

Steel mill may locate near C'zozo

By RUTH HAMMOND
During the Aug. 13 Carrizozo Chamber of Commerce meeting, Norman Bishop announced that Zia Steel, Inc. is planning to build a steel mill about 10 miles north of Carrizozo.

Bishop is an engineer and vice-president of Zia. He said that samples of ore are being tested, and flow sheets for environmental permits are being prepared. Design criteria must be met and public hearings will be held if the company does qualify for environmental permits.

Environmental permits are being prepared. Design criteria must be met and public hearings will be held if the company does qualify for environmental permits.

The streamlined schedule that Bishop gave puts the earliest possible date of breaking being late 1986 to mid 1987. Environmental permits must be obtained first and he said he hoped this would be by April or May, 1986. If permits are received, contracts will be let for the building of the mill which will take about 18 months. He stressed that no commitments can be made until the permits are issued.

In other business, Carrizozo School Superintendent Dennis Sidebottom explained a publication that is given to all school employees by the school. The purpose of the brochure is to inform teachers that most things can be bought in Carrizozo. Local businesses are listed, with necessary information. On the cover of the brochure are the words, "Support the businesses that support the Grizzlies".

Dale Goad reported that the airport committee is accepting applications for a manager for the Carrizozo Municipal Airport. Mel Carl's resignation was effective Aug. 1. A going away party was held for Mel and his wife Mame on July 24.

Goad said that security at the airport continues, and a semi-temporary manager is in residence at the airport while applications are being accepted. He also explained the next project that is planned for the airport.

A bowling tournament is being planned for November.

On-site inspection helps in decision

By RUTH HAMMOND
Lincoln County Commissioners will not grant a variance on the size of cul de sacs in Rancho Ruidoso Valley Estates subdivision.

The commission met for a special meeting and an on-site tour of the subdivision on August 10. Seven of the 29 cul de sacs (turn-arounds) were inspected.

After the on-site inspection, county attorney Steve Sanders explained variances and said, "Variances may be granted for a minor bending of regulations, not a major overhaul of regulations."

Road specifications that were approved in the late 1970's required that cul de sacs be 100 feet in diameter because of school busses and road equipment. Commissioners were concerned that less than 100 feet will not allow enough room for county equipment to turn around.

Gene Duvall, developer of the subdivision, had requested that variances be granted for the 29 cul de sacs to be 80 feet in diameter. Utilities have been installed under the roads and the electric pedestals were installed to allow not more than 80 feet of driving surface.

Plans of the subdivision that had been submitted to the commission and had been approved had shown utility easements on the backs of the lots and 100 foot cul de sacs. County officials were not aware that the utilities would be installed under the roads.

Duvall's request for the variances is the second request commissioners have received. Action was taken on May 28, 1985 on the first request. At that time the commission decided that the county would not maintain the cul de sacs because they are not built to county specifications.

In his second request, Duvall said that it would create a hardship on the subdivider if the county will not accept the 80 foot cul de sacs as the utilities are already in.

Commissioners Elliott and Gnatkowski voted to leave the action of May 28 as it had been approved. Commissioner Nosker abstained from voting.

C'ZOZO AIRPORT—

Manager needed

The Carrizozo Airport Committee met Aug. 8 to discuss the next planned project for the Carrizozo Municipal Airport.

The proposed project will include a taxi-way to connect the two parking aprons and to completely rebuild the older apron.

Security at the airport continues, with Curtis Hall, owner of Aviation Products being in residence at the terminal until a permanent airport manager is hired.

The Chamber of Commerce is advertising for an airport manager in "The Flying Review". The committee will consider all applications but prefer that applicants are qualified with a background in aviation.

CAPITAN CITY COUNCIL—

Smokey Bear Museum bids re-opened

By BARTLEY McDONOUGH
Because of an ambiguity in advertising for bids the contract with Curtis Temple of Ruidoso was ruled null and void and will be put out for bids once again. This was the decision by Village Attorney John Underwood at the regular meeting of the Capitan City Council August 12. The council voted to go along with this decision.

At question is a lease to operate the Smokey Bear Museum located next to the Capitan Fire Department. Mrs. "Willie" Hobbs has operated the museum in the past. Curtis Temple was awarded the contract at the July 8 meeting of the council when his bid was the only one in possession of the council. Mrs. Hobbs indicated she had brought in a bid in an open envelope. Feeling that she had until August 12 to file this bid, Mrs. Hobbs apparently kept the bid. A petition was presented with 253 signatures during the meeting supporting Mrs. Hobbs.

The deadline for new bids is September 9, 5 p.m. at the village hall. The bids will be opened and awarded later this evening at the regular meeting of the council.

In other action H. N. LaRue and Sons of Capitan were awarded the gravel bid. The solid waste disposal contract went to present contractor Wayne Hobbs. His split with the village of garbage revenue will be 95.5

This is up 12 percent from his present contract.

The Capitan Fire Department purchased a new fire truck from Monarch Equipment Co. of Los Lunas. This truck will hold 2,000 gallons of water and will be delivered within one year.

The Capitan Village Crew will soon spread gravel over 3 miles of road within the village limits. This will be done in Thunderbird Hills, Mesa Verde 3, and Mt. Capitan Subdivisions. The state will pay for 60 percent of the cost with the village picking up the balance.

The Planning and Zoning Board was once again commended for its excellent work. The Village Council will meet with P & Z on August 19. This will be a 7 p.m. meeting at village hall. Some major decisions could take place at this meeting.

A personnel board met at 6 p.m. with the village shop coming under discussion. This shop will now have a 2 way telephone and village employees will construct a new bathroom.

The regular meeting of the Capitan Village Council is the second Tuesday of each month at the city hall. The meeting time is 7 p.m.

