Reappraisal would help all schools

Harry Wugalter, chief, public school finance division, Dept. of Finance and Administration of New Mexico, told the school officials at budget hearing on Tuesday that he would wait until Labor Day before closing out school budgets in Lincoln County because completion of the reappraisal program in this county would mean $47,750.00 in extra money to the schools. Lincoln County was close to the first county to start a reappraisal going but may be the last to finish because the original contractor defaulted on the job, the matter got into court and has been a long time getting straightened out.

Capitan Municipal School, with a district valuation of $3,338,510 would receive $5,314.00 which could be used a number of ways by the school.

Supt. Ira Caster, Principal Jack Mayfield, board members Hollis Cummins, Pat Huey and Hank Lacey were present for the Capitan budget hearing.

There were only minor changes made in this budget and few suggested changes made for operation of Capitan School. Wugalter suggested that Capitan investigate possibility of sharing teachers with other schools, a program that is being followed elsewhere.

Capitan has voted $200,000 for new construction which debt service will become a part of the new budget, and is not shown on worksheet used at the hearing. For simple comparison, the following are figures for Capitan, Carrizozo and Corona.

The budget review team which included Wugalter, Bill Lemon, transportation; Carl Whittemore, public school finance; Frank Ready, secondary and elementary education; Bill Caperton, Title I and migrant, prepares an information sheet which makes a rather complete book in each school.

Capitan district has been experiencing a steady drop in enrollment in the four year period since 1968-69. The district has lost about 50 in average daily membership or about a 22 per cent reduction in enrollment. The budget reflected a very low beginning salary for starting teachers with a BA -- $6,200 or about a $218 increase.

The school district has had a pre-first for 19 children for a six week program during the school finance division; Frank Ready, secondary and elementary education division; Supt. Ira Caster, Board Members, Hollis Cummins, Pat Huey, Hank Lacey and Prin. Jack Mayfield of Capitan at the budget hearing.

That the New Mexico Legislative School Study Committee has genuine concern for education in our state is apparent from action taken in April when each of the nine-member committee was asked to put their thoughts about critical problems of education on paper. The papers ran from one to ten pages and all of them cited the fact that our basic education structure is badly in need of revision. Right now there is no real daddy for education in our state, no one person or group of persons either in charge or responsible for the results -- its been that way probably for a century (that's 100 years). The study committee has determined that no real relationship exists between either the legislature and the state board of education or the governor and the state board. The board does not have the backing of either the administrative or legislative forces of our government. That the problems of program and finance are almost completely separate is not good, that one factor almost in itself will defeat any possible progress of education in New Mexico.

Talking with Grady Mayfield, president of the state board of education, and Ron Coss, director of the legislative school study committee, in Carrizozo two days for budget hearings, we got the message that the committee is going to move on the problem -- but it's tremendous task, trying to change the basic structure, in addition to the numerous small related problems.

Our sincere congratulations to Mr. and Mrs. Luciano Gallegos and their son Willie, acclaimed athlete of the year at the sports banquet Tuesday. Willie is the kind of boy that would do any set of parents proud, beside having ability, courage and desire to help the team.

Humming birds are like a lot of us people -- they come up to the bar every few minutes, run other birds out of their territory and sometimes it makes quite a sight. There'll be a hummer perched in a yucca while another repeatedly dive-bombs the intruder until he moves off.

Kathleen O'Donnell sent political newsletter from Congressman Keith Sebelius, Kansas -- First District. It contains interesting comments on both grass roots press and national media. Comment by the Congressman -- I think that our national columnists and commentators need to take two weeks off and visit the press in our district. Our editors and news directors not only report and comment on what happens in their communities, they are a part of the community as well. I think we have the best grass roots journalism in America.

Replies to questionnaire compiled by members of Congressman Sebelius' staff indicated that: While almost all of the Congressmen complained about biased reporting in the national media, 72 percent said this was not a problem with the press in their own district. Printed media was rated most objective or "fair" by 85 percent of the Congressmen mailing out the questionnaire, only 15 percent chose the broadcast media. However, the national networks were the subjects of most of the criticism.

Final word from this questionnaire -- 58 percent of the Many good things have happened to Carrizozo in Lincoln County, New Mexico over a long period of years. Just living in this area is good, but having the many fine recreational opportunities so close at hand, surrounded by miles and miles of the best ranching country in the world, and beautiful mountains, is a wonderful daily experience, plus the pleasures of living in a friendly community.

The most recent good thing in Carrizozo will be opened to public viewing Sunday, May 30 from two to five o'clock. It is known as The Annex; the Intermediate Care Facility of the Lincoln County Municipal Hospital.

This project has been brought to a successful conclusion thru the efforts of Hospital Board Members: Mrs. A. N. Spencer, chairman; Johnson Stearns, A. P. Sitton, Dimmit Bond and Bill Edgar -- backed up by the people of Lincoln County who voted the bonds for the project.

