visit Zozo this month

Dr. Leonard J. Voelker, of the Dental Health division of the Department of Public Health, Santa Fe, was in Carrizozo last week conferring with representatives of the Carrizozo Woman's Club, the city, the Carrizozo Schools, St. Rita Schools, and the County Health Department, in regard to the Mobile Dental Unit, which will be in Carrizozo some time this month, the exact date to be announced lat-

This project was started three years ago in Carrizozo, sponsored by the Carrizozo Woman's. Club who were aided financially by other interested organiza-

The program this year will take all first graders interested and only those in the next three grades who have been in the program in preceding years.

The program is not aimed at families who can take care of their own dental needs, nor for families on relief as the children of these familles are given dental care up to age 13. It is for families of low income who find it difficult to provide early dental care for their children.

Emphasis in this program is put on early and continued dental care.

The state has two dental units with two dentists and three assistants, Additional help is provided locally.

Any woman interested in helping during the days the dental unit will be in Carrizozo, are asked to call Mrs. C. E. Burns, local chairman of the project.

Governor takes load of worry off backs of 46 small school districts

GOVERNOR REPRIEVES COUNTRY SCHOOLS

Santa Fe - Gov. Jack M. school districts that were threatened with losing their independence by consolidation with larger districts.

Campbell told a school house crowd at Floyd, one of the threatened districts, that their would be no consolidation of school districts without the consent of all the districts concerned.

Earlier the Governor's Public School Study Commission had recommended the consolidation of half of all the school districts in the state with larger districts and the closing of 16 small high schools.

APPROVES REPORT BUT NOT AS GUIDE

The commission, which reported in mid-December, also recommended that the board of education be empowered to enforce consolidation of school districts, another threat that was washed out by the governor's statement.

Campbell has repeatedly praised the work of the School Study Commission headed by publisher Billie Holder of Alamogordo but has described it as an informational work rather than a guide for immediate ac-

AMENDMENTS PREPARED FOR JACK AND MACK

There is one measure before the legislature that would permit Lt. Gov. Mack Easley to run for kovernor next year even though he is now in his second term as lieutenant gover-. nor, and another is being prepared for introduction that might open the way of Governor Campbell to have another four years in office.

The Mack Easley amendment would permit any state official under the office of governor to qualify for governor even though he had had two terms in another office immediately before running for governor.

The present law prohibits any elective official in the executive department from holding another office immediately after serving two terms.

FOUR-YEAR TERMS TRIED IN 1959

A second proposed constitu-Campbell has taken a load of tional amendment is being preworry off the backs of 46 small pared that would call for fouryear terms for state officials.

The details of the present proposal have not been worked out but a four-year term propotal that was offered in 1959 when John Burroughs was governor would have permitted all the incumbent officers to qualily for two more four-year terms regardless of how long they had served before. It was defeated by a wide margin,

A LONG LIST IN DISCUSSION

The possibility that Easley and Campbell might be elegible for the governor run next year merely adds two more to a growing list that politicians are talking about for Demo nomination next year.

A new one in the conversations is John Simms Albuques que, governor 1955-56 who became the first New Mexico governor to lose a second term in 30 years when Ed Mechem heat him in the 1956 Elsenbower landalide. There has been considerable talk about Simms in recent days and he confesses to some small interest in the race.

Wool growers told to face challenge

By Al Stubbs

Lamb and wool producers in the United States face a challenge, but there is every reason producers should face the future with optimism and confidence despite declining numbers of sheep, John T. Larsen, U. S. Washington, told members of the New Mexico Wool Growers here today. Larsen, who is with the Program Analysis Group Agricultural Marketing Division, Livestock Division of USDA, said, outlook is better for beef producers than for lamb growers. The short-term outlook, he said, gives an edge to lamb growers.

The Wastington official was one of several speakers appearing at the 62nd annual convention of the wool growers, at Roswell Inn, Sunday and Monday.

Miss Wool of New Mexico. Emily Adams, told wool growers this morning of her activities since her coronation in Roswell last August. She will compete in April in the nation. al Miss Wool confest at San Angelo, Texas, and invited New Mexico growers to attend the national event. She is selecting an all-wool wardrobe while in Roswell, donated by Roswell merchants, for the national competition.

Larsen predicted that 1965 prices for lamb will be somewhat higher than 1964 prices and that the decline in numbers of sheep in the country should level out this year. He said. however, that this doesn't mean that the numbers will increase. There has been a steady decline the last five years and general decline since the late 1940s.

