubbery can be planted after sprinkler system is installed. Opening up that intersection was a good move as it looks to us. It's true we don't have enough trees around town, but probably have too many elms.

One chore remains at the E-8th intersection — that is to do something about the other island park and there will be a beautiful view of the area all around.

The main fishing pond on the John Thomas farm at San Patricio.

San Patricio resident adds fishing waters

Mr. Johnny Thomas of San Patricio, has a rather unusual situation. Whereas many Ruidoso valley farmers do not have enough water for their crops, especially during periods of drought, Thomas has a three acre area on his farm with a water table so near the surface of the ground that it has drowned out all apple trees in the area. The high water table is apparently due to an impervious layer of rock originating in the hills north of the farmstead stretching southward coming almost to the ground surface just above the marshy area. Water from a spring located in the same hills runs along the impervious layer of rock causing the high water table as it comes close to the surface.

Mr. Thomas decided to investigate the possibility of converting this marshy area into fisheries ponds for his personal use and if everything worked out satisfactorily, open the area for public fishing as a means for supplementing his other farm income. If everything goes well, Mr. Thomas may also develop a picnic area adjacent to the main pond.

There was considerable preparatory work to do before actual pond construction began. Soil Conservation Service technicians assisted Mr. Thomas in measuring his spring flow, check the water temperature from the standpoint of trout production and evaluate a water analysis made by New Mexico State University. This analysis was to determine the suitability of the water for trout production.

Mr. Thomas then constructed three ponds, the largest measuring 300 feet long and 75 feet wide. An underground drain was installed to carry the excess water to the Ruidoso river. Five thousand rainbow trout measuring from 8 to 10 inches were purchased from a trout ranch in Monte Vista, Colorado and placed in the large pond. Five thousand 2 to 3 inch fingerlings were purchased and placed in a smaller pond for growing.

Your writer recently visited with Mr. Thomas and Mr. Ford, his son-in-law and partner in the fishing business. They informed me that they hoped to be open for public fishing on or about July 1, 1964.

I would suggest you go by and visit the folks and try fishing. The drive through the Ruidoso, Hondo and Bonita valley is always pleasant regardless of how many times you have driven it.

Pat Garrett's book lists certain unpleasantnesses of Lincoln history

ALBUQUERQUE — Eighty-two years ago a famed lawman, Pat Garrett, rode into Santa Fe to write a book concerning certain unpleasantnesses with Billy, the Kid, who at that point was not in position to collaborate.
 Today that book is a rare collector's item that would probably bring several thousand dollars if it should show up at an auction.
 Soon, however, the book under its original title "The Authentic Life of Billy, the Kid", will be made available in modern type face, but otherwise as the author wrote it, by the Albuquerque publishing firm of Horn & Wallace. Publication date is July 1.
 But the book will be more than the action-packed and sometimes moving chronicle of one of the most stirring periods in New Mexico history.
 A long foreword has been written by Jarvis Garrett, the surviving son of the legendary Pat, retired and living with his family in Albuquerque. Jarvis Garrett in his long and highly successful career in the oil business in South and Central America has become something of a legend himself.
 Now for his father's book, he writes a document and thoughtful assessment that will be of great interest to historians and the general public alike. Much of the information is based on family papers that for many years were stored in a vault in a Las Cruces bank. Jarvis himself was only two and a half years old when his father was killed — murdered, Jarvis says in his foreword — and as a result he does not have any personal recollections of his father.
 But Jarvis wants to set things straight about many things and Lincoln County War enthusiasts are sure to disagree with some of the conclusions in the foreword.
 Controversial or not, the two publishers, Calvin Horn of Albuquerque and Williams S. Wallace of Las Vegas both historians in their own right with published books to their credit feel that Garrett has added a highly useful historical dimension to the Pat Garrett story.
 The book will contain reproductions of the original wood cuts as well as 10 additional illustrations including the only known picture of Mrs. Garrett.
 The publishers described the book as being really two books the reprinting of the original story and the distinguished foreword that is an historical document in itself.

Seems Reasonable
 After a hard day's work the weary man went into the club to relax and enjoy a few drinks. His fun was cut short, however, when the bleary-eyed entertainer walked over to the piano, placed his beer glass carefully on top and started banging away tunelessly.
 When the man could stand it no longer, he called the "musician" over. "I suppose you know," he said, "you are probably the world's worst pianist!"
 "Yes," agreed the man, "I know."
 "Well, for Heaven's sake, isn't there something else you can do?"
 "I suppose I could go back to the violin," was the answer, "but my beer always falls off it!"