Intermediate care is not a new way of living, but one that is becoming more and more popular in these times. It means that a living arrangement is provided for those who wish to have their own room and be active and somewhat independent, but who feel the need of help in their daily routine -- such as meals, medications, bathing, dressing and other kinds of care that one might get at home.

People living in The Annex will not be confined in any sense of the word, any more than they want to be. The many opportunities for participation in sports at the recreation center, go to church, play bridge with friends, picnic in the mountains, go visiting, go shopping any time are as readily available to people living in The Annex as any other person in the area.

Anyone who is able to help take care of him/herself and be up and around is eligible to live in The Annex. Fees are $350 per month for private room and $325 per month for semi-private room.

There are patio and sun porch areas on three sides of The Annex, plus an enclosed court and large recreation-living room with fireplace. A complete kitchen is there for use of Annex residents, a beauty salon is there and will be manned one day a week by professional beautician.

Actually, no expense has been spared to make The Annex a comfortable as well as practical place for people to live. It may have some of the outward appearance of a hospital but it's not that at all, even with nurse and doctor just next door. The Annex is a place for people to live and enjoy life the way they choose.

The members of the hospital board will be hosts during the three-hour openhouse at The Annex. They will be assisted by Mary Ellen Payne, Minnie Thornton, Veda Stephenson, Clara Snow, Elva Wilson, and Ann Stephenson, chairman of this Woman's Club committee.

There will be many things to see and admire at The Annex, such as a different color scheme for each room, bath facilities, outside opening door in each room, new plantings starting to grow, a beautiful fireplace made of malpais rock, new furniture, excellent heating and cooling system, and many other features of interest.

The Annex is so designed that you may live to yourself, or take advantage of neighboring with other people, whatever your life style may be.

Sunday, May 30 is the day for public viewing. You are invited.

The man who was most responsible for The Annex being finished up in fine shape is shown here, Forest White, job superintendent for Giles Construction.

MEMORIAL DAY

Just before the end of May, in the little town of Ford City, Pennsylvania, candles are distributed to every home in this football community. At exactly 10:14 p.m., on the evening before Memorial Day the bells in the churches begin to toll for one minute. Then the lights of every home, store, and automobile are turned off. All traffic ceases; even the night freight train stops its clanging. Stillness and darkness prevail. Then the people step out on their front lawns, light the candles and sing the Lord's Prayer. Over a loudspeaker comes a short address by a clergyman, then a rifle salute followed by taps. The candles are extinguished. The lights go on again. Cars begin to move. But, for ten minutes everyone has remembered the boys who died for their country.

Americans honored over the world

Washington -- Americans who fell in battle are honored on Memorial Day not only by their countrymen.

Officials of nations where this country has fought also will place wreaths on the graves of United States servicemen on May 31; monuments to America's war dead are found in many lands.

One of the most unusual memorials adorns a church in the small village of Eschweiler, in Luxembourg near the Belgian border.

SOLDIER AMONG SAINTS -- A mural painted by a local artist hangs behind the altar of St. Mauritius Church, it depicts Christ feeding the multitude with loaves and fishes. Beside him, in flowing robes, stands Private George Otmar Mergenthaler of Rye, New York, who was killed in the Battle of the Bulge.

Robert Leslie Conly, a National Geographic senior assistant editor who visited Eschweiler and talked with some of its 300 inhabitants, later wrote that the soldier in the painting "has no halo, but he looks at home among the apostles and the saints."

Private Mergenthaler, whose German immigrant grandfather invented the linotype -- the machine that probably set the type for this story -- was with an infantry unit that moved into Eschweiler in November 1944.

Quartered with Father Antoine Bodson, the parish priest, the young GI quickly made many friends in the small community.

The townspeople were evacuated on December 18, during the German offensive. They returned in February to find the town shelled and looted, and its church shattered.

"They did not know what had become of their friend George," Mr. Conly related. But on March 24 some villagers found a crude grave, marked by a wooden cross from which hung an American helmet.

Father Bodson wrote to the soldier's parents in Rye, saying: "I walked to the place, removed some stones from the grave and ... finally I recognized the

The people of Eschweiler buried Private Mergenthaler in their cemetery, and when they restored their church, they put him in its mural.

MEMORIAL IN LONDON --

St. Paul's Cathedral in London houses a more elaborate remembrance, the American Memorial Chapel. Dedicated in November 1958, its honor roll bears the names of some 28,000 British-based Americans killed in action during World War II.

This year, as on previous Memorial Days, there will be ceremonies at the United Nations Cemetery in Pusan, South Korea. American graves will be decorated at World War I military cemeteries such as St. Laurent, which overlooks the Aisne-Marne, France, and Flanders Field, Belgium.

