NM Paint Horse Club sponsors show Sunday

The New Mexico Paint Horse Club will sponsor a show play day Sunday afternoon 1:30 p.m. at the Malpais Livestock indoor arena north of Carrizozo.

This will be an open class event. A small entry fee will be charged for each participant and ribbons will be given in each class. Sunday's show is a regular monthly event. At the end of the year special awards will be given at an annual banquet emphasizing activity of the youth.

The purpose of these shows is to encourage participation by all families and youth interested in horse showmanship. Judges are present at each show and are asked to instruct participants on what they are doing wrong, what is wrong with their horses, and give other pointers on horse showmanship.

Mrs. Frank McBride, vice-president of the local club, states that they feel this type of training will help to improve the quality and quantity of horse shows in New Mexico.

Stearns becomes bank president

Directors of the Citizens State Bank, Vaughn, New Mexico, with branches in Estancia and Carrizozo, have elected Johnson S. Stearns, Carrizozo, as President. He will continue to reside in Carrizozo and manage the bank at that location. Other promotions announced were Barbara L. Turner, Carrizozo, to Assistant Cashier and Geo. A. Del Curto, Vaughn to Assistant Cashier.

New directors elected were Clyde Halsten, Cashier, Vaughn, and Johnson S. Stearns, Carrizozo. Kenneth C. Bonnell was elected Advisory Director, Ted A. Bonnell, formerly President of Citizens State Bank was elected president of Bank Securities Inc.

Bank Securities, Inc., of Alamogordo was notified by the board of governors of the Federal Reserve System Friday that it has been certified as a bank holding company under the Bank Holding Company Act of 1956.

The Federal Reserve Board's approval also authorized Bank Securities, Inc., to acquire 91.47 per cent, or more, of the voting stock of Alamogordo's largest bank, Security Bank & Trust, and 74.59 per cent, or more, of the voting shares, of Citizens State Bank of Vaughn.

These acquisitions must be achieved on or before April 15 but cannot be effective before February 14.

The holding company will proceed immediately to implement the authority granted by the Federal Reserve Board, said T.A. (Ted) Bonnell, president of Bank Securities, Inc. Bonnell also is chairman of the board of Security Bank & Trust and president of Citizens State Bank.

Other principal stockholders in the Alamogordo and Vaughn banks and in Bank Securities, Inc., are Bonnell's brother, Kenneth; their cousin, Maurice Hobson, and their uncle, Dan

W. King.

Bank Securities, Inc., already holds the majority stock of First State Bank of Cuba, which it acquired last February.

The acquisitions authorized by the Federal Reserve Board will make Bank Securities, Inc., the seventh largest banking organization in New Mexico, said a board statement.

Bonnell said the holding company, immediately after it has implemented the acquisitions authorized this week, will initiate an application for the holding company to acquire the majority stock of American Bank of Carlsbad. The Bonnells, King and Hobson acquired the majority stock of the Carlsbad bank in November.

This proposed addition to the Bank Securities family will make it the state's sixth largest banking organization, said Bonnell.

Do you know this man?

"A young man lived with his parents in a public housing development. He attended public school, rode the free school bus and participated in the free lunch program. He entered the army, then upon discharge retained his national service insurance. He then enrolled in the state university, working part time in the state capitol to supplement his GI education check.

"Upon graduation, he married a public health nurse and bought a farm with an FHA loan, and then obtained an RFC loan to go into business. A baby was born in the county hospital. He bought a ranch with the aid of the veterans' land program and obtained emergency food from the government.

"Later he put part of his land in the soil bank, and the payments soon paid for his farm and ranch. His father and mother lived very comfortably on the ranch on their social security and old-age assistance checks. REA lines supplied electricity; the government helped clear his land. The county agent showed him how to terrace it; then the government built him a fish pond and stocked it with fish. The government guaranteed him a sale for his farm products at the highest prices.

