PRESIDENT Ronald Reagan gets a warm welcome from thousands at Roswell Airport.

Area residents welcome Reagan to New Mexico

The estimated 15,000 people on hand to meet President Ronald Reagan in Roswell on Oct. 29 included many who were eager to see a US president rather than political candidates.

Members of the state and national Republican ticket spoke before Reagan's arrival. The rally on behalf of GOP candidates was a last stop by Reagan, who was on a two-day, five western state campaign swing before last Tuesday's elections.

Among the 11 bands who entertained spectators prior to the president's arrival were three from Lincoln County: Carrizozo Captain and Rudoso, Cong. Joe Skeen, who served as master of ceremonies, spoke fondly of Lincoln County where he has deep political roots.

Industrial Air Center (RIAC) former Walker Air Force Base was the site of the rally. This was the first time a "sitting" president had visited in Roswell and the city prepared a fitting reception.

From a hangar just behind the platform from which the president spoke hung a huge banner with blue letters welcoming Reagan to Roswell.

Ninety minutes before Air Force One landed 3,000 balloons prematurely escaped as they were being moved from the hangar to a spot behind the podium.

Some of the people who waited for the president to arrive expressed their displeasure of his programs with signs. The slogans on the banners included a sign that stated, "Reaganomics is Robin Hood in Reverse."

Dissenters protested the president's economic programs. There were banners calling for a freeze on nuclear arms.

The crowd at RIAC was mainly a friendly audience that cheered and waved miniature American flags when Air Force One taxied within a short distance of the speaker's stand.

Sen. Harrison "Jack" Schmitt boarded the aircraft and escorted the president to the platform where other GOP candidates waited.

Reagan's 20-minute speech centered on the re-election of Schmitt and patience with the unemployment problem.

Many had to be hoisted on shoulders to get a glimpse of the president. Those with acrobatic talent included a white-haired senior citizen woman.

The 45 minutes that Reagan spent in Roswell included the 2:37 p.m. landing and the departure. Before reboarding Air Force One Reagan shook hands along the front line.

Those who traveled to Roswell for the rally considered the event a once-in-a-lifetime chance to see a US president.

That and listening to other bands perform was an experience that will be remembered for years to come," said John Harris, Carrizozo band director.

CARRIZOZO'S Grizzly Band play loud for the occasion.

CAPITAN'S High School Band tooted a rousing welcome to the president.

Rifle seasons for deer spelled out

The 1982 rifle seasons for deer are approaching. There will be four hunt periods, two northern hunts—Nov. 5 through Nov. 7 and Nov. 12 through Nov. 18; and two southern hunts—Nov. 19 through Nov. 21 and Nov. 26 through Dec. 2. Hunters should check the hunt period listed on their license to make sure it is the proper area and time that they wish to hunt.

If the license is not correct, it can only be changed by a Game Department employee with a special stamp. In addition, the license can be changed no later than the day before the start of the hunt period for which the license was originally validated. This means that hunters need to get their license changed soon.

In order to accommodate hunters, officers will be available on Nov. 3, between 12 noon and 6 p.m. at the following locations:

Licenses can also be changed in Roswell at the Game Dept. office at 413 North Virginia from 8 a.m. to 5 p.m. Monday through Friday.

One change this year is that there will not be anyone available in the Lovington area during this time.

Hunters who are not sure which hunt period they wish to choose should look at these statistics. The statistics are part of a study done on the 1981 hunting season. In 1981 during the three-day D-ONE-North hunt there were 21,256 hunters and the success rate was 17.99 percent. During the seven-day D-TWO-North hunt there were 19,778 hunters and the success rate higher at 19.79 percent. For the three day D-

ONE-South hunt, there were 31,496 hunters who had a success rate of 32.23 percent. For the seven-day D-TWO-South hunt, there were 27,282 hunters with a success rate of 28.84 percent. This information points out that the second hunt was better in the northern part of the state, while the first hunt was better in the southern part of the state.

If after looking at this information, you wish to change your license, be sure to do it in time.

ELLOW AMERICANS.

Oct. 29 was a busy day for Zachary and me. That was the day I traveled to Roswell to see and hear Ronald W. Reagan, president of the United States.

We went by bus with Carrizozo's school band, one of 11 bands invited to the Republican Rally. The bands were part of the program prior to the president's arrival. School bands from neighboring Capitan and Ruidoso were so there.