MORE ABOUT SPAIN

Margie (Pino) Hobby continues with highlights of her trip to Spain. The following is her account of the experience:

"In continuation of some of the sights we visited in Spain last month, El Monasterio de San Lorenzo de El Escorial was one of the largest. It was under construction for 21 years. King Philip II had it built to commemorate Spain's victorious Battle of San Quintin, which was won on August 10 (the feast Day of San Lorenzo) in 1557. El Escorial is approximately 49 kilometers from Madrid and receives about 1/2 million visitors per year. Charles II began restoring it in 1671 after a great fire and other needed repairs were begun in 1963."

"The entire edifice is in the shape of a gridiron - the instrument used in the martyrdom of San Lorenzo. It is a massive structure, simplistic and austere. Inside the building, there are 9 towers, 16 patios, 88 fountains, 86 staircases and more than 2,600 windows. King Philip II used this as his palace of rest. A beautiful crypt was built underneath the main altar which contains the remains of several kings and queens of the past. This building also housed a school and a monastery."

"In the large upstairs library are some antique wood-bound books written on goat parchment in beautiful gold lettering with ornate drawings filling the margins. The style of writing in these very old books is very difficult to decipher nowadays."

"The main Chapel of El Escorial is reputed to have the most beautiful, perfect and richest tabernacle of its kind ever made - it took seven years to complete. It forms a circular temple of fine marble and jasper, some of which was so hard that craftsmen had to cut it with diamonds in order to shape it. This tabernacle includes statues of the 12 apostles, the masterpiece of Pomeyo Leoni. In the interior were precious stones, a topaz as large as a fist (which was stolen during the Napoleonic invasion) and much gold."

IMPRESSIVE SIGHTS

Margie notes that most of the guides on their group's tours were interested in their work and gave much information. The country was such an interesting place to visit. She wishes everyone could do so. Margie thanks the NEWS for letting her share the experience. The following includes more details of the trip she and fellow New Mexico Highlands University students participated in:

"There is also wall-to-wall art work and brilliant paintings on the rounded ceilings. In the choice loft, there are 124 exquisitely hand-carved stalls; the upper row containing a canopy covering the entire."

"The four great organs and four smaller ones were constructed by the most famous European organ builder of the time, who died before finishing the work. His sons continued the project until it was complete. Many of the best artists of the time were commissioned to execute the all-encompassing works which made it nearly impossible for them to ever leave their posts."

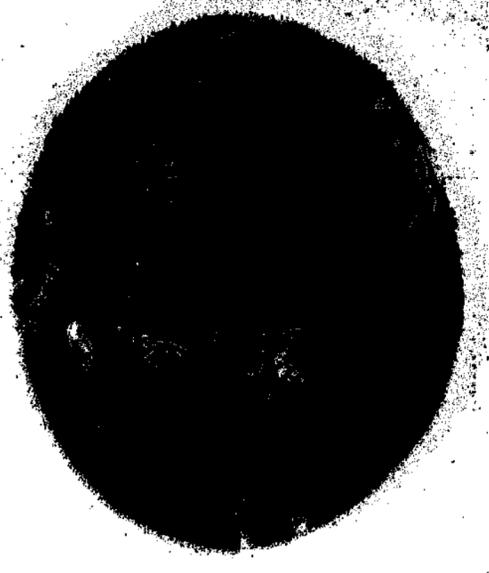

"I thought one of the most impressive sights of the Escorial was the magnificent crypt beneath the main altar. It was begun by Philip II and continued by Philip III. After his death the work was suspended for 22 years. In 1645, Philip IV undertook completion of the difficult task. Nine years later he was finally able to inaugurate the Royal Pantheon. The Pantheon is an octagonal room entirely covered with precious marble and jasper with much gilded bronze ornamentation. Inside this room are the Baroque style sepulchral urns of marble supported by four bronze lion claws, each has a fancy bronze name plate. The 26 urns are lying in chronological order on rows of marble shelves. The brilliant bronze chandelier is adorned with a multitude of small angels ending in a great royal crown."

"Another interesting sidelight was the Sacristy which contains paintings by El Greco and other renowned artists, along with several chests made of fine inlaid woods, forming various patterns. In this Sacristy is a host which has been preserved since 1592. According to history, during the religious wars some heretics desecrated some Dutch temples, trampling the Consecrated Forms underfoot. This particular host has three holes which appear to have been made by the nails of a boot, from whence blood started to pour. It is reported that these blood stains still exist. One of the heretics was so frightened that he fled with the host, leaving it at a convent, later it was presented to Philip II."

OPINION

Ernest V. Joiner

THE nation is awash with tears and the heavens are rent with cries of anguish and sorrow. Breast-beating has replaced Jane Fonda's recommended workout exercises for August. We are enduring yet another orgy of guilt and remorse over the dropping of the atom bomb on Hiroshima and Nagasaki 40 years ago this month. We will be reminded that 130,000 Japanese died "needlessly" in those two blasts that ushered in the Nuclear Age. No mention will be made of the fact that the bomb ended World War II almost instantly and saved the lives of an estimated one million US and allied soldiers poised to take the island of Japan by conventional warfare strategy. In a run of TV network documents and candlelight vigils this month, we are called to repentance for having ended the war so abruptly and at so little cost in human life. In churches, temples and synagogues the United States will be revealed as a racist, cruel and ethnocentric nation whose leaders used the Bomb simply because the enemy was yellow instead of white. US peaceniks rehearsed for their Shadow Project on Hiroshima Day, Aug. 6, when they painted shadows on sidewalks all over the country in memory of those who were vaporized by the bomb, leaving only their shadows.

THERE will be no vigils anywhere in the world for 5,200 American soldiers who suffered hunger, torture and death on the infamous Bataan Death March of 1942, or for the other thousands who perished because of Japanese barbarism at the surrender of Corregidor. For them, the Bomb would have been a blessed relief from the unremitting cruelty of the enemy. Neither will there be mention that this country did not attack and declare war on Japan; Japan attacked and declared war on the United States. Nothing will remind us that Japan conducted the most ruthless, inhuman and savage war of any people in modern history; one comparable only to the atrocities of Attila the Hun in the 5th century BC.

