What do YOU think?

By GWYNETH JONES

This week, The Village Press's peregrinating photographer asked:

"In view of the number of assassinations and assassination attempts over the past few years, would you favor stricter gun control or gun registration?"

JULIA MICHAUD:

"No. Whenever you have gun control the honest people will go along with it, but the dishonest people will still be in control of the weapons."

MRS. GEORGE PERRY:

"No. Should we get rid of airplanes because they get hijacked?"

MRS. TERRY ZIMMERMAN:

"Yes, I would!"

CARMEN SANCHEZ:

"Gun control - definitely."

BOB LYNN:

"I don't think gun control or registration cures anything. It wouldn't solve a thing."

FRANK MONTOYA:

"Gun control would be better than registration."

Mrs. Apgar tops in sub contest

The Lincoln County NEWS $1,200 subscription contest is off to a flying start, with Mrs. Thelma Apgar leading the scramble for points over her nearest rival, Mrs. Margaret Rench of Capitan, who holds a close second place according to Larry B. Hempel, campaign manager.

Holding third place in the initial standings is Mrs. Fred Current of Carrizozo. Mrs. Dorothy Silva, Alamogordo contestant, holds fourth place, with Mrs. Agnes Hein, Carrizozo, holding fifth spot. Mrs. Archie Perkins, of Corona, holds sixth place.

All contestants have been working hard to earn their respective standings. Another tally of points will be made in next week's issue of THE NEWS.

Subscribers, if they wish, can leave their subscription payments at The Lincoln County NEWS office and give credit to a contestant of their choice, if they so desire.

"Each contestant depends upon the readers for support as much as the reader depends upon the friendly visit of The Lincoln County NEWS," Hempel said.

"Get in touch with one of the enrolled workers, or stop in The NEWS office and the person specified will be given credit for the subscription payment," he added.

As stated in the contest advertisement in last week's issue, contestants receive an additional point scoring for sale through Monday night, June 12, of new and renewal subscriptions gained through The NEWS.

Subscribers can make a substantial savings by subscribing from a contestant for the three-year period. Three years for only $12 in Lincoln County (No Sales Tax). Three years for $19 elsewhere. These special prices are only in effect during the contest, as announced previously.

Therefore subscribers can make even a greater savings by subscribing or renewing now and helping one of the enrolled contestants win one of the big prizes in cash — $500 cash first prize; $300 cash second prize; $150 third cash prize; $75 fourth prize, and $50 fifth prize.

Campaign Manager Hempel said today: "Everyone enrolled will earn something. There are no losers." Contestants earn a guaranteed 20 per cent commission on all sales even if they don't win one of the big cash prizes.

Contestants throughout Lincoln and Otero Counties have been reporting good acceptance to the month-long campaign.

Worms threaten state's stock

SANTA FE—The threat of screwworms invading all of New Mexico is greater now than at any time since the eradication program was started in 1962, according to animal health officials and extension specialists at New Mexico State University.

New Mexico has had three screwworm cases to date — in Hidalgo and Otero counties — and with the epidemic numbers of cases being reported in Texas and Mexico. Many more unreported screwworm cases may be occurring in the State.

Through May 15, 2,292 cases have been reported in the Southwest compared with 444 for all of last year. Every Texas county bordering the Rio Grande except El Paso has reported screwworms. In addition, 51 cases have been found in Arizona and one in California.

Sterile fly production has been stepped up to capacity levels, but not enough flies are being released to stop the spread, officials say. Fertile screwworms are breaking past the sterile fly barrier almost daily.

"Except for the very dry conditions in New Mexico this spring, screwworm cases could be considerably higher," said Dr. J. H. Hopson, state veterinarian. "We are particularly concerned about the low rate of worm samples being sent in by livestock producers in areas that haven't had screwworms in many years. Many owners are now out of the habit of inspecting their livestock, but we need hundreds of worm samples from those areas in order to tell where the cases are."

