CARRIZOZO, NEW MEXICO

ESTABLISHED IN 1905

Joe Zamora from Albuquerque was cited Saturday for DWI and careless driving after turning his pick up over once at Indian Divide. Mr. Zamora was headed east and drove off the road on the right, over-corrected across the road, rolled once and came to rest on the wheels. A passenger, Mr. Chavez was injured and taken to an Albuquerque hospital. The accident happened about 6:00 p.m. and first aid and traffic control was handled by passer-bys, David Palomarez, Faustino Gallegos, and Tranky Silva. State Police Officer Dale Housley responded from Carrizozo.

Town Council Grants Permission--

'New' Used Car Business to Locate in Carrizozo

By Polly Chavez

At a special Carrizozo town meeting held August 23, Bob "Rod" Rodman was granted permission by the council to locate a temporary used car business on land situated on an area which town attorney referred to as an "agricultural and low density residential zone."

Joe Orsak moved and Roy Harmon seconded to grant an exception to the zoning ordinance on a conditional use for a used car lot for a period not to exceed two years. An extension could be granted if Rodman comes before the council with proper justification.

Although adjoining property owners were contacted and encouraged to attend the special meeting, none were present. The Pettys had previously expressed to Mayor Jesse English that they did not want to hold up progress but were concerned that the traffic on the dirt street would create a dust problem.

The approval included the reading by town attorney Bill Payne of such additional conditions "as deemed necessary to safeguard the public welfare, safety, health, morals, convenience, and best interest of adjoining property owners and neighborhood."

Rodman and his wife, Verna bought the land located west of Carrizozo and will operate a temporary used car lot within two months. English signed a zone certification for the Rodman's so that they could obtain their dealership license. The Rodmans plan to locate a permanent used car business on a lot they own across from the A & I Supply Inc., Hiway 380 and E Avenue.

"We want to fix it up right," Rodman answered when asked when the permanent location would be ready.

Mr. and Mrs. Bob Rodman, formerly of Loveland, Colorado were accompanied to the special meeting by Bob Means, who is Mrs. Rodman's brother. Rodman, known as "Rod" worked in Carrizozo 29 years ago for Means as a body and fender man.

Although both artists have albums in the top ten of the Christian music charts, each differs in their style of music. The Benny Hester Band leans more toward a rock beat while Kelly Willard maintains a mellow sound with her piano. Even though there is a vast difference in tempo both Hester's and Willard's songs reflect their love and commitment for Jesus Christ.

The concert on Sept. 1 will be the final one in a series of four which were produced by Maranatha - Mountain Ministries of Ruidoso.

M-Y T-I-M-E

by Michael Swickard

The price of beef has risen for some, but for others, it seems that some stickier fingers have been at work. Round here that is called rustling. But worse, it is real quiet. Nobody knows.

I read in the Roswell Daily Record Sunday, where the director of the State Crime Stoppers Commission says the program plans to go after cattle thieves soon.

Also said that 82 head of cattle were "stolen" from a ranch near Carrizozo.

So I ambled over to the S.O. (Sheriff's Office) and found out that they didn't know about any cattle rustling.

Hard to catch the bad guys when the sheriff doesn't know, nor the state Police Officers for Carrizozo or Corona.

So I called the people at Crime Stoppers. They said that they were informed of the deed by the New Mexico Livestock Board.

I called Mr. Mel Sidillo, the special investigator for the Livestock Board and found out that the 82 head were taken between October and December of LAST YEAR.

The posse needs to start soon or the trail will grow cold.

It is a confusing story with no one knowing what anyone else is doing. We have heard rumors of other cattle missing and wonder if the criminals are benefitting too much from a lack of information on the law enforcement side.

Crime Stoppers is offering a reward of $2000 and the owner is offering a reward of $3000. I bet that brings out all of the old stories.

Speaking of stories, last year at this time I was at a birthday party for a couple of the long-timers in this area.

One of the old ranchers at the barbeque said to another, "You know, other people's beef always tastes better than your own."

The other rancher came back quickly with, "I wouldn't know, never eaten my own beef." MS

Arthur Clements from Tinnie, has a nice solution for the BLM controversy with the ranchers. He says, "Let the congress pass a law to seal all of the federal land to private individuals, and let the law stipulate that every dollar of the proceeds be applied to the national debt."

This is an excellent suggestion. I can hear them crying in Washington right now. They might be out of a job. Serve 'em right after all they have done to make us go broke. MS

And when Washington has nothing better to do, they are writing totally unintelligible memos back and forth to each other, on our time. How about this one for HEW to it's workers:

In order to facilitate meaningful parameters in the work flow and eliminate the dichotomies that tend to inhibit maximization of manpower, it is hereby requested that all intake personnel finalize the attached forms and submit them to their supervisors on an ongoing basis. Whenever a condition of similarity can be established for processing intakes of a similar nature, it helps to expedite service response. Your input if greatly appreciated.