Barring an extended drought and economic upheaval, "I would say the decline is near an end." he said. He said reasons for the decline, which tends to act favorably on prices because of a better relationship between supply and demand when supply is short, includes more demand for beef, reduced accrage of public lands for livestock production, decline in demand for lamb, competition from synthetic fibers and others,

Larsen said the New Mexico wool growers lead the nation in promotion of wool and lamb, but that the decline in demand for lamb remains "one of the most important problems facing you today."

"A continuing unchecked decline in demand for lamb could bring an end to the industry as we know it today," he said.

"There is no simple answer to this problem; it is, up to the industry to solve it. he said. He said the answer lies in inducing more people to eat lamb rather than increasing consumption among families that do serve the meat.

"The outlook for the next few years," he said, "is not nearly so grim as it appears . . the next few years could be generally profitable with production low and prices relatively high. Larsen said the outlook on wool prices, generally established by the wool market, is less favorable than for lamb in that prices have declined 20 to 25 per cent since last spring. He said larger supplies of raw wool on a world level and unstable currencies in some wool producing countries have affected the market.

He cited the wool price support program of nearly a half a billion dollars annually as having kept the inventory higher in the United States them it would have been otherwise.

He said the job of wool and lamb inprovement is a neverending one, that New Mexico's effort in this area is known the world over.

Also speaking this morning was Waldon B. Robinson, chief, section of control methods, US DI, Fish and Wildlife Service Denver, Colorado, Robinson cited stepped up research on prodator control and explained how the United States is divided into two research segments, cast and west of the Mississippi Riv-

Visits at Gran Quivira are diversified

New Mexico visitors comprised better than fifty per cent of the people who came to Gran Quivira National Monument during 1964. However, it is quite surprising to analyze the register list and note the diversity of places from where the visiiors have traveled. It is also an indication that the attractions within the State of New Mexico have the capacity to draw travelers from many places to see these sights.

Superintendent James M. Thomson reports that visitors from Albuquerque and Bernalillo County formed the one greatest geographical block of sightseers within the state. Other adjacent countles had individual representation, with Torrance County showing the greatest percentage, then Otero, Valencia, Lincoln and Socorro Countles ranking in that order, People from other points in New Mexico, combined, then formed the next largest group.

Texas leads the list of out-ofstate visitors with a great big majority, Representation of the rest of the states was almost complete, with only Hawaii, New Hampshire, Rhode Island and West Virginia not being indicated on the register. Of the Territories, only the Virgin Islands was noted among those signed, California, Colorado and Oklahoma followed Texas in the greatest numbers to come to the monument. Visitors from 23 foreign countries stopped to see the mission ruins during the past year, with Germany, Canada, Belghim and England heading the list in that order. Other nations included Holland, Mexico, Panama, Luxemburg, Switzerland, Scotland, Australia, Chile, Finland, Sweden, Okinawa, Japan, France, Cuba, Greece, Portugal and Southern Rhodesia. Yearly visitation for 1964 was 9.132, a slight decrease from that for 1963, The decline is most likely due to stormy westher which occurred on weekends when travel to the area is

Cedar Temple No. 26, Pythian Sisters was presented by Mrs. W. S. Dishman, Mrs. Lewis Vick, Mrs. Bill Keelin, and Mrs. J. E. Robinson in a trip to New Mexico Boys Ranch to project of the year. Mr. Barry Margan, Supervisor of the Ranch was a most gracious host, providing a tour through all the buildings and grounds and explaining fully the operation of this outstanding institution that affords a home for 41 boys at present. The boys attend school at Belen, and have various work shops at the ranch to develop crafts in wood, leather, tiles and plastics, Also there is a machine shop where the boys maintain the farm machinery and get training in mechánics. The boys have 4-H projects in addition to their help to operate the farm and dairy and do household chores. The ranch produces the meat and dairy products, cutting the cost of food to a low minimum of $.20 per boy each meal in 1964, Mr. Morgan stated, Rainbow bakery in Albuquerque furnished all the bread each week. Mr. Morgan further explained that they at the ranch seek to fulfill each boy's need in a four way effort; namely, education, religious training, exercise, and love and attention. He said this takes care of the mind, body, and spiritual and emotional needs. There was much more to see and hear, and it is a most rewarding experience to know what is being attempted to help these young boys. Citizens of New Mexico can surely aid a most wonderful cause by sending donations of even a dollar or so, or whatever possible. Mr. Morgan said that it's the small donations that come in letters from individuals that keep them operating. The ranch is limited in dormitory room as the plans were thwarted when Mr. Albert Buck was killed in a plane crash in 1952. The need is important to enlarge on this Boy's Ranch, and certainly keep it moving. Mrs. Vera Chadwick of Corona and her sister-in-law, Velma McCollum of Artesia, spent three days in New York and soven days in Nassau, Bahama recently. They attended the horse races one day, and they met many interesting people and really enjoyed the Whole trip. They flew by jet plane, and Mrs. Chadwick's husband. Nelson Chadwick, met her plane on the return trip home in El Paso last week.

