FIVE APPOINTED TO—

Lodgers tax committee

By RUTH HAMMOND
Dr. Donald Lavash, historian for state records in Santa Fe, spoke to Lincoln County Commissioners during the November 12 meeting. He explained that all territorial records, from 1851 to 1912 are to be microfilmed and that if a county does not make an effort to preserve them, the state will remove the records to Santa Fe where they will be kept in a secure, humidity controlled environment.

The New Mexico State Records and Archives will microfilm, at no cost to the county, all original records. Lavash then presented to Lincoln County Clerk Fran Siddens microfilm of eleven books and commended her on the way she is conducting a pilot program for cataloguing and indexing county records.

In other business conducted during the day long session, commissioners appointed to the Lodger's Tax committee: Lydia Krupicka from LaJunta Lodge, and Sterling Badger from High Country Lodge, both lodging, Robert Boverie from River Ranch KOA, and Kay Dennis from Lincoln Pageant and Festival, both tourism, and member-at-large Rich Seeley from Pertee-Parks & Associates.

Conducted a public hearing concerning the use of Community Development Block Grant planning funds Rick Reese, Lincoln County Heritage Trust, and Steve Massey, Southeastern New Mexico Development District, requested that the application be made for a long range, two part plan for historic preservation of the Fort Stanton area and to set up a buffer zone around Fort Stanton. The main thrust would be preservation of buildings. It was noted that construction of the new food services building was consistent with the other buildings.

Commissioners approved the resolution to request CDBG funds for a study of the Fort Stanton Historical area and also asked that the Lincoln County Heritage Trust issue a full disclosure statement showing participants, non-profit status, etc.

—The agreement for controlled use of Water Canyon Road on the Stephenson Ranch was cancelled by mutual agreement with commissioners Elliott and Gnatkowski voting for and commissioner Kenneth Nosker voting against.

—Joint powers agreement was signed with Otero County, the Village of Tularosa, the city of Alamogordo and Dona Ana County for the purpose of developing and preparing a 40 year water development plan in the area commonly known as the "Tularosa Basin" and/or the "Tularosa Water Shed". Lincoln County will pay $20,000 for their share for the fiscal year ending June 30, 1986.

—Closed the roadway between Lots 1 thru 5, Block 2 and Lots 1 thru 5, Block 3, Clara A —Closed part of County Road A-034 on the Dick Fresquez Ranch from the gate south about 2.2 miles.

Skinner Tract.

—Appointed a road review committee to review the rest of county road A-034 and all of county road A-035. Appointed were Israel Miranda, Trankie Silva, and George Beaudry.

—Directed County Manager Suzanne Cox to write a letter to the New Mexico State Agency on Aging requesting clarification of the contract submitted for capital outlay projects for senior citizens centers in Capitan and Corona.

—Accepted the low bid from Rust Tractor in Albuquerque for lease with option to purchase a new articulated motorgrader with trade-in.

—Agreed to advertise for bids to lease two more articulating blades. Bids are to read: with trade-in and without trade-in.

—Instructed Road Superintendent Earl Krieg to inspect an exposed high pressure gas line in the area of the Grady Eldridge turnoff, and to do no further maintenance until this potentially dangerous situation is improved.

—Keith Kessler, City of Alamogordo, requested the use of a county owned flatcar bridge that is no longer being used by the county Commissioners agreed with the stipulation that in the event Alamogordo no longer needs it, the bridge will revert back for county useage.

—Engineering services agreement with Pajo Engineering was approved.

—An executive session was held for possible litigation.

NEW BOARD MEMBER—Captain School Superintendent Leonard Hays is shown swearing in Tim Worrell, newest member of the Capitan Board of Education.

TIM WORRELL SELECTED—

Vacancy is filled

By BARTLEY McDONOUGH

The Capitan Board of Education met in regular session Thursday evening Nov. 14 with the following business transacted: Bob Batte, Kenneth Huey, Tim Worrell, and Hollis Fuchs were interviewed by the Board. From this group Tim Worrell was chosen to replace Mark Delgado who recently resigned on the board. Lenore Tenorio was selected to be a new 6th grade teacher. She is a recent graduate of NMSU and will begin her employment on Dec. 2. Sandra Jean Reynolds was selected to fill a vacancy in the bookkeeping department.

Isidro Peralta indicated that he would attend the NMSBA Convention in Albuquerque Dec. 6-7.

Roger Garner informed the Board that his 65 passenger bus was used last Thursday to transport 21 athletes, 5 cheerleaders, and 3 sponsors - a total of 29 - to Albuquerque. This created an over-crowded type condition on the bus he used that day to take students home. The regular activity bus has been down for repairs. It has since been repaired. Garner had extra passengers on this particular bus and the board felt that this could not have been anticipated. If this situation occurs again Garner is to take the action he feels is proper.

Superintendent Hays reported that the Capitan Schools 40 day projection was 303 students. The actual enrollment during this period came to 303. Because of how certain situations are weighed the District will exceed the budget by $9,000. Hays informed the Board that the State Department of Education has informed him that the Capitan school budget may have to be cut something like 4-4 percent or $70,000. The other New Mexico Schools will also have to tighten their belts. Hays reported that the Capitan Schools have been unable to purchase all of the liability insurance that the school is required to carry. It is not being sold by the insurance companies in the amounts needed.

