County commissioners

Employees get bonus; road maintenance funds in doubt

Lincoln County employees got a one-time bonus of $100 each from the county commissioners at their meeting Tuesday.

Bill Elliott introduced the resolution which he said would be a gesture of appreciation for the good work being done by county employees. He called it a one-time "productivity" increase.

Commissioners made payment to the State Land Office of $9,919.86 for payment for gravel taken from a pit on the county's 280-acre state land lease. The material was taken from the pit by seven contractors, none of whom have paid the county for the gravel removed. The material was removed in 1979-80 and payment should have been made to the county which, in turn, would pay the State Land Office. The county will now attempt to collect the amount from the contractors involved.

In past years Lincoln County has received approximately $150,000 from the New Mexico Highway Dept. as its cooperative share of maintaining designated roads. Each year the county commissioners have submitted a list of such roads in order to receive cooperative funds for their maintenance. The 1983-84 roads selected total $138,600, half of which will be paid by the state. However, commissioners have been informed by the highway department that such funds for the year 1984-85 will not be available, and that the only way of receiving cooperative funding is to apply directly to the New Mexico Legislature.

In other business, Suzanne Cox, county manager, recommended to the commissioners that the county subdivision regulations be amended to allow subdivision streets to be graveled instead of paved. However, if a subdivider wants paved streets, he may construct them but they cannot be accepted as part of the county's road maintenance system. It was further recommended that all streets now paved but in disrepair, be converted to gravel as quickly as possible.

According to Cox, the county may resume maintenance of subdividers paved roads at a later time when funds are more plentiful.

The switch to graveled damaged paved roads is expected to solve some longtime problems "until the time Lincoln County can afford to maintain paved streets," Cox said.

Proposed to increase the number of members on the county planning commission from seven to nine, to be selected at large from the county. Four members will be appointed for a term expiring Dec. 31, 1984 and five whose terms will expire Dec. 31, 1985. Thereafter, appointments will be for two-year terms. Also, the county planning commission shall recommend criteria for the identification of areas worthy of Historic District designation. The present ordinance applies to Lincoln and White Oaks. Under the new recommendation White Oaks will be excluded and pertain to Lincoln only until such time as any other community petitions for such designation.

Commissioners refused a request by the New Mexico State Land Office to amend an existing lease of 280 acres of land by Lincoln County being used for gravel and sanitary landfill. This lease was signed in 1980. The land office requested that only 40 acres be used for the stated purpose, thus depriving the county of 240 acres of land for which it has already paid the $420 annual lease. Commissioners informed the land office that the county holds a valid lease to the 280 acres and declined to accede to that office's request to return the 240 acres to the state.

School board meetings

Two special meetings have been set in December by the Carrizozo Board of Education to transact school property and building matters.

The first, a special meeting on Saturday, Dec. 3 at 9 a.m. in White Oaks, will deal with the proposed sale of selected school properties in the White Oaks Township. The second meeting is the regular monthly meeting of the board which has been moved from its customary time on the third Tuesday of every month to the second Tuesday in order for the board to consider adoption of resolutions regarding school district elections in Feb. 1984.

Interested citizens are encouraged to attend the board meetings, and agendas are available three days prior to the meeting at the school district's main office.

4-H banquet

The Lincoln County 4-H Awards Banquet scheduled for Sunday, Dec. 4 has been cancelled.

The banquet has been rescheduled for Sunday, Jan. 8 at the Hondo School.

BISHOP Ricardo Ramirez of Las Cruces participated in the 30th anniversary of the building of Santa Rita Catholic Church, Nov. 29. He is shown addressing the congregation during the homily of the Mass at which he officiated, along with Fr. Dave Bergs, pastor, and Fr. Kevin Moynahan, former pastor.

Community turnout for Thanksgiving

Pastor Ray Wells of the Assembly of God Church welcomed a large crowd at the annual Thanksgiving celebration held at the church last week.

Phyllis Schlegel played four numbers on the organ including "Thanks Be To Thee" by Handel and "Bless This House" by Brahe.

Congregational songs included "America," "Battle Hymn of the Republic" and "God Bless America" as the patriotic theme.

End Miller sang "We Gather Together" in Dutch, then in English. She and Jim Miller's children sang "I Just Came to Praise the Lord and Let My Light Shine."

The Baptist Ladies Quartet and the Methodist Choir provided several inspirational numbers, including "Just A Closer Walk With Thee." The Rev. Cleve Kirby read a psalm and the Rev. Harry Riser gave the invocation.

Dwayne Vinson played two numbers by Bach on his trumpet. Tim and Carleen Wadley and the Lifeliners from Ruidoso sang "My Tribute" and "Life Giver." The Carrizozo Spanish group harmonized in several numbers.

Mr. Wells promises a bigger and better Thanksgiving celebration next year.

Disallowed energy funds being restored

SANTA FE. Some $903,965 in federal funds previously disallowed for the state's Weatherization Assistance Program will not have to be repaid Gov. Tony Anaya announced today.

The $903,965 is part of a $1,818,219 U.S. Department of Energy disallowance resulting from a federal audit of the state's Weatherization Assistance Program from 1977 through 1981.

According to the initial DOE Audit report, the Lincoln County Senior Center had incurred $10,518 in disallowances.

The Senior Center, working in conjunction with the Human Services Department, had reduced this disallowance to $7,654. The governor and Secretary Goldberg have decided to pay the remaining disallowance without assessing the local organization with its share of the liability. The governor said, "we recognize that your community cannot afford an additional financial burden at this time."

