Airport prospects improve each day

The Carrizozo Town Council met last Friday with Irl D. Miller, Jr., chief airports branch, and Lewis Million of the Federal Aviation Agency, and Bob White, representing the State Aviation Agency, to discuss an airport and use of the surplus Corona airport equipment in Carrizozo.

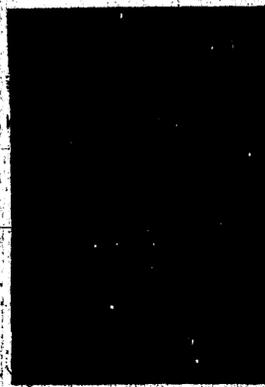

The result of the meeting was that the town has taken a 60-day option for land from Dr. J. P. Turner, Charles O'Mara of Mass Engineering is staking the airport this week, and application was made Tuesday for state aid.

The location of the proposed airport would start at the east end of Eighth Street just beyond the Ortiz Bros. bulk plant and extend northeast. The landing strip would be approximately a mile in length.

Both Miller and Million expressed interest and willingness to help in any way possible. The FAA wants a guarantee that the Town will maintain the field for 20 years, if federal money is used. An estimate was made that an average of 10 planes a week use the present facilities which are not on any maps, are not classified as an airport and would be closed down.

Many of the larger type airplanes will not use the airport at Ruidoso and the Carrizozo strip would be closest for those travelers going to Ruidoso. Weather is frequently bad in the mountains when Carrizozo would be clear for flying.

A tentative budget was drawn up as follows: $10,000 for land, $1,000 to move and install Corona equipment, $1,200 for fence, $6,000 for grading, $2,000 for power lines, $200 for power source, $2,500 for field light cable, $2,500 for survey and engineering. Total $25,400. Mr. Miller said that the FAA is very interested in general aviation. They will participate with fund up to 56.5% of the cost. State participation will amount to around $5,500.

INSIDE THE CAPITOL — By WM Harrison

Norman Palmer could weaken Joe Montoya

SANTA FE — Norman Palmer of Albuquerque is hustling petition signers to get on the Demo primary ballot against Joe Montoya for the U. S. Senate.

Palmer, 29-year-old Stanford graduate and former president of the Albuquerque Young Democrats, isn't about to beat Montoya but his presence in the race would be dangerous to the candidate.

ALL HIS VOTE ANTI-MONTOYA

Palmer isn't widely known and has no claim to support except as one running against U. S. Rep. Montoya.

Thus, if he should score a sizeable vote, as much as a third of the total in the all Democrat election, it would make Montoya appear weak for his test against Republican Sen. Ed McChent in November.

Palmer's presence could force racial considerations into the campaign which wouldn't be good for Montoya in a state that is 71 per cent non-Spanish.

MARCH 17 DATE FOR PETITIONS

Palmer has until March 17 to get in the petitions he needs for a place on the ballot.

Some 1200 signers from the 16 small counties would be sufficient.

Palmer's petitions, incidentally, list the Albuquerque telephone number of former Gov. John Siskins as the place to call for information on the Palmer campaign. Siskins encountered so much static from Montoya people that he went into the press to explain that Palmer had been running office space from him that he had no connection with the Palmer campaign.

Decision on courthouse to be made today

On Thursday, March 5, the Lincoln County district courtroom was well-filled with contractors and visitors for the bid opening on the new courthouse.

On hand for the occasion were county commissioners C. A. Jones, Roman Nunez, and Kenneth Nosker; architects George Buffington, Jim Voll and Charles Nolan; and clerk Alice King.

George Buffington read the bids, one for razing the old courthouse, one for razing the old jail equipment.

The bids follow:

Cee-Bee Construction (now building the Carrizozo school) $458,900.00, 253 days for the job — was low bidder. Cee-Bee bid $4,950 for razing the old courthouse, which was also low. G. A. Jones of Ruidoso $513,594 and $5,000 for razing courthouse. Tom W. Hefflin of Artesa $504,000 and $35,545. John C. Cornell of Clovis $493,800 and none. Compton Const. of Roswell $541,000 and none. Franklin Const. of Albuquerque $534,490 and $6,300. Borrett-Moore of El Paso $489,172 and $8,337. Medley Const. of Albuquerque $489,400 and $10,500.

Cee-Bee was low on two of the bids, for the general construction job and for razing the old courthouse.

Atmore Wrecking of Albuquerque bid $5,525, A. B. Zumbait of Carrizozo $14,500, and Federated Equipment $6,788 on tearing down the old courthouse.

Southern Steel Co. of San Antonio gave the only bid for jail equipment, $53,750.

The three low bids totaled together came to $517,600. Bonds voted by Lincoln County amounted to $525,000. The bids did not leave enough money for courthouse equipment, some $50,000 needed.

Following the bid opening the commissioners, architects and contractors (Cee-Bee) adjourned to discuss what might be done.

By Wednesday no definite decision had been made but the News learned that the best possibility for going ahead would be to do the new courthouse and jail as planned. Do all the cost cutting on the annex. Then budget this July for some of the annex remodeling and plan to complete this job as originally planned, in a few years.