Others from Carrizozo who attended the rally were Title I teacher Jane Erwin, who drove the bus, and John Harris, band director. Traveling by car werearsity cheerleaders Stephanie Acevedo, Lisa Cantrell, Roxanne Abbie, Mary Jane Ferguson, Lynn Allacher, Julie Vega, their sponsor-teacher Judy Sidebottom and Kevin Wilmore, student council president.

The excitement began as soon as we arrived at Roswell Industrial Air Center (RIAC). The colorfully dressed band members of the various bands were herded through a checking point staffed with uniformed police. A wand object was used to detect metal. Band members also had to "oot" their instruments once as they passed by.

The two cameras which I carried, one with a telescopic lens, were of particular interest to the business-suited security agents. Two bags were also inspected. The commission of the search became momentarily separated from Zach but he was never out of my sight.

TS TO SEE

While the Zozo band settled in their reserved area, Zach and I wandered through the area observing the other hands and news media setting up their equipment. I checked out the portable johns and read the protestors messages written on large cloths. (Reagan's silhouette as a movie star, bigger silhouette as a president," and "Thanks for the Cheese, Ronnie. How about some bread?" were among the signs.)

We arrived at RIAC at mid-morning and a steady stream of people (15,000) filled the roped off area by 2 p.m. During our strolls Zach tagged along behind me toting a lunch box full of goodies. We watched aircraft fly by or land. "Is that him?" Zach asked repeatedly. I kept telling him that the "president" would arrive at 2 p.m. or later.

Spectators enjoyed the antics of the short-skirted majorettes but Zach had his eye on the fake rifles they twirled in the air and the feathered hats worn by band members.

We stared back at squinty-eyed secret service police and saw men with binoculars atop buildings.

The event was as interesting as a county fair or carnival. The 3,000 balloons to be released when the president arrived escaped accidentally before 2 p.m. President or no president, Zach thought it was a waste to lose that many balloons in a few seconds.

JUST IN CASE

Prior to the president's arrival several youngsters were separated from parents. With the aid of the loudspeaker they were soon reunited. Fortunately, Zach did not wander off, but just in case he did I was prepared. On the bus trip to Roswell I placed notes in all his pockets. All the notes had the same message: "I am Zachary Chavez of Carrizozo. My mom is Polly."

Zach got a good look of Air Force One and the president, who was wearing a dark brown suit to match his dark brown hair. For most of the president's 20-minute talk, Zach was more interested in the contents of his Woody Woodpecker lunchbox. When he ran out of junk food he searched under the bleachers for Pepsi caps, pulling on my legs often to ask if the cap he held could be redeemed for 10 cents.

As Air Force One taxied away, Jane Erwin held him high in the air so that he could see the plane disappear into the sky. A piggy-back ride back to the bus tipped off the adventure-filled day.

OCTOBER TRAVELERS

Mr. and Mrs. Bill Chisholm are back home in Buffalo, N.Y., after a 2-week visit in Carrizozo with Bill's parents, Mr. and Mrs. T. J. Chisholm. Meanwhile, Carrizozo resident Catherine Eaker (Bill's sister) went to Lambert, Mississippi, to visit with a sister-in-law, Mrs. T. J. Chisholm Jr. and daughter, Miss Elsie C. Chisholm. Catherine is back home in Carrizozo.

During her stay in Carrizozo Mrs. Bill Chisholm (Frances) received word that her sister had passed away. She traveled to Poplarville, Mississippi, for the funeral services.

Visitors last week in the Eaker and Chisholm homes were Mrs. Chester Brooks and daughter Lisa of Granada Hill, CA. Mrs. Brooks is a niece of the Chisholms.

WHO'S WHO

Young and old alike had the time of their lives last Saturday at the PTA carnival when private personalities became public with the aid of make-up and costume.

Competition for the scariest, cutest or funniest costumes was part of the fun. Ribbons were awarded to all the children who participated. First and second place winners were presented with generous prizes or coupons donated by local businesses. Each category had a female and male first and second place award.

The winners and how they were dressed: Age 3 and under—Amanda Greer, strawberry shortcake; Jesse Brown, Dracula; Tracy Wells, clown;

Brent Pafford, big game hunter; Age 4 through kindergarten—Sara Sidebottom, bunny; Jim Brown, Pac Man; Brea Pafford, ghost; Matt McVeigh, K.T.

1st grade to 5th—Cindy Silva, witch; Scott Brown, rodeo clown; Rachael Monreal, cat; James Silva, vampire.

6th grade to 12th—Gladys Hobbs, baby; Max Beltran, ghoul; Amy Means, belly dancer; Raymond Luera, vampire.

