(Tony Payton is the author of this week's Way of the West column. His father, Paul, who usually fills this space, was unavailable for comment.)

I've always been a fan of surveys. You know, where somebody asks a bunch of questions to a bunch of people and comes up with what is purposed to to be the public opinion. In some quarters its called feeling the pulse of the people. Probably y'all don't remember some of my more renown surveys. Like the one I took at a crowed saloon when the power went off for more than five hours.

And, too, you probably don't recall the more famous Payton survey taken of quite a number of young lovelies to determine their attitudes toward wearing bras--or, as the case was, not wearing them. Anyway, you understand that I've had experience at this sort of thing. So I didn't feel

THE RESERVENCE OF STREET like a rank amateur when I set out earlier this week to conduct my latest survey.

When anyone goes into survey work-some folks refer to it as sampling, while others call it polling, while still others call it a bunch of nonsense-he has to have a basic purpose. You know, some sought after results.

So, in view of the fact that there's been a lot of todo lately about the price of groceries, particularly meats, I thought this would be an ample topic for survey work. I would set out to determine what housewifes in the southland of New Mexico actually think, or believe they think, about meat prices.

All this talk about the rancher getting too much money for beef or the hoof, or perhaps the middle man taking his cut in painful portions, or, mäybe, the grocery store getting an unfair bite, would be settled once and for all, at least in my mind.

So it was Monday afternoon when I positioned myself near the meat counter of the local supermarket. I carried a clipboard on which were a typed-out set of questions. I wanted to look official, like I knew what I was doing.

My first subject, or interviewee as we say in the trade, was obviously a typical housewife. Pushing a grocery cart, she was also pushing or being pushed by three small children.

Without asking, I filled in the first blank on my questionaire-occupation: housewife.

"Hello Ms.," I said (I didn't want to offend her by using Mrs. or Miss in case she was heavy on women's lib), "I'm taking a survey about attitudes on food prices. Could I ask you a few questions?"

"Listen fellow, with three kids like these I can't stop to answer any questions," she said as she barged by. "If I take my eyes off of them for more than 15 seconds I'll have to buy half the store for everything they open or break."

I told her I understood her predicament, but if it was alright, maybe I'd follow her around the store-you know, ask the questions while she shopped and kept an eye on her tribe. "Sure," she said, "you can even push the

"The first question is: Do you think meat

"Of course its yes. I get the sensation of being mugged every time I get within 15 feet of the meat counter," she replied.

"It's those damned cowboys," she snapped. "With all those cows, they have to be making a fortune. I mean what does it take to let a bunch of Lincoln County political candidates this week were trooping back to the county clerk's office for a second time-this time to pay a filing fee which wasn't required when they filed for office two weeks ago.

County clerk Alice King said Tuesday that each of the county's candidates were being. notified by registered mail that they must pay the filing fee before 5 p.m. Friday to remain on the Primary Election ballot.

Mrs. King was acting on a directive received Tuesday morning from Secretary of State Betty Fiorina that said she must notify all candidates to pay the required fee before Friday evening. This action followed a court ruling in Santa Fe Monday that, in effect, reinstated the requirement that candidates for public office must pay a filing fee. Mrs. King said that as of 3 p.m. Tuesday, 11 of the 28 candidates in Lincoln County had already paid the required fee. -These included county commission district one candidates Democrat Walter L. Jones (the only candidate that submitted a fee on filing day April 4) and Democrat Roman Chavez Nunez; commission district two candidates Democrat S. M. "Sally" Ortiz and Republican Leroy B. Acker; commission district three Democrats W. A. Hart and Tom W. Jones Jr.; sheriff-candidate-Democrat Haskell Lee Graham; probate judge candidate Democrat Austin Wooten; clerk candidate Republican Barbara Lovelace; assessor candidate Republican Julia Samora; and incumbent treasurer Republican Mabel

The filing fees for Lincoln County are: for commissioner $180, for probate judge $115.20, for sheriff $460.80, and for clerk, treasurer and assessor $439.20.

Though the filing fee issue still may be unsettled, the county's problem of how to finance the primary election is at least temporarily

When the ruling came down from attorney general David Norvell that no fees would be required, the county found itself more than $2,000 short in its budget for the election.

