McDONALD —

Official ceremony Nov. 20

An official ceremony to commemorate the completion of the restoration of the George McDonald Ranch House at WSMR's Trinity Site will be conducted Nov. 20 at 10:30 a.m.

The George McDonald Ranch House is where the plutonium core for the world's first atomic bomb was assembled in July 1945. The house, in its restored state, was previewed by the general public for the first time last month during the missile range's annual Trinity Site Tour.

Various officials from the Department of Defense, Department of the Army, Department of Energy, Department of Interior and local dignitaries from the surrounding area have been invited to the special dedication ceremony.

The dedication will consist of a short ceremony conducted by Maj. Gen. Niles J. Fulwyler, range commander, and will include a ribbon cutting and a plaque unveiling. The ceremony is scheduled to conclude before noon.

No press vehicles will be allowed at the site. Media representatives may board transportation to the ceremony from either the Public Affairs Office, Bldg. 122, at 8 a.m., or at the Stallion Range Center parking lot in the northern portion of the missile range at 10 a.m.

COMMISSIONERS—

New ambulance for Alto village

By RUTH HAMMOND
Lincoln County Commissioners met Nov. 9 to canvass the votes from the Nov. 6 election.

County Manager Suzanne Cox said the official time was 9:08 p.m. when all votes were in the county clerk's office on Nov. 6. IBM computers were used in the three counties that had their returns in first. Lincoln County was second with Luna County reporting first and Eddy County reporting third.

In other business:
Jim Woolridge and Ann George asked help from the commissioners in getting sewer taps in Carrizo Canyon.

Woolridge said the original price for a sewer tap had been $1,500 but was raised to $2,000 and the last price that he had been asked by Carrizo Lodge was $4,000.

An injunction against the Georges is keeping them from being able to tie into the sewer lines.

Commissioners instructed County Attorney Steve Sanders to take the case to court. In addition to asking that the tie-on agreement be changed from 90 days to perpetual, other terms are that the road be repaired properly or that the county be paid to repair it.

In other business:

A plat change was accepted from Gavilan South Industrial Subdivision to dedicate Lot 14 to the public to be designated as a green area or buffer zone.

The Community Development Block Grant agreement for the Nogal Water System was signed. The funds will not be released until they are ready to start work.

The new four wheel drive ambulance for Alto is in and was inspected by commissioners at the close of the meeting.

THE ALTO AMBULANCE is being shown by EMT Coordinator Devil Bill Adams to County Commissioners Kenneth Nosker, Bill Elliott, and Commission Chairman John Hightower. Funds for the $31,159 Collins came from revenue sharing. The county has also applied for a grant. The ambulance was really needed for the rough terrain and for many runs to the ski area.

C'ZOZO TOWN COUNCIL—

Horses in city limits questioned

By RUTH HAMMOND
Karen Brumlow attended the Town Council meeting Tuesday to make a complaint about stud horses being kept in the city limits.

Mrs. Brumlow read a prepared statement that the stud horses are less than 150 feet from her house, are a nuisance, are dangerous, and the fence is not good.

The two stud horses belong to Tom Ward and are on Thelma Apgar's property.

Thanksgiving celebration planned

The Carrizozo Assembly of God Church invites everyone to Thanksgiving Dinner on Thanksgiving Day. The activity begins at 11 a.m. and we eat at 1 p.m.

Emphasis will be placed on "Thanks To God." There will be fellowship, old fashioned singing, poems, testimonies, and other activity.

Do you need transportation? Call 648-2286.

The Assembly of God Church is located at 13th and C Street in Carrizozo. This is one block north of the Sands Motel.

Trustees agreed that Mrs. Brumlow should file a complaint with the police and let any decision be made by the judge.

The local ordinance on domestic livestock states: No person shall own or keep any domestic livestock without first applying for and receiving from the chief of police a permit to do so.

There is no set fee for the permit.

Restrictions include: any equine or bovine over six months of age must be kept on one-third of an acre or more for each animal; domestic livestock shall be kept in a secure pen or enclosure which shall not be less than one hundred yards from any inhabited dwelling, excluding the home of the owner of such animals, or currently used food service establishment, church or school; and the pen or enclosure will shall be kept in such a manner as to control offensive odors, insect breeding and any other conditions affecting the public health.

Mayor Harold Garcia said it had been the policy of previous administrations to allow livestock in the city limits unless complaints were received from immediate neighbors. Premises had to be kept clean and insect-free.

City attorney Don Dutton suggested that trustees write an ordinance that does state an amount for the permit and that can be enforced. Dutton said, "If you can't live with this ordinance, then re-write the ordinance to one you can live with."

A public hearing will be held Nov. 27 at 6 p.m. for public input for a new ordinance for the keeping of livestock in the city limits.

In other business, trustees agreed to enact a resolution stating that a pedestrian overpass is needed over the railroad tracks. A public hearing will be held for public input for wording of the resolution. The hearing will be held Nov. 27 at 6 p.m.

Bids opened for workmen's comp insurance will be reviewed and studied for ten working days. A decision is to be made at the next meeting.

No bids were received for airport fuel. There are ten permanently based airplanes at the airport now.

The last two houses in the CDBG are going out for bid. Project director Albert Baca reported that an informal check had shown no major irregularities in the program.