The Capitan Board of Education meets the second Thursday of every month in the board room, located in the old elementary building. Winter meeting time is 7 p.m.

FAA ANNOUNCES—

Site 'B' it is!

Site B on the Fort Stanton Mesa has been identified as the preferred alternative for replacement of the existing Ruidoso Municipal airport.

An Environmental Assessment (EA) was released on November 14 that indicated that the Site B alternative will provide facilities that best meet FAA airport design standards, facilitate access to the nationwide air transportation system, and have no substantive unmitigable environmental concerns.

A public hearing will be held for the purpose of considering the economic, social, and environmental effects of the development, and its consistency with the goals and objectives of such urban planning as has been carried out by the community.

The public hearing will be held at 6:30 p.m. on December 16, 1985 in the Council Chambers of the Ruidoso Municipal Building. Everyone is invited to present views on this project in writing to the FAA or orally or in writing at the public hearing.

Review copies of the EA may be seen at the County Clerk's office in the Courthouse in Carrizozo, the Ruidoso City Clerk's office, Ruidoso Downs City Clerk's office, Capitan City Clerk's office, the Mescalero Apache Tribal Community Center, and the Ruidoso Public Library will have a permanent file copy.

TIP CLIPS

By POLLY CHAVEZ

GARAGE SALE AD

An ordinary sign is not easily seen by those looking for garage sales listed in the NEWS ads. String several balloons from a tree or fence. The balloons can be seen from a block down the road.

IRONING BOARD COVER

Don't throw away the worn out nonstick-surface ironing board cover. Use the less worn areas to make pot holders or hot pads for the table.

JEWELRY STORAGE

Chains, earrings, pins and rings which you use often can get tangled in a drawer. Separate them in a plastic ice-cube tray.

KITCHEN DUTY

Use new one and a half inch paint brush for basting and brushing on sauces. They are easier to use than pastry brushes.

CLEAN AND DRY

If you plan to attend a holiday party in a long skirt or dress and it is snowing outside...do not despair. Cut two holes in the bottom of a large plastic trash bag for your feet, tuck the skirt material inside the bag and hold the bag around you. You'll make it to the car with your outfit clean and dry.

SUPER BOLSTERS

Sleeping bags can be kept out of sight by rolling them up and slipping them into king-size pillow cases. They can then be used as bolsters for watching TV from a floor position.

SMOKE-OUT DAY

Today, Thursday, November 21, is the Great American Smokeout Day - the day once a year - when thousands of smokers across the country try to kick the habit together. If you're a smoker, did you join the bandwagon?

The earlier a person begins smoking cigarettes, the greater the risk to the smoker's health in future years. As a teenager, the risk of heart attack in later life seems a very remote danger. However, even teenagers begin to develop signs of disease, such as coughing, decreased stamina and a fast heart rate. These conditions will worsen and may develop into heart disease or chronic lung disease as the person continues to smoke.

QUIT TIPS

Did you take a day off from smoking and join the Great American Smoker. Millions of Americans across the country made a fresh start and tried not to smoke for 24 hours.

Every year, Smokeout Day is held exactly one day before Thanksgiving. Besides thanks for the good things in your life, celebrate another great achievement - a full week away from cigarettes. Here are some tips to help you get through this hard time:

Throw out all your cigarettes. Clean out all ashtrays. Get rid of everything that reminds you of smoking.

Get plenty of exercise. Working out will relieve the stress you feel while trying to quit.

Eat three nutritious meals. This will keep your energy level up, plus give you some of the oral satisfaction cigarettes used to provide.

Avoid situations that make you want to light up. If you're used to smoking every time you talk on the phone, for example, make fewer phone calls.

Keep your hands busy. Schedule your day so you won't have time to think about smoking. Take up knitting. Wash the dog. Do crossword puzzles.

Buy a supply of sugarless gum, carrot sticks, etc. Drink lots of liquids, but pass up coffee and alcohol.

Try the "buddy system" and ask a friend to quit too.

CHEWING AND DIPPING

You see ads for chewing and dipping smokeless tobacco on television and in magazines. They hope to make you think there's something new to replace cigarettes.

Chewing calls for a golf ball-size wad or quid of tobacco to be placed in the pouch of the cheek and sucked. Just think how it looks with a wad that size in your mouth, and the spitting that goes with getting rid of it.

Dipping is the process of placing a pinch of tobacco (snuff) between the lower lip and teeth where it stimulates the flow of saliva and mixes with it. The saliva must either be swallowed or spat out frequently.

Social aspects aside, smokeless tobacco seems to be having a renewed popularity among a few young males. Besides the ads, there are attractive young men and women handing out free samples to try to "get you started." In high schools and even grade schools some young boys have "bought" the message.