The federal government has decided to reallocate the entire disallowance to the state so that the funds may be utilized to weatherize the homes of the elderly and the needy.

The program, which provides insulation and weatherization services to eligible households, was administered by the former Governor's Office of Community Affairs.

Secretary of Human Services Joseph Goldberg has initiated procedures to pay the federal government the remaining $914,224 of federal audit exceptions, Goldberg said, however, that the federal government has decided to reallocate the $914,224 to the state for weatherization programs.

"The DOE has demonstrated its commitment to the State of New Mexico by returning the disallowed funds so that the needy will benefit from past administrative problems," Anaya said.

Anaya said a number of community action agencies throughout the state will also benefit from this agreement since they eventually would have incurred the bulk of the $1.8 million liability.

Grizzly Banquet

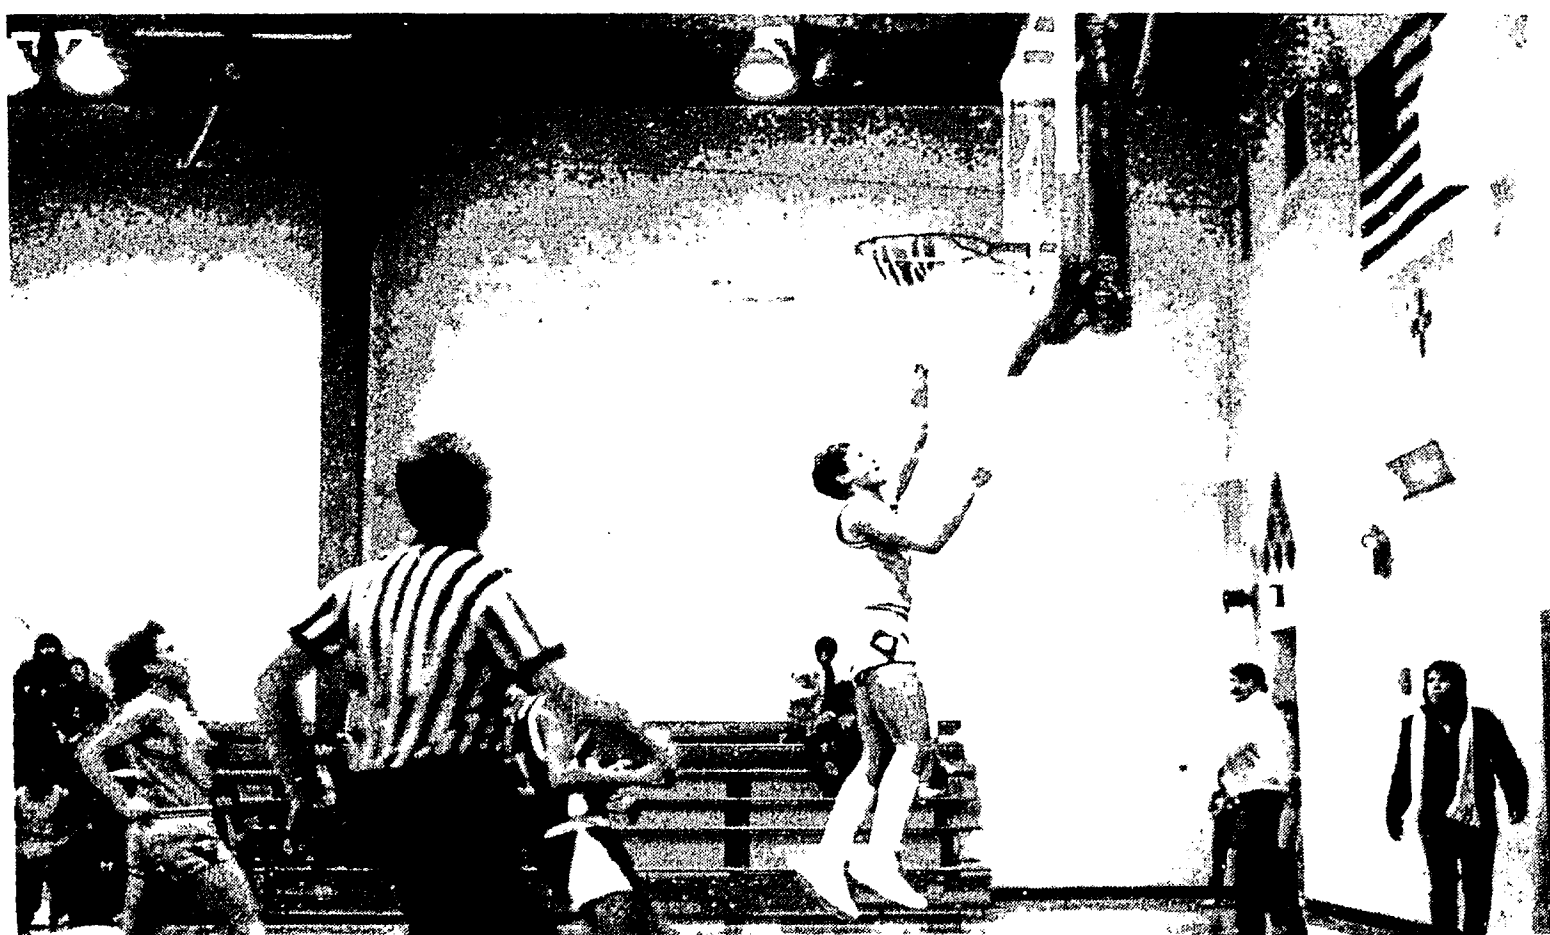

The Carrizozo Grizzlies will hold their Fall Athletic Banquet honoring high school football and volleyball players on Dec. 2 at 6 p.m., in the high school cafeteria.