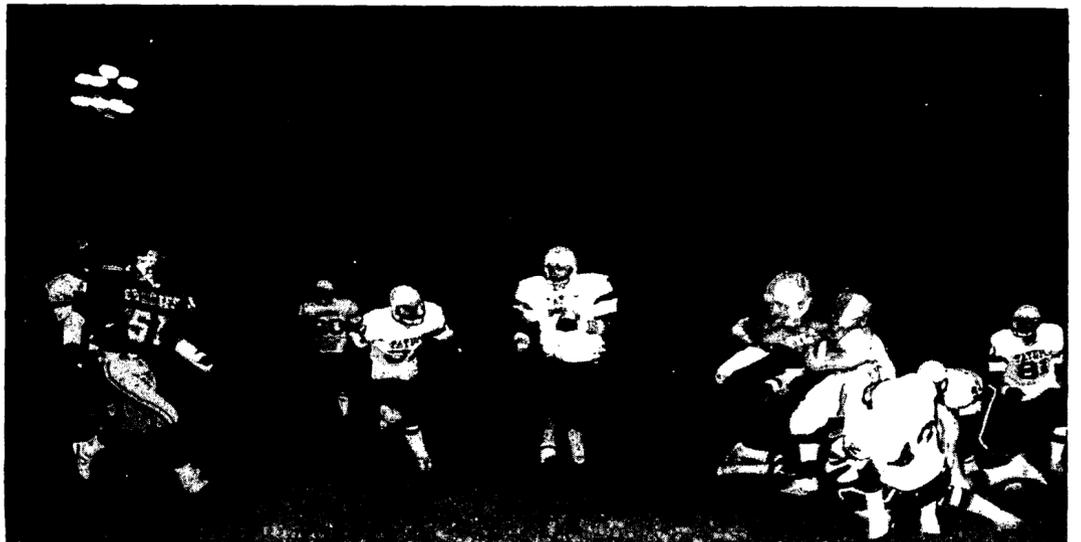

Chief of police C. A. Morales asked that signs be posted in the parks with hours of restrictions, and that curb be Painted yellow in no parking zones.

Applications are being accepted for a relief patrolman.

TAKE A BREATH

"It's easy to give up smoking. I've done it fifty times."

Despite evidence that many smokers would like to quit the habit they still puff away.

The American Cancer Society is continuing its seven-year tradition - the Great American Smokeout. Today, Thursday, November 15, smokers everywhere will be encouraged and helped to quit smoking for just 24 hours.

The Smokeout is a campaign to work with smokers, not against them, to prove that quitting is possible. Quitting tips, moral support and cigarette substitutes will be part of the help.

Today stay tuned to the radio or television; read newspapers. You will learn how you, or someone you know, can kick the habit. It is feasible.

PLEASANT DIVIDENDS

In addition to lung cancer, smoking is implicated in cancers of the mouth, pharynx, larynx, esophagus, pancreas and bladder. Smoking is associated with heart disease, chronic bronchitis, emphysema and even common disorders such as colds and ulcers.

Most smokers are aware of the grim statistics. They want to quit, but their main adversary is habit.

Present evidence suggests that the ex-cigarette smoker can regain much lost function and improve life expectancy. Often the lungs of the those who quit can repair themselves over time almost to the condition of a nonsmoker's lungs.

You can conquer a habit by hard work. Set goals...work with others who have the same problem...tell others what you are doing. Remind yourself of the pleasant dividends - more energy, clear mind, less illness and more money.

SECOND-HAND SMOKE

Recently I had the opportunity to make some 'folding' money. I was subjected to approximately 13 hours of second-hand smoke which triggered a case of instant allergy.

The hazards of second-hand smoke are real, though small, and many people feel that forced exposure to the smoke of others is offensive. The small room that several others and I worked in was windowless and the doors were shut. I have been around moderate smokers before, but the tight quarters and heavy smoking caused the severe allergic reaction from the cigarette smoking of only one person.

My other co-workers were not affected by the smoke. I am not a militant nonsmoker, for that reason I have never told anyone, "Would you mind putting out that cigarette?" My runny nose and a feeling of suffocation was relieved when our work was completed and we moved into a larger area. During the approximately 13 hours, I tried to maintain a Christian attitude. I kindly asked the smoker if I could open a door. To avoid a hassle I just turned my other lung and continued my work.

ART TEA

An unidentified Carrizozo Woman's Club public relations person in 1935 submitted to the Lincoln County News an interesting story of her club's doings in November of that year. An 'art tea' was given by the club women at the home of Mrs. R. E.

Lemon.

Following a piano solo and a number by a vocal quartet, the program was turned over to Rev. Smith of Fort Stanton who made 'art in education' the topic of his talk. Smith displayed two small wooden statuettes and a Russian icon painted on a slab wood, the NEWS story stated.

Mrs. Gensler, chairman of the club's 1935 art committee arranged an exhibit of pictures, basketware, leather goods and metal cutwork, made by the patients of Fort Stanton, then a government hospital for those suffering from tuberculosis, I believe.

Mrs. T. A. Spencer and Mrs. Paul Meyers were assisted at the tea table by 'Mesdames' Blaney, Allen, Grumbles, Cleghorn, Elliott and Miss Labr. The club reporter ended her article by noting that Mrs. Wm. C. McDonald was present and was given a bouquet of huge yellow mums. (Mrs. McDonald and her husband, New Mexico's first governor ranched near Carrizozo). For the benefit of newcomers to our area, the McDonalds were the great-grandparents of Sterling Spencer.