"With much of Texas and Arizona infested with screwworms and regular livestock movements going to and through New Mexico, livestock producers should carefully inspect all livestock received from Texas and other infested areas," Dr. Hopson warned. "Livestock owners must carefully inspect their livestock before they ship and spray them as a preventive measure."

The plan for protecting New Mexico livestock from screwworms is as follows:

Release of sterile flies alone will not stop the large numbers of screwworms moving north from Mexico and west from Texas. Livestockmen must carry out all approved preventive practices to contain and eliminate screwworms.

Livestockman must protect their animal by starting a long abandoned practice, inspecting primary. Wallace had been reckoned a third-place winner by most political observers. Wallace did not personally campaign in New Mexico, although his son, George, Jr., and his national campaign manager, Charles Snider, made brief, last-minute appearances.

SURPRISE FINISHER — Alabama Governor George Wallace, shown here in a Village Press exclusive photo, upset New Mexico's political seers Tuesday night when he finished a strong second in the state's presidential preference

Lincoln County prefers Wallace

One fact emerged from Tuesday night's voting in Lincoln County: the county's Democratic voters would prefer that Alabama Governor George Wallace face Richard Nixon in November for the Presidency.

Wallace was preferred over Senators George McGovern and Hubert Humphrey by a wide margin. The Dixie governor, who made no personal appearances in the state, polled 496 votes in Lincoln County to 243 for McGovern and 191 for Humphrey.

On the GOP side of the presidential preferential balloting, President Nixon got 659 votes to 55 for challenger Congressman Paul McCloskey.

Senator Henry M. Jackson picked up 33 Senator Muskie got 50, Congresswoman Shirley Chisholm won 17 and 25 voters had no preference.

The following are the nominees, by party, so far as Lincoln County returns are reflected: Democratic nominees, Lincoln County:

State Representative, District 50 — Paul Davis over Lalo Padilla.

State Representative, District 51 — John Mershon, unopposed.

State Representative, District 52 — Page Carter, unopposed.

We're still dry, despite new rain

Despite recent scattered rains, the Carrizozo area is still in dry shape. The US Department of Agriculture's Statistical Reporting Service at Las Cruces, as of last weekend, said the area has had but 1.69 inches of rain since the first day of 1972.

"Normal" precipitation for the period is 3.84 inches for the Jan. 1-May 31 period.

Here is the reporting services roundup of weather and related farm and ranch conditions:

"Soil moisture conditions are generally short in most areas of the State. Some relief from the drought has occurred in isolated areas but overall the state is still very dry. Combining of wheat started late in the week on an occasional early field on the east side. Dryland wheat is in poor condition. Irrigated wheat is in good condition, but insects have caused some problems. Most of the irrigated sorghum grain is up to stand and in good condition. Dryland sorghum is in fair to good condition in areas where sufficient soil moisture is present. Harvesting of barley is currently underway in southern areas. Cool night have hampered growth of cotton. Cotton that had to be replanted is up and in fair to good condition. The second cut of alfalfa is nearing completion in the southern areas. Hay in northern areas is a little light so far due to lack of irrigation water. Cutting of lettuce continues active in the Hatch areas. Shipping of onions got underway last week in the Mesilla Valley. Ranges are still in poor condition generally. Heavy supplemental feeding continues. Working of calves is still active.

"Ranges are beginning to green up in areas where rains were received. Generally, ranges are in poor condition and very dry, especially in the southwest corner of the state. Supplemental feeding of livestock and hauling of water continues active. Livestock are holding up fairly well considering conditions. The calf crop is reported to be later than usual in most areas.

"Showers most frequent early in week and scattered over weekend mainly in northwestern half of state. Total mostly 1/2 to 1" in northern mountains and locally in south. Temperatures are below normal in Central and Southern sections and slightly above normal in the North. Warming with warmest days Friday and Saturday."