If we are not getting our money's worth out of government, maybe we could think of something else to do with out money. MS

America's Love Affair With Auto Survived Bumpy Road of Rationing

by Robert C. Radcliffe National Geographic News Service

WASHINGTON — Gasoline rationing is a road Americans have driven down before, a road that only stretched "for the duration" of World War II, but today may be a road with no end in sight.

It is also a road today crowded by 5.5 times as many cars, trucks, and buses as we had to ration 37 years ago. And last year we drove them altogether 2.5 times the distance the earth travels in its yearly swing around the sun.

Americans' love affair with the automobile has become nothing short of torrid during the years since our first experience with gasoline rationing began in May 1942, and ended with V-J Day in August 1945.

For Americans in early 1942, the fighting had just begun, and assembly lines were switching from sedans and convertibles to tanks and jeeps.

"This Trip Necessary?" Ahead by 46 months of stretching and hoarding gas coupons, holding to the nationwide speed limit of 35 miles an hour, and wearing irreplaceable tires all but right down to the rim.

We became a nation of car-poolers, asking ourselves, "Is this trip really necessary?" and learning to stay closer to home on vacations. A bicycle was a rare prize. Labor Day carnage on the highway was out-in-half.

At the time of Pearl Harbor, 77,000,000 motor vehicles ruled the roads. At the end of 1978, Americans were at the wheel of 117,147,000 cars and 31,921,000 trucks and buses, and we had driven 1,516,100,000,000 miles during the year, 77 percent in cars.

In 1941 regular gasoline cost 19.2 cents a gallon including taxes. By the war's end the price had shot up to 20.5 cents. (At the end of World War I, with relatively few cars and voluntary rationing, gasoline cost 25.4 cents a gallon.)

In December 1943 poll takers found that three-fourths of Americans believed rationing necessary. Only 10 percent claimed there was no real shortage of gasoline.

Allied war efforts soaked up 7 billion barrels of gasoline, four-fifths provided by the United States. Besides saving "gas for GIs," there was another critical reason for rationing. The Japanese cut off 92 percent of our normal rubber supplies. There would be no more tires "for the duration."

Today, America rolls on tires of man-made rubber. For example, in automobile radials only about 25 percent of natural rubber, the rest is synthetic. But—and here's the irony—the synthetic is made from crude oil.

Out of every 42-gallon barrel of crude oil, 1.51 gallons goes into making tires and plastics. Gasoline is made from 18.2 gallons.

Driven slower during the war, cars averaged about 15 miles a gallon. Every car-rated an "A" windshield sticker, indicating the car was eligible for the basic amount of gas, from six gallons a month early in the war to 24 as victory neared. That was supposed to be good for 1,500 miles a year.

About a third of the cars relied solely on "A" rations. About 60 percent rated "B" rations for driving to their jobs, and "C" rations for those who needed a car in their work, such as salesmen.

"D" stickers were for those with special needs, such as driving to the family victory garden on the outskirts to town or even traveling regularly to a nearby military post to be a volunteer chaperone at USO dances.

Gas stickers "E" Most prized of all stickers were the "E" and "X" stickers assuring an unlimited supply of ration stamps to police, firemen, clergymen, reporters and new photographers, doctors, bosses of military construction projects, and morticians, among other members of the gas-sticker elite.

Stickers and the needed coupons drivers had to sign and hand over at gas stations were issued every three months by some 5,600 wartime price and rationing boards run by the Office of Price Administration. The Office of Defense Transportation also issued certificates for the needs of about 5 million vehicles, including more than a million trucks operated by farmers.

Inevitably and despite official warnings, the coupons were traded around, though they were not supposed to be transferable.

Black marketeering was suspected everywhere, but Paul Porter, OPA administrator for most of the war, says less than 5 percent of the total available gasoline supplies found its way into illegal channels.

However, police say there was 10 times less counterfeit money printed during the war while attention was switched to easier-to-fake gas coupons.

Many people today, trying to figure out the fairest rationing system and, at the same time, remembering black marketeering of ration coupons during World War II, argue in favor of ration coupons that could be given away or sold legally, in effect creating a new form of currency.

N.M.S.U. Enrollment Continues Traditional Growth Pattern

LAS CRUCES—Fall semester enrollment for the 1978-80 academic year at New Mexico State University's main campus and five branch operations is expected to continue a traditional pattern of growth.

"Slight increases are expected," according to NMSU President Gerald W. Thomas. Fall registration on the main campus in Las Cruces is expected to total between 11,800 and 12,000. The 1978 fall semester enrollment was 11,605. The freshman class is expected to be about the same as last year's 1,904.

A comparable pattern is expected at the five branch colleges in the NMSU system. Dr. Lowery Davis, dean of NMSU's College of Human and Community Services, said, "We expect a modest increase with the greatest interest being shown in vocational technical programs."

Fall term registration is scheduled Aug. 27-28 on the main campus and branch campuses (Farmington, Carlsbad, Grants, Alamogordo and Dona Ana branch in Las Cruces). Schedules of faculty and staff orientation sessions vary.

