Soil Conservation area meeting set in Lincoln

The annual meeting of zone six of the State Association of Soil and Water Conservation Districts will be Friday at the Lincoln School Auditorium in Lincoln. The Upper Hondo and Carrizozo SWCD's will host the meeting, which some 50 delegates from 10 districts in southeast New Mexico are to attend.

According to A. W. Gnatkowski, of Ancho, zone six chairman, all interested people are invited to attend. An interesting program has been planned which will include speeches and a tour in addition to the regular business meeting, Gnatkowski said. Highlights of the meeting will include Keith Austin, extension organization specialist, to speak on 'The Social Action Process' at 11 a.m. Jasper Koontz, Fort Sumner rancher, will present a program on 'Pasture Rotation Systems' at 1:45 p.m. A tour of Fort Stanton's pasture rotation system will be conducted by Dr. Rex Pieper, of NMSU, at 2:45 p.m., said Gnatkowski.

Others on the program, which opens at 9 a.m., J. Lewis Merritt, NACD southwest area vice president, Cap Parkinson, NMA-SWCD president, and Mrs. R. L. Chilton, president of the NMA-SWCD ladies auxiliary. Lunch will be "dutch treat" at the Worley Hotel.

Friday, Saturday and Sunday

5,000 expected at Lincoln pageant

More than 5,000 people will crowd into Lincoln this weekend to witness the "Last Escape of Billy the Kid," cheer-on-the-riders in a 41-mile cross-country horse race and watch a mile-long parade.

All this and more starts Friday in the one-time Lincoln County seat, winding up late Sunday. It'll be the 23rd annual pageant.

The historical festival chronicles Billy the Kid's last escape 90 years ago. With a cast of dozens, the pageant will be staged at 8:30 p.m. both Friday and Saturday. Sunday the presentation is at 3 p.m.

Six riders are currently entered in the 41-mile Pony Express race, though several other entries are expected by 5 p.m. today, the time for close of entries. The race--designated by the U. S. Postal Service as an official mail delivery--starts Saturday in White Oaks at 8:30 a.m. and ends in Lincoln about 11 a.m.

Saturday afternoon there will be an old fiddlers' contest at the pageant grounds. About 10 entries are expected for the old-style musical competition.

The parade--a mile long with dozens of entries from throughout "old" Lincoln County--starts at 1:30 p.m. Last year more than 4,000 people lined the streets of the historic old town to view the parade.

For the second year in a row, Bill Schreengost, of Lincoln, will portray the part of Billy the Kid in the pageant. Other key rolls are Alexander McSwain, played by Ralph Dunlap, of Lincoln; Susan McSwain, played by Phoebe Taylor, of Lincoln; the priest, played by Rev. John Miner, of Ruidoso; and Buckshot Roberts, played by Dan Storm, of Glencoe. In addition, Rene Nosker, of Glencoe, plays the part of Juanita Mills; Kenneth Nosker, of Glencoe, plays Gov. Lew Wallace; and Dennis Nosker, of Glencoe, plays J. H. Tunstall. Directing the pageant are Storm and Dave Parks.

A highlight of the weekend will be the performances of the Chaparral Gunfighters, from Las Cruces. The "lynching gang" will be in the parade as well as stage gunfights throughout the day Sunday.

The fast-draw experts are slated to perform next month at the state fair in Albuquerque.

The Pony Express race, started three years ago during the county's centennial celebration, has gained much area-wide publicity. Mail carried by riders in the 41-mile race will be marked by the U. S. Post Office with a special Pony Express seal.

Already signed up to make the ride are Brahin Hindi, a Duran rancher who finished second in a photo finish last year; Clifford Lambert, of Sunland, who was fourth a year ago and is a former jockey who won the first running of the All-American Futurity a number of years ago; Joe Lively, a horse trainer from Sunland; Ted Zumwalt, a Nogal rancher; Ronnie Eldridge, a Capitan rancher; and Ted Clements, a Picacho rancher.

