ONLY 82 PERCENT OF COUNTY PROPERTY ON TAX ROLLS.

Stark views reappraisal as good

It was the opinion of Don Stark, chairman of the Board of County Commissioners of Lincoln County, that reappraisal should be a good thing for the county — especially in view of the fact that 18 percent of property in the county has not been on the tax rolls, and in view of known inequities that have existed for years.

The big question — what will taxes be in future years — will have to be solved by the legislature, and hopefully this body will act on the matter in the near future.

Stark was guest speaker at the Thursday meeting of Carrizozo Rotary Club last week and his comments follow.

Lincoln County was one of the first counties to contract for reappraisal when a contract was let in 1966 to Lon Nelson & Assoc. for $55,000.00 to do the job. Approximately $49,000 of the amount was paid. Then the contractor went broke and the county had to take the case in court to recover money and records and clear the decks for a new start. This procedure took a lot of time.

Some, but not much, reappraisal material was returned to the county and a new contract negotiated in April of 1971 with American Appraisal Co. Lincoln County received credit from the state for approximately $40,000 of the $49,000 the county had paid to Nelson.

Completion of the reappraisal is expected in the Fall of 1972.

making Lincoln County one of the last counties to complete this type of work.

Land will be appraised at 80 to 85 percent of value. Town properties about the same.

Stark said the commission realizes that using the same schedule for all properties in the county will not work. There is an economic factor in property which varies widely. For instance, property in Corona, Carrizozo, and other small towns will not compare in re-sale value to properties in the Alto - Ruidoso Downs - Ruidoso area and there may be as much as a 15 percent differential figured in favor of the areas and towns where property values are down.

Hearings will be held in all school districts of the county and if there are any inequities school patrons will be heard and adjustments made where necessary.

The county commission has no control of appraisal values being set now, this is entirely in the hands of the appraisal firm. Any hearings will come first before American Appraisal and Consultants, then the State Appraisal Department. Anything beyond that will be before a board appointed to hear any grievance and, of course, after that court action could be taken. This entire process is set up by the state.

At the present time the appraisers are finding approximately 18 percent of property in the county that has not been on county rolls. Another big factor that something like 50 percent of property is on the tax rolls at far below present day values.

It is expected that valuation of property in the county will double overall and the county will need legislation allowing the commission to set a mill levy — which would cover only the needs of the county. Should the legislature grant such permission, then a lower mill rate could be set and tax payers would not be hurt.

A big job facing people handling affairs of the county in future years will be that of maintenance of the tax list. Stark said that if the maintenance job was not kept up, year after year, the county would simply be throwing $170,000 out the window.

Stark would like to see a classification of maintenance people set up by the Property Appraisal Department, with qualifications approved by them which would tend to get this work out of politics.

A form supplied by American Appraisal & Consultant Co. is available for any property owner, which cites request for interview or disagreement with property values as set by the firm.

The questions on this form concern such questions as: How old is your house? What did it cost to build, did you do the work yourself, did you use new or used material. What is your opinion of the 100 percent value of your house or land. How much did you pay for the property. What year was it purchased. Number of baths, fireplaces, additions. And last, what is the least amount you would take for your property.

Records being compiled by the appraisal firm will be complete with several routes to double check location, value, and such information on all properties in the county.

Unexpected guests surprise the Pilgrims

Washington — Ninety neighbors just happened to drop by as the Pilgrims sat down to their first Thanksgiving spread.

They were Indians, and the Pilgrims outnumbered nearly two to one — graciously invited them to stay for a bite. They stayed three days, getting into the spirit so well they slipped back into the woods and hunted up five deer for the festive pot.

Now, 350 years later, descendants of Pilgrims and Indians will sit down for another get-together in Plymouth, Massachusetts. It is part of year-long observances remembering the trials and triumphs of that tiny foothold in the New World, the log-cabin village of Plymouth.

This year's Thanksgiving banquet should easily outshine the plain repast that was laid on rough tables under the trees that chilly autumn in 1621, the National Geographic Society says.

ONLY 52 SURVIVED

The first Thanksgiving dinner was hardly sumptuous, though apparently much appreciated by all. The Indians suffered chronic near-starvation, and the Pilgrims had lived little better since arriving on the Mayflower the previous December. All but 52 died that first winter.

When the snows finally melted, the Pilgrims faced their first spring planting with justifiable foreboding. Most were townspeople, and what little they knew about farming better suited Europe and England.