The commissioners and architects will meet in Ruidoso Thursday (this morning) to make the final decision. Following the courthouse meeting the commissioners will be meeting with state highway officials on new construction of Highway 70.

"Decade of Decision" to be shown March 18

A behind-the-scenes account of the spiritual crusades which Billy Graham has brought to many sections of the world will be shown as a full-length film at the Baptist Church the evening of March 18.

From the "canvas cathedral" in Los Angeles (1949) to the edge of the Soviet sector of Berlin (1960) viewers are taken by Dave Garroway, the narrator, on a spiritual pilgrimage which is itself a unique kind of history.

Dimes dance at White Oaks

The annual March of Dimes dance will be held Saturday at the White Oaks school. Refreshments will be served and music will be furnished by George Hust and his band.

School receives $3,673.00

The Carrizozo Municipal Schools received a check for $3,673.00 from Public Law No. 87, this week. This amount represents 78% of the total amount due on this year's program.

The schools are allotted this money each year for the students whose parents work on government property.

LIGHTS GOING UP

The Association has committed itself to getting lights up at the arena for the first rodeo session which will be Friday night. Second session will be Saturday afternoon with the jackpot roping Sunday afternoon.

Dances are being planned for both Friday and Saturday nights.

Palmer petitions circulating here

Dick Burmeister, chairman of the Citizens for Government organization, was in Lincoln County Monday inviting qualified electors of the Democratic party to sign nominating petitions asking that the name of Norman R. Palmer be placed upon the official ballot for nomination for office of U. S. Senator at the primary election.

Only three per cent of number of votes cast in last senatorial race is needed to qualify Palmer for a place on the ballot. Petitions were mailed to all convention delegates. At the convention Burmeister was here prospecting was good of asking the required number of signers.

Gas turned on . . . Town of Corona can start cooking on front burner

The Town of Corona began taking natural gas from the Lincoln Station on Monday, March 9, at 8:00 a.m. Mr. N. V. Ruebush, district superintendent, supervised the operation of getting Corona in the gas business.

Corona voted $110,000.00 in revenue bonds (vote was 66 for, 1 against) and started work November 23 constructing a natural gas system for the town. There are 142 hookups, about 100 of which will be using gas within a couple of weeks, and the rest during the summer. Right now the Town is still testing gas lines. Only three homes in Corona did not tie on to the gas.

Elmo Tracey is both town clerk and utility manager, and he just now is getting a brand new job of being gas manager. Elmo has a deputy clerk and says they do not plan to hire extra help at this time.

Ft. Stanton range problem discussed Five men from area are attending electric cooperative meet in Dallas

Research to be conducted on the 33,000-acre Fort Stanton range was discussed last week at Las Cruces. Sam Lamb, Federal Aid Coordinator with the Department of Game and Fish, conferred with representatives of the Agricultural Research Service, N. M. State University, N. M. Experiment Station, and Bureau of Land Management.

The range has been free of livestock use for the past ten years, and grass has made good recovery, Lamb said. The area is now being opened for highly controlled grazing, to measure the effects of various levels of grazing, and to measure the response of antelope and deer herds to the various areas of grazing.

Members of the Central N. M. Cooperative at Mountainair and the Otero County Electric Cooperative at Cloudcroft are participating in the 22nd meeting of the National Rural Electric Cooperative Association at Dallas, Texas, March 8-12.

They will be among more than 7,000 officials and members of rural electric systems from 46 states.

Attending from the local system are Nolan Vickrey of Corona, T. R. Trask of Mountainair, Milton Mable of Pecos, W. A. Gage of Pinon, and Jay Lanter, manager of Otero County Electric Cooperative.

Leaders from the Johnson Administration, the Congress and major power resources and consumer groups will take part in the Dallas meeting.

The meeting is built around the theme "New Dimensions in Rural Electrification." Topics ranging from the need for consumer action to the problems of poverty in rural America will be aired during the four-day meeting.

Among the speakers are U. S. Senators Ralph Yarborough of Texas, Gale McGee of Wyoming, and Karl Mundt of South Dakota; Mrs. Esther Peterson of Washington, D. C., assistant secretary of Labor and special assistant to the President for consumer affairs; and Edward P. Morgan of Washington, D. C., news analyst of the American Broadcasting Company.

In addition to the general sessions, 16 panel discussions are scheduled. One of the panels will explore the critical problems facing the rural electrification program in Congress. Topics on this panel will include discussions of REA loans for generation and transmission purposes; the need for resource development; and the problems created by the Federal Power Commission's attempt to take jurisdiction over cooperatives.

Another panel, which will include participants from the Agency for International Development (AID), will discuss the rural electric cooperatives' role in establishing rural electrification and rural development programs in Latin America. The National Rural Electric Cooperative Association is participating in the projects through an agreement with AID. Some 20 rural electric leaders have already gone to Latin America to assist in the program.

During the four-day meeting the delegates will deliberate and decide on a broad range of policy matters involving such topics as water and power resources development; rural area development; REA loan issues; AID's cooperative development program; the Federal Power Commission and other consumer issues.

