

COUNTY COMMISSION—

Road closure in question

By RUTH HAMMOND
Lincoln County Commissioners met in regular session December 3. They approved a liquor license transfer for Tinnie Corp., opened bids, approved resolutions, discussed road closures and heard from Ralph Dunlap, president of the Lincoln County Fair Board.

—The transfer of the dispenser liquor license was from Tinnie Mercantile Company to Tinnie Corporation, d-b-a Tinnie's Silver Dollar Restaurant. —Both bids for the annual fuel supply were rejected. One bid had a fixed price for fuel for the year and the other bid would have fluctuated with prices. New bid specifications will be established and the annual fuel supply will be re-bid. The estimated monthly requirement for Lincoln County is: 3,997 gallons of regular gasoline, 200 gallons unleaded gasoline, and 2,960 gallons of No. 2 Diesel. —Rust Tractor Company submitted the bid that was accepted for lease with option to purchase two articulated motorgraders. —The resolution designating polling places was approved. —The resolution for sale of county property was approved. The county had to adopt the resolution because a Cessna

Aircraft is valued at more than $5,000. The aircraft was seized by the sheriff's office after it had been wrecked while allegedly being used for transportation of a controlled substance. —Corona requested school bus route money. County Manager Suzanne Cox will coordinate the information.

—Ralph Dunlap president of the Lincoln County Fair Board, requested funds for a fence to be built to stop casual walking through during the Smokey Bear Stampede. Dunlap was accompanied by fair board members Hoot Gibson and Preston Stone. Material for the fence will cost $2,237.89 and all labor to install the fence would be provided by fair board members. Commissioners asked Dunlap to contact the Village of Capitan about the ownership of the property where the fence would be built and to make sure a street would not be closed improperly.

—Request by Jerry Carroll to amend the solid waste ordinance that was passed October 22, 1985, was tabled until the January meeting.

—Glen Ellison spoke to the Commissioners about the access to Water Canyon. The road was closed through Stephenson Ranch, Inc. by mutual agreement. Ellison said that the road in question had been in the courts since 1974.

The commissioners instructed Steve Sanders, county attorney, to research the records and give an opinion about the road at the December 31 meeting.

—Action on two subdivision plats was rescinded.

—After being told that Giffen Service, the low bidder for the heating and cooling maintenance contract, was not qualified because they did not have a license that covers boilers, commissioners re-awarded the contract to McKee Trane Service Agency, Inc. of El Paso.

—Stephenson Ranch, Inc. requested that a road be closed. The road on sections 14, 23, and 24 could not be closed because they are on state land. A road review committee was appointed to give recommendations on the road. Sections 25 and 26. Appointees were Frankie Silva, Israel Miranda and George Beaudry with Bud Payne as alternate.

Cyrus Rilee, Jr. board advisor for the county and commissioners that if the county has an election for the hospital bond issue, preparations must be made in advance. Legal notices must be filed and printed 45 to 60 days prior to an election registration for the election closes 42 days prior to the election, and no election can be held for 30 days after another election.

Rilee advised that the county bond no more than 75 percent of capacity. He also suggested that the land situation be settled before commissioners consider a bond election.

Commissioner Kenneth Nosker made the motion that Lincoln County call for a bond election for no more than two and a quarter million dollars for new hospital facilities with the understanding that Lincoln County owns the hospital and the land it sets on.

GARY HIGHTOWER IS . . .

'Outstanding Rancher'

By LINDA CALDWELL
Gary Hightower of Ancho has been selected Outstanding Rancher for 1985 by the New Mexico Association of Conservation Districts. The announcement was made during the Association's 39th Annual Convention recently held in Albuquerque.

According to Greg Haustler, District Conservationist with the Soil Conservation Service in Capitan, Gary was chosen for the prestigious award as a result of long-range efforts in the conservation area and the total ranch plan being implemented at Hightower Land and Cattle Company. In his profile of the Outstanding Rancher, Mr. Haustler wrote:

"The ranch is presently under a Long Term Agreement for development of fencing and water facilities for grazing management. Previously the ranch completed two Great Plains contracts which included considerable juniper and cholla control, erosion control, water development and fencing. Within the past four years the Hightowers have completed 37,291 feet of livestock pipeline, 8 water storage facilities and 38,281 feet of electric fences with cost share from the LTA and have completed 500 acres of cholla control, 80 acres of juniper control and 69,500 feet of electric fence without cost share. This has facilitated their grazing management program and the ranch now has four intensive short duration grazing systems on 28,790 acres and they recently began a cell grazing system on 1,630.

