THANKS WILL ORNDORF

Help arrived when help was needed

New Mexico has many great features. The Lord surely blesses those of us who are fortunate enough to live in this great state.

One thing that we have with in this state that we often overlook is just take for granted, is the people that make this state their home.

Let me give you an example. A family and their friends were enjoying an outing. They were given permission by a local rancher to spend the day on his property. After a picnic lunch about 2 o'clock, a boy of 7 1/2 years of age got lost from the group. The father, his three older sons, and the friend started the search while the mother, the friend's wife, and three small children remained in the car and drove up and down the road honking the horn. The boy's tracks were found about 4:30. The father and friend tried to overtake the boy. At 6:00 and about three miles later, when the track lead into very rough and hard country, the father went back to the ranch for help. The friend stayed to follow the trail.

The rancher when contacted, dropped everything, drove over to get a four wheel drive vehicle and a ranch hand who was working near a well, a visiting friend from Lubbock, and the search started.

During this time the rancher was organizing the hunt quite level headed, while the father was no help at all. After gathering wood, filling the pick-ups with gas, oh yes, and even filling the father's car, the hunt started.

By this time it was dusk. After starting fires on the high points of the country, with watchers at each one, he began driving the roads leading to the watering places for livestock. As we reached the end of the last road about 10:30 we decided that it would be best to call in a helicopter, then three shots rang out, the boy had been found. He had walked to one of the fires. The rancher would take no pay, his only comment, "I might need help sometime." The friends comment after trailing for 3 1/2 hours, "It was the hardest thing I did to leave that trail" due to darkness.

The family, the Jake Hawkins; the friends Jimmy Lucero and family; the rancher, Will Orndorf.

Oh yes, the lost boy was Thomas. If you want a personal account of this ask Tom.

Real dowser hit Carrizozo Tuesday

Starting with a slight drizzle just before 3:00 p.m. August 16 whoever had his hand on the spigot really opened it wide and 1.83 of rain fell on Carrizozo in the next hour. The rain extended out only a few miles from town in all direction.

Mr. and Mrs. L. Z. Manire keep good track of rainfall in this area and told the News that the most we had in 1965 was around three inches in a day and night, not downpours at all like Tuesday.

Street gutters did not hold the water at all after about thirty minutes. Water poured over the gutter edges and across lots in all directions. "C", "D" and "E" Avenues carry much of the cross town water and lots of damage done from this flood.

Sewer, highway, Headstart, by - laws and Recreation Committees to report

The regular meeting of all those interested in the Corona Civil Action Program will be held at 8 p.m., Tuesday, August 23rd, in the Grade School All-Purpose Room. Mrs. Pfeiffer, chairman, has announced that reports will be heard from the following standing committees: Sewer, Highway, Head Start, Recreation, By-Laws.

A special meeting was called August 9th by the Committee on sewers who had contacted several key people in the state for the purpose of explaining the possibilities of engineering and financial aids for the program. Congratulations to these men for getting the ball rolling.

Those present included: John H. Fair, Santa Fe, Public Health Engineer for the State Health Dept.

Richard Floyd, Roswell, Farmers' Home Representative.