However, now that candidates are required to submit the fee, the county's budget is back on

But, the attorney general announced Monday afternoon that he would appeal the Santa Fe court's ruling to the U.S. Supreme Court. The outcome of that appeal is not known and it is not even known when the nation's highest court will take action on the matter--if it does at all.

Board asks end to quarantine

The New Mexico Livestock Board has recommended that federal officials lift scabies mite quarantines from three New Mexico counties, and lift it from a fourth by the end of the month, the Associated Press reported.

State quarantines affecting the same counties and portions of other counties will be lifted, said. - Fred H. Owensby, assistant director of the -board. The state quarantine was placed at the first of the year in Districts 15 and 19, including Torrance, DeBaca, Harding and parts of Lincoln, Colfax, Union, Mora and Quay counties. Federal quarantines were placed at the end of January on Harding, Lincoln, Guadalupe and Torrance counties.

The board recommended lifting the quarantine in all of those except Torrance. Owensby said "We still have two problem herds" in that county. But they should be completed in about two weeks, he said.

At Carrizozo High School

Students don't consider race important

The racial mixture at Carrizozo High School has no important effect on the "self-concept or self-image" of students in the school, according to a recently completed study by a University of New Mexico professor.

The research showed that Anglo students look upon themselves and their fellow students of the Chicano race as much the same Chicano students look upon themselves and their fellow students of the Anglo race.

Dr. James C. Cooper, professor of educational foundations at UNM, who conducted the research here, concluded that "it seems far more likely that differences in self-concept develop according to community, school, or other sets of values, rather than group mixture." He reported that minority group students he tested did not have the inferior self-concepts often attributed to them.

Cooper's paper on the ethnic groups showed that of the 418 total students in Carrizozo, 62 percent are of the Chicano group, while 38 percent are Anglos.

The study conducted in Carrizozo was the same as was conducted at 13 other small schools around New Mexico. Itincluded such schools as Mora, where the student population is 100 percent Chicano; Tularosa, where the students are about one-third Anglo, Chicano and Indian; Shiprock, where the students are 90 percent Indian; and Truth or Consequences, where the student population is two-third Anglo.

Analyzing results of self-concept tests given the students of the three ethnic groups, Cooper said he found that self-concepts of Anglos, Indians and Chicanos varied little whether the group was the majority or minority of the school population, or whether the school was mixed well enough that no ethnic group constituted a majority. For the study, Cooper defined self-concept as "the pupil's perception of himself and his own ethnic group, perception of the educational system, and preception of the social milieu." "The data fails to support the contention that ethnic group mixture is a significant determinant of self-concept. That is, significant differences failed to emerge despite one's status as member of a minority, majority or mixed group," Cooper said.

The study apparently sheds some light on ethnic attitudes held by members of all three racial groups, which are prominent in southern New Mexico.

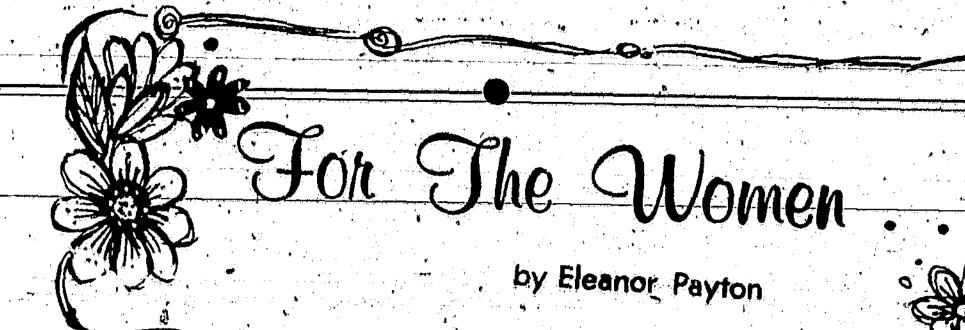

It would seem from Cooper's studies, that members of the different ethnic groups, at least at the high school level, look upon themsleves and their particular racial group, as equals to members of other racial groups.

Cooper's data would seem to indicate that if this attitude is altered, it comes later in life-at least beyond the high school

The data in the study shows that high school students here, regardless of their race, think about the same of members of their own race as they do members of another race. The study also included such things as attitude toward teachers; grading systems, opportunities to make friends, community acceptance and social activities. With only very small variations, the ratings given these were vitually identical, regardless of whether the student was Chicano, Indian or Anglo. *

try harder."