The delegates will represent nearly 1,000 electric cooperatives which serve about 20 million people in 46 states.

Adult education class in Corona
The Corona High School will start its adult education class in Arts and Crafts, March 16, at 6:30 p.m. The course will be an eight week session. This year ceramics will also be included in the program as soon as the necessary equipment can be purchased.

Carrizozo Future Homemakers will contribute total support of orphan

The Carrizozo Chapter of Future-Homemakers of America again this year is contributing to the total support of a war orphan, Kosor H'Win, of South Viet Nam. Only $10 per month or $120 a year is needed for her full support through the Christian Children's Fund. This agency cares for over 30,000 children in 32 different countries. The FHA-members have been working hard throughout the year to earn money for this worthwhile project and also for their regular chapter activities.

Mel C. Craft, Sunday school secretary of the Arizona Southern Baptist Convention, will lead conferences for workers with adults and will bring the closing message at the evening sessions.

On March 13, the FHA will have a Kidnap Koffee in the Fire Hall from 3 to 5 p.m. So watch for the kidnapers, they will be around to get you!

The money from this afternoon coffee will be used to help pay H'Win's living expenses. Also, the chapter has sent in an application for one of the members to be delegate to the National Convention in Chicago this year. If that appointment is approved, extra money will be needed to help defray expenses, and the Kidnap Koffee money will be used in this area of the budget also.

During the Kidnap Koffee there will be a table set up where customers may buy the new Salads Edition of the Favorite Recipes Cookbook. This is the time to be sure your Favorite Recipes series is complete. The cost is the same as in the past years, $2.95, with the Chapter being allowed to keep $1.00 for every book sold.

Capitan club has anniversary

The Capitan Woman's Club will celebrate its 25th anniversary Sunday, March 15, at its clubhouse between 2 and 5 p.m. Invitations have been mailed to neighboring clubs, state and district officers in New Mexico.

The public is invited to attend this celebration.

The Woman's Club was organized in March 1939 with Mrs. Wallace Ferguson elected the first president. Down through the years the members have dreamed of owning their own clubhouse. This became a reality in March 1962 when the club was given the opportunity to purchase a small lot and a building in a very good location near the center of our little town. The club had, over the years, bought all the necessary equipment, including a piano and a small library, which allowed us to move in immediately after a few improvements were made.

The first payment was made with the war bonds purchased in 1942. Improvements are continuing and the members have worked hard and are still working to make it a finer and more beautiful home.

The clubhouse was paid for by March 1964. On Sunday the club will be honoring their past presidents, especially Mrs. Ferguson, who is still an active member.

Dinner at Hurd Ranch
Mr. and Mrs. Truman Spencer, Jr. were among those attending a birthday dinner Saturday night honoring Mr. and Mrs. Garvin Tankersley of Virginia, at the Peter Hurd Ranch. Mrs. Tankersley is a relative of the former N. M. governor, John Simms.

MRS. FANCES BUCHANAN IS GAMMA VALENTINE GIRL
Mrs. Frances Buchanan, Gamma Theta's Valentine Girl, and husbands of Beta Sigma Phi's, were the honored guests at a Valentine dinner Saturday at the home of the John Traceys in Corona.

The Valentine theme was carried out by cleverly arranged decorations including a lovely centerpiece arranged by Maud Efturd. All enjoyed the delicious chicken dinner.

Coffee is well attended
A benefit coffee for the Arthritis Fund was held Friday morning at the home of Mrs. Paul Payton.

Assisting Mrs. Payton in serving were Mrs. Arnold Boyce and Mrs. George Maki.

The coffee for the Arthritis Foundation, an annual project of the Woman's Club, was well attended and the proceeds totaled $50.44.

Miss Sandra Ruebush

Home economics teacher here

Miss Sandra Ruebush of Deming, New Mexico will be in Carrizozo March 14 to begin her student teaching assignment under the direction of Mrs. Lawson, local home economics teacher. This marks the third year that Carrizozo has been privileged to share the responsibility with New Mexico State University of offering this course which is the final preparation for home economics teachers.

Miss Ruebush is a senior in the Department of Home Economics at NMSU, planning to graduate next June. She will have already completed most of her college subject matter courses. The student teaching that she does here is a five-semester-hour course in education which will complete her education requirements for obtaining a teaching certificate. She will be here from March 14 through April 24. Not only will she gain actual classroom teaching experience, but also she will have ample opportunity to meet parents of many of the students through the FHA activities which are scheduled for this period. She expects to attend some professional teachers meetings as part of her course work, too.

Woman's Club meets March 19

The Carrizozo Woman's Club will hold its next meeting on March 19 at 2:00 p.m. Mrs. Claud Brånsum is program chairman and the refreshment committee includes: Miss Minnie Neill, chairman, Mrs. Henry Hoffman, Mrs. Ellis J. French, and Mrs. C. A. Snow.

Radio, TV speakers are club program

Gamma Theta's met February 10 for their regular meeting in the home of Mrs. Paul Westberg in Corona.