"Books from the public library were delivered to his door. He banked money which a government agency insured. His children grew up, entered public schools, ate free lunches, rode free school buses, played in public parks, swam in public pools, and joined the FFA. He owned an automobile, so he favored the Federal highway program. "He signed a petition seeking Federal assistance in developing an industrial project to help the economy of his area. He was a leader in obtaining the new post office and Federal building, and went to Washington with a group to ask the government to build a great dam costing millions of dollars so that the area could get 'cheap electricity.' "He petitioned the government to give the local air base to the county. He was also a leader in the movement to get his specific type of farming special tax write-offs and exemptions. Of course, he belonged to several farmers' organizations, but denied that they were pressure groups.

"Then, one day, he wrote to his Congressman: 'I wish to protest these excessive governmental expenditures and attendant high taxes. I believe in rugged individualism. I think people should stand on their own two feet without expecting handouts. I am opposed to all socialistic trends, and I demand a return to the principles of Our Constitution and the policies of State Rights.' "Do you happen to know this man?"

Democrats Meet Jan. 27

Precincts 14A and B of Democratic Party will meet Monday January 27 at 7:30 in the commissioner's room in the courthouse.

"JUST FOR FUN"

A psychiatrist was trying to help a man who had gone through life obsessed with the notion that there was a huge fortune awaiting him somewhere. The habit had become so ingrained that it took the psychiatrist several years to make some progress toward "restoring him to reality."

"And then," sighed the doctor as he told the story to friends, "just as I seemed to have him over the hump, there comes this letter informing him someone had left him a great fortune!"

COUNTING THE FUNDS — Three people at the 4 Winds Restaurant started a fund drive for the family of Police Sergeant and Mrs. Fred Yockey whose three small children lost their lives in fire which destroyed their home in Ruidoso.

The drive turned out real well with $173.33 donated by people of Carrizozo. Here you see James Silva, Jackie Martin, Sheriff Ernest Sanchez and Lou Wilkie counting the money. Sheriff Sanchez will take the money to the Yockey family.

Lincoln to vote on historic site

A committee of residents of Old Lincoln Town, selected to study the feasibility of having Lincoln declared an historical area and regulation of architecture, has made its report with the recommendation that Lincoln should be declared an historical area and that there should be control over future construction.

It will be up to county commissioners to create a special zoning district to be known as the Lincoln Historic Area, and to authorize a historic style committee of five residents of the area for the purpose of preserving the charm and historic value of Old Lincoln Town. The Area included (known as Area A) includes land from fence dividing Peppin estate land from Shrecongost land west of peasant grounds, east to the town cemetery, hills on south and river on north as boundary lines. Area B extends beyond these boundaries.

On Abraham Lincoln's birthday, February 12, at 7:00 p.m. there will be a meeting in the Lincoln school house for all property owners to vote on whether or not to accept the committee plan. Ballots were sent out January 16 and will be accepted by mail, no vote will be taken as 'yes' on the proposition.

The proposed regulation in brief follows:

Commissioners will allow construction only after issuance of permit by county clerk.

Permit must have approval of historic site committee. Walls to be adobe, or appearance of adobe, surface color optional. Roofs flat or built up, wood sash windows encouraged, wood doors encouraged, no flashing light signs, no signs larger than 4x6, no junk cars or such allowed.

Committee members must be property owners of record. Committee will act in 14 days after clerk receives construction application.

Funds to be obtained by voluntary contribution, no tax to be levied.

Regulations do not apply to existing structures within the area.

Lincoln County was formed in 1869 with Lincoln as the county seat. The former Las Placitas del Rio Bonita was renamed in honor of President Abraham Lincoln. From 1869 to 1912, the year of statehood, Lincoln Town was the scene of much action, most famous being the Lincoln County War. The county seat was moved to Carrizozo shortly after the railroad came through Lincoln County. In 1939 the Lincoln County Society of Art, History and Archeology was organized and through its efforts the old courthouse was restored and museum formed. A state agency, the Old Lincoln County Memorial Commission was set up and has since acquired a number of properties and now administers eleven pieces of property.

Having been out 'on the town' for a few days attending N.M. Press convention we can tell you how it is in the state's biggest city. Really, it's not near as good as being in Carrizozo, only there are differences worth note.

We stayed at Western Skies on edge of east city limits. Friday night we wanted to mix and mingle with fellow craftsmen celebrating International Printing Week and these guys and gals were gathering at the Panorama Inn. You get on freeway at the Skies and cross town, turn north on Coors Road some twelve miles, turn left at Rio Rancho Estates and about that time you've traveled thirty miles and gas tank near empty. Six to ten blocks of travel gets you where you want to go in Zozo, and that is good.