"Under this type of brush control and grazing management program, range conditions have improved all over the ranch. It now supports a well balanced plant community of cool and warm season grasses and desirable forbs and shrubs. The Hightower allotment on the Lincoln National Forest is a part of two of the short duration grazing systems and has received two permit increases in the past five years. The Forest Service district range conservationist reported that this allotment has the best range condition of any in the southwest region of the Forest Service."

In explaining the innovative cell grazing operation, Gary said that the idea is based on the Savory System and has been used in South Africa for about 20 years. In theory, a water source is strategically located in the center of a large, circular land area which is divided into wedges radiating from the center. By carefully studying the idea and discussing its applicability in South Central New Mexico with soil conservationists here, Gary decided to give the operation a try.

With his father, John Allen, brother Bill, and David Roper contributing to the effort, the men were able to complete in about six weeks the network of gates that encircles the water source. This network facilitates movement of cattle from one pasture to another. The job of fencing each 200 acre cell was made much easier by the use of solar-powered electric fences. Says Gary "We couldn't have done it without the electric fence; we could string about a mile a day; the fence posts are 75 feet apart." There are two strands carrying 4000 to 6000 volts when the cattle are in any particular cell.

The Hightowers are running 125 head of cattle in the experiment, which is double the expected productivity of the land. Although the original idea was developed to increase productivity, Gary emphasizes that he is implementing the plan to see how it will make more effective use of the land, because the cattle are rotated through a series of pastures, no land is wasted, grasses are not depleted, and the cattle get a fresh variety every few days in a different pasture.

Conservationist Haustler and range conservationist Pat Shaver with the Soil Conservation Service in Roswell have been carefully monitoring the operation. Conservation has long been of importance at Hightower Land and Cattle Company. Gary's grandfather, Bryan Hightower, homesteaded some 70 years ago, and preached conservation to his son and grandsons. Says Gary, "I just grew up hearing about conservation on the ranch; it's a job that's never done, you never get through with it." Bryan Hightower was recognized for his farsighted conservation efforts in 1964 with the Banker's Award for Outstanding Soil Conservation Achievement in the Carrizozo Soil and Water Conservation District. It was the first of its kind to be presented. John Allen, now president of Hightower Land and Cattle Company, continued along the path of conservation and in 1980 the company received the Excellence in Grazing Award from the Society of Range Management.

After graduating from Carrizozo High School in 1965 and receiving a BS in Mechanical Engineering from NMSU, Gary moved back to the ranch in 1973. He became active in conservation and has served on the Carrizozo SWCD Board for nine years, five of those as chairman. While on the board he initiated low interest loan and scholarship programs. He is currently vice-chairman of Region VI of New Mexico Association Conservation Districts. He is also county committeeman for the Farmers Home Administration and is in Farm Bureau. He, along with wife Beth and four daughters Lisa, Cheryl, Katie and Mollie, are all active in Ancho Community United Presbyterian Church. They also participate in a variety of community and school activities. In his profile, Mr. Haustler concluded by saying, "The Hightower Ranch is considered as a model among neighboring ranches for the type of conservation program which they carry out. Gary is deeply devoted to conservation and to the land."

LC REPUBLICAN WOMEN—

Lanelli assumes new post

Claiming their share of the spotlight, Lincoln County Republican women played important roles in the New Mexico Federated Republican Women's convention held in October in Albuquerque.

Yvonne Lanelli, who said that it was the "thrill of a lifetime" to introduce former US Senator Jack Schmitt to the convention, was elected third vice president of the state organization.

President of the local group Lois Aldrich gave the invocation at the general session and accepted second place in the state membership contest for the Lincoln County organization.

Also attending the convention were county Republican chairperson Pat Hume, Corinne Law, and Emmadair Jones.

Aldrich, Lanelli, and Law reported on the convention at the meeting of the local group at its meeting Nov. 26.

Noting that there were eight Republican gubernatorial candidates and seven candidates for lieutenant governor at the convention, Law said, "It was very impressive to hear all the candidates and to see them all together."