In the line of the program "Let's Talk on the Radio and Over Television," developed from the outline, Conduct, Expression, Purpose, members answered roll call by giving the good or bad points of a radio or television speaker. Eva Mae Holleyman, program leader for the evening, discussed the qualities of a good radio speaker, the speaker's voice, and the visual code of television. Each member then demonstrated her ability to speak by use of a tape recorder. After the playback, the different voices were analyzed. Following the meeting refreshments of strawberry charlotte, nuts, candy, coffee, and tea, all carrying out the Valentine theme were served from a beautifully decorated table.

Southeast Grazing Assn. report

Report written for Southeastern New Mexico Grazing Assoc. by L. D. Merchant. Meeting has been postponed, report is now being released for publication.

When John F. Kennedy stood before the television screen as a candidate for the presidency, and in answer to the query, "What would be your reaction, to a situation after your election, should the Roman Catholic Church disagree with your sworn duty as president, to be carried out in good faith?" Kennedy's unhesitating reply, "I would resign the Presidency."

A few days ago, a quotation from President Kennedy in a news release, the immortal words of President Kennedy, "It is not what my country can do for me, but what can I do for my country."

This was, of course, not an original statement, but one of ten times repeated, yet carrying more sentiment than a like number of words in whatever expression might be capable.

Throughout the brief, but highly effective career of President Kennedy, the plan began to take shape and the pieces fall into place as a highly organized movement to change the course of the government and our very way of life.

Will you recall that no statements were made directly affecting the every day living we then enjoyed, but rather and always a picture of governmental control through our tax moneys, not alone for the United States, but for the rest of the world whether as our allies or our enemies, for the exploitation of the forces and substance of the world in a grand plan of world domination.

While we view in disgust and apprehension, self appointed dictators in other parts of the world who harass and persecute their subjects, we stand aloof in the pride of our heritage and proclaim the freedoms which are fast diminishing and soon destined to become non-existent. In our short sighted view of the exhilaration of unlimited spending and a debt over growing for our grandchildren to live with, and to be poor and unable to change the course of living with which we have become drunk and over confident, that the resources are inexhaustible, and that we are actually buying the friendship and loyalty of most of the world we now support. These circumstances must come, when a majority of our people at the polls cast a ballot for the fateful continuation of the circumstances.

It is noted that agencies of the Federal government have assumed authority by blanket coverage in a charge of administrative control of matters once believed to be under state control and by the expressed wish of the people, so governed, that every act of their daily lives to be regulated by federal edict.

To bring this matter close to home, and our careful scrutiny in which we are now very conscious and totally vulnerable to a plan of regimentation of the forces of agriculture, not with the slightest prospect of profit that we may be able to keep from our efforts, but a national planning and organized production entirely under federal control.

It would be distinctly unfair to the Kennedy administration, or to the President personally to attempt to shoulder such blame as is now justifiable upon that source, but as we recall immediately former administrations, a world change was taking place and the seeds of socialism were beginning to sprout, and the stage was set with every imaginable function and circumstance to be capitalized, and legalized under the terms of the Constitution of the United States.

The Taylor Grazing Act after more than a quarter of a century, of proven merit and true conservation of the public land with stabilization of the livestock industry, and a factor in the overall economy of the Western lands, is now in the process of being emasculated and diverted into channels of misadventure and ruin for livestock grazing the lands.

The Secretary of the Interior and the Secretary of Agriculture, in their respective positions as two appointees and members of the President's cabinet, control all the 590 million acres of the lands in the continental United States, and by their own admission, have their joint plans include all the lands of every status as being under their jurisdiction and their administrative functions are to speak figuratively, to have a new birth of freedom, and under the mismanagement plan of two men having nothing in their backgrounds to recommend them other than such service as they have rendered in some few years past in bureaucratic positions.

The basis upon which permits of use of public lands were awarded, are being controverted, into a manner in which the public lands becomes the recognized base, under which owned lands was originally recognized. The grazing fee has already been raised to double the regular charge, and is yet to be determined to what, if any, extent the operator may be allowed to run his own outfit under his own management.

The Bureau of Land Management, as stated as a measure, destined to ease and quiet the fears of stockmen that even with the increased fees, that the amount collected will defray less than two percent of the cost of administration. We may now safely presume that any additional amounts to cover such costs must necessarily be taken with constantly increasing fees and appropriations from the United States treasury.

There must be but one conclusion from these facts. Grazing of livestock under any set of regulations will be completely under bureaucratic management, and profit under such operation will be determined on a basis of estimated cost of operation as prescribed by government officials, and any surplus of allowable profits for the operator in excess of managerial figures will be taken by the department of government as a drop in the bucket for financing the world's greatest and most improbable undertaking of exploitation of 500 million acres of total lands with a proportionate amount covering our section of the Western lands. While we say exploitation of the lands, the overall policy as well as exploits the people concerned and the necessary drain on the United States treasury.

These two departments are typical of all other posts of operative authority, and in each instance with their activities, have been captioned with, "This is the way President Kennedy wants it to be." The Cuban fiasco terminated temporarily with appearance of the fighting section of the United States Navy off the shores of Cuba, but only after the universal demand of the American people, who virtually forced the President's hand in challenging the so called technicians who were in fact proved to be the advance guard of Soviet Russia in establishing a military base for its part in the intended destruction of this country. This was accomplished by the purported commitment by the President that the United States military would not invade Cuba.