The Indians saved the day, showing them how to plant corn, beans, squash, and that amazing "mellon" they called a pumpkin, and how to catch "fatt and sweet" eels, which the Pilgrims relished above all, and the unfamiliar lobsters which they found of "burdensome taste."

With the end of summer, as one Plymouth resident wrote, "Governor Bradford sent four men on fowling that so we might after a more special manner rejoice together, after we had gathered the fruit of our labours."

The Indians then showed up, attracted by the banging blunderbusses, and everyone set to work on the communal meal.

SUCCULENT SUCCOTASH

The four hunters had bagged wild turkeys, geese, ducks, wood pigeons, and partridge. Beechnuts made stuffing. There was home-brewed beer and wine from wild grapes, plus lobster, oysters, codfish, and eels. Pumpkins were stewed to a steaming pulp, and corn was made into bread and into an Indian specialty they called succotash.

Priscilla Alden presided over the largest open fire oven. Miles Standish paraded his 20-man regiment back and forth. Indians with bow and arrow and Pilgrims with firearms displayed their marksmanship.

Stern religious services began each of the three days. However, heads bowed in the New World's first giving of thanks not in Plymouth, but in a Virginia colony on December 4, 1619.

The Pilgrims get-together with the Indians is believed to be what President Lincoln had in mind when he proclaimed the last Thursday of November as the national holiday of Thanksgiving.

Oddly, nobody knows when the first Plymouth Thanksgiving occurred—in November, or during the more likely harvest time of September or October. Apparently the hungry Pilgrims were too busy eating to note the date.

Hazel English

tells of trip

The charms of Old Mexico and the changes in traveling conditions there over a period of years were the subjects of a very interesting program presented to the Carrizozo Woman's Club on Thursday by Mrs. Hazel English. The Englishes have traveled widely in Mexico. She strongly recommended her "Mexican Bible," a publication put out by the AAA, with approved restaurants and hotels; by following this advice, they ran into no problems at all, she said. The Englishes' most recent trip to the South, a three-thousand mile loop into central Mexico, took them over roads that were excellent, though rather narrow and shared with fast-moving buses and slow-moving livestock. Of all the towns they visited, Morelia was Mrs. English's favorite, and she showed some lovely examples of needlework, a domestic industry there, along with other Mexican hand-crafts. The program was climaxed by a collation of delicious Mexican cookies and tiny stuffed fruit tarts, served with chocolate-flavored coffee, prepared by Mrs. Clara Snow and Mrs. Hazel Hicks.

Message for Thanksgiving

Watching the National Geographic program, one of our favorites, about Death Valley and the Mojave Desert country of Western United States, we learned that a lot of people call this desert country "home", many were from here and a lot of them think that barren land is the best place of all to live.

The thought flashed through our mind - they sure are right - Death Valley could be a good place to live once you learned how to get along with blazing heat in the day time, chill at night and hazards every day that people in other parts of the world do not know.

Our next thought was that New Mexico is sure the best of all possible places for us this day. Our small town is just right, our blessings are many, people around these parts couldn't be beat no way. New Mexico is our "home."

Of course we feud and fuss a bit about things we think people ought to be doing but that just goes with day-to-day living and in no way means that we don't like where we are, or the people here.

We had another blessing pointed out to us later in the evening when some folks got in a real hassle over the honesty of reporting on television - it isn't too honest a great many times. We can do our own thing with our newspaper. We're close enough to people that we hear pretty quick if something we put in print is not the truth and we count that a privilege - being able to edit a country newspaper for home folks.

There are many other blessings we could count this day, health and happiness in our family, a wealth of good friends, a home town church doing the Lord's work, and a country we love on all sides of us.

We'll try to put any petty grievances clear out of our mind for this Thanksgiving Day, and hopefully keep them there. Being small of mind and petty in our thinking really does not go with the broad expanse of country in Lincoln County it's just too big for that.

We hope you have a wonderful Thanksgiving weekend, and happiness for every day that follows.

Not our happiest day

You can't stay on top in the football world as many years as Carrizozo has without people shooting at you. None of which make s the wounds less painful.

In 1970 Carrizozo won the state championship with a 9-1-1 record and placed Marc Ellison, Donnie Ham, Jody Wrye, Willie Gallegos, and Joel Barham on the all-state offensive team, boys making the all state defensive team were Rusty Leslie, Jim Speight, Matt Ellison, Jody Wrye, Ray Roper, Leland Jackson, Donnie Ha, Gerald Wells, Danny Harkey.