SO we dispatched 130,000 Japanese lives to save those of one million. It is settled military strategy to sacrifice small numbers to slow the enemy and gain time. That's what the Alamo was all about. In 1941 the Allies had broken the German code. Intercepting coded messages during the Battle of Britain, Prime Minister Winston Churchill learned of an intended German air raid over the city of Coventry on April 8. To send the Royal Air Force to engage German bombers would have revealed to the Germans that their code had been broken. It was his tragic decision to do nothing and sacrifice Coventry rather than jeopardize countless lives and risk losing the war. Let the selective moralists, armed with 40 years of hindsight, now cry shame. Had it not been the moral duty of President Truman to use the Bomb, many of those now crying shame would not be here to do so—for their fathers and grandfathers would have died in the invasion of Japan. Those two bombs have kept peace among the world powers for 40 years, the longest period in modern history.

A READER has asked the correct spelling of that rakehell dictator of Libya, Muammar Whattisname. The San Francisco Chronicle spells it Khadafi; the Washington Times, Quaddafi; US News & World Report, Quaddafi; The American Sentinel, Kaddafi; and the National Review, al-Quaddafi. Realizing the importance of knowing how to identify properly the world's No. 1 Terrorist, I proceeded to the Sonoma County Library's reference desk. I was assured the best authority on such matter is the Europa Yearbook, and it spelled the name "Gaddafi." Our publisher produced the Summit Handbook of the Organization of African Unity, which certainly should know how to spell this member's name. It lists him as Colonel Muammar Al-Gaddafi. If any of you are into creative spelling, let me hear from you. I have no trouble with lopadotemaschelosachogaleokraniolepisandrimhypotrimmatosilhiparomelitoakatake - chymenokichlepikossyphatopeteralekryontekephallo - kigklopelelolagolostiraibaphetraganopterygon, but the spelling of this dictator's name is as difficult as finding a laundry in Berkeley. Let this unfamiliar word trigger a reader to inquire as to its meaning. It's a goulash of leftovers from the meals of the past two weeks; or, hash. The word was first used in Aristophanes' "The Ecclesiazusae." But it never caught on. Neither, I hazard, will "G-daffy."

MELINDA Safian, 30, of Toledo, OH was arrested last October after a vice detective viewed her performance in a coin-operated booth. The detective said the more money he put in, the more risque the show got. He admitted to Municipal Court Judge Allen Andrews that the show did not arouse him sexually. Whereupon the judge dismissed charges of pandering obscenity against Melinda. His honor said the "arousal factor" was essential in proving obscenity charges.

THERE is something nice about our judicial system. Seven people were arrested in November 1983 for entering an Air Force base in Rome, NY and damaging B-52 bomber parts. Their defense was (now get this) that the law which protects military property violates the First Amendment by aiding the establishment of a "national religion of nuclearism" which teaches "acceptance of nuclear weapons as sacred objects." The US Court of Appeals was not impressed. Back to the dungeon went the Magnificent Seven.

THE US Defense Department has been buying hams from communist Yugoslavia for use in American military bases in the United States. It is bad enough for our government to buy hams from any foreign government, let alone a communist one, when US hog raisers can't sell their at a profit and packing plants are being closed and US citizens in that industry are thrown out of work. If you doubt that our government supports the communist economy to the detriment of our own, check the meat case at a Sebastopol supermarket. It displays cans of bacon labeled "Product of Hungary." Should you need further evidence of our supporting communist governments, consider that a new car will be available to Americans in a few days. It is Yugo GV, built in communist Yugoslavia by workers who are paid 60 cents an hour. Why do we do this?

Watch Over Washington

Congressman Aspin's roommate— from the New York Times

WASHINGTON — Only a few years ago, The New York Times learned with apparent horror that Laura Foreman, a former Philadelphia Inquirer reporter who had recently been appointed to The Times Washington Bureau, had misbehaved.

While covering Pennsylvania's state capital in Harrisburg for The Inquirer, political writer Foreman became so enamored of one virile state senator from South Philadelphia that she began to cover him — in bed.

Senator Buddy Cianfrani reciprocated her sexual favors with numerous gifts, and they began sharing his quarters.

By the time Senator Cianfrani was sent to prison for several counts of (non-sexual) crimes such as payroll padding, Mistress Foreman had moved on — to that pinnacle of the Washington press corps, The New York Times bureau. She was apparently carrying the torch for Buddy (whom she later married), for there were no further reports of servicing sources between the sheets.

Then, after a comparatively brief period with The Times bureau, Laura's close coverage of Senator Buddy became public information through a sizzling expose in Philadelphia, which reached Washington with the speed of light. And even though all of this happened while she was working for The Inquirer rather than The Times, the very thought of a Washington Correspondent for The New York Times having acquired her experience in reporting politics from the vantage point of the bed of an Italian Stallion State Senator was apparently too much for that Great Newspaper. Hence, Foreman was fired by All The News That's Fit To Print.

When the Executive Editor of The New York Times was asked about this, Mr. A. M. Rosenthal replied with a quote that has become something of a classic:

"I don't care if she sleeps with elephants — as long as she isn't covering the circus beat." Sen. Cianfrani was at that time incarcerated and therefore unavailable for comment with regard to Mr. Rosenthal's unflattering comparison of him to an elephant.

Apparently Laura Foreman's Buddy Bye Journalism was just a little bit ahead of its time at The Times. For if she had only bedded down with an influential Congressional leader, she might have been compensated with the chiefdom of a New York Times bureau overseas.

This is more than mere supposition, and that the ethics of The Times have shifted to a New Morality is indicated in a July 21 report in Parade, the Sunday supplement that is distributed to hundreds of newspapers.

Parade reported that the Chairman of the House Armed Services Committee, Wisconsin Democrat Les Aspin, has "shared his quarters with a lady reporter from The New York Times."

A staffer in Aspin's Congressional office readily acknowledged that this is true — and even identified the "lady reporter from The New York Times." She was later romantically linked with the State Department's high ranking official, Richard Burt, who has just been made US Ambassador to Bonn.