Funds available for handicapped

SANTA FE -- More than $200,000 in federal funds are available for services to New Mexicans with substantial disabilities due to cerebral palsy, epilepsy or mental retardation.

New Mexico's Developmental Disabilities Planning and Advisory Council is actively soliciting applications for these funds according to Ruth Bauer, Developmental Disabilities Planning Director.

The Division of Vocational Rehabilitation is the agency charged with the duty of administering the Developmental Disabilities program in New Mexico.

Public and non-profit agencies and organizations may apply for the funds, which are, for the most part, 90 per cent federal funds, with the local organization required to raise 10 per cent of the total.

Applications for the funds must be made prior to June 15, 1972 and the funds must be used to fill gaps in present programs of services and cannot be used to replace existing programs. The funds must be used prior to June 30, 1973.

The funds may be put to the following uses: diagnosis, evaluation, treatment, personal care, daycare, domiciliary care, special living arrangements, training, education, sheltered employment, recreating, counseling, socio-legal help, information and referral, transportation, and other services.

Interested organizations or agencies may make application for funds by writing to: Miss Ruth Bauer, Development Disabilities Planning Director, The Division of Vocational Rehabilitation, P. O. Box 1830, Santa Fe, N. M. 87501 (Telephone 827-2266).

Income food guidelines set

SANTA FE -- Mrs. Gretchen Plagge, director of the school food service unit of the State Dept. of Education (SDE), announced this week that the U. S. of Agriculture (USDA) has established income poverty guidelines for free or reduced price lunches and breakfasts to be effective during the 1972-73 school year.

The new guidelines become effective July 1, Mrs. Plagge said, allowing schools "as much lead time as possible for planning and budgeting before the new school year opens."

"Early announcement of the guidelines also will allow the schools to amply advertise eligibility guidelines in their communities so parents whose children will qualify may benefit from free and reduced price lunches from the beginning of school next fall. This will give the schools time, as well, to publicize the criteria they will be using for free and reduced price lunches," Mrs. Plagge added.

Use of the guidelines is mandatory for all schools under the National School Program or the School Breakfast Program. Other schools receiving federally donated foods also must comply with the guidelines, she stressed.

The new guidelines as established for the 1972-73 school year are as follows: For a family of one, $2,130 annual income; family of two, $2,790; family of three, $3,450; family of four, $4,110; family of five, $4,720; family of six, $5,330; family of seven, $5,880; family of eight, $6,430; family of nine, $6,930; family of ten, $7,430; family of eleven, $7,930; and family of twelve, $8,430. For each additional family member thereafter, an additional $500 in annual income is allowed under the guidelines.

Mrs. Plagge noted that the guidelines reflect an increase over those established for the 1971-72 school year.

"For instance," she said, "last year the income eligibility minimum for a family of four was $3,940. The new guideline for a family of four is $4,110."

She said the new guidelines are based on poverty levels from the Bureau of Census which have taken into consideration changes in the Consumer-Price-Index.

History Recalled

Fort Stanton: from this root sprang Lincoln

In January of 1855, a young army Captain and a troop of cavalry started out on patrol from Fort Fillmore near the present city of Las Cruces. Though the soldiers didn't know it at the time, for many the final destination would be Water Cress Springs on the Rio Penasco, a small stream running through the Sierra Blanca Mountains in what was then Arizona Territory. Their slow march took them through the heart of the Mescalero Apache stronghold. For some it was to be their last journey.

Commanding the troop was Captain Henry Whiting Stanton, a handsome young officer of the First U. S. Dragoons who recently had brought a bride to the wilderness from the east. Near the springs the men were ambushed by a band of Apaches in a narrow pass. Captain Stanton sent most of his command down the canyon to safety, but he chose to fight and die. Of those slaughtered, only the young captain's body was left un mutilated -- a sign of respect for his bravery.