The public is encouraged to attend. Each family should bring two dishes to pass, a main dish and a dessert or vegetable.

After the awards portion of the program, there will be a dance for students and parents.

GIRLS WIN—Anna Luera, 12, rebounds the ball and shoots for 2 points during the game with Magdalena Monday. The Grizzlies down the Steers 71 to 38.

BOYS LOSE—John Roueche (12) lays one up during the game with Magdalena. After holding a 48-33 lead at the end of the third quarter, the Grizzlies fell short in the fourth to give the Steers a 59-56 win.

By the way

By POLLY CHAVEZ

THANKS, LORD.

I found a good description of Thanksgiving Day in Our Sunday Visitor, a Catholic publication. Bernadette McCarver Snyder in her column 'A Mother's Meditation' says that the national holiday has a lot going for it. The columnist says that once the pies are made and the turkey is in the oven, everybody can relax and visit. "You don't have to dye eggs or rent a bunny suit or plan a fireworks display or make a heart-shaped meatloaf. You don't have to cut up old sheets to make costumes for young goblins. And you don't have to shop and gift-wrap for weeks to be sure everybody gets just the right present. And that's a lot to be thankful for."

PASS THE TURKEY

Carrizozo folks either had out-of-town visitors in their homes on Thanksgiving Day or traveled out and were guest of others. Among the travelers were Pete and Debbie King and their son Brandon who were in Albuquerque to spend the holiday. The Kings are owners of King's Food Mart, formerly called the Grocery Basket. The Kings' joined Mr. and Mrs. Cliff Hiner (Debbie's parents) and Mrs. Gladys Bowden (Pete's mother) at a Thanksgiving Day dinner hosted by Ron Hiner and Judy Jones, all of Albuquerque. Ron is Debbie's brother. The holiday guests included Judy's relatives.

Albuquerque residents Christine, Gabe and John were in Carrizozo to spend the holiday with their mother, Mary Vidaurri Chavez. Mary's mother, Mrs. Sabino Vidaurri, joined the family at dinner.

In the home of Mr. and Mrs. Joe Ortiz visitors were Conrad Ortiz, wife Santine and son Gustavo, Anthony, TX; Yolanda Ortiz, Alamogordo; Willie "Bebe" and Tami Vega and daughter Adrienne, Santa Fe. Conrad, Yolanda and Tami joined Mario, Judi and Tracey of Carrizozo, all sons and daughters of Joe and Nena Ortiz. Bianca Vega, Judi's daughter, enjoyed her first Thanksgiving amid her aunts and uncles.

MORE ZOZO VISITORS

Annette Chavez, Albuquerque, arrived last Wednesday night at the home of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Nat Chavez, to spend the holiday. The Chavez family enjoyed four horror movies, which Annette brought from Albuquerque along with the contraption that attaches to the television for showing the movies.

Li, Col. Gilbert Ortiz and sons Gilbert and Bryan, Abilene, TX spent Thanksgiving Day with Gilbert's parents, Mr. and Mrs. S. M. Ortiz. Another son, Bobby Ortiz, and friend, Beverly Harron, both of Albuquerque, also were visitors at the S. M. Ortiz residence.

Santa Fe residents Larry and Jonette and baby daughter Jessica Elaine spent several days in Carrizozo over the holidays with Jonette's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Chuck Rominger, and son, Michael. While here Larry accompanied Michael to Sierra Blanca for a day of skiing.

DOUBLE CELEBRATION

Mr. and Mrs. Tino Lopez hosted a dinner in their home on Thanksgiving Day in honor of Margaret Lueras, their granddaughter whose birthday occurred on Monday, Nov. 28. On hand for the occasion were Tino Lopez Jr., Espanola, and James and Jeanne Lueras, Albuquerque. They joined Margaret's mother and sister, Flavia and Liz Lueras of Carrizozo.

BACK HOME

Bill and Liz MacVeigh are back home after a two-week vacation in New Jersey. The MacVeighs are former owners of the Grocery Basket, now known as King's Food Mart. The couple spent Thanksgiving Day in Audubon, NJ with Bill's mother, Mrs. Sophie Schuler. The MacVeighs visited in Chestertown, MD with Mr. and Mrs. Bill Lambert. Bill and Liz are cousins. Bill and Liz stopped in Atlanta City, NJ before heading for Carrizozo.

CLOSER TO HOME

Lucille Russell spent the holiday closer to home. She spent Thanksgiving Day in the home of daughter Joy Leslie and husband Charlie and their families.

The Kings feted the Queens on Thanksgiving Day. Mac and Faye King shared their dinner.

with neighbors Dorothy Queen and son Don. Faye sent over two servings of the King's turkey and trimmings, which Dorothy described as some of the best cooking she's ever eaten.

PARADE PARTICIPANT

Lisa Cantrell, 1983 Sun Duchess, was in El Paso to participate in the Thanksgiving Day parade, part of the Sun Carnival festivities. Her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Jim Cantrell, brother Bryan and sister Elaine (1982 Sun Duchess) were on hand to view the parade. Other relatives among the parade goers were Lisa's grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. Homer Scott; her uncle and aunt, Mr. and Mrs. Harold Scott, Alamogordo; and her aunt, Mrs. Jim Burling (Marjorie), Roswell.

Lisa and her parents spent Wednesday night at the Marriott Hotel where accommodations were provided for duchesses and their families. Jim Cantrell flew in from Atlanta following a business trip, to join his family. After the parade the Cantrell family dined and shopped in Juarez. Lisa returns to El Paso Dec. 27 to prepare for the coronation and ball.

