Pair Takes Fire Wagon

Two Carrizozo firemen are in hot water this week for "borrowing" a fire department vehicle and driving it to Three Rivers.

At 10:15 p.m. Saturday December 22, State Police officer Dave West booked volunteer firemen Marcos Barela Jr., 25, and George Serna, 22, into the Lincoln County jail following what was termed by one police observer as an "unusual occurrence."

Town patrolman Guy Brown reported to Fire Chief Albert Najjar that the fire department's 1962 Dodge station wagon left town at 8:13 p.m., headed south.

Najar went to the Lincoln County Sheriff's Office and signed a stolen vehicle affidavit.

Fire Chief Najjar stated to the NEWS, "People have the wrong idea about this. They (Barela and Serna) are members of the Volunteer Fire Department. They have the authority to drive those vehicles."

He further stated, "All we wanted was the car back."

Barela was charged with DWI, Reckless Driving, Speeding, Possession of a Stolen Vehicle, Failure to Yield to an Emergency Vehicle, No Valid Driver's License, Resisting an Officer, and Possession of Marijuana. He was released December 26th on $1050.00 bond.

Serna was charged with Possession of a Stolen Vehicle and is out under $1,000 bond.

Felony charges in connection with the stolen vehicle are pending against Barela and Serna in magistrate court.

The incident followed the annual Fire Department Christmas Party, and was deemed by Chief Najjar, "not as serious as some people think."

Contacted by the NEWS, Mayor English stated that he was informed that night of the incident and had met with Fire Chief Najjar concerning the incident.

Fire Chief Najjar stated to the NEWS that after the meeting with English, no internal disciplinary action has been planned for the pair.

The incident follows a letter to the town council by a past town patrolman about members of the Volunteer Fire Department consuming alcohol at the Fire Station.

The fire vehicle was driven back from Osceuro by Lincoln County Deputy Bill Hasenbuhler, after the arrest of Barela.

My Time

by Michael Swickard

Another year, another decade has come and gone. What surprises we have seen, in all it seems that only the sky and the mountains last forever, everything else in our lives change and change they do. So in this coming decade the word will be "adapt." Being able to adapt to new and challenging situations will be what counts in the coming years. MS

Asked for advice of the coming decade, I have replied for the coming years, learn to grow your own food. Learning to manage your own food will insure that if things get tough, you will still eat. Food makes up the majority of my diet and I seem to be addicted to eating every so often. For that reason I have been learning about canning food, drying and jerking meats, and the other essentials to eating regularly when times are hard.

I am not saying that times will for certain get hard, it just seems the way things usually go. Remember, it always gets darkest just before it gets completely black.

The one thing that sticks in my mind is that no one in Lincoln County has very much of an easy life, so we are used to hard times. If the economic situation drops out of sight, we will still make it. Ah, but those fat cats in Washington. . . MS

It seems once someone has a typewriter, he or she usually around this time feels compelled to make predictions on the upcoming years. So with full knowledge of my own fallibility here goes.

The upcoming years will make this last year look like a summer vacation. The number one problem will be the inability of the American public to discipline themselves. A break point will have to be reached and then the system of paper wealth will surely fall apart. There already is many bitter older citizens that felt that if they could save enough to have two hundred a month, they would be doing real nice. With the run-away inflation many of these senior citizens have seen their entire life savings stolen by something that they can not understand. There will come a point in our paper system when the expectations of the masses can not hold the economy up any longer and more than likely a crash will occur. Prices no longer have anything at all to do with the cost of providing the service. Price reflect what each greedy person thinks the public can't do without. We are no longer a nation united, we are just individuals trying to survive as best we can.

But the future will be interesting, let me tell you that for sure. New discoveries in almost every field will turn our conception of our world inside out.

And so we will have plenty to be thankful for if we think about it. It will be hard times for many. Mostly the youth will suffer. They have been promised a dream world. They have had most everything that they desired, alas, it can't go on forever. Sometimes I wonder if it isn't crueler of a parent to teach a child that the world is something that it isn't. Sooner or later the world does it's own teaching and the child feels alienated.

I am sorry to say that it would seem that suicides will probably skyrocket as people can not cope with being poor.

And if I was to anticipate anything, I would look for war to break out in the near future, somewhere. It has been long enough since our last so that the public has for the most part forgotten the real horrors of war, if they knew in the first place.

The signs are all there. A lot of nationalistic thinking on the part of many. Salt 2. The disarmament conference of 1932-34 directly preceded WWII.

But chin up. Things are not all bad. If we take steps toward the coming times, such as disciplining ourselves to the fact that we can't always do just exactly whatever we want, the coming times will not be a picnic, but they will be bearable.

Also a sense of humor may be the one most important weapon against despair. That and a good deal of gumption. Gumption is that quality of life that keeps people going when the going gets tough. As Johnson Stearns is fond of saying, "When the going gets tough, the tough get going."

I hope I haven't scared anyone off from the future. Actually the future is now. The world is at each of our doorsteps and we have but to open our eyes to discover a new world everyday.