World War II dead will be honored in such military cemeteries as St. Laurent, which overlooks the Normandy beaches, and Anzio-Nettuno in Italy, and at scores of burial grounds throughout Europe, North Africa, and Asia.

SMOKEY BEAR COUNTRY — By Margaret Rench

Mercury down to 14 degrees one nite

It has been very cold and terribly windy all of last week. 14 degrees one night and very cold since though not that low. But it did leave its scars deeply. But the one item we have to be thankful for is we are still here and O.K. It is not an earthquake, tornado or a volcanic eruption. We will make it with flying colors just the same. God's will be done. We must accept it with a smile.

Lincoln County women in the dough

News And Notes

By Mary Ellen Payne

"Baking Bread the Modern Way" is how to be in the dough -- bread dough that is! Seventeen women from all areas of Lincoln County, including Ruidoso, Corona, Hondo, Capitan and Carrizozo took part in a bread baking workshop taught by Miss Louise Garrett, Miss Garrett, Extension Food and Nutrition Specialist with New Mexico State University, demonstrated to the group the new mixer methods of yeast breads. The bread workshop was held in the Rural Electrification Cooperative Building in Carrizozo.

The women attending the workshop were divided into teams to work on one of the new baking methods presented.

Miss Garrett demonstrated the cool-rise one bowl white bread and regular white bread. She worked with each woman individually showing the proper technique for adding flour to the dough and proper kneading of the dough.

Everyone had a loaf of bread to take home and the recipe leaflets to follow for future baking at home.

Pictures:

1. Mrs. Bill Dunbar, Mrs. Joe Ortiz and Mrs. Sallie Ortiz are shown working on the first stage of their bread during the recent workshop on "Baking Bread the Modern Way".

2. Mrs. Lewis Stratton and Mrs. Dimmitt Bond of Corona and Lucille Tuberson of Mobile, Alabama are conferring quickly before shaping their second loaf of bread during the workshop.

News from the County Agent

Mel Gnatkowski with a score of 425 was the fourth place individual in the State Wool judging contest in Capitan Saturday. There were 170 boys and girls competing in the contest held in the Lincoln County Fair building.

The senior team composed of Cecelia Pacheco, Janet Davidson, Jimmy Stratton and Amy Foster were fourth in the senior division. Janet Davidson tied for 6th place individual with a 420 score.

I received the first copy of the new Apple Market Information Newsletter. It will be published monthly in May, June and July with weekly publication in August, September and October. If you want to receive this Newsletter, please let me know. It is available at no cost.

This month's letter contains a summary of the winter freeze damage and the present fruit prospects for New Mexico. The frost last week seriously affected the production in the state. The production will be lower than the previous estimate of 450,000 boxes. Also the frost will cause a skin russeting thereby reducing quality.

Powdery mildew has been found in many orchards, especially on Jonathan trees. Powdery mildew is a fungus disease which appears as white-to-gray, moldy or powdery patches on leaves, buds, and fruit. Losses caused by powdery mildew are often overlooked. Severe infection causes yield reduction, poor quality fruit, and reduced overall vigor of the trees.

Jonathan, Roman Beauty, and Stayman Winesap apple varieties are quite susceptible to mildew attack. Less susceptible varieties such as Delicious and Golden Delicious frequently become diseased when the fungus is allowed to build up on the susceptible varieties and when humidity is high. If mildew continues to spread during the growing season, spray with Karathane. Always follow label directions when applying any chemicals. Fruit trees injured by freeze or any other cause are very susceptible to a common fungus disease called cytospora canker, which causes limbs to die back and eventually may kill the entire tree. This disease shows small, pinhead-sized black or orange spots on the diseased wood (outer bark) and frequently causes the bark to peel. Guides on recognition and control of this disease are also available in your county agent's office.

Grazing studies on the Jornada Experimental Range at Las Cruces, have indicated that the winter supplemental feeding of weaned steer calves in that desert area may pay if the calves are to be sold in the spring, but probably won't pay if they are to be held over and summered. Three years of studies indicated that the unfed steers make compensatory gains during the summer that bring their weights up by fall to nearly equal to those of the supplemented cattle.

The three experimental years included one wet, one dry, one intermediate. Steers given no supplement gained 48 pounds in 200 days, roughing it through the winter. Steers given a pound of cottonseed meal a day gained an extra 36 pounds, steers fed hay an extra 26 pounds, those on a fertilized range 29 pounds, those on a tobsosa range burned the previous spring only one extra pound. Experimenters tried spraying tobsosa grass with a molasses urea mixture but it showed only one pound extra gain. The research was done by Bureau of Land Management personnel.

A youth conservation camp is being sponsored by the New Mexico Society of Range Management at Montgomery Research Station near Alto on August 4, 5 and 6th. Twenty boys will be chosen with one boy accepted from each of the twenty counties submitting an application. Any boy between the age of 15 and 19 years of age, not affiliated with some other youth organization such as 4-H, FFA, or Boy Scouts is eligible. The only other requirements is that he must be interested in developing his understanding and his appreciation of the natural resources of New Mexico. The cost is approximately $20.00 plus transportation. If you are interested, contact your county agent, soil conservation, or Forest Service personnel before June 15th.