In other business, club members voted to participate in the formation of a scholarship in the name of Peggy Traver, former NMFRW president. Members of Republican women's groups throughout the state are requested to donate $1 each to the fund. Lincoln County members may send checks to Fran Sidens, Box 863, Carrizozo, 88301. Barbara Alcorn, hospitality chairperson, announced that the annual Christmas party would be held Dec. 13 at the Swiss Chalet. Social hour will begin at 6:30 p.m. with dinner at 7:30 p.m. Members voted to collect a donation for the Home Health Services of Lincoln County at the party. Because of the Christmas celebration, the December meeting is cancelled, with the next regular meeting set for January.

State Congressman Ben Hall was named the winner of a drawing for the Christmas wreath which was donated to the club by Nettie Hug.

Further information about the Christmas party and the next meeting is available from Aldrich at 354-2366 or Jackie Rawlins at 257-2610.

A patent for the invention of a coffee percolator was awarded to James Nason of Franklin, Massachusetts in 1865.

ADVENT CUSTOM

The word "Kristkindl" means "Christ Child." In this German custom, people prepare for the coming of the Christ Child by seeing and serving Him in others.

Each person places his or her name on a slip of paper. Names are collected in a jar or box, then each person draws a name. The name drawn is kept secret, but that person becomes one's Kristkindl for Advent.

Each day people do something special for their Kristkindls, but it might be something that will not reveal that they have their Kristkindl's name.

SOMETHING SPECIAL

The "something special" can be a kindness, a sacrifice or prayer offered for the person.

Each week people write an anonymous note to their Kristkindl telling him or her of acts and prayers offered. At Christmas, when the final note is written, the senders sign their name to let their Kristkindls know who they are. Sometimes small gifts are also given to the Kristkindl on Christmas.

FRIENDSHIP PROGRAM

A great many foreign students attend Socorro's Institute of Mining and Technology. The school has formulated a Friendship Families Program, which Margie Hobby and husband signed up for. At the introductory meeting, it was explained that most of these students experience loneliness and anxiety, coming into a country with such different customs, language, far from home and loved ones; whereby they strongly desire friendships with American families.

After the initial meeting, they were paired up with a student from Malaysia and another from Taiwan. Chen, from Taiwan, came to Sunday dinner at the Hobby home recently. He enjoyed the enchiladas without chile (?). Now he insists he will prepare an authentic Chinese dinner for the Hubbys.

"Chen is a very entertaining person. He and my husband share a love of photography and have the same model camera," writes Margie. "Chen was able to teach us some things about our telefoto lens. We are certainly looking forward to the friendships we will develop with these students."

HUNTER'S EXCUSES

Forgot my license...couldn't see the rack...felt sorry for the deer...too much rain...forgot my ammo...sun in my eyes...gun didn't fire...too foggy...slipped in the mud...too drunk the night before...deer ducked...sights were off...(if all else fails): deer was smarter than me.

What was your hunter's excuse? What was your excuse?

CHRISTMAS SPIRIT

Obie and Dorothy Simmons kicked off their Christmas season this past Saturday by attending a Christmas show with their son and his family.

The Simmons spent Thanksgiving Day and weekend with their son, O. B. and family at Anthony. The Saturday following Turkey Day the families attended the theatre show.

Shirley and Bobby Whitlock of Hatch joined the Simmons' at Anthony for Thanksgiving Day dinner. Shirley is Obie and Dorothy's daughter.

O. B. is a teacher at Gadsden High. He also preaches at a Baptist Mission located on the outskirts of El Paso.

Sunday evening visitors in the home of Obie and Dorothy were Ralph, Helen and Sherrie Porter of Corona. Ralph is Dorothy's brother.

A QUILTER IS...

Do you know someone who quilts?

A quilter is... Someone who assiduously clips coupons and hunts for bargains at the supermarket, but buys untold yards of fabric, regardless of price.

- Someone who pays to have her ironing done, but thinks nothing of standing for hours, pressing 20 yards of fabric for a quilt.

- Someone who has not been able to balance her checkbook since October, but can figure the yardage requirements for a log cabin quilt and have just enough left over to make a pincushion.

- Someone who enjoys sewing a quilt, but hides the mending until the garments are either outgrown or out of style.