SMOKELESS TOBACCO

Smokeless tobacco doesn't carry the health hazard warning that cigarettes do, but it should. It's tobacco just the same and is habit-forming. The nicotine in it lifts you up first...then lets you down. That high-low effect on your nervous system sets you up for continued need. That's what the ads are really doing - trying to get you hooked.

But that's not all. Habitual use of chewing tobacco and snuff means you face other health hazards:

(1) Leukoplakia, leathery white patches inside the mouth that are the result of direct contact with, and continued irritation by, tobacco juice. Approximately 5 percent of diagnosed cases develop into oral cancer.

(2) Less sense of taste and the ability to smell. The result: more need to salt and sugar food, both of which are unhealthy if used a lot.

(3) Dental problems such as receding gums, greater wear and tear on tooth enamel and more tooth decay. And, like most tobacco users, more bad breath and discolored teeth.

The latest quilt of the Santa Rita Quilting Group is a Star of Bethlehem. The top is pieced with cloth printed with Christmas designs. It is on display at UNM Bank.

Star of Texas.

VICTORIAN TREASURE

The doll house at the Zia Center is almost completely furnished. A decorated Christmas tree is in the living room. The piano really plays a tune. The ice box contains two bottles of milk and six eggs. There is a block of ice and a teeny, tiny ice pick. Other recently items purchased by the Center for the doll house include: curio cabinet, kitchen cabinet and sink, Victorian couch and chair, clock on fireplace mantle, Christmas wreaths, fireplace tools and a mouse trap complete with mouse.

Bertha LaFave donated a crocheted afghan; Jack Forrester created burning logs for the fireplace and Liz MacVeigh has added yet another item, this time a wood burning stove. Who will make Christmas stockings to hang on the fireplace; pot holders for the kitchen and pretend gifts to place under the Christmas tree?

The house can be viewed at the Center this week, then at UNM Bank during Thanksgiving Week. Raffle tickets are available at the Center. The project is a major fund raising event for the Senior Citizens. The date set for the drawing is Dec. 18.

Corona schools to receive $28,091 in extra funds

By LINDA CALDWELL
Supt. John Clem announced at the Corona School Board meeting last week that the district will receive $28,091 in additional funds as a result of higher than projected enrollment. The Board agreed to make budget changes among which were appropriation of funds for a new elementary teacher and pay raises for teachers and other school personnel.

In other business, the Board resolved to change policy concerning standards for honors. For junior high students, only grades earned in courses taught at an academic level of grade 7 or higher will be considered; for high school students, grades to be considered for any honors must be earned in courses taught at an academic level of grade 9 or higher.

Discussion of absenteeism and missed work resulted in the decision to more strictly enforce current stated policy. That is, students who are excused for a planned absence (such as FFA or athletic events) need to obtain assignments before being absent and turn in the work on the day of their return. Parents and students should refer to section 6.08, p. 91 of Board Policy for more details concerning excused and unexcused absences and missed work. According to current state law, absences of three or more consecutive days due to illness require a doctor's note.

The Board also agreed to raise the lunch room charge for visitors to $3 per tray and to ask that visitors call the school to inform of their intention to eat in the school cafeteria.

Board member Milton Romans asked that a suggestion box be placed in the office. The Board agreed to a trial period with the stipulation that no suggestion would be considered without a signature. Further information or questions about a specific suggestion could then be directed to the submitter.

In his superintendent's report, Dr. Clem advised the Board of certain policy changes, additions and inclusions needed to satisfy state requirements indicated by the Accreditation Unit. (See related story.)

OPINION

Ernest V. Joiner

"And everybody will roundly vow
She's fair as the flowers in May,
And say "How clever!"
At whatsoever
She condescends to say!
O, 'tis a glorious thing, I ween,
To be a regular Royal Queen."
— Sir William Gilbert

● HUMPHREY the hunchbacked whale was replaced in the hearts of American Cameloters over the weekend by two well-bred, fashionable beggars with unearned incomes. Chas. and Di (I can call them that because its non-racist; we're all democratic, white, and speak English) arrived, suffering from hard work and to a tumultuous social extravaganza in Washington. Washingtonians fled the city in droves so as to have an excuse for not having been invited to a performance of the Royal Roadshow at the White House. It is a sign of the times, I suppose, that we have stopped kicking and started kissing the behinds of English royalty. But, the quality of royalty is improving. Chas. is the only heir apparent to the throne to have earned a university degree.

● THE crescendo of criticism over the movie "Rambo" is being extended to Chuck Norris and Arnold Schwarzenegger, who also make movies depicting Americans as good guys. This is something new; the public may not be ready for it, accustomed as they are to viewing movies downgrading anything American. Movie critics, a few cry-babes left over from Vietnam, and our assorted peace persons are enraged over "Rambo" and its star, Sylvester Stallone. They say "Rambo" is unreal, the theme totally false, and besides, Stallone was never in a war.

● I shouldn't have to be the first one to suggest that movies have nothing to do with reality. "Rambo" is not a documentary. It is fiction, as all movies are. It is fantasy, as all movies are. It is unreal, as most movies are. "Rambo" is just a story, folks, believe it. Realism aside, what disturbs critics most is that "Rambo" makes Americans feel good about being American. They are distressed that Communist captors of American soldiers get their violent comeuppance, and that in the story Rambo himself escapes unharmed, to return to society without even a hint of having to adopt a psychiatrist. I detected one touch of reality in the film, the role of the Washington bureaucrat who tried to abort Rambo's rescue of prisoners of war and who even planned Rambo's death to see that his mission failed. That has a ring of reality.