These Panorama Inn people are much better cooks than the Skies folks. They know how to fix a Rock Cornish hen and put tasty salads and dessert on table in speedy order. While back at the Skies the next night for $4.50 we had reasonably good steak, none cooked to order though nothing like that served at Silver Dollar in Lincoln County, but apple crisp and fruit cocktail out of can was real common, so was the service.

Must say that printing craftsmen have a more sneaky way with words than do the editor types. The fellows with ink on their fingers get together before a banquet and use varieties of alcohol to remove the ink and call it 'a personality adjustment period'. The guys who use words for a living have always relied on "cocktail hour" for the period of finger cleaning.

Palavering with both printers and publishers is always the biggest thing for us. After near 25 years in the business there is still much to learn and some fellow is always doing things a bit better than we are or has new ideas we should be using. Weekly publisher breakfast had full house Saturday morning -- all the talk was on mutual problems of newspaper business.

You program people wanting top-notch speaker would do well to get Dr. G. Ward Fenley (who writes Action Line for Journal) as your man. Laugh, laugh, and more laughs follow his comments, most based on questions and answers in Action Line.

Payton, Cathy and Ripberger spent the tag end of Saturday night saving the nation with some time between ink stain removing, devoted to the Republican party. Only regret was absence of Brother Dwight (home that morning). With him present we could have extended our coverage to the world.

The News has entered no newspaper contests for two years -- reason, too much of a challenge getting new plant full of new machinery going, really not a good excuse because our newspaper comes first, but a newspaper that can't make its way in no good way has been working hard at the excuse.

May be that the best thing we did was tell Gov. David Cargo that Lincoln County centennial needed publicity attention and much of it from the Department of Development.

On our list of nicest people (they've always been there) are Dr. and Mrs. Lou Levin of Albuquerque. Eleanor for Saturday banquet, only gal at head table wearing pretty pink roses.

Lots of stories floating around about George Bryan, former administrator at Fort Stanton and more recently head of state hospitals. Talked with Mary Bryan Saturday. George in well, no falling out with governor, just too much work and wants a different pace for his life. George was in Florida last week end looking for suitable job.

Took tour of $75M bracket of homes west of the Skies, many of them neat attractive and with beautiful western plantings, practically all so close together you could spit on your neighbor's house -- that's bad in our book. All that money and still no privacy.

Things must have got a little out of hand Saturday night because we agreed to go to Ripberger's house for orange juice, then to Methodist Church to hear Catholic preacher, with breakfast about noon. That routine is not too common around Carrizozo.

Happy to get home and find our three friends glad to see us. No dogs in Albuquerque have it so good.

GOOD WELL ON CRENSHAW RANCH — Jim Ham drilled down 200 feet on the Bud Crenshaw Ranch, near the old Roberts place, and came up with a dandy well which tested out 300 gallons per minute Monday with possibility of 400 gallons before the testing was completed. On left you see Bud Crenshaw catching small stream of water from Roberts windmill, which was all ranchers had 50 years ago. The water was their bug-bear's been tested. Bud expects one of his boys will do some farming with water from his new well. Ed Overholt of Smith Machinery is making test on new well.

Wire collection shown

Gamma Theta chapter of Beta Sigma Phi met January 13th in the home of Mrs. Jim Byrd. Mrs. Rand Perkins, president, presided over the business meeting.

The subject of the program was Pleasures of Possession and each member was asked to bring an article from a collection. Mrs. Melvin Sultemeier, who was in charge of the program, discussed different collections as a means to amusement, knowledge and wealth. She brought an interesting collection of barbed wire. With the help of Mrs. Rand Perkins, Mrs. Sultemeier showed collections that had become hobbies. Such as arrowheads, Ojo de Dios hangings, Christmas ornaments made of styrofoam balls and covered with bits of velvet, lace, sequins and old jewelry. A beautiful assortment of quilts, one of which had been made by a male relative from a Civil War uniform, was shown. The ladies brought out the fact that collections can be very beneficial to individuals, they can be accumulated with very limited means and a collection usually is of more value than the actual value of the individual articles that constitute the collections. Collections can be helpful to persons who turn them into hobbies which they can pursue when they are older and have more time.