That the amorous exploits of this lady reporter from The New York Times are somewhat renowned throughout the Washington press corps was evident during a Pentagon news briefing on July 23. The Department of Defense's acting spokesman, Fred Hoffman, was asked if such "sharing of quarters with lady reporters from The New York Times" may have contributed to the Pentagon's serious problem of leakage to the media. From the rear of the room, a voice exclaimed: "She's in Cairo!"

I also asked Hoffman, a long time veteran of AP, if he knows of "any major medium, other than The New York Times, which has reporters sleeping with sources in order to get the news."

Hoffman grinned and declined comment. So I asked if he believed that AP had ever engaged in any such Buddy Bye Journalism.

"You'll have to ask AP!" he replied.

At the New York Times headquarters here, my inquiring telephone call was directed to a courteous and dignified man named Leonard Harris. Mr. Harris is the Director of Corporate Relations — who is more than apparently not experienced in dealing with sexual relations — surely not such relations as between Times reporters and the Congressmen they are supposed to cover. (Figuratively; not physically.)

Mr. Harris, none the less, promised that he would investigate and get back to me the following day. He didn't. So I telephoned him once more.

But all he could provide in the way of response concerning The New York Times Carnal Congressional Coverage was the following statement:

"Well, nobody says they are actually sleeping together. It just says they were sharing his quarters."

Immediately I asked Mr. Harris if he could believe that Congressman Aspin and The Lady From The Times had maintained a brother-and-sister relationship for the sake of a chaste venture into cooperative housing.

Mr. Harris showed no enthusiasm at all about speculating in this regard; so I asked him about the Abe Rosenthal Standard of Reporters and Elephants. "That's extremely funny," chortled Harris.

Enoyed by this brief flash of earthy humor from Journalism's Mount Olympus, I began wracking my brain for some sort of follow up which could prolong such a newsworthy series of comments from The Times Corporate Relations Director. Too late, I thought of asking him if the lady reporter might be writing a New York Times Book entitled "On Wisconsin!"

But here I could give mental birth to this one, Mr. Harris politely bade me farewell.

SANTA FE — One of the least effective uses of human energy ever devised by the mind of man is an American political campaign.

Since we're approaching the season when that sort of things sweeps again across New Mexico, maybe we ought to look at why that's so.

Those who schedule the time of people who want to get elected to statewide office often accept any and all invitations issued to their tiger, because they are afraid to offend anyone who wants to hear from him. As a result, most of the work of the campaign goes into logistics—just moving the poor candidate's body from place to place to meet all those appointments.

That's not the smart way to go about campaigning. Smart campaigns are run by concentrating on the areas where the votes are.

REALITIES: Saying that offends people in areas where the votes are few and far between. They rightly say they want to eyeball candidates personally and give them an earful of their local problems just like the folks in the major cities.

But the fact is that elections are mathematical exercises designed to see who can roll up the biggest numbers, and that makes it smart to do the wooing where the numbers are.

In New Mexico, that doesn't involve a lot of territory.

TWO LEVELS: Primaries, of course, are very different from general elections—though some candidates and their staffs haven't noticed that yet either. Primaries are strictly family affairs; only Democrats can vote in the Democratic one, and only Republicans in the Republican one. Now it just happens that over half of the Republicans in the state live in three counties—Bernalillo, Dona Ana and San Juan. If you add in the next seven counties in descending order of Republican registrations (Chaves, Santa Fe, Lea, Sandoval, Otero, Eddy and Valencia), you can reach 70 percent of the party members without entering another of the remaining 23 counties.

With Democrats, it's a little tougher. To reach more than half of that party's registrants, you have to campaign in Bernalillo, Santa Fe, Dona Ana, San Juan, Eddy and Lea counties. If you add another four (McKinley, Grant, Sandoval and Rio Arriba), you have still only reached 63 percent of the Democrats.

The rich get richer

WASHINGTON, VIRGINIA — The federal budget has been pared to the bone... You can't cut federal spending any more without hurting programs that are essential to the well-being of the American people... Besides, so many people benefit from these programs that it would be politically impossible to cut them....

If you believe that, I've got a synthetic fuels plant in North Dakota that I'd like to sell you.

It's a plant that was financed by the US Department of Energy. To build the Great Plains Coal Gasification Project, a group of corporations that included Tenneco raised $2.1 billion, including $1.5 billion in loans guaranteed by the Energy Department. The plant was supposed to produce synthetic fuel that would lessen America's dependence on foreign oil. Sure enough the plant went into operation last year and began producing synthetic gas.

There was a slight problem, however. The synthetic gas cost twice as much to produce as "real" gas. And there was no prospect that the cost would ever come down enough to make the plant profitable. So Tenneco and the other corporations delivered an ultimatum to Energy Secretary John Herrington; give us another $720 million, or we'll shut down and throw 1,000 people out of work.

Herrington did a little mental arithmetic. He figured out that his department had already laid down $1.5 billion in loan guarantees for each job that the plant created, and that the plant's operators were asking for $720,000 more. It would be cheaper to buy each worker at the plant his own McDonald's franchise than to keep financing the Great Plains project. So Herrington turned thumbs-down. The plant will close, and the federal government will probably lose "only" $1.2 billion.

The synthetic fuels program is one of hundreds of government programs designed to subsidize Big Business. Another boondoggle is the Export-Import Bank, which bribes foreigners to buy products from certain US firms. In 1981, seven corporations received 70 percent of the Ex-Im Bank's direct loans. In 1984, two companies — Boeing and McDonnell Douglas — got 40 percent of the bank's benefits. "It's not good policy for countries to be in the business of subsidizing exports, because the only winners are those that buy," Agriculture Secretary John Block admitted recently.