We continue to parley and to plead and to compromise with a sworn enemy while our substance and our liberties and our hopes are dwindling. The time has come that we must understand that the foundations are being laid with or without our knowledge or consent, that socialism brought about by our own cooperation, and its actual total enforcement will begin when it appears to have been accepted, with a strangle hold never to be broken.

Successful ambitious men acquire fortunes, finance industry add develops the latent wealth of this great country. Ambitious young men whom poverty and hardship have never touched, may have dreams of empire, while ordinary men in many walks of life are content to live and prosper and render service to their country. Executive authority of the President of the United States has provided the setting for the first time in the history of this country to cautilize the world-wide situation with our money, in the name of capital defense and world participation to dwarf the possibilities of the great Krushchev with his communism to wreak his vengeance upon our country.

Ours and the world's most important industry is being subsidized in order that its every operation is directed by federal authority. The beef cattle segment of agriculture is designated as the one single most important article of our production and is at this very time threatened with bankruptcy on account of foreign imports. The President's knowledge and action has been the controlling factor.

The Department of Agriculture, if so minded could at once remedy this situation in the interest of our home producers. The Congress of the United States remains static, but we can be well assured that when the American public in force demands action which controls the vote in Congress for redress of wrongs, which adds up to votes, we may expect action.

The Common Market, a foreign affair, and of which we know very little and the Washington departments evidently do not intend that we should know. We must draw the reasonable conclusion, that on the face of the matter and our tariffs and import duties for the protection of the American producer and the laborer, that amounts to a leveling off of world living conditions. Labor wage and everything that free enterprise and ambition have made possible for the American citizen, to be frittered away in order that world socialism may take over.

As we drive through the western countries and particularly where installations of defense equipment has taken over. The civilian population employed in such installations is oft times in excess of the military personnel and it is in time of peace, obviously extravagant, and so ordered, in order that financial and economic strategy must warrant the circumstance from a local point of necessity.

Our western towns, a very few years ago, were little more than villages, yet self-sufficient and bursting with energy and pride of their respective positions. These sleepy little villages have grown with near unbelievable speed and proportions. Tens of thousand of neat little houses on two by four lots and of a near common style and dimensions of size and occupied by a family, of which the head is ordinarily employed in government service at a wage calculated to cover rental or partial purchase price of the house and carefully figured by expert accountants including budgeted living costs and with luck and precision, with the end of useful occupation and at retirement time to have paid out the space where his remaining years may be spent without worry and without effort. His great government will support him.

We, of course, know that the daily living conditions are far in excess and better in every respect than in the communist countries, but I believe in Russia, these dwelling quarters are called communes.

Has it ever occurred to you that the circumstances could or might at some distant time change and that we could again resume a position of security that at one time gave us a feeling of satisfaction and freedom from outside worry and impending danger. Cannot you believe that this state of undeclared war and alertness could be ended by positive action in show of strength rather than a pretense of diplomacy and consideration for an enemy which knows only force and yet our apparent fear of the exercise of armed might has robbed this proud nation of its dignity, morale and prestige. Its respect of the countries which are taking our millions in tribute with pretense of being allied with the cause of democracy. Are we losing the respect and the confidence of the citizens of this country?

This account has presented side lights on the political situation in this nation. There is nothing new in this accounting. All that is being quoted herein is contained in every feature of the news throughout every hour of the day. There has been no direct attempt to unduly influence the membership of this organization or the interested public which might chance to peruse these lines. However, statements made herein are my own thoughts and are original in my point of view.

In closing this account, I would yet deal with one circumstance, which in my opinion outweighs every consideration herein covered. A matter, in which all the money in the world could never change. A matter, however settled or unsettled, leaves us cold and sick at heart. A matter that the great Congress of the United States dares not approach. Yet we must live with it. With action or inaction, the results cannot be greatly different. It is not enough that our ancestors carried on a practice of slavery of the black race from the African continent. As now we may presume to console ourselves as having had no part in the slavery traffic, are we to disclaim responsibility of consideration that our children may look back upon our actions and cry out, "What have our parents done to us."

When the Kennedy klan moved into the Southland to give the black man a new birth of freedom. The action back fired and the expected trade of support of the black man's contention has not as yet materialized but the prospects are strong that both the white man's and the black man's support has been lost.

The position of the American negro is without doubt in every respect superior to that of the race in any other section of the world. The slave trade was immoral and degrading in our society of the human race. Yet, withal, even with slavery the black man was taken against his will from the jungles of African and in the one hundred years since the advent of slavery, the only culture he had ever known began for him under the condition of slavery. He has been better housed. He has had the protection of government equal to our own. He has generally learned to act as a human being. Even in slavery, aside from abuse oft time poor treatment, he fared better than the dark jungles of Africa could provide.

He has learned a language he can speak. He has learned how to perform useful labors. He has had educational advantages, however meager they have been, yet absorbing a new culture that his race had never known.