1984 CLUB DOINGS

The Carrizozo Woman's Club have made their building available for an art show on Nov. 17 and 18. Artist Carl Ness, former Lincoln County resident will display his work 10 a.m. to 5 p.m. each day. Ness and his wife own a frame shop and gallery in Alamogordo.

The club women meet at 2 p.m. on Nov. 17, Saturday. The agenda will include plans for the club's annual Christmas bazaar and winter rummage sale.

FREE SCREENING

Tomorrow, Friday Nov. 16 the Valley of Fire Lions Club is sponsoring a Diabetes Screening free of charge to the public. The place is UNM Bank from 9 a.m. to 11 a.m. and from 12 noon to 1 p.m. Screenings at the Zia Senior Citizens Center will be from 11 a.m. to 12 noon.

The screenings are just one of several civic projects that the women conduct throughout the year. Club president, Beulah Moore said that the project is part of a nationwide effort spearheaded by Arkansas's Bert Mason, International Lions Club president.

MEMBERS OF THE Carrizozo FFA chapter attended the 57th National FFA Convention in Kansas City, Missouri, last week where they received special recognition. The program is sponsored as a special project of the National FFA Foundation and sponsored by Farm and Industrial Equipment Institute and Dow Chemical USA.

Mr. Howard Brenneman (far left), President and Chief Executive Officer, Hesston Corporation, and Mr. Joseph L. Downey (far right), President and General Manager, Dow Agricultural Products Department, Dow Chemical, USA extended congratulations to chapter safety representatives: (left to right): Melody Hefker, Lynn Gallagher, and their advisor: Mike Gaines on earning a National FFA Safety Awards.

The chapters recognized this year participated in a wide range of safety activities including: farm and home safety surveys, farm equipment safety inspections, farm shop safety programs, promotion and sale of "slow moving" signs, safe corn harvest campaigns, programs to illustrate safety procedures in the use of farm chemicals and many other farm and home safety projects.

Former C'zozo resident killed

PUEBLO, CO—A man walking in a traffic lane in the 3000 block of East US Highway 50 was hit and killed by an east-bound semi-tractor trailer rig about 7:05 p.m. Saturday.

Victor Lopez, 45, of 1050 Lane 384, died at the scene of massive internal injuries.

Pueblo County Coroner James Kramer and Len McDaniel, district attorney's investigator, assisted at the scene.

The victim was wearing dark clothing and was walking east-bound in the middle of the righthand traffic lane when he was hit. Colorado State Patrol Trooper Carl W. Cameron said.

Cameron was also driving eastbound near the semi-tractor trailer rig when the accident occurred.

The tractor driver, Jack Smith, 38, of Pueblo West, was not injured. He stopped his vehicle and remained at the scene during the investigation.

Lopez' body was taken to St. Mary-Corwin Hospital, where an autopsy will be performed to determine exact cause of his death.

Victor Lopez Jr. was born and reared in Carrizozo and attended public schools there until 1957.

OPINION

● BOBBIE SANCHEZ, the articulate and volatile political pundit who dispenses vitriol at Don's Restaurant, startled Wednesday morning regulars by roaring that women have at last achieved the equality sought in the Equal Rights Amendment—and without congressional approval. A month ago, she pointed out, England's Prime Minister Margaret Thatcher narrowly escaped death when a bomb exploded at Brighton. Then India's Prime Minister Indira Gandhi was assassinated by members of her own guard. What is called for, Bobbie bellowed, is the right of women to occupy positions traditionally reserved for men, all the while retaining women's erstwhile prerogative of being shielded from the unpleasanties that men in high office occasionally suffer, and which they so richly deserve.

● UNDAUNTED by these two dastardly assaults upon two of their own, US women struck back by naming Geraldine Ferraro as the No. 1 role model they wish their daughters to emulate, replacing "Hanoi Jane" Fonda. The new No. 1 Role Model's tenure will depend upon whether or not she is sent to prison for perjury and falsifying financial statements to congress. US Rep. George Hansen of Idaho was given a prison sentence recently for the same crime, but he is a Republican and probably deserves what he got. Bobbie suggests that a "prisoner exchange" could be arranged wherein Democrat Ferraro could be traded for Republican Hansen.

● THIS equality madness represented by such fetishes as ERA and "comparable worth" is nothing new. One of the most penetrating studies of American life appeared in a two-volume book on America by the French historian, Alexis de Tocqueville (1805-59). His comment on the American passion for equality: "Americans are so enamored of equality that they would rather be equal in slavery than unequal in freedom." Is this as true today? All men (and women, transvestites and others who "decline to state") are created equal only to the extent that all were born naked. The nearest thing to equality is in the cemetery, and even there some headstones are better and more expensive than others. In all other areas, no two people are equal, or should be. Some are more intelligent than others, some have better skills and some are more capable of greatness. How vexing it must be to the egalitarian mind that no two fingerprints are alike, or that the biological differences between man and woman cannot be erased, except in San Francisco.

● AHA! you say. But aren't we all equal before the law in this country? Ask any indigent at the bar represented by a $25-an-hour lawyer if he fares as well as the rich one with a $200-an-hour lawyer! For kicks, ask the fellow who has just received five years in jail for the same crime for which an equally guilty one received probation and was sentenced to 90 days of public service!

● THANK God for inequality! It gives so many the chance to be rich and noble instead of all of us being poor and mean. And it keeps 600,000 lawyers employed.