When a patrol from Fort Fillmore found the bodies, they buried them hastily in shallow graves and took off in search of the Indians. On their return they found that wild animals had dug up the graves and taken their toll on Stanton's body. After burning the remaining flesh, the soldiers carried the bones back to Fort Fillmore for burial.

This episode, like so many repeated endlessly in the Old West, was unique in that it prompted a decision which was to determine an entire century of history for present-day south central New Mexico and Lincoln County.

That decision was to build an army outpost in the heart of Mescalero Apache territory to protect settlers from the marauding Indians. The recommendation was made by General John Garland, military commander of New Mexico, shortly after the death of his friend, Captain Stanton. The site he picked for the outpost was within a few miles of the place where Stanton's cavalry troop was ambushed.

The name, Fort Stanton, was given to the outpost as a temporary measure until the War Department decided on a permanent one. But the officials in Washington thought the tribute to the captain was suitable, and it was never changed.

The first encampment at the present site of Fort Stanton was established in May, 1855, four months after the death of its namesake. The fort was completed by July, and two years later the area was marked off by boundaries as a military reserve of 140 square miles.

From its beginning, Fort Stanton was the root from which sprang Lincoln County and all the historical events which have made it famous. It was the security offered by the military post which made it possible for pioneers to settle and remain during a period of danger from raiding Indians and murdering outlaws.

When Indians attacked settlers and stole their stock, it was soldiers from Fort Stanton who pursued them. When outlaws robbed and killed, soldiers captured them and confined them in the post guardhouse.

The men of Fort Stanton built the first roads in the area and escorted caravans to nearby posts, thereby contributing to settlements elsewhere in the vast frontier.

The small settlement of Bonito sprang up just east of the fort in the early days and was destined to become the present-day community of Lincoln, long-time county seat for the area.

The troubles which later made Lincoln a household word in both East and West can be traced directly back to Fort Stanton.

Six years after its establishment, Fort Stanton was to become a key factor in the civil struggle which divided the North and South. Because of its strategic location midway between Fort Bliss at El Paso, and Fort Fillmore, south of Las Cruces, Fort Stanton became a prime target of the Confederate troops.

When Lieutenant Colonel B. S. Roberts, commander of Fort Stanton, heard of Confederate victories at Fort Fillmore, he ordered the post abandoned and burned. In August, 1861, just three months after the start of the Civil War, Texas Colonel John Baylor of the Confederate States of America took possession of Fort Stanton and declared himself the first governor of the Confederate Territory of Arizona. Within seven months, Albuquerque and Santa Fe also were under the Confederacy.

At this point the Union ordered Colonel James Carleton at Los Angeles to retake the territory. The pattern of Lincoln County history already had been drawn.

Carleton led 2,000 men into New Mexico, recaptured Santa Fe, and was appointed commander of the Department of New Mexico. Colonel Kit Carson, the famous frontier guide, joined Carleton and later was ordered to retake Fort Stanton.

In 1862, Carson and five companies of the New Mexico Volunteers took command of Fort Stanton. Carson was appointed post commandant and carried on a campaign against the Apaches and Navajos who had been allowed to pillage unchecked during the Confederate occupation.

Among the many troops of men who decided to settle in the Lincoln County area after they were mustered out of service at the end of the Civil War, two names stand out in history. Major Lawrence Murphy (1831-1874) served under Kit Carson in the reoccupation of Fort Stanton, and after his discharge became post trader. Emil Fritz (1819-1894) came to New Mexico with Carleton's California Column and was stationed at Fort Stanton. After his discharge he went into partnership with Murphy.

These two men, brought together by the circumstances surrounding Fort Stanton, were to become the key figures in the area's second great conflict -- the Lincoln County War.

Murphy's position as post trader had made it possible for him to gain control over the Indian tribes, and on several occasions, to oppose the duly-appointed Indian Agent. This situation got him into a squabble with the post commander, and he was ordered to cease his business as trader and leave the post.