The parade, which starts at the east side of town and ends at the pageant grounds, has attracted entries from throughout southeastern New Mexico. Led by the U. S. Army band from Ft. Bliss, entries are expected from every county that 100 years ago was part of the original, huge Lincoln County, including Roswell, Lovington, Carlstad, Tularosa, Alamogordo, Artesia, Ruidoso, Capitan, Carrizozo, Pichaco, San Patricio and Ancho.

Bill Ward, of Lincoln, said

some horses will not be entered in the parade because they are still in quarantine from VEE vaccinations. However, this is not expected to diminish the size of the parade considerably.

After 39 miles —

RIDERS IN LAST YEAR'S Pony Express race, still closely bunched, run their horses along U. S. Hwy. 380 just two miles from the finish at Lincoln. Six horsemen are entered in this year's 41-mile, cross country gallop, which starts at 8:30 a.m. Saturday at White Oaks.

Book-signing for author's wife

The public is invited to meet Louise Coe, wife of the late author Wilbur Coe, at an autograph party Wednesday in Ruidoso.

The book-signing for Mrs. Coe, whose husband wrote "Ranch on the Ruidoso," will be from 2 to 7 p.m. at Books, Etc. in downtown Ruidoso.

The book recounts true stories of the Coe family, who have lived in the Ruidoso Valley for almost 100 years. The introduction and illustrations are by Peter Hurd. The Library of Congress has designated it to be done in braille for the blind.

Mrs. Coe is the first and only woman to be elected to the state legislature, where she represented Lincoln County for 16 years.

of the school system, Superintendent Ernest Booky said.

Summer work on the school plant has progressed as planned with the completion of the painting of the interior of the high school and the reseeding of the football field. Carpeting is being installed in the school library and half of the kindergarten room, Booky said.

The architect's plans for the new building program have been completed and construction should begin the latter part of September.

The 1971-72 school year will begin Sept. 7.

Little League's rain-delayed tournament title game Friday

The bank and the fire department teams square off Friday afternoon in the rain-delayed finals of the Carrizozo Little League Baseball Tournament.

Game time is at 5 p.m. at the Little League Park.

The final game was to have been last Saturday, but a heavy rain forced postponement until tomorrow.

In the tournament's first round action last Friday, the bank team, sponsored by the Citizens State Bank, won its way into the finals by downing Ft. Stanton, sponsored by the Capitan Lions Club. The Carrizozo Fire Department sponsored team whipped the Carrizozo Merchants in the other opening round game.

Saturday evening, just before the downpour, Ft. Stanton surprised the merchants by winning the consolation game and the tourney's third place.

An all-star team, picked from outstanding players from each of the four teams, was to have represented Carrizozo in an area tournament in Tularosa this week. However, summer recreation director Joe Light said that tournament has been cancelled.

"We're looking for a place to play," Light said yesterday. "If we can't find a nearby area tournament, then perhaps, we'll host one of our own if we can get some teams to come."

The all-star team, whether or not it has a higher level tournament in which to compete, is to be named following the game Friday, Light said.

Kenneth Evans named supervisor of the Lincoln National Forest

Kenneth L. Evans, of Albuquerque, will become supervisor of the Lincoln National Forest in southern New Mexico the 22nd Southwestern Regional Forester, W.D. Hurst announced this week.

Evans, a veteran of 22 years with the U. S. Department of Agriculture, currently is fire and timber staff officer and multiple use coordinator for the Cibola National Forest.

In his new Lincoln position he will succeed Robert Cook who moved to Albuquerque to serve as regional planner on Hurst's staff.

A native of Mosier, Evans is a 1957 forestry graduate of Oregon State University. His forest service career began in 1949.

He remained on the Deschutes National Forest in Oregon, with progressively more responsible assignments, until 1965. In that year he became an auditor with the Office of the Inspector General of the Department of Agriculture and moved to Temple, Texas. Still with the OIG, Evans moved to Albuquerque in 1967 and to the Cibola National Forest in 1969.

Evans is New Mexico chapter chairman for the society of American Foresters. He also is a member of the American Forestry Association and the International Order of Hoo Hoo, a lumber industry organization.