● KATHY Beck, a honcho of the Humanist Party of San Francisco, is pushing a ballot proposition that would permit voters to instruct the federal government whether or not to spend their money on defense or broad social programs. The ideal situation, Kathy believes, would be a section added to federal income tax forms where people could indicate whether they wanted their taxes to go for ham sandwiches for the poor or to military spending. A fitting corollary would be a section confirming that taxpayers who decline to support the military defense of the country will not be entitled to military protection in case of enemy attack. Fair's fair. Those who don't want to be defended against their enemies, shouldn't be.

"NOW SOON WE FORGET... DO ANOTHER 'PERFECT TEN', EDNA - AND HER NAME WILL COME TO US..."

WATCH OVER WASHINGTON— By LES KINSOLVING

Cannonball Carl Rowan blows up at another Black

WASHINGTON — Only a few months ago, Carl Rowan became so furious with one of his fellow black columnists, economist Thomas Sowell, that he compared him to Norwegian Nazi collaborator, Vidkun Quisling.

At this typical Rowan understatement, The National Review magazine arched its eyebrows and expressed editorial thanks for the existence in the United States of an anti-lynching law.

Mr. Rowan, a professional race polemicist, has also bitterly excoriated Secretary of Housing and Urban Development Sam Pierce, another fellow black. During an interview I asked Pierce about this. Rowan evisceration. The Secretary, who is one of the nation's ablest and most accomplished attorneys, smiled broadly and replied: "I believe he's a Democrat."

What has caused the latest eruption of Mount Rowan is the Chairman of the Equal Employment Opportunity Commission, Clarence Thomas, who is also black.

Without naming any names, Thomas recently and publicly expressed a number of trenchant and exceptionally well-worded observations, which were taken by Mr. Rowan as absolute heresy to Rowan's Brand of Black Power. One of these statements by Thomas concerned unnamed and so-called "black leaders":

"These guys are sitting there watching the destruction of our race, while arguing about Ronald Reagan. Reagan isn't the problem. Carter wasn't the problem. The lack of black leadership is the problem."

If anybody had any doubt whatever about the identity of such "black leaders," Columnist Rowan almost immediately dispelled it. For he promptly reached for his shoe and put it on — as a perfect fit.

Having demonstrated that the shoe fit, Rowan proceeded to throw a fit. He denounced such people as Thomas as "fawning sycophants" to what he termed the "official bigotry" and the "stench of racism," which, he wrote, is the cause of what he claimed as 41 percent black teen unemployment. He did not, however, claim that any of this black teen unemployment is due to black teens who, in applying for employment, or when employed, behave like Carl Rowan and the Rev. Jesse Jackson.

Thomas, declared Rowan, is "frustrated" and "gets no respect" from his fellow black Americans. Moreover, Thomas's black Republican predecessors were, according to Rowan, regarded "as insulting jokes." And furthermore, Thomas "knows little about either history or black people."

Then, in a final stab, Rowan affirms that blacks (real blacks, that is) have survived "Jim Crow, several revivals of the Ku Klux Klan and a hundred white backlashes" and will therefore "endure four more years of Reagan. And Thomas Clarence as well."

Mr. Rowan has earned for himself a handsome living for the past three decades by peddling this Mau Mau Chic over syndicated TV and newsprint. (The Chrysler Corporation has refused to disclose what it is they are paying Rowan as his sponsor.) He therefore understandably resents any real black leader who dares to present a more reasonable approach than his hate-Whitney polemics.

Clarence Thomas ignited the Rowan wrath by observing:

+ "Instead of trying to work to reshape Administration policies, black leaders have gone to the news media to bitch, bitch, bitch; moan and moan; whine and whine. That doesn't help anything."

+ "You don't call the judge reviewing your case a jackass. You don't call the banker reviewing your loan application a fool. But that's exactly what black leaders have done with this Administration. They've called the President everything but a child of God."

+ "What they have successfully done is, they have essentially disenfranchised blacks. Blacks don't have clout in the Democratic Party. Look what happened to Jesse Jackson. And the black leaders have alienated blacks so badly from Reagan and the Republican Party — and made him some evil person — that there is no chance at this point for blacks to discuss the Republicans as an alternative to the Democratic Party."

Rowan may be forced to tone down some of his bitter rhetoric, due to a significant libel case in Charlottesville, Virginia. One of the university town's millionaire blacks, a real estate magnate named James Fleming, is currently appealing a jury's verdict which held him responsible for libeling a University of Virginia professor, Bedford Moore.

Fleming applied to construct a 128-acre housing development adjacent to property owned by Professor Moore, who with others objects to this development, because among other reasons, they concluded that it would overtax the drinking water supply of the nearby reservoir and otherwise damage their property. The Albemarle County Board of Supervisors found that Professor Moore's objections were justified; so they refused, repeated appeals by Fleming — who proceeded to take ads in two local newspapers which announced that Professor Moore is a racist. After two trials, the jury awarded Professor Moore $100,000 in compensatory damages and $250,000 in punitive damages.

Professor Moore's attorney, Tom Albro, has also won what is called "prejudgement interest." This means that the longer that millionaire defendant appeals, the greater the award, due to accrued interest. It now has grown to $600,000.

While the US Supreme Court has just denied one of defendant Fleming's appeals for certiorari, the case is still on appeal. It may serve as something of a restraint upon anyone who uses the familiar technique of implying that anyone who disagrees with them is a "racist."