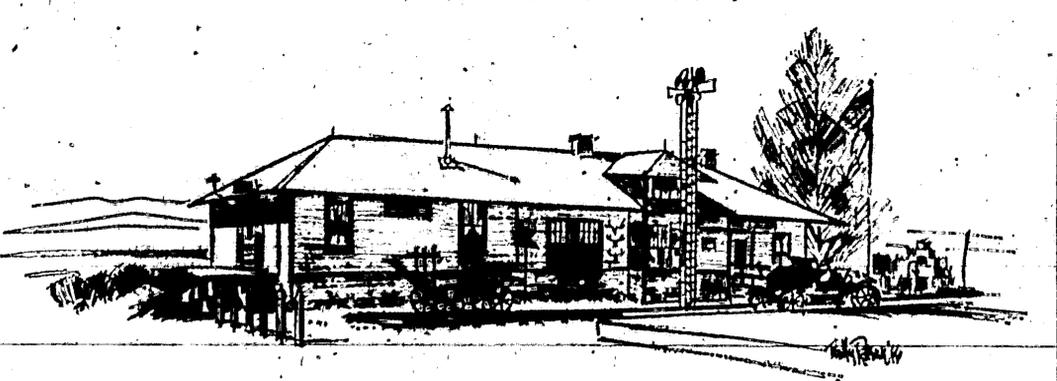

Gustavo Morales, Albuquerque, F.H.A. Engineer.

Chester Carr, Plumbing Contractor; John Jones, State Chairman of the Plumbers Administrative Board.

Lonnie L. Parks, Roswell, District Plumbing Inspector.

One point of interest to many is that plumbing inspectors are interested only in the collection pipes outside the home, and will inspect inside the home only on invitation. Many other questions were asked and were answered.

LANDMARKS OF LINCOLN COUNTY... By Walter Henn

My House of Old Things at Ancho

This famous landmark in Lincoln County, My House of Old Things at Ancho, is very much the history of one family, Thomas Jefferson Straley, father of Jackie Silvers the owner of My House, received his appointment as postmaster at Ancho in 1917, his service spanned 20 years. After Dad Straley died in 1937 John C. Straley became postmaster and his service spanned 16 years. Jackie Silvers has been postmaster since that time.

The main building of My House of Old Things is the Ancho depot, built in 1902 with a Mr. Kite as the first station agent. Ancho had quite a heyday as watering place for trains and as a manufacturing center of Lincoln County. At one time a plaster mill and brick plant were both operating in Ancho. The brick kilns were fired with wood and many people were employed to haul wood. The going wage was $1.75 for 10 hour day.

The Straley family store was established at Ancho in 1922, Jackie closed out the store at the time she opened My House in 1963. She continues as postmaster.

My House of Old Things is mostly full of things from the Straley families. Jackie has picked up a few things to carry out her scheme, and some items have been donated.

The idea for My House was first conceived in 1954 at the time Jimmie Kite, Jackie's sister was still alive. They thought that if they ever had a building large enough they would put things together for My House.

In 1959 the depot closed and Jackie decided it was large enough so she bought it and had it moved to its present site in 1960. They worked quite steadily at getting My House in shape during the summers of 1961-62. My House of Old Things was opened in June 1963.

There are signs along the highway inviting people in for a look of the past and over 8,000 visitors have stopped for a visit with Jackie at Her House.

People tell Jackie that they love the arrangement of things and the cleanliness. There are dishes to view, a dining room, bedroom, kitchen parlor and many miscellaneous collections.

The old truck out front is a 1906 IHC owned by Charlie Mayer of White Oaks who used to freight with team and wagon until he saw this truck which would do 15 miles per hour and haul 1,000 pounds. The bell in front of My House is from Coyote School, long gone now.

Population in Ancho has diminished down some today. There is Mrs. Charley Stoneman, Mr. and Mrs. L. Y. Jackson and family, Barney Roper and family, and Jackie Silvers, your host at My House of Old Things.

The turnout to My House is on U.S.54 about 20 miles north of Carrizozo or maybe 25 miles south of Corona, but exactly where the road to Ancho turns off of U.S.54.

Memories for '66 get-together

Although it's been almost a half century since we came out here to settle our claims and make our fortunes, in a way it seems just yesterday. We had dreams, hopes and visions of a bright future here, and I have never doubted the potential of New Mexico to develop into the Dream State we visioned so many years ago.

Our experiences here have been richly rewarding in wonderful memories. All our experiences were not pleasant—especially during that terrible winter of 1918. But somehow the pleasant memories outweigh all the others.

I believed then - as I do now - the best people in the world lived in New Mexico! We were all in the same boat, chasing our dreams, with little more to go on than our courage, understanding and appreciation for all the other folks who were pursuing the same goals.