Ruidoso this weekend

Rainbow, Rio Grande Futurities

Youngsters, both in the quarter and in the thoroughbred categories, must hone-up this week for exams which will tell whether or not they go to the head of the class. The upcoming weekend at Ruidoso Downs will be paced with major competition, with trials for the big Rainbow Futurity, and the Rio Grande Futurity, and the setting of the championship for The Ruidoso Jockey Club Handicap.

Following Thursday's weekend warm-up card, prime 2-year old quarter horses will take over Friday for what is expected to be a full day's running for positions in the coveted Rainbow Futurity finals set for Sunday, Aug. 15.

The Rainbow Futurity is the second leg of the triple crown of quarter horse racing. Mr. Jet Moore, who won the first leg the Kansas Futurity, is expected back to try to annex the second. The giant All-American on Labor Day is the final test, but no horse has mastered the three major hurdles.

A total of 270 horses met the third payment for the Rainbow Futurity, plus an additional nine who made the penalty payment. The full field of those making entry payments will not be known until sometime during the week.

Saturday August 7, will be trial day for the finals of the Rio Grande Futurity, the years major race for 2-year old thoroughbreds. The finals will be run Aug. 14 over a course of 6-furlongs.

Like the earlier run Rio Grande Kindergarten Futurity, the Rio Grande Futurity will be limited to 2-year old thoroughbreds, who are registered New Mexico bred and/or foaled. However the distance will be lengthened from four to six panels.

In the earlier test B. Raymond

Evans' Silent Prayer, racing on the rail, posted an impressive win, with surprising Rica Kid and Carbomea running two-three. The champion has not been back out at Ruidoso Downs since taking the crown, but is entered in the bigger futurity.

New news: new name game for News readers in the News' news

There were no winners in the first week of the Lincoln County News' "Names in the News" game. But, there is a new game this week for News readers.

Rules and clues for the game, along with an entry blank, are in an advertisement on an inside page in this issue. It costs nothing to enter and the winner will receive $5 cash plus $5 (or $7) subscription making a total $10 (or $12) to the winner.

In last week's contest, only one contestant picked two of the three names correctly. Madge Miller, of Alamogordo, correctly listed Willingham and Romero as names number one and two. However, she listed as name number three Baker, and the correct name was Boyce.

Contest entries came almost exclusively from Carrizozo, though there were several from out-of-town, including one from Michael Acaccia, of Readville, Mass.

The favorite combination among contestants, though it was incorrect, were the names Wilson, Richardson and Silva.

Eight contestants picked this combination, while another dozen picked Wilson, Richardson and a host of names for number three, including Roper, Jones, Posey, Orsak and Casey.

The new contest this week has three new names with three new clues. The clues are: 1) there are a total of 16 letters in the three names, 2) the first name has seven letters, and 3) name two starts with V and name three starts with L.

Entries will be accepted on official entry blanks only--those clipped from the advertisement in this issue and must be in the News office in Carrizozo by Tuesday at 8 a.m. Entries will be mailed, left at the News office during business hours, or left in the mail drop in the News office front door.

The names in this week's contest are in the news columns of this week's issue. Read the News thoroughly, then enter as often as you'd like. It is free and you can win $5 in cash and a new subscription for one year.

EDITOR'S CORNER

Public education at all levels--from kindergarten through the graduate level of college learning--has been and is a cause of growing concern, not only in the metropolitan cities where scores of students are crowded into classrooms, but also in small towns in places like southern New Mexico, where education changes are slow to come.

This was brought to mind by a detailed report late last month to the State Legislative Study Committee by Los Alamos school superintendent Joseph M. Carroll. Carroll, it turns out, is an advocate of year-round use of public schools. And, he has suggested a 240-day school year for high schools, comprised of eight six-week sessions. For elementary schools in this state, the Los Alamos educator has suggested a plan in which children would attend school virtually year-round, taking only four three-week vacations during the 12-month period.