In the adult costume contest, Lioness president Ruth Hawk dressed as a cat received 1st place. Attorney Don Wall in high-water plaid pants also came in first for his representation of a Dogpatch resident lawyer. His wife, Charlotte, a Dogpatch social butterfly, received 2nd place honors as did Roy Dow, who used his head, which sported a blinking cap and insect-like antennae.

CARD OF THANKS

We wish to express our gratitude to our friends of the Church of Christ who prepared and served food and performed other acts of kindness for the family and brothers and sisters of Kenneth Means following the death of our loved one.

It's not all black and white.

Let's talk. Every time you pick up a paper there's something else about the changes coming to the telephone industry.

About our coming separation from AT&T and where it's going to take us. We want to help you understand what it will mean to you.

At Mountain Bell, we believe in talking things over. And we want to talk to you about the story behind the stories.

First, let's talk about your service.

You'll still have the service you depend on in the rural areas because we'll have the same dedicated people standing behind it.

We'll still be your local telephone company. When you get a dial tone, that'll be us.

We'll still be your gateway to the world's communications network. To local and long-distance lines. To international service. And to all the sophisticated new services the future holds.

There will be changes as new concepts are developed in home and business communications. There will be new ways of obtaining and using telecommunications products and services.

We'll be talking with you about all the coming changes as they happen. In ads like this and on television.

We want to make it easy for you to get answers to any questions you might have. That's why we've set up a special toll-free number, 1 800 555-5000,* you can call Monday through Friday from noon to 10:30 p.m.

There'll be somebody to talk to. Somebody to help you. Somebody to get you information. Like our free booklet, "Let's Talk About Change."

We'll be talking with you.

(This column was written Monday, Nov. 1. Not a word has been changed. I was just curious to know if a column written the day before election would produce a vote for me to eat, and how much. It didn't.)

● THE ELECTION is over. The republic has been saved as it has been saved every two years for 200 years. Troublesome question: how many more times can this nation afford to be saved? Let's play an educational game. Jot down right now all the reasons why you voted for the candidates you did. Put the paper in a safe place, to be opened and read two years from now. You'll hate yourself then! The beginning of political wisdom is being able to review one's mistakes and to profit from them by not making the same mistake a second time - something we forget from one election to another.

● AS USUAL, Americans voted their pocketbooks rather than the good of the country. But, what's good for the country is associated with the thickness of one's wallet, is it not? The vote proved the average American's unwillingness to experience anxiety, inconvenience, interruption in his lifestyle, or any deprivation of any kind to reverse a 40-year binge of tax and spend, spend and tax. They would like to balance the federal budget and reduce the national debt. But the "cure" for just those two items means economic sacrifice, and that kind of cure is not what voters have in mind. They want a miracle worker who straightens the country out with the wave of a wand. They believed Reagan could do that two years ago, but his "cure" for a 40-year malignancy was trying to curb the appetite of government, to reverse the passion for social programs, and make people more dependent upon themselves rather than the government. He had no magic wand to dismiss the financial festering that began 40 years ago and became the hallmark of statesmanship in the Democratic Party. It reminds me of the fellow who had this longstanding disease and finally was forced to see a physician. Then he walked out when, instead of a pill, was given unsavory medication, therapy, diet, exercise and a lot of time to make him whole again. The cure was unpleasant. It interfered with his lifestyle. It was a bother, it took time, and it inconvenienced him. He'd rather die, and he did.

● PEOPLE DON'T mind sacrifice, if it's forced upon them with no alternative. If they can stall off the inevitable by electing still another demagogue, they will. Americans, like the old Romans, are developing a passion for government bread, fun and games. They want total security. They want to be secure in their minds and pocketbooks. They want the government to insulate them against pain, hunger, sorrow, bad times, physical harm, emotional distress and other inconveniences. They want no risks. These are also things babies expect from their parents. Also like children, they want fun and games - provided by a benevolent government, of course. If this nation is ever to return to its former glory it will be when it is confronted with a tragedy of gigantic proportion, one that demands the hard sacrifice from every American, one in which no alternative exists, and where retreat is impossible. The more we live on fun and games the closer that tragedy is.

● TONY ANAYA isn't going to bring those jobs he told you about. He isn't going to bring industry into the state, or make New Mexico the educational hotspot, or secure all the blessings for New Mexico citizens he promised. Bruce King was going to do the same things, wasn't he? And the governor before him? A governor can do a lot of things - open supermarkets, pardon criminals, apply for federal disaster relief, call out the National Guard and appoint a few cronies to office. He can "proclaim" a lot of meaningless things, like New Mexico Turkey Day. He can veto a bill. But he can't do anything about all the noble things he has been talking about. Well, John Irick couldn't have done it either. The so-called bottom line is that all the flap about the governor's race is hogwash simply because the governor has no power to do much of anything - something to remember next time the same old pennies emit from a candidate eager to get into office.