He has served in the armed forces of this country and should take an overlasting pride in the fact that he has done his part for the country of his citizenship.

The white man and the black man together should realize that the creator has made us as we are and a pronouncement by whatever source to be quoted, cannot and does not change that circumstance. The pronouncement, "That all men are born free and equal." Must that pronouncement be subject to only interpretation. Are you willing to say that this nation will stand or fall upon your decision. Are you ready to wish upon your children the curse of mixture of a race that you must instinctively know to be untrue. Will you in your loyalty for a political party, deceive yourself, your friends and your own children. Does the circumstance that the President and Attorney General of this nation, in asking you to lower your position? Your pride of race. The future of the country to which we owe allegiance without stint. The place of all of us through culture and endurance. That we should lower our positions far beneath our own, in order that outright and complete socialism may have full sway and outrage the government of this nation.

There can be no settlement of the racial question. We are paying the penalty of action of our forefathers. A thinly disguised attempt by the Congress to alleviate the situation can only further complicate a worsening situation.

What can we do for our country or what can we do to our country and our prosperity?

"OUT OF YOUR SHELL" IS 5th SESSION THEME

"Coming out of your shell" was the theme for the 5th session of the Carnegie course conducted Thursday at the Womens Club. Twenty-three persons were present and the meeting proved to be as entertaining as it was educational.

Impromptu talks were given on various subjects which included: a chef's love for cooking; fear, trains and dictators. Sixty second prepared talks on excitable subjects were given such as: thoughtless hunters, non-voters, misuse of the welfare department and imported beef.

At the close of each session award pencils are presented for the best speech, most improvement and a special award. They were won this week by Alton Scott, Betty Hooker and Margaret Stearns.

"Just for fun"

Sew What?

A woman who was very active in club and charity work came home one evening to find her husband busily engaged in darning a pair of his own socks. She watched him for a minute and then said: "You men think you know everything, but you never learn. You've got that thimble on the wrong finger." "I know," replied the husband grimly. "It should be on yours."

Down to the Sea in Quips

Two New Yorkers vacationing in South Carolina were caught in a sudden storm as they fished a few miles off shore. A Coast Guard cutter drew alongside their boat and found them huddled like half-drowned rats against the wind and rain. Taking them aboard, the Coast Guardsmen reported to the shore station: "Nobody hurt, sir. Just a couple of damp Yankees."

The Sunday School teacher suddenly stopped reading a passage in the Bible and asked the youngsters:

"Why do you believe in God?" She got a variety of answers, some full of simple faith, others obviously insincere. One of her pupils happened to be the son of a minister.

"Tell me, Master Jones," she said, "why do you believe in God?"

"I guess," he answered apologetically, "it just runs in our family."

Ft. Stanton study group named

SANTA FE — A four-member special study committee headed by Dean Reginald Fitz of University of New Mexico medical school, has been named by Gov. Jack M. Campbell to study the most effective future use of the Fort Stanton tuberculosis hospital and the Nike Hercules missile site near Hagerman.

Gov. Campbell said that in asking the four men to serve, he requested prompt action in completing the study.

Asked to serve with Dean Fitz were Dr. C. Pardue Bunch of Artesia, president of the New Mexico Medical Society; Stewart Fisher, deputy of administration in the State Health Dept.; and Van Doran Hooker, University of New Mexico architect.

Gov. Campbell said he had told the legislature he would appoint the study committee at the same time he asked for authority to issue $200,000 in severance tax bonds to finance additions and improvements at the Nike-Hercules site.

The governor said he requested the committee members "to make the necessary inspection of facilities and give a report, including their recommendations as to the most effective use at Ft. Stanton site."

A proposal has been made to transfer tuberculosis patients from Ft. Stanton to the Nike-Hercules site, and convert the Ft. Stanton hospital to a facility for the mentally retarded.

The board of the state TB hospital first requested Campbell to appoint a committee to carry out further studies, particularly of the medical aspects of the proposed transfer.

The Nike-Hercules missile site was acquired by the state from the federal government.

A glance at its all-vinyl interior and door-to-door carpeting will tell you that. There's your choice of either the floor-mounted Powerglide or Four-Speed Synchro-Mesh transmission. Both are optional at extra cost, along with a Positraction rear axle, AM-FM radio, and many other accessories. And for all its new power, Chevy II rides so softly it seems to glide along the highway. While across the border

A recent visitor in the News office came from the far north part of New Mexico and he was bound for Old Mexico, at the closest point, to take care of a common need — get himself a new set of upper and lower nippers.

Another common need that is satisfied south of the border is a new paint job on the car, or some fancy upholstery.

One hears a lot about the cheap booze one can buy in the Ciudad de Juarez, we say one hears a lot — drinking their brand is another problem that requires a different kind of experience than just listening. One does escape federal booze tax which is considerable up this way.

We won't go into the various assortments of sin presumably sold to pleasure loving people but its supposed to be a popular commodity.

The nut in the shell is this — merchants of Juarez just last week were telling their friends in El Paso that something has to be done to keep so much money from crossing over from south to north of the border. Juarez people apparently like the goods they can buy on this side better by several million dollars each year. All of which proves that nippers, paint, sin, and booze are too expensive in this country.