In 1981, the Rural Electrification Administration began to provide 35-year loans at five percent interest to finance cable-TV operations. REA continues to lend money, at two percent interest, to utilities in some areas that were poor during the Depression but that are wealthy

LINCOLN NATIONAL FOREST

NEWS

Visitors to the Lincoln National Forest are warned to avoid posted closed camping sites within the Steepy Grass and Deerhead Campgrounds on the Cloudercroft Ranger District as bees and yellow jackets have recently been a problem. Stay away from small holes in the ground and hollow logs as they tend to favor these locations.

Before going to cut your wood on any District be sure and call that District or the Supervisor's Office in Alamogordo at (505) 437-6030 for road conditions and closure information.

Special driving care should be exercised while on the forest as traffic has greatly increased on each district.

Fishing on the Smokey Bear Ranger District near Ruidoso is listed as poor to fair. The Lincoln County Fair will be held August 16 and 17 in Capitan. Hiking trails are in good shape. Information number for this District is (505) 257-4085.

Firewood areas are temporarily closed on the Cloudercroft Ranger District. Campgrounds are receiving moderate to heavy use. Hiking trails are muddy. Construction continues on the Sunspot Highway (F.R. 64). Information number is (505) 682-2551.

today. Subsidies to airlines that serve small cities have cost the taxpayer $460 million since 1978. On one run, between Blythe, California, and Los Angeles, the government subsidy per round-trip flight was $1,095 per passenger in 1983.

The Small Business Administration actually serves only about one-fifth of one percent of the small businesses in the United States. Most of its beneficiaries are "government-wise loan seekers," that is, savvy operators whose primary qualification for doing business is that they know how to wrangle handouts from the government. And the businesses that don't get SBA help end up facing artificial, government-sponsored competition.

Other programs subsidize the construction of apartments, or provide cheap credit for the construction of some people's houses while raising interest rates for other people. The government pays some farmers to grow tobacco and pays others not to grow wheat. Specialized weather information, collected with government satellites and government computers, is provided free to multinational corporations that could afford to buy it from private companies.

Shipbuilding research is also done at taxpayer expense. Urban Development Action Grants are given to cities so they can bribe companies to build multimillion-dollar hotels and convention centers.

Taxes on working people in the United States today are higher than taxes on the rich were, twenty years ago. Much of the money from those taxes is used to subsidize companies which, in turn, use part of their ill-gotten gains to finance the campaigns of members of Congress. In turn, those Congressmen raise taxes on the steelworker, the truckdriver, the hairdresser, the dimestore clerk, and all the other folks who can't afford their own lobbyists in Washington. It's a vicious circle, with the emphasis on the word "vicious."

Members of Congress, Republican and Democrat alike, apparently lack the courage to stand up to the special interests. That's why, as things now stand, there is no prospect for a balanced budget next year, the year after, or ever. But pressure is mounting for a Constitutional amendment requiring a balanced budget, and if that amendment passes, then the circle will be broken, by-and-by, by-and-by.

The Canyon Cowbells had their regular meeting-luncheon on Aug. 7 at the home of Pat Hume, with co-hostesses Pat, Mattie Brieger, Genevieve Duncan, and Daisy Meachem. President Annie Withers reported that the second edition of the NM State Cowbelle Cookbook are now available and will be on sale at the Lincoln County Fair at the Canyon Cowbelle Booth. The booth will also have coffee, iced tea, beef luncheon, napkins, chances for a $10 Beef Certificate to be drawn on Saturday, and a special priced luncheon for children under 8 years. The Canyon Cowbells are looking forward to seeing all their neighbors and friends at the FAIR, and be sure to get some donut-holes.

The Canyon Cowbells put an ad in the program to be used at the Miss Teen America contest in Duluth, MN, on Oct. 13-20, in honor of Miss Teen New Mexico, Miss Waynette Lindsay, of our own Lincoln County. The Cowbells wish her only the best of luck, and know that she will represent the county and the state to the best of her ability. Good luck, Waynette.

CUP BETS

The Capitan Club will not have a meeting this month. Their club will be in charge of the booth at the Fair.

GENERAL ELECTIONS: In November, of course, everything is very different. For that elections a candidate wants to have reached all New Mexicans who are registered to vote, because all of them can vote for him, regardless of which party they are registered in.

On the basis of gross registration, four counties (Bernalillo, Dona Ana, Santa Fe, and San Juan) contain 51 percent of the registrants. Add in Chaves, Eddy, Lea, Sandoval, McKinley, and Valencia, and you have the areas that contain 67 percent of the potential voters.

That's why those who live in other parts of the state could be disappointed that they are too little of those who solicit our votes during the coming months. Candidates ought to go everywhere, but if they want to make best use of their limited time, they are more likely to do their handshaking where most of the hands are gathered.

CAPITAN SCHOOL BOARD—

New cafeteria is almost ready

By BART McDONOUGH
These are highlights of the August 8 meeting of the Capitan Board of Education.

Susie Townsend was placed under contract to teach in the field of special education. Townsend comes to Capitan from her last teaching assignment in Melrose.

Miss Outhouse, with marriage plans in the near future, will be replaced by Elaine Howe. Howe previously worked at Ft. Stanton.

Resignations were accepted from Janet Leslie, Jo Townley and Denise Whipple. Larry Griego was hired by the board to be a custodian. Mrs. Joe Shafer will be the new head cook and Diane Newsom will serve as high school secretary for one year.

The board purchased 12 typewriters and 3 Minolta copiers. The purchase of sewing machines was apparently tabled once again.

Architect Jim French feels that the cafeteria will be completed by the opening of school on August 19. The new library is ahead of schedule. Completion date for the library is Dec. 15.

Bus contractor Frankie Silva reported on vandalism to school busses by a few students. Silva has replaced 24 seat covers at a cost of 18-20 dollars a piece. He commented on the "Carrizozo Solution" to this problem. Find out who did it and have the parent pay.

Silva went on to state that he had purchased 16 tires and that the busses have been thoroughly checked and are ready to go.

The Capitan Schools are asking for $325,000 from the Critical Capital Outlay Committee. Dr. Hays will attend their meeting on August 15.