- Someone who is blind to cobwebs hanging from the ceiling, dustballs under the bed, or a sinkful of dirty dishes, but can thread a size 10 quilting needle in the dark.

Inside the Capitol

By FRED McCAFFREY

SANTA FE — The Democratic leader in the state's House of Representatives is trying to tell Republicans how to conduct themselves. You can judge for yourself how likely he is to be successful in that endeavor.

Republicans aren't famous for taking their clues on how to proceed politically from Democrats, even ones as willing to give advice as Representative Dick Minzner.

What he's telling them is that no one should ever stoop to practicing guilt by association, as Republicans might be tempted to do when so many Democrats are being found guilty. Please don't condemn our whole party, Minzner asks, because some of its members have gotten into trouble.

Unfortunately for Minzner, and for other Democrats as well, human nature is such that we frail mortals sometimes fall into the trap he wishes us to avoid. You can be relatively sure, for instance, that if it were Republicans who had been caught with their hands in the cookie jar, Democrats would be trumpeting the fact from the rooftops—and not making many fine distinctions then about not blaming all for the faults of the few.

Isn't it too bad that politicians seldom deliver these exhortations to high virtue unless they are likely to be hurt personally by the vices they so suddenly deplore?

PAST AND FUTURE: Like all House members, Minzner, if he wants to stay in office, must run for re-election next year.

That's what has him worried—that there may be a massive anti-Democratic backlash, as indeed there may be, as a result of the growing number of Dems being indicted or found guilty.

Latest one of those is Earl Harley, who plea-bargained his way out of a charge that probably would have been embezzlement, because, he said, it was just not worth it to defend himself. Hartley joins three other Democrats with high-ranking state jobs who have stood before judges on serious charges since Toney Anaya was sworn into office.

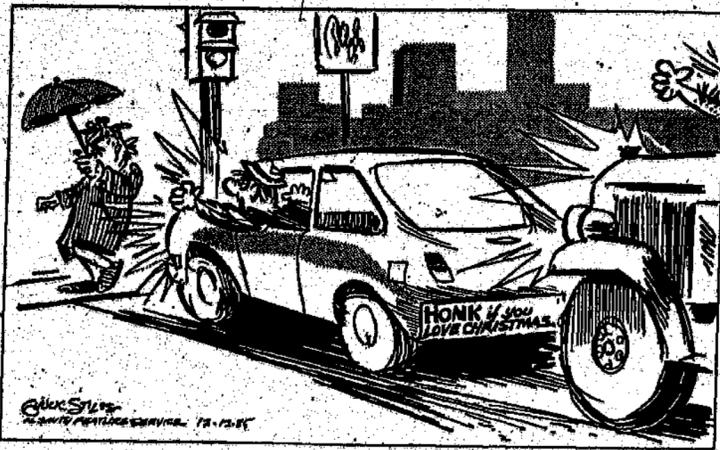

It's the person last named that Democrats are worrying about. Some of them hope they can deflect a future blow from the Governor himself by their present accusations about "witch hunts."

To that charge it might be answered that US Attorney Lutz and Attorney General Bardacke, if they are witch-hunting, seem to be catching some witches. Their batting average so far is .750, with one of those accused still to stand trial.

IRONY: There is also a historical footnote to all this set of charges and counter-charges. It is that Toney Anaya, himself, when he was attorney general, was roundly denounced by members of his own party, just as Bardacke is at present, for "persecuting" Democrats when he was only prosecuting them.

In point of fact, he made frequent references to that activity when he was campaigning for higher office, citing it as one of the proofs of his own integrity. He hasn't reacted notably well to the practice, however, now that the shoe is on the other foot.

One of those deploring the "witch hunt", especially as it applies to Anaya, is his personal attorney, Jim Brandenburg. He too was once a prosecutor, as District Attorney for the Second Judicial District. You can be sure when he makes such comments, he knows better. Maybe he's only mounting a premature defense to charges he believes are still in the offing.

Watch Over Washington

Whatever happened to Ferraro's promise?

NEW YORK—Remember in August of last year when the Democratic Party's nominee for Vice President of the United States held a nationally televised news conference?

And do you remember that she was asked about the Zaccaro real estate firm of which she was vice president and leading shareholder — and why it was renting space to the Mafia-operated pornographic organization called Star Distributors?