Nelson Chadwick was in Bataan Memorial for three weeks with pneumonia around the first of last month, but is feeling much better now.

Myron (Cotton) Yancey from Chama has leased the Texaco Service Station in Corona, Bob Akin, former operator for the Texaco, is moving to Mountain-air where he will work as wholesale dealer for the Texaco Company.

Mr. and Mrs. Lee Mulkey made a business trip to Albuquerque Saturday of last week.

Charley Elbert Wade, Rex Robinson Rand and Pattie Perkins, Betty Ann Bond, Wilfred Lackey, Robert Akin and several other college students were home last week, for a holiday between semesters. Most of them returned this week to registor for the next term.

Rev. Tom Meyer of Albuquerque will bring a message at the Corona Presbyterian Church Sunday, Feb. 7. A covered dish luncheon will be served at the noon hour. Everyone welcome.

Mr. and Mrs. J. E. Robinson had as their guests during the weekend their daughter and son-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. Lee Barley and children from Albuquerque, their son, Rex, from N MSU Las Cruces, Mr. and Mrs. B. F. Sumner from Mountainair and Mr. and Mrs. Fred Large from Torrance.

Mr. Dutch Waldon has been ill for several weeks. His con. Miles and family from Albuquerque, and his daughter and son-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. Jack Hefker of Carrizozo, were home the past weekend. Also visiting here were Mrs. Waldon's mother, Mrs. Tom DuBois, and Mrs. Waldon's sister, Mrs. Thelma

SKEEN REPORTS

Livestock tax bill killed

Sen. Joe Skeen of Lincoln County, talking to the News Wednesday morning, said that the wheels are just now beginning to crank up and legislation starting to roll, particularly in the senate, Committee hearings on several important bills, such as right-to-work, dog racing, pre-primary repeal, budget, will start early next week.

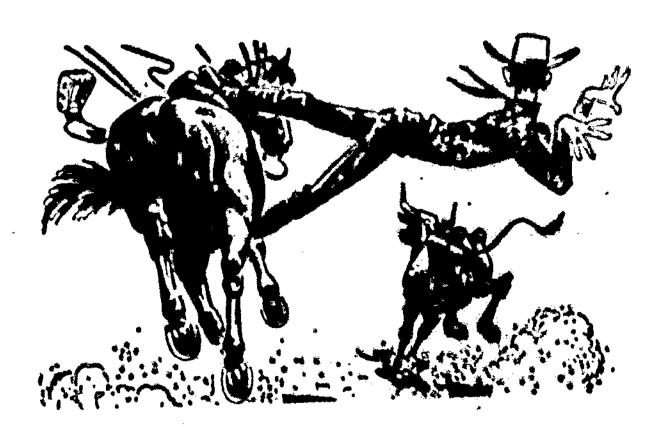

A bill regarding taxation of livestock was killed in the House. The bill, as written, would have made the Livestock Sanitary Board the collecting agent, and was killed largely for this reason. The object is to tax cattle that come in and go out of the state without being taxed.

A bill that would have increased the tax on race tracks to five per cent of the total handle was killed. Still another race track tax bill is in the Senate.

THE LONG AND SHORT - By Kit Carson

Camel saddle is practical device

Ras Tanura, Saudi Arabia — This dateline is by no means correct. With veracity it would read Water Hole, somewhere out of Riyadh, in the Dahna, on the ancient trail to Buraida, the world's largest camel market. Few white people enter this reglon. This photograph shows something about the camel saddle used so extensively in the deserts of Saudi Arabia; it was made at a water hole where thousands of camels had been brought to water by a thousand or so bedouins, and the trailing Arabian families.