● I FEEL sympathy for the winners, whom I presume are felling good today about having won their respective popularity contests. Not having magic wands, they will be booted out of office in two or four years for not having produced enough fun and games for their constituents, or because wallets are thinner, and the blame (of course) is theirs. People always blame those in government, never voters who elect the government.

● THIS PUTS me in mind of another kind of American, the kind I remember as a child - when America was Great and a man could swing a wide loop and be what he wanted to be. It was the kind of America Cong. Eldon Russ of Arizona had in mind when he placed in the Congressional Record this reminder of how things once were. It starts out: "Do you remember when: attending college was a privilege rather than a right? A farmer could plant what he wished? Taxes were a nuisance rather than a burden? The Supreme Court protected society rather than the criminals? The aged were cared for by their children? Foreign officials visited the White House without asking for money? We entered a war to win it? A life sentence didn't mean parole in 10 years? Our flag was respected at home and abroad? America conducted her foreign affairs without consulting the UN? A father went on welfare only out of desperation, and got off it as soon as possible? Charity was a virtue instead of big business? We could laugh at jokes about the Irish, Negroes, Italians, Jews or Polacks without being considered bigots? The doctor's first question was "Where does it hurt?" instead of "Do you have insurance?" U.S. Grant was the name of a president rather than a federal handout? Giving aid to the enemy was treason instead of foreign aid? We had prayers in our schools where now we have sex education? Churches preached religion instead of politics? You were safe on the streets and in your home? The news media presented the truth rather than false propaganda? Motion pictures were wholesome family entertainment instead of violence and sex? A policeman was a human being instead of a fascist pig? The three Rs were reading, writing and arithmetic instead of robbery, rape and riot? The Supreme Court consisted of judges instead of political hacks? A radical had to have a soap box to reach 40 people? Now the media provides him with a microphone to reach 40 million? The country was run by Americans instead of a group of aliens? This was a Christian nation?"

● TO WHICH I add a few of my own. Do you remember when a man could work and support his family without having to pay tribute to organized thugs? When "what's good for General Motors" really was good for the country? When a soldier in uniform was respected instead of being an excuse to light the fuse on an anti-war demonstration? When long hair and beards indicated a razor shortage instead of the uniform for terrorists and malcontents? When bankruptcy was a disgrace and not an astute business procedure? When motels were sleeping places for the traveling public?

● THE ELECTION made it clear that closing saloons and liquor stores on election days is a passe as chastity belts. If sober people voted the way they did, could they do worse were they all snickered to the eyeballs? If a drunk makes an ass of himself by voting for an idiot, at least he has a reasonable excuse. But how

Enter the Noble Huntsman

The fall hunting season is open in some areas, a good time to remind hunters to get permission from farm and ranch owners before they hunt on private property. There seems to be some lingering notion that people are free to hunt on the land of their choice, and that there isn't much anybody can do to stop them. Wrong. Hunting on somebody else's property is a privilege extended only by the landowner. A recent study by Jim Knight, Extension wildlife specialist, New Mexico State University, indicates that seven out of 10 landowners have problems every hunting season with hunters, or they know of neighbors who do. Half the landowners have posted their land, and about a third of them whose land is already posted said they would allow hunting only if the hunters would ask permission. A hunting license is not a key to every ranch gate, Knight said. Have the decency and courtesy to ask permission to hunt on the land and the odds are that the permission will be given. Just don't invade private property and start banging away at whatever moves. Ranchers are fed up with irresponsible hunters who shoot up the landscape, kill domestic animals, litter their ranches, cut fences and sometimes help themselves to whatever isn't nailed down. These people, if caught, will be prosecuted for trespass and destruction of private property. It isn't worth going through, especially when getting permission is fairly easy.

Inside Religion

Is the devil as historic as Jesus?