SECOND HAND MOON

INSIDE THE CAPITOL BY Fred McCaffrey

SANTA FE—Would you like to be boss of the state Democratic party?

If you want the job, we can get it for you.

The polls of early November had barely closed before Fred Mondragon, handpicked by Toney Anaya to be state chairman of that party, threw in the towel.

As he went, he fired a blast at those who remain at the top among state Democrats, particularly the Governor, who was entertaining reporters with his peculiar view that his party is not in disarray.

Unfortunately for Anaya's peace of mind and future in politics, the facts don't support that theory.

OVERWHELMED BY NUMBERS: Everyone can see the big totals at the top of the reports on what took place on November 6.

Mr. Mondale barely did anything in New Mexico voting, and Pete Domenici, Republican, set new records. He took all 32 counties, including Rio Arriba by a hair, and outdrew even the historical Clinton P. Anderson and Dennis Chavez. He also did that as official candidate of a party which is still outnumbered almost two-to-one in registrations in the state.

But that's not where the big message to the Democrats is to be found.

By this time, the word may have filtered upward to the fourth floor of the Roundhouse that the party so long in power in the state is even beginning to lose control of the courthouses.

Fred Mondragon read those numbers and quit.

When we get, for example, nine district court judges in the state who are members of the minority party, the times are changing; Republicans have never had more than two of those in anyone year since statehood.

When you see Valencia county, long part of the once-mighty "North" whose people dominated elections for so many years, going Republican, you know the millennium could be at hand.

RECONSTRUCTION: So can we expect to see the Democrats rallying around to start rebuilding their party?

Don't be silly.

Those who know how to count are still too stunned by the fact that conservatives have taken control of the state Senator for the first time since 1929. They are busy lying about how certain they are that the regular Democrats can still mount a majority in the state House.

And they can't even find anybody to be state chairman to replace Mondragon. They let that job fall to the vice-chair, Bea Castellano, who once wanted it badly but lost her motivation after Anaya stepped on her dreams. You can imagine how displeased she is to get the post this way. If you can't, she makes the point totally clear by saying she does not intend to serve beyond spring of next year.

THE CAPTOR: And, as you can tell from the speech he made election night, Bill Richardson, the party's only big winner, is standing there in the wings waiting to make his move.

With Anaya down the toilet with the voters one and all, Richardson thinks he can demand to have everything, including what patronage is still left to politicians, turned over to him.

He wants to be his party's candidate for governor in 1986, and his showing this year may give him the clout to bring that to pass. But ask yourself this question: Would you want to run at the top of that ticket in a post-Anaya year, with New Mexicans in the mood they are in?

SANTA FE—Oh, sure, the social scientists say, voters on Tuesday took into account things like party affiliation and stands on the issues. But that's not really why they voted the way they did.

We choose candidates, at least one of them tells us, "the way we choose friends, lovers or bowling partners"—because of their personality.

If that's true—and there is little reason to challenge it—television only makes the whole thing more so.

We watch TV "debates," this theory would have it, more to get a feeling about those appearing than to listen to what they say. Our assignment to ourselves, during campaigns is to decide, at least for those at the top of the ballot, what kind of person this candidate appears to be.

MAKING THE CHOICE: Even before the polls opened in the most easterly point of the continental United States on Tuesday, those who study human conduct closely knew voters favored Ronald Reagan even when they admitted they disagreed with him on key issues.

Walter Mondale's deputy campaign manager sputtered, somewhere along in the campaign, that the election "should not be a choice between who's viewed as a nicer guy, but what taxes should be raised, what investments made, what judges picked for the Supreme Court."

That's undoubtedly true—but not realistic.

Here's how the Handbook of Social Psychology puts it: "Our research shows that citizens vote in overwhelming numbers for the candidate they like the most."

THE LOCAL SCENE: New Mexicans like Pete Domenici, and nothing Judy Pratt did could change that.

She tried to hammer away at what an evil person Domenici is, and how closely connected he is to that other quintessentially evil person, Ronald Reagan.

All that did no good. In the last weeks of the campaign, Domenici was more or less just asking any crowds he addressed, "Is that the Pete Domenici you know?" It wasn't, so Pratt's campaigning was ineffectual.

What's more, tying Pete to Reagan didn't hurt him in the minds of those who were already preparing to vote for the President, in large part because they like him.

CONGRESSIONAL RACES: In the second Congressional district here in the state, we had another example of that same sort of thing.

Bill Richardson is, like Domenici, an incumbent. Even though he is not as well liked or respected as Pete, he has the advantage of being known, and people have feelings about him.

Lou Gallegos, to beat him, needed to tell us a lot about his own personality and give us a chance to come to like Lou personally. Instead, he spent an inordinate amount of his high-priced television time attacking Bill's performance.

There's probably nothing more mind-numbing than that attempt by candidates to tell us that their opponent voted for or against House Bill such-and-such or where he or she stands on Joint Resolution so-and-so. That comes across as some kind of legislative mumbo-jumbo, which the average voter cannot understand, much less appreciate.

CONCLUSION: Reading those numbers on Wednesday morning, you couldn't help saying that the issues and intellectual portions of the overall campaign of 1984 mattered. But you had to add that, once again, personality probably played a bigger part in ruling the day.

FACE RESERVE IN STATE GAME—

C'zozo Grizzlies zap Tatum Coyotes 18-7 --going to state

BY BART McDONOUGH

Coach Dennis Sidebottom and an excited Carrizozo crowd had the Grizzlies all 'pumped up' last Friday night. Good offense, good defense, and the breaks when they had to be there. This all added up to an 18-7 victory over a good Tatum team.

