

Carrizozo public schools recruiting students in Nogal

By P. E. CHAVEZ
Carrizozo school faculty and staff reported for their first day of work on Aug. 18. The orientation that day began at 8 a.m. with a continental breakfast followed by introduction of new staff and a review of plans for the 1983-84 school year.

The parking lot and streets on campus were paved last week. The boys' locker room in the old gym is almost completed and school supplies have been arriving. Carrizozo Schools will be ready for students on Aug. 22, first day of school.
Supt. James P. Miller told the board at its regular meeting last Tuesday evening that he went to Nogal to recruit students. Of 26 school-age children in Nogal, 17 attend school in Capitan.

The door-to-door campaign is an attempt to convince parents that they should send their children to schools within their district. To acquaint the Nogal and surrounding area residents with the school district, flyers were distributed. The flyers highlight the good points of Carrizozo schools.

Excerpts from the flyer:
"Carrizozo Municipal

Schools is a Class A school of 345 students, kindergarten through 12th grade. Carrizozo Schools are recognized both on a state and national level as a school system dedicated to academic and vocational excellence. Recently, Carrizozo High School was named to the Highways Magazine top 100 high schools in the nation."

"The Carrizozo FFA Chapter was the winner of the President's Energy Challenge contest for the western region (all schools west of the Mississippi River). The Carrizozo Vocational Agriculture teacher has been named the Outstanding Young Vocational Agriculture teacher for Region II.

"As a Carrizozo student enters high school, the emphasis on basic skills is continued. The High School Language Arts curriculum requires a student to complete at least two credits in writing and grammar classes and two credits in Literature classes where writing skills are also stressed. Carrizozo Schools also require two Math credits and two Science credits for graduation. These requirements are much higher than the number of credits mandated by the State in these areas, but well worth the extra student effort.

"Carrizozo students have scored in the low 30's in both Math and Science on the national ACT test. These scores put some Carrizozo students in the top 5 percent nationally on this test. Enroll your children today in Carrizozo—a small school on the move!"

The board agreed that they should join the promoting and recruiting efforts and that they should find out why Nogal residents, new and otherwise, are sending or are planning to send their children to Capitan schools instead of Carrizozo schools.

Board president Wally Ferguson said, "We're getting bad publicity from some."

The board will hold its Sept. 20 meeting at the Nogal Fire Hall. The Nogal community is invited to participate in the 7:30 p.m. regular meeting. Miller suggested that the board consider rotating the monthly meetings around the district to acquaint the people with Carrizozo Schools.

In other business the board made plans to meet in White Oaks to take a first hand look at district owned property. During a special meeting on July 28 the board examined and discussed a map of district real estate in White Oaks. Miller reviewed various pieces of property and their present condition. A suggestion was made that the board consider the sale of selected portions of the property, place the receipts in a permanent trust fund and use the interest income for activity programs. The White Oaks meeting to inspect the property is a preliminary step towards a sale decision.

Also at the July special meeting a proposal for acquiring a 35 acre farm owned by Charles Adams was presented. The proposal called for a 10 year lease of the property through a tax shelter arrangement held by an interested third party investor. Adams answered various questions from the board and agreed to have water and soil information available for the board's inspection. The board took the proposal under advisement and agreed to make a decision in their August meeting.

At Tuesday's meeting Miller informed the board that Adams had withdrawn his offer to lease his farm adjoining school property. Adams, chairman of Chamari, Inc. listed two reasons. "First, we have not been able to conceive of lease provisions that would be acceptable to the school under which the health and development of the orchard could be insured. A young orchard is something of a fragile thing and can be lost quite through accident, act of God, or faulty management."

"Secondly, the farm still represents to our family substantial tax benefits. This fact, though not new, has greater value to us now than it did when we first discussed the possibility of this transaction."

Adams said that if the school or community people interested in the future of the school, wish to purchase the front 19-20 acres of the property, they would be happy to sell this portion outright.

Reception for Charles, Mary Adams

Friends of Charles and Mary Rich Adams will gather at the Woman's Club in Carrizozo, Thursday, Aug. 25, 7 p.m., to pay tribute to the couple, who will be leaving Sept. 1 for Cambridge, MA.