Lincoln County will have an estimated 50% crop with the majority of the apples in the Hondo-Picacho area. The Glencoe-Lincoln area had some fruit damage in late April, most of the apples in the area will be Rome Beauties. The Nogal area reports a good crop.

The drought situation will be reviewed at a meeting of County Office managers of the ASCS from throughout the state. They will discuss feed programs that might be started to help the livestock grower maintain a foundation breeding herd. The extremely dry weather is causing severe feed problems for the livestock owners.

About 80,000 pounds of 12 months staple length halfblood wool have been sold in Roswell at 53 cents clean, f.o.b. Boston, and 100,000 pounds of fine clothing lamb wool at 14-1/2 cents grease. In Texas, about 250,000 pounds of high shrinking, poor quality, short staple wool have been sold for 10-14 cents, mostly 12 cents, plus a small tonnage of staple finewool at 20-22 cents. About 200,000 pounds of spring adult mohair have sold for a steady 30 cents.

Wool warehouse managers met in Albuquerque last week to discuss foreign sales of New Mexico short staple wool. An estimated five million pounds of the state's 1970 clip remains in storage, some of it long staple finewool, some of it Indian type and other short wools.

If the managers can agree on price and will commit the 1970 and part of the 1971 clip, they may be able to put eight million pounds of short fiber into foreign markets, principally in France and Belgium.

Aplary inspectors of the New Mexico Department of Agriculture will inspect about 15,000 colonies of honey bees owned by over 600 beekeepers in New Mexico this summer. The colonies are being inspected for contagious bee diseases.

Every beekeeper, whether he has one colony as a hobby or 2,000 colonies as a business operation, must have them inspected. Bees, like humans, are susceptible to infectious diseases. Bees live under very crowded conditions within the hive and under these conditions an infectious disease is readily spread within the colony and even to other colonies.

The two most important diseases in New Mexico are American foulbrood and European foulbrood. Both of the diseases are caused by bacteria. The bacteria infect the brood, which includes the larvae (white worm stage) and pupae (resting stage) after the eggs hatch and before the adults emerge. The diseases kill the larvae and pupae. The infested colony becomes weak and the number of bees decrease, for young bees are not reared to replace the old bees. As the colony weakens, bees from the other colonies begin robbing the honey and pollen, thus spreading the disease.

Honey from infected hives may be consumed without ill effects, for bee diseases cannot be transmitted to man or other animals.

If we could just wrap it all up.

Litter is a complex problem. And solving it calls for understanding and united action.

1. Litter isn't caused by bottles or cans or convenience packaging. Litter is caused by the thoughtless man. The thinking man can stop it.
2. The natural first step is individual action. Let's all be a little more thoughtful. Let's make sure that we, ourselves, are not adding to the litter problem.
3. The thinking man takes active steps to keep his community clean. The tools are at hand.
4. The United States Brewers Association is ready to help you. We're working at the local and national levels to create greater public awareness. To attack apathy. To help Keep America Beautiful.
5. If we tackle this problem together we can soon have it all wrapped-up. Write us today and we'll help your community develop a campaign against litter.

New postage rate still cheaper than postage rates were 125 years ago

Although postage for a first-class letter will increase to 8-cents later this month, Postmaster Fred Chavez today reminded local citizens that the new rate will still be cheaper than postage rates were almost 125 years ago.

According to Postmaster Chavez, the first general issuance of postage stamps by the Post Office Department was authorized by Congress in March of 1847. He described the step as "one of the most important single improvements in the history of the American postal system."

The series consisted of five-cent and ten-cent denominations. At that time, the regular non-local postage rate was 5 cents a half ounce for mail traveling a distance under 300 miles and 10 cents a half ounce if over 300 miles.

During this period, an average letter weighing one-half of an ounce cost 10 cents to be sent from New York City to San Francisco. In comparison, the imminent first-class postage increase from 6 to 8 cents will still be 20 percent cheaper than before the Civil War.

"The comparison has more significance when consideration is given to the cost of living patterns, transportation modes, communications systems, and other factors which have changed during this 125-year period," Postmaster Chavez said.

"Nevertheless," he added, "when one turns to more recent history, first-class postage has always been one of the best buys for the money." "For example," he said: "The cost of mailing a first-class letter in 1932 was only 3 cents. When the new rate is effective, it will mean that first-class postage has increased by 166 percent."

"Yet," Postmaster Chavez continued, "if postal prices had risen at the same rate as retail prices since 1932, it would cost about 9 cents today -- not 8 cents -- to send a first-class letter."