To all I wish Peace of Mind in the coming forever. MS

Former Carrizozo Graduate (Pat Aguilar)--

A Coach On The Right Track

NUESTRO OCTOBER 1979

By Ignacio M. Garcia

Pese a lo que se supone, los latinos podemos producir buenos atletas de campo y pista. El problema es que pocos atletas hispanos tienen la oportunidad de recibir un entrenamiento adecuado — o por lo menos, eso opina Patricio Aguilar, entrenador principal de Texas A&I University en Kingsville, Texas. Esta pequeña universidad, conocida por su magnifico equipo de futbol, hasta hace poco no tenia un buen programa de campo y pista. Pero el joven aguilar llego a su nuevo puesto decidido a cambiar la situacion. Ahora está reclutando más corredores chicanos que nunca, y desarrollando el programa de campo y pista para fortalecer la categoria de distancias medias. "Los chicanos estamos mejor equipados para las distancias más prolongadas," dice. "Pero no parecen tener la velocidad necesaria para las cortas." Sea como fuere, Aguilar aparentemente está logrando su objetivo. En su primer año de entrenador, uno de sus corredores ganó un título en la categoría "cross country" y este año otro de ellos participará en una competencia nacional.

The Moscow Olympics are less than a year away, so—quick now—name one U.S. Latino who will take part in the track and field events. Nobody comes to mind, eh? Is that because we cannot produce as good athletes as Blacks and Anglos? Nonsense! Anyone who saw Cuban Alberto Juantorena win gold medals in the 400- and 800-meter races in spectacular fashion in Montreal or Daniel Bautista capture the long distance walk in the same Olympics knows Latinos can compete.

The trouble is that few Latinos get good enough coaching. And even fewer are able to mature within the sport. That is the feeling of Patricio Aguilar, head coach at Texas A & I University in Kingsville. And he should know. As head coach at the small South Texas university, the tough Chicano turns out winners—many of whom are Latino middle distance runners.

He is quick to point out that Latinos

(Chicanos, in his case) are better suited to run the distance races. "Chicanos just do not seem to have natural speed for the shorter distances," he says. Thus, when he took over as head coach at A & I, which is known in Texas for its football team, he decided to complement the usual track speed with some very good middle distance runners—those who run the 800 yard to three mile races. "I came with the intentions of building a cross country team at A & I. That was my first priority," he says. "And I wanted to do it with local talent."

He could not have been in a better spot to recruit talent than in Kingsville, the center of an area known for its middle distance runners, most of whom are Chicanos. Before Aguilar came to change things around, most Chicano runners had the misfortune of going to small schools like A & I which have poor track programs, and so few ever excelled. That is true of Latinos in all sports. A & I itself once attracted two of the best milers to come out of the state, Roberto Gonzalez and Homer Martinez. They too were the victims of poor coaching.

Aguilar reckoned to change that. He recruited the local talent, sure that "you don't have to go out of the country to get good distance runners." In his first year as coach, one of his runners won an individual cross country title in the National reason for so few top Chicano world class runners. "I think if there were more running clubs in South Texas you would see more Chicanos continuing to run after college and getting better." But he adds: "Even without running clubs there are going to be a few Chicanos every so often that will reach the world class level."

Aguilar himself has been a world class competitor since he went into coaching. He found success almost without trying. In his first nine years of coaching, at Clayton, N.M., his track squads won eight district titles and were Athletic Intercollegiate Association District four track meet. This year one of his Chicano middle distance runners qualified for the national meet and several others made impressive times.

More important, Aguilar has recruited more Chicanos than ever before, while developing the track program to strengthen the category in which Chicanos often excel. Now good Chicano middle distance runners have a university where they can get good training. "I feel track is a sport where you have to have motivation to perform well," he says. "And I think middle distance runners work as hard as anybody. They can accept work. I really enjoy working with these kids." Undoubtedly the Chicano runners feel the same way, and this has helped him recruit. He now has the largest contingent of Chicano athletes in A & I's history.

Aguilar says he feels Latinos are now getting the same chance to excel as Anglo and Black athletes, but he warns not to expect too much too soon. It may still be a few years before Chicanos will be world class competition as middle distance runners. "In distance running, the athlete usually matures until he is in his late twenties," he says. "A lot of our kids finish college and then have to go to work and forget about running. They usually do not have the sponsors or the jobs that give them time to run."

Aguilar says he believes the lack of running clubs in Chicano areas is also a state runners-up once. Next, he was assistant football coach and track head coach in Abilene, Tex., where he did even better. His teams won four district championships, three regional titles and then the state title in 1976. That year he was named Track Coach of the Year by the Texas Sportswriters Association.

But if the good folks in Abilene were ready to give Aguilar their hearts, they were not ready to give him his own football team. The top coaching job in the high school became available twice while Aguilar was in Abilene, and he applied both times. "If you want to make money in coaching, you have to be a head football coach," he explains. But this was not the type of place where a tan-skinned Chicano from New Mexico could be head coach. After all, growing Aguilar studies the hurdles. • Ha confrontado obstáculos raciales en su carrera.

Anglo boys are still taught to look at football coaches as role models, and the mustachioed Aguilar was just not their kind of model.

"They said I did not have enough experience," recalls Aguilar, who had put in five years as head coach in New Mexico. "But the coach they hired did not even have head coaching experience. I knew it was just a simple case of discrimination and so I decided to get out of there." He went to A & I.

At A & I Aguilar has gotten most of what he needs. "I cannot complain," he grins. A & I officials cannot complain, either. University fans, who normally hypermate in the football off-season, now are excited enough to come out and cheer for the tracksters. And the university alumni are talking about future track championships with all the enthusiasm they once reserved for football titles.

