Hard water end seen

One of the nation's foremost water experts, Dr. E.A. Steinhoff told the Carrizozo town council that his team of researchers is close to locating the source of salt pollution in the area supplying the town with water.

The town also heard good news on its budget for the remainder of the year; discussed utilities; heard a plan for upgrading the police force and dealt with a number of complaints.

Dr. Steinhoff described his research into the cause of the high saline content in Tularosa basin water. He said his team had tested wells in a semi circle around the town as a part of this project.

Beginning at Roy Harman's house & continuing in a semi-circle to the Vega well, the team had drilled new wells and pumped and tested a lot of old wells.

In particular, interest had been given to two old Southern Pacific wells, one of which had been used in the early part of the century to produce caustic soda.

The water expert said that the general area of the source of pollution had been located and that if it could be pinpointed, it would be possible to seal it off, prevent the high pollution levels the town now has.

If the exact location cannot be found, then the doctor recommended pumping techniques in the area which would greatly reduce the salt content.

Eventually he recommended the town consider a desalination technique, which he said, would pay for itself.

He also suggests water and energy conservation methods which would increase the supply of water at low cost.

The salt content in the Carrizozo system in the summer in particular makes lawn and garden care difficult, he said. The content of salt depends on water levels which are influenced by rain fall and use of supply.

He said that while the cost of desalination might be 50 cents a gallon, in a year a householder would probably save about $200 in lawn and garden care; $50 in soaps and detergents and more in savings on plumbing and water heaters.

Dr. Steinhoff has been using a well owned by the railroad which he says is better than the city well and he feels that the Southern Pacific might be willing to permit the city to use it.

"Do you want to continue with the same old water problems?" he asked, "or will you prepare now to solve your problems for the future benefit of your citizens?" he asked.

Mayor Bobby Dan Crenshaw said that Colorado Aggregate Corporation is transporting cinders from the Twin Peaks area and needs a loader to put the material in railroad cars. He said they had requested use of the towns equipment.

It was decided to lease the loader and one operator to the company for $30 a load. The mayor believes the town can make a profit on the transaction.

The town voted to pay the utility bill for the Southwest Mental Health alcohol control center. The director Paul Gallegos said that the Chamber of Commerce supplied the building but was no longer able to pay the utilities. The balance of the funded program will cost about $350 and the town will pick up the tab.

Ray Wells appeared before the council on behalf of the Recreation Committee. His group is interested in hiring a full time director for the town's program and has an applicant that is well qualified he said. He asked if the money used by the town for a summer swimming director could go toward paying this full time salary.

The proposed director would be responsible for the pool and the summer program.

Roy Harman asked if the swimming program would have any money and told by Town Clerk Chavez that the program had been budgeted and that state finance director Al Romero said the program could operate this summer.