Thomas commented, "The profile of the average student at NMSU will continue along the same patterns: largely rural oriented, in need of financial help and strongly motivated for work and academic achievement. The average student age will continue to increase following the trend toward returning 'stop-outs' and second careers."

"University research activities continue to grow," Thomas said.

Student interests reflect national interests in energy fields and other scientific areas. NMSU-based research projects in all areas were funded at more than $20 million during fiscal 1978-79 and, according to Dr. Harold Daw, associate academic vice president, "still growing." A current research trend is towards practical applications in specific settings.

New and returning students on the main campus will be greeted by a 50,601 square-foot addition to Corbett Center, NMSU's student union. Student fees and self-generating funds cover the total cost of $3.2 million which includes remodeling in the original building. The project has combined student dining services, recreation facilities and student offices in a single structure.

Two academic buildings are under construction. Designed to house elements of the College of Engineering and offices of energy research institutes, a $3.6 million structure is expected to be ready for occupancy by the middle of spring semester. The 48,000 square-foot will be partially heated and cooled by a hybrid solar energy system. A $2.5 million English speech building will provide 225,000 square feet for the two academic departments and will include facilities for the speech and hearing clinic and a mini-auditorium for readers' theater and other uses.

Scheduled for go to bid in early January, construction of a new building for the College of Agriculture and Home Economics could begin in late spring. The 58,000-square-foot structure is estimated to cost $5 million.

The "Union Bug." It Carries a Dangerous Disease

By Reed Larson

"For no one could get a job or even buy in any store without the permit of that mark." —Rev. 13:17

Mary Mallon was not a vicious person. She was never known to have wielded a deadly weapon or struck a blow in anger.

Yet from 1907 to 1915, Miss Mallon left a record-setting trail of death, despair, and devastation. By the time the authorities tracked her down in New York City, she is reported to have laid low at least 50 persons, and killed three others — all unintentionally.

How did Mary Mallon singlehandedly wreak such a reign of terror? Her nickname says it all: The history books call her "Typhoid Mary."

I was reminded of Typhoid Mary's tragic tale earlier this week when a staffer brought in a promotional packet from a local bank. The packet contained a return envelope, and there on the return envelope was the tiny little smudge-like insignia known as the "union bug."

Now chances are the majority of workers at that bank staunchly oppose compulsory unionism. As with 70 percent of the American people, they probably feel workers should be allowed to decide for themselves whether or not to join or support a union.

Then why did the envelope carry the notorious "union bug"? Probably because those who ordered the printing don't really know what the "bug" represents. And, unfortunately, they're not alone.

They may have thought, as many people do, that the "union bug" simply means, "Made in America with American labor." There's nothing wrong with "Buying American," of course. But, unfortunately, the union bug has nothing to do with that concept.

Or they may have thought that the "union bug" is merely a union seal of approval, that it simply means "This meets union standards" (whatever they may be). That's a little nearer to the truth. But it still tells only half the story.

What the "union bug" really means is that in the shop where that product was printed, non-union workers have been thrown off the job. The "bug" announces to the world that workers who have exercised their right not to join the union are being denied the opportunity to work while their employer hands out the work projects — and the paychecks — to union members only.

In short, the "union bug," harmless though it may appear, is the sign of coercion, a symbol of suppression. It's a particularly sinister means of discouraging American workers from exercising their birthright to freedom of choice.

Now, that's pretty heavy stuff. The idea that staunch advocates of workers' rights are unknowingly endorsing compulsory unionism — and even circulating its propaganda — is a forbidding thought.

That's why I was glad to see that the staffer had penned in an appropriate message before sending the return envelope back to the bank.

Drawing an arrow to the "union bug," he had written beneath it: "This 'bug' carries a dangerous disease: compulsory unionism."

I was impressed by that simple, yet significant message. So impressed that I had it put on a handy rubber stamp. Now, whenever I get a piece of printed material bearing the "bug," I intend to rubber stamp it and return it to the sender.

If you'd like to join in this effort to eradicate the "bug," just send $3.00 for your very own rubber stamp. Write to me, Reed Larson, National Right to Work Committee, 8316 Arlington Blvd., Suite 600-A, Fairfax, VA 22038.

We may not be able to "stamp" out compulsory unionism in our lifetime; but at least — unlike the unfortunate Mary Mallon — we won't find ourselves unintentionally spreading the "bug."

OVER THE SECOND CUP

Scott Shepperd had his foot and leg cast removed recently. He has started school and work. His mom said he is T or C friend, Tom Daugherty, had a little accident on the mechanical goat (motorcycle).

Robbie Shepperd celebrated his 11th birthday yesterday, August 28.

Because one family tradition is the preparation of the favorite food of the birthday person, the kids in this household looked forward to my birthday last week. The cherry cheese cake was a big hit.

I look forward to my birthday every year. My daughter looked all over and couldn't find a book I wanted for my birthday - "Raising Mosquitos in Your Spare Time." I was so anxious to celebrate my 'Jack Benny Birthday', that I almost celebrated on the day before by mistake.