Well, in case you may possibly have forgotten this scandal, it surely helped lead the Mondale-Ferraro campaign into one of the worst defeats in history.

Geraldine Ferraro (who hints that she MAY run for US Senator against Senator Al D'Asto) at that time responded to this question about her landlord of Mafia porn by assuring the nation that:

a) She and husband John couldn't break the lease (for which many of us had a two-word comment: "Ho, Ho.")

And Geraldine also noted: b) This sleazy firm (which distributes Screw and Whips And Chains as well as material dealing with incest and bestiality) will surely be evicted when the lease expires in January of 1986.

When I asked Geraldine about this on the phone recently, she replied courteously but firmly:

"I don't know anything about it. That's my husband's business. I am no longer an officer or shareholder."

When I asked about her nationally televised assurance that this lease would not be renewed, Geraldine repeated her statement that she knows nothing about this because this is her husband's business.

So I called Star Distributors at their office on Lafayette Street in Brooklyn where they rent from the Zaccaro real estate firm. When I identified myself and stated my question, an unidentified female voice replied with audible anxiety: "I have nothing to say — I don't know anything about it!" and then she hung up.

Is this campaign promise — to evict the Mafia pornographers — going to be kept? In the almost total absence of any major media interest in this scandal, Accuracy In Media's Reed Irvine in Washington reports that he too tried to obtain information about this — with the following results:

1) The Ferraro-Zaccaro real estate office told him to contact Ralph Capobianco who, they said, manages the building at 200 Lafayette St., which houses the porn operation.

2) When Irvine reached Capobianco and asked about this, Mr. Capobianco replied that he had nothing to say — and hung up.

3) So, the persistent Irvine telephoned Star Distributors. An unidentified female voice informed him that she had nothing to say because she doesn't want to get into trouble.

Having been unable to obtain any information from Ferraro-Zaccaro, or from their porn tenant, Irvine noted that Geraldine was scheduled to address the National Press Club in Washington on September 20th.

Such guest speakers nationally broadcast over National Public Radio. But in striking contrast to question periods by reporters all over Washington of people from the President to the Secretary of State, the National Press Club demands that all questions be submitted in writing in advance.

This gives the President of the National Press Club — who currently is David Hess — a chance to censor any question he deems improper or embarrassing. Irvine submitted two different written questions asking Geraldine Ferraro if this Mafia porn distributor is going to be evicted as a tenant — as she had promised the American people. But these questions just never got asked by Club President Hess. Mr. Hess told Irvine that he was just getting to questions about Geraldine's finances and her mob porno tenants when time ran out. Anyone who can believe that should have no trouble with the Tooth Fairy or the Easter Bunny.

Irvine notes that such a mysterious time problem seems to have afflicted Time itself — Time magazine that is. For after Irvine asked them about Time's Henry Grunwald, Ray Cave and Richard Duncan and their eight-page soft-ball interview with the Soviet Union's Mikhail Gorbachev, in Irvine's words:

"They were just going to ask Gorbachev some tough questions when their two-hour, 12-minute interview ended."

Somehow, and for some reason or other, these Time editors just never got around to asking "Smiling Mike" Gorbachev about Afghanistan; or about Andrei Sakharov; or about Korean Airline Flight 007.

"Mr. Charm from the Kremlin" must think that these three Time editors are easier to handle than his Tass people.

As for the National Press Club, if you are a Democrat and a woman who ran for high office — even as a landlady for Screw, Whip and Chains and the like, you'll get a free ride. And if anyone like Greg Fossebal of The Wall Street Journal tries to press her to answer the question at a news conference, they'll boo him.

Letters TO THE EDITOR

EDITOR—You want to know why the news media is rapidly losing its credibility with the American public? It is because the wire services and far too many syndicated writers are not telling it like it is.

Take a typical example: a syndicated writer for a big city newspaper writes 22 column inches, with a picture, on South Africa. His report comes down hard against the policy of the South African government, and he comes down hard against "apartheid."

Never once does he mention terror, terrorists, or terrorism. Yet, in that same newspaper, on a back page, a group called the South African Institute of Race Relations is reported as saying that 834 people, "mostly blacks and mixed-colored," have died in riots and from lynchings.