DECEMBER NUPTIALS

Carrizozo friends of Darlene Scott, former resident, received word that she will marry Jerry James on Dec. 22. Darlene was Carrizozo's school band instructor for two years. An all-day Christmas bazaar will be sponsored by the seniors on Dec. 22. Donations of baked goods, crafts and jellies will be appreciated.

SKATING PARTY

Members of the Methodist Youth Group were at Ruidoso's Skateland last Sunday. Adult sponsors were Mignon Sims and James Miller. Among the skaters were John Paul and Julie Harris; Colby and Jeanna Sims; Shannon and Heather Miller; Lyn Gallacher; John, Zada and Geneva Maxwell and guest friends, Julie Vega, Christella Chavez and Linda Garcia.

Farmers take in about $143 billion a year from the sale of crops and livestock, plus another $39 billion from off-farm sources. They spend about $137 billion for goods and services to produce those crops and livestock. In addition, they spend up to $45 billion for personal taxes, investments, and for consumer items similar to those bought by urban residents.

ERIC Lynch, Shop Rite manager, receives the ceramic Christmas tree raffled by the Carrizozo Grizzly Band. Making the presentation to Lynch are band officers (left to right) Karen Baroz, secretary; Bryan Cantrell, vice-president; Marcia Hefker, treasurer; and Duane Vinson, president. The tree was handcrafted and donated by Lois R. Harris of Oklahoma City, OK.

Three of the five Capitan students who tried out for the All-State Choir were selected. Anita Armstrong, alto, and Laura Lee, alto, will be singing in the All-State Girls Choir. Daron Armstrong, bass, will be singing in the All-State Mixed Choir.

All-State will be the first weekend in January on the campus of the University of New Mexico. Activities take place in Popejoy Hall and are open to the public.

Capitan music students are now making delivery of Wisconsin cheese. The project netted about $1,400 and will be used for future activities.

A fire in the summer of 1982 destroyed the Hondo gym and other buildings. As a result, all Hondo games will be played away this basketball season.

Currently 12 boys are out for the Eagle varsity. These include two seniors, four juniors, three sophomores, two freshman and one 8th grader. The squad is short on experience but has a lot of desire. The varsity was scheduled to play the Ruidoso JV on Nov. 28 and participate in the Cloudercroft Tournament, Dec. 1-3.

The A. C. T. college entrance exam will be given to Hondo juniors and seniors on Dec. 8.

In A Garden

In the garden of friendship I chanced to walk one day To see the faces of my friends and listen to their voices so gay

Like blossoms blooming in a garden Their faces were full of love And each life reflected the beauty Only God gave from above

But, lo! one I found was gone From his place that day. And I knew a messenger had come And carried him away To take his place with those Chosen for the Master's bouquet.

In sadness I pondered, but a fragrance lingered all the while. Of words of cheer he had spoken and his handshake and his smile.

Though he was but a mortal man Living in a house of clay, I thank my God I knew his fellowship And that he had come my way.

And I know when I stand that day Before the Great White Throne He will greet me with a smile and say, "Little sister, welcome Home!"

Historical ordinance to be revised

The Lincoln County Commission has asked the Lincoln County Planning and Zoning Board, the Lincoln Historical Board and the district attorney to up-date and revise the Lincoln Historical Ordinance.

The Commissioners realize that Lincoln has many significant buildings, land and areas having important historical, architectural, archaeological, cultural interest and value that reflect the heritage of the Town of Lincoln and New Mexico; and, once uprooted or destroyed, their distinctiveness is gone forever.

A revision committee has been appointed comprised of three members from the Lincoln County Planning and Zoning Board and two members from the Lincoln Historical Board. The members are Bill Seelbach, chairman, Walt Wilson, Mack Bell, Glenn Dennis, Ofelia Salas and Suzanne Cox. Alternate members are Wesley Grigsby and Leota Pfingston.

Questionnaires are being prepared so anyone can make comments or suggestions of what should be considered to be a part of the ordinance.

Opinion

● THE day before Thanksgiving three University of New Mexico professors who teach courses on Latin America met in public to declare that US forces will invade Nicaragua and that the act is "only a matter of time." This may come as a surprise to Commander-in-Chief Ronald Reagan, but I hope not. It is my fervent wish that he not only clean out the Soviet presence in Nicaragua but in all Latin- and South America. The time to root out a threat to this country is to strike early, quickly and powerfully. This is the substance of the Monroe Doctrine that protected this country from hostile encroachment in the Western hemisphere. President John Kennedy dealt the first blow to the doctrine when he agreed to accept the presence of a Soviet Cuba in exchange for Premier Khrushchev's removal of missiles on the island. The doctrine was further deep-seated by President Jimmy Carter who chose to rely on love rather than arms. But there is no reason why the Monroe Doctrine, which worked so well for 150 years, can't be revived.

● WHOEVER arranged the panel discussion anent the invasion of Nicaragua at the University of New Mexico weren't taking chances on losing this anti-Reagan Administration debate. The three professors, Theo Crevenna, Marshall Nason and Jan K. Black were pitted against one UNM student, Keith Mazikowski, who defended the Grenada invasion as best he could. The professors followed the liberal line: (1) No American lives were in danger on Grenada; (2) the invasion was illegal; (3) the runways had been recommended since 1955 and American, Swiss, Canadian Australia and British contractors had a hand in the project to spur tourist trade; and (4) it was condemned by the United Nations and the Organization of American States.