I'm sure the gusto of the New Měxico cow péople will be greatly intensified with their favorite seat on the cow pony after a squint at this Saudi contraption. Yet the saddle is popular, the same as it has been for centuries, and provides a riding place for many a bedouin and his harem, as they scour the desert wastelands of the Arabian Peninsula in search of forage for the herds, and water.

It's a strange device, one will agree, and simply constructed. requiring practically no ingenuity. Arter I had looked upon thousands of the things, I decided that I wanted one, not to use in the Arabian deserts understand but for the home in Albuquerque. Eventually I found one, the like of which I wanted, fancy in its field. It cost 100 Saudi riyals (Saudi riyal, $0.-222), from an old saddle shop in the dark alleys to the rear of the famous camel markets in the trading centers of Old Hoful, a little ways from the ancient Portugese fort. It did not ecome from a curio shop; Jim Kessler, Cindy Reynolds, . no tourist had ever laid an eye on this contraption I bought; and certainly none have called at the antiquated shop where it was made. After its discovery, the bartering in Arabic that was conducted by an Arab interpreter and myself in a feeble effort to get the price lowered, was not easy. But would have been humorous I'm sure had there been an audience. But instead there were only two present, the old Moslem-clad saddle-maker and another like-dressed person whom I suspect was his helper. The saddle was fancy, and showed much more art in construction than did this photographed saddle, or any of the many which I had been on the

The saddle in Albuquerque is styled the same, with camel hide thongs being used to bind the fanciful designed pieces of wood together. A few etchings are carved into the flat pleces of wood that might be related to artistic designs. It had the two horns but not the pole type of construction as noted in the one above. The two horns are identical and do not distinguish the saddle as having a front or back portion. Which ever way the hull is tossed across the hump is supposed the correct manner.

The uncomfortable-looking thing is placed across the camel's hump, upon pads. Note the hair of the dromedary which is projecting above the cross poles of the saddle skirts. It is in this spot where the bedouin takes a position for a journey. In mounting, the camel drops to replied yes. the ground, the rider then takes a seat after placing his right leg over the front horn, in side-saddle fashion There are no stirrups.

Once the bedouin is in posltion, the camel commences to utter disgruntling vocals as though ready to attack the rider but eventually stands on the four huge feet, ready for the journey to commence. A few of the more wealthy camel herders use soft pads, which are placed on the hump between the two saddle horns, and there he may travel with the swaggering motion of the beast for as many as twelve to fourteen hours a day, as the beast nuzzles at the sparse vegetation along the trail, and covers about two to four miles an hour. He may travel as many as ten days without water, if the temperature is not too fierce. Sometimes long bands of woven wool hang from the sides of the saddle. These are of a twofold purpose — to ward away the world's most prolific swarm of flies and to serve as a sort of ornamenta-

The bedouin usually carries a goat skin filled with water on the saddle, lashed on the opposite side from the dangling leg. Practically all well-to-do camel raisers own a contraption called the litter. It is a cagelike affair, wherein two to four people may ride. Many of them · are also provided with a cover. with the outer edges being strung with a series of tassels, similar to the old surrey used by the early Americans. In this covered litter may be carried a few vessels containing food, and a supply of water. These luxurics of kind are enjoyed by the riders of the litter as the journey progresses. For the Arabian bedouin this sort of travel might be identified as the "pullman" class.

Such is travel on the Saudi

Arabian camel saddles. THE LONG AND SHORT OF IT IS. ... Should the American stockman think that he sits a hard lot while herding stock from the topmost elevation of the cow pony, let him be thankful for the ingenuity that deprived him of a seat in the plightful mounting contraption as seen in this photograph! If this photo is not clear enough drop by the home in Albuquerque and view the Real McCoy, if you wish.

A Tribute to Ethel Keathley

By Louise Coe Runnels

Mrs. Ethel Keathley, a resident of Lincoln County since 1904, recently underwent surgery for the amputation of a limb. After being in the New Mexico Medical Center in Roswell for several weeks, she is moving to Montana this week to make her home with her nephew and family, the Garth Hydes at 114-18th St. South Great Falls, Montana,

Mrs. Keathley took Gart as a small helpless child and gave him a foundation far above earthly riches, "Silver and gold have I none but such as I have give I unto you." Acts 3:6, "A good name is rather to be chosen than great riches and loving favor rather than silver and gold," Proverbs 22:1

There has never been a child who has grown up in our community who has been loved and appreciated more than Garth. His winning smile and loving ways have won the hearts of all who know him.