Embarrassment is one word that can be used to describe the candidate filing fee situation in Lincoln County, as well as everywhere else in New Mexico.

First, the state has become something of a laughing stock around the west. Folks in other states are reading the latest developments in the continuing saga with practically as much interest as residents of the Land of Enchantment.

The only difference of course, is that the latest developments, whatever they are, don't have any effect on out-of-staters. So, they can just read it and laugh. Here in New Mexico, we have to read it and weep.

The second source of embarrassment may come for some of the local candidates late Eriday afternoon. There will, no doubt, be some-if not here in Lincoln County, surely in dozens of other counties around the state-who simply won't be able to come up with the filing fee, which in this county ranges from $115.20 for the probate judge race to $453.60 for the sheriff candidates. County clerk-Alice King-reported-late Tuesday that 11 of the 28 candidates here had submitted filing fees. The other 17 have until Friday at 5 p.m. to stay in the race. The culprit in the whole mess may or may not be the attorney general, David Norvell, who is also one of the nearly 30 Democratic candidates for the U.S. Senate. But one thing is certain, his senate candidacy surely hasn't been bolstered in the past week or so.

An-editorial-in-the-other newspaper in this which includes Otero County, senator Aubrey county, The Ruidoso News, last week advocated that county officials be elected on staggered

The gist of the editorial is made evident in the. fact that of the eight current office-holders in the courthouse, only one is eligible to run for re-election. The newspaper said county officials should be elected in such a fashion that the current set of circumstances couldn't come up again-that nearly a brand-new slate, will be seated in the county-seat-next-January.

The editorial suggestion surely has some

W. A. "Bill" Hart

W. A. "Bill" Hart, a Democratic candidate for county commissioner in district three, has been a Ruidoso resident since 1936. He managed and developed the Ruidoso Power and Light Company until it sold in 1945. He also installed and developed the Ruidoso water system until it was sold to the city.

Hart explained his candidacy this way: "Be conservative enough to eliminate: the unnecessary, but be liberal enough to adopt new ideas and wise enough to know the difference." He has been a member of various civic and county committees, including the school budget committee, school board and development committees.

He said he is genuinely interested in public service and charitible institutions, such as the Southwestern Children's Home, on which board he has served for 30 years.

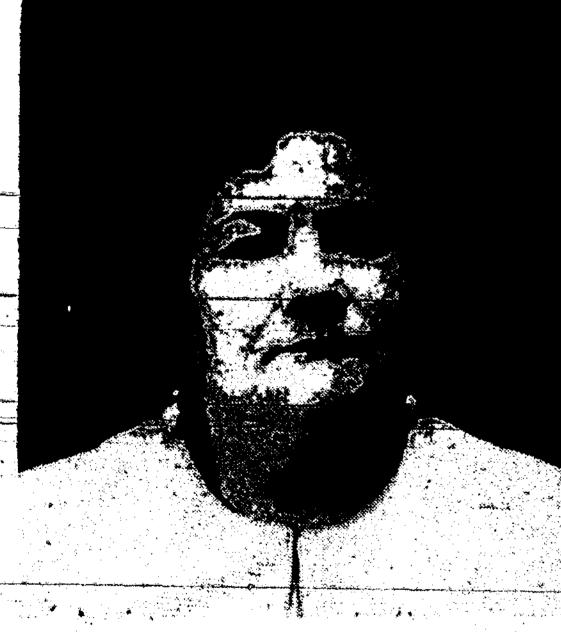

Conception A. "Choncho" Morales

Carrizozo's police chief, Conception A. "Choncho" Morales, is a Democratic candidate for Lincoln County sheriff.

Morales, 41, is a life-long resident of the county and has been chief of police here for 13 years. He is also a member of the New Mexico Sheriff and Police Association.

The Korean War veteran is also a member of St. Rila Catholic Church. He and his wife have seven children.

Morales said he believes he has served the Village of Carrizozo "conscientiously, impartially and courtesously" and would like the opportunity to "serve the people of Lincoln County in the same way."

Julia Samora

Lincoln County native Julia Samora is a candidate to the head the courthouse office in which she's worked for the past 10 years-that of the county assessor.

She is the only Republican candidate seeking to post, though two Democrats have also filed. Mrs. Samora has been chief deputy assessor for the past four years and prior to that was special deputy assessor for six years.