● ONE TV critic who complained of a lack of reality in the Rambo film was already on record as praising the film "E.T." How's that film for reality? I suppose "Raiders of the Lost Ark" is reality; or the "Wizard of Oz," or "Sesame Street?" One doesn't go to movies to see reality. One goes to movies to escape reality. You don't pay $5 for a seat to experience the reality you can find at home or at work for nothing.

● NEXT, there is the complaint that Stallone never served in any war. No, he didn't. I don't recall that the cast of "Gone With the Wind" had served in the Civil War, or that any of the cast was rejected because they hadn't. I also suspect that the star of "Dracula" had had no previous experience as a vampire, or that Lon Chaney had to be a hunchback to star in "The Hunchback of Notre Dame." The greatest classic on the Civil War was written by Stephen Crane in 1895, "The Red Badge of Courage." The author never served in any war, never shouldered a musket, and never saw a battlefield. Yet his description of the struggle, and of the emotions of soldiers on both sides, is so vivid and compelling that for the last 50 years more than 10,000 copies of the book are sold annually. If modern critics had their way, Crane would have suffered critical calumny for not having been in that war. Jane Fonda never even visited Golden Pond, so what the hell was she doing in the film, "On Golden Pond?" Finally, dear critics, without ever having seen one, it is possible for a person to be a horse's ass.

● WE won't see a movie about this. Cuban Dictator Fidel Castro is involved in the $7.2 million Wells Fargo robbery in Hartford, CN, more than two years ago, according to lengthy testimony at a pre-trial hearing there recently. Special Agent Rodriguez of the FBI testified before a Hartford grand jury that Victor Manuel Gerena, a part-time Wells Fargo security guard, overcame two of his fellow guards to accomplish this robbery. Gerena is now in Havana under the protection of the Castro government—along with an estimated $5 million of the loot. Indicted by the grand jury is Filiberto Ojeda Rios, head of a terrorist Puerto Rican group called the Macheteros. Rios is an agent of the Cuban Intelligence Directory. Cuba's KGB. Rios was taken from his home following a gun battle with FBI agents. He is being held without bail, along with 17 other Macheteros charged with complicity in the crime. Trial is scheduled for next March or April. No mention of this has appeared in the Big Media, probably because it would make Castro look bad and the FBI look good.

● ALMOST everybody is concerned about AIDS and how to stop it. There's no cure yet for the disease, but I have a suggestion that might stop its spread. If newspapers and television stations would show homosexuals in the explicit pursuit of their pleasure; if all Americans could have access to a "live" performance of the homosexual act; if no punches were pulled in presenting the unvarnished truth, in pictures—Americans would herd these people back into the closet. People would recognize them as the degenerates they are, and cover them with the social stigma they once enjoyed and deserved. The average American, I suspect, is naive in that he views homosexual conduct as being limited to men gazing at each other across a candlelit dinner table, walking hand-in-hand in public, dancing with each other, and occasionally kissing. But there's much more. The "more" won't be believed until people see it, live and in color. We are treated to heterosexual acts on television, in magazines and even in newspapers. The media have never, to my knowledge, come up with an equally graphic documentary on homosexuals at work. Why not? If society is to tolerate it, why can't they see it?

● DEAR Peace Movement Persons and other Down-With-America groups: I'll show you what a terrible country this is, always flexing its nuclear muscles when the peace-loving Soviets don't have any. In 1948 the United States had a nuclear monopoly. Hoping to abolish all nuclear weapons in the world, the US presented the Baruch Plan to the United Nations. It specified that the US would turn over all its nuclear technology, materials and weapons to a United Nations agency, provided that no nation would ever manufacture nuclear weapons. The Soviet Union refused the Baruch Plan.

Should we spend billions on bilingual education?

WASHINGTON — President's Reagan's Secretary of Education, William Bennett, has been in office only eight months, but he has managed to create a national furor — of both delight and rage.

For Secretary Bennett has been terribly irreverent to two of Big Education's most sacred cows.

First, Mr. Bennett dared to suggest that the main effect of Federal cutbacks would be "stereo divestiture." While most of the nation laughed, the reaction to this on most campuses was volcanic. The University of the Pacific in Stockton, California, announced that it was cancelling an invitation for Bennett to speak. (So much for academic freedom at U of P.)

Now, Secretary Bennett has invited an additional riot within the Big Education Business. For he has revealed that he is drawing a bead on Bilingual Education — which costs taxpayers $140 million a year.

This is not merely to provide bilingual teachers who can instruct Hispanic-American or Asiatic-American children so that they learn to speak English.

No, it can never be that simple — not when there are big federal bucks available for ethnic demagogues and educational bureaucrats.

Bilingual education has among its proponents those who would force the United States to become bilingual — and to go through the enormous expense of providing education in another language through college and graduate school.