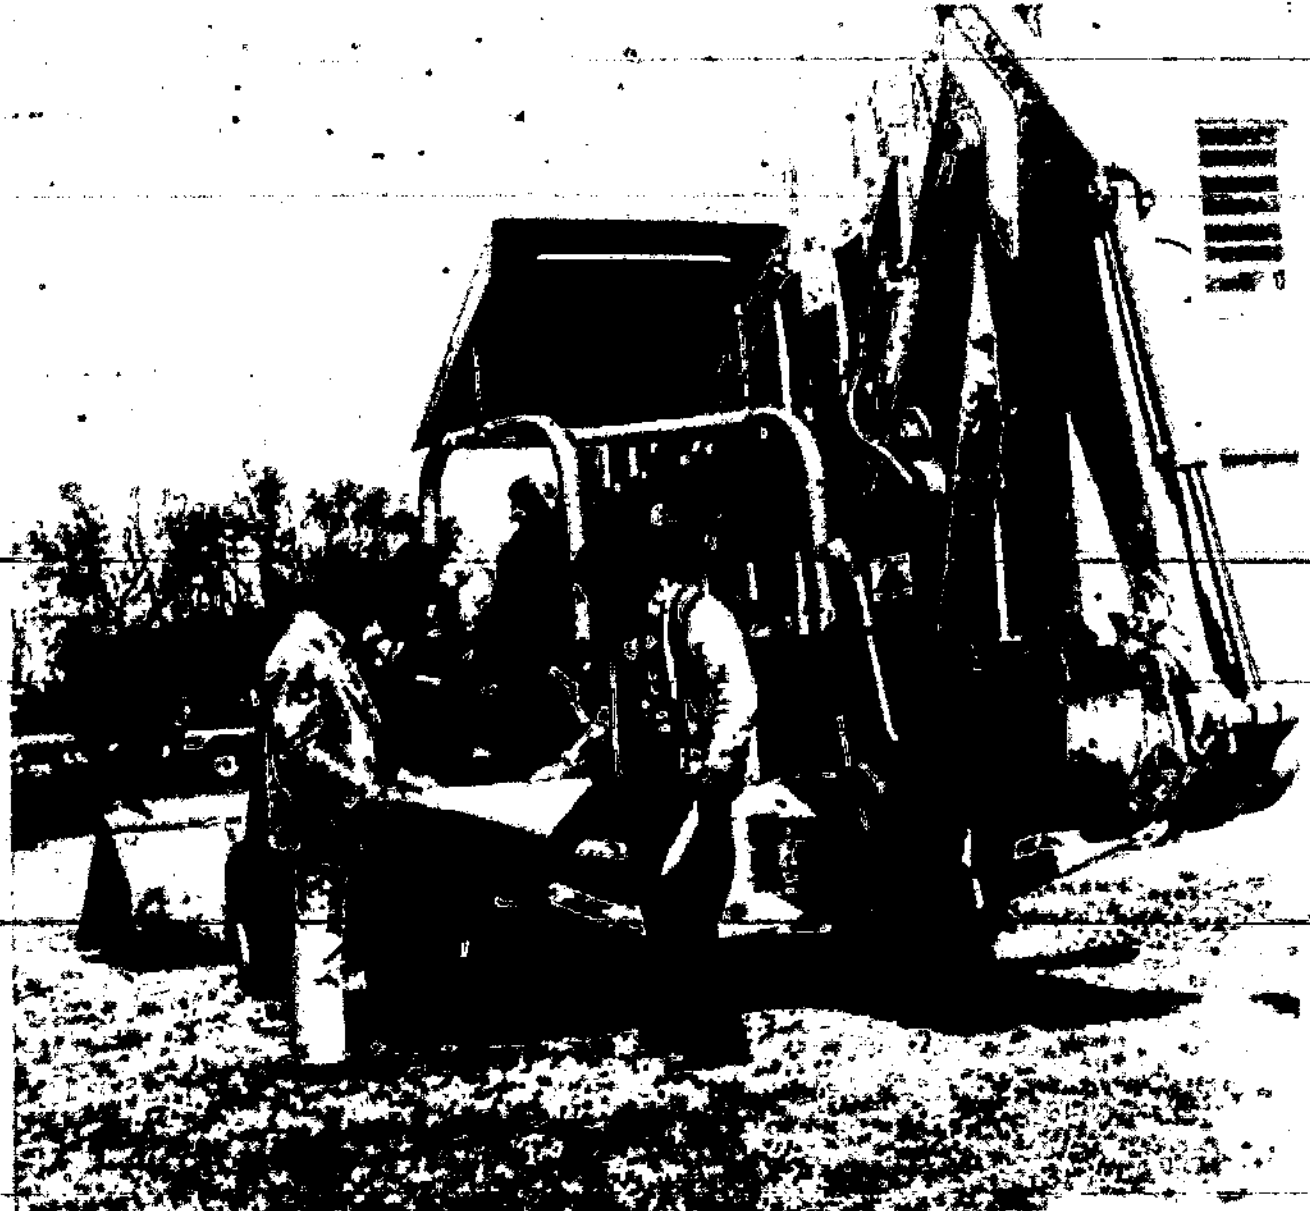

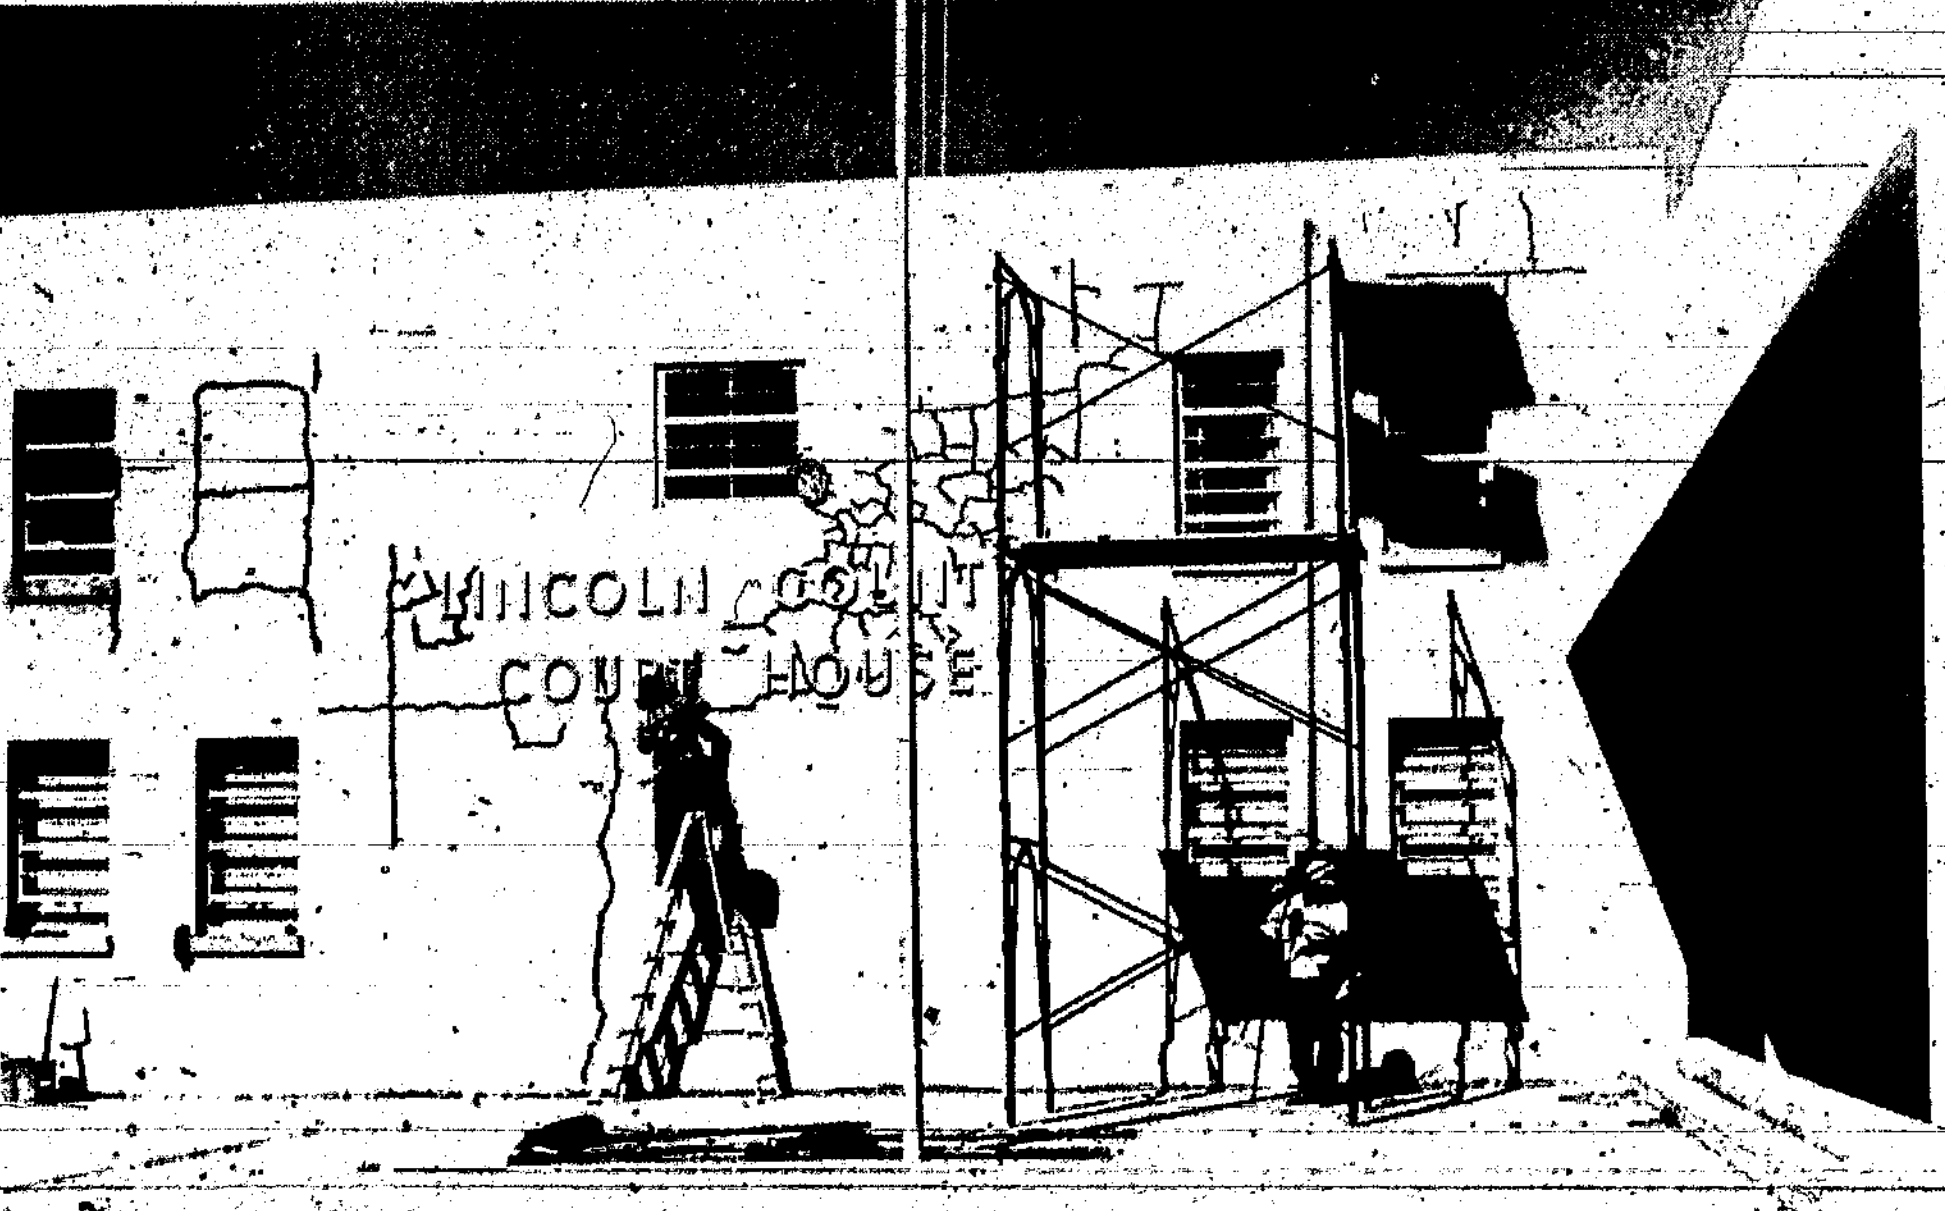

The council took the matter under consideration pending a further review of the budget.

A big improvement in the budget was reported by Miss Christine Chavez. Reviewing the expenditures and income for the year, she reported that almost all funds are in the black and by the end of the fiscal year, all should be operating properly. The general fund deficit has been reduced from $15,000 to approximately $9500.

In the best shape are the two recreation funds. Outdoor recreation has $19,657 balance and special recreation has $15,191. The healthy picture in those departments is in large part due to the support of Dr. and Mrs. A.N. Spencer.

Sheriff Bill Elliott appeared at the request of the group to review county-town law enforcement programs. He said that he worked well with Chief

Carrizozo windows hit

Lincoln County law enforcement officers are investigating the Thursday night shooting of the Citizens State Bank window in Carrizozo.

Three .22 caliber long rifle bullets were shot through the window of the bank sometime last Thursday night. There were no witnesses to the shooting although a nearby resident reported hearing the shots.

Johnson Stearns, president of the bank, received the following post card in Friday morning's mail:

Hello Pal
What a Beautiful Bank building!
Every dog must have his day. Look in the mirror tomorrow and speculate what happens to my good old pal.
The mill of the gods grind slow but they grind exceedingly fine.

See you around, Joe Finney.
The same morning Earl Fenter received a post card which read "Where is Joe Finney?"
Thus far no one has been able to decipher the "Joe Finney" reference by State Policeman Dale Housley, Chief Choncho Morales and Sheriff Bill Elliott are investigating several suspects.

The same night unknown persons broke a window in the recreation center and entered the building. Chief Morales says that the vandals went through the building but did no further damage.

The following night a brick was thrown through the glass door of the Carrizozo school and the plate glass window of the town hall was broken by a rock thrower.

Chief Morales said that he did not think there was any connection between the bank shooting & the other broken windows.

Vet donates clinic fund

Dr. Lynn Willard, on behalf of the Ruidoso-Lincoln County Veterinary Association, has made a $100.00 donation to the Carrizozo High School Speech team. The money is the net proceeds from the Rabies Clinic conducted in Carrizozo last Saturday afternoon. The donation was presented last Saturday night at the Speech team benefit basketball game in which Dr. Willard participated as part of the Ruidoso town team.