In big cities, even in this state, classroom space is at a premium. The growing number of students has out-grown the number of classrooms. School administrators are reluctant to go into building programs for, primarily, two reasons. First, it costs lots of taxpayers' money second, once a new school is built there is the huge cost of staffing and maintaining them for years to come.

But such is not quite the problem in small towns, like those in south-central New Mexico. There probably is close to the same number of students attending school in Carrizozo, Tularosa, Cloudcroft or Estancia as were 10 years ago, or even 20 or 30 years ago.

However, small schools like these do have a problem unique to rural areas, a problem that is becoming more critical with each passing year.

It is a fact--so the national surveys say, that students who attend small schools have a definite disadvantage to those who attend large city schools. This is surely not to say that they are taught by poorer teachers--in fact, perhaps the opposite is true. But studies show that students coming from small towns have not had the opportunity to learn many modern techniques in specialized fields that are now being offered in, say Albuquerque or El Paso high schools. An example might be that while a student attending high school in Carrizozo or Tularosa has a choice during his high school career of, say, 50 or 60 different courses of learning, in a big city school the choices of learning may be three, four or even five times that many.

It is obvious that schools like those in Cloudcroft or Estancia cannot offer the large number of courses necessary for the students to keep step--education-wise--with their big city cousins. First, it would take a considerably large number of teachers to instruct so many varied classes, and, second, the number of students in each class would be so small that it would be impractical to teach them.

One program that has been used in a couple of small high schools out west--one in Nevada and one in California, to be specific--is something called "mini-courses." For the past couple of years these small schools have been trying to go a little further in offering their students a taste of large school curricula. They are offering the students, say, two 30-minute classes a week for a single semester on such high interest subjects as computer science, auto mechanics for girls, home economics for boys, free lance writing, Shakespearean theatre, ethnic history, magazine photography, etc. To do this, the school administration simply determines from the present teaching staff which specialized courses each instructor is capable of teaching, then offers them to the students.

Students in those high schools, while they can't major in such things as political science or market management, can at least go off to college with a little more specialized training in their particular fields of interest. In addition, school is made more interesting and, too, some of the learning is of immediate value, even to those students not wishing to go into higher education.

It will be a long time before rural schools in New Mexico are faced with the problem of double-sessions to remedy over-crowded classrooms. The problem of specialization, so that students receive some of the same advantages as do those in the big cities, is something that is here and now.--T.P.

Way West

This widely read epistle habitually well-filled by the editor emeritus in the Payton family, this week is being conscientiously written by number two son, Tony, who is, likewise, conscientiously filling father Payton's chair at the News office while the senior Payton dips a fishing line in some little lake in northern Wisconsin . . . If you're still reading after that introduction, you'll probably be interested in Pat Dunning's thoughts after watching one of the moonmen plunge a drill into the moon surface. "Oops, I hope I didn't let the air out of it," the astronaut remarked. Pat said she immediately envisioned the moon streaking off across the sky like a toy balloon blown-up then released to whoosh about until all the air is gone . . . Every town in the nation--no, probably even the world--has its once a year big celebration. Some are in tune with regular holidays, like Fourth of July or Memorial Day, while others have to do with the season of the year. And, regardless of whether you're hometown folks or visitors, those big celebrations are always great amounts of good times. Anyway, Lincoln's "big one" is this weekend--the Billy the Kid celebration, complete with pageant, parade, Pony Express race and more . . .

The U. S. Department of Agriculture's weekly weather summary says that Carrizozo received more rain in July than is normal. The month total was 2.85 inches, compared with the usual average of 2.32 inches. But, for seven months this year, the Carrizozo total is only 3.05 inches--far less than half of the normal, which is 7.36 inches . . . This column this week, by the way, is written in a style known as the finest kind of three-dot journalism . . . It was reported recently from the state capital that the state motor vehicle authorities are in the throes of considering what colors to make the new license plates to be issued next year. The state's colors are red and yellow. With that in mind, it seems like there is little choice . . . Another blow for women's lib: a road construction company north of here last week was using attractive young ladies for flagmen--or is it flagwomen--to control traffic. Made stopping at the roadblock a bit more pleasant, too . . . Sign seen in the fixit shop window: If we can't fix it, it ain't broken . . . Left over by Pat: In Oktoberfest County it is both common and practical for cowboys to wear their Stetsons while dancing, in a bar, or with the lady of their choice. Really it is the only sure way of getting the hat home to use for watering the horse the next day. Sure breach of etiquette is both common and practical but frowned on in some circles. We say that the cowboys have just as much right in their dancing hats as the opposite sex does in their jeans on the dance floor.