It was several months later, in September, 1873, that Murphy was finally forced off of Fort Stanton -- but not before he collected from the U. S. government $8,000 for the small piece of private land he owned on the reservation.

Later in the fall, work began on the "Big House," which would allow Murphy and Fritz to control the economy of Fort Stanton and the Lincoln settlement, and would eventually be the center of activity for one side of the bloody war.

At his Lincoln store, Murphy was able to maintain a monopoly on prices to farmers, and subsequently on the cost of goods sold to the fort.

Murphy and Fritz remained dominant until mid-1877, when an ambitious man of 25 from a noted English mercantile family came to Lincoln County. John Tunstall's involvement in the power struggle of Lincoln County was the spark needed to set off the first bloodshed.

In letters to his father in April, 1877, Tunstall outlined plans to corner the corn and hay market in the county, and to get the tradership at Fort Stanton. He wrote:

"If I could but get that position I could make a great deal of money every year as I should so entirely control the county that I could make the prices of everything just to suit myself." His remarks give a hint of the importance of the fort to the economy of the area.

Although the causes of the Lincoln County War were numerous and involved a dispute over Fritz's will, a feud between the cattle baron John Chisum and some small ranchers over water and stock, and legal manipulations concerning an embezzlement charge -- the underlying current of hostility involved economics. And to the people and powers of Lincoln County, Fort Stanton was synonymous with money.

During the height of the war, which raged during most of 1878, Lieutenant Colonel Nathan Augustus Monroe Dudley assumed command of Fort Stanton and once again the affairs of the post became deeply enmeshed in the history of Lincoln County.

Dudley had been ordered to support the civil authorities in the warfare, but since one side was backed by Sheriff William Brady and the other by Deputy United States Marshal Robert Widenmann, Dudley asked for further instructions.

He was directed to aid Sheriff Brady, a Murphy man, and this involvement virtually decided the outcome of the struggle. But it also brought trouble to Dudley, who the following year was accused by the widow of one of the members of the Tunstall faction of being directly responsible for the death of her husband.

Dudley was subsequently tried by his superiors by later vindicated of the charges.

On October 20, 1878, Lawrence Murphy died a broken, debilitated man. Like so many of the others involved, he gained nothing but death from the strife and bloodshed of the Lincoln County War.

During the latter part of the 19th Century, Fort Stanton had more than its share of famous visitors. Billy the Kid was once a resident of the Fort Stanton guardhouse. General John Pershing was stationed at the post during his four years in New Mexico. Future generals of the Spanish-American War and World War I got their training at Fort Stanton. Governor Lew Wallace had once been stationed at Fort Stanton and later wrote part of his famous sage of Ben-Hur in the quiet atmosphere of the post.

In 1880 troops from the Fort joined in the famous pursuit for Victorio and Geronimo. After the surrender of the last great chief, Geronimo, Fort Stanton was considered no longer necessary. By 1893 there were only 15 men acting as custodians at the post, and in August, 1896, it was abandoned.

Three years later President McKinley set up Fort Stanton as a tuberculosis sanatorium by executive order, and a new era of history was begun. Fort Stanton became the first federal hospital exclusively for the treatment of tuberculosis. Once again the people and economy of Fort Stanton was to mold the life of the county.

Among the 10,000 seamen for tuberculosis at the Marine Hospital (the name was later changed to Public Health Service Hospital) from 1899 to 1953, when it was turned over to the state of New Mexico, a large number stayed on as employees of the facility and residents of Lincoln County.

Fort Stanton had its own dairy herd and farm operation, but not until 1916 or later did it produce enough for its own needs. From Captain merchants, Welch and Titsworth sold an average of $10,000 worth of supplies to the sanatorium each month.

The yearly cost of operating the facility was $100,000 around 1910, and the monthly payroll at that time was $3,100. By 1949 the payroll had risen to $28,000 a month, and Fort Stanton was offering out-patient care to 400 persons in the community each month.