During the same 39-year period, wholesale prices have increased by 230 percent and the average pay of manufacturing workers has gone up by 670 percent.

"Despite the great distances many letters must travel in the United States," Postmaster Chavez said "our postal rates are still lower than in most other major countries, particularly when based on ability to pay."

When the proposed stamp rate is related to average hourly earnings, the impact of the 2-cent increase in first-class postage on the family or on the individual will be minimal.

The increase will only add $1.04 annually to the household which mails only one letter a week. The family mailing five letters a week, the increase will amount to $5.20 each year.

Labor statistics reflect that the average American worker earns the price of an 8-cent stamp in only 1.4 minutes. It takes the average West German worker 3.1 minutes to earn letter postage while it takes the British worker 3.7 minutes, and the French worker 6.4 minutes.

In addition to being informed about the history of postal rates, Postmaster Chavez is convinced that "considering all factors first-class postage continues to be one of the best and most economical products in America today."

Question? What do we do now!

By Sharon Welch

The 1971 Graduating Seniors are taking a big step tonight. They are ending 12 years of learning, and now they must not look back, but look forward to the future. A future which is OURS. The question now, is "What are we going to do with it?" It has also been asked, "What do the young people of today really want?"

Young Americans have been given more "goodies" than any generation in the history of the world. And still we are not happy, still we are seeking. For what and why? Well, maybe man can never be happy. Maybe it's not our nature. Or maybe because we have had so much, we realize better than any generation in the history of the world that happiness is not simply a full stomach or a beautiful house or a new car every year. On the other hand, most of us realize that happiness is not wondering where our next meal is coming from, or living in abject poverty. Perhaps we are seeking a "happy medium" between the two.

Some young people today reject everything -- their parents, traditions, society -- everything of the past because this world isn't perfect. Many people believe that our future looks almost hopeless, but I believe that as long as we keep our individuality and freedom there is still hope for our future. I believe that most of us realize that before you tear down what exists you must have something better to put in its place.

You hear every day what we don't want. Tonight I would like to tell you what we do want. Young people of today are realistic, how can we be otherwise when we are exposed to television, radio, movies and newspapers every day, but we are still young enough to be idealistic. I believe that all of us here, young people and adults, share certain ideals which can be summed up in the words of John F. Kennedy when he said, "I look forward to a great future for America, a future in which our country will match its military strength with our moral restraint, its wealth with our wisdom, its power with our purpose. I look forward to an America which will not be afraid of grace and beauty, which will protect the beauty of our natural environment--an America which will reward achievement in the arts as we reward achievement in business or statescraft."

I look forward to an America which commands respect throughout the world not only for its strength but for its civilization as well. And I look forward to a world which will be safe not only for democracy and diversity but also for distinction." Thank you.

Next turn is the big question!

By Lois Ann Holleyman

"Challenge for Tomorrow" Honored guests, students, parents, and fellow Seniors of the 1971 graduating class. For twelve years we have looked forward to this night and now that it is here we have mixed emotions. All of us in one way or another are very anxious to be a high school graduate.

But which way to turn is a very big question. Many young people today are interested only in escape. They do not feel strong enough to cope with the problems that they are faced with. Escape is easy enough through drugs or alcohol, but success is not as easily achieved. It takes a whole lot more time, and quite a lot more effort and desire to be an individual that we ourselves can be proud of.

Poets and writers have imagined what the future will hold -- A world in which the government has grown so powerful that our televisions watch us??? "Big Brother is watching you." A world in which in order to breathe, we must wear gas masks and cities are built underground??? A world so overpopulated that privacy will be a rare luxury??? Test-tube babies perhaps??? ---Imagine greatest men of the 20th century. A man who lived in a time of the greatest crisis the world has ever known -- a time when the whole world was at war. These are the words of Winston Churchill: "You have not an hour to lose. You must take your place in life's fighting line. Twenty to twenty-five; these are the years. Don't be content with things as the way they are. The earth is yours and the fullness thereof. Enter upon your inheritance, accept your responsibilities. Raise the glorious flags again, advance them upon the new enemies, who constantly gather upon the front of the human army, and have only to be assaulted to be overthrown. Don't take no for an answer, never submit to failure. Don't be fobbed off with mere personal success, or acceptance. You will make all kinds of mistakes; but as long as you are generous and true, and also fierce you cannot hurt the world or even seriously distress her. She was made to be wooed and won by youth."

These are not words of discouragement or weakness. These are not words which encourage self-pity or a desire to escape from reality.

And tonight there are 14 seniors who are very anxious to take our place "in life's fighting line." We have many challenges facing us. Which way to turn must be answered by each of us graduating here tonight. Will we accept our challenges or will we seek escape, non-involvement and tell ourselves that we are unimportant, that we do not count. Ask ourselves "What can a nobody like me do?" "What does one voice count?" Or will we remember that our nation is made up of many, many individuals and that we are all very important.