Anyone wanting to see the problems of a bilingual country can visit Canada — where everything has to be printed twice so that it can be read in English and French. A furor broke out some years ago when the Montreal International Airport was requested by the Province of Quebec to order its air controllers to give landing instructions in French rather than English.

Secretary Bennett has served notice on the US Bilingual Education Lobby that the purpose of any bilingual education in this country is, in his words, "To assure that students learn English."

That was the purpose of the original bilingual legislation passed in 1968. But the Hispanic political demagogues got on that and pushed for an incredible expansion. Now in many places the taxpayers are being soaked in order that the children grow up monolingual, that they not ever have to learn English, that instead, they learn about their culture.

This, remember, was similar to another widespread boondoggle called Black Studies or Afro American Studies. Black students were segregated (they didn't call it that, of course), where pseudo-professional hustlers taught them Swahili and the glorious history of heretofore unknown African kingdoms — just the thing to equip black students for the American market place. These largely fraudulent programs — instituted ad nauseum by Black Power Promoters — are largely withering away, since too many black students are too smart to be lulled forever.

Should we have bilingual education — beyond equipping children to speak and read what is surely our national language?

How can we be bilingual without being trilingual? In California they have teachers instructing children from 40 language backgrounds: from Vietnamese to Punjabi — and, of course, there's Chinatown. Ought

WHAT APPARENTLY HAPPENED—

The story of Miroslav Medvid

WASHINGTON, VIRGINIA — He put his papers and a few possessions in a glass jar, pulled on a sweater and jumped into the Mississippi River. The story of Miroslav Medvid began in hope and ended in gut-wrenching terror, a real-life horror story just in time for Halloween.

As pieced together from various accounts, particularly Rita McWilliams' in The Washington Times, here's what apparently happened: Medvid, a Ukrainian in his 20s, was one of 43 crewmen on the Soviet freighter Marshal Konev, which was headed toward Reserve, Louisiana, to pick up a shipment of grain. While the ship was anchored, Medvid jumped off and swam about 100 yards to shore.

He ran down the street to a jewelry store, where the owner's nephew, Wayne Wyman, was closing up for the night. Wayne and his Uncle Joe couldn't understand the strange language Medvid was speaking, and when they asked him if he was a Soviet, he poked his chest and said, "Ukraine, Ukraine!" (The Ukraine is a country occupied by the Soviets; Stalin murdered 10 million Ukrainians, by his own crewmen on the Soviet freighter Marshal Konev, which was headed toward Reserve, Louisiana, to pick up a shipment of grain. While the ship was anchored, Medvid jumped off

By FRED McCAFFREY

SANTA FE—Is it possible to have a "30 percent solution" to the state's financial problems? Can lawmakers make enough cuts in government spending to balance the books out of the 30 percent of the annual budget that funds activities other than education? Almost certainly not.

What follows inexorably from that thought is that education is going to have to give some too—and almost no educators are prepared to accept that cold fact.

Part of their attitude flows logically from the school people's belief that they are already at a low ebb as far as funding goes. That's a point for which some good arguments can be made, but those arguments don't counterbalance the ones about the state's present condition of need.

And besides, there is another element present in the school people's position. They don't really consider themselves part of state government. As a consequence, when there is talk about "cuts in state government spending," they act as though such thoughts could not possibly apply to them.

HARD TIMES: Most of the people who depend on taxes to generate their income have, in New Mexico at least, grown pretty sloppy over a long period of time. They evidently thought the merry-go-round they rode would never shut down. But what fueled that merry-go-round in such fashion as to make the burden rest lightly on the average New Mexican was a set of severance taxes which were almost entirely paid by large industrial-type firms. Right now, that isn't any longer true.

We have just entered the period in which our state shifts from a resource-based tax economy to... what? That remains to be seen, but one thing is crystal clear: When you can't tax resources, you have to tax people.

We're going to see a lot of that over the next few years in this state, where we will take a considerable length of time getting used to the process.

PHASING IN: If government makes a move of that kind in one fell swoop, it ends up with a citizenry contemplating a tax revolt.

So the whole shifting of the tax load to the pocketbooks of the voters has to proceed slowly, though steadily.

While it's shifting, those governmental entities, including schools and universities, that have gotten used to an annual budget increase, no matter how small, may find they have to lower expectations.

Unfortunately, at the moment there is clearly little awareness of how necessary that is going to be, as can be seen from the budget requests being presented by these very educators.

TIMING: One group of people who are coming to understand something of this are those relative newcomers who have taken the top jobs at the state's universities. They all picked a lousy time to make their change.

Making the most of the money one has got is one of the skills those in these higher offices should have, of course, but not all these folks, have had reason to acquire it. Maybe they ought to consult with presidents of private colleges and universities, who have long since been forced to learn tricks that public institutions are now going to have to acquire.

Help for the Brodskys and Zelichonoks

Vladimir Brodsky and Roald Zelichonok. Hardly household names. Few Americans have ever heard of them. But when President Reagan went to the summit this month to meet Mikhail Gorbachev, he carried with him the hopes of these two men and others like them.