BY REV. LESTER KINSOLVING
For many people who have experienced either devout or superstitious fright about the devil, the work of California historian Jeffrey Russell may provide something of a blessed relief. Dr. Russell, of the University of California at Santa Barbara, is the author of one book entitled "The Devil" and another entitled "Satan." He is now about to complete a sort of diabolic trilogy with a forthcoming book entitled "Lucifer" (Cornell University Press). For those who were terrified by such novels and movies as "The Exorcist" and "Rosemary's Baby," or by Biblical references to the devil, Dr. Russell notes: "Theologically, the myth of Satan threatened to transform Judaism into a de facto dualistic religion... After the destruction of the second Temple, the rabbinic establishment rejected apocalyptic tradition. From that point on, the devil has no standing in Judaism, apart from mystical and folk lore." The Old Testament, which was Jesus's Bible, mentions the devil only four times. It mentions Satan only 15 times, 12 of those in one book (Job). By striking contrast, the New Testament mentions the devil 112 times. This is most probably due to the effect of the Babylonian Captivity, during which the Hebrews were exposed to Zoroastrianism. This Persian religion provided a very comforting way to answer the serious problem of why evil afflicts even the most righteous people and God's chosen people. For in Zoroastrianism there is a good god, Ahura Mazda, versus a bad god, Ahriman, who is responsible for all that is bad. (This idea persists to his day, in comedian Flip Wilson's clergy caricature, where the pastor of the Church of What's Happenin' Now explains all of his sins and omissions as: "The Devil made me do it!") Some Christians look on the devil as the personification of evil, just as frost is personified and given the first name of Jack. Other Christians, particularly those with a more literal view of Scripture, contend that Jesus not only believed literally in the devil and often spoke of the devil but was tempted by the devil repeatedly in his wilderness. For those who regard Satan as therefore being just as historical as Jesus, there is a serious problem presented in two of the Gospels. For Jesus said (in Matthew 16:23 and Mark 8:33): "Get thee behind me Satan, thou art an offense unto me. For thou savorest not the things that be of God, but those that be of men." This strong denunciation was directed at St. Peter, of all people, because Peter had protested Jesus' intention to go to Jerusalem even at the considerable risk to his life. In addition to any literal interpretation leaving Peter identified as Satan, there is another problem, in the Old Testament's First Book of Chronicles, chapter 20. Here there is the report that Satan provoked King David to conduct a census, for which the punishment was a pestilence which caused the death of 70,000 of David's people. But the Second Book of Samuel also reports a census conducted by David, which was also punished by a pestilence which caused 70,000 deaths. Yet this report of the catastrophic census notes that the census was asked for by God, not Satan. Dr. Russell also notes that one of the most serious of all the heresies which afflicted and nearly shattered the early church was gnosticism. The Gnostics stressed not only the existence of Satan but his control of the world as an independent force. One Sunday in the late 1950s, a widely circulated Sunday newspaper supplement featured an article by the Rev. Billy Graham headlined: "WHY I BELIEVE IN THE DEVIL." 1) Because the Bible says he exists. 2) Because I see his work everywhere. 3) Because great scholars have recognized his existence. Dr. Graham's three reasons could also justify an article headlined: "WHY I BELIEVE IN GHOSTS, WITCHES, WIZARDS AND SORCERERS" - all of which are also mentioned in the Bible. As for great scholars believing in the devil's existence, the Rev. Martin Luther, a doctor of theology, was on one occasion so aware of what he thought was the devil that he hurled an inkwell. One can still see the place of this alleged encounter in Germany's Wartburg Castle. In fact, the inkwell is dutifully and thoughtfully re-inked each year by the local tourist board.

Letters to the Editor

Cruelty to animals

EDITOR - We here in White Oaks had our first snow when we woke this morning. Snow is beautiful, but it brings with it its own problems. One greeted my son when he went to feed the chickens. A beautiful black cat with a white neck and chin, with just a spot of black in the middle of his chin.

This cat was lucky we're feeding him and he has a warm dry place out of the weather. The mother dog and her puppies are not as lucky. She's hidden the puppies and is distrustful of coming up to the house for a handout. She will more than likely starve or freeze to death with the coming of winter, leaving her puppies to do the same.

All of these animals have one thing in common. Someone, their owners that these animals trust and look to for their care and feeding, have decided they no longer want that responsibility. So they did the "humane" thing. They took this defenseless animal out to the country and left it. Is it humane to let an animal, especially one with puppies or kittens to feed, try to fend for itself?

I think not. There are animal shelters where the animal will at least have a fair chance of finding a home. If not, after a certain period of time the animal is put to sleep.

As hard as this is to face, it surely must be better than a slow death from hunger and cold. We already have three dogs, one we got from the pound, one we picked up off the road where she'd been dumped this time last year, and one a puppy I couldn't resist. We also have several cats (who can count how many cats one has?)

We, who are trying to feed your strays, would like to appeal to your better sense and common decency. Please find another way to get rid of your unwanted pets. Try the animal shelter. Give your animal a chance, and give us out here in the country a break.