From various collections members brought a coin collection, a pair of tiny brass shoes, beautiful linen pieces trimmed with tatting, a prize crocheted table piece, a Hummel figurine and a picture made of Pecos diamonds.

Cookies, candies, coffee and cold drinks were served by Mrs. Byrd to Mrs. Frank Sultemeier Mrs. Lee Mulkey, Mrs. Rand Perkins, Mrs. Bobby Wade, Mrs. Melvin Sultemeier, Mrs. Royce Washburn, Mrs. Bob Williams and Mrs. Earl Molder.

Enrollees in the 13th Fruit and Vegetable Short Course, held Thursday and Friday (Jan. 16-17) at New Mexico State University, heard pointers on operation of a successful apple orchard Thursday from Robert G. White, Farmington, president of the New Mexico Apple Council.

The benefits of organized marketing were explained by Dr. Tom Clevenger with the department of agricultural economics at NMSU.

First-day activities were devoted to the Fruit Section of the short course, with the Vegetable Section occupying the second day.

The New Mexico Apple Council conducted its annual business meeting and election of officers during a meeting at La Posta Restaurant in Mesilla.

The vegetable section of the short course was highlighted Friday at 3 P.M. with a tour of the New Mexico Chili Co. plant in Las Cruces.

Bob White, Farmington, reviewed operation of his 70-acre apple orchard at the Fruit Short Course. The orchard contains about 2500 mature trees 24 and 25 years old. In addition, White has another 3000 trees ranging from one to five years old.

He installed a sprinkler irrigation system several years ago and feels that it is profitable for the orchard as it is on sandy land. White says his future plans call for increasing production, not through expanded acreage, but rather through changing the type of trees and in tree spacing. He notes that spacing of 48 apple trees to the acre is average, but that with his plan for planting semi-dwarf varieties, up to 242 trees can be planted to the acre.

"We are groping for the tree spacing which gives the maximum production per acre and maintains quality," White says. White now has about 35 acres of his orchard under heat, supplied by jumbo cone oil heaters.

Cytospora canker and other fruit and shade tree diseases can largely be avoided by treating wounds as they occur and by pruning out weak and diseased branches. Cytospora is a fungus disease that causes injury to a large number of fruit and shade trees in New Mexico each year. It is most prevalent on peach, apple, poplar, and willow. Cytospora is a wound invader, gaining entry through injuries in the bark. Most infections begin in pruning cuts and wounds caused by winter injury, though sometimes trees are infected through wounds caused by machinery, animals, and hail damage.

Symptoms of cytospora include gumming, open cankers on branches, and twig dieback. Very close examination may reveal small, black pimple about the size of a pinhead on the surface of branches.

Orchardists and home gardeners should carefully inspect their trees and remove all diseased limbs showing symptoms of disease. If the diseased limbs are not removed and burned, they can act as a reservoir for additional spread and infection.

To heal quickly and properly all injured, splintered, or diseased wood and hard should be removed cleanly with a sharp-edged knife or chisel. Avoid leaving pockets where water may collect. Treat large wounds and pruning cuts with a wound dressing; sulfur paste or other commercial preparations containing asphalt are quite satisfactory. Dip pruning shears and saws occasionally in a disinfectant to prevent spread of the fungus. Disinfectants include 10 percent clorox and other commercial products.

Things I like about Bucklin

By "Steve" Stephenson

A cowpoke called and said "You'll have to come and get the leavens this week!" This will mark finis on the active career of a long lean cow and calf man who has for twenty years managed a fifty-thousand acre ranch in New Mexico. The 600 cows under his care that have grown into one of the best herds in the Enchanted State, suddenly sold out from under him with a violent shock (like a tough bronc who has suddenly heard a suspicious sound, now he's under, and now he's not.)

Through the years it has been a social event in the fall trading and getting the calves from this man, as you always knew you would be treated "more than right" at delivery time. With his wife weighing the cattle, no hurry and bustle, with time out for coffee and doughnuts with the crew. Spanish Joe and his fine boys working the calves, his wife tending the coffee pot, then getting the cattle brand inspected and loaded on the trucks.