In the 10 years she's been in the courthouse, Mrs. Samora said she has received on-the-job training in operation of the addressograph printer, grafotype and computor.

She is a 1953 graduate of Carrizozo High School and she and her husband, Rito, have six children.

King pushes U. S. Hwy. 70 for interstate Governor Bruce King has made the state's seventh formal request to have the U.S. Department of Transportation include U. S. Hwy. 70, which passes through New Mexico's · southland, to the interstate system.

.- King, in a letter dated April 4, to Secretary of Transportation John Volpe, said he felt addition of W. S. Hwy. 70 to the interstate system was regently needed for the state's economy.

"The purpose of this letter is to lend my personal endorsement to the proposal," King said. "As governor of New Mexico, I would feel remiss in my responsibilities to the state and its citizens if I did not bring this long-pending matter to your personal attention."

U.S. Hwy. 70 passes through Lincoln and Otero Counties before joinging 1-10 at Las Cruces.

Village now operating ambulance

The Village of Carrizozo-fire department is now operating the ambulance service.

The service was taken over from Chapel of Roses Mortuary April 1.

The new phone number for ambulance service in Carrizozo is 648-2261, which is the same number as the first department. And, should that number be busy, residents may call the sheriff's office at 648-2342.

Fire chief Bud Payne said the ambulance was given without charge to the village by Chapel of Roses Mortuary, which had operated the service here for years. Mortuary owner Ray Clark had indicated the service was losing money and that it might be discontinued.

Payne said he currently is the principal driver of the ambulance, though eight other Zozo volunteer firemen have qualified through first aid courses as drivers. The signal for an ambulance driver now is two

Trash-a-thon: you can really tell the difference

4-H'ers ask motorist to stop littering. They are Rex Wilson, Phoebe Foster and patrolman Andy Benavidez.

Dozens of Lincoln County 4-H'ers and Cowbelles turned out Saturday to clean-up a 23-mile section of U. S. Hwy. 54-from Carrizozo north to Ancho. It was the first annual "trash-a-thon"--a project of the 4-H'ers and Cowbelles.

Before the day was through, hundreds and hundreds of pounds of bottles, cans, paper, hundreds of pounds of bottles, cans, paper, cardboard and practically anything else you can name was picked up from along-side the roadway, then carried off to the dump.

And while most of the clean-up crews were hard at work stooping and bending to pick up the litter, other 4-H'ers were manning a roadblock at which passing motorists were given literature urging them to "Keep America Clean." They were asked not to add to the litter problem.

Helping at the roadblock, like making it official, was New Mexico Highway Patrolman Andy Benavidez.

It was a cool and windy day Saturday, generally making the work unpleasant for the "trash-a-thon" participants, which came not only from Carrizozo, but also from Corona and several other rural areas of the county. One of the 4-H youths was even from Albuquerque.

When it was all over, one could drive north out of Carrizozo along U. S. Hwy. 54 and could actually see the difference. The trash and junk and other stuff, that motorists had carelessly discarded over the months was gone.

Too bad everywhere isn't like that.

Things are changing in the 'motherlode' at White Oaks

What happened to the once big mining industry that flourished in the White Oaks-Jicarillas area?

This is a question asked often these days by a long-time miner in the area, Charlie Haley, who lives out in Ancho Gulch.

- White Oaks was once among the largest and richest mining towns in New Mexico. And the Jicarilla gold placers were worked long before .White Oaks came to fame--as far back as the Spanish and Indian eras.

Haley siad "Due to the extra large area of rich gold placers in the Jicarillas, world reknown geologists have said that the Jicarillas are the "mother-lode" of New Mexico." They say it all hasn't-been found yet.

The old-time miner recalls that in the earlier days, when "a dollar was a dollar," as he calls them, many people who could not work in other industries made their living from the mines in the mountain area of northern Lincoln County using no equipment other than hand-made tools.

Haley recalls coming to the southland of New Mexico as a young boy and watching it grow to the mining boom era of the 1930s. "There were about 10,000 people here by the summer of '32," he said, "and about 1,000 people stayed here through the winter."

However, not many of those associated with the boom era of Lincoln County are still here, Haley said. "Only a few of us really know what mining was all about."