What brought about those 834 deaths? Some were killed by police trying to maintain law and order; we read of 16 who were killed by a bomb; there were some who were drenched in gasoline and burned alive. In short, the terrorists are hard at work spreading death.

Was it apartheid that killed those people, or was it terrorists? Apartheid may be deplorable, but it takes terrorists

When the news media tells the truth, the whole truth, when it denounces terrorism and terrorists, and when it fully exposes those sponsors of terrorism, then the news media may gain public credibility.

Until then, it does not deserve it.

Capitan News

by MARGARET RENCH

There was four-tenths of an inch of moisture in rain last Saturday morning, followed by large snowflakes which were water when they hit the ground. Nice but cold. Eleven degrees was the reading Monday morning at 7:15.

Please: All friends, neighbors and citizens of Capitan in the city limits, read this item and get the spirit of Christmas. For this will give cheer to all travelers. Many here can remember when our spirits were high and the delight and joy we had until we were requested to save electricity. Since then has not been the same. Lets get the spirit and happiness this season. The Capitan Chamber of Commerce is sponsoring an outside residential Christmas lighting and decorating contest, in the city limits only. The first prize is a set of three Smokey Bear Medallions worth $50, second prize $25; and third prize $15. Judging will be on Saturday, Dec. 21. To enter, you must get an application from any of the three mentioned - Kay Strickland at the Capitan-Carrizozo Natural Gas Office, Bonnie McEuen at B & L Pizza and Norman Renfro at the Smokey Bear Restaurant.

Come forward and get the enthusiasm. Its Christmas, we will make many others happy as they are passing thru. Get interested and excited.

Congratulations to Carol Morgan, a graduate of Capitan High School now attending New Mexico Tech in Socorro. Carol has been selected to receive the "Herkenhoff Scholarship" in the amount of $3,000. This scholarship has the largest monetary value of any individual award at Tech.

The Smokey Bear Museum had 1,934 registered visitors in the month of November. The last six days there were 404. Isn't that great! We are so proud and happy of that interest.

The Jr. Rodeo Club Trophy is now on display at the Capitan Mart. The Jr. Rodeo Club annual awards will be given Dec. 14.

Our apologies to Leslie Guck, Merry Sue Hogan and Joan Leslie who were also named to "Who's Who Among American High School Students" but were accidentally overlooked last week. We are very proud of you.

The 85-86 basketball season starts this weekend. Remember to attend the Capitan-Carrizozo basketball game in Carrizozo, beginning at 4 p.m. Lets cheer the Tigers on to a winning season.

The Capitan Chamber of Commerce held their meeting Dec. 2 at the B & L Pizza place.

The Capitan Roundtable Club enjoyed a delicious luncheon at the Wortley Hotel. The food and service were excellent. All members were present except Frankie Tom who was ill but greatly missed. Hattie Phillips granddaughter, Nancy Humble, was a guest. After the luncheon the group drove to the Harriet McGinnis home for their business meeting and social time.

The nominating committee, Alice Traylor and Harriet McGinnis, presented the slate of officers for 1986. They were accepted by acclamation. They are as follows: President Maureen Sullivan; vice president Amolene McIntosh; secretary-treasurer Winifred Cozzens; reporter Bessie Jones; and historian Mary Dean.

It was decided to discontinue the Christmas baskets this year and instead, buy gifts for the men and women of the Ruidoso Rest Home, who might otherwise not receive a gift. Following the meeting, they enjoyed a luscious dessert made by Amolene McIntosh. The Christmas party will be at Mary Deans'.

David Stuart's "NEW MEXICO'S HERITAGE"

The willows along San Antonio Creek are already resigned to an early winter but their naked branches glow like copper ornaments in today's perfect autumn sunlight. We have come to Paa-ko, northernmost of the Indian villages which once kept watch over high valleys east of the Sandia and Manzano Mountains.

My companion is Donna Jones. Assigned to do a story about archeologists she asked to go on a short field trip. What luck! My new Toyota sedan, purchased to replace an ageing pick-up, recently took one youthful shot at Highway 44 and died at Bloomfield.

Donna needed an interview just when I needed a ride to keep up with my columns. At first being "interviewed" made me nervous. Twenty years an anthropologist and I was getting a dose of my own medicine! Besides Paa-ko is not a "tourist" site—no signs, museum, reconstructed kivas, or fancy brochures embellish it.