Paul Salgado, the speech coach, and the speech team wish to thank Dr. Willard and the Ruidoso-Lincoln County Veterinary Association for their generous gift.

Committee named

A Ruidoso resident has been appointed chairman of a county group which will push for passage of a state Right to Work Law.

Sherman Atwood said today he will work with other Lincoln County residents for a law which would prohibit forcing a person to join a labor union. According to the newly appointed county chairman, the local group will work closely with the state-wide New Mexico Citizens for Right to Work Committee, headquartered in Santa Fe.

"If a person chooses union representation, he has that right. However, if he chooses not to be a union member, he should not be forced to join as a condition of employment. Simply speaking, it is a matter of personal choice," said Atwood.

Atwood said the following have agreed to serve on the Lincoln County Advisory Board: Allen Luallin, businessman, Ruidoso; Bill McCarty, businessman, Ruidoso; Mrs. A.N. Spencer, housewife, Carrizozo; Ron Wilson, construction manager, Ruidoso; Mr. and Mrs. Basil E. Lawson, both teachers, NEA members, Carrizozo; George R. Swift, Ruidoso; C.R. Patterson, retired, Alto; and Mr. and Mrs. Shilo T. Smith, retired, Capitan.

I am winning the battle on the Valentine front even if some romance is disappearing from modern scene as young people move closer to what they define as "real".

Last year I got no valentines - this year was an improvement. Thank you Eric, Kirk, Mom, Sis, Jane, Slim and "Secret admirer".

The fluttered eyelash and the admiring whistle are being replaced by the question, "Well, how about it, chick?" - But - children still like Valentines and I believe, with some encouragement, the teenagers' hearts can be reached with lace, flowers and sweet, sweet words of love.

It is up to all of us old lovers to encourage the return to sugar spun dreams.

"I know a bank whereon the wild thyme blows, Where oxlips and the nodding violet grows".

Maybe we ought to start a trend in "Old West" valentines. The Christmas card industry has discovered us. Here are some suggestions from Lincoln County cowboys who wish to remain unnamed:

"Roses are red
Violets are blue
You can love me
If you love my horse too."

V.H.

"I'll wear my new dress
I'll wear a blue bow
But when we are dancing
Stay off of my toe."

B.L.

(I think she had this Saturday's dance in mind.)

"I'll ride all your fences
And fix your windmill
When I pop the question
Please say that you will."

D.S.

Then there were some less poetical creations:
"Baby, I'll dig your postholes any day. Be my Valentine."

B.C.

"Sweetheart, I'll wear your brand for life."

J.S.

Sometimes it seems like things change so fast that by the time you are used to seeing a couple together, they are already in and out of the court and going separate ways.