In other school news 37 athletes turned out Monday for the first day of practice. New Coach Zale Woodward told the squad that he had heard that Capitan might have a state championship team in a year or two. Zale assured the team that the time for victory is now—not later. The coach noted that the first game of the season will be a tough one. The Tigers will meet the Artesia JV Squad in Artesia on Aug. 31. Game time is 7:30 p.m. School patrons remember the Aug. 24 volleyball tournament in Capitan. The Tigerettes are in this along with teams from Socorro, Moriarty, Tularosa, and T. or C.

Last week we had only a trace of moisture and Sunday, Aug. 11, we received one inch of good rain. That was great and did so much good for everything including people.

The Capitan School's first day of school is Monday, Aug. 19. The school busses will run and meals will be served. A workshop for teachers will be held Aug. 16. Remember that day and be ready.

There were 2,018 registered visitors at the Smokey Bear Museum and the State Park from Aug. 5-11. Rotary Youth International Exchange from El Paso visited the museum Aug. 6. The group of 10 students were from Australia, Belgium, and Brazil. They were accompanied by one adult. He mentioned the group had spoken to the Rotary in Ruidoso.

Eight girls from 4-H Camp visited Aug. 9.

I am happy to report that I met Virginia Susan Mann of Artesia, NM 88210. Her address is Star Rt. Box 40. She is collecting cookbooks and is seriously desiring a Smokey Bear Cookbook. She says she will help in every way to help make one. She was here visiting at the time Smokey was found and has kept up with it all and taken pictures, etc. She wants us to compile one and says she will help in ways that will hold the cost down. She wants to be contacted, therefore, the above address. She is one serious lady.

Football practice began Monday. Thirty-seven boys turned up for practice. Their game of the season is against the Artesia Jr. Varsity in Artesia Aug. 31.

Kenny Cummins, son of Mr. and Mrs. Hollis Cummins, is now a registered CPA in Albuquerque. We are truly proud of him and wish him much success and happiness.

"Seago's Gift and Candies" at the Smokey Bear Restaurant now has the "Lincoln County News" for sale each week. If you have not been there, you have missed so much. They have nice assortment of gifts and Indian jewelry and pottery made by Yesa, Wood clocks and plaques by Oussable Wood. Do go look around. We are proud to have a shop of this kind. Mr. and Mrs. Seago came from Deming, NM, and really like it here and desire to make it their home. Lets welcome them with open arms. We do wish them success and happiness with us. Lets show them.

City Hall has just purchased a new computer to help keep all records and eventually do the billing. When all the training is completed, the computer should be a real bonus for the Village.

Congratulations to Tanya Payton, daughter of Buddy and Karen Payton. She was chosen the 1985-86 Capitan Junior Rodeo Club Queen. Competing with Tanya for the coveted title were

First runner-up Merry Sue Hogan, second runner-up Tinnie Coons, and contestants Roxanne Coons, Jessica Livingston, and Delana Smith. All the girls did a beautiful job on their horseback patterns and all looked like queens.

It was a welcome sight to see all those boys in black on the football field on Monday morning. Coach Woodward started the "two a days" getting ready for the first game against the Artesia JV on Aug. 31 at Artesia. Coach MacVeigh's volleyball girls began their "two a days" also on Monday at 7:30 a.m. It's great to see all of these youngsters getting ready for their respective sports. Now is a good time to remind everyone to join the "Tiger Boosters" and help these kids in every way that we can.

Lynn Hutchison of DeQueen, Arkansas is in town visiting with her mom, Jean Lovelace, brother Noel Lovelace, and sister Wynn King, and younger sisters Glynda and Ray, and all of their respective families. Accompanying Lynn were her husband, John and children Holt, Angle, Randy and Kara.

She says she is proud to have your business. Stop by and shop or have a cup of coffee or just visit.

A gift to Mrs. David (Clarice) Hughs from her son Mr. Bill Hughs of California was a trip to Hawaii. Clarice accompanied Bill and his wife there and was away three weeks returning Saturday, Aug. 3. Two weeks of which they spent in Hawaii. To her the most outstanding of all was "Pearl Harbor" and the program there. They visited three islands and all were very beautiful but she was very glad to get home.

Lincoln County Leader, White Oaks, Lincoln County, New Mexico, Sat., March 15, 1890.

Local Roundups

We regret the duty devolving on us of announcing the death at his home in Socorro last week, of the patriot soldier and noble gentleman, L. L. Harlow.

Sam Daldrick, one of the oldest of White Oaks old timers arrived and departed this week Friday, but will be back and tarry with us a day or two next week.

Locals have been serene this week.

Frank Tattil, one of White Oaks best boys, went to Socorro this week and there by appointment; met a newly arrived Switzer girl and wedded her. The happy couple are now domiciled here.

C. C. Parsons went through Tuesday night by stage to Parson's City. We understand that while East he received the active co-operation of eastern capitalists and that work on an extensive scale may be looked for at an early date on the Parson's mining property. Hope so.

This has been the dullest week for locals in our experience.

J. D. Brashaer, of Owensburg, KY, spent a couple of days in camp this week and left on Tuesday for Nogal, there to view the American Mine, of which he is one of the principal owners.

Saturday, March 22, 1890

The Homestake Mills are running on good ore and the prospect for their mines are bright. May the greatest success attend them.

Sunday evening next pastor Lane will speak on the claims of the working men of the United States. All are cordially invited.

We are indebted to our friend Jack Forsyth, for a pretty sprig of Shamrock, received by him on St. Patrick's Day from Belfast, Ireland.

The new Congregational Church is completed and services were held in the new edifice last Sunday morning and night. The congregation at night was large and especially interesting.

Saturday, March 29, 1890

Gov. Chase pulled out Monday morning for his old Vermont home and sick wife.

MILK-Sam Wells is now prepared to sell and deliver cow's milk to customers at the rate of 12 quarts for $1.