After all that, it was "Up the canyon" to headquarters for the finest of roast beef dinners with all the trimmings. Sometimes on cows or odd cattle we hadn't even decided the price until they were off and gone to the trucks. The way we arrived at this, I would write down a price on a scrap of paper, Phil would write a figure down, and we would hand these to Ma. She would look at them and say "Steve has them a dollar low, Phil has them about a dollar high, so I guess "down the middle is about right, OK?" And it was.

Now the sixty-five year old cowboy can sit and dream of stormy nights in the canyons, of sweet spring coming with gambling calves rushing off with tails in air, of waiting for the summer showers to "make water" in the high country, of running mountain lions and bears with his dogs, of taking the boss to the hidden trout pond in the narrow branch canyon, like many another right here in our home town. He and his compadres in Bucklin are the back bone of our country, and we doff our hat to them, Bucklin, Kansas, Banner

LETTER to people

Wu, the government of New Mexico, ask all citizens for a guaranteed annual work allotment. There is building to be done, goods to be made, crops to be planted, trucks to be driven, babies to be born, sick to be cured, children to be taught, beds to be made, stories to be written. And we request the people of this state get about it without so much squawking and complaining. Since time began, no people have been more blessed--and it's time you realized it. We, the government of New Mexico, also ask all citizens who want reform to reform themselves. Don't have 10 children when you have enough room and wages and love for only 2 or 3. Don't demand higher wages and more services and then become angry when the cost of living and taxes go up. Don't demand a government attack on juvenile delinquency if you don't know where your own kids are at night. Don't criticize influence-peddlers in Santa Fe and then call the party chairman to get your brother-in-law a job in the Revenue Bureau. Don't attempt to get your way by force and then whine when we, the government must use force to protect ourselves. Don't agitate for anti-pollution legislation aimed at a big industry and the go into the countryside on the week end and dump your garbage, ruin the streams and back down the trees. Don't ask the government to assume the responsibility of finding you a home, raising your children and acting like your big daddy--and then complain about bureaucracy and the loss of identity in our society. Don't come up with petitions about friendship with Red China when you can't even be friends with your own parents. Don't tell the government that at age 15, you have all the answers. If you have, you obviously don't have all the questions. Don't forget automation through your union and insist on obsolete methods of production and then expect the government to be part of the 21st century. Don't deny the government the right to express an opinion contrary to yours. We, the government of New Mexico, also ask all citizens to laugh more, sing more songs, dance with more girls, plant more flowers. Search out injustice. Help the fallen. New provisions announced for low income ranchers

Starting on January 1, 1969 the Otero and Lincoln County ASC Committees have announced a new provision for low income farmers and ranchers under the Agricultural Conservation Program (ACP).

This provision provided for increased cost-sharing for farm-farmers and ranchers who qualify as a low income small producer who is largely dependant upon his income from farming or ranching. Also his total prospective income and financial resources for the current year must be such that the county committee could not reasonably expect him to perform needed conservation practices at the normal cost-share rate of 60%. The cost-share rate for low income farmers and ranchers is 80% of the cost.

The County Committee will consider such factors as estimated gross family farm income, size and type of operation, estimate gross family off farm income, estimate net worth, number of dependants, unusual expenses such as those resulting from illness, disaster or misfortunes and other factors affecting the individual's ability to contribute to the cost of conservation practices.

Individuals who feel they are eligible should come to the County ASCS office and discuss the program

Herbs mean happy holiday

The pungent aroma of spices and herbs means happy holidays to generations of Americans. The wooden cookstove has given way to the electric range, but the same delectable odors of fresh mince pie, fruit cake, and roast turkey mingle with the pine fragrance of the Christmas tree.

Many popular holiday herbs and spices have such a long history that myths still cling to them.

Rosemary, for instance, is tied to the story of Christmas. Legend holds that the herb's white blooms turned to the blue of the Virgin Mary's cloak when she hung it on a bush to dry during the flight into Egypt. The plant then became known as "Mary's Rose."

Ancient herbalists believed that sage, now a staple in many dressings, improved the memory and assured long life. Doctors at Salerno, the great medieval school of medicine, asked, "How can a man die who grows sage in his garden?"