By 1953, Fort Stanton had 140 employees, most of whom were originally from the Lincoln County area, or later settled there.

By 1953, new drugs and methods for the treatment of tuberculosis were developed and the Federal government determined that it no longer was feasible to keep Fort Stanton open. The seamen petitioned to keep the hospital open and New Mexico then took an interest in the facility as a state TB sanatorium.

The State Department of Public Welfare was given charge of the hospital in 1953, together with the 27,727 acres of land belonging to the Fort Stanton Reservation. Value of the buildings and land was estimated in excess of one million dollars.

At the time of the transfer, the state was also operating a sanatorium at Socorro. But in 1957, the Socorro facility was closed and responsibility for running Fort Stanton was transferred from Public Welfare to the newly created State Tuberculosis Hospital Board.

Dr. H. C. Jernigan took over the duties of medical director in July, 1957, with Colonel Lawrence Varner as superintendent.

By 1966 the population of tuberculosis patients

Lawn mowing warning issued

LAS CRUCES--As the lawn mowing season approaches, so does a season of potential personal injury. Many people do not realize the danger present in the use of lawn mowers--especially today's rotary blade type. A few simple safety precautions coupled with a little common sense may prevent damage to property or even save someone's life, says Douglas Bryant, horticulturist with the New Mexico State University Cooperative Extension Service.

"If you haven't already done so, now is an excellent time to check your lawn for pieces of wire, stones, pieces of wood or other objects--including bones left by your dog or someone else's," he points out. "Such objects can be hurled by a lawn mower. Running a lawn check now is easy because the grass is still short. Then, when the grass is ready to be cut, you'll be ready to go. Always be sure, however, to check your lawn before each mowing for objects that may have accumulated since your last mowing."

When was the last time you drove your car at 208 or 312 miles per hour? Do you know what the results would be if you were to hit a solid wall at those speeds? Those speeds are typical of the speed of the blade tip on a 20- and 30-inch rotary type lawn mower, respectively.

A stone or piece of wire picked up by the lawn mower blade could hit you, a pet, a car, or someone you love at those speeds. The results of being hit by a "missile" traveling at those speeds might be no explanation, Bryant says.

Be sure the blade on your lawn mower is sharp, light, and balanced, the specialist suggests. Balancing is as necessary on a lawn mower blade as on the front of a car--only more so because it travels much faster. Keeping the mower blade sharp will result in an easier mowing job, a better looking finished job, and it will do less harm to the grass. A dull blade shatters the tops of grass blades. This causes these grass blade tops to dry and the lawn develops a brownish appearance, Bryant explains.

"When checking the blade for tightness, be sure to remove the spark plug on gasoline engine driven mowers and remember to unplug electric mowers," he says. "Just turning the blade a little may be enough to start a gasoline engine. Unplugging an electric mower may avoid injury if someone should flip the switch. In either case, the difference could be the number of fingers remaining on your hand after checking the blade."

On gasoline-powered mowers, fill the gasoline tank before starting the engine--and always do this outside. Handling gasoline indoors may result in a large enough build-up of fumes to cause an explosion. If refueling is necessary, let the engine cool first. Even a drop of gasoline spilled on the muffler or any other hot part of the engine could start a fire and cause an explosion.

SCORPIO (October 23-November 21): Week ahead offers promise of tranquility, dear heart. Daydreams may drain you of some energy, but so what? Fantasy can be great fun, and a fancy dream, from time to time, leads to lids one over. You Scorpio, know this better than anyone. Right?

SAGITTARIUS (November 22-December 21): Willful, headstrong Sag, you do so want your own way. This trait could get you into uncomfortable position before end of third day. Watch it. ### Some Have Asked questions

Already some have asked it and in the next few weeks others will: why do newspapers conduct circulation campaigns?

This is especially true now that The News is in the midst of an area circulation campaign.

The answer can be had by asking other questions such as:

Why do insurance firms offer prizes to agents who write the most insurance in a period of time?