So what happens in 1971 - when the Grizzlies go undefeated, hardly allowing opponents more than 6 points a game - boys like Jackson, Donnie Ham, Gerald Wells, Danny Harkey.

No sports fan in Lincoln County would deny that these boys have had their finest year - this year. That Carrizozo held Hagerman on the goal line twice, that no other team could get that close. The 1971 all-state team will include, when officially announced, one Grizzly on defense, Jim Speight a player that surely deserves the honor. But it is real hard to understand a system that would leave off several other players who helped make Carrizozo the outstanding defensive team in the state in any class.

Of course we're disappointed. We did a little fussing with some people last year who thought Carrizozo had too many boys on the all-state lineup. But how can you fault a team with record like Carrizozo has this year.

People compete for the sport of the game - not so much for the honor and that's what some of Carrizozo's best defensive line of all time will have to be telling themselves.

Lincoln County people know what made the Grizzlies win this year. It was the most powerful defense this town has ever seen, plus an offense that could score several ways on any team.

The 1971 all-state offensive team included David Roper at end, David Lee at tackle, Ben Bradley at center and Willie Gallegos at halfback. Our sincere congratulations to them.

There will be no "sour Grapes" around this news office. We do somewhat understand the system of selection of all-state players. This is the year when sports fans can go out of their way to tell our people on the Grizzly squad that we're proud of them.

Karen went on rodeoing, completed the year in the New Mexico Junior Rodeo association as 1971 Senior girl goat tying champion. She is also participating in the High School Sanctioned Rodeos around to make herself eligible to enter the High School Rodeo in June held in Santa Rodeo N.M. Karen has placed in each of these, as well as winning 4th for Corona High School, at Bosque Farm Rodeo, recently. Besides being busy practicing, riding and working with her horses - she is a cheerleader, active in F. H. A. school work and church. She also helps her folks on the ranch. You have to spend lots of time on your horse and yourself to be able to compete in Competition. Karen didn't receive a County Medal in Horse this year. But has certainly deserved one very year as we feel, it is what a member does that deserves them.

The Mustangs 4-H Club has had the pleasure of having a saddle winner in 1966 - a saddle winner in 1970 - 4-H finals - as well as champion girl goat tyer in 1970 - also one in 1971 - in the N.M.J.R.A. also having a 13 thru 15 age group, runner up, for all around cowboy - twice in N.M.J.R.A., as well as Lincoln County all around several years.

So all we can say is oo - ah! "Keep riding Mustangs," you have all been awarded winners in our club.

Thank you Lon, Karen, Lois Ann, Pam and Bunk. It been a pleasure having you as our members.

THE WAY OF THE... West

There has been a rash of publicity about non-dailies following the state press convention in Ruidoso Downs. Sort of bugs us weekly people to be called "non" anything. Bill Edwards, editor of the Cloudercroft Sun, says, "For openers, it is the daily paper that is most often used to line the garbage can or to wrap fish in, and to start the fire in the fireplace. Then, with our local weekly, which loves its readership, we think we give it that personal touch that many tell us have them filling away each week's copy. We're looking with some pity on those non-weeklies.

More from Bill's Cloudercroft paper - What's the name of the bird with the big bill that delivers babies? The obstetrician.

Swiped from Duffy - Cheer up, gals. The more it costs the more trading stamps you get.

You can say this for the ready mix - the next generation isn't going to have any trouble making cakes like mother used to make.

The family that votes together - probably has only one car.

The automobile may have replaced the horse, but the man who drives should stay on the wagon.

Those who criticize the younger generation seem to forget who raised it.

You can depend on fat men - they'll never stoop to anything low.

To keep your teeth in good repair, see your dentist twice a year - and mind your own business.

Kind of funny at our house. Waldo never gets nothing, no colds, no fights, no affairs. Otis gets the works. Two or three weeks after his fight he wound up in the hospital with infested spots where his neck had been torn, real sore jaw, and to top that off - fleas.

Our young people can be complimented for their good behaviour on Halloween. The trickers were friendly and courteous and no damage of any kind around town. Thanks, glad to have you young people around.

Dr. Martin Fleck, Rotary district governor visiting here last week, complimented another generation - our own. He told the Rotarians that more good things have happened and more new discoveries made in our generation than any previous. The world is not in the real bad condition that a lot of people would have you believe. More has been done in our generation for race relations, in medicine, in education, than ever before.