Sense & Nonsense

U.S. Senator Pete Domenici

In Nevada it has been dubbed the Sagebrush Rebellion. It is a term the media gave to the current crisis that centers around our public lands. For a while it seemed to me that the "Sagebrush Rebellion" was simply a media cliché, but after our Energy Subcommittee hearings in Las Cruces last week, I am more convinced than ever that this could indeed become a rebellion of unbelievable proportions. The seeds for such a rebellion have already been sown.

The problem is not one that can be easily explained for it involves 13 million acres of federal lands in New Mexico, 9 million acres of state lands, millions of additional acres in other states, the federal and state governments, numerous governmental agencies, ranchers, bankers and environmentalists. But in the final analysis this problem affects each and everyone of us, for at a time when we are demanding more food production, Bureau of Land Management regulations pose the very serious question of whether such a goal can be reached.

Environmental Impact Statements that were done for the BLM on public grazing lands reveal that reducing grazing on some of these lands will mean many ranchers in our state will have their incomes cut in half, many will be forced out of business, most will have to seek outside jobs to supplement their incomes, and all our ranchers will no longer be the self-reliant group that they are now. As Don Kidd, a Carlsbad resident, testified at last week's hearings, "these regulations will destroy the independent ranchers."

Some environmentalists argue that there has been overgrazing, and while to some extent there has been, the truth is that our public lands today are in much better shape than ever. Experts from New Mexico State University, who were involved in the preparation of some of these environmental impact statements, noted that our public lands today are in better condition than at any time before, and they added that while so many varied interests have been considered with regard to the grazing issue, the small independent ranchers have all but been ignored.

Certainly not all the people who run BLM are at fault, many are only following court directives with regard to livestock grazing on public lands. Some are quietly frustrated at the bureaucratic nightmare that has emerged.

There will not be easy solutions to this problem, but there simply must be a better way of resolving this crisis without depending on environmental impact statements which in and of themselves can only further confuse this already confused situation. If we continue with present policies, the small family farm will go the way of the small family grocery store.

The plain fact is that the Sagebrush Rebellion is sweeping across New Mexico like wildfire.

But you never heard of John Gorrie, have you? But I have been thinking a lot about him lately as we are forced to live in 78 degree buildings.

Back in the mid-1800's, John invented air conditioning, a cool air machine that was first used to keep hospital patients cool. When John Gorrie invented the air conditioner I seriously doubt he gave much thought to the impending scarcity of fossil fuels. John just wanted to be cool, he didn't want to get hot worrying about how his invention was going to be powered.

Today, of course, we are worried about things like that, after all, that's the reason we decided to up our thermostats to 78 degrees in summer and down to 65 degrees in winter. But I really don't think these are the kind of things that we need to worry about forever as some have recently suggested.

The energy crisis should not be something permanent. True, the next several years will be challenging ones, and we all will have to do our part to conserve the fuel we now have, but at the same time we must undertake an ambitious program to develop new and alternative energy powers.

Recently in a letter to the editor of a major American newspaper, a reader writes, "Maybe the time has come to turn off our electric hair-dryers, hot dog makers, and waffle machines and use only the energy we need."

My response to that letter is, "Why should we?" There is plenty of energy to power those devices and those that haven't been invented yet, we'll only have to power those machines with fuels other than the conventional ones.

Inventions made our country what it is, and I don't think we have to revert backwards just because some energy sources are rapidly depleting. What we need now is a bit more ingenuity to solve this energy crisis and find a way to keep all these inventions of ours running.

I for one don't want to live in a sauna all summer, or do without my electric razor. True at present we must make some sacrifices, but I don't believe we should make these sacrifices without also thinking about "that better idea."

Inside the Outdoors

by Gary Dollahan

If you have taken a good deep breath of morning air lately, then you already know that fall is just around the corner. Yep, it's that time of year again for football games, school, and huntin' seasons.

Although most of our New Mexico Department of Game and Fish personnel like to watch a football game every now and then, and most of us express an interest in local school activities, it is really the hunting seasons which are our major concern.

September 1, the opening day of dove season, is the traditional kick-off date for the hunting season. This year dove season is September 1 through September 30, and November 24 through December 23 statewide.

The bag limit for doves is 10 per day and possession limit is 20.

The band-tailed pigeon season is September 1 thru September 20 for all of the state except the Southwest quarter. The season for the Southwest (South of U.S. 60 and west of Interstate 25) is October 5 thru October 24.

The limits for band-tailed pigeons is 5 birds per day and 10 in possession.

Every band-tail hunter must have, in addition to his bird license, a special band-tail permit. The permit is free and can be obtained by applying in person to any Game and Fish Office or by mail to the Santa Fe office only. Supply your name, address, and number of your bird hunting license.

The blue-winged, green-winged, and cinnamon teal season this year is September 15 thru September 23. It is open ONLY in the Central Flyway portion of the state. The limit is 4 teal per day and 8 in possession. One fully feathered wing or the head of each teal taken must remain attached to the bird until it is at your home or a locker plant.