However, there are a number of enduring romances left in this world. There are love stories being lived every day.

Everytime I see Irene and Lefty Hays together I seem to hear the violins play. And on a sunny Sunday when Alma and Friday Sherrill walk down the street, a lot of us smile happily at them.

Up in the north corner at Corona, Ken Fuller still looks at Mary with a special gleam in his eye and to Ben Sanchez, his Rosa is still his sweetheart of more than sixty years.

Capitan is notorious for its life time lovers. Juanita and Howard Abercrombie even hold hands in public after all these years. And way out there on the ranch Charlie and Eleanor Jones probably are whispering sweet nothings to each other.

I think with all of those mentioned we are pretty safe going to press Wednesday knowing that they will still be together on Thursday when the News hits the street.

So to all of you lovers, may the joy of love fill your lives forever.

Mayor Bobby Dan Crenshaw really added a lot of class to the Carrizozo town council meeting when he invited the FFA to provide a parliamentarian for the meetings.

This week Rex Wilson showed up. He is president of the chapter at Carrizozo this year and thoroughly versed in procedure. It was a pleasure to listen to him and he was correct and practical at the same time.

The training that these young people are receiving is truly impressive.

So another congratulations: to all FFA members and sponsors during FFA week.

The Methodist ladies served coffee and cookies to the business people of Carrizozo Monday in an Appreciation Day event. Hostesses were Joy Gallacher, Irene Hayes, Alma Sherrill, Jane Shafer, Ethel Roberts, Margaret Lane and Agnes Hein.

Commissioners report

By Les Olson
County Manager

Bills entered into the legislative session many times are born out of purely local events, but which if passed, might adversely affect all the counties. A few bills summarized below fall into this category.

Senate Bill 19 relating to municipalities would remove the present power of a municipality from having any zoning authority outside of its municipal boundaries. This bill would conflict with the obvious need for careful planning of a rapidly growing area adjacent to municipal boundaries. Laws presently exist which permit the formation of an extraterritorial planning commission to advise a city planning commission on its zoning plan of three mile area adjacent to the municipal boundaries. Senate Bill 19 would, in my understanding, erase the joint county-city planning commissions established under present law. This law, if passed, would only add to rather than help solve an already chaotic problem.

House Bill 134 relates to illegal selling of subdivision lots and imposes a stiff $5,000 civil penalty on any person, firm, corporation or association or agent or employee thereof who sells or leases land that is part of a subdivision in violation of any provision of the New Mexico Subdivision Act. Such penalty can be brought about by the Attorney General, or District Attorney. The fine may be distributed to aggrieved persons harmed by misrepresentations, fraud or other illegal selling techniques.

Senate Bill 96 strikes a familiar note: placing ceiling on tax rates that can be imposed on net taxable property for the purposes of generating revenue. The limitation would be 5 percent of the preceding years revenue budget. Thus no local government could increase its revenue by more than 5 percent over its preceding years revenue. This would, of course, mean the budget could not increase more than 5 percent a year.

However, a loophole is provided by a waiver that could be requested if a hardship results from the 5 percent limitation. This bill would increase the number of waivers but do little to keep budgets under control. That can only be done by an interested citizenry and financially wise commissioners. Real financial responsibility cannot be legislated, except at the local level.

It was sad to read of the death of Mrs. Nettie Lemon.

I knew her ever since I was old enough to remember. We lived neighbors to the Lees in the early 1900s, at White Oaks.

One by one the old timers are going on from this life.

Smokey Bear, the nation's Forest Fire Prevention symbol, passed away in early November. He was returned for burial at Smokey Bear Historical State Park in Capitan, New Mexico, near the Lincoln National Forest where he was found as a badly burned cub 25 years ago. The park project, in which the Division played an instrumental part, won the award as the Bureau of Outdoor Recreation's outstanding New Mexico project for fiscal year 1976.

Legislative Report

One of the biggest surprises I have had in the session is the "Free Drugs to Addicts" bill getting out of a committee without a recommendation. A "Do Pass" vote failed on a tie vote. Such legislation makes about as much sense as the state buying lambs to feed the coyotes so the coyotes won't have to steal.

By the time you read this we will have also decided the fate of the "bottle bill" which will outlaw all non-returnable beverage containers, and require the retailers to accept any container he has sold and refund the deposit on same.

Now it really sounds good to outlaw non-returnables, but to make garbage collectors out of all beverage dispensers I don't think is quite right. Our own state agencies in the last few years haven't issued over a handful of citations for littering. I really think we should do a better job of policing ourselves to clean up litter rather than making our local grocer act as a garbage collector.

The municipalities, schools, highways, district attorneys, judges and state police, to name a few, are making strong cases for increased funding. The attorney general has ruled that the counties cannot contract for legal services but that the district attorney must furnish same. I can see that this can lead to a very expensive position for the state over which the state would have no control of time or quality of service and the counties would have no selectivity or control of quality.

I intend to try and change the statute which caused this ruling and allow the county governments to continue to select their own counsel.

Mr. Womack who lived and worked in Ft. Stanton for many years passed a way quietly at his home in Noodle, Texas, last Sunday evening.

They called his son Eddie Womack who is employed by Gaylord Freeman at his ranch and told him that he was in his easy chair watching T.V., when his wife decided to awaken him at bed time and found that he had passed away in his sleep.

I do not know any more details as Eddie and Fay are with his mother in Texas.

Helen Pfingsten became terribly ill last Monday morning about three o'clock. Her husband took her to E.N.M. Medical center where she is in intensive care, critically ill. We do hope she can once again regain the ground she has lost in this, her most recent attack. She keeps fighting for better health in a truly remarkable way.

Mr. and Mrs. Roy Hanson and son, Roy Jeppeson of Logan, Utah were guest of Mrs. Helen Bennett last weekend.

They are vacationing near Sun City, Arizona, and stopped here to visit Mrs.

Bennett who is Mrs. Hanson's niece. Mr. Jeppeson has just gotten out of the Army and was on his way to Utah.

We had a nice weekend at my house when my granddaughter, Melanie Werner brought fifteen members of the Goddard High Swinger's Chorus, their director and leader, Mr. John Walker and Mr. and Mrs. Jim Andrus, parents of two of the chorus members.

They went skiing on Saturday and Sunday and enjoyed it immensely.

They were a grand bunch of people and I enjoyed them so much and they enjoyed it too. They were so happy and full of fun that it made one feel good.

On Sunday evening, the Richard Phillips came down and I had dinner for all of them and they entertained us with many of their songs and believe me they can really sing.

Other than Sunday evening the girls prepared most of the meals which they had all planned and everything ready to go and they fixed lunches for the next day. They were very well organized and a great pleasure to have around.

Mr. and Mrs. Henson have moved into their new home next to the McGinnis home and are enjoying it.

Mrs. McGinnis went to Albuquerque last Thursday with her daughter and son-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. Albert Hill.