Brodsky and Zelichonok are both Soviet Jews and both are prisoners in Soviet labor camps. Brodsky's crime in Soviet casebooks is 'malicious hooliganism.' His real crime: he has openly campaigned for reductions in Soviet and American nuclear arsenals.

Zelichonok's crime in Soviet casebooks is slander against the Soviet state and its social system. His real crime: he was teaching Hebrew.

I know neither of these two men. I do, however, know their wives. I met Dina Brodskaya outside Moscow's only synagogue last August during my visit to the Soviet Union. She was pregnant. Her husband was at that moment in prison on a hunger strike, in a steadily weakening condition, and awaiting trial. She pled with me to raise his case with the Soviet officials and to request clemency.

I met Galina Zelichonok in Leningrad at an evening meeting of refusedniks. Her husband had been sentenced the day before to three years in a Soviet labor camp. Because of his poor physical condition, it is doubtful he can survive his sentence. His wife, herself an invalid and very nearly blind, is powerless to help.

Unfortunately, I have been equally powerless to help either of these wives or their husbands. I raised Brodsky's case with Soviet officials while I was in the Soviet Union. I couldn't raise Zelichonok's case because I was unaware of it until the evening I was to leave the country. I have written my protest of their treatment to the Soviet Ambassador in the U.S. But thus far it has all been in vain. Brodsky has been sentenced to three years in a labor camp and Zelichonok remains in prison.

I also wrote the President of the United States, who shares my frustration and my concern for all of the Soviet Union's Brodskys and Zelichonoks — those whose human rights have been mindlessly and cruelly violated. So he went to Geneva with their names and those of many others like them, to speak on behalf of all of them.

The President also speaks for all of us when he raises the issue of human rights at a summit. Like all of us, he cannot understand why the Soviet government feels it must repress Jewish culture and peace activism in a small segment of its society. He, like all of us, cannot understand how these individuals constitute such a threat that they must be confined to labor camps. Can their beliefs and ideas be so frightening to the Soviet government and to the Soviet Communist Party? If so, the President asks, as we all do: then why not let them go — to countries where such beliefs are not only tolerated, but welcomed?

The Brodskys and Zelichonoks of the Soviet Union are unlucky enough to live under a political system that will not presently accept the challenge of building a society that tolerates dissent.

Perhaps that will someday change. Perhaps the President has said something at the summit that will make that begin to happen. I hope so, for the sake of all Soviet Brodskys and Zelichonoks.

LC Sheriff's Report

for Month of September

"Polete" (circled), then he drew a line and wrote "USSR." Medvid was nervous and kept looking over his shoulder.

That's when Joe Wyman realized that "he's trying to defect or something." Wayne drove him around the city for a while, then took him to a police station a block from Bourbon Street, in the French Quarter. When he let him out of the car, Medvid shook his hand and tried to kiss it. "We don't do that in America," Wayne said, though Medvid probably didn't understand.

Inside the police station, there was confusion. The police couldn't understand him, so they took him four blocks to the Harbor Patrol office. An official there called the Border Patrol, which is part of the Immigration and Naturalization Service (INS). Medvid was still laughing and smiling.

At that point, he was interviewed over the telephone by a Ukrainian-American interpreter, Irene Padoch. According to Mrs. Padoch, "He wanted to stay in this country, absolutely. The whole time, he insisted on this. I related that to the Border Patrol." Shortly after the interview, she called a Ukrainian-American friend in the New Orleans area and asked him to help. "She said that Ukrainian boy is trying to defect. Russia is everything for him that he abhors. . . . (He asked her) 'Why am I being detained like a criminal? I want to be in America. I cannot breathe over there.'"

The INS claims that Medvid said he didn't want to defect. Asked to explain the discrepancy between the INS version and Mrs. Padoch's story, an INS official said that the Border Patrol agents may have misunderstood her because of her "broken English." In fact, Mrs. Padoch, who came to the United States 36 years ago, speaks English clearly.

After the interview, Medvid was turned over to three people from the shipping company that had the Marshal Konev's account. They put him in a motorboat and headed back to the Soviet ship. (Accounts differ as to whether US officials were still present. Someone is lying.) It was as they approached the ship that Medvid realized he was being given back; he drew his finger across his throat, the same sign that German villagers standing by the railroad used to give Jews headed for Treblinka. When the Soviet second-mate came on board the motorboat, Medvid, terror-stricken, leaped into the water again. Boats followed him to shore, where the Americans and seven or eight Russian seamen carried him away, kicking and screaming. By then it was Friday.

After the public learned of Medvid's attempted defection, the US government demanded the opportunity to talk to him in a "non-threatening" environment. On Monday, October 28, he was taken, nauseous and extremely exhausted, to a Coast Guard ship (and then to a naval station) where he was questioned by a Russian-speaking interpreter. With two Soviet agents present at all times.

There is a problem with the State Department account at this point: Medvid is Ukrainian, not Russian. His native language is Ukrainian, not Russian. Why was he interviewed by a Russian-speaking interpreter? If someone defected from Nazi-occupied France, would they have been given a German-speaking interpreter?