"It took me two years to learn to make more than a living and then I did real good," he recalled this week, "except that I ran off and spent everything I made from the Jicarillas." Haley said the biggest part of the mining industry closed down with the start of WWII. "I went off to defend my country," Haley said--

Commendation medal to Capt. Omer Gibson

The Navy Commendation Medal with Combat-V has been awarded to Capt. Omer L. Gibson, U. S. Marine Corps, attached to Training Squadron 19 at the Meridian Naval Air Station.

The presentation was by Cmdr. W. K. Peery, commanding officer of Vt-19.

The medal was awarded to Capt. Gibson by the Secretary of the Navy for meritorious service while serving with the first Marine Attack Squadron Two, Marine Aircraft Group 11, in Southeast Asia.

"By demonstrating exceptional leadership and resourcefulness in supervising crews in constructing offices for every work section, and installing air conditioning facilities and other complex electronic equipment. Capt. Gibson consistently distinguished himself by his technical skill and superb leadership accomplishing all assigned tasks with characteristic expertise," the citation reads.

"Temporarily assigned on 20 September 1970 to the First Air and Naval Gunfire Liaison Company as air liaison officer to the Second Battalion. Second Republic of Korea Marine Brigade, he participated in numerous combat operations and repeatedly distinguished himself by his courage and professionalism in difficult situations."

Capt. Gibson, from Portales, N. Mex., is-theson of Mr. and Mrs. Willard O. Gibson of Taiban, N. Mex. He is married to the former Linda Stearns of Carrizozo.

Hospital meeting at Clovis

The Board of Directors of the Department of Hospitals and Institutions will hold its April 24 meeting at the Community Mental Retardation Services Center in Clovis.

indicating that most of the miners did likewise. Haley said he returned to this county in 1952, purchasing "a place" at Capitan. The children needed a place to go to school, he explained.

But, he added, he wanted to near the Jicarillas--the imposing range of mountains that make-up the skyline for motorists gazing toward the east as they drive north out of Carrizozo'along U.S. Hwy. 54.

"The largest part of living has come from the Jicarillas and the largest part of my life and all my savings are invested in those mountains," Haley said.

Haley, however, doesn't go at his mining work quite so hard these days. "Now, since I was in the hospital a spell and had to undergo surgery, I'm unable to work at heavy construction," he explained. "And, maybe, I'm just getting too

His_only_steady_income_these_days_is_his_ monthly social security check. "$68,70 a month isn't much-in fact, it's practically nothing," Haley said.

"I could make $20 to $30 a day right in front of my cabin when I was healthy," Haley said. "It helped with expenses."

Prior to going into the hospital last year, Haley leased some of his property. This, too, is supplemental incomé.

· But his biggest--and only--complaint now is against the U.S. Forest Service.

"After all these years, the Forest Service now comes up and says we're trespassing on the U.S. forest," he said. "They say the government. doesn't have the land to 'give away' any longer." Defending his position, Haley said "I have had this property for years under legal filings. My assessment filings have been according to the

"And now the forest ranger comes up and makes it practically impossible for me to set foot on my mining claim without being in danger of being hauled into court and fined as it now being done to others who also hold mining claims in the Jicarillas."

Much of the mountain range is part of the Lincoln National Forest.

"I could see stopping the filing of claims," the miner_said, "but_taking_away_something_on_ which I've spent the better part of my life and all my life's savings-it just isn't right."

He posed the question "Under these conditions, who would lease the property when we're about to be put off--as some have already been told to do?"

"Conrad Gosch had to take down his minttipple and hoist and fill up the mineshafts and now I see where the doors and windows are out of his house. Apparently the forest service wants all traces of existance eliminated," Haley said. · "I've tried to make a living as a miner in this country," Haley said, "but the way things are going, I'm to be cut off with nothing but the social security-which won't even pay the rent.".

The old-timer said he believes the forest service is acting under a federal government directive that hasn't, in fact, yet become law.

There is federal legislation pending in congress that proposes sweeping changes in the nation's mining law that was adopted 100 years

With prices what they are today, trying to save is rough! We understand.

After all, most of us are in the same boat. We're trying to raise families and make budgets stretch—just like you. We know how hard it is to come up with an. extra ten or twenty dollars a month for savings. But we also know how very important it is.

And we just can't tell you often enough save! Save! For vacations. College educations. Retirement income. A new home.

And less pleasant, but equally important things like large hospital expenses—or the time you might lose your job.