Teal hunters who are at least 16 years of age must also have a duck stamp in addition to their state bird license.

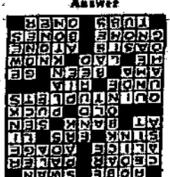

Chickaree squirrel season for Southeastern New Mexico management units 34, 36, 37, and 38 is September 1 thru September 20. This season is for Chickaree squirrels only and the limit is 5 per day and 10 in possession.

Shooting hours for all of the above species except teal are 1/2 hour before sunrise to sunset. Teal shooting hours are from sunrise to sunset.

Federal regulations require that shotguns being used for pigeons, dove and teal (as well as other waterfowl) must be incapable of holding more than 3 shells (plugged).

Remember, all hunters, regardless of age, must have hunting licenses. Furthermore, it is illegal for anyone under the age of 18 years to go afield with a firearm unless he is in possession of a certificate indicating he has successfully completed an approved hunter training course.

An information sheet regarding these early hunts can be obtained at any New Mexico Game and Fish office and at all license vendors.

Carrizozo School News

Teacher of the Week

Mr. Alfred Madrid

The school administration in their effort to promote art have started a series of one-man (one-person) shows in the administration building which also houses the board room. Leading off the monthly shows will be the works of Mr. Joe DeTevis, art teacher. The next show will be the works of Mr. Jerry Peckinpugh, a mid-school language teacher.

Dr. Jim Miller, superintendent said three reasons were behind the decision to display art works in a school location: (1) to provide a place for teaching students about art in regard to different artist's styles and techniques, (2) to encourage and promote the talents of local and regional artists, and expose their works for purchase, (3) to create a nicer atmosphere for the administration building.

Miller has sent letters to area artists to invite them to display their works. Artists who did not get a letter are encouraged to contact the school to make arrangements for displaying. The works of individual artists will be exhibited for a month. The community is invited to stop during the working day at the administration building to view the DeTevis display now in exhibition.

Mr. Sterling Spencer, school board chairman accompanied Dr. Jim Miller to Santa Fe August 23 to appear before a Bureau of Outdoor Recreation hearing. Spencer and Miller along with municipal governments and other school district officials from this region, presented projects to improve outdoor school facilities that are used by the community. Outcome of hearing will be announced at a later date.

Each new teacher will be introduced through this column. This week's teacher is Mr. Alfred Madrid who teaches 8th grade Earth Science, 9th grade Physical Science and 10th grade Biology Sections A and B and Chemistry. Madrid also coaches girls varsity volleyball and later on boys basketball and JV track.

Madrid has begun volleyball practice. Basic skills are being developed such as 'digging' and 'setting'. The 20 or so girls are also working on conditioning. Coach Madrid says the team has been working hard. Mrs. Wilmore, 3rd grade teacher is Madrid's assistant coach this year. The first game is Sept. 11 in Vaughn.

Prior to teaching and coaching in Carrizozo, Madrid was on the Maxwell, N.M. school staff. His volleyball team there took second in the state tournaments. Madrid's basketball team was second in their district, went to state but lost in the first round. His track team took 3rd in the state track meet.

Madrid and his wife, Christine are former Las Vegas, N.M. residents. He attended Highlands University. They are expecting their first child next month.

Parents and teachers met Aug. 21 for organizing a PTO. The following are the officers: Mrs. Danny Narvaez, president; Mrs. Refugio Najjar, Jr., first vice-president; Mrs. Joe Orsak, second vice-president; Mrs. Gary Persall, secretary-treasurer. Mr. and Mrs. Earl Fenter, chairpeople in charge of room parents.

Present at the PTO meeting were officers of the student council Arthur Vega, president; Vince Vega, vice-president; and Cristabel Hill, secretary. A teacher sponsor will be named at the Aug. 29 council meeting. The council was invited to speak at the PTO.

The PTO discussed plans for homecoming, a week long series of events including the painting of the "C". Permission was granted from Mr. Bill Stephenson on whose land the original "C" is located. This event had been discontinued. At one time it was part of the initiation of freshmen activities, which originated with the 49 freshmen class. PTO meetings are held the third Tuesday of each month.

The FHA-HERO Chapter under advisor Mrs. Emma Lawson, home ec teacher, met recently and discussed projects to kick off the school year. Officers in the organization are Brigitte Sandoval, president; Elana Cantrell, vice-president; Jaylen Vega, treasurer; Rosie Lueras, secretary. A fresh fruit stand on school grounds every morning is among the many money raising projects planned. A date to keep in mind is Oct. 15 when the club will sponsor a 'Gang Show'. Details will be available later.

An FHA-HERO membership party will be held Sept. 17 in the evening. Boys and girls who have completed one semester of home ec or have enrolled are eligible. The Chapter is looking forward to a fun filled year and boys are encouraged to become members.