● ONE professor observed that Grenada was a violation of international law. He should know that international law is what nations agree upon, and when one decides otherwise, the law cannot be applied. There is no court to try international law violators, as witness the fact that the Soviets invaded Afghanistan without a tak! from proponents of international law dealing with the forceful destruction of a sovereign state. Where the security of the US is at stake, who gives a damn about international law, or the United Nations, or the Organization of American States? The first duty of a state is to protect itself from hostile forces. For the United States to sacrifice itself on the altar of idealism, international law, and starry-eyed visions of universal love is a quick trip to oblivion in a world of blood-thirsty brigands.

● WHEN the United States practiced gunboat diplomacy, enforced the Monroe Doctrine, willingly went to war to protect the lives and property of US citizens abroad, and took no crap from the swaggering, strutting, pompous sword-rattling thugs masquerading as heads of state, we were respected around the world. Now that the US has allowed itself to be dominated by the pusillanimous purveyors of peace-at-any-price poppycock, we are universally hated. When we were militarily strong and willing to use that strength, this country prospered and achieved the highest standard of living of any people on earth and provided individual liberty in quantity never achieved in all history. Then these three professors and their fellow-travelers on the "peace at any price" circuit came along...

● THESE professors and their leftist colleagues see no danger in the Soviet promise to conquer the world, which includes us all. Has the record escaped them? The Communist Revolution began Nov. 7, 1917. Since that time a total of 53 nations have been brought under Communist domination. The territories of these 53 nations make up 33 percent of the earth's land surface. Communism today controls 1,742 million people—38 percent of the world population, and nearly all starving. Soviet-style Communism has been enslaving people at the rate of 23,000 a day since that fateful day of Nov. 7, 1917. Today the Soviets are winning in Southeast Asia, the Middle East, Southern Africa and Central America. The professors have these figures, yet all three have condemned even the minor excursion in Grenada as an illegal, unwarranted display of Yankee aggression. With people like these, do the Soviets need tanks?

● AT THE risk of being socially ostracized I am compelled to quote from the wisdom of Gloria Steinem, noted authority on international law and bedroom etiquette. The old harridan was right when she said: "Law and justice are not always the same. When they aren't, destroying the law may be the first step toward changing it." Another unlikely figure with a penchant for pontification is Coretta Scott King, widow of Martin Luther King Jr., now an authority on everything, so listen up: "When laws cease to have usefulness to society, they should be changed, not enforced." So if the rules of international law threaten our existence, we have the collective wisdom of two widely known and respected liberal nuts to justify not only Grenada but the invasion of all Central America. I could have quoted more credible sources, but who would believe them? I even sought a few political pearls from Ed Asner, but found no record of his ever having said anything worthy of note.

Lawrence, Kansas, was the film location for an absolutely hair-raising horror show produced by the ABC Network and entitled "The Day After" (after a nuclear attack.)

This six million dollar ABC contribution to the late Leonid Brezhnev's Nuclear Freeze (Except-In-Russia) Campaign illustrates that ad nauseum aphorism, "Incineration Is Not Good For You."

This ABC special was presented only three months after the Soviet Air Force's mass murder of 269 Korean Air Line passengers had begun to effect a great deal of thaw in the nuclear freeze movement.

The film's nationally televised debut coincided rather remarkably with the deployment in Europe of US cruise and Pershing II missiles, as a retaliatory deterrent to a veritable Black Forest of Soviet SS20s, which are already in place and aimed at cities all over Western Europe.

Surely the ABC Network should consider at least one sequel to this feature film: another multi-million dollar production which could have the same title, "The Day After." The Troops Arrive.

"The Troops" in this sequel are foreign troops, who land in Kansas City International Airport in 24 of the enormous Soviet troop transport planes.

One-third of these troops are loaded into trucks for the trip to Fort Riley to receive the surrender of the US Army troops in the old home of the Calvary.

The second planeload forms the first contingent for the takeover of Leavenworth, both the Fort as well as the Federal prison and the US Army's disciplinary barracks. All of the inmates of these two institutions are promptly released. They are encouraged by the foreign soldiers to wreak vengeance upon their jailers. They do this in a wild orgy of murder—not only of guards and military personnel but families as well. The survivors of this two-day orgy of murder, rape and looting are loaded onto trucks for transportation to Western Kansas. Here they will become laborers on Kansas's first collective farm.

For the university town of Lawrence there is a similar experience. Half of the battalion of occupation troops are Cambodians, veteran troopers of the Khmer Rouge. They are assigned all of the people of Lawrence except various leaders of the university community.

The Khmer Rouge swiftly rounds up some 20,000 people. They do so with dispatch, after the machine-gunning of two or three dozen residents who are insufficiently cooperative or are too infirm or ill to move rapidly. They begin a march across Kansas.

By the time this death march reaches Dodge City, 75 percent have died of exhaustion, exposure, starvation or Cambodian bayonets. The few survivors are turned around, made to retrace their steps—while digging graves along the way. There are no survivors of this second leg of The Long March (named in honor of Chairman Mao.)

The university community of Lawrence is turned over to a battalion of the Sixth Guards, the elite airborne unit that spearheaded the invasion of Afghanistan. For the first day they are under the command of a colonel of the KGB. This man has an extensive list of all of Lawrence's city government, police force and opinion makers, such as clergy, media people and teachers.

A few of the opinion makers dare to protest, either on the grounds of the human rights implicit in the Helsinki Accord or even, in a few cases, by declaring emphatically that they too were protesters of the United States Government's "criminal policies."