But Aguilar expects to bring more than just talk to A & I. He has his eyes set on winning his first conference title and taking his team to the national track meet. Undoubtedly, when his track squad does reach that pinnacle—there is virtually no doubt that it will—it will have a large contingent of middle distance runners. That means a good number of Chicanos will be competing at the national level.

From there you can bet a number of Chicano tracksters will make a bid to go to the Olympic trials and then on to the Games themselves. The talent is there and, with Aguilar, the coaching will certainly be there. That will be a hard combination to beat. Now wouldn't it be a great thing to see a large contingent of Latinos in the 1984 Olympics in Los Angeles representing this country and their communities? □

Corona Sr. Citizen News

On December 3 we had our Arts and Crafts and potluck day. There were 12 there today. For our program we made puzzles and lap robes for the Veterans Hospital, which they can always use. After working on these in the morning, the afternoon was games. We played some Mexican Dominos. Those coming to enjoy this day were Robb Pfeiffer, Minnie Davenport, Mota Vick, Katie Merritt, Julio Sanchez, Bibiana Lucero, Verna Wherry, Jaunita Owens, Iona Hodge, Ollie D. Wade, Pallie Dishman, Ramalda Aleriz. Our next Arts and Crafts day will be held January 7th and potluck at 10 a.m. Come and join us.

On December 6 some of us went to the Advisory Board Meeting. Some went to see the dentist at Carrizozo. Going from here today were Ollie D. Wade, Minnie Davenport, Verna Wherry, Magdalena Stewart and grandson Freddie Stewart to the dentist. There were 4 from Carrizozo at the meeting, Beatrice Beltran, Petra Lopez, Snooks McDaniel, Sister Jan Geha, also Lupe Mendez, and Charlie Groeschlose.

On December 10th we had our Dinner and Fun night. At which we played Bingo. We had as our guest a group from the Carrizozo Zia Center. This was our Christmas Dinner. There were 30 there tonight. Five from Carrizozo and two guests of the Keelins. Coming and enjoying the good food and fun were Ollie D. Wade, Pallie Dishman, Ernest Dishman, Maggie Vick, Minnie Davenport, Robb Pfeiffer, Katie Merritt, Lola Sanchez, Elvira Flores, Mota Vick, Romanita Chavez, Walter Pfeiffer, Dell Roberts, Verna Wherry, Arturo Aleriz, Ramalda Aleriz, Bill Keelin, Gladys Keelin, Cecilia Sena, Bibiana Lucero, Elvin Robinson, Edna Robinson, Cleo Large, guest Jeff Owens, Peggy Owens, from Carrizozo were Dr. Amy Barton, Johnnie Melton, Rachel West, John Jiron, Librad' Torrez. Everyone had an enjoyable evening.

On December 12 there was to be a Social Security Seminar at Carrizozo, this was cancelled so the Corona people went to the Potluck at the Zia Center and shopping.

Students, staff, board members and guests attended the New Horizons Developmental Center Christmas banquet last week at the Four Winds lounge. A decorated tree and the warmth of the fireplace added a touch of holiday spirit. The students played the guitar, the piano and sang for guests.

Among those enjoying turkey and all the trimmings were: Marilyn Holbrook, Sister Jan Geha, Mr. and Mrs. Bill Payne, Frankie Silva, Les Olsen, Choncho Morales, Fran, Pillo, Eileen Lambert, Mary Rich, Bob Stearns, Mr. and Mrs. Johnson Stearns, John Allen Hightower, Fr. Dave Bergs.

The Trinity United Methodist Women continued their tradition of hosting a Christmas Dinner for Senior Citizens on December 28. With help from other members of the church, 53 of our older friends were served turkey and all the trimmings. In addition, 22 plates were taken to the homes of shut-ins.

Before the meal, the guests gathered in the sanctuary of the church to listen to Christmas music from the piano, the reading of Christmas poems and to view the 'Christmas' tree decorated with ornaments handmade by ladies of the U.M.W. Other guests included Rev. Ira Irvin, Fr. David Bergs, Mr. Bill Billingsley and Dr. and Mrs. Jim Miller, Shannon and Heather.

Homemade gifts at the recently formed extension club created a homespun holiday party for members. A unique way of exchanging presents was introduced by Home Economist, Mary Ellen Payne.

Upon opening a gift, "What you saw was not what you got", if the next person to pick a gift from under the tree decided she would rather take your opened gift or any already opened. Homespun gifts included a beautiful corn husk wreath, crocheted cushion, a furry green fellow and much more. The door prize, a Christmas wreath made by Liz MacVeigh, was won by Hazel English.

Pumpkin bread, cheese crisps and deviled pecans were some of the delicious homemade foods that members enjoyed. One dish that amazed the women present was 'Fake Guacamole'. Recipes will be shared later.

A January 22 meeting was planned. Plans include club name suggestions.

Birthday greetings to Susan Wells Dec. 27; Tracy Ortiz, Patrick Payne, Fred Vega, Jr. Dec. 28; Fred Vega, Sr. Dec. 29; Blase Herrera Dec. 30; John Chavez, Joel Pafford, Sammy Chavez, Carl Lueras, Walter Hill, Edith Stoneman Dec. 31. HAPPY NEW YEAR to the following birthday people: Punkin Schlarb, John Allen Hightower, Rose Lueras Jan 1, 1980; Veda-Lou Stephenson, C.A. Snow, Scott Shafer Jan. 2. A joke to kick off the New Year - "There was once a widow who sued the editor of her local paper for saying in an obituary that her husband 'had gone to a happier home.' Happy Birthday and Happy New Year!