Kirk Phillips called his parents to tell them he had pulled ligaments in both the back and front of his right arm torn in a class wrestling match last Thursday.

Later his Tactical Officer called to say that the surgeon would call later, which he did, explaining what he would have to do. He operated Tuesday morning and called again to tell that he had done the job and Kirk was in recovery resting comfortably.

He did the corrective surgery and put in two pins which will be removed in about six weeks and then he should have full use of his shoulder about the middle of May.

Hopefully, he will be able to return to classes next week and will probably have instruction "this week" in the hospital.

Presbyterians meet

The regular meeting of the Ancho United Presbyterian Women was held Tuesday, Feb. 8, at the home of Vernelle Hightower, preceded by a covered dish luncheon.

President, Beth Hightower opened the meeting. Margaret Lightfoot gave the worship reading from the book "There are sermons and stories."

Guest speaker was Gretchen Peniska who is a public relations person for the Ganado School in Arizona. Ganado, a school supported by Presbyterian funds, consists mainly of Navajo Indians on the reservation. They are trying to be a self supporting school, which goes to junior college level. Mrs. Peniska gave a very informative talk on what is being done at Ganado and what is hoped to be accomplished in the future. With Mrs. Peniska was Rosaline Tohy, a Mavajo Indian who works in Mrs. Peniska's office. Miss Tohy was educated in schools in Albuquerque and California and has graduated from Ganado and hopes to complete her education at U. of Arizona in elementary education.

After a business meeting was held the members spent the remainder of the afternoon visiting with the guests.

Members present were: Beth Hightower, Linda Caldwell, Susan Hightower, Barbara Harkey, Ruth Wilson, Margaret Lightfoot, Vernelle Hightower and three guests from Corona, Patsy Mulkey, Juanita Owens and Rosalyn Henolds.

Carrizozo Rotarians invited wives, friends and sweethearts to a Valentine dinner at the 4 Winds last Thursday.

The party was held in Willie's new room, a beautiful party place, and steaks were extra special. At the head table were Eileen and Nick Serna, President Wesley and Margo Lindsay. Seated down the table are Carolyn Cantrell, Vicki and Ken Means.

Rotarian Johnson Stearns believes every word of what he is hearing from Carrie McGee, who is really enjoying the story. Carrie and Johnson were in the salad line at the Rotary dinner at the 4 Winds.

New Mexico reviewed by Paul Payton

Throughout its history Santa Fe has been out post of culture and civilization.

The book "New Mexico's Own Chronicle", three races in the writings of 400 years, adapted and edited by Fulton and Horgan, is full of interesting bits of history recorded by Indians, Spaniards and Americans from the 1st-10th Centuries A.D. to about 1937 when this book was published.

We have suggested to Sally Florian that she get a copy (if available) for the school library.

The book by chapters covers: I Indians in possession, II Explorers from Spain, III Spanish Mastery, IV Rebellion and re-conquest, V Another Century Under Spain, VI The Mexican Period, VII The United States Takes Hold, VIII First American years, IX Civil War Disturbances, X Taming Indians and Bad Men, XI Ranch and Range, XII Railroads and Riches, XIII The Forty-seventh State, XIV Preface to the Future, XV Illustrations.

We have selected a few sections, not for review, but will write a condensed version here just to stir your interest in possible reading of New Mexico's Own Chronicle.

The Great Pueblo Rebellion -- During the 70 years since the founding of the capital of New Mexico, the Indians five times joined together to try to overthrow their Spanish rulers. Each time the insurrections were crushed and their leaders put to death. But in 1680 a leader appeared who was destined to be successful. This remarkable Indian was named Po-pe. Born in the pueblo of San Juan, Po-pe had been living at Taos.

Po-pe's plan called for a general uprising to begin August 11th, 1680. Messengers were sent to every pueblo, and also, it is believed, to the savage tribes-the Apaches and Navajos. These messengers carried a knotted cord, and every day at sundown a knot was untied, the remaining knots showing how many days were left before the rebellion.

At this time there were probably not more than 1500 Spaniards in all New Mexico. A 1000 of them were scattered on ranches and at missions, the other 500 were concentrated in Santa Fe with about 500 Mexican Indian servants.

Otermin, the Spanish governor at Santa Fe, heard rumors of the conspiracy and sent messengers to all corners warning priests and settlers of the impending danger. Po-pe countered by sending messengers advancing the date of the outbreak to August 10th.

On the morning of the 10th the Indians began by killing all the Spaniards they could lay hands on, burning missions and stealing the holy vessels from the altars. The siege of Santa Fe went on for days, until the Indians cut off Otermin's water supply by diverting an acequia. Early on the morning of the 20th the soldiers left the palace for a final attack. The 47 Indian prisoners were condemned and shot, but before they died they had time to testify that a large band of Apaches were on their way to Santa Fe to aid in the siege. Later on that day, the Spaniards began, with their sick and wounded, the terribly long 300-mile march down the Rio Grande to site of present city of El Paso. It was 12 years before Spain recovered New Mexico. Many mines lost in 1680.

Tradition speaks of numerous and productive mines in New Mexico before the expulsion of the Spaniards in 1680, but adds that the Indians, seeing that the cupidity (greed) of the conquerors had been the cause of their former cruel oppressions, determined to conceal all the mines by filling them up and obliterating as much as possible every trace of them.

This was done so effectually that after the second conquest succeeding generations were never able to discover them again. It is now generally agreed that the Pueblo Indians up to present day are acquainted with the locales of a great number of these wonderful mines. End of the Spanish sway.

In 1820 Spain was no longer the powerful nation she had been. Her grip upon her more distant colonies, such as New Mexico, was relaxing; these were accordingly thrown upon their own poor resources for protection. So inadequate were these that when New Mexico achieved her independence from Spain in 1821, the local government at Santa Fe welcomed the change heartily.

Mexican independence became an accomplished fact on September 27th, 1821; but New Mexico was so far away from Mexico City that the news did not reach Santa Fe till December 26th, three months later.

A chance meeting with Billy the Kid. An Englishman, R.B. Townshend, was driving up the Pecos Valley a herd of horses, bought in Texas and intended for selling in Colorado among the mining camps. He had heard of the danger from Billy the Kid's band, and man known as Beckwith had given him a note to show the Kid if they should happen to meet.

We were camped for noon in some brush on the Pecos, suddenly one of the Mexicans galloped in from the herd with a white face. "Senor," he began, "the robbers have come! They have got the herd."

Four men were approaching quietly at a jog trot. "Good day, gentlemen," said I, trying to look pleasant. "Won't you get off and have some dinner." They accepted gruffly enough. They wore heavy leather chaps and the ordinary cowboy dress, but what struck me most was what the frightened Mexican had with truth called their terrible rifles. Besides their revolvers they carried Winchester of the very newest and latest model, and they wore two belts—piece—stuffed—full—of cartridges: and the biggest of them—the man who filled my eye most—carried not one but two rifles—a 16-shot Winchester for quick shooting, and a Sharp's .45 calibre, the famous buffalo gun of the plains hunter. Never did I see a more evil-looking man.