Why do manufacturing and wholesale concerns put traveling men on the road to call upon retailers?

Why are premiums used in the marketing of certain products?

All are used to build sales and increase volume and at the same time to bring reward both to the purchaser and the salesman.

They use the magic of personal salesmanship. Newspaper subscriptions, and this may come as a surprise to some often are sold much the same as a life insurance policy, stove, television set or even a special brand of coffee.

The advantage of having the home area newspaper coming into your home sometimes has to be pointed out in a convincing manner to the non-subscriber.

The newcomers in a community often do not become subscribers unless the newspaper is sold to them.

There are plenty of newcomers in The News circulation area these days.

And, so, as a progressive newspaper which is interested in expanded news coverage of all types of human experience, The News is conducting this current campaign.

It is using a great deal of its circulation income to both retain and increase its subscription list, and provide as nearly as perfect coverage as it can in all of the communities served by The News, advertisers and community services stand to gain.

Local people, through this campaign are provided an opportunity to utilize some of their spare time in a subscription solicitation which they find both pleasant and profitable.

The newspaper is conducting the campaign in the interest of the people who live in the entire News area and the surrounding territory.

Advertising merchants are entitled to the greatest coverage possible, and The News is endeavoring to give them better coverage than ever before.

Community projects and services, furthermore, need maximum reader coverage.

These are just a few of the "whys" of the campaign.

FED CATTLE MARKETINGS in the second half of 1972 will largely depend upon first half placements. With a larger feeder cattle supply, lower feed costs, and relatively high fed cattle prices, increased first half placements seem likely. First quarter placements in the 23 major feeding States were up 9 percent.

Love, care . . . careful planning

(The First In A Series)

Capitan is a pretty village situated between two mountain ranges . . . in the very heart of historic Lincoln County.

Capitan is unique.

Capitan offers, uniquely, the pleasures of rural living combined with the maintenance of small town friendliness and freedom.

We believe it is possible, by loving care and careful planning, to live with growth and progress . . . and at the same time keep those elements of Capitan living that make Capitan worth living in.

We plan a community -- BIG COUNTRY -- situated on the cool, wide-open mesa above the unique Village of Capitan with a panoramic view of the lovely mountains and the big sky of the Capitan country.

Every homesite is bigger than an acre . . . restricted purposely to prevent overcrowded, overuse of the lovely land.

We believe this kind of community -- planned in advance NOT TO SPOIL CAPITAN'S BEAUTY -- is the only way to bring the best of the advantages of growth and progress to BIG COUNTRY AND CAPITAN COUNTRY.

We know . . . we intend . . . that all future residents of Big Country will be good citizens of Capitan Country -- and will share, because they will care, about intelligently-planned growth of this land we share together.

LAS CRUCES -- New Mexico State University (NMSU) has awarded more than 750 degrees to students who completed degree requirements during the spring semester at the university. The graduates, recognized during the university's 79th commencement exercises, were among 1,607 who completed their degree work during the summer, fall or spring semesters at NMSU. One hundred and seventy-two of the spring graduates earned their degrees with honors, seven with high honors and seven with highest honors. To receive a degree with honors a student must have maintained a 3.2 grade average out of a possible 4.00, at least a 3.75 for high honors and a 3.9 for highest honors. The designation of meritorious graduate was given for a two-year degree to 17 students who maintained a 3.2 in the last 45 credit hours at NMSU.

New Mexico State University is a land grant college founded in 1888. It has an enrollment of more than 8,000 on the main campus in Las Cruces. An additional 2,000 students are enrolled in the university's four branches in the state. Alamo crusade opening Sunday

ALAMOGORDO--The Greater Alamogordo Area Crusade for Christ, with Bill Glass opens in Alamogordo on Sunday, June 18, and continues through June 25, with about 35 churches of the Lincoln-Otero county area cooperating in promoting the event.

Evangelistic services will begin at 7:30 p.m. nightly in the Alamogordo football stadium.