Ernest Sanchez, Jr. and wife Joyce (Hoff) and their two sons were in Lincoln County to visit Sheriff and Mrs. Ernest Sanchez for the holidays. Ernest, Jr. stopped to pick up his family in Denver, Colo., where Joyce is employed as a teacher. Ernest has been in Porto Rico for the last year and a half. He is a Bank Examiner for Federal Deposit Insurance Corporation (FDIC).

Last week the Watch Your Weight group met at the REA for a holiday salad supper meeting. The person who lost the most weight won the pot of money. The group meets each Tuesday of the month at 6:00 p.m. at the REA. The meetings, which last 30 to 45 minutes, include weighing in, discussion of weight control and sharing of low calorie recipes.

They welcome new members. Weekly meetings resume Jan. 8, 1980. If the Thanksgiving and Christmas holidays ruined your 1979 resolution of sticking to your diet, let your 1980 resolution be: "Join the Watch Your Weight program."

Seven year old, Robert English, son of Mayor and Mrs. Jesse English was baptized Dec. 8 at Santa Rita Catholic Church in a 2:00 p.m. ceremony. Robert's God-parents are Mr. and Mrs. George Sanchez of Albuquerque.

Guests and witnesses joining family members for the happy occasion were Ben Sanchez, Mr. and Mrs. Gilbert Archuleta, Sylvia and Guy, Nancy and Vincent Vega.

Services for Loaia Vansice, 58 of Des Moines, Iowa who died early this month of complications following surgery were held at Grandview Funeral Home. Burial was at Sunset Memorial Gardens Cemetery. Survivors include two sons, three daughters and eight grandchildren; a brother Raymond Littleton of Silver City; three sisters, Edna Bule of Alamogordo, former resident Edith Leonard of Bloomington, Ind. and Dorothy Current of Carrizozo.

Mrs. Vansice born in Nogal, was a former Carrizozo resident and worked at the local telephone company. She moved to Des Moines 15 years ago. She was a member of Norwoodville Baptist Church.

Betty Fields has moved back to the old home town after 22 years. Betty, whose maiden name is Moore is a Zozo alumna. She spent Christmas in Estancia with her sister and husband, Dorothy and Lee Straley. Betty's plans for 1980 include an office at the Gift Gallery for accounting and income tax work. Welcome back, Betty!

Bessie Crumley had a holiday surprise visit from her son and daughters. Joining Bessie and a daughter, Lillian Swift of Carrizozo at the family reunion were: daughter Alta and husband Jerry Smith of El Paso and their daughter Jewel. Bessie's two great-grandchildren, Roby and Brian (Jewel's children); daughter Billy Blackwell of Chapparel, N.M. and her children Frank, Clia, Larry and Opal; the children's friends, Teddy and Ramon; son Roy Crumley and his wife of T or C.

Gerald Sanchez, son of former residents, Mr. and Mrs. George Sanchez, recently received a plaque at Albuquerque High for outstanding offense work in football. Carla, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Frank Vega, Jr. of Tome was a participant in the recent Miss Teen USA pageant in Albuquerque. Gerald and Carla are the grandchildren of a proud local grandmother - Mariana Vega.

Dec. 15 former resident and Zozo teacher J.G. Moore III received his master's in Education Administration from Stetson University in Tampa, Florida. He teaches English, Journalism and Literature at Shorecrest Private School in St. Petersburg, Florida. "J.G." and wife, Mimi reside in St. Petersburg.

The day before Christmas I stopped at the Lincoln County Sheriff's office. I had walked to town to buy a ham for our Christmas dinner and wanted a police escort for the walk back home. Gosh! That ham was expensive and I didn't want a holiday grinch to steal our Christmas.

The following is a sampling of my New Year's resolutions: (1) to continue walking all through 1980, rain or shine.

(2) to have flip answers handy when people ask, "Don't you know how to drive?"

(3) to take lessons from Mary Ellen Payne on public speaking. (I can't go around explaining, "I know you believe you understand what you think I said, but I am not sure you realize that what you heard is not what I meant.")

(4) to complete my quilting projects in time for the Lincoln County Fair this summer.

(5) to visit and talk quilts with Laura Farris, Bessie Crumley and other quilting fans.

(6) to photograph "Shorty" (Alvin Carl).
 (7) to keep my foot out of my mouth. (According to a wise, well-known community figure, who wishes to remain anonymous, the above expression means: "You should have kept walking instead of talking," or something in that order.)

CARRIZOZO GRIZZLY SCHOOL NEWS

by Polly Chavez
The first annual Carrizozo Science Fair was held on Dec. 19 in the old high school gym. The judges for this event were Dr. Jim Miller, Jr., Dr. Craig Nelson, and Dr. Goad. The entire school wishes to thank these men for their time. Students from mid-school through high school competed.

Awards were as follows for the mid-school: 5th - 2nd, Joe Lueras; 1st Jimmy Baum, Grand Prize; Bryan Cantrell, 6th - 2nd, Ruben Zamora; 1st, Leslie Bernard; Grand Prize, Michelle DeBerge, 7th - 2nd, Zada Maxwell; 1st Charles Zamora; Grand Prize, Grey Gallacher; Honorable Mention, Junior Hill. 8th - 2nd, Judy Sedillo, Roxie Gable and Daryl

Lindsay (3-way tie); 1st, Mary Jane Ferguson; Grand Prize, Donna Sheppard.