ROSE VINSON, White Oaks.

New Mexico in Washington

Post's writers not as credible as Post ads

BY LESTER KINSOLVING
WASHINGTON - Thirty-five members of Congress have written Treasury Secretary Donald Regan asking him to use his influence with the International Monetary Fund to block a $1.1 billion loan to South Africa.

None of the four members of the New Mexico Congressional delegation were among the signatories to this letter, whose request Regan declined. Since New Mexicans Pete Domenici, Harrison Schmitt, Manuel Lujan and Joe Skeen are all Reagan's fellow Republicans, they are very liable at one time or another to be listed and denounced by the numerous anti-South African lobbies in our nation's capital.

The Reagan administration is "the meanest and cruelest administration in the eyes of the Third World," according to The Washington Post's staff columnist Dorothy Gilliam. Miss Gilliam wrote this on Oct. 18 in connection with her denunciation of the Reagan Administration's refusal to oppose the $1.1 billion loan to South Africa.

South Africa was described by Gilliam as a "racial regime" which is "perhaps the most heinously repressive since Nazi Germany." Twenty-four hours after her column appeared, this same Washington Post earned itself more than $5,000 for publishing a quarter-page advertisement from this very same Republic of South Africa. The wording of the ad was quite the opposite of what Miss Gilliam had written the previous day.

When we reached Miss Gilliam on Oct. 19 she had not yet seen this ad, even though it was 11 a.m. She promptly obtained a copy of her newspaper, where she found printed on the opposite side of the paper from the usually liberal and crusading Post editorial page this ad for South Africa.

"O my!" she exclaimed. "Oh my God! We will see about this! This should make Botha very happy." (P. W. Botha is South Africa's prime minister.) So we asked Miss Gilliam if she is prepared to:

- A) Turn back part of her Washington Post salary as a protest to the South African revenue that is used to pay her;
- B) Explain how she regards the South African government as being "more heinously repressive" than Idi Amin (who murdered 250,000 black Ugandans) or the Khmer Rouge (who murdered an estimated 2,000,000 oriental Cambodians) or Saudi Arabians - where women are denied the right to have automobile drivers licenses and where women are executed if they commit adultery, lashed if they sell beverage alcohol, have their hands amputated if they are caught shoplifting, and forbidden to contribute to the construction of churches or synagogues.

Gilliam The Outspoken asked that we call her back that afternoon. We did, and added a question about reports from Newsweek, Amnesty International and London's Anti-Slavery Society that the West African nation of Mauritania has an estimated 100,000 black slaves.

Miss Gilliam replied that she is not well acquainted with the Mauritanian situation. Moreover, Idi Amin's government does not exist today. As for Saudi Arabia, "the position of women is very serious, but it's not a parallel to South Africa, since a large percentage of the Saudi budget is not devoted to repression."

We asked Miss Gilliam if she had any estimates as to the Saudi expenditures on police and armed forces who enforce these very repressive statutes against women - none of which forms of repression are found in South Africa - but she declined to continue discussing this subject because, she said, she was "not getting good vibrations."

So we asked if she would return any part of her salary to the Post in protest of the Post's taking in so many South African dollars on the very day after her impassioned comparison of Pretoria to the Third Reich. She adamantly refused to say what she intends to do in this regard.

Capitan News

By MARGARETRENCH

Capitan played Carrizozo here last Friday night. The score was 33 to 20 in favor of Capitan.

The Sacred Heart Catholic Church of Capitan was host to the youth group of Carrizozo and the youth group of Capitan at a lunch and group meeting Sunday. It was wonderful to see these young football rival players put aside their sport rivalry for a day and attend church worship together. Father Dave Berg is a very brave man to have these two teams after a big game. All went well. More power to our youth as they both participated in the Mass. Everyone should love one another and work together in life and games, with no malice in their heads.

The Capitan High School Band traveled to Las Cruces and attended the NMSU-Homecoming Oct. 30. They marched in the parade and performed at the pre-game show. Also attended the football game. We are very proud of our band.

Friday, Oct. 29 the Capitan Band went to Roswell and performed for President Reagan. They did real well. Again we were very proud of them.

I was disappointed this Halloween as the ghosts and goblins did not appear. I was prepared for them and really did miss this night of fun for them. I have always enjoyed them. May there be happier days ahead for them.

Chamber in annual membership drive

The annual membership drive for the Carrizozo Chamber of Commerce is in progress.

Woody Schlegel, president, anticipates increased interest in the organization and an increase in membership for 1982-83. Membership now stands at 57.