Garth was born and reared, went through grade and high school in Capitan.

Although Mrs. Keathley has been in a wheel chair for some ten or twelve years, she insisted that Garth go on to school and prepare himself for a place in this world. She has lived alone all these years.

Garth went from here to Nazarene College in Pasadena, Calworking his way through college and receiving his Masters Degree.. During his college years he met and married a wonderful Christian girl who is helping him in his life's work, the ministry of the Gospel. Garth and Norma have two lovely children, Buddy 6 and Ree Ann 4.

Upon completion of his college work Garth was called as pastor of Grace Church of the Nazarene in north side Los Angeles where he pastored for three years. Last year he left Los Angeles and moved to Great Falls, Montana. He is pastor of the Nazarene Church there. Garth and Norma are doing a great job and Lincoln County is very proud of them.

Mrs. Keathley came from Mills County, Texas, in a small caravan consisting of three covered wagons, a one horse buggy and several lead animals, Also eighty chickens in two double deck coops fastened in the rear end of two wagons,

They landed in Capitan a little more than a month later.

Mrs. Keathley was telephone operator in Capitan from 1915 to 1926. She worked on a commission basis. The first two months she received eleven dollars a month. Later she received as much as ninety dollars a month, Being a widow with a small son to support she had to work at anything she could get.

Her son Oliver lives in Ft. Smith, Arkansas. While in the service he became a victim of polio. He also is confined to a wheel chair. He and his wife Dorothy have a studio in Ft. Smith. Mrs. Keathley has spent several winters with them in recent years.

Mrs. Keathley's many friends are grateful for the opportunity to show their love and appreciation, and just say,"thank you, auntie for your wonderful, unselfish, Christian example," by helping finance her move to Montana Anyone wishing to foin in this "love offering" may leave your contribution at Cummins Store in Capitan, Corders Store on Bonito or Lindy's store at Alto.

Mrs. Prior was born in Mecosta County on June 24, 1883, daughter of Willis and Ellen (Klingman) Bumford. She attended Green School in Aetna Township, Mecosta County, and worked in Fremont until her marriage to William Purcey of that city. They were later divorced, and she worked North Park, a suburb of Grand Rapids for a few years until she and her son Russell moved to Texas.

There she was married to Mr. Prior, an oil well driller and they lived in various parts of the southwest. They bought a motel in Carrizozo, He died 15 years ago and she came to Hastings in 1961. Let's have another cup of coffee

We have quite a little conversation with several parties about development in Lincoln County and particularly in Carrizozo. It's sort of this situation when you sit down with a person for coffee or at home with your family, you've got to talk about something, don't take too long to go over the hot local gossip (things been quiet around Carrizozo for several weeks, someone is going to bust out with a lulu soon), and there you sit. Your business is probably worse than it was a year ago at this time when a lot of extra people were in town working on several projects, so the talk gets around to development in a big hurry.

Then you order a second cup of java and start mentally going down the list of civic qualifications, sort of like a wife selecting a house in a new neighborhood.

Have we got labor? Well. maybe yes, but most of our surplus labor is on welfare, likes it there and does not want any disruption in their existence. Still, you'd have to say we have a labor pool, but it's sort of wet.

A few more gulps and housing is brought into focus. Do we have empty houses, certainly, enough to house several hundred people Will anyone live in them? Now, that is the $298 question. Some say yes and some say no. More or less depends on how long one has lived in the area and what one is used to. Looking out our breakfast window each morning we've become accustomed to that broken down adobe across the way and would hate to see it disturbed — that's what comes of living among shacks, after a time you get to liking their looks and think it rude of a newcomer to call us a "shack town".

Guess one could answer "yes and no" to housing because new comers can always bring in a trailer home.

It's high time for a trip to the back room, in fact you're a little over due, and on this hurry up trip you are reminded of . the short supply of water now available in town, also in the country. Water, water, water . . most people do use it to brush their teeth, even in tequila land. Some development people, such as mining interests, demand a lot of water. One rancher we know says there's plenty down near the Mal Pais, the local utility manager said last summer the town was close to water trouble and another well was purchased just for security. Whatever the case may be this is a tough question to answer because no one knows for certain, so you decide probably your trip was wasted.