Three overall contestants were chosen from the mid-school. These students were chosen on the basis of their in depth study, high quality projects, and through knowledge of their chosen assignment. These students achieved the highest degree of excellence. They are as follows: 3rd - Charles Zamora, experiment dealing with the effects of alcohol on mice and their newborn. 2nd - Michelle DeBerge, experiment in hydroponics designed to grow more food in a smaller space. 1st - Gary Gallacher, experimental wind generator as a cheaper alternate source of generating electricity for the home.

The high school students received three awards based on the students knowledge of his/her project, and overall excellence of the project itself. They were as follows: 3rd - Alex Sambrano, dissection project dealing in shark anatomy. 2nd - Steve Payne, project dealing in hard water. 1st - Steve Howard, an experiment dealing with the effects of acceleration and gravity.

The judging and the awards presentations were in the afternoon. The projects were then viewed by school students. Parents and townspeople were welcome to come during the awards and viewing periods.

The project list was as varied as the students themselves. There were experiments in monochromatic light and its effect on plants and animals, rat learning mazes, model rockets, hydroponics, electricity, over-the-counter drugs (such as aspirin) and their effects on mice; geology, astronomy, environmental pollution and its effects, solar energy, natural energy and even parapsychology!

FHA-HERO reporter Barbara Means turned in an account of the chapter's Christmas party. The chapter members had their annual Christmas party Monday evening, Dec. 17. THE PARTY CONSISTED OF A GIFT EXCHANGE BETWEEN MEMBERS. Mrs. Lawson made and wrapped fudge for all members. After the gift exchange they went over to the Recreation Center where the FHA-HERO members enjoyed a nice dinner with the ZIA Senior Citizens. The Seniors brought the main course dishes and the Chapter members brought the desserts. After the meal the members sang Christmas carols for the ZIA group.

Rachel West, has lived in Carrizozo all her life, graduated from this high school and has taught school here. At last week's Lincoln County Retired School Employee's Day she recalled earlier days as a teacher of Carrizozo and surrounding area students.

Thirteen Lincoln County retired school employees and former teachers enjoyed the special day planned for them by the Carrizozo Municipal School District and Superintendent Dr. Jim Miller, Jr.

The event included a Christmas dinner in the school's cafeteria. The group gathered in the high school television studio where the former school employees reminisced about reading, writing and rithmetic in their days. They shared their teaching career experiences. They toured school facilities and elementary classrooms.

At 3:00 p.m. they were guests at the annual reception and tea sponsored by the Carrizozo Teacher's Association. CTA president, Mrs. Larue Wetzel was hostess at the holiday reception.

The Lincoln County former school employees in attendance were former Ruidoso school superintendent, George White; Mr. and Mrs. Durican; Nogal Mesa; Mrs. Dorothy Guck, Nogal; Mrs. Louise Ferguson, Capitan; Mrs. Pryor, Lincoln; Mr. and Mrs. Tully, Hondo Valley. From Carrizozo, Margaret Lane, Alma Sherrill, Arnold Boyce, Eileen Lindamood and Rachel West.

Carrizozo schools is featuring the art work of Manuel "Mannle" Hernandez. When school resumes after the Christmas holiday, residents are invited to stop and view his work which is displayed in the board room, located in the administration building.

Hernandez, a Vietnam veteran was raised and educated in Carrizozo. The Class of '67 artist is employed at Belco Industries. He and his wife, Mary have two daughters, Yvette 7, and Lynette 3, Mary is the Health Center's receptionist. His parents are Mr. and Mrs. Albert Hernandez, Sr.

Elected in 1976 to a four year term as a town councilman, Hernandez ran on a town beautification and improvement program. He is also Carrizozo's mayor protem. His term is over March 1980 and replies, "No comment," when asked if he plans to seek another term.

He has enjoyed working for the town in the trustee position. His family, his job and his hobbies keep him occupied. The self-taught artist also enjoys photography and metal works. In addition to pen and ink, oil and canvas work, he paints western scenes on stock shoulder blades.

Hernandez first began painting and drawing in junior high school, inspired by the work of San Patricio artist, Peter Herd. No art instruction was available when Hernandez attended Carrizozo schools. The local artist enjoys painting "southwestern type art," which he associates with, "clean air, mountains and sunsets."

Gas or electric

New water heaters save money, energy

Up to 30 percent of your fuel bill normally goes to heat water—450 gallons a week for the average family of four in the United States.

In fact, next to space heating and cooling, water heating is the second largest consumer of energy in most homes.

With this year's heating season upon us, you might heed the advice of experts who tell us that we can save energy and lower our monthly fuel bills by replacing our conventional water heater with a new energy conserving model.

To be called an energy efficient water heater in today's market, a unit must meet or exceed industry standards (American Society of Heating, Refrigeration and Air Conditioning Engineers—ASHRAE Standard 90-75).

Typical of the savings possible with a new, more energy-efficient water heater is the example of the Rheemgas Energy Miser water heaters which meet the standard.

Save $456 in fuel costs
Rheem projects that a 52-gallon electric Energy Miser will save a homeowner $456 in fuel costs over a 10-year period.