Saturday, April 5, 1890

A slip of the foot may soon be recovered; but that of the tongue perhaps never.

J. M. Buck, deputy assessor, has been in town all week trying to ascertain what everybody is or is worth.

The wife of Jones Tallafiero played a joke on her liege lord on April fool's day-she filled his arms with a brand new baby boy.

The first day of the first Spring month was more wintry than any day in Winter. It was cold, windy and altogether mean. November was meaner than any winter month, and April seems to have entered for sweepstakes.

DR. BEARUP wishes those whom it may concern to know that he can be found at Dr.

Paden's office on the 12 inst., (Saturday of next week) where he will remain until demand for dental work is fully satisfied.

MARRIED-On the 2nd inst., at the home of the bride's parents, by Rev. Dr. N. W. Lane, George McLellan Brown and Miss Lizzie R. Collier. Probably no couple in town are better known than this twain. The groom is the junior partner of Jno. A. Brown & Bro. and commands not only the respect but esteem of everybody. The bride has grown in this town from the condition of innocent childhood to that of cultivated and refined womanhood. Long may they live to revel in each others holy love.

A Pennsylvania editor answers a correspondent who propounds the query, "Did you ever see a bald headed woman?" in the following strain: "No, we never did. Nor did we ever see a woman walking around town in her shirt sleeves with a cigar between her teeth. We never saw a woman go fishing with a bottle in her hip pocket, sit around on the damp ground all day, and go home "boozed" in the evening. Neither have we seen a woman yank off her coat, spit on her hand, and swear she would whip any man in town. All of the foregoing 'privileges' are reserved for men."

Brief —

Pat Hume, county Republican chairperson, has announced that the countywide celebration of the Republican majority in registered voters will be held Sept. 14 at the Flying J Ranch, from 6 to 8 p.m. The occasion will also serve as the county party's fundraiser for the year.

Republican office holders and candidates and their spouses will be attending the celebration as guests of the local party, according to Hume.

"I expect that we will have a majority of the local Republican officials at the party," Hume said. "We will also ask the candidates to give short speeches, so this is a good place for them to talk to their constituents."

NEW CALF PROGRAM—

Beef option

This fall New Mexico beef producers will have the added option of merchandising their calves through the New Mexico Certified Preconditioned Feeder Calf Program. Initiated last year, the program offers the cattle producer another option in marketing his calf crop, according to Barry Herd, county agricultural extension agent in Lincoln County.

Herd says that preconditioned calves should be worth more money to the buyer since they have already undergone the stress of weaning, which is probably the single most stressing factor affecting calves at shipping time. In addition, the New Mexico Certified Preconditioned calf will have received vaccinations for the full spectrum of Clostridial diseases and for Infectious Bovine Rhinotracheitis (IBR) and Parainfluenza - 3 (PI 3). Other requirements are that the calf be castrated and dehorned, if applicable, and treated for grubs and lice.

The feeding program required for New Mexico preconditioned calves is different from that of most other states, according to Ron Parker, Extension Beef Cattle Specialist at New Mexico State University. The producer has three options as to how he feeds the calves during the 21-day preconditioning period following weaning, Parker reports. The first option, bunk broke calves, means that calves will receive at least five pounds of supplemental feed per head per day during the preconditioning period. The second option is range cube broke, with calves turned out on grass after weaning and receiving a minimum of one pound of range cubes per head per day. The third option is no feed, with calves turned out on grass after weaning and receiving no supplemental feed.

"The range cube broke calf should be a very attractive package to the buyer," according to Parker. "This calf has undergone the stress of weaning, received his shots, and is taught to come to the pickup for cubes. We anticipate this calf will look real good to the buyer who puts his calves back on native grass or wheat pasture," Parker said.

New Mexico Certified Preconditioned feeder calves can be marketed the same as any other calf. Preconditioned calves can be sold by private treaty, through regular auction market sales, or through special video auction sales. "For the producer who has load lots (40,000 to 45,000 pounds) of calves of the same sex, we anticipate the video auction may be the most attractive marketing procedure," Parker said. "We've talked to several auction markets that conduct special video sales, and they are all eager and willing to include preconditioned calves in their video sales. The producer who has smaller groups of calves to sell, and who normally sells through the auction market, may also find the preconditioning program a method of increasing the value of his calves."

Former Lincolnite
in Villa Museum

"Viva Villa", a limited edition poster by El Paso artist Eugene (Gene-K) Wilson, has been included in the permanent collection of the Museum of the History of the Revolution in Cd. Chihuahua, Mexico.

The work, which depicts Dona Luz Corral knitting the image of her husband, Pancho Villa, out of yarn, was added to the museum's permanent collection during ceremonies commemorating the 62nd anniversary of Villa's assassination on July 20, 1985.

Mr. Wilson was born at Ft. Stanton, NM, attended school at Capitan, Roswell, ENMU, UNM and UTEP. His parents were Grace (Mrs.) Ralph Powell, of Roswell) and Adolph Wilson. His uncle, Bill Wilson, ran the Rainbow Trout Lakes in Ruidoso until his recent death. Mr. Wilson's sister, Mary Janette Wilson was born in Carrizozo. Family history has his great grandparents being killed by Mescalero Apaches near Three Rivers. His brother Joseph Adolph Wilson Jr. was the 1st Eagle Scout in Lincoln county. Joe was later killed in a F-4 crash in West Germany. Another brother, Charles (Chuck) Wilson works for the Sun News in Las Cruces.

Wilson explained that the working title of the drawing was "Behind every great man, there is a great lady, or two, or three, or ...". He describes Dona Luz as a symbol for all women who remember loved ones lost.

Wilson began to sketch the illness during the time the type was being set for the English translation of her autobiography, intending it for Dona Luz. However, she died before it could be presented to her.

"Viva Villa" and other works by Wilson are currently being featured in a one-man show at El Paso's Dallas Ford Gallery, 906 N. Oregon, through August 18. He received the El Paso Arts Alliance award for excellence in graphic arts in 1984.