The A and B varsity cheerleaders and their sponsor, Anne Ferguson held a meeting Aug. 27. They discussed plans for a victory line for the first home game here Sept. 21 against Hatch. The Vo-ag class, under instructor Mr. Ken Jones will design and build an unusual victory emblem for the occasion. The busy cheerleaders made plans to sell stadium cushions to sports fans can watch their favorite team in comfort. The varsity and junior varsity cheerleaders will make 1,000 burritos for an out of town buyer as another fund raising project.

CLIP AND SAVE: Monday thru Friday lunch menu. Sept. 3: no school; Sept. 4: tacos, chili sauce, shredded lettuce, grated cheese, diced tomato, Spanish rice, apple crisp; Sept. 5: pig-in-a-blanket, peas with cream sauce, carrot-raisin salad, chocolate cake; Sept. 6: meat loaf, greens, mashed potatoes, cranberry sauce, hot rolls, vanilla pudding; Sept. 7: sausage and cheese pizza, tossed salad, fruit gelatin; peanut butter cookies. Mrs. V. Stephenson is the Junior High volleyball coach. Practice which began Aug. 28 starts immediately after school and ends at 4:00 p.m. The first JV game is Sept. 11 in Vaughn.

Mrs. L.V. Ladd won a lamb and Dr. Jim Miller a hog in the FFA raffle at the Lincoln County Fair. The group's food booth at the Fair was a big success. Ken Jones, FFA advisor, his wife Laura and FFA's parents faithfully supported the club. The FFA entry results will be published. President of the busy club is Philip Payne.

The Junior High Cheerleaders burrito sales at the Fair enabled them to pay for their uniforms and still bank money. Sponsor-teacher Mrs. Stephenson says the girls are to be commended for their effort.

At least nine craftworkers and three dance teams will be featured in the popular Indian Village at the 1979 New Mexico State Fair in Albuquerque.

Edward Sanchez of Albuquerque is chairman of the village this year for the sponsoring New Mexico Council of American Indians.

Most New Mexico tribes and several from other southwestern states will be participating in activities at the village, which this year is marking its 16th anniversary.

The New Mexico Fair's Indian Village is ranked as one of the largest and most authentic of any exposition in the country.

Dance teams from the Zuni, Kiowa and-Bylas Apache tribes will be providing entertainment daily during the 12 day fair this year.

Craftworkers lined up to appear this year include: Hopi Kachina doll maker George E. Pooley, Jemez basket weaver Sefora Tosa, Hopi moccasin maker Rex Poayouma.

Also: Kiowa bread worker Pat Freeman, potter Evelyn Vigil, Navajo sand painter Fred Stevens, Zuni piki bread maker Effa Bonné, Navajo rug weaver Bertha Stevens and Zuni silversmith Eugene Mahooty.

Indian Day at the 1979 State Fair will be Wednesday, September 19.

The 1979 New Mexico State Fair, the 42nd annual edition of The Biggest to pack and move out here. That problem-getting industries to decide to move here rather than somewhere else-is assigned to the state's Department of Commerce and Industry. They were doing the talking at the meeting of the Board of Economic Development.

They didn't sound quite as hopeful as Domenici and King.

The man who runs the division charged with that task, Al Dietz, is constitutionally a very honest man. He is not a pie-in-the-sky salesman, as some people in his business are. Al will generally tell you what he feels in a direct and uncomplicated manner. What he feels on this subject is that we've got a lot of problems.

One what worries him especially is "balance," by which he means a fair sharing out of all the jobs we have-both the 30,000 in manufacturing and the 120,000 in government.

No true servant of the state wants to see one part of the state flourish while other parts wither and die. While that's not literally the way it is now, Dietz would be the first to admit that the distribution which is totally fair has never been achieved. It bothers him, and he will keep searching earnestly for an answer.

Here's part of the reason why: When you bring one totally new job to an area by this process of either new or old manufacturing plants, you create a total of nine new jobs- teachers, cogs, grocery clerks-outside the manufacturing facility. That can affect an under-jobs area in a most dramatic way.

Can we promise that kind of thing to our rural areas? That's one of the questions Dietz and his staff keep asking themselves. Is it a false hope to say we can?

Well, maybe the Domenici-King idea comes closer to answering that. If we can get some totally new industries, not clogged with old ideas, some of them may actually find their small and specialized plants take most naturally to less-urbanized areas.

Maybe they can help save some declining counties.

Did we make Channel 4 news?

by Michael Swickard

The big question around these parts this week was "Did we make Channel 4 news?" Of course we did.

All it took was the combination of a gun incident near Bonto Lake involving two groups of people from Roswell, and the word, "Motorcycle".

What was really shown was how the information can get blown out of control.

Today I was told that the rumor is that it was two motorcycle "gangs" having a war for possession of the Bonto.

Such are the rumors when the name is Lincoln County. Actually the incident involved no gangs and a few people from Roswell.

The incredible hysteria that is created whenever someone says, "Motorcycle" is beyond belief. It's much like the Joe McCarthy era of the 1950's.