We could seek escape and non-involvement, but I think I can speak for all of the seniors here tonight in saying, "We accept our Challenges." Thank you.

Thelma Parish receiving gift from Joyce Simpson

Farewell party for Thelma Parish

The Cafetorium of the Carrizozo school was the scene of a beautiful farewell party honoring Thelma (Zuber) Parish Sunday afternoon. Mrs. Parish is retiring at the close of the school year. She came to Carrizozo as a sixth grade teacher when Mr. L. Z. Manire first came here as Superintendent in 1942. She has taught all 29 years in the intermediate grades.

The only time Mrs. Parish was absent from her schoolroom was not because of illness, but at the death of her parents.

One of her ex-students Joe Moore was M.C. She has taught under five Superintendents since she came here; L. Z. Manire, Robert Firman, J. T. Clegg, Glen Ellison and the present Superintendent James Steinepreis; Manire, Clegg and Steinepreis were present and made many complimentary remarks about Mrs. Parish and her devotion to her work.

Veda Lou Stephenson also a former pupil of Mrs. Parish was chairman of the reception and also led the group in several songs, and the present Grade School Faculty and some retired teachers helped with the program and tea. Scott Shafer also a former student sang a song, "If I could Help Someone Today". He was accompanied by his mother, Jane Shafer.

The faculty presented Thelma with a beautiful silver candle stick and some presented personal gifts.

The tables were decorated in red and white and the room was decorated in evergreen and red and white paper and flowers.

Mrs. Parish will be at home in Albuquerque with her husband, Leon.

N. M. ranchers earn recognition

New Mexico farmers and ranchers helped earn national recognition in President Nixon's recent White House salute to agriculture, according to John R. Hadley, farm program leader.

The President, in a unique tribute to agricultural achievement, said, "thanks to American agriculture for making us the best fed, the best clothed people in the world; thanks to American agriculture for providing the basic industry that is essential for any nation to be strong."

He cited specifically a 300 percent per man-hour productivity increase for agriculture in the last 20 years, comparing it with the 150 percent increase recorded by other American industry.

John R. Hadley, who is the Chairman of the State Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation (ASC) Committee, said all New Mexicans should recognize that this national salute to agriculture is a salute to New Mexico farmers as well as those in the other 49 states.

"In our farm program agency, the Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation Service, here in New Mexico we are of course most interested in the crops under the set-aside farm programs, (corn, grain sorghum, wheat, and cotton), those under marketing quota programs, (peanuts and extra long staple cotton) plus crops which are eligible for the loan, principally (barley, oats, rye, dry beans, etc.)"

"Some 6,500 farms in New Mexico are participating this year in the new market-oriented set-aside farm programs. Some of the restraints on production and kinds of crops which were imposed in previous years have been removed, as was noted by President Nixon recently in a national speech on agriculture," Mr. Hadley said.

"The President told the nation that American farmers have proven their ability to capitalize on new opportunities and can compete successfully whenever they have the chance to compete. Mr. Nixon said he is determined to see that agriculture has that chance," the ASC Committee Chairman said.

The White House salute to agriculture not only drew national attention to farming, but also served to concentrate efforts to better American agriculture's competitive position, according to Mr. Hadley.

President Nixon told the salute to agriculture audience: "It is a rule in a free society that whoever produces more should be compensated for more. The income per capita of those who live on America's farms has gone up in the last 20 years. But in terms of sharing in this increased productivity, those who live on America's farms, those who produce from America's farms, have not had the rewards from increasing productivity that their colleagues who work in American industry have had for their increase in productivity.

"It is that problem that we have been addressing ourselves to. It is that problem in which, of course, we need cooperation among all branches of government, the administration, the Congress, and the farm community to see how we can see that America's farmers receive their fair share of a dramatically increasing productivity."

Peter Hurd Sketchbook an escape to country

BY DON J. ANDERSON

OUT OF THE west, came artist Peter Hurd to open last week's special exhibition of his work in the First National Bank, which heralded his just-published book of watercolors and writings.

Hurd's exhibition was a towering event which presented his gentle views of the western landscape in contrast to the city below the bank. Hurd never leaves the territory if he can help it—civilization depresses him.

Any art lover who did not have the opportunity to see Hurd's exhibition can now peruse his works in his large "Sketchbook," published by Chicago's Swallow Press and available in bookstores.

The "Sketchbook" contains 40 fine color reproductions and 17 black and white lithographs never published before. They are outdoor sketches, done on the spot, and are accompanied by the artist's own comments describing his love of the countryside. The texture of his watercolors, in particular, are so finely reproduced you will be tempted to run a finger over each.

"I ALWAYS DREAD leaving New Mexico at any time," Hurd said, "but in the spring—most of all. Spring has always been my favorite time for landscapes, magical with the mystery of plant life awakening after the long winter. On warm days as these one can almost hear the leaf buds open on the cottonwoods in our valley."