We were not afraid to leave our homes, doors unlocked, for days. Should anyone happen by, he probably had been out all day and half the night, tired and hungry. We expected him to come in, make himself at home and eat what he could find. We usually had bread, beans, coffee and syrup — and we learned to go a long way on that!

Where else in the world would a banker hand a bean farmer a pad of blank notes and tell him, "If any of your friends down there need money to finish their crop tell them to sign one of these notes for what they need, mail it in, and check on us"? Who would betray that kind of confidence in humanity? Not the people in New Mexico!

Where else in the world would five young men go with a friend and neighbor to the draft board and tell them, "Leave Albert here and we, any one of us or all of us, will go in his place"? They put five names in a hat; one name was drawn; he went. Albert was never called again. The passage, "Greater love hath no man" was truly demonstrated here that day.

I am just as confident now as I was 50 years ago that the day will come when all the dreams of those wonderful people will be fulfilled. If not by them, by some of their children or their children's children. In meeting each other here this weekend, some of us are also meeting a part of ourselves we left here a half century ago.

Sid Goodloe stands knee-deep in grass on Fort Stanton Range

Lincoln county has wonderful months

The fall of 1965 and early part of 1966 were wonderful months for Lincoln County, with more than average moisture in most parts of the county there is more tall grass on every hand than old-timers can remember. The winter was open enough to be called "good" so there has been little talk of tough times like two years ago.

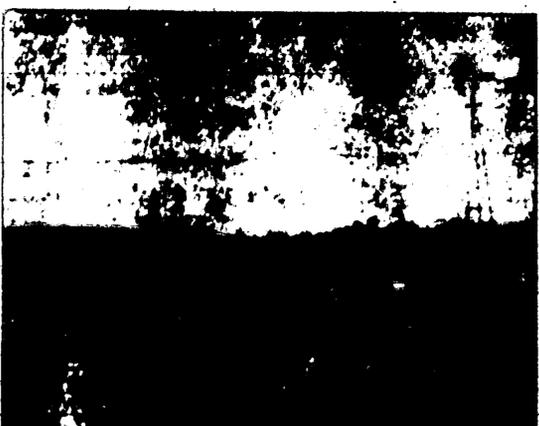

Even when conditions were drouthy, there was one spot in Lincoln County where the grama grass was tall, and enough of it that this section of the county, now the Fort Stanton Range Research Station, could be called yearling heaven.

Fort Stanton, N. M. was established May 4, 1855, to control Mescalero Apaches. In 1861 the fort was burned, and Union troops withdrawn upon the approach of Confederate forces, but was reoccupied by Colonel Kit Carson and the fort rebuilt in 1868. The Fort Stanton Military Reservation of 27,727 acres was set apart by President McKinley in 1899. It was used by the Marine Hospital Service that same year, becoming the first government hospital exclusively for the treatment of tuberculosis. The hospital facilities have been used continuously since that time.

The climate is high and dry, altitude 6,000 to 7,000 feet, winters are generally pleasant, and the sun is shining most every day

Feeding time for research herd

Windmill supplies plenty of water

During the past ten years the range country of the Reservation has been idle, with pressure from several directions to put the grass to use. The Research Station now located at Fort Stanton had the backing of cattlemen over the state and naturally the interest of New Mexico State University. The research now being carried on at Fort Stanton should benefit the livestock people all over the southwest.

Currently there are over 200 head of cattle on the range. Last fall 80 head of top quality heifer calves were purchased from the Bell ranch near Mosquero. The balance of the cows and bulls on the range came from the University herd at Las Cruces and Jornada Ranch. The calves are on a range feeding trial using various rates of supplement to obtain the optimum protein level through a winter feeding program.

Numerous cooperative studies by the University and the New Mexico Department of Game and Fish are being conducted. The emphasis of these wild life studies is upon the now-restored deer and antelope herds.