Mrs. Sue Stearns heads a Woman's Club committee in charge of the reception. Purpose of the affair, Mrs. Stearns said, is to express the community's appreciation for the civic work performed by both Mr. and Mrs. Adams, and to wish them well in Massachusetts. In Cambridge, Mr. Adams will complete his Ph.D. degree in theology at Harvard University and Mrs. Adams will complete the bachelor of arts which she began at the University of Texas.

There will be no formal program at this reception, but community leaders are expected to recall the community involvement of the two, and honor them for community services.

Light refreshments will be served at the reception.

Scholarships won by area students

More than $94,000 in scholarships were awarded to 160 students from all over the country by the College of Agriculture and Home Economics at New Mexico State University.

Eight students from Lincoln County were recipients of scholarships: Thomas R. Perkins of Corona—$800 Tuition Scholarship; Doretta Burslett of Hondo—$400 NMSU Award;

Elena Shaw of Ruidoso—$1,000 Adrain Berryhill Family Scholarship; Desiree Shaw of Ruidoso—$200 P. E. Neale Sr. Memorial Scholarship; David Swalander of Ruidoso—$400 Hafford P. Stetson Memorial Scholarship; Clayton Lightfoot of Corona—$600 J. P. White In-dustrie Scholarship; Philip Dwayne of Carrizozo—$1,000 Prestigious Scholarship; and John Vega of Carrizozo—$1,000

Prestigious Scholarship. Scholarships are important, especially today, according to Dean Leon Pope, College of Agriculture and Home Economics. "They not only provide much needed financial aid in these difficult times, but also give the student a sense of recognition and satisfaction for excellent achievement," he said. "They help outstanding students achieve their highest potential."

County may resolve waste problem

Lincoln County Commissioners, faced with dwindling sites for solid waste disposal, will explore a plan to use six dumpsters and only one county dumpsite, they decided at the Aug. 16 meeting.

The proposed dumpsters will be placed at strategic locations in the county at a cost of from $2500 to $3000. They would be serviced by a special truck which costs from $40,000 to $60,000, equipped with a hoist that would cost $39,000. Total investment in the plan would be from $95,000 to $115,000.

After listening to an expert called in from Santa Fe to advise the county on the most desirable and economic system of waste disposal, commissioners agreed to follow up on his advice. Suzanne Cox, county manager, will make application for a block grant through the New Mexico Department of Finance and Administration in Santa Fe.

Mrs. Cox said the dumpster plan will be more economical than the present system. Actually, there isn't a system because the only county dump at Hondo, which opened recently after having been closed, has been shut down again. She said the entire system can be operated with one employee who will operate the truck, pick up dumpsters, take them to a single dumpster, and operate a compactor for the refuse.

Commissioners also approved a levy of 20 mills sought by the Sun Valley Sanitation Dist., Alto, on taxable property within that district.

Commissioners approved an agreement between the county and the Southeastern New Mexico Economic Development Dist. for the latter to provide certain services, such as collection of data, development of regional plans and programs, furnishing technical assistance, assistance in planning activities, environmental reviews, state and federal grant applications and other services. The annual cost is $2500.

Another agreement approved is with the Otero County Mental Health Assn. wherein the latter agrees to provide counseling services, through a counseling center one day a week in Carrizozo. A therapist in mental health will also be supplied to Corona one day each month during the fiscal year.

Services include performing diagnosis and evaluation of persons committed to the New Mexico State Hospital; mental health services to individuals and their families with an alcohol abuse problem referred to NMSH or other treatment facility; transportation, and follow-up for discharged persons.

A therapist will also make regular weekly visits to the county jails at Carrizozo and Ruidoso. The county cost is $7,200 for such services through the fiscal year ending June 30, 1984.

In other action, the commissioners turned down a request of Village of Ruidoso for payment of half its cost of Gavilan Canyon Road, part of which lies within the county, in the amount of $10,840.14. The county had agreed to pay Ruidoso the sum of $5,250 for dynamite work performed on the old crossing. But there was no agreement to pay half of replacing the crossing. The state, it was noted, had already paid half the cost of the $43,360.55 project.

—The Village of Capitan requested permission to sell a Huber Motorgrader, previously purchased from the county, at the State Highway public auction. Commissioners noted that $5500 is still owed on the motorgrader and could not provide Capitan a bill of sale requested so that it could put in good repair for the auction. However, commissioners will allow the machinery to be auctioned provided the $5500 owed on it is paid from proceeds of the sale.