This figure is based on a typical cost for electricity of 5¢ per kilowatt hour (KW-HR), and an annual savings of 912 KW-HR for the 52-gallon model.

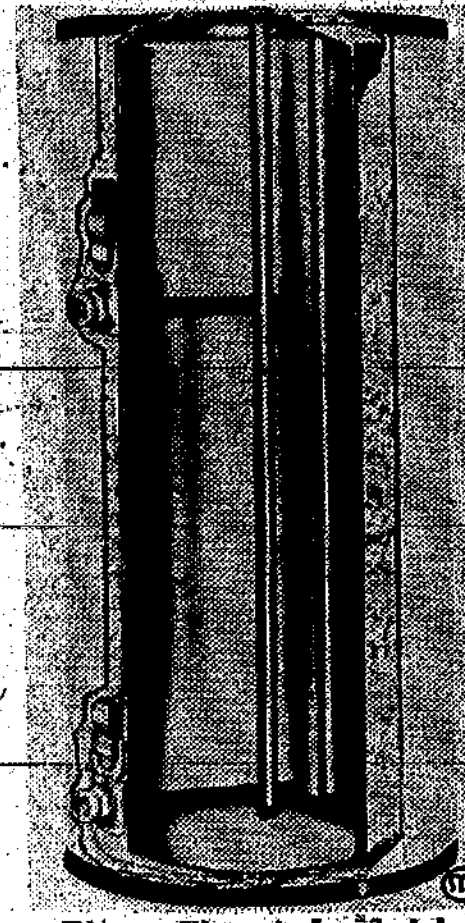

Figures used in this story reflect today's typical energy costs. Since most experts are betting that fuel costs will continue to climb, fuel cost savings with an Energy Miser also would increase over its lifetime.

Compared to conventional water heaters, the Rheemgas Energy Miser's combination of a high-efficiency heating element, extra thick insulation and "isolated tank" design heightens heat retention and fuel savings.

This design eliminates metal-to-metal contact between the outer jacket and the inner water

Rheem Gas "Energy Miser" Water Heater

Rheem Electric Imperial Energy Miser (cutaway)

tank, reducing the transfer of heat to the outside (standby heat loss).

Test your water heater
If you think your present water heater is wasting fuel dollars, make this simple test: put your hand against your water heater.

If it feels hot, heat is escaping. You're wasting fuel. Energy Miser water heaters cut this heat loss significantly.

For consumers using gas, a 40-gallon Energy Miser is capable of saving $128 in fuel costs over ten years.

This figure is based on a typical cost of 24¢ per therm for natural gas consumed and a savings of 53.4 therms per year while heating 450 gallons of water a week. (LP gas models are also available.)

These gas water heaters gain their efficiency through an energy-saving low input pilot which requires one-half of the BTUs of conventional pilots. Again, thick quality insulation and efficient tank design contribute to energy savings.

Cost of electricity and gas varies across the nation. If you are curious about exactly how much a new water heater could save you, check your last utility bill.

Electricity is measured in KW-HR, gas in therms (one therm is 100 cu. ft. or about 100,000 BTUs). Apply your rates to the number of KW-HRs or therms saved, as noted above in this story, and you will be close.

Your local plumber or water heater dealer also is a good source of information on savings possible with the new, more energy efficient water heaters. And, he can tell you about probable installation costs, too.

One Use Toy Has Six Months

NEW YORK—Reasonable interest period for a one-function toy, e.g. a mechanical baby doll, is usually six months, according to Mego Corp. here. For games, a child usually puts them away and later comes back to them. The six-month limit is the result of a child's likes changing in the period, Mego advises.

College money goes begging

Offbeat scholarships

Ⓜ If your name is Murphy, Borden, Anderson or Penoyer, Harvard might come to your aid.

And Yale has $1,000 scholarships for persons named Leavenworth or DeForest. The University of Illinois has a $1,000 grant for males who can establish Czech ancestry.

And, friends of August Escoffier, a world famous French chef, set up a fund for high school graduates who wish to study the culinary arts.

Vassar assists the daughters of widows, while Harvard assists widow's sons, provided they live west of the Appalachians. Boston's Tufts University aids the children of fishermen.

These are just a sampling of the bewildering array of scholarships and grants available to college bound students.

Many of them go unclaimed, simply because they are obscure, or because a student who matches the requirements is never found. As a result, millions of dollars lie unclaimed each year.

Taken together, available scholarships and other forms of aid add up to more than $500,000,000 annually, but until recently there was no clearing house to keep track of the information.

Scholarship Search, a unique New York City research service, keeps an up-to-date collection of national financial aid information in its one-of-a-kind computer data bank.

The service promises to find each applicant up to 25 sources of college funds which he or she is eligible to receive.

Scholarship Search was founded by S. Robert Freede, who faced the costly task of putting his own three children through college.

Aided by spiraling inflation and a ready market of high school and college students who need financial help, Scholarship Search has assisted the families of many students throughout the nation.

As Freede is quick to point out, many of the awards are not geared only toward the honor student, the low income student and the athlete, but are also available to middle class students whose families, perhaps, have suffered the most from rising tuition.