Two applications made for cloud seeding in the Lincoln County area Socorro - The State Weather Modification Board took under advisement two applications by Irving P. Krick, Inc. of Texas to operate winter cloud seeding projects in New Mexico, following a nearing in Socorro Friday.

Dr. Marx Brook, board chairman, said he expected a decision in a few days on a proposal to seed for Robert O. Anderson's Ladder Ranch near Truth or Consequences. The project would include 15 silver iodide crystal generators placed in an area from just outside Deming to a few miles from Magdalena and Socorro.

For "Operation Snowflake, Inc.," a project covering a wide area centered around Ruidoso, Brook said the decision would take 10 days to two weeks, as the board had not yet run newspaper advertisements seeking opinion of persons potentially within its range.

Operation Snowflake, sponsored by about seven persons or organizations, would include approximately 29 silver iodide generators in two circles. The inner ring would include Alamogordo, Tularosa, Carrizozo, Capitan, and a circle roughly surrounding Ruidoso. The outer ring would range from right at the New Mexico-Texas border around through Organ, near Las Cruces, Engle, near Truth or Consequences, Valverde and Bingham, in the vicinity of San Antonio, N.M., Vaughn, and the Socorro area.

We have about seven major groups and individuals contributing," said Operation Snowflake spokesman Mike Hurd. He noted they included the Mescalero Apache Tribe, the City of Ruidoso, the Diamond A Ranch and the Bank of Ruidoso.

"We held a number of meetings on the weather modification," Hurd said. "We have had many letters of support for our project."

Of letters noted by both the board and board members, none opposed Snowflake. There were letters and petitions on both sides of the Ladder Ranch proposal, with perhaps a slight numerical preponderance in favor of the project.

Fred Heckman, of the Mescalero Tribal staff, spoke in favor of Snowflake.

"We come here under no illusions. We know the controversy that surrounds this, and we want to learn more about it," Heckman said.

Art Evans, foreman and manager of Ladder Ranch, spoke in favor of his project, saying, "We feel that if we could increase our winter precipitation in this area, we could increase our pounds of beef production." "I would like to say this, we join you in the search for more moisture," Brook said. "The commission is not opposed to putting rain on the ground."

Dr. Krick described his techniques of running generators in the mornings, so that by the time the afternoon clouds were forming, there would be "hundreds of square miles of material available when the clouds reach their critical state."

The board, earlier this year, denied applications for summer seeding projects in the two areas. Members of the board, however, have earlier indicated they are not as opposed to winter seeding as to summer seeding.

Tom Key, a Socorro area rancher, questioned Krick on whether any of his silver iodide would end up over the Kelly ranch.

"We never put it out except when we know it will be used," Krick replied.

"When you sign a contract, do you guarantee it's going to rain?" Kelly asked.

"We will virtually assure our clients that we will increase the precipitation over what it would have been," Krick replied. "I can virtually guarantee more rainfall than you might have gotten."

"You seeded here in the 50's and it was a complete flop," Kelly said.

Fletcher Tighner, now a Socorro area rancher, said he was ranching in the Grant, Hidalgo and Luna County area when Krick ran a seeding project in the early 50's.

"Personally, I kind of feel my ranch got what your people predicted," he said. "I would have signed up for another year, but nobody else would."

Krick said the government put out "a lot of contrived controversy" to stop seeding efforts in the 50's.

To other critics, Krick said, "We would be very happy to have you sue us if you think you've been harmed."

State Sen. Aubrey L. Dunn, D-Lincoln, Otero, said "I for one think this is going to be

He added he had been discussing the project around the proposed target area for Snowflake, and "I would like to report that I have heard no objection to the project as proposed."

The weather Modification Board is composed of three physicists at New Mexico Tech, appointed by the Tech regents. They license all weather modification projects in the state.

The Tradition of Freedom — Our Cherished Legacy

Freedom is a tradition in our great nation. From the earliest beginnings, the courage of our Pilgrim forefathers made it possible. The will and faith of our people have kept it alive. It will remain ours with vigilance and dedication. So — the past, the present and the future are inextricably woven together. Through freedom. Today we give thanks for this precious legacy. We remember and cherish our tradition. We pray that freedom will become the inalienable right of all nations.

Credit where credit is due!

Every farmer or rancher deserves a dependable source of credit like any other businessman. This is the basis on which the Production Credit Association was founded nearly forty years ago. How do we feel today? Exactly the same way. Qualified farmers and ranchers, leaders in the agricultural business around here, know that the PGA believes in giving credit where credit is due.