The Coyotes could not control the ball on the second play of the game and the Grizzlies recovered a fumble on Tatum's 23 yard line. ZAP! . . . Stearns carried the ball in on C'zozo's first offensive play of the game. A bad snap from center prevented the extra point. C'zozo had a quick 6-0 lead.

Tatum came roaring back, but, a holding penalty wiped out a fifty yard pass play. Tatum then moved the ball down to the Grizzly 5 yard line. ZAP! . . . Tatum fumbles and linebacker Robert Connors recovers the ball for C'zozo.

The Grizzlies couldn't do anything on this series of downs and punted to their own 44. The quarter ended with Tatum on the Grizzly 33 yard line.

Four plays later the Tatum pass receiver fumbled the ball and once again . . . ZAP! Carrizozo had the ball on its own 18 yard line. Tatum then recovered a Grizzly fumble on the next play and were threatening again. On 3rd down defensive back Joe Candelaria intercepted a pass for the Grizzlies and the Coyote threat was stifled.

Carrizozo then mounted a steady drive culminating in a TD with a little over 4 minutes to go in the half. Stearns took the ball in on short yardage. C'zozo could not convert and walked off the field a few moments later with a 12-0 halftime advantage.

The Grizzly Band sounded good playing the march 'Americans We'. The fire batons were also well received by the crowd.

Both teams moved the ball in the 3rd quarter but there was no scoring.

The beginning of the 4th-quarter found Tatum on the Grizzly 35 yard line. The key play here was a Coyote pass play to the Grizzly 8 yard line. Two plays later Tatum scored from less than a yard out. The PAT was good and Tatum felt they could pull this game out of the fire. The score stood C'zozo 12, Tatum 7 with 10 minutes still left on the clock.

Carrizozo received the kickoff and looked at 1st down from their own 28 yard line. It was here that Steve Stearns broke loose on a 72-yard scamper and the Grizzly crowd went wild. C'zozo could not add the extra point and the final score was on the scoreboard . . . Carrizozo 18, Tatum 7.

The Grizzlies got a couple of quarterback sacks on the next series of downs and Tatum was forced to punt. The Grizzlies got a 1st down but moments later had to punt.

Tatum desperately needed to do something but couldn't put it together. The end of the game found the Grizzlies killing the clock for the last 2 plays.

Coach Dennis Sidebottom stated later that this was the best game the Grizzlies had played in his two years as Carrizozo coach.

Carrizozo plays Reserve this Friday night for the state Class 'A' Championship. The game will be played in Socorro at Warrior Field beginning at 7:30 PM.

NAMED PLAYERS OF THE WEEK for their outstanding performances against Tatum last Friday night were (left to right) safety Joseph Candelaria; linebacker Robert Connors and linebacker, Charles Zamora. All three were instrumental in holding the highly touted Tatum Coyotes to a mere 7 points in the Grizzlies victory over the Coyotes.

Hunting on public lands . . .

The annual hunting seasons are about to commence. In southeast New Mexico, November 16-18 and November 24-30 are the designated rifle deer hunting seasons.

Hunting opportunities in this State are among the best in the nation in terms of variety and amount of public lands open to the sport. There are over 31 million acres of Federal and State lands. While state of New Mexico lands are open only during the hunting seasons, Federal lands are open to the public throughout the year. Hunting, however, is permitted only at times designated by the NM Department of Game and Fish (NMDG&F).

In the past there has been mistrust between hunters and ranchers over acts of vandalism such as shooting of windmills, gates left open, littering and injuring of livestock. Hunters have complained more and more of no trespassing and no hunting signs, locked gates and illegal posting of signs on public lands.

As was done last year, the Bureau of Land Management (BLM), the NMDG&F and county law enforcement agencies will be cooperating to assist both the sportsman and the landowner. Personnel from the above agencies will be patrolling all areas. Contact stations again will be set up at Dunken, Hope and Hamilton. If any problems are encountered on public lands, please contact the nearest BLM office. If it is on state land, contact the NMDG&F.

The privilege of hunting carries a number of responsibilities," said Roswell District Manager Earl Cunningham. "For the hunter first and foremost should be respectful of private property, knowledgeable of the rules and sensitivity to the ethics of hunting," he added.

The following should be guidelines for the good sportsman:

- Know the law. Study a New Mexico hunting proclamation.
- Know where you are. Take a map. Private landowners do have the right to control access across private lands unless it is via a public road.
- Always obtain permission before hunting on or crossing private lands. It is a good idea, and common courtesy, to notify ranchers when you are hunting on their allotments.
- Abide by all signs and posted areas.
- Stay on existing roads. ORV travel is illegal except to retrieve big game.
- Leave all gates as you find them and park your vehicle where it will not block roads.
- Don't camp nearer than 300 yards from water sources. Livestock and wildlife depend on this source. —Keep a clean camp, leave a clean camp. Utilize previously used campsites if available. Practice fire safety rules.

—Follow all hunting and gun safety regulations.

—Do not disturb livestock.

—It is good practice to notify ranchers if anything looks wrong, such as damaged ranch equipment or livestock which are in need of help.