Preparations for the big Crusade have been underway for the past nine months, with Gene Brock of Alamogordo, active Christian layman, as the general chairman. A series of Spiritual Preparation rallies has been held preparing people to work as counsellors for the event, and Brock said that he feels all is in readiness for the greatest spiritual movement ever to come to the area.

Glass, former All-Pro defensive end for the Cleveland Browns, a star of many Sunday afternoon televised football games, is now giving his total effort to leading people to know Jesus Christ as personal savior, and his team draws huge crowds holding regular Crusades over America. He is very popular with young people and will be making special appearance for their benefit during his stay in the Alamogordo area. A series of special guests will make appearances during the Crusade, with Terry Bradshaw, quarterback for the Pittsburgh Steelers; Monday night's guest, Suzanne Johnson, runner-up in the Miss America pageant Wednesday night; and Lt. Clebe McClary, veteran of the Vietnam war and double-amputee special guest for Thursday night, and special youth night Saturday with Bunny Martin being the special guest.

Bus available from Carrizozo

A bus to and from the Crusade for Christ in Alamogordo will leave the First Baptist Church at 6 p.m. each evening. Seating will be provided on a first-come basis and children under 12 must be accompanied by a responsible adult. Signed permission forms will be required for those under 18 and riding without parents. These forms may be obtained from the First Baptist Church. Expenses for the bus are provided by the First Assembly of God and the First Baptist Church.

Forest permits still necessary

The Forest Service said Wednesday that because Congress has not acted on an annual permit for use of developed recreation areas, it would be necessary to continue use of daily permits.

The daily permit for use of camp and picnic areas on the National Forests throughout Arizona and New Mexico is $1 per day for each non-commercial vehicle. The only exceptions are seven highly developed areas where the fee is $2.

The announcement said the permits were available at the entrance to each camp or picnic area from self-service dispensers. It is the responsibility of users to obtain a permit and display it or run the risk of a fine. Patrolmen will not sell the permits.

The $2 areas are Fawn Lakes and Columbine on the Carson National Forest, Bonito and Pinegrove on the Coconino, Mesa Campground on the Gila, Lynx Lake on the Prescott and Ponderosa on the Tonto.

Notice

ALBUQUERQUE--Calendar year corporations must pay the second installment of their 1972 estimated tax by June 15, according to Maurice E. Johnson, District Director of Internal Revenue for New Mexico.

Corporation estimated tax payments should be deposited in authorized commercial banks or Federal Reserve banks, using Federal Tax Deposit Form 503.

The amount of the installment due by June 15 should be sufficient to pay one-half of the 1972 estimated tax, Mr. Johnson said.

Publication 542, "Corporations and the Federal Income Tax," which provides detailed information on this subject, can be obtained free.

THE LINCOLN COUNTY NEWS

IS GROWING! Growing! GROWING GROWING

GROWING IN CIRCULATION
GROWING IN LOCAL PICTURES
GROWING IN TOTAL NEWS COVERAGE
GROWING IN TOTAL ADVERTISING LINEAGE
GROWING IN EVERY WAY!

And the News will continue to grow. A newspaper, like most any other business, can not stand still -- it must either constantly move forward or start losing ground.

Because of that well-known fact this newspaper is ever trying to improve itself, in order to give better service to all those who have an interest in it.

We owe it to our readers and our advertisers to put forth every effort in making each issue just a little better than the preceding one.

We are very happy to acknowledge the fact, to a large extent, we owe our growth to our many friends, our readers and advertisers. Without their greatly appreciated support we could not continue our progress.

The desire to publish a newspaper that will better serve Lincoln County is the principal reason for conducting the trade expansion campaign now in progress.

FIRST -- We want to increase our service to the residents of this area through an increased circulation, and

SECOND -- We feel that we owe our advertisers the satisfaction of knowing that we are making every effort to reach all the readers of this trade area.