During the fall and winter months four and a half miles of cross fence were constructed in the Salado pasture. These several miles of fence were broken down into three types, regular, semi-suspension, and suspension, using both domestic and foreign wire. Such a research project as durability of fence will take several years.

A dandy set of working corrals has just been completed to handle the Salado cattle and another set of corrals is planned at the new well, close to the Rio Bonito centrally located below Fort Stanton.

Numerous range research projects have been going on for over a year, several not yet finalized. Enclosures have been constructed to preserve the state vegetation as it existed after a 10-year rest period.

Studies will include: rate of use in proximity to water, effect of burning on range grasses and range fertilization. Water development is continuing and will be of prime importance for future studies.

Dr. A. L. Neumann, head of the Department of Animal, Range and Wildlife Sciences at the New Mexico State University, is guiding the entire research project. Sid Goodloe, a graduate of Texas A. & M University, class of '32, and owner of the Mountain Top Angus Ranch north of Capitan, is the livestock and range technician. Goodloe has 10 years of experience in the Fort Stanton area and has carried out extensive conservation and cattle breeding programs on his ranch.

Attractive new signs along Highway 380, which cut through the Fort Stanton Range Research Station, tell of this vital project now underway in Lincoln County. The research projects will provide information for livestock people in years to come that until now has been lacking in a high altitude grama grass country. The progress of technological knowledge of range beef production has taken an impressive step forward.

Science Shrinks Piles New Way Without Surgery Stops Itch—Relieves Pain

New York, N. Y. (Special) — For the first time science has found a new healing substance with the astonishing ability to shrink hemorrhoids, stop itching, and relieve pain — without surgery.

In one hemorrhoid case after another, "very striking improvement" was reported and verified by a doctor's observations. Pain was relieved promptly. And, while gently relieving pain, actual reduction or retraction (shrinking) took place.

And most amazing of all — this improvement was realized in cases where a doctor's observations were conducted over a period of many months.

In fact, results were so thorough that sufferers were able to make such astonishing statements as "Piles have ceased to be a problem!" And among these sufferers were a very wide variety of hemorrhoid conditions, some of 10 to 20 years' standing.

All this, without the use of narcotics, anesthetics or irritants of any kind. The secret is a new healing substance (Bio-Dynas) — the discovery of a world-famous research institution. Already, Bio-Dynas is in wide use for healing injured tissue on all parts of the body.

This new healing substance is offered in suppository or ointment form called Preparation H®. Ask for individually sealed convenient Preparation H Suppositories or Preparation H Ointment with special applicator. Preparation H is sold at all drug counters.

"A page for independent thought"

The FBI point of view

John W. Burns, FBI agent at Albuquerque, spoke to Zozo Rotarians last week. He gave out many interesting facts, closing with the request that we be concerned as Rotarians, as men, as citizens.

Before closing this interesting talk Burns answered questions and came up with a point of view that is important to our country.

Recent acts of state and national legislatures and the supreme court have been in the direction of giving criminals more advantage over law enforcement.

The FBI is not a policy making agency, its main work is in the area of investigation. Burns made this plain by saying that the FBI never clears anyone, if a person says he has FBI clearance he is wrong. The FBI does investigate, and submit findings to other government agency, which may issue security clearance. It did not come from the FBI.

Any case brought to court on basis of FBI findings is done so on the instigation of the Attorney General of the United States. The FBI never goes to court on its own.

The important point made by Burns came when he said, "We advocate stiff punishment." Burns went on to say the FBI did not protect juveniles, "We call it youthful criminality." Nor does the FBI advocate abolition of the death penalty.

The message as we see it, after listening to Burns, is that our policy makers in government do not listen to the people who should know best (Burns did not make any such statement). Our courts, our legislature pamper the criminals, while their enforcement, FBI, believes in stiff punishment to fit the crime.

We believe in the Federal Bureau of Investigation.

Art in politics

There's probably only a handful of people who pay close enough attention to the Old Lincoln County Memorial Commission to know what its work is, or should be, who the commission members are, where they live, or what their performance as members may be.