It was an uncomfortable and unsocial meal; they spoke not at all to me. "Come on to the herd," said the evil-faced German to the others. "You'd better come, too," said the smallest of the four. He was quite boyish looking, not more than twenty perhaps, slight made and lithe and very quick in his movements, with a curiously aloof and restless eye like that of an untamed animal in a cage. His eyes were never still an instant, but roved perpetually over his surroundings and occasionally met mine for a full fraction of a second, only to be instantly shifted.

"What'll you take for the lot?" was his abrupt query. "They're not for sale," I answered. "Twenty-five dollars a head," said the boyish leader with a malicious grin. "You'll have to give me time on them of course." He was like a cat over a mouse, and obviously liked it. I hastened to scramble with my hand first in one pocket and then in the others for my paper. As I did so, out of the corner of my eye I saw the Kid's hand resting on his pistol. He was not going to let anyone get him through the pocket with a Derringer. "Mr. Beckford," I exclaimed, "whom I think you know?" "May I take it you are the gentleman they call the Kid?"

"Yes, I'm the Kid," he said. "Go on." "Mr. Beckford told me that I was liable to meet you along the Pecos, and that I might find this introduction of service," and I passed him the letter. Billy read the letter, "Seems as how Mr. Beckford's quite a friend of yours, friend of mine, too, so it's just as well for all parties that there hasn't been any misunderstanding."

I was never so glad to see anything in my life as the cartridge-girded back of those four ruffians riding off.

"That You Be Hanged" Judge Kirby Benedict came to New Mexico in 1853 and for thirteen years sat on the bench in the northern counties: He was a stern administrator of the law, but his feeling for drama in the courtroom sometimes amounted to genius. Take, for example, a scathing sentence of death he pronounced upon a murderer at Taos.

Jose Maria Martin, stand up!—Jose Maria Martin, you have been indicted, tried, and convicted by a jury of your countrymen of the crime of murder, and the court is now about to pass upon you the dread sentence of the law. As a usual thing, Jose Maria Martin, it is a painful duty for the judge of a court of justice to pronounce upon a human being the sentence of death. There is something horrible about it, and the mind of the court naturally revolts from the performance of such a duty. Happily, however, your case is relieved of all such unpleasant features, and the court takes positive delight in sentencing you to death!

You are a young man, Jose Maria Martin, apparently of good physical condition and robust health. Ordinarily you might have looked forward to many years of life, and the court has no doubt you have, and have expected to die at ripe old age; but you are about to be cut off in consequence of your own act.

The flowers will not bloom for you, Jose Maria Martin! The birds will not carol for you, Jose Maria Martin! When these things come to gladden the senses of men, you will be occupying a space about six by two beneath the sod, and the green grass and those beautiful flowers will be growing above your lowly head.

On March 22nd you will be taken some safe and convenient spot within the county and there hanged by the neck until you are dead, and the court was about to add, Jose Maria Martiff, "may God have mercy on your soul," but the court will not assume responsibility of asking an All-wise Providence to do that which a jury of your peers has refused to do. The Lord could not have mercy on your soul.

In spite of Judge Benedict's terrible prophecies, before the execution Martin escaped to enjoy the spring flowers and hear the birds sing.

Preface to the future We have seen that in 1774 Peyton had spoken of Santa Fe's climate as being one of the most healthful in the world. This observation has since been repeated by almost every newcomer to New Mexico, up to and including the founder of the famous Mayo Clinic.

Nor is our tourist traffic a new thing. It might be said to have begun with Castano de Sosa in 1590. In his journey from Pecos Pueblo to Tesuque, De Sosa must have crossed the Santa Fe river somewhere within the district now inhabited by Santa Fe citizens.

Throughout its history Santa Fe has been an outpost of culture and civilization. When it was founded, it was the only pinpoint of civilized life within about 1,500 miles. The degree of isolation cannot be exaggerated. The only possible comparison, in modern times, is Little America, the colony established by Admiral Byrd near the South Pole in 1929.

It took Byrd three months to reach the site of his colony, and he took with him at least 5,000 different kinds of things. Three hundred years before, in 1629, it took the caravans from Mexico a year and half to make the round trip to Santa Fe, and the list of goods they carried is reminiscent of Byrd's in its completeness. Little America in 1929 was never nearly so isolated as Santa Fe in 1629.

Nearly every day Byrd received news over the radio. But, if the Indians had attacked Santa Fe in 1629, there would have been nothing to do but send a messenger who, if he lived through the 1,500 mile journey, might bring back help in a year and a half. And by that time the colony must either have surrendered or starved to death.

The city has kept this character of being a tiny island of civilization in the wilderness. In the days of the Santa Fe Trail, Santa Fe was regarded as a kind of paradise by traders, trappers, and ranchers. There were bailes and fandangoes and gambling tables for the frivolous, comfortable inns and good food and rest for the weary, beauty and interest for the artist, the historian, the ethnologist.

A New York critic has said that he felt there were two centres of civilization in America: New York and Santa Fe. New York is the world's financial capital, Santa Fe is a small town in a semi-arid land which produces in good years, only a little chile, corn, beans and fruit. Yet, famous people from all over the earth travel far out of their way especially to visit the city.

If the history of New Mexico is so largely the history of Santa Fe, it is because Santa Fe, for so many years, was about all there was of New Mexico. It is an epitome (a part which represent typically a whole) a summary, in a few square miles, of qualities, which pertain to every hamlet, town, and city within our borders.

The Southwest still exists upon realities, instead of symbols of realities like urban systems of commerce and finance and machines. It exists upon realities because the land is so tremendous, so bare of human life in so many million acres, because there are so many plains rising sharply to mountainhood, so much communion between sky and earth with great slow-sailing clouds and stars that watch the night like near eyes; because to go from one place to another it is necessary so very often to drive along lonely roads with nothing in sight but the gently lifting and falling horizons of low hills; because the conditions of natural life raise no clamor like that sustained daily by tiring nerves in other regions; because the color of past splendors of race and deed is mixed with the land by the agency of our imaginations; and we pay it tribute, as it nourishes us.

A fifteen inch snow Thursday halted traffic for several hours when cars and trucks blocked U. S. 54 at the over pass and on Tecolote hill. The road was opened about 6 p.m. but many travellers chose to spend the night in public buildings here which were opened to care for them. From 21 to 24 inches of snow were reported west of town with the moisture content measuring 1 1/4 inches. Friday cars were being pulled out of ditches and driveways. Monday roads were reported to be very muddy. Our highway crew worked until 3 a.m. Friday blading snow and spreading salt. We repeat that our crew is the best in New Mexico.