—Approved of transfer of Cablevision of Lincoln County to Sierra Cablevision, which has bought the facility.

—Authorized road superintendent Guy Henley to attend the annual auction, New Mexico Highway Department, and purchase surplus equipment.

—Tabled a request for county flood insurance, a low-cost inurance plan offered through the Federal Emergency Agency, which the commissioners turned down more than a year ago.

UNIVERSAL LANGUAGE

The Monday night audience at the 'Up With People' performance gave cast members a standing ovation. The pleased show-goers went home convinced that music, song and dance is indeed a universal language. Can you imagine a world without the three?

Gary Persall, wife Joyce and daughter Ruth, were seen enjoying the pre-show potluck picnic at Spencer Park with their house guests from Canada and Texas. They were Line (pronounced Lyn) Trudel and Mandy Childress.

Also at the picnic were Mr. and Mrs. Morgan Maxwell and family whose guest in their home was Geert Vandenbosch of Haaselt, Belgium. Cast members Annette Bjorun of Oslo, Norway, and Linda Effinger, Chicago, IL were at the picnic with host family Bill and Mary Hausenbuhler.

YOUTH BOWLERS

Carrizozo's junior bowlers were in Alamogordo last Sunday. They gathered at Washington Park where they received trophies and enjoyed watermelon. Bowlers who were able to make the trip were Sylvia Archuleta, Guy Archuleta, Daniel Zamora, Richard Guevara, Raymond Lueras Jr., and Gabriel Chavez. They were accompanied by Charlotte Archuleta and Mr. and Mrs. Raymond Lueras Sr.

SCENIC RAFT RIDE

Leon "Hoot" Gibson and wife Linda managed to get away from their place of business, Western Auto, for a 10-day vacation in the Grand Teton Mountains in Wyoming. The couple's exciting outdoor adventure in wilderness area included an 80-mile raft trip through Snake River Canyon. The passengers on the raft included the Gibsons, another female tourist, and two guides, professional boatmen. Hoot took a turn at the oars serving as temporary captain.

The raft trip lasted 5 days and everyday was filled with new scenic thrills. Wildlife thrive in the wild and natural settings. Moose, elk and bald eagles were among the animals seen when the group camped and hiked. Delicious hot meals were prepared at campsites along the way by the group's cook, who happened to be a gourmet chef.

The Gibsons arrived home last Sunday in time to be in front of the high school building to pick up two people to add to their family—two girls, cast members of Up With People.

SWAP VACATION STORIES

While their parents were occupied in the rapids in remote parts of Wyoming, Lori and Jonna Gibson accompanied their grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. Johnson Stearns, on a vacation trip to Apache Indian Reservation Lake in Arizona.

Others who went on the Arizona trip were Bob and Jane Shafer; Scott, Rosemary and children Kerl and Robert. When everybody's film is developed the Gibson, Stearns and Shafer families will relive their vacation travels.

BATTERIES NOT INCLUDED

Following Sunday's parade Up With People cast members (three buses) headed for the high school so that host families could meet their guests. After unloading their luggage the cast searched for their host families. The school grounds was a sea of luggage, cast, host families, parade participants and spectators.

In an effort to help his parents find his temporary siblings, Johnny Bob Stearns wrote instructions on the card his dad was to hold. The host families hold up large cards with signs which look like Greek designs or ranch brands. Here is what J. B.'s instructions recommended: (A) Grip sign with thumb and forefinger of either right or left hand. (B) Look at sign. If the word in the corners are upside down or sideways, turn sign until the words, "top, right, left, and bottom" are readable. Now continue to next step. (C) Hold sign as high as possible without pulling arm out of socket. It'll be a jungle so hold your ground. (D) Batteries not included.

Eventually Bob and wife Sue gathered up their new daughters and headed for Nogal. Their guests were Marianne Madsen, Denmark, and Amy Hankins, Tennessee.

NO VACANCY

"Are you keeping any cast members?" was a question often asked around town when a committee began seeking host families for Up With People members. I had considered taking my five kids to the high school when the buses arrived. My plans were to try to pass them off as cast members in hopes that some local folks would put them up for three days. (It's been a long, hot summer.)

It was interesting to observe how cast and their luggage manage to efficiently locate their host families amid the excitement of the parade. Carrizozo's school band, varsity cheerleaders, a mother clown and her children and even Smokey the Bear from Capitan greeted the performers last Sunday.