We definitely have our share of violence in Lincoln County, but just because a motorcycle was present does not mean a gang was involved.

We are going to scare ourselves into a frenzy if we don't stop our emotions from running away with our thoughts.

Last summer I attended a meeting on what to do with motorcycle gangs, in which several participants talked of organizing a vigilante group to just "show 'em off their motorcycles" as they ride into town.

Then we could really be on the Channel 4 news. MS

My mother just returned from a stay in the Holloman AFB Hospital. We're glad to have her home with us. In the time that she was in the Base Hospital, she was reminded that just 29 years ago last week, she was in the same hospital with me. I arrived amid the summer heat back when the hospital didn't have air conditioning.

My mother loves, (as all mothers do) to tell those old stories about "when Mike was a kid". But this time I will bear her the punch.

Recently someone asked how I became a "good" listener. I attributed this quality to the training that my mother gave.

When pressed for more details I related how when I was about five, my Mother was lecturing me on something I had done, when she noticed that I was listening to her, and watching her completely. Usually my attention up to that point had been spotty at best.

She became very enthused and gave an arousing lecture to my rapt attention.

Finally after about ten minutes of spirited oration, she hit me with that question that all small boys have to answer, "What have you got to say for yourself young man?"

I replied, "Mama, do you realize that when you talk, your ears wiggle?"

It was at that point that I learned what listening was all about.

But not until later did I learn the whole picture. Several years later I was instructed by my mom to "wax the kitchen floor". We kids all had chores to do around the house, and the floors were one of mine.

I protested to my mom that a baseball game was starting down the block and was short one player, hence I felt compelled to "do my duty".

She didn't fall for that one and so with a considerable amount of protest and an incredible lack of thinking, I proceeded to pour the liquid wax on the floor, spread it, and then left for the baseball game.

We had quite a lively discussion that night about my lack of listening to the whole story. Seems I neglected to sweep, wash, and rinse the floor before waxing and my mother had noticed my oversight as soon as she got home that night.

In fact spirited discussion seems a bit mild even now. Come to think of it, she did most of the talking, and I did most of the listening. MS

BLM Adoption Program--

Wild Burro Finds Home

One of the West's living symbols - wild, free-roaming burros - found a new home in Carrizozo, New Mexico. Melissa Bolje, of Carrizozo, has received one wild burro from the U.S. Bureau of Land Management (BLM) under a nationwide "Adopt-A-Burro" program, which is aimed at reducing animal numbers now overpopulating federal lands at Alamo Lake, in western Arizona.

The adoption program was started by the BLM to thin out herds of burros that have been increasing by almost 20 percent a year since they were given protection by the passage of the 1971 Wild and Free-Roaming Horse and Burro Act. This population explosion has seriously damaged the fragile desert environment, explained Dean Durfee, Area Manager of Lower Gila Resource Area. "There simply isn't enough forage to sustain all the animals that depend on desert growth for survival," Durfee said. "This includes not only burros but also cattle and many species of wildlife, including deer and desert bighorn sheep."

The wild burros are free to qualified applicants, but must be transported and given proper care at the expense of the recipient. Federal law also prohibits adopted animals from being used for any commercial purposes.

Cemetery Clean-up

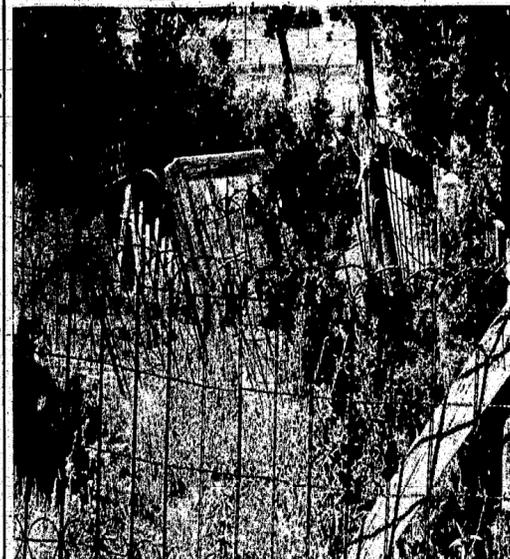

Day is Sept. 8th

September 8 has been scheduled as Capitan Cemetery Clean-up Day by the Lincoln County 4-H Council.

Participants are urged to meet at the cemetery at 9 a.m. where Capitan Village maintenance crews will assist in the clean-up. Presently the cemetery is not maintained, plots there are not sold, but donations are accepted to defray costs. Capitan village crews handle burial operations.

The clean-up will emphasize weed removal and repairs to burial plots. The village plans to sell lots for elementary improvement of the cemetery.

Until that is done, volunteer work is needed and county 4-H members are urged to turn out for this work day. Anyone needing information may contact: Martha Proctor, 4-H Council or Doris Engelking, Capitan Village Hall.

Sheriff's Report--

Shooting Highlights Weekend

Eleven persons seven men and four women were held for questioning by the Lincoln County Sheriff's Department on Labor Day in regard to an ambush of a Roswell family as they were leaving the Bonto Lake area.