Why Would He Do It?

Why would Sen. Clinton Anderson, Democrat, vote for legislation that allows an increase in imports of beef, particularly from Australia. The best answer (other than the one given by Anderson, which said the farmers needed help) we can figure is that he'll go along with the administration first, New Mexico comes second.

Americans, and this one in particular, have nothing against Australia. It's a grand country, no doubt, much like our country was 30 years ago.

C. W. McMillan, executive vice president of the American National Cattlemen's Assn., who has toured Australia, states that much of the grazing land is owned by the government. Ranchers lease it, under 50-year leases, at from 65c to $1 per square mile — this compared with New Mexico's $64 rent.

McMillan talked with one Australian whose ranch is miles from a railroad, who said it cost him $7 a year to maintain a cow on his ranch and $14 to get its calf to market, total cost $21 a calf. That rancher could make money, if he sold enough calves at 10c a pound or $40 a calf. McMillan said an exporter could buy this beef in Australia, ship it 8000 miles to the United States, pay 3c a pound duty and still make money at prices which would cause American ranchers and packers to lose money.

Land prices in Lincoln County today prohibit any but the most wealthy from acquiring ranch lands. The exodus of small farmers and small ranchers started a decade or more ago, helped along by the various government aid plans which, more than anything else, put more money in the larger operators pocket.

Now our own senator is giving our prime industry, and people in the ranching business a kick in the teeth.

Why — we know of no possible reason other than originally stated, Anderson is calling the shot on politics in New Mexico and is apparently calling the shots on our economic welfare.

Anderson is first . . . a politician . . . second a New Mexican.

Got to work hard Thursday and Friday so we can take off and help Wallace Olds, former News partner, commit matrimony. We can tell him when to keep his mouth shut (most of the time), when to expect his first child (third pressday in December), what to do with his money (give it to his wife), how to avoid missing his wife's birthday (hide a wedding present or two and keep handy), and other bits of advice that only a friend would give to his buddy. Like the man said — with friends like that, who needs enemies.

Scuttlebutt always makes the best conversation. Last week got to talking buildings and up comes the gab, told for the truth, about the major company that remodeled so much they closed off a good sized room all except for small opening about size of half-bushel basket. Was some time before the bosses found out where numerous members of their 40-man crew were spending literally hours in leisurely naps, triple coffee breaks and the like.

Macho District

on successful tour

The Macho Soil and Water Conservation District promoted a very successful conservation tour on March 3rd for Roswell business men and the press and T. V. The tour started in Roswell and visited farms and ranches in both Chavez and Lincoln counties. They visited the Lewis Merritt Ronald Merritt, G. W. Shanks and G. W. Armstrong ranches in Lincoln county.

People on the tour saw conservation cropping systems, irrigation water management, crop residue, pasture planting with Midland bermuda grass, proper ranch use, fencing, land leveling, livestock tanks, reservoirs, pipelines and control structures.

The tour was served a wonderful dinner at the Lewis Merritt ranch prepared by the wives of the Supervisors of the Macho District. Of course lamb was the main dish, furnished by The Lamb Promotion Committee, New Mexico Wool Grower's Ladies Auxiliary.

The supervisors of the Macho SWCD are: Alton Corn, chairman; G. W. Shanks, vice-chairman; Russell Bird and Lewis Merritt members all of Lincoln County and C. E. Daniels secretary, Chavez county.

Those on the tour were Mr. and Mrs. Ronald Merritt, Mr. and Mrs. G. W. Shanks, Mr. and Mrs. Russell Bird, Mr. and Mrs. Lewis Merritt, Mrs. T. F. Henson, Elmer Kuhn, Earvey Yost, Bill Hutcheson, J. H. Rhea, Cecil Anderson, E. O. Moore, K. O. Wilbanks, Alton Corn, C. E. Daniels, Ernest Snook, J. W. Daniel, Bronson C. Corn, Bill Campbell, J. C. Powell, Jr., John D. Anderson, Al Woodburn, J. Indian girl forgets "New Life" and returns to her former poverty

Caracas, Venezuela. — Herminda's bright eyes and eager ways gave promise of interest and intelligence.

An Indian girl, she had left her country home in Colombia's Heights for Bogota, the South American country's mountain top capital.

When I hired as my maid, she had already had several years of experience in the domestic service of a wealthy Bogotano family. But she had never learned to read and write.

Her interest sparked mine, and I took on the role of teacher as well as employer.

Four months later, Herminda had made a reasonable start. Two years later, with the aid of a typewriting course, she could look forward to joining the middle class ranks a clerical job could offer.

For her, this indeed was a step forward because maids in Colombia, like the rest of Latin America, average only $10 to $20 a month and sometimes less. And her parents, who belonged to the country's poverty stricken majority, eked out a meager existence of 25 cents a day to feed eight hungry children.

Herminda was on the threshold of a new life when, to my astonishment, she chucked the whole thing to marry a peasant farmer who lived near her parents. She returned to the poverty I thought she wished to leave.