By now you've lost your taste for java and the other development items, normal to conversation of this subject, such as schools, churches, power, transportation, climate, began to get short shrift and to conclude the gab session so you can get back to work, you reach the conclusion . . . let's get a survey of the development situa-

On the way out the door you agree that surveys take time and money Those in power: don't want any part of spending town money on the likes of survey, those with time on their hands don't care much whether school keeps or not. So ends another session of serious thought — the coffee was hot, the other guy paid - so what dld you lose . . just your town, that's all.

Room for plenty of boys

Something good is growing in Lincoln County without many people knowing about it — the Slorra Blanca Camp for Boys just outside Ft. Stanton TB Hospital grounds. This camp is in no way connected with the Hospital setup, except that people at Ft. Stanton have sort of mothered the whole deal while it was gotting off the ground, Like providing food and shelter, and much help in many other ways.

There were four sites offered at the time a boys camp was in the thinking stage. One of the reasons for pleking Ft. Stanton was the chance for the boys to learn a vocation under the guidance of experienced technicians at Ft. Stanton. Another could have been the exceptionally fine location, in the mountains of Lincoln County where nature did some of her finest work.

The Sierra Blanca Boys now numbering 20 but going to 80, and after that there will be more, can now learn auto mochanics, painting, uphoistery, corpentry, plumbing and steam fitting, electricity. The idea is for them to have the start on a trade that will earn them a livelihood after they leave the

On the budget side the camp is an $80,000 business this year. It will grow, and is an economic boost for Lincoln County. The budget matter is certainly second to the good work the camp will do for a lot of boys, now and in years to come, but it can't be discounted

The boys have been doing most of the work of getting buildings ready for occupancy. These buildings were moved in from Moriarty and set on prepared foundations at the camp alte. From then on it was up to the boys to do the work, Now they have one dormitory ready which will house 30 boys. The remodeling work started slow of necessity, but it's going to move along with the good possibility of a small town developing within sight of Sierra Blanca Mountain.

The mountains of Lincoln Co. are big, the people are friendly - how can a boy lose in such an environment.

 $W \bullet W$ Many stories of Sir Winston Churchill are being printed now, his liking@for cigars and drink are well known. His views on drinking too much follow: "I have been brought up and trained to have the utmost contempt for people who get drunk. All I can say is that I have taken more out of alcohol than alcohol has taken out of me," W • W

A Circle meeting was held Wednesday night in a corner booth of the Four Winds and from the galou of laughter it was a merry affair. Members in attendance were: Edna Laabs. first president; Marian Schlarb, second president; Pat Voss, third president. Presidents are not necessarily listed by age or beauty but by the phone book.

W • W Gladney Stubbs, Rotary President, came up with a fine idea last week — that the club sponsor a set of trees on each side of U.S. 380 where it approaches town on the west. This sort of activity has approval from way up the line in government. WeW

Here's an educating thought - Dr. J. W. Edgar (must be some kin of Bill at Capitan), Texas commissioner of education, told Maria area residents "The comunity should be free to determine its commitment to its public schools and to determine what is to be taught, the method of instruction and who teaches it". Remember this thought when you read about teacher unions, school consolidation, and who the new school board members are.

W · W Lincoln County is experiencing an unusual winter and most people would like to see it continue that way. Near spring weather was the order-as January faded, Mrs. R. C. Withers reports her roses are starting to bloom, Down at the south end of the Mal Pais the sage has already leafed out, All this time other sections of the country are suffering through "massive cold", so the papers say, W . W

Out of curiosity we drove down to the south end of the Mal Pais over the weekend, going to Oscuro and west to the Missile Range gate. The lava flow thins out down there but the most marked difference is the large piles that look like someone had backed up a truck and dumped many loads of cinders. As the flow headed south the lava must have hardened and broken up into small pieces. We stopped for a drink at the 66 Station just reopened by Mr. Montoya, He said he was back to try it again, no groceries this time, just car service.

Sports fans frequently comment that it takes a lot of practice for athletes to switch from football to basketball - we heard it said again Friday night at Capitan. The Hondo Eagles do not play football and they had a smooth working team on the floor, beating Capitan's Tigers without too much trouble. If the Eagles could do something about their best players fouling out, or getting loaded up with fouls and playing with caution, this team could be counted among the best in the state. Eloy Torres is very smooth, good rebounder and good shot, Richardson is a smooth shot as is Sonny Sanches. Their floor work is real fine, Without Hererra the Tigers would have been in bad trouble. He was potting the bucket regular in the first half and not getting much help from the field or at the free throw line, along with no help the Tigers were abooting (and missing) from bad anvies.