Raphael, my 9-year-old, accompanied me to the parade and site where the cast and host families gathered. Raphael kept tugging at my elbow and asking, "Can we take one home, please?"

I repeated over and over, "No." He begged, "I promise I'll feed him and take good care of him. Please."

Then he pointed to the back of Mike Gaines' vo-ag pickup truck where Gaines was giving away six puppies.

The regular meeting of the Planning and Zoning Commission will be held at 7 p.m., Thursday, Aug. 18, in the Commissioner's Room, County Courthouse, Carrizozo. Agenda includes Agua Fria Subdivision, Unit II, review final plat; West Cedar Subdivision, a plat of Block W - conference review plat; Replat of a part of Block B, Red Cedar Subdivision; and Replat of a part of Block F, Red Cedar Subdivision.

New Mexico heritage

Carrizozo adjoins the 'Jornado frontier'

By DAVID E. STUART

Pioneer anthropologist Adolph Bandelier first systematically recorded a number of New Mexico's prehistoric ruins in the early 1880s. In the following half-century, archeologists were obsessed with the large Anasazi ruins in northwestern New Mexico.

There they excavated and compiled data to identify major stages in southwestern prehistory. In 1927, results were deciphered into a chronology which came to be called the "Pecos Classification"—still used to this day. At that time the Anasazi world was considered to be the major source of southwestern development. Peripheral regions were typically treated as "rural" or "rustic" versions of Anasazi society.

But, the Anasazi sequence didn't really match what the few field archeologists working south of Route 60 had begun to observe. So, in the 1930s, several younger archeologists intensified research in southern New Mexico and eastern Arizona. One of the most daring, Emil Haury, published "The Mogollon Culture of Southwestern New Mexico" in 1936. His "Mogollon Culture Areas" described a distinct archeological region and resolved problems with the Pecos sequence.

In southern New Mexico Haury and others found archeological sites characterized by pithouses and, later (after AD 1000), by cobble and adobe "pueblos." Everyday ceramics were brownwares rather than the graywares, so characteristic of northern New Mexico's Anasazi country. Mogollon decorated ceramics were reds or red-on-browns until about AD 900. Thereafter, Anasazi color schemes penetrated the southern highlands.

The Mogollon brown pottery is produced in an oxygen rich atmosphere, while the grays of the Anasazi are oxygen starved, indicating two different manufacturing techniques. Different types of pottery clay also contributed to regional characteristics. Mogollon religious chambers are usually

Public forum on Ft. Stanton use

SANTA FE, NM — A community forum on alternative uses of Ft. Stanton Hospital and Training School will be held later this month. Health and Environment Department Secretary Robert McNeill has announced.

The forum will be held Wednesday, Aug. 31, from 7 to 9 p.m. at the Capitan High School cafeteria.

"This will be an excellent opportunity for public input on the transition of Ft. Stanton and alternatives for using the facility after the transition is completed," McNeill said.

McNeill and other members of his staff will be available at the forum to share planning information and respond to questions and comments. After the transition is completed, McNeill emphasized that Ft. Stanton will not be closed.

"Every effort will be extended to the current staff to include them in Ft. Stanton's new mission," he said.

Marijuana's effect on the body

The war on drugs must be met with resolve; the stakes couldn't be any higher!

SYMPTOMS OF A DRUG USER

LIONS INTERNATIONAL

NEWLY ELECTED PRESIDENT of Carrizozo Lions Club, Ernest Pitillo, and Charlotte Rowin, president of Valley of Fires Lioness Club, stand before a poster prepared by past-president Joe DeTevis. The poster represents a club effort to combat drug use, and will be displayed in various business firms.

Temperatures registered last week by Robert Williams at Lincoln Station show a high of 84 degrees on the 13th and a low of 51 on the 14th with moisture 0.38".

Cedarvale, NM hosted a reunion of former residents of the area which included the communities of Progresso and Pinos Wells on Aug. 6-7.

The Senior Center was the site of activities. Many brought their recreational vehicles and camped. Others visited relatives while some spent the night in Corona and Vaughn motels.

It must have caused much wonder to passersby to see so many cars in so small a town. The register shows a total of 332 who signed it.