Stop by Citizens, and talk to Johnson Stearns. He'll be delighted to tell you about the different types of savings plans we offer for all kinds of budgets. Johnson's expert at helping you decide which is right for you. You'll see, He understands.

Personal view

efforts. By L.C.

Driving along U.S. Highway 54 between Carrizozo and Corona last Saturday, I noticed several groups of "litter-pickers" along the roadside. I was enlightened about the whole project when stopped at a State Police roadblock where a member of Canyon Cowbelles handed me several litter bags. It seems the organization's members voluntarily decided to give up their free time in order to improve a disgusting situation caused only by the lack of concern and laziness of others. It is sad that a work project such as this needs to be undertaken, but the organization is to be commended for its

Corona chorus wins first at Talent Night

Corona High School chorus won first place in its division at the Talent Night last Friday while Laban Tubbs and "The Dingaling Sisters" took top honors in each of their divisions.

"Radio Uncertainty;" a comedy skit, was presented by Sloquira 4-H members; and the senior band performed musical selections which. tied the two groups for second place behind the chorus in division three. Vicky Stratton played piano solos "Tarentella" and "House of the Ruidoso Downs. Rising Sun" to place third.

Cully and Scott Nalda and Walter Gensler were delightful as "The Dingaling Sisters" to win first in devision two. Another musical comedy, "Dirty Nitty Gritty Band" by Janetta Foster, Lon Holleyman, Walter Ginsler, Rene Nalda, Teri Clouse, Cynthia Nalda, Scott Nalda, and Cully Nalda placed second. The fifth grade did "Hoe Down," a dance, to win third. Others competing in this division were the Junior Band playing "Tenderfoot," Bessie Lueras with a piano solo, the "The Cookie Crumbs" (Lara Stewart, Teri Clouse, Cynthia Nalda, and Bessie Lueras) who did tumbling.

Laban Tubbs performed a guitar solo to win first in division one. The second and third grade choral group tied for second place with Rene Nalda and Stacy Burke who performed a musical comedy, "Shortnin' Bread." Group singing by the fourth grade won third. A play, "The Laughing Cat" by the Kindergarten class, a song, "Who Killed Cock Robin?" by the first grade, and "Puff the Magic Dragon" by Scott and Steve Mulkey were also entries in this division.

UNM medical program

The University of New Mexico is recruiting about 20 students to be trained in a two-year Medical Engineering Technology (MET) program. The program will begin in the fall semester. Students completing it will be qualified to work as health professionals in hospitals and other clinical areas with responsibilities which include maintaining, repairing and calibrating electronic equipment used in the care of patients.

High wind scatters debris

The very high winds of last week scattered the debris over town. Takes constant cleaning everywhere to get it all in order. Still no moisture, just murky skies with light winds and dryness. We just keep hoping for that needed moisture. The ice has been very heavy at night. Some days warm. All seems to be in doubt that it is spring.

Gallegos named to two All-America grid teams

Carrizozo's prep grind standout Willie Gallegos has been named to two All-America football teams.

It is the first time ever a football player from Lincoln County has been so honored.

Gallegos, who last season was the leading . scorer in the state, last week was named to the 1971-72 High School All-America Football team as selected by Scouting Systems of America in Boston, Mass.

And, he was one of 10 gridders from New Mexico selected to the 1971 All-American High School Football Squad as selected by Scholastic Coach magazine.

Carrizozo High School football coach Roger St Louis said this week that Gallegos has been contacted by seven colleges and universities with scholarship offers.

-They-include-four-schools-here-in-New-Mexico,as well as a college in Montana, one in North Dakota and one in New Hampshire.

But, Gallegos isn't the only Grizzly player at which college scouts are taking a look. St. Louis -said-scholarship-"feelers" have come to standout-linebacker Rusty Leslie as well as fullback Jim Speight.

Both Leslie and Speight were all-state selections in class "A". They have received attention from two colleges here in New Mexico.

Gallegos, in addition to leading all prep gridders in the state in scoring, was named 'player of the year" in class "A". And, he is the first "A" division gridder in nearly 10 years to be selected to play in the north-south all-star game in August.

Gallegos, now a senior, starred on three consecutive state champion teams at C.H.S. At five-feet-nine and 165 pounds, Gallegos was the smallest player named to the All-American team in New Mexico by the Scholastic Coach magazine. Of the 10 players from this state, seven were from "AAAA" schools, while the other two were from 'AAA" schools. There were no "AA" selections and Gallegos was the only "A" choice.