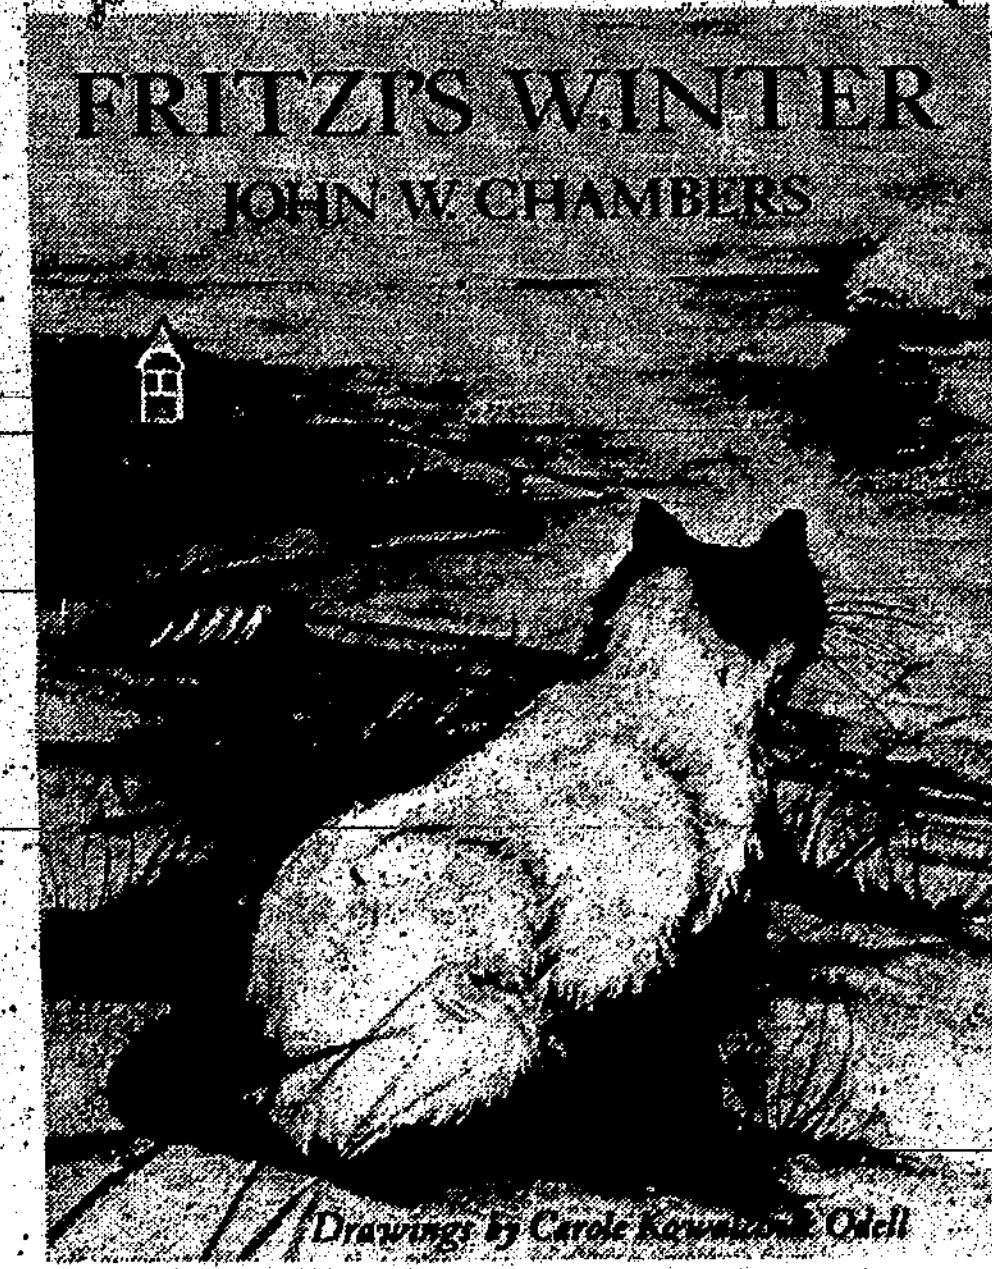

"Nobody knows how many awards are out there," Freede says. "We're always finding new ones. Sometimes as many as 400 items a week."

Scholarship Search is the research service of the Student Assistance Council of America, developed to help families find funds for college.

A "how to" five-part Information and Application Form Kit is now available by writing directly to the Council, and enclosing $1.00 to help pay for 1st Class Postage, handling, etc.

From the bookshelf

Sensitive new children's book has appeal for all

Ⓜ A skillful blend of survival, ecology, and the joy of living frames a new children's book entitled Fritzi's Winter (Atheneum, $8.95).

Author John W. Chambers weaves a tale of a Siamese cat left behind during the winter months on the barrier beach of Fire Island, located off the coast of Long Island in New York.

Fritzi's Winter combines Chambers' knowledge of the Fire Island landscape and ecology with the beautifully simple graphics of Carole Kowalchuk Odell to tell of a deeply "human" feline pitted against the elements.

Catching mice had always been a game for Fritzi. Now, it has become a pressing need for survival.

Running from fierce dogs had always meant retreating no further than the security of the Arnold family's beach house. Now, it means climbing a tree in earnest.

Fritzi's Winter is one of those rare children's books with appeal for children and adults alike. Adults will delight in the thrill of escape from a fox or the camaraderie of a gray cat who teaches Fritzi how to hunt with patience and precision.

Fritzi's ability to survive the harsh, gray and foggy winter of Fire Island is a lesson to children. It is a demonstration of Fritzi's transformation—from house cat to wily hunter.