This makes the KGB colonel roar with laughter. He then shouts an order in Russian, which one of the language department recognizes as: "Hang these people; then shoot the rest." These American friends of the Soviet Union are strung up on a number of trees around the political science building. The remainder of the condemned are marched to the municipal sewage treatment plant and executed there, for the purpose of expediting burial.

By morning, the student body begins to riot in protest. Very swiftly they learn why such student demonstrations are unheard of in Moscow. For the Soviet paratroopers quite methodically open up on them with their AK 47s. In two minutes there are 1,500 dead and wounded.

The stunned survivors are therefore unhesitant when loudspeaker trucks inform them that they are to go immediately to their dormitories or other places of residence and pack just the material they need and can carry on a long, long trip.

As this crowd moves rapidly in obedience, it is noticed that some of them are being ordered to stop by the paratroopers. As the great majority hurry to their living quarters, they notice that all of those students detained are attractive young women. These young women are marched into the basketball coliseum.

When the male residents of the various dormitories finish their hasty packing and assemble on the streets, the paratroopers form them into platoons. Then, one platoon at a time, they are marched into the huge gymnasium, from which they have begun to hear screams. The purpose of this, they are told, is to let the "American warmongering imperialists" learn the full lesson of defeat—while beginning to adapt to their new lifestyle: national degradation.

Under heavy guard in the balcony, they are forced to observe what German civilians experienced in 1945, when the

Propaganda more effective than tanks

EDITOR—And how the mass media did promise it! Apparently, the film, "The Day After," was seen by more people than any TV film ever shown. The controversial fallout preceding and following it is without equal. In short, it was a propaganda film that demonstrated a lot of power. (No pun intended.)

The film had a lot of appeal to pacifists and to others who advocate what author E. Stanton Evans called "The Politics of Surrender," in his book by the same name. (Devan-Adair Publishers, 1982)

In Chapter 14 entitled "The Nuclear Terror," Evans quotes Sir Winston Churchill as saying, "It is certain that Europe would have been Communized... some time ago, but for the deterrent of the atomic bomb in the hands of the United States."

So what better plan than to convince public opinion that it must never be used?

In a more recent book, a Soviet army officer who defected to Great Britain confirms Evans' and Churchill's observations. (See, "Inside the Soviet Army," by Viktor Suvorov, MacMillan & Co., 1983)

In a chapter entitled, "Operation Delente" Suvorov writes, "The Communists knew that they could never seize Western Europe so long as it was capable of defending itself, and this is why they concentrated their attacks on Western European determination to stand up to them."

According to Suvorov, the Soviets believe that they have a propaganda weapon more powerful than tanks; the Soviet believes that it can disarm the West through clever and persistent manipulation of public opinion; that they can destroy the West's will to win.

The more startling thing is that our television networks, our motion picture industry, and our big city newspapers seem so anxious to aid and assist them.

US bankers financing Soviets

EDITOR—The American people should be interested in learning how a bankrupt Communist system pays for our costly, highly strategic equipment they use to menace the world?

For example, with generous loans from American megabanks like David Rockefeller's Chase Manhattan. How are these banks able to do business with Red governments that are notoriously bad credit risks? The United States government guarantees the loans, backing them with tax dollars.

In short, the whole Communist empire would inevitably and quickly collapse from the weight of its disastrous economic system if all aid and trade from the West were stopped. Why then has the United States, as the Free World's leader and as the principal source of Communism's economic and material sustenance, long promoted such suicidal policies?

Citicorp could upset state's small bankers

By COLIN McMILLAN
Politics makes strange bedfellows.

One of the United States' most antibusiness governors, Toney Anaya, and one of the world's largest businesses, Citicorp, with assets of $130 billion have combined forces to roll over New Mexico's banking industry with combined assets of $8 billion.

Citicorp recently announced the opening of a credit card collection center in Albuquerque with Gov. Anaya present for the ribbon-cutting.

Offering the bait of 1,000 new jobs, Citicorp's executive vice-president Richard Braddock admits they are looking for a national bank charter. Rumor has it that Citicorp also wants a state bank charter and the authority to market insurance.

The arguments for and against have considerable merit.

Citicorp has a similar operation in Sioux Falls, SD, which received praise in a recent Forbes Magazine article for its positive boost to that state's economy.

New Mexico bankers have not yet publicly opposed the plan but are expected to do so as soon as the details of the proposed legislation are announced.

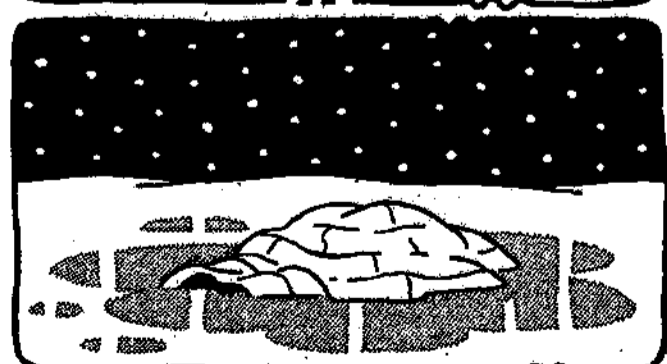

The bankers reportedly fear that the large assets available to Citicorp will result in local banks being swallowed up and loss of local business control to New York City.

With both sides having equity in their cause it should be an interesting fight.

Though Citicorp is clearly the Goliath it will be difficult for local banks to sell themselves as David with $8 billion in assets.

Citicorp has reportedly employed two formidable lobbyists to direct its efforts in the 1984 legislature.