Some critical persons might say that the major function of the commission is to pass out political patronage in the way of jobs, these job holders expected to operate certain properties owned by the state, located at Lincoln.

Other more learned critics might say that the duty of the commission is to carefully harbor, cultivate, develop and display the heritage of Lincoln County. Such work includes the restoration of old buildings in Lincoln, exhibits such as the nature sculpture by Wilbur Cox, exhibition of silk Chinese robes, and the current exhibit of sketches of Lincoln buildings.

Developing the heritage of Lincoln County for present and future generations is no task for unskilled minds and hands. The documents are much too valuable, the fine lines of history much too precious for amateurs.

It would appear that Lincoln County is getting short-circuited—Old Lincoln County Memorial Commission members are a bunch of nice guys, also prominent people, who rarely attend meetings, who should resign their positions and give the governor a chance to appoint some people who will work at this important task.

There has been entirely too much diddling around in the old courthouse. Only two summers ago Lincoln facilities were open only part-time. In 1964 the curator and assistant took year's leave at half salary which was disapproved by the state. When they returned they worked a squeeze game on local people doing their work at Lincoln. A hot-check artist was hired and fired before he could do any damage. A skilled and highly reputable curator was employed only months ago and now he has resigned.

One more time those nice commission people are playing hell with the most prominent landmark in Lincoln County. In all fairness to the State of New Mexico, the people of Lincoln County, a fortune in historical objects they should get out now before more damage is done.

We don't subscribe

Carrizozo people have been consoling themselves recently with talk like, "We're at the bottom now, only way we can go is up." We've heard the same remark made a number of times in reference to situations around town.

Such thinking is the consolation of people who leave the barn door open, the horse has run off and may never be located. Such thinking in consolation to people who have sat on their fat behinds while the town was hitting rock bottom — it didn't happen all of a sudden. Such thinking is consolation to people who do not want to look at hard facts when hit in the face by them.

If very many business places or families, or governments wait until the bottom dropped out before starting up, this civilization would be in much worse shape than it is.

We much prefer the company of people who will think up the small cracks as they appear and keep the dam from washing away.

This could be a Republican year as Jack Redman says in his literature inviting people to a banquet August 20. Wayne and Annie Withers hitched boat and motor to their Mustang and rambled off to Colorado and enjoyed vacation in Pagosa Springs area. Wayne said he averaged 17 miles per gallon pulling the loaded boat. He also figured out that all Lincoln County needs to attract more tourists who will stay week-to-month is more camping facilities like around Bonito Lake — could use lots more. Question is, why does the Forest Service provide them in Colorado and not in New Mexico (we know about Alamo owning the lake).

He took off his britches the better to search, and Pearl said, "OK, just leave them and you can bail them out the next time you come this way." Lindsay would be washing dishes yet if he hadn't found such a neat way out. Note from Alleen Tuesday, purse was found in another pair of pants at home.

Inside the Capitol

Compromise Seen As Possible 'Side-Step'
SANTA FE — New Mexicans have been bombarded with an abundance of information concerning the woes and ills of the current Justice of the Peace fee system.

W * W
Police bulletin for July lists record of arrests in each county — 1,037 in McKinley, 1 in Harding. It's been a number of years since we were in Roy, Mosquero, Bueyeros, Yates or Mills and talked with George Morris and Karl Guthman but if things are like the police records, indicate there's been a lot of deaths in Harding County since we saw it.

W * W
Despite this, however, there's a developing twist to the situation that every voter in state ought to be aware of concerning this portion of his judicial system.

W * W
With a sweeping mountain of public opinion going against continuance of the JP fee system, there's been added talk of a "compromise" situation which would allow most Justice of the Peace to remain in a somewhat similar capacity but without the "fee" portion.

Rep. John Eaves of Bernalillo gave a report to the State Audit Commission last week that indicates precise areas of need for reform, and it stretches far beyond the simple abolishment of a fee.