Recent guests of Mr. and Mrs. John E. Tracey were her son and daughter and their families, Mr. and Mrs. Donald Jones and two boys came from Mart, Texas, Mr. and Mrs. Calvin Dove and son from Houston.

The Clint Sultemeier ranch home was the setting Sunday afternoon for a beautiful appointed stork-shower honoring Mrs. Louis Erramouspe. Hostesses with Mrs. Sultemeier were Mrs. Clay Crist and Mrs. Joe Reynolds.

The tea table was laid with a white and silver cloth and was centered with a bunch of shinnery which Mrs. Crist had sprayed with silver and to which she tied safety pins, a rattle, booties and other small gifts. Napkins, mints and baby buggy nut cups were in pale yellow and pale green.

The hostesses had prepared a yellow punch, had buttered the nuts, and had made and decorated the cakes.

The 1977 RV Show and Milne's grand opening start at 10 a.m. Friday, Feb. 18, when the Alamogordo Chamber of Commerce Bluecoaters haul out the scissors for a traditional ribbon cutting.

Milne, who started business in Alamogordo in 1959 as Milne Auto Electric, said he will continue to carry one of the largest RV inventories in New Mexico and invited everyone to come by and inspect his new facilities and the latest developments in the art of recreation vehicles.

Choncho Morales and would continue to give full cooperation to the town. He has issued deputy cards to the three police making it possible for them to answer calls outside of the town limits when necessary. They will be covered by county insurance in this event. This has been a long standing problem and Chief Morales expressed his appreciation.

Elliott recommended that equipment of the police department be upgraded to meet the needs of the growing town. In particular he mentioned investigative equipment such as a camera and finger printing outfit.

New Assistant Chief Harold Taylor, who has replaced Jay McSwane, continued the discussion on upgrading the department. He said that funds were available on a 10 to 1 ratio for the department from the Law Enforcement Assistance Agency.

He also asked the David Baca, a policeman now on part time, be given one more day of work. He said the time was needed on Saturday night and that this move would encourage Baca to continue his training.

The new assistant chief comes from New York where he was a police lieutenant. He brings extensive training to the department and says he hopes to make a permanent home in this area.

Les Olson county manager, appeared to offer the town some of the county's trees. Former Governor Tom Bolack has given the county 75 Navajo willows for landscaping and parks. Only a few of these are needed and the county is offering to share them with the Lincoln County municipalities.

Park Commissioner Manny Hernandez said that several would be needed in Fred Chavez park & perhaps in the town hall landscaping. He said that the various highway islands were being cleaned and would be planted with low growing vegetation.

Olson also asked and was given permission to break the curbing on the east and north side of the courthouse where diagonal parking is being planned.

A number of business applications for renewal of occupational licenses were approved but the council is going to investigate the gross receipts reported by all of the town's businesses. A request to the state for these figures has been made. If the businesses are not paying the amount they should, they will be tagged for the money owed over the past several years.

Willie Silva reported that Ben Morris, owner of Yellow Bird, a chartered air service, has indicated interest in putting his service into Carrizozo. He is now located in Albuquerque, Roswell, and other towns. Service would include operation of a flying school, air-gas station and chartered flights. The council expressed tentative approval.

A letter to the State Fire Marshal from Bob O'Conner saying that there was indication of the town spending fire money for other purposes was read. The fire marshal advised O'Conner that if he had any such proof it should be turned over to the district attorney.

A letter from the department of finance said that the town had been granted an extension to August 1977 to pay its share of the railroad crossing signals.

Silva read a letter of complaint from Clarence Painter concerning the Prehm apartments. Painter wrote that the apartments were illegally hooked into cess pools instead of the town sewer and that there was a problem with overflowing of the sewage. The town will investigate.

A letter from W.B. Lindsey, Jr. concerning low water pressure in a two-block area on the north of the town was read. It will be further investigated.

Roy Harman said all but about 20 residents had disposed of the oversized containers for solid trash and that garbage pick-up is much improved.

There are problems with the 20-year old water chlorinator it was reported, and the town must eventually face replacement of that unit. It is now being repaired but Silva doubted that the repairs would last. The cost of the new item would be about $900.

He was given permission to proceed with the hookup of a 10 inch line between the town wells. The line was laid last year but was never connected, he said. He said there would be about $4500 salvage in clamps and fittings from the old line.

It was reported that all but two of the broken 47 water meters have either been replaced or repaired.

A budget amendment was approved for the payment of some of the industrial parks, water and sewer improvement fees. Among the payments were a $78,350 & an over $26,027 fee for engineering to the William Matotan firm. The sewer improvements will be the subject of a public hearing on Feb. 21 at 7 p.m. Matotan said he would be present to review the industrial park progress at that time.

Rex Wilson, president of the Carrizozo FFA served as parliamentarian for the meeting and was thanked for his assistance. He was asked to return and serve on a permanent basis. Before the meeting he showed slides on parliamentary procedure to the trustees.

Cardinal Capers

By Kathy Garfield

The Corona Cardinals went to Capitan Friday night and returned home with an easy victory. The final score was 85-53. Leading scorers were Scott Williams with 20, Cully Nalda, 15, Scott Nalda, 15, and Steve Warfield, 13. Leading rebounders were Cully Nalda with 10, Scott Nalda, 10, and Scott Williams with 8.

Saturday the Cardinals traveled to Albuquerque to play A.I.S. Corona came out and played a sloppy first half. At half-time AIS was ahead by 19 points. The Cardinals came out in the second half and were ready to play, but it was a little bit late. Corona pulled within 3 points, but lost by 6. The final score was 72-77. Corona's record is now 16-4 for the season.

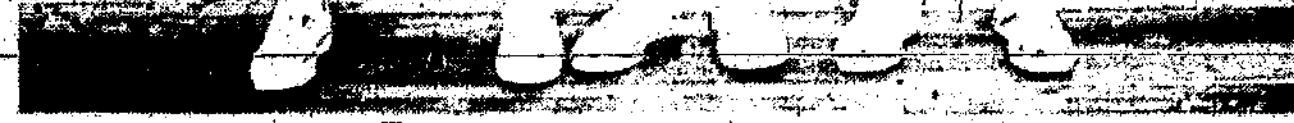

The Corona Cardinals Junior High topped off an unbeaten season this past weekend by winning the Bean Valley Conference tournament at Estancia. The Cardinals defeated the Mountainair Mustangs in qualifying action (45-39).

The following morning the Cards went against a tough Estancia team, prevailing 45-43. On that same Saturday afternoon the Cardinals defeated a strong, quick ball club from Moriarty 51-47 to take the BVC crown for a 3rd straight year.

The championship was won due to outstanding outside shooting and tremendous inside play. In all the Cardinal freshmen were 11-0 this season with first place honors in the BVC as well as the Moriarty Invitational Tournament.