The Ukrainian-American Bar Association offered to provide an interpreter, and a local resident offered to translate in Ukrainian. The government told them to buzz off.

At the naval station, doctors examined him and discovered that, at some point during his captivity on the Soviet freighter, his wrists had been slashed. The Soviet captain claimed that Medvid did it to himself.

The US officials asked him why he jumped ship; he said he couldn't remember humping ship. He only mumbled, "I want to go back. I want to see my mother." (Other defectors report that the Soviets threatened to take revenge on their relatives unless they changed their minds.) He signed a document — in Russian, of course — stating that he was going back to the USSR "under my own free will." It is not known whether he was told, before he made his decision, the charge that awaits him on his return: treason.

What will happen to him? If past experience is any guide, he will be: a) executed; b) sent to a Siberian concentration camp to die of starvation and exposure; or c) sent to a "psychiatric hospital" to be tortured, experimented on, and eventually killed. Or d) something worse.

After Medvid was given back for the last time, Soviet ambassador Anatoly Dobrynin was asked why the sailor left the Marshal Konev. "I'm not a sailor," Dobrynin said. An INS official summed up the incident this way: "We will never be able to answer the question why he jumped ship." A complete mystery! Not a hint, not a clue! Perhaps we should call this one The Case of the Nose on Your Face.

Told about the decision to let the Soviets have Medvid, a high Administration official shrugged his shoulders and said, "Summitry." Ah, summitry. As far as the State Department is concerned, nothing must interfere with the upcoming Reagan-Gorbachev summit in Geneva. Nothing, and certainly not the life of some misbegotten Ukrainian sailor.

Tonight, before you go to sleep in your nice, comfortable bed, say a prayer for a man trapped in a nightmare beyond imagining: Miroslav Medvid yet another innocent victim of the Eighth Deadly Sin, detente.

Monday she was to enter the new nursing home in the northeast part of Roswell where all facilities are there in for further treatment. Her daughter Sylvia of Midland, TX joined them Friday night. I had the pleasure of visiting Belle Thursday morning for a short while. They were preparing to go to Ruidoso for medicine and oxygen. She is in a wheelchair but in a good frame of mind and so happy to have had that time at her home. May God bless her and keep her thru this illness. Her many friends join me in those wishes.

The first week of November, Bob Sheodon of Tyler, TX was successful on a bear hunt with the Runnels bunch, Bob's bear was a very large brown colored bruin that weighed in at around 600 pounds. A real trophy. He sure was a tickled hunter. Robert has done well on his deer hunts at Corona and Carrizozo with 21 hunters and 20 deer. Good country and good help.

By BARTLEY McDONOUGH
 The Capitan City Council met in regular session Nov. 18 with Councilmen Coker, Beavers, and Renfro present along with Mayor Cummins. Some 35 interested citizens were also present. Once again the Capitan water situation came in for much discussion.

March 4 was the date set for the next municipal election. Capitan citizens will go to the polls, and elect a mayor, a municipal judge, and two trustees. All positions are for four years. The trustee positions to be filled are those now occupied by Benny Coker and Ann Goodwin.

Also appearing on the ballot once again will be the water bond question: Shall the Village of Capitan, New Mexico be authorized to issue its general obligation bonds in one series or more in an amount not exceeding $800,000 for the purpose of improving the Capitan water system?

Vernon Goodwin, Chairman of the Capitan Water Advisory Board until his death, set the following priorities in a March report to the Council: I) Filter plant at present site II) Exploratory drilling east of town. By a show of hands the majority present felt the filtering plant should continue to be the first priority. The capacity of the Village's present filter plant is 288,000 gallons per day. This plant in May, 1985 processed 572,000 gallons of water a day.

Here is what a few present had to say: Dorothy Smith - Couldn't vote for bond unless priorities are stated. - Councilman Beavers, Felt the filtering plant should have had the 1st priority. - Mayor Cummins, Capitan must look for other sources of water. Capitan will grow. Eagle Creek and Bonita Lake will not be able to do the job. Cummins commended the council for its work. -Dr. David Rouleau, in a conversation with this reporter, "We do not understand how we can ignore the recommendations and priorities established by an engineering firm following their engineering report on our entire water system." Rouleau was looking for facts concerning the new well east of Capitan. He felt that these facts had not been presented to the public. Rouleau was also concerned that nothing had been done with the $993,000 in grant money in the past two years. - Councilman Coker, 10 filtering plants would not have solved our latest water problem. Coker stressed that the well east of town is a good well. Coker felt that the school would not have a water problem if the well east of town had been hooked up.

Hondo to host tourney

The Hondo Valley School will be hosting a Basketball Tournament in Hondo on December 6 and 7, 1985. The visiting teams will include: Bethel Christian, Corona, Quemado, Jesus Chapel, Northeast Christian Academy, Lake Arthur and of course, Hondo. This should be a very exciting and funfilled two days for these young men and may be the best team win," as stated from the Principal, Mr. Jack Smith.