W * W
The Judicial System Study Committee has balked on delivering any specific information on what treatment may be expected under a new system or what New Mexicans will pay for the system when it's changed.

As an early prediction, the Amendment 10 that will abolish the JP fee system will have the support of the majority of the state.

Then it'll be time to put on the pressure as to exactly what will replace it.

Specific Areas Of Loss Questioned

There are some specific areas of loss in money questioned. Numerous cases involve violators being given jail sentences in lieu of fines. Then later prisoners pay a portion of the fine and are released. Bookkeeping on such matters has been too lax to thoroughly keep tab on how much the state is actually being jostled financially.

Another questionable item is the matter of bonding, which at the present time is negotiated several ways with not only JP's but sheriffs, etc.

Aside from traffic violations, the major income for JP's, there's also probing regarding the handling of civil matters. Justices of the Peace maintain a certain political club, regardless of the fact that both Demo and Republican chiefs swatted them in campaign bantering.

Removal of the 'fee' type system is only a starter, however, and legislators genuinely interested in reform had best follow through with the clean-up once it's started.

Savings Seen In 'Standard' Rule

State Rep. John Mershon, Demo from Otero County, slammed in a major wedge regarding excessive spending by legislators on "state business."

There's been a running feud between the lawmakers who would rather make the most of any trip and those very few who favor paying only expenses and eliminating the profit.

Mershon's proposal came at the Audit Commission meeting. He was sitting for State Sen. Harold Runnels of Lea County.

Currently when the legislators travel at state expense, their reimbursement depends largely on which committee they represent. This has created a situation which causes more pay to some solons for doing same thing a cohort might do except for another committee.

Mershon wisely is pushing action by the Audit Commission to create a "standard" rate for legislators on state business.

Behind Every Dark Cloud, Another One

It appears that for the New Mexico Department of Development, behind every dark cloud there's another dark cloud. Stories were passed out on the brilliant accomplishments of the department. Then along comes the news that state money went to help finance a World's Fair private project headed by the former Department of Development Director Bob Hoffman, now residing in Roswell.

Despite continued charges of "picking on" the Department, it hasn't been what you'd term "lean pickings".

About this question:
"A dwelling costing $8,000 twenty years ago is worth perhaps $15,000 today. Does Homeowners insurance to full value cost only a few dollars extra, yet provide coverage to full replacement value?"

The balloon — the largest ever launched — drifted to an altitude of 130,000 feet where it remained for almost four hours. The capacity of the balloon was 26 million cubic feet. Here, the reefed portion of the balloon may be seen below the inflated balloon. After the balloon reached a predetermined altitude the reefing was cut allowing the expanding helium to fill the remainder of the balloon. The payload and balloon landed about 13 miles southwest of Casa Grande, Arizona.

FARM NEWS

By County Agent Ralph Dunlap

The Lincoln County Fair will be held on September 9th and 10th in Capitan.

The Lincoln County Fair was started in 1953 as an achievement day for junior exhibitors. It was a one-day event held on the north side of the Capitan school. The first year featured turtle races, along with the Livestock and Home Economics exhibits.

After two years of achievement days at the school, it was made a full-fledged fair having exhibits of livestock, home economics and other exhibits from the entire county.

The rodeo arena was added to the fairgrounds in 1958, and the fair has continued to grow. A few of the people who have helped the fair grow from the start are: Mr. and Mrs. Chas. Jones, Fletcher Hall, Grady Eldridge, Bill Edgar, N. E. Britton, Clint Sultemeier, and J. P. McKnight.

Today, the Lincoln County Fair is patterned after the "county" fair. There is no gate charge and the only games of fun are sponsored by local groups. Plan now to attend the Lincoln County Fair in Capitan on September 9th and 10th.

In the orchard visits last week, the fertilizers containing iron and zinc looked better than either one alone. The iron and zinc were in the new experimental polyphosphate and orthophosphate fertilizers. The results from these tests will be checked with soil and leaf samples.