"Peter Hurd has the great ability to say things in his own way, revealing much about his love of nature and its ecology," says John Meigs, who edited the "Sketchbook." "Our only problem in selecting the original works for this book was the difficult choice of only 40 sketches from the hundreds in the artist's files and from various collections in all parts of the country." Much of final selection Meigs credits to Mrs. Peter Hurd (sister of Andrew Wyeth), whose father, N. C. Wyeth, was Hurd's teacher.

Peter Hurd, painter, becomes a philosopher with the select words in his sketchbook; they have a real grasp of the nature we are all concerned with today.

"These abbreviated jottings record not only the effect I attempted to capture," he said, "but some of the excitement I experienced at the time. Some of my better efforts have been born of these opposing elements: delight and despair."

The publisher doesn't want anyone to buy the sketchbook just to frame the reproductions, but it will be difficult to resist after seeing the original quality captured in each painting. Favorite paintings from the sketchbook featured in the exhibition were "Gonzales Farm," "Dusty Sun," "Frosted Tree," "Spring Bloom" and "Afternoon in Summer."

The New Mexican-born artist, whose works span four decades, is perhaps best known for the one picture not shown or mentioned: his official portrait of Lyndon B. Johnson, which the former President called as "the ugliest thing" he'd ever seen.

However, because of continuing training and aircraft check-out requirements, all aircraft assigned here periodically must be flown at supersonic speeds. When these supersonic missions are required, however, they are flown at altitudes of 40,000 feet or above, increasing the distance the pressure cone must travel before reaching the ground, thus minimizing the level of whatever sound waves or "boom" may reach the ground.

Also, as many military and civilian organizations stationed here utilize the base's designated flying area for research and test programs of high speed aircraft and equipment, sonic booms then occasionally are an unavoidable aspect of the particular test being conducted.

Finally, the most frequent cause of sonic booms which you may hear are a result of air-to-air combat training maneuvers in the designated flying areas for such operations.

Pilots involved in these mock "dog fights" must operate their aircraft at supersonic speeds to accurately evaluate the performance capabilities of both machine and man that are required in actual air-to-air combat situations.

Training for such combat maneuvers at sub-sonic speeds would be impractical. Today's modern jet aircraft are designed for maximum performance at supersonic speeds, and pilots must acquire full familiarization of how they can expect themselves and their aircraft to perform at these maximum performance levels for which their aircraft are designed.

To train at sub-sonic speeds would be like taking batting practice against your little league son and then trying to hit against the likes of Bob Gibson. The practice wouldn't do you much good.

Thus the supersonic air-to-air combat training maneuvers are

"Sonic boom" over Southern New Mexico

BOOM! "Sonic Boom", that is. As residents in the local flying area used by the jet aircraft stationed here, you may have experienced this jet-age phenomenon at one time or another.

What exactly is a sonic boom? A sometimes startling and often irritating loud noise? It can be, since it comes without warning.

A destructive shockwave which damages your property, breaking glass and aggravating plaster cracks? Yes, a sonic boom can and occasionally does cause such minor property damage.

Then why doesn't somebody do something about them? Good question. But before answering it, let's back up a minute and discuss the technical causes of a "sonic boom".

The loud noise or "boom" that you hear is caused by pressure waves which build up around an aircraft flying faster than the speed of sound (approximately 750 miles per hour). These pressure or sound waves spread in all directions. If strong enough to reach the ground, you hear them as the "boom".

Many people wrongly believe that a sonic boom is created only at the point where an aircraft first exceeds the speed of sound. Actually, an aircraft flying at supersonic speed "drags a cone of sound" along its path.

The strength of a sonic boom which reaches the ground will vary -- depending on the aircraft's altitude, its size, its weight and its speed. Also, the temperature, wind, terrain and amount of moisture in the air will affect the boom's strength.

Let's now go back to the question, "Why doesn't somebody do something?" about sonic booms.

The simplest action would be not to fly at supersonic speeds, right? Well, to a large extent this is the preventive action taken. In most training flights flown by military pilots, aircraft speeds are held below the speed of sound ("Mach 1" in the business). All low level routes in the designated Holloman local flying area are flown at speeds well below Mach 1.

not games. They are serious and necessary directed missions flown by mature, dedicated and carefully trained men who are perfecting their ability to protect this country. They are not "stunting" or "hot rodding".

You can make your contribution to our nation's defense by understanding the need for supersonic flights.

Everything possible is being done to minimize the effects of sonic booms -- but they do occur. They are part of the jet age. And they can cause minor damage.

Should you experience damage as the result of a sonic boom, contact the Holloman legal office claims section at extension 7216.

CARD OF THANKS

I really appreciate the thoughtfulness of the many people who came to see me while I was in the hospital, sent cards and remembered me in other ways. A hospital is a pretty good place to be when you're sick and have so many friends.