People came from 14 states outside New Mexico, spanning an area from New York to California. Texas sent the most people with a total of 30.

Two people who have helped in the space program are J. W. Richardson and Fannie Lee Hamilton Milton. J. W. is an engineer in spacecraft design and Fannie Lee was an inspector for the gluing of tiles on the first spacecraft.

A program had not been planned but Cecil Cast, a fiddler, and two guitarists provided music for an impromptu dance of about two hours on Saturday night. It was not easy to dance on carpeting but it was enjoyable to participants and spectators alike. On Sunday afternoon Donnie Kendall accompanied Cecil in listening music. Cecil played the fiddle and Donnie the guitar.

On Sunday morning an hour and one-half was devoted to the singing of hymns, testimonies to God, and brief statements of memories of life in Cedarvale and surrounding communities.

Various ones could not remain for the entire time and it seemed obvious on the part of the most that there was great reluctance to leave. Several came on Friday and remained until Monday morning. It was generally agreed that there must be another such reunion before many years. Thanks to everyone who helped in any way to make this such a great success.

Recent guests of Mr. and Mrs. A. E. Mulkey were Mr. and squares, unlike those of the Anasazi, which are round.

"Mogollon" ruins were named after the Mogollon Mountains in which most of the early finds were made. The Mogollons extend westward into Arizona and were originally named after Don Juan Ignacio Flores Mogollon, provincial governor of New Mexico from 1712 to 1715.

The Mogollon chronology, like the Anasazi one, is divided into half a dozen periods. Pottery appeared a bit earlier among the Mogollon than among the Anasazi, but the Anasazi developed the "pueblo" style of architecture first.

Mogollon populations extended from, roughly, Socorro south into northern Mexico. The heartland was in the area of the Gila Wilderness and extended westward into Arizona. The eastern periphery of the "pure" Mogollon district is west of the Rio Grande. But scholars argue endlessly about the exact location of the boundaries.

In the Mogollon area attention has been largely devoted to the so-called Mimbres people—named after the Mimbres River, which runs south from the Gila Wilderness to vanish in the desert near Deming. Mimbres means "willow trees" in Spanish. The area's early Spanish inhabitants first applied the name "Mimbrenos" to pithouse villages along the river, since clumps of willow trees grew in the disturbed pithouse soil.

Presently, archeologists apply the term only to sites containing the distinctive Mimbres black-on-white pottery and puddled adobe-cobble architecture—not to the pithouse villages. Mimbres villages represent the Classic period of Mogollon development from about AD 1000 to 1150. They are contemporaneous with Classic Chaco Canyon pueblos 300 miles to the north, but are not so large, so numerous, or so refined, architecturally.

The famous Mimbres black-on-white pottery, however, is elegant by any standard. The Mogollon heartland was abandoned by roughly AD 1450. No living descendants can be conclusively identified.

To the east, the "Jornada-Mogollon Culture Area" was first defined by Donald Lehmer in 1948. It has been expanded eastward since then. Now it encompasses most of southern New Mexico, save the westernmost portion.

Here life-style was basically "Mogollon," but the pace of development was retarded. Sites are smaller, fewer in number, and prior to AD 800 villages are quite scarce. The farmsteads and other Mogollon characteristics diminish as one moves east, toward the Pecos River. Somewhere in that area Mogollon and Plains archeological features blend. So again, no precise boundary is agreed upon.

In the Pecos region, agriculture and settled village life appear to have been prominent features for only a few centuries at the end of the first millennium AD. Research there is still in its infancy and there are few dated ruins.

Hundreds of sites throughout the "Jornada" contain only ubiquitous brown utility wares, manufactured for nearly a thousand years, so one can only guess at a date. Much of the Jornada-Mogollon area was abandoned in the AD 1400s, then later resettled by Apachean groups.

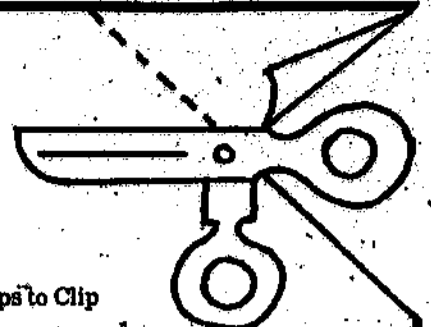

The culture area is named for the Jornada del Muerto—the waterless region in Socorro and Sierra counties referred to as the "journey of the dead man" in accounts of Spanish expeditions. In reality, the Jornada del Muerto is but a small portion of the culture area.