In times of natural or nuclear disaster or other emergencies when the services of a doctor are needed, doctors or nurses would be very busy and hard to reach.

Knowing what to do until the doctor comes or other trained aid is obtainable may save lives in an emergency.

One or more members of each family should be trained in first aid or medical self-help. Such information could be a life-saver in an emergency.

A medical self-help course of 11 lessons and running for a period of eight two-hour periods is available to any group. This course has been endorsed by national medical organizations.

The course is free to anyone who wishes it. There is no charge for student material.

Anyone capable of learning a few fundamental techniques can be taught medical self-help certificate.

Anyone may request such a course for his community, church, lodge, Grange or any other club. Complete details are available from the County Health Department or County Agent.

This is the time of the year when mosquitos are at their worst, but there are some things home owners can do about the problem.

The elimination of standing water is the one best method.

Mosquitos may breed in any standing water, in tin cans, bottles, urns, tanks, open cisterns, ditches, rain barrels roof gutters, cesspools, ponds and swampy areas. Each of these possible breeding places should be checked, then drained, filled or treated to prevent mosquitos from breeding. A light film of oil placed on water will kill most kinds of mosquito wrigglers. Repeated treatment should be made at 7 to 10 day intervals.

During the day, mosquitos hide in dark and protected places such as porches, garages, under lawn furniture, roof eaves, shrubbery, hedges, vines, tall grass and weeds. Spray these areas with malathion or dibrom every two weeks during summer and fall.

Mix Malathion 57 percent liquid concentrate at the rate of five fluid ounces per gallon of water. Use dibrom 37 percent liquid concentrate at the rate of two tablespoons per gallon of water. Household bomb-type sprays will work indoors but should not be used on plants as they may cause injury.

See that screens, windows and door frames are in good repair so that mosquitos can be kept out of the house. Evaporative coolers are often a source of mosquitos. An aerosol bomb can be used to treat the cooler and vents.

Food safety in the summertime is no different from food safety in the wintertime. It's just that there is more likely to be a delay between the time food is prepared and the time it is eaten.

This delay might be a long, hot ride to a favorite picnic spot. And then there could be another long, hot wait until time to eat. It's the long, hot wait when the bacteria develop which cause food poisoning.

Miss Louise Garrett, foods and nutrition specialist with the New Mexico University Cooperative Extension Service, has some suggestions to insure safe hot weather eating. One of the most important things to remember is that hot foods should be kept very hot, while cold foods should be kept very cold. Wrap food containers in several layers of newspapers to help retain their original temperatures. Or, use one of the new thermal or insulated containers to transport food. Bacteria grow more readily in some foods than in others, so it is best to avoid the following foods when planning a summer picnic: cream sauces, gravies, custard and cream pies, and cream puffs. Other low acid foods which are possible sources of bacterial food poisoning are meat pies, poultry, poultry dressing, ground meat, croquettes, hash, fish dishes; chicken and egg salads; ham, and hors d'oeuvres.

Special precautions should be taken when preparing quantities of foods. Never allow a large quantity of food to cool in a big container. Spreading food in shallow layers and stirring food will hasten cooling. After food has been cooled, keep it under refrigeration until used.

Refrigerate food immediately after a meal is eaten. Food left to cool on a counter top invites bacterial growth which can lead to bacterial food poisoning.

Keep frozen foods refrigerated during thawing or thaw rapidly under running water. Never stuff poultry the night before you plan to cook it, or partially cook a stuffed bird.

And, of course, the usual precautions should be taken by anyone handling food: (1) work with clean hands; (2) wash hands thoroughly after using the toilet, after smoking, or after using a handkerchief or tissue; (3) never work around food if you have any kind of infection; (4) always cover coughs and sneezes with paper tissues; (5) keep hands away from your mouth, nose, hair; (6) do not use cooking spoons or forks to taste food while cooking or serving; and (7) do not lick your fingers or eat when working with food.