She and her new husband went to live with her family, squeezing two more people into an already overcrowded two-room shack on a half-acre of land that now had to support 12 people.

I kept asking myself why? Why would she return to a poverty that had never known electric lights, running water, sanitary conditions or even enough to eat? Why would she go back when the road forward was waiting for her?

The answer to that mystery may be the underlying reason for the "failure" of the Alliance for Progress.

Like many of the drafters of the Alliance's plan for a 10-year transformation of Latin America, I had assumed that a little encouragement would lead to an immediate change which centuries of tradition denied.

North and South Americans have been increasingly disappointed in the Alliance for Progress' failure to live up to its promise of a precocious childhood.

Americans are alarmed as Latin America dawdles over economic and social reforms. Their Latin neighbor criticize Uncle Sam for not coming through with promised dollars and price supports for basic commodities.

DRAGGING FEET

While it is true that the Alliance is dragging its feet in many areas, it is also true that it cannot be expected to perform overnight miracles. Three years cannot change the realities of the Latin American scene, nor can schools, houses and roads, but Peace Corp volunteers working on these projects point out that such material progress is only short-run.

"The true measure of success of the Peace Corps volunteer is not how many aqueducts he can build but how much he can inspire the people to carry on these projects after he is gone," said Jim Tenaglia, a Peace Corps volunteer in Narino in southwestern Colombia.

"We look on our work as a long-term program of several generations. It takes decades to change centuries of backwardness."

Herminda was 25 years old when I met her. Perhaps her approach to life would have been different had her education begun at five.

Coincidence

"I just can't understand why you are always worrying about nothing, Henry," an anxious wife said to her husband.

"Because that, my dear," he replied, "is exactly what I've got in the bank."

Although it is too early to predict a fruit crop, prospects look good now. This is the first time in the past three years that peaches will bloom. Sub-zero temperatures during the two previous years killed the fruit buds in January. The cold weather has kept the apple, peach and other fruit buds dormant this year. Generally the later the bloom the better the chance of having fruit.

SEN. MECHEM COMMENTS ON HRUSKA AMENDMENT

The statement by Senator E. L. Mechem concerning the Senate's defeat 40-44 of the Hruska amendment to the farm bill:

"The Administration flatly refuses to give U. S. cattle men a square deal in their struggle to survive.

"Its whip-cracking defeat of the Hruska amendment shows the sheerest hypocrisy. "I don't see how any open-minded person who knows the facts can come to any other conclusion than this: the administration is deliberately herding the great, self-reliant livestock industry onto the crutches of politically controlled tax money handouts."

Several apple growers are buying smudge pots to protect their orchards from frost at bloom time. Charts on critical temperatures of fruit are available in the County Agents office.

Wool prices look good. I heard of an offer last week of around 5 cents above last year. Rather than try to top the market prices per pound of wool, see if you can get better than $7.50 per ewe for your wool. The wool income per ewe is really the only way to figure as the price per pound is affected by shrink.

Kansas has more church schools than any other state we know. Presbyterians, Quakers, Friends, Nazarene, Methodist, Christian, Catholic, and a few we don't know about. The trend in this state for a number of years has been to consolidate school districts, which has been forced on the people in many instances by the state. Now, all the state has to do to completely reverse itself is to take on a large hunk of federal aid to church schools and spread it around . . . almost the same as encouraging new school districts to start up. This is not only possible but probable.

CHURCHES OF CHRIST
Capitan, Claunch and Carrizozo
Bible School 10:00 a.m. — Worship 11:00 a.m. and 7:00 p.m.
Come study and worship with us.

The Ecumenical spirit is in the air. It stirs the church. And that is good. We notice with real rejoicing the subject being approached in the press and pulpit. No unity attempt will succeed that does not have fundamentally planted in its platform the rooting up and elimination of differences. Unity in spite of difference is not unity.

We may disagree on what fellowship is, but we have no way of disagreeing on when and how we have it. The scriptures make that plain. 1 John 1:7 says: "But if we walk in the light, as he is in the light, we have fellowship one with another." Here is an "IF." If we walk in the light we have fellowship. Do you know of any other way we can have it? It makes no difference how much we pat each other on the back or how often we call on each other to pray, if either of us is not walking in the light there can be no fellowship. One will say that there are many in all the denominations who are doing the best they know how. So it is among the heathen. This is the modernist's doctrine of "available light." The light the heathen walks in is not enough, and that is why God gave us the responsibility of going to him with the gospel. We can do those in error more good by preaching the gospel to them than we can by extending to them a synthetic fellowship. Fellowship is more than just a nice attitude toward everyone. The only way we can relieve the scandal of division and alleviate the tragedy of schism is to correct the error that causes the schism, rather than to whitewash the difference.

Unity can only come by our putting out of our hearts our own opinions and openheartedly approaching the scriptures to find a common faith. Let us search each of us — the scriptur . . . and cast out of our hearts all that we find to disagree. Let us incorporate immediately that which we find there that we do not now hold. Then, and then we will have unity. It will come naturally. Unity does not come from conferences and councils; it comes when each ceases to bend the plumbline to accommodate his wall, and begins to straighten his wall to fit the plumbline.