Available again this year is a series of five access maps which help the land user know where he/she is. They sell for $2. The maps show land status and public access roads, in addition to lands and roads the public cannot enter without the landowners permission. They can be obtained at the BLM offices in Roswell, 1717 W. 2nd and at the Federal Building at 5th and Richardson; the BLM Carlsbad office, 101 E. Mermod; and the NMDG&F, 414 N. Virginia. Hondo successful season ends on losing note--fall to Vaughn in final

The Hondo Eagles and the Vaughn Eagles met last Saturday afternoon in Vaughn to determine the New Mexico State Champion for six man football. After the smoke had cleared Vaughn had the best end of a 34-24 score.

Vaughn moved out quickly on a 15 yard pass play which clicked for them. The extra point was no good. Vaughn then kicked to Hondo, Hondo fumbled and Vaughn found themselves in pay dirt three plays later. Vaughn 13, Hondo 0.

Hondo drove 65 yards on its second possession. Maez taking the ball in. Pat - no good. Hondo down by 7.

After driving 60 yards Hondo's second tally came on a 15 yard pass play West to Salcido. Once more Hondo could not convert and Vaughn had a 1 point lead, 13-12.

Vaughn scored again late in the second quarter and walked into the locker room at halftime with a 10-12 lead.

Hondo took the kick off in the second half but was forced to punt. Vaughn then drove 50 yards to take a 25-12 advantage over Hondo.

Hondo took the ensuing kick off but was forced to punt. Vaughn fumbled 2 plays later on its own 15. West scores on a 6 yard run over the right side closing the Vaughn margin to 25-18.

Near the end of the 3rd quarter Maez is back to punt. A bad snap from center and Vaughn has a safety. The score is now Vaughn 27 Hondo 18.

After the free kick Vaughn mounts a drive and scores. The PAT is good and Vaughn now leads 34-18.

Hondo scored on the next series when West scampered in from 5 yards out. The extra point hit the crossbar and was no good. The final score was on the scoreboard, Vaughn 34 Hondo 24.

Near the end of the game Vaughn stopped a Hondo threat by intercepting the ball in its own end zone. Vaughn then ran out the clock.

Hondo began playing 6 man football in 1979 and this was their most successful season. In recognition of this Coach Montes was named 6 man football Coach of the Year. Sam West was named to the All State Squad.

Hondo's graduating seniors are West, Maez, Salcido, Mullis, David Chavez and Benjie Romero.

CHICAGO, 1984. The rumor is a fact! Millions of dollars in Scholarships, Grants and other financial aid go unused each school year because parents and students simply do not apply!

According to the National Scholarship Matching Service (NSMS) the amount of money which is lost to the public in this manner, either through apathy or lack of information, is enormous. How many Scholarships and Grants are bypassed because of the physical impossibility of the student to personally research the hundreds of millions of dollars in Scholarships and Grants provided each year is not known. We do know however that the money is there and is not being used according to a spokesman for the company.

Practically all students, regardless of Scholastic Achievement or Family Income can and do qualify for many forms of financial aid. The National Scholarship Matching Service is a computerized Scholarship Search Service with access to over 3 Billion Dollars in its Data Bank. The company guarantees to find at least five financial aid sources for each student or refund the $39 application processing fee. For a free application and more information call 312-753-9461 or write them at Box 11744, Chicago, IL 60611.

"Gila Wilderness—Home of New Mexico's First Prehistoric Villages"

The first snows have already fallen in southwestern New Mexico's vast, forested Gila Wilderness. As the brilliant November sun warms resin coated evergreens, adding pine scent to crystalline mountain air, melted snow cascades to the ground.

Thousands of people are drawn to this rugged sprawling country each year — most to enjoy the beauty and isolation of nature "unspoiled" by human endeavor. However, few realize that among these canyons, pinon groves, and clear icy streams, New Mexico's first prehistoric villages were created. About 1600 years ago today's "wilderness" was the most densely inhabited region in the state.

It was about A.D. 250 when prehistoric Mogollon people began to consistently build small pithouse villages in the Ponderosa fringed upland meadows of west central New Mexico. Nearly half a century ago the Tularosa and Cordova cave sites were excavated in Catron County's Pine Lawn district. Though not genuine village sites, these dry caves yielded a well-preserved record of the transition to early agricultural villages. Dozens of textbooks commemorate these finds by designating the first Mogollon villages as the "Pine Lawn Phase." Over the years many pithouse sites have been found along the San Francisco River.

These villages typically consisted of five to twenty shallow, timber-roofed dugouts, or pithouses. Here New Mexico's first pottery was made—a simple brown ware named after the contemporary village of Alma. House shape, depth, and size varied. Some were round, others squared, and many more were shaped like a pinto bean. Some pithouses had central fire hearths, while others had none. Archeologists disagree on the meaning of specific variations but accept the idea that village life was still in an experimental stage. Even the basic economy varied from site to site and from one locale to another.

The famous "SU" site in the cool, Ponderosa studded Pine Lawn region yielded remarkable numbers of stone manos and metates, essential corn-grinding implements. A good number of hunting implements and stone dartheads were also found there. This indicates that hunting was an important supplement to small-scale agriculture. About 100 miles to the southeast, the Harris site lies in the warmer, less wooded Mimbres Valley below Silver City. It yielded mainly agricultural implements, with little evidence of hunting. Another village site, Winn Canyon, overlooks the Gila River in Hidalgo County. There, pithouses contained mostly hunting implements but little evidence for agriculture.