Bruce Sprouler 23, of Roswell was charged with aggravated battery with Fire Arm Enhancement. Sprouler was released on a $5000 bond and is to appear before Magistrate S.M. Ortiz for arraignment.

Ten of the eleven were questioned and released pending further investigation.

In the incident, Ramon Anaya of Roswell suffered a gun shot wound in the head when a shot gun was fired through the car windshield. Anaya, admitted to the Ruidoso-Rondo Valley Hospital is in good condition. Johnnie Lopez, age 10 was treated and released after being hit on the head with a tire tool.

A warrant, Larceny of Firearm, was filed by the Lincoln County Sheriff's Office on Gary Martinez, Chris Miller and a third subject from Roswell in regard to an incident on Friday, August 31 that was called in to the Sheriff's Office on a complaint of hunters shooting at each other in Pine Lodge.

Bob O'Conner was charged with Contempt of Court by Magistrate S.M. Ortiz and is serving a 10 day jail sentence in the Lincoln County Jail.

The incident resulted from the August 30 Municipal Court for Henry Neiderstadt Jr., charged with careless driving. O'Conner apparently was present on Neiderstadt's behalf.

O'Conner would not remove his hat in the court room and was tape recording proceedings. O'Conner refused to remove his tape recorder and told Judge Ortiz his courtroom jurisdiction ended in the doorway. O'Conner argued that the hallway was not the courtroom.

After repeated requests for O'Conner to remove himself from court, Judge Ortiz asked that O'Conner be placed under arrest for Contempt of Court.

Earlier that same day O'Conner armed with a pocket size camera, tape recorder and an unidentified book requested of Town Hall employees minute books, ordinance book, Town Charter and Uniform Traffic Ordinance. After taking photographs of minute books he asked for page copies of the other official books.

O'Conner sent Henry Neiderstadt for copies later. When Neiderstadt was informed that copies of the Traffic Ordinance were not available because Ortiz had the book, Neiderstadt left and returned with O'Conner.

O'Conner proceeded to tape record the conversation with Town Police Clerk, Rosemary Gallegos concerning Neiderstadt's court time and requested a copy of the criminal complaint. He threatened to take Town employees to court and read from a book he was carrying, adding, "I hope you heard that".

Other Town Police activity included a September 29 morning motorcycle accident on school grounds.

The accident involved the son of Chief of Police Morales and another youth. They were taken to Gerald Champion Memorial Hospital in Alamogordo by Carrizozo ambulance.

On August 22, at approximately 6:30 p.m., Officers Dale Houbley and Deputy Sheriff Bill Hasenbuhler were dispatched to the Western Texas in reference to a robbery. It was reported that two males had been in the station and while the attendant was kept busy outside by one of the men, the other one took all of the money from the cash register.

A road block was set up a half mile north of Tularosa and a car fitting the description of one of the two men was stopped and the occupants were arrested. They were charged with Larceny over $100.00 and less than $2,500.00.

Paul Hill, 32, and John L. Johnson, 35, of Amarillo, Texas are being held in the Lincoln County Jail at this time awaiting further hearings related to this incident.

Late Bulletins

There will be an orientation for new members of the Carrizozo Woman's club September 8th at 9:30 a.m. at the Women's club building.

Everyone interested is invited to attend. For further information call Mary Spencer at 648-2875.

THIS GOODWIN, OUR AUDIOLOGIC EXAMINATION SHOWS YOUR HEARING IS IMPAIRED IN THE HIGH TONES YOU'RE ABLE TO HEAR SOUNDS BUT HAVE TROUBLE UNDERSTANDING WHAT'S SAID. IT'S A CLASSIC SYMPTOM OF NERVE IMPAIRMENT - SOMETIMES CALLED NERVE DEAFNESS.

MOST LOSSES LIKE THIS COME ON GRADUALLY OVER THE YEARS. MEDICAL EXPERTS GENERALLY AGREE THAT NO EFFECTIVE MEDICAL TREATMENT OR CURE HAS BEEN FOUND FOR THIS TYPE OF LOSS BUT FORTUNATELY MANY PEOPLE WITH A HEARING LOSS LIKE YOURS MAY BE HELPED BY AMPLIFICATION OF SOUND.

AMPLIFICATION MAY HELP YOU IT MAY BE YOUR ANSWER, MRS GOODWIN TRY IT. OUR MODERN HEARING AIDS ARE BEAUTIFULLY DESIGNED AND AMPLIFY EFFICIENTLY. HERE'S AN INSTRUMENT WITHOUT CORDS, WIRES OR TUBES YOU WEAR IT ENTIRELY IN YOUR EAR. IT'S CALLED PREMIUM MIRACLE-EAR!

I CAN HARDLY BELIEVE IT! IT'S SO TINY AND SO COMFORTABLE! YOU MEAN THIS IS ALL THAT I MAY NEED TO HELP ME HEAR BETTER?