Still in sports, here's a quote from Sen. Stuart Symington.

In any field of endeavor a person needs to listen to the critics as well as those handing out compliments. Vice Adm. H. G. Rickover has been as severe a critic of education in the United States as one can find anywhere - undoubtedly part of what he says is true. With a lot of school board members getting ready for an educational bath we reprint part of an article by Rickover here (real short part) that is pertinent to any local school system.

"Faulty statistics and labels that overvalue American education by three to four years perpetuate the illusion that we have a mass system of "higher" education.

I have tried for years to combat these illusions by collecting and publishing concrete facts about European education, We must be realistic. It is European education we should equal-bet-

Here is what I found to be a fact concerning the true amount of schooling our children obtain. -Compare it with the fiction of ter still, excel.

What has to be kept in mind is that the education value of a school year in Europe is at least a third higher than in America. This is so because their school year contains more hours of classroom instruction. During each hour more is learned because children follow carefully planned sequential programs that avoid duplication and leave no serious gaps in subject knowledge; they study more intensively do more home work and are better taught. European standards of teacher education are notably higher, especially at the secondary level. Also, teachers are not enthralled to pedagogic blunders dreamed up by second-rate experimenters and researchers; for instance, the notion that serious study must be postponed because children, supposedly, are not ready at age 6 and need more playground activities.

It is instructive to follow a class of first graders on their climb up the education ladder. On the basis of enrollment figures in the hearings before the general subcommittee on education, Committee on Education and Labor, House of Representatives, 87th Congress, first session, H. R. 4970, and degree awards listed in the American Council on Education's fact book on higher education, this is what happened to the children who entered school in 1944: 74 per cent made it to the sixth grade, 53 per cent to the eleventh, and forty-seven per cent graduated from high school, About half of these entered college; 13 to 14 per cent obtained some sort of bachelor's degree, 214 to 3 per cent will probably receive a master's degree and one-third to one-half of one per cent a doctorate."

Capitan Lions were really roaring when the Way West ed. walked into their meeting Friday night (Joe was roaring the loudest), Temporary Tail Twister Duane Darling was putting the bite on Joe Escabedo and collecting this fine was a lot tougher than running a school of 300 youngsters. You can't whip a tail twister, which Joe well knew. Their meeting room is full now (22 present Monday) and two more members voted in last board meeting. Saturday night the Lions will be flipping pancakes for all comers at the school cafeteria, a money raising project to finance the club program of providing glasses for people who need them. You can see a basketball game along with eating flapjacks at Capitan Saturday, Pat Murphy, the Lion with the most flap in his jack, says that only expert flippers will be allowed in the kitchen.

B's ALMOST WIN WITH LAST QUARTER PRESS

The Zozo B squad came within a pig's whisker of beating St. Peters at Roswell Saturday night. The game opened slow for Zozo, Eddle Lovato the only boy hitting, and Zozo made only 8 and 8 in the first half. St. Pete's Hartley, high post man. was racking them in and the half ended 27-18.

The score was still close going into the last quarter when Coach Troy Sadler put his boys into a press and up they came betting within one point of a tie game and 30 seconds to go. St. Peters cashed in on two fouls to win the game by five points.

Grizzlies are eighth Crusader victim

Roswell — The St. Peter Crusaders galloped to their eighth consecutive victory behind the scoring of Greg Franchini and Mickey Wyatt, Saturday night.

Falling before the onslaught was the Carrizozo Grizzlies, who showed little punch in going down to a 65-39 defeat.

The visiting Grizzlies managed to stay close in the first two quarters as St. Peters had shooting troubles, But in a hot second half, Carrizozo was no match for the likes of Wyatt and Franchini, Franchini paced the Crusaders with 20 points, while Wyatt was close behind with 18.

The Crusaders started as if they were going to run the Grizzlies, back home. Wyatt and Franchini each hit buckets for a quick 4-0Ncad, After a Grizzlie basket, Wyatt canned two more for an 8-2 margin after six minutes of play. Carrizozo managed to score again but trailed 11-4 after one period.

Here Carrizozo made their bid. After a Franchini basket had vaulted St. Peter into a 21-10 advantage, the Grizzlies, behind the shooting of Mike Ortiz managed to come within two points at 23-21 at the end of the half. This was as close as the Grizzlies could get. The only offense for Carrizozo in the second half was Mike Ortiz, who hit some spectacular 25 and 30 foot set shots late in the game,