With Measured Service, you can cut your home phone bill. You'll pay a monthly charge that's lower than the more costly unlimited local calling rate. And, if you make less than five calls each day, or if you make most of your calls in the evening or on weekends, you'll probably save money.

With Measured Service, there is no charge for calls you receive, and how much you pay depends on how many local calls you make, how long you talk, and the time of day and distance of each call.

And if you switch to Measured Service or decide to go back to the unlimited calling rate before December 11, 1985, there is no charge for the change.

To order or to find out more, call, (toll-free), 1-765-6800 between 9 a.m. and 5 p.m., Monday through Friday (except holidays).

NEW MEXICO'S HERITAGE—

Rock carvings & skyscrapers

By DAVID STUART

Jet-black boulders once cascaded from the volcanic mesa's high, angular rim to form an immense lava terrace. Here Indians engraved remarkable designs on the ancient rock, turning it into an outdoor art display more impressive than the main gallery of any museum.

The black rock changes constantly—absorbing rain, snow, or heat according to nature's seasons. Each season has its own smell. On a hot, summer's day hardened lava exudes the scorched scent of a good machine shop. In winter, dark, snow-capped boulders radiate the dangerous sensation of cold razor blades.

Then there is the smell of Albuquerque. It comes on the east wind, carrying hints of hot asphalt, taco stands, and exhaust fumes. I resent it sometimes, but it fascinates me, too. This is Petroglyph Park—a city park. Albuquerque lies below, a panorama of houses, rooftops, and skyscrapers. The white facade of City Hall glistens in the sun, but the Mayor can't see this spot. His office windows face the Sandia Mountains to the east.

It is an odd sensation to caress a rock carved 700 years ago by those who prayed that the world as they knew it would always be safe for them, their children, and their children's children, then turn to stare at a cluster of bank buildings. Such contrasts are the essence of New Mexico's special appeal.

Most of the petroglyphs, or rock carvings, are done in the "Rio Grande Style", dating from about A.D. 1300 to 1600. In the A.D. 1300's a number of pueblos were founded along the Rio Grande to accommodate local population increase and migrations of villagers from the forested districts north of Santa Fe.

The Rio Grande Period's earliest settlements were located on fortified bluffs above the river—some underlie modern Rio Rancho, Corrales, and new developments near Coors Boulevard. Later in the A.D. 1400's larger pueblos were built down on the River's floodplain. Many of these have been washed away in rampaging floods that plagued the Rio Grande Valley before the River was dammed.

The rock carvings are varied and imaginative. Some depict masked katchina gods; others are shield bearers, stars, snakes, and animals. My favorite is a huge, wonderfully clean-lined rendition of a macaw.

In late prehistoric times the macaw, a large scarlet parrot, and its feathers were precious imports from Mexico's coastal jungles. As a consequence, many scholars emphasize that trade and religious ideas from Mexico shaped Rio Grande Indian society during the late A.D. 1400's. Others liken commerce between the two cultures to modern trade between Japan and the US—lots of Toyotas, but few effects on language, religion, or social patterns.

Either way, the fellow who painstakingly pecked that magnificent macaw onto a large, black boulder near the park's picnic shelter, unknowingly helped fuel a half-century of lively debate among archaeologists. No doubt, he would be vastly amused by it—and utterly shocked to look down from his artwork and see modern Albuquerque stretched out below him.

Petroglyph Park ought to be the favorite prehistoric spot in all of New Mexico. From it, one can see the world as it was—the world as it is now—and imagine the world as it might one day be.

It is a timeless, enduring place. Think of it! That giant macaw will still be there when you, your children, and your children's children have all passed into history. Who will stand there 600 years hence, gently touch the black rock, and wonder what the valley below was like in our own time?

Editor's Note: Dr. David Stuart is the author of Glimpses of the Ancient Southwest. He lives in Albuquerque and teaches Ancient Man in New Mexico at the University of New Mexico.

F.W. Woolworth opened his first store in Utica, N.Y. on Feb. 22, 1879, based on the principle of selling "nothing over 5 cents." The public did not take to the idea, and he moved to Pennsylvania.

VIDEO CORNER

Tips To Protect Your Videocassette

Dust, heat, moisture and impact constantly threaten sensitive videotape. Exposure to any of these elements can alter the tape's sensitive magnetic qualities and can hurt the viewing quality of your tapes or erase them completely. Worse yet, poor quality tapes can damage your video recorder. Protect your videocassettes and VCR by following these simple guidelines.

Your videotapes may last longer and play better if you heed these helpful hints.

- Keep videocassettes out of direct sunlight and away from water, dust and dirt.
- Because a videotape is easily susceptible to damage, it needs all the protective help it can get. The videocassette shell is intended to be a permanent cover for the delicate videotape. Under no circumstances should the user pry open this protective plastic covering.
- Keep your VCR in top shape to prevent tape damage. Your video dealer will be happy to show you how to properly clean and maintain your VCR.
- Take up any slack in the videotape before playing. Just turn the hubs in a clockwise direction until you feel the tension.
- Don't leave the videocassette in the VCR. Remove it when you stop watching it to prevent stretching, slack and wrinkling of the videotape.
- Don't use flimsy paper or cardboard sleeves for storage. They offer virtually no protection against dust or moisture. Always store your videocassettes in a rugged, sealed case made for the purpose, such as Amaray's Video-Bank.
- If the videocassettes have been stored in a place cooler or warmer than the viewing area, allow them to sit and acclimate to room temperature for at least 30 minutes before playing to prevent tape damage from condensation.
- Find a cool, dry, dust-free spot for storing your videocassettes.
- Stand them on end, with the empty hub above the loaded hub. This keeps the tape from warping.
- Magnetic fields can erase a videotape. Store videocassettes away from electronic equipment like TVs or stereo speakers.
- Play every tape twice a year to keep even seldom-viewed videocassettes in top form. This prevents permanent damage from an uneven rewind and keeps layers of the tape from sticking together.