The core area, roughly bounded by Socorro, Carrizozo, Alamogordo, and Las Cruces, remains one of the least known archeological frontiers in North America.

Some young archeologist will yet become famous unlocking secrets buried in the "Jornada frontier."

Home repair loans available

Farmers Home Administration offices throughout rural areas are offering loan and grant assistance to enable low income home owners to repair or rehabilitate homes in need of weatherization.

Generally, repair loans and grants are used to remove health hazards by rebuilding roofs, providing sanitary water and waste disposal systems, installing screens, windows and insulation or other steps to make the home decent and safe.

Interest rates for these loans are 1 percent for the first year, 2 percent for the second year, 3 percent for the third year, and 4 percent for the fourth year. Grants are limited to individuals of 62 or older and have an annual income so low that no part of the total assistance needed can be repaid as a loan.

Interested individuals should contact the local FmHA office serving Lincoln and Otero Counties at Ruidoso, 1007 Mechem Drive, 258-5294, Monday through Friday, 9 a.m. to 3:30 p.m.; or Alamogordo, 1017 - 10th St., Room B-8, 437-2853, Thursdays, 8 a.m. to 3:30 p.m.; or by mailing a request for an application to: Farmers Home Administration, P. More money for state's highways

WASHINGTON — Senator Pete Domenici (R-NM) announced Monday that the Federal Highway Administration is awarding $11,088,492 to the New Mexico State Highway Dept. in additional funding for highway construction in 1983.

The Federal Highway Administration (FHWA) distributes revenues to the states from the Highway Trust Fund at the beginning of each year. Revenues not spent by the states are returned to FHWA on Aug. 1, with the funds being redistributed by FHWA based on the needs of the states.

"I'm very pleased that FHWA has granted this additional funding for vital New Mexico highway projects," Domenici said. "New Mexico has spent her full allotment this year and many projects have yet to be completed."

"I wrote a letter to Ray Barnhart, Director of the Federal Highway Administration, asking him to grant New Mexico's request for additional funding in 1983," Domenici said. "With the great distances between communities in New Mexico, it is extremely important that our highway system is continually maintained and improved."

For school officials to determine eligibility, the household must provide the following information listed on the application: Names of all household members; social security numbers of all adult household members or a statement that the household member does not possess one; total household income; and the signature of an adult household member certifying that the information provided is correct. If a household member becomes unemployed or if the household size changes, the family should contact the school. Such changes may make the children of the household eligible for reduced price meals, or for additional benefits such as free meals if the family income falls at or below the levels shown above.

In certain cases foster children are also eligible for these benefits. If a household has foster children living with them and wishes to apply for such meals for them, the household should contact the school for more information.

The information provided by the household is confidential and will be used only for purposes of determining eligibility and verifying data.

Inside Religion

"Book Burning Matches" with the reminder that Moral Majority does not go in for such censorship.)

In 153 trenchant pages, Thomas's book notes the following:

—TV Guide's expose of networks which have been submitting in advance any script that deals with a homosexual theme, in order that such script be reviewed by the Gay Media Task Force in Los Angeles.

—The repeated evidence of anti-religion attitudes, or no interest at all in religious news, by large segments of Big Media reporters and editors.

—The continued refusal to list religious books on best seller lists, even when some religious books are far outselling those which are on these lists. (Thomas compares religious books to Negro baseball teams in the '30s.)

—Any effort by conservative groups to remove what they regard as objectionable books from any library is widely reported as censorship. But when this same thing is done by liberal organizations, such as the National Organization of Women or racial minority group organizations, that kind of censorship is portrayed as crusades against racism or sexism. (Thomas cites as examples the NOW efforts at the Texas Textbook Commission hearings, as well as the protests of a black school administrator at Mark Twain School in Fairfax, Virginia, who demanded that the school library be purged of Mark Twain's Huckleberry Finn.) Thomas also quotes

Professor Michael Levin of City College of New York, writing in Commentary magazine:

"One of the most extensive thought-control campaigns in American educational history has gone completely ignored. I am referring to the transformation, in the name of 'sex fairness,' of textbooks and curricula at all educational levels, with the aim of convincing children that boys and girls are the same."