Inside Religion:

NCC wonders: was Jesus Christ really a woman?

By REV. LES KINSOLVING
HARTFORD, CONN. — According to Dr. Virginia Mollenkott, Professor of English at New Jersey's William Paterson College, there is "a lot of evidence" that Jesus Christ was really a woman!

Dr. Mollenkott is an Episcopalian who is a member of the National Council of Churches (NCC) committee that has produced a highly controversial lectionary, which neutered most of the nouns and pronouns in a selection of recommended Bible readings.

During a news conference at the NCC's Governing Board Meeting on Nov. 10, Dr. Mollenkott declared:

"You might be interested to know that in the most recent issue of the Journal of American Scientific Affiliation, which is an evangelical group of scientists, the lead article is by Edward Kessell, biologist, arguing that Jesus was born in parthenogenesis; that parthenogenetic births are always female; that in some cases, therefore, he would be willing to refer to Jesus as 'she'—up until the last minute of sex reversal, in which case Jesus remains chromosomally female throughout life, but functions as a normal male and looks like a normal male."

When asked by this column if she agrees with this astounding theory, Dr. Mollenkott replied: "Well, I'm not a biologist or a geneticist. But there was a lot of evidence there and I think it's very interesting for the subject and for the question you just asked."

The question I had just asked cited an NCC news release and pamphlet, which repeatedly emphasized that by eliminating male terms referring to God and Jesus, the NCC was seeking to eliminate "male bias" and "sexism." Since none of the four members of this lectionary committee disagreed with this stated purpose, I had asked: "In your opinion, could God have brought about the Incarnation with twins—a boy and a girl? And wouldn't this, and the subsequent selection of six women apostles, have avoided such 'sexism'?"

We also asked a followup question: "Isn't the refusal of the Greek Orthodox Archdiocese and other Orthodox bodies to ordain women to the priesthood a 'sexist discrimination' for which they really ought to be kicked out of the NCC? Or is 'sexism' somehow less offensive than racism?"

Another committee member, Dr. Burton Throckmorton of Bangor Theological Seminary, replied: "I don't think that the National Council kicks out member churches."

When we observed that the NCC had just voted against accepting the membership application of a homosexual denomination (after being threatened by the walkout of these same Orthodox churches), NCC staffer David Ng attempted to quench this flaming subject by observing:

"That kind of question will have to be addressed to those who have the authority and the concern for that particular issue — which is not this committee."

In other words, the NCC is far more willing to mutilate Holy Scriptures than it is to rebuke the ordination beliefs of nearly one-third of its own membership. None of the three other Lectionary Committee members present—or any of the assembled reporters for Big Media—were willing to press this line of questioning, since the Orthodox had so very nearly walked out of the NCC.

Not only Orthodox leaders within the NCC but also Lutherans have voiced strenuous objection to the accomplishments of this Council of Churches Castration Committee. Senate Minority Leader Robert Byrd (D., W.Va.) has said that it bears "a sharper resemblance to 'Ailee in Wonderland' as an example of 'being treacherous than thou' and 'a project that even the Mad Hatter would have found absurd.'"

When asked if she agrees with the proposal to the Pawtucket, Rhode Island City Council to change "manhole" to "personhole," Dr. Mollenkott replied: "Of course not!"

She did not seem anxious to explain why, given her neutralizing of so much Holy Scripture. And the NCC's understandably nervous press officer, Warren Day, appeared desperately anxious to move to less troublesome questions.

"I'm ashamed to be your father!"

MIGHTY HUNTER—Freddie Padilla bagged this 7-point deer Sunday, Nov. 27, on Low Mountain. The deer weighed about 350 pounds.

'The Lord does work in mysterious ways'

RATON — Yes, sirree, "the Lord does work in mysterious ways," according to a Texas Pentecostal minister and a member of his flock, nabbed in Raton last week with a deer allegedly taken illegally in Colorado.

The two men from southcentral Texas were questioned about two deer found in their van at a local grocery store Tuesday when Department of Game and Fish law enforcement specialist Tim Barracough stopped to get tobacco for his pipe. He said the doors of the van were open, and in it he saw four ice chests—one with blood on it—and antlers of two deer, one 12-point and one 10-point.

Season being open in the northern part of New Mexico for deer, Barracough decided to check the hunters' licenses and tags. When he asked to see their licenses, they said they had taken the deer in Colorado. He asked again to see their licenses or a slip showing the deer had been legally taken and donated to them. They admitted they had neither, and one also admitted killing one of the deer. The other, they said, had been given to them at a hunters' camp in Colorado.

Barracough contacted Division of Wildlife officers Bob Holder and Tom Spezza, Trinidad, who met with Barracough and the Texas pair at the Department of Game and Fish office in Raton. There the Colorado officers issued each of the Texas men a citation for illegal possession of deer. They paid $200 each, statutory fine, in penalty assessments for the illegally taken deer.

"Just think," Barracough told the pair, "if I had quit smoking, you probably wouldn't have gotten caught."

"Yes," said the Pentecostal minister, "the Lord does work in mysterious ways." Adopting a brotherly attitude, the two left for Texas—minus the deer meat and antlers—saying something to the effect that the Lord must have wanted them to be caught.

Watch over Washington . . .

Red Army raped its way from Poland to Berlin.

They are told, by snickering interpreters, that these young women of the University of Kansas have been honored. They have all been selected to enter the same careers as so many of the young women of North Vietnam: servicing the troops.

After this initiatory experience, they will be trucked West to join the Red Army's new Contentment Cantonment, which is being set up at Fort Riley.