Domesticated corn was brought from Mexico between 1500 and 2000 B.C. but did not have a rapid impact on daily life. This early corn was of a small-cobbed variety called Chapalote. Yields were low and for more than 1000 years small stands were tended only on an occasional basis. For decades archeologists were troubled by the slow pace of change in New Mexico once corn had been introduced. It had long been assumed that the introduction of domesticated crops produced such an instant advantage that there should be a rapid "revolution" away from the old nomadic hunting-gathering economy. Partly because of excavation here in New Mexico, scholars now know that the changeover to agricultural villages proceeded very slowly in some cases.

It took field work among remnants of the world's nomadic peoples and in remote agricultural villages to discover the reasons. Under conditions of very low population density, nomadic hunter-gatherers earn a living with only 500 per capita hours of labor each year—and malnutrition is surprisingly rare! Unsophisticated agriculturalists require more than 1000 per capita hours annually to do the same—but malnutrition and infant death are more common. So are crop failures. It turns out that early agriculture was both a lot of work and a gamble, given New Mexico's unpredictable weather.

As long as prehistoric population was small, hunting and collecting provided an easier living. So settled village life was not an easy step. In New Mexico it was not taken until population had grown so that not everyone could hunt and collect wild plants, thereby guaranteeing a secure living. Even then not everyone settled into village life. The first villages grew in scattered (Cont'd on P. 11)

I shook hands with a person who I later learned has herpes. I am scared that I will get this dreaded disease. Is there anything I can do? H.P.

Herpes is an illness caused by a virus, which occurs in two types. Type I herpes usually infects most children while they are growing up. The virus causes fever blisters about the mouth and lip area. These can reoccur throughout life, although most people do not have frequent eruptions.

Type II herpes usually causes painful blisters in the genital area. Herpes can only be transmitted from one person to another by direct contact with the virus-shedding blisters. Therefore, if your contact with a person does not include touching an active blister or sore, you will not get the herpes infection. Treatment of new genital herpes infections has been developed. An ointment applied several times daily will decrease pain and speed healing. Recurrent genital infections do not respond to this medicine.

Clinical trials of an oral medicine for herpes sufferers are in progress. Use of a condom (rubber) during sexual intercourse with somebody with genital herpes will not guarantee that the infection is not spread to the other person. The epidemic of genital herpes in America is felt to be due to an increase in non-marital sex.

BREAKING BARRIERS IN DIABETES TREATMENT

The American Diabetes Association (ADA) estimates that almost half of the approximately 11 million diabetics in the United States don't know they have the disease. The symptoms are often so subtle that they can be easily overlooked.

Diabetes is characterized by an abnormally high and persistent level of sugar in the bloodstream, which is caused by a shortage of the hormone insulin. It can lead to severe cardiovascular and nervous system complications and, in time, can result in blindness, gangrene or heart attack.

Know the warnings
Though diabetes cannot be cured, it can be controlled. The best defense against complications is early detection and treatment.

The risk factors and warning signs of diabetes are outlined in the chart at right. Be sure to have your doctor test you for diabetes when you have a check-up. And, if you have any symptoms, see your doctor at once.

Diabetics can still lead a long and normal life. Most people believe that diabetes means the patient has to inject insulin. They are thinking of insulin dependent diabetes, in which the pancreas produces virtually no insulin. Non-insulin dependent diabetes, which affects about 90 percent of all diabetics, means that the pancreas may not produce enough insulin, and the target cells, where insulin works, are unable to efficiently use what insulin is available.

Start with diet.
Many diabetics who are not dependent on insulin can control their disease with a strictly regulated diet. However, diet alone may not always be successful. In these cases, doctors have the option of adding Glucotrol (glipizide)—an oral medication—to therapeutic regimens. This medication controls elevated blood sugar levels in diabetics by causing them to react to the digestion of a meal in much the same way a non-diabetic would react.

tered pockets. Though not all were lived in year-round, they were definite home bases. Nomadic people the world over carefully avoid their dead. Not so the early Mogollon villagers—their dead are buried among the pithouses.

Within several centuries small villages spread to other parts of western New Mexico—to the El Paso area, Albuquerque's West Mesa, and to far northern locations.

Mogollon villages continued to flourish in the Gila country until roughly A.D. 900, when entire clans moved into the surrounding lowlands. In the early A.D. 1200's, when the Gila Cliff Dwellings were built, drought forced many to return, but times were hard and the cool forests and deep canyons were permanently abandoned by A.D. 1350. It surprises many to discover that Taos Pueblo has been lived in longer than the Gila has been true wilderness.

A Different Dressing For Traditional Turkey

This is the season when families gather to share holidays steeped in tradition. A large part of this tradition is the home-cooked turkey dinner with all the trimmings. This recipe from the Pepperridge Farm Test Kitchen adds some interesting twists to an old favorite idea. Starting with a package of subtle herb seasoned stuffing mix, the recipe calls for adding not only the traditional pork sausage but also the delightful flavors of cranberries and pineapple. The end result is a marvelously different taste treat.

FRUITED-SAUSAGE STUFFING

1 pound bulk pork sausage
1/2 cup chopped celery
1/2 cup chopped onion
3 cups coarsely chopped fresh cranberries
1 can (8 ounces) undrained crushed pineapple
1-1/2 cups water
1 package (8 ounces) Pepperridge Farm Herb Seasoned Stuffing

In a skillet, brown pork sausage, stirring to break into bits. Add celery and onion. Cook until tender, stirring frequently. Combine with remaining ingredients. Use to stuff 12 to 14 pound turkey.