Imported by the Pilgrims, sage, bay leaves, and thyme were among the first herbs to flavor festive American meals. In 1672, John Josselyn, Gentleman, in his work "New England Rarities," included thyme among the dozens of "herbs as do thrive here."

Marjoram's scent always has been highly regarded. "Ancient Greeks and Romans believed the fragrant herb had been created by Venus, goddess of love, and used it to make crowns for happy young couples.

In the Middle Ages, the demand for spices bordered on mania. Rents and taxes often were paid with pepper. A pound of ginger could buy a sheep and an equal amount of mace was worth half a cow.

After explorer Marco Polo's journey to the mysterious "lands of spicery," European merchants realized that sources of enormous profit could be reached by ship.

MONOPOLIES DEFENDED
 Portugal, Spain, England, and Holland raced each other to the Orient and battled for control of spice-producing lands. Monopolies were jealously guarded. London stevedores had their pockets sewn to discourage thefts. If the price of cinnamon fell too low in Amsterdam, the Dutch burned surplus stores. Despite its high value, cinnamon found a ready market in western Europe. It was used in medicines, perfumes, and ointments long before its flavor was fully appreciated.

Cloves have been savored since early times. In the third century B.C., courtiers in China were compelled to hold the dried nail-shaped clove buds in their mouths when addressing their sovereign.

Pepper always has been the king of imported spices in the United States. It accounted for about 19 percent of the 300 million pounds of spices and herbs consumed last year, according to the American Spice Trade Association.

Saffron, however, is the most expensive spice. It takes some 75,000 saffron blossoms to yield a pound of spice-bearing stigmas; the wholesale price is about $100 a pound.

"Just For Fun"

Some decades ago there was a baker living in a village near Quebec who bought the butter he needed from a neighboring farmer? Suspecting that he was being shorted, the baker weighed each shipment and discovered that the deliveries were slowly but steadily dropping far below the specified weights. Whereupon he had the farmer - summoned into court for fraudulent dealing.

At the trial the judge said to the farmer: "I presume you have scales?"

"Yes, I do,"

"They are of the balance type?"

"Yes,"

"And you also have weights?"

"No," replied the farmer.

"They're lost."

"Then how," demanded the judge, "did you weigh the butter you shipped to the baker?"

"Well," explained the farmer, "that's simple. When the baker began to buy butter from me I started buying my bread from him. I've been using the pound loaves of the bread he sells as weights for the butter I sell him. If the weight of my butter is wrong, why blame me?"

The young farmer stood proudly admiring the new tractor for which he has just spent his year's profit. Spying a speck of dirt on the gleaming surface, he called to his wife. "Say, Honey, do you have an old rag?"

"Why yes, Dear," she replied sweetly, "but I'm wearing it."

A man was forced to accompany his wife to a dinner of state politicians where he was going to give a speech one evening, and the following day he was talking with a business associate about the affair.

"Was the food any good?" asked his friend.

"Chicken, mashed potatoes and 4,321 peas," replied the man glumly.

"Comon," protested the friend. "How do you know how many peas?"

"Just what do you think I was doing while my wife was taking?" snapped the man.

Teacher: "What two documents contributed greatly to the government of the United States."

Pupil: "Forms 1040 and 1040A."

Once upon a time there were three coeds -- a big coed, a medium-sized coed, and a little tiny coed. One night they came home from a dance, and the big coed said, "Someone's been sleeping in my bed."

The medium-sized coed looked in her room and said, "someone's been sleeping in my bed!"

An the little tiny coed said, "Well, nighty-night, girls!"

Cynthia came back from a cruise to tropical waters and confided to her girl friend that she had met a man on board ship and had become engaged to him. She showed her friend a picture of her husband-to-be.

There was an immediate flood of objections. "You can't marry that man," the girl friend squealed. "He's too old for you."

"That doesn't matter," replied Cynthia firmly. "Jonathan is a fine man. I'm sure we'll get along very nicely."

"But," shrieked her friend, "from his picture I'd guess he's at least twenty years older than you are. Your interests won't be the same."

"You don't understand," retorted Cynthia. "Nothing's important except that I love Jonathan for what he is."

"And exactly what is he?"

"President of a bank!"