Some of the University of Kansas football team, along with certain cadets of the ROTC, are so enraged that they become rash enough to attempt to rescue the girls who are being raped.

Those who are not instantly machinegunned are the unlucky ones. For they are taken to the campus quad and tortured, quite horribly to death. This serves to stop all overt resistance almost immediately.

When the shooting has stopped and the rebellious students have finally died and the trucks have picked up the young women for transportation to Fort Riley, a paratrooper lieutenant delights all of the comrades by nailing to the wall of the administration building a 40-foot olcloth banner which he has discovered in the office of the strongly critical (of the US)

A lifetime of teaching, mostly outside the classroom

JACK WALLACE ... wears many hats

respected professional lobbyist, is expected to give the straight line for Citicorp while Democrat state chairman Nick Franklin will be providing political muscle.

The hiring of Franklin raises the question whether he will, in fact, be a serious candidate for the US Senate seat held by Pete Domenici, R-NM.

Why would Franklin take on a major lobbying effort which will only alienate a large portion of the state's banking community unless he plans only a token race for the Senate seat against the popular incumbent?

The question is particularly apropos in view of the fact several influential Democrat bankers supported Anaya in the last election.

It may be that the power brokers of the Democrat Party have selected left-wing State Rep. Judith Pratt, D-Bernalillo, as their choice for the nomination.

Republican legislators, who may hold the balance of power on this issue, will find themselves in an interesting quandary. They have traditionally supported maximum opportunity in the marketplace for business.

Both Citicorp and the local banks can argue that there will be more competition if their side prevails.

Since the Republicans' natural constituency is small business and since Anaya has gone out of his way to alienate Republican legislators, it may be easier for them to oppose the issue than support it.

Anaya has hired Larry Carter of Albuquerque as his liaison with business.

It is no accident that Carter is both a Republican and the former president of one of New Mexico's largest banks. He is probably being counted on to deliver the Republican vote on this issue.

One thing is certain: Local folks won't have to worry about the welfare of their legislators. They should be spending their winter evenings in Santa Fe's best bars and restaurants learning the finer points of commercial banking.

LAS CRUCES — Thirty years ago E. H. "Jack" Wallace was a grade school principal in Wheatland, N.M. He doesn't make much of a fuss about that job. After all, Wheatland only had two teachers and one of them had to be principal for the 45 pupils.

1983 marks 30 years away from the public school classroom for Wallace, but he never left the teaching profession. For most of his working life, Wallace has been employed by the New Mexico State University Cooperative Extension Service and involved in informal education for youngsters and adults. He's worked with Extension programs for garden and community. With retirement from Extension officially set for Nov. 10, Wallace took time recently to reflect on his years of teaching outside the classroom walls.

working with people who want to be there," Wallace said.

Since 1972, Wallace has concentrated his work on the southern counties of New Mexico.

He was Southeast District director from 1980-83, overseeing educational programs in Lincoln, Otero, De Baca, Chavez, Eddy, Curry, Roosevelt and Lea counties.

Over the years, Wallace served as Eddy County 4-H Extension agent, Bernalillo County agricultural agent, and Extension rural development coordinator and supervisor, a job which involved working with county Extension offices and local citizens on community improvement plans.

Wallace said he has enjoyed dealing with the New Mexicans who use Extension services: "I like agricultural people, I'm one of them."

After graduation from Tucumcari High School in 1946, Wallace spent two years, from 1948-50, managing the family cattle ranch between Tucumcari and Clovis.

Wallace got his B.S. degree from NMSU in 1952 in animal science, something frowned upon, Wallace said, by Santa Fe's public school administrators, as inappropriate subject matter for a grade school teacher.

The Quay County Extension agent back then, C. A. Grimes, suggested to Wallace, a former county 4-H member, that Extension work could fit the bill for somebody with an interest in agriculture and education.

"In Extension work, you're Wallace got into Extension work as Eddy County 4-H agent in 1953. In 1957, he became Extension rural development coordinator. He earned a master's degree in Extension administration from the University of Wisconsin in 1963 and continued in his rural development role until 1966.

Wallace became Bernalillo County Extension agent and found himself serving urban, as well as rural, needs. Wallace worked closely with Albuquerque's rose, iris and orchid societies. "There are numerous people that are very much experts."

"I developed a love for horticulture. By the time I left I was a pretty good horticulturist," Wallace said.

Wallace has seen the needs of Extension's clientele change over the years and has worked with Extension agents and specialists to respond effectively.

"We've got to branch out and reach more people and provide information and education to a larger audience," Wallace said of Extension's role for the future.

"We'll have to do less farm and home visits and have more group meetings."

Programs which make use of volunteers' abilities, such as Extension's Master Gardener and Master Food Preserver programs, can multiply the effects of county Extension staff, he said. In the 4-H program, Wallace said, "We've learned to utilize adult volunteers more extensively. Leaders today do more subject matter teaching, whether it's in livestock or leathercraft or other areas."

Extension will remain an important source of knowledge for New Mexicans in the future, Wallace predicted. In agriculture, "farmers and ranchers have to be more progressive now to stay in business," he said.

Extension will need specialists with a wider scope of subject matter areas to teach producers how to get the most profit for their inputs, according to Wallace.

Wallace and his wife, Wanda, plan to keep their hand in agriculture with their 15 acres of Mesilla Valley pecans and possibly some other farming projects.

The retiree plans to keep an eye on Extension's use of new technology, such as computers, in educational programs.

"These young people certainly have got an advantage over the rest of us," Wallace chuckled, "growing up with these computers."