Trophies and other support have been donated by the Fraternal Order of Eagles in Roswell and the Bank of Ruidoso. "I am very pleased to see these two donations come in for it shows me that they are interested in supporting our young people which are the future of tomorrow" stated Mr. Smith. I give these two organizations my "Thanks" on behalf of those involved in the tournament.

In other action - Wayne Hobbs bought the garbage truck for $3,300.

A public hearing will be held Dec. 9 from 5:30 p.m. until the regular council meeting at 7 p.m. concerning the proposed Planning and Zoning Ordinance. Other such meetings will be held on Jan. 13 and Feb. 10.

Mrs. Latham was named Crown Cowbelle of the Year. She was presented an original poem by Clara Porter to be framed beside pictures of Eve in cowboy and shepherd attire, a Ken Payton tortilla warmer, and a beautifully decorated cake from the kitchen of Mrs. Bell. The hostesses gave her an angel figurine from the Johnson and David "Precious Moments" collection.

A Happy Thanksgiving to ALL.

Corona receives favorable marks

By LINDA CALDWELL

Corona School District received favorable marks from the State Accreditation Unit when Chairman Jeanne Barck, Charlie Hayes, and Dan Ware made their report Nov. 8. After visiting with staff members, teachers, and students for two days and looking back over four or five years of test data and other records, Ms. Barck commented that "the dedication of the district and staff towards quality education were noticed."

Although Ms. Barck noted that the School board needs to address in its policy new issues such as home schooling and purging records, she praised the board for its general policy which "goes beyond many districts." She requested that Supt. John Clem submit a management plan by Jan. 15 which would state how staff positions are to work together and more specific job descriptions of non-certified personnel.

In his report on Curriculum Development and Implementation, Charlie Hayes requested that a master plan updating curriculum goals and means of implementation over the next three to six years be submitted. The plan is to deal with needs assessment (how necessary or relevant are particular programs), means for determining which courses will be offered, how students will be evaluated, and exit level competency requirements. Mr. Hayes said that critical thinking skills, study, and creativity areas of curriculum are in compliance. He noted that district graduation requirements exceed those of the state, but there will need to be exit competency requirements developed for the class of 1987 as mandated by recent state legislation. The lone citation issued was in the area of teacher evaluations. Documentation of such evaluations was not evident in personnel files and the problem must be addressed. Mr. Hayes concluded his segment of the evaluation by saying, "We have found the establishment of an atmosphere of communications among all involved - parents, teachers, superintendent, board and staff - which speaks very well for the district."

Mr. Dan Ware evaluated the Vocational Agriculture program and said that although facilities are adequate, the area around the building needs to be cleaned up and suggested that a storage building could be built. He noted that the current program is based on the core curriculum and hoped that Ag. I, II, and III will be offered separately next year. He realized that a new teacher is beginning a rebuilding process in the district and voiced his belief that the Corona program "will be one of the bright spots in the state in a few years."

In conclusion, all members of the Accreditation Unit expressed their pleasure in visiting the district and were impressed with the interest shown by attendance (27 present) at the Friday afternoon evaluation.

INTERNATIONAL ARCHERY CONTEST hosted by the Otero County Bowhunters of Alamogordo brought entrants from as far as Chihuahua, Mexico. In an effort to try to set up an international Invitational, local shooters attended the International Archery Contest in Chihuahua hosted by the Mexican Archery Association - Chihuahua State Archers.

FLBA-PCA Planned Consolidation... Here's why you should

Vote:  FOR THE PROPOSAL

"After careful review of the Ninth District Consolidation Proposal, we are endorsing it. We encourage voting stockholders to vote for the proposal."

(Association name)

George Meacham
 Rancher; Clinton Oklahoma; Chairman, District Board of Directors, Farm Credit Banks of Wichita

"The District Board feels consolidation is absolutely necessary for PCAs and FLBAs to continue as dependable sources of farm credit. We must follow our best business judgement and use our financial resources as effectively and efficiently as possible to minimize the amount of government aid, and thereby reduce government controls that will necessarily come with it. The need for government assistance must not mean government control to the exclusion of borrower input."

Richard Polattis
 Potato grower; Blackfoot, Idaho

"I'm an Idaho potato grower and have been a Land Bank borrower since 1974. I understand the importance of the consolidation proposal facing the Wichita Land Bank members. We faced a similar proposal last summer. At first, I had some reservations about such a significant change. But now I'm convinced of the necessity of a more efficient operating structure. Spokane District FLBA stockholders overwhelmingly voted to combine our FLBAs into one FLBA. It was needed, and we're excited about the way it is working. It has put our associations closer to the district board and management in Spokane. We're stronger and better than before."

Tim Kerns
 Cattleman; Haines, Oregon

"I've been a PCA member and Oregon rancher for 20 years. The districtwide PCA concept was strongly supported by Spokane District PCA members, who voted for consolidation last August because the PCA capital needed to be pooled to assure continued viability. It's been good for our borrowers. Our new structure provides borrowers with more direct access to the banks and district board through regular meetings with the associations' boards. Joint PCA/FLBA management will reduce costs and increase efficiency. It makes good sense to pool our resources and consolidate into an efficient structure for these troubled times in agriculture."