Two of the New Mexicans, linebacker Jim Kemp of Hobbs and runningback Ray Barrs of Albuquerque West Mesa, were selected to the magazine's first squad. The others, including Gallegos, were listed as "honorable mention."

Selection on the Scouting Systems team means Gallegos will join dozens of other All-American -selections-for-listing-in-the-agency's-annualpublication "Football Annals 1972"--which is circulated to college and university coaches throughout the nation.

Card of Thanks

We would like to express our deepest gratitude to each and everyone for your loving expressions of sympathy and sorrow for the loss of our beloved son and brother, Harold William Leach. Your beautiful cards and messages of sympathy, your very kind gifts and donations of food, money and flowers, your visits and help in our home, and your presence at the Rosary and Funeral Mass for Harold, are gratefully acknowledged and very deeply appreciated. You each helped so much by sharing our burden, by giving us hope in our darkest hours of sadness, and by showing us your love when it was needed the most. May God bless each and everyone of you and especially reward you for the kindness you have shown us at this time.

Trackmen in Rose Relays Saturday

Surprise second at Tatum.

Lincoln County News, April 20, 1972, Page 8

Following a surprising second place finish at the big Tatum relays last weekend, Carrizozo High School's track team is entered Saturday in the Rose Festival Relays at Tularosa.

The Tularosa meet, with schools entered in two seperate divisions, possibily will be the stiffest competition of the year for the fast-improving Grizzlies. Cinder mentor Roger St. Louis' said he will take the entire team, 15 members strong, to Tularosa Saturday, Preliminary events begin in the morning, with most of the finals scheduled for the afternoon card. The Grizzlies, with only one first place in the individual events, ran to a surprising second place in the team scoring at the Coyote Relays at Tatum last Saturday.

The Lincoln Countians snatched second place in the meet by scoring a third in the final event of the day-the mile relay. Jal easily won the meet with more than 100 points. Carrizozo finished with 43, outdueling Fort Sumner, which had 42 points. Some 16 prep cinder teams made up the field of the largest meet so far this year for the Grizzlies. Koen Hoff scored Zozo's only win, taking the two-mile run with a clocking of 11:19.6 minutes.

But it was scoring strength in practically every other event that gave the Grizzlies their strong-showing. In-addition-to-Hoff's-first-place points in the two-mile, the Grizzlies scored in 10 other events-including two seconds, three thirds, four fourths and three fifths. The pair of seconds came from two relay quartets. The 880-yard team of Matt Ellison, David Roper, Willie Gallegos and Rusty Leslie, turned in their fastest clocking of the year but still ran more than two seconds behind Jal's crack foursome. In the mile medley event, the C.H.S. quartet of Gabe Chavez, Roper, Frankie Martinez and K. Hoff ran two-and-a-half seconds behind Tatum's winning team. The medley was run in two heats, with the Grizzlies winning the second heat. However, Tatum's winning time was set in the first heat, St. Louis explained.

But it was the mile relay team that actually pushed the Grizzlies into second place in the team scoring.

Carrizozo trailed Fort Sumner going into the final event of the day. But, the quartet of Ellison, David Lee, Gallegos, and Leslie finished third in the four-lap race-winning enough points to push the Grizzlies past Fort Sumner, which didn't score in the event. Other point-makers for the Zozo Team: the baton team of Ellison, Roper, Leslie and Gallegos were fourth in the quarter-mile relay Chavez was third in the 440-yard dash with clocking of 56.7 seconds; Lee was third and Andre Hoff was fourth in the 880-yard run Ellison was fourth in the 180-yard low hurdles Martinez was fifth in the 120-yard high-hurdles Andre Hoff was fourth in the mile run. Leslin was fifth in the broad jump and fifth in the discus. Probably the outstanding record of the relay was set in the discus by Cloudcroft's Budd Briscoe. The Bears' strongman tossed th platter 170 feet-which is the best distance in th event of any prep athlete in the state in al classes. Following the Tularosa meet this weekend, the Grizzlies will compete in the Dexter relays April 28 and the district meet in Artesia May 6. The qualifiers at the district event will compete in the state championships in Albuquerque May 13.

Progress is when everyone pushes in the same direction.

Lend a hand! Do more than your share.