Reappraisal help

Continued From Page One regular school year. This program has been in effect for two years and is funded under Title I. Its continuance is uncertain at budget time for lack of enrollment.

County school districts have in the past shared the services of a county nurse. This year the Health & Social Service Dept. requested a very substantial increase in the cost. The type of service provided was discussed and it appears that the schools may be purchasing services that are not generally required by a school district. It was determined that none of the school districts involved should increase their budgets as requested by the Health & Social Services Dept., but rather that the four superintendents contact the department and try to arrive at a just dollar payment for services desired.

The 1969 ACT test results (45% took test) reflected an average score of 19.3, as compared to a statewide 18.7 and a national 19.7. The 1969 beginning first grade fell into the 93rd percentile -- our highest to date, as compared to a statewide 65th percentile. An analysis of the ACT test results indicated a low score in math, should be explored by the board.

Ofelia Salas, seventh grade teacher with two high school classes, and Maurilda Perry, commercial teacher of Capitan attended the hearing.

The legislative school study committee has divided up and is taking in the budget hearing over the state. In Carrizozo for this purpose Tuesday and Wednesday was Sen. Herbert Taylor of Gallup, and Ronald Coss, director for the committee.

Grady Mayfield, president of the state board of education, has been a regular visitor for the budget hearing in Carrizozo and was here this week.

Way West

People of Carrizozo, and Lincoln County, have a genuine chance to demonstrate their salesmanship starting now. There may not be even one other Intermediate Care Facility in New Mexico as fine as the one being opened in Carrizozo this week. It's a new business -- it needs publicity and customers. What you say to your neighbors and friends, the messages you write to distant people about this facility all amount to publicity -- good or bad, all depending on the kind of person you are and the way you feel about Carrizozo. If you think Carrizozo is a friendly town, and that people would enjoy living here in The Annex ... spread the word.

Jim Patton of Design Interiors at Las Cruces, said over the phone -- "I want to help Jackie publicize the project", and he sure meant it -- look for his advertisement in this issue. Of course it isn't just Jackie's project, but Jim is acquainted with this wonderful gal, and knows the time-effort-money she has put into The Annex. What got The Annex going was the bond money voted by Lincoln County people, what made it something real special was the attention it received from Jackie Spencer and hospital board.

Note from Dolores Montoya, sec. - treas. Mayordomos, St. Francis de Paula Church -- Thank you very much for the excellent coverage you gave to help make our fiesta a great success. It was greatly appreciated.

Payton is the guy who puts the Tularosa paper together each week and we did help Dolores with her project. Her thanks and thoughtfulness makes us feel the job was worthwhile.

On the positive side -- more than 75,000,000 citizens, and corporations, paid more than $160 billion in income taxes.

"You're the kind of a man a girl cannot trust!" "Haven't we met before? Your faith is familiar."

We've figured out how it was possible for the courthouse plumbing and heating to be such a mess and still pass inspection at the time the project was "bought" by county officials. If it was "bought" in the summer, the cooling system would be working, and the heating tried for short period. If the sale was made in the fall the heating would be working and the cooling system checked in short order. It all boils down to fact that -- only one guy really knows about the system, how good it is and how long it will work properly. Not the commissioners (its not their job), not the architect, (the one who is really responsible), and none of the taxpayers (who got a bad deal in this instance). . . the plumber is the only one who knows and Lord help the project (like our new ICF) if the plumber is not both competent and honest.

Swiped from Duffy -- The secret of financial success is to spend what you have left after saving, instead of saving what is left after spending.

Candidate for the worst pun in 1971: The termite's theme song -- "I'm gonna sit right down and rot myself a ladder."

Heaven forbid, but now they're working on a credit card that'll fit in a vending machine!

It's hard to figure out who does more bragging -- those who've lost weight or those who've quit smoking.

The farmer was digging ditches when his shovel handle broke, so he drove to a nearby general store to get a replacement. The owner listened to his needs and then spent twenty minutes rummaging through his storeroom. At last he found a handle that matched the broken one.

"How much?" asked the man. "It's $2.98, but I can't sell it," replied the storekeeper. "Why not?" "Well, this is the only one I have in stock and I have to keep it in case someone needs one."

White Oaks Plans Reviewed John Conron, Consultant for the Cultural Property Commissions and Brad Hays of the State Planning Office, were in Carrizozo last Thursday reviewing plans for White Oaks Historical Project.

 Rep. David Salman, D-Union-Mora-Harding, is the LSSC chairman. Reporting on Mora Schools, State Schools Supt. Leonard DeLayo told the committee: "There was massive firing and hiring of personnel based upon what political party was in power at the time." DeLayo said this is the historical pattern in Mora School District.
 Designated by DeLayo, James West has served as Mora Schools superintendent in recent months. DeLayo told Salman's committee hiring is on a merit basis now. * * * * *