This tournament victory was very complementary due to the loss of their 6'3" post man James Fuller who received an injury before the tournament started and did not play. In Moriarty the Cardinals had three players make the all-tournament team. Ricky and Nicky Huey, sons of Tommy and Susan Huey, and James Fuller son of Herb and Caroline Fuller.

Coach Warfield stated that the final game was super with outstanding performances from all team members playing. Danny Chavez had 6 out of 7 shots from the outside. Rusty Surrat, Nicky and Ricky Huey were tremendous on the boards and Troy Yancey had his usual outstanding performance. In all the Cardinals were just great being outsized in height in all three games. We are very proud of our Cardinal Junior High.

The Chapparal 4-H club met on Wednesday, February 9. The business meeting was held and the members decided to sell apples for the 4-H council. The apples will be sold for 4 pounds for a dollar. For more details and to place your order call Clay Lightfoot at 846-8188.

Present at the meeting were Clay and Cody Lightfoot, Becky Washburn, Teri Knipps, Elizabeth and Bonnie Blevins, Cary Crist, Shannon Byrd, leaders Mr. and Mrs. Bob Byrd, and visitor Candy Byrd.

Student Council members, Nadine Chavez and Annette Root traveled to Albuquerque last Thursday for a 3-day State Student Council Convention. It was held at Monzano High School. The high points of this meeting were electing state officers, voting on resolutions, and deciding on a state project. The sponsor for this trip was Judy Chavez.

Ricky and Nicky are twin sons of Thomas and Susan Huey. They also have a brother, Mickey, in the seventh grade who served as a substitute for the ninth grade in the Moriarty tournament. James Fuller is the son of Herb and Caroline Fuller. Corona will play Mountainair in their first game at 3:30 Friday.

Pete knocks fence rule

U.S. Sen. Pete Domenici Tuesday asked the New Mexico office of the Bureau of Land Management to hold up implementing any new fencing policy in southeastern New Mexico's antelope dispute until more facts are uncovered.

Domenici talked to BLM State Director Arthur Zimmerman after complaints from ranchers, farmers, county officials, and agricultural loan experts mounted after new fencing regulations were proposed.

Domenici asked that "no new policy on fencing be implemented on the lands involved until the BLM and other agencies provide answers to some fundamental questions."

"For example, we don't know how many antelope now live in the area involved, if this number has increased or declined in the last two years, what effect present fencing practices have on the last headd sizes.

"We also need to take into account the devastating impact on the economy of southeastern New Mexico wholesale changes in fencing policy may have," he added.

The Senator intervened at the request of several New Mexicans who believe that the BLM's decision to change fencing policy to allow antelopes to crawl under fences, will lead to increased predator damage to sheep herds and to a dramatic decline in the value of ranching and farming land in the area.

ROBBIE'S BOX

This was a valentine's box - lets see whats in it? It's a little late but its still fun to have heart shaped box to open. Hope you all had a Happy Valentine's Day.

Gee, here is a pair of blue jeans with polyester ribbons applied on the yoke, an a shirt with hand embroidered cuffs and collar. And a pinch of humor to make you laugh. My neighbor carries a little card in his wallet. It says: "I am a pessimist. In case of accident, I'm not surprised." (You better dig that well, before you are thirsty). Here is a good one! Man to friend: "I was talking with my wife last night. You know how it is with football season all over."

Our recipe this week. Pork Casserole Milano

In hot oil, in large skillet, brown pork strips (two tablespoons oil, 1 lb. pork loin in 1 inch strips)

Add 1/2 cup chopped onion, 1/2 cup chopped celery, 1 med. green pepper, chopped, sliced mushrooms, 1 teas. worcestershire sauce, 1 teas. salt, 1/4 teas. pepper, 1/2 teas. dried basil leaves, then simmer for 25 minutes.

Blend in cream of mushroom soup and 1/2 cup milk, simmer for about 10 minutes. Then combine pork mixture with cooked spaghetti, bake 20 minutes, top with cheese or fresh tomatoes.

This was taken from McCall's magazine but it is very good, I made it this weekend.

Bye now until our next box of ideas, jokes, wisdom.

AROUND THE BOWL

Say do you remember "The Boot Hill Boys". They are going to play for the Country Club Valentine dance next Saturday night, the 19th so get your Valentine's ready to go. The Whittaker's their son and his wife, the Withams and Sue and Bob Stearns enjoyed the Rotary Supper this last week. I hear through the Church grapevine that Rev. Rolland Armstrong will be serving the Nogal and Ancho Presbyterian Churches. We are very glad to have him.

The skiing is still going strong over the weekend-it was so full, the lines were 30 minutes long. Johnny Bob from Nogal went on the slopes and had a ball. Recently Fern Sawyer competed in a program of races, she came up 3rd or 4th by the way, very good!

The weight loss gals met at the medallion room this week and dropped their quarters in the can, each one hoping that they will win the pot in one month. Liz MacVeigh has some interesting plans, so do come join the fat gang and get thin. We have a lot of fun too!

By now Robbie

Union bosses will say anything to keep their free ride rolling.

Don't buy their pitch that compulsory unionism is best for New Mexico. Facts prove that Right to Work states are better off.

History has demonstrated that Right to Work laws bring economic prosperity to workers, employers and the entire community.

Right to Work laws minimize labor-management friction and create a business climate conducive to greater productivity and increased job opportunities.

Gains Documented

A net increase of 1,587,900 manufacturing jobs was achieved by the Right to Work states between 1964 and 1974, according to documented government studies. A smaller gain, 1,165,600 jobs, was realized by the other states, even though they boast 70 percent of the country's total population.

During the same decade, the Right to Work states averaged gains of 413,100 non-agricultural jobs, while the average for the other states was 390,770.

Compare New Mexico with our neighboring Right to Work states.

Jobs gained 1964-1974

New Mexico	103,300
Utah	143,900
Arizona	351,900
Texas	1,551,300

Average weekly earnings, 1974*

New Mexico	$127.21
Arizona	172.48
Utah	154.84
Texas	166.06

*Productive workers employed by manufacturing firms.

Today many New Mexico wage-earners are compelled to pay dues and fees to labor unions in order to keep their jobs.

Compulsory unionism is authorized by federal law.

However, the right of every state to outlaw compulsory unionism is spelled out by Section 14(b) of the Taft-Hartley Act.

Such state laws, called Right to Work laws because they guarantee everyone the right to work as a union member or as a non-union employee, have already been enacted by 20 states, including neighboring Texas, Arizona and Utah.

Public support for a new law is now being mobilized by New Mexico Citizens for Right to Work, a representative group of public-spirited citizens. Join with them in encouraging state senators and representatives to vote for the bill.

Your Legislators will vote on a Right to Work bill this session. Urge them to vote "Yes."