During the passage of the next summer with its golden sunshine and abundance of people and food, Fritzi is happier, stronger and more full of life than ever before.

"A ring by any other name"

Ⓜ In Germany, it's called the "memoire" ring; in Italy, it is the veretta di diamanti (little wedding ring with diamonds) and in the United Kingdom, they call it the "eternity ring."

In the United States, reports the Jewelry Industry Council, it might well be called the "love ring," and its popularity is growing by leaps and bounds.

Surveys reveal that, next to the diamond engagement ring and the wedding band, the most popular ring is this little circular band of diamonds.

Rich in folklore, the love ring dates back to 2000 B.C., when the circle signified: "My love will run out at the circle's end"—small wonder that the eternity; or love ring, is prized by lovers.

In the United States, many husbands give the love ring to their wives to commemorate an early wedding anniversary, or at the birth of a child.

The ring is usually worn on the third finger, left hand, above the wedding band, although some women wear it on their right hands to distinguish it from the engagement ring. But, wherever the ring is worn, it signifies love eternal.

Even in these days of changing lifestyles, the importance of this ring and its promise of eternal love continues to grow.

Capitan Village News

by Margaret Rench

I wish everyone the happiest and most prosperous New Year with perfect health. Keep a positive and cheerful mind and count our wonderful blessings for being able to live in this great country.

Many businesses are closed this Monday before Christmas and it is very very quiet. Food Markets are very busy. Other wise there is just no one around.

The Mounted Patrol had their Christmas dinner at Mayor and Mrs. Don Stark's home last Sunday.

Mr. and Mrs. W.L. Baker attended the Cable Company's Christmas party last Friday night at the Texas Club.

It is great to see Doris Pounds home again after several absences taking care of her mother in Colorado and she passed away. Welcome home, Doris.

The Capitan School dismissed for the holidays at 1:30 Thursday December 20th.

The boys and girls basketball tournament will be held in Capitan January 3, 4, and 5.

The fifth grade class is sponsoring a stamp club. Should you desire to help them, save your canceled stamps for them.

December 18 was Lynne Story's birthday. I wish her many more very happy and healthy ones.

Evelyn Horton recently married Erwin Grover of Galveston, Texas and they make their home there. They are in Capitan for one month doing work on her home here. Opal Riedel came with them. She is also from Galveston and is enjoying every minute here. All are guests of the Bert Cheneys too.

The Christian Youth Association girls made Christmas. Sookies Monday morning and delivered them to their favorite people. I am so happy to be one of their loved ones. I love all of those children and appreciate their remembering me. Thank you.

Fletcher Hall's are enjoying all of their children and grandchildren here at their home this happy Christmas.

Bronson and Kenny Cummins are home for these holidays. It is a very happy reunion. Their grandmother Bessie Cummins is feeling a little better which does give all of us much happiness.

Mr. and Mrs. Jim-McEuen of B and L served free spaghetti dinner to all of their friends Sunday December 23rd for Christmas and a gift of appreciation for their business for this year.

Mr. and Mrs. Jimmy Wright and two children went to Animas, to spend Christmas with her parents Mr. and Mrs. Jake McCarty.

LaRue Parker and three children spent Christmas with her grandmother Mada Orr and her parents Mr. and Mrs. A.E. Cleaver.

Mr. and Mrs. Charlie Booher and his mother Lorene Booher spent last Sunday with their tiny daughter and grand-daughter. Delores Goldie Lorene at the BCNC Hospital in Albuquerque. She now weighs 2 lbs. 12 ozs. She is gaining slowly but surely. She was four weeks old December 24th.

I do thank my many many friends for this beautiful Christmas. Their love, their kindness, cards and gifts are truly appreciated. They are letting me know their love while I am here to enjoy it. I think friends are our greatest riches.

Nogal News

by linda greer

Amy Means had a birthday December 15 and celebrated by having a couple of friends stay the night they were Melissa Greer and Dawna Ward.

The Presbyterian youth group sang the traditional songs of Christmas Sunday night at a special night time service. The singers were Lisa, Matt, and Mary Jane Ferguson, Johnny Bob and Steven Stearns, Melody and Marsha Hecker, Melinda Sidwell, Hankie and Amy Means and Lorrie Porter.

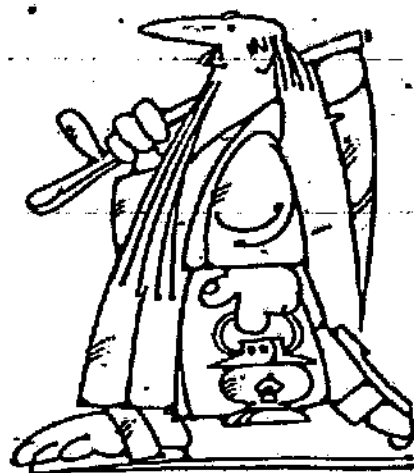

The adult group then sang they are Mrs. Duncan, June Scholes and daughter Karen, Lish Ferguson, and Liz McVeigh.

There was also a special treat by the Zumwals. Eva sang while Ted played guitar and Kathy played violin.

Well another Christmas is gone passing leaving bills, old wrapping paper a tree to be burned or just discarded and if we're lucky a feeling of giving and caring that lasts all year.

Lisa and Ace Porter were here visiting their parents for the Christmas holiday.