The membership committee met Monday night to designate the week of Nov. 8-13 as Membership Week, and appointed Phyllis Schlegel, chairman, Rita Narvaez, Raynere Greer, Frances Ortiz, Joe Oresak, Mignon Sims and Jackie and Pat Vigil to secure new and renewal memberships.

Business memberships are $40; individuals $10. Memberships may be paid at Citizens State Bank, Family Pharmacy, Paul's Place and Ruidoso State Bank. Membership cards and tax deductible receipts will be given upon payment of dues.

Cloudercroft takes Dist. 5A title

The Cloudercroft Bears defeated the Carrizozo Grizzlies Saturday for the District 5A volleyball title, 15-8, 12-15 and 15-12.

Both teams will play in the regional tournament Friday, Nov. 5. Also taking part in the tournament is Mountainair and Vaughn. The regional tournament is being hosted by Cloudercroft, but will be held in the Tularosa High School gym because the Cloudercroft gym is being renovated.

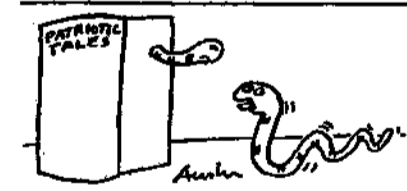

The first game will be between Cloudercroft and Vaughn at 4 p.m. Carrizozo will play Mountainair at 5:15. The consolation game will start at 6:30 and the championship game begins at 7:45. The first and second place teams of the regional tournament will advance to the state tournament.

In the district tournament Carrizozo defeated Lake Arthur, their first opponents of the day, with scores of 15-7 and 16-14. Top scorers in the first game was Stacy Stephenson with eight of the Grizzlies' 15 points. Christetta Chavez had six points in the second game. Against Cloudercroft—Bonnie Jo Shepperd had four of the Grizzlies' eight points. In the first game, Chavez scored nine points in the second game. Roxanne Gable put seven points on the board for the Grizzlies in the third game.

Carrizozo's coach Bill Vitany was honored as Coach of the Year and received a plaque. From Carrizozo, Christetta Chavez was chosen as one of the All-District players. Other all district players were: Kenetia LaMay (Capitan), Artie Hart (Lake Arthur), Erma Salmon (Lake Arthur), Amy Turner (Cloudercroft), Susan Peek (Cloudercroft), and Gwen Griffin (Cloudercroft).

area. It supports civic, cultural and recreational endeavors; is non-partisan and non-sectarian in political and religious matters.

During 1981-82 the Chamber participated in the Grizzly Homecoming Parade, sponsored the annual Christmas lighting contest, annual bowling tournament, clean-up day and the People's Market Place. It supported the FFA, Lincoln County Ranch Tour, Amber Langley Fund, Sun Ditch and Crime Stoppers. It paid for advertising the local airport and golf course and held interviews with businessmen who remain interested in locating in Carrizozo. It also campaigned successfully for adoption of the Lodger's Tax which provides funds to attract business and tourism.

"Quick, let me in. I'm a scoundrel."

Capitan takes 'the big one' 33-20

The Capitan Tigers exploded for 26 second-half points and a 33-20 come from behind win over Carrizozo Friday night in Capitan.

A large crowd saw the Tigers win for the fifth year in a row in this rivalry that dates back to 1927.

The 33 points was the most run up against the Grizzlies by Capitan in 29 years. Not since the Tigers won 47-0 in 1953, had they put on such an offensive show.

The game started out as a defensive struggle, with both teams exchanging several punts for the first 19 minutes of the contest. Carrizozo moved the ball effectively in the first half, and with 4:48 to go, John Roueche found Duane Zamora in the end zone for a 21 yard touchdown pass. Clarence Beltran converted and Carrizozo led 7-0.

Minutes later, Tiger quarterback Dewey Keller hit David Beavers on a 21 yard scoring pass, and with Todd Proctors kick, the teams went into intermission tied 7-7.

As an added attraction this year, both schools marching bands provided halftime entertainment.

Early in the third quarter, John Roueche returned a punt 85 yards for a Grizzly touchdown. Beltran again converted and Carrizozo led 14-7. This seemed to ignite the Tigers as Jon Aguilar scored on a 10-yard sweep less than a minute later.

On the Grizzlies next possession, Tiger Gid Allen scooped up a fumble and ran 34 yards to score. Proctor converted and the Tigers were never headed again. Still in the third quarter, Rudy Saiz recovered another Grizzly fumble to set the stage for a 65 yard Keller to Beavers touchdown pass.