Letters: the baseball winners

Dear Paul:
It is with great pleasure that I report the following: Again this year we have become the State Champions Little League Senior Division. We beat Tucumcari 1-0, in a fabulous game Friday, then we turned right around and beat Altamont of Albuquerque 7-0 to clinch the State Tournament. Tucumcari beat Holloman-Alamogordo 8-7 for third place. We will be representing New Mexico in the Regional Tournament this coming Friday in Las Vegas, Nevada. We will be flying out of Albuquerque Wed.

morning and will be playing against the winner of Nevada-Utah, and Colorado will be playing Arizona.

This is a long struggle, but I think if we continue playing ball like we have in the past, we can overcome this tournament. One thing of interest is that we now have 24 consecutive tournament innings where our opponents have been unable to score on us. I will keep you posted on our results in Nevada.

Nogal Nuggets

By Sue Stearns

Mrs. Witham underwent surgery in Roswell on Monday and all of Nogal wishes her a very speedy recovery.

Mrs. Pearl Stearns was called to El Paso Saturday due to the death of her niece, Mrs. CASKEY. The Pen and Brush group had a workday at the home of Dorothy Guck last Thursday. Those painting were Pat Flatley, Louise Ferguson, Eva Zumwalt, Emma Gene Hall, Thelma Zumwalt, and the hostess. The next workday will be the 12th of August at the Hall residence in Capitan.

Bob Stearns reports that Nogal can be proud of its happy gardener, Alton Whitaker. He has a beautiful garden and has developed a hybrid mutation beet. It resembles a large turnip-shaped swollen radish, smells like a catfish and must be good only for jackrabbit food! Faye Wooten is up and around after spending 45 days convalescing with a broken knee and we're glad to see her doing so well. Mr. and Mrs. Vernon Miller have had company the past week. Mr. Miller's mother, Ammel, of El Paso, and Luther Golden, have been visiting. Also, over the weekend the Miller's niece, Suzannah Boutte and her family, of Franklin, Louisiana, visited with them.

Mr. and Mrs. Bill Wilson and Carrie of Roswell visited with

Mr. and Mrs. Sam Cox Sunday. Ralph Forsythe is busy working on the back room of our church and it looks a hundred per cent improved already. Mr. and Mrs. Jack Hefker and Melody, and Mr. and Mrs. Dick Bradley of Carrizozo enjoyed a picnic up Nogal Canyon Sunday with friends.

4-H club news

The Lincoln County 4-H Horse Show and Rodeo has been re-scheduled to August 28th. This change was made necessary by the sleeping sickness in Texas. It is 14 days after vaccination before a horse develops complete immunity. All the horses in the County are scheduled to be vaccinated within a week. Any show scheduled less than fourteen days after vaccination could possibly spread the disease. The Billy the Kid Rodeo is August 21-22nd in Carrizozo, therefore August 28th is the first open Saturday that we could have the show.

Steel Industry Offer Is Rejected by Unions

WASHINGTON (AP)—The steel industry Thursday made its first solid contract offer for 350,000 members of the AFL-CIO United Steelworkers, but union negotiators rejected the proposal and some of the nation's steel makers started banking futures in anticipation of a strike at midnight Saturday.

Informed sources said the nine major steel firms in the talks and the union were continuing to negotiate.

"The union didn't buy it," said one source of the industry offer, "but it was the basis for further bargaining."

No details of the industry offer leaked from bargaining sessions.

The talks involved 350,000 members of the United Steelworkers, a pattern of 500,000.