Seven seconds into the fourth quarter, Sophomore Keller passed 27 yards to end Tim McElhannon for a touchdown. Proctor's kick was good and the Tigers led 33-14.

Carrizozo scored again late in the game on a three yard run by Steve Stearns. Capitan was driving toward the goal again as the game ended.

The win advances the Tigers to the playoffs against undefeated and top-ranked Texico Friday night at Texico. Earlier this year Texico defeated the Tigers 13-0 at Capitan. The Tigers, suffered another setback when Eddie Davis broke an arm in the second quarter, but Coach Mel Holland is hopeful his team can pull off an upset.

In the statistics department, Capitan had 233 yards offensively to Carrizozo's 227; Carrizozo was penalized 11 times for 100 yards; Capitan seven times for 50 yards. Capitan's record is now 5-2-1; Carrizozo is 4-4.

'When The Interest Came Due'

A young man lived with his parents in a public housing development. He attended public school, rode the free school bus, and participated in the free lunch program. He entered the Army, and then upon discharge retained his national service insurance. He then enrolled in the State University, working part time in the State Capitol to supplement his GI education check.

Upon graduation, he married a public health nurse and bought a farm with an FHA loan, and then obtained an RFC loan to go into business. A baby was born in the county hospital. He bought a ranch with the aid of the veterans' land program and obtained feed from the Government storehouses.

Later he put part of his land in the soil bank, and the payments soon paid out his farm and ranch. His father and mother lived very comfortably on the ranch on their social security and old-age assistance checks. REA lines supplied electricity. The Government helped clear his land for him.

The county agent showed him how to terrace it; then the Government built him a fishpond and stocked it with many fish. The Government guaranteed him a sale for his farm products at highest prices.

Books from the public library were delivered to his door. He banked money which a Government agency insured. His children grew up, entered public schools, ate free lunches, rode free school buses, played in the public parks, swam in public pools, and joined the FFA. He owned an automobile, so he favored the Federal highway improvement program.

He signed a petition seeking Federal assistance in developing an industrial project to help the economy of his area. He was leader in obtaining the new post office and Federal building, and went to Washington with a group to ask the Government to build a great dam costing millions to give the area "cheaper electricity."

He petitioned the Government to give the local air base to the county. He was also a leader in the movement to get his specific type of farming special tax write-offs and exemptions. Of course, he belonged to several farmers' organizations, but denied that they were pressure groups.

Then one day, after hearing that the per capita income tax bill in 1961 averaged out to $251.49 for every man, woman and child, he wrote his congressman:

"I wish to protest these excessive governmental expenditures and attendant high taxes. I believe in rugged individualism. I think people should stand on their own two feet without expecting handouts. I am opposed to all socialistic trends and I demand a return to the principles of our Constitution and of State Rights."
Do you know him?

Regardless of race, color, creed or lack of sex, the Zozo-Capitan Sideline Coach selection goes to Tom Guck of Capitan. Tom is an illiterate genius when it comes to Tiger football. Since Tom's graduation from Capitan High School in 1955 at tender age of 26, he has researched the archives of Tiger history trying to find out which game it was he played in. You can readily distinguish Tom from the rest of the Sideline Coaches as he is the one marching the sidelines selling pears. After every home game, for a run down on stats, bad calls, forest permits or pear market, Tom can be reached at his office located west of the shuffle board at the Rusty Anchor.

does a sober man explain his vote? Back in the old days it was feared that candidates could sway voters by plying them with booze. Today candidates sway voters with false promises, which saves the candidates a lot of money but denies pleasure to the voter. If I had a choice of rationalizing for casting a stupid ballot, I'd rather say I was drunk than to admit I fell for a 200-year election con. You can get over being drunk; stupidity takes a long time. We can simplify things by opening the saloons on election day. I recall the shortest campaign speech on record was made by a fellow running for Congress in Nevada: "Follow me into your saloon!" He didn't win, proving my point that drunks choose their public servants as well or better than sober folks.

HERODOTUS, the great historian, observed that the Persians were very fond of wine: "It is also their general practice to deliberate upon affairs of weight when they are drunk; and that on the morning, when they are sober, the decision to which they came the night before is put before them by the master of the house in which it was made; and if it is then approved they act on it; if not, they set it aside. Sometimes, however, they are sober at their first deliberations, but in this case they always reconsider the matter under the influence of wine." I just don't know why people don't pay more attention to history.

ODDLY, the election has made a Prohibitionist out of me. What I propose is to make it a criminal offense to be convicted of the reckless use of water. Especially on election day.