But Paa-ko is grand in a private way. Immense man-made hills of clay and sandstone rubble rise up toward the Sandias. Lush grasses and cholla cactus grow in rooms fallen 400 years ago. Several of Paa-ko's huge circular kivas, excavated in the 1930's, still are impressive weed-filled craters.

Donna immediately "felt" the warmth of all the living that had gone on here and became excited. I relaxed. I love Paa-ko because it still has warmth and vitality.

Founded in the A.D. 1200's, its first occupants used a pottery style known as Santa Fe Black-on-white. This pottery was common at many sites around Bandelier National Monument at a time when folks built huge villages in forested upland areas.

Those that grew and survived the severe droughts of the 13th Century's last decades were typically on the moister east-facing mountain slopes and near reliable streams. San Antonio creek sustained Paa-ko through centuries of harvest years—both good and bad.

More huge housemounds were built in the A.D. 1300's and 1400's, so the village eventually had many multistoried "roomblocks" and several huge plazas. Of the thousands of villages founded in New Mexico's central highlands after A.D. 1150, Paa-ko was one of 134 still inhabited when Juan de Onate colonized New Mexico in 1598.

Historians and archeologists argue over just which Indian language was spoken at Paa-ko, for Spanish records are unclear and no one has determined where the village's survivors went after it was abandoned in the A.D. 1600's.

Skeletons excavated from Paa-ko have recently been compared to those found at Tijeras Pueblo by the University of New Mexico's summer field schools. Sophisticated statistical comparisons of skeletal features strongly suggest that inhabitants of Tijeras and Paa-ko were not descendants of Mesa Verde or Chaco Canyon. Therefore, there is a real possibility that Paa-ko was founded by "Pico" speaking peoples migrating north from the old Mogollon country south of Belen.

Other analyses of skeletal materials tell us that life was hard at Paa-ko. Infant mortality was a staggering 31.5 percent between birth and three years of age. Comparable figures for contemporary America are just under two percent.

Infants often died of diarrhea, complicated by severe iron deficiency. Paa-ko's population depended heavily on iron-poor corn as a dietary mainstay, while iron-rich wild game had apparently become scarce by the A.D. 1500's. To the north, Pecos Pueblo's buffalo hunts and trade with Plains Indians largely prevented iron deficiency and infant mortality was lower.

The average Paa-koan could expect to reach 37.6 years of age, compared to 73.3 for a modern American. Still Paa-koans were survivors. For 400 years they maintained a village which exceeded the size of many of New Mexico's modern towns. In its hey-day Paa-ko was certainly larger than Chama, Cuba, Capitan, Hagerman or Tularosa.

Paa-ko is not one of New Mexico's most famous ruins, but its gorgeous location inspired beauty in local handicrafts.

C'ZOZO SCHOOL BOARD—

Teacher hired

The Carrizozo School Board met for a special meeting on Nov. 26 to consider employing a mid school science teacher and to consider a maintenance contract for the computer in the administrator's office. The computer was bought last year at a cost of $46,000 and is no longer under warranty. The proposed maintenance contract would cost the school district approximately $4,900 a year. Without the maintenance contract, the school will have to pay $13,000 for the main frame and $2,000 for each terminal if they should happen to break down.

Know your tree

LAS CRUCES — Cut trees will appear in stores and sales lots at Thanksgiving or in some locations the first week of December, according to Fred Widmoyer, horticulture specialist for the New Mexico State University Cooperative Extension Service. Some of these trees have been cut for one or two months if they have been shipped from Canada or other more-northern regions of the United States.

Most New Mexico trees, whether collected from the wild or cut from plantations, will be considerably fresher, Widmoyer says.

There are several ways to determine the freshness of a tree, the Extension specialist says. One way is to bend the needles. If the needles bend rather than break, the tree is generally fresh. Another way to measure freshness is to bounce the stump end of the tree firmly on the ground or other firm surface. If this bouncing causes many needles to fall, the tree may have dried out too much, and you should select another, Widmoyer advises.

It is natural to have some needles collect among the tree branches due to the shedding of inner needles in the fall, notes the specialist. This is normal, in all pines and is not a sign of an old or dead tree.

Care for your selected tree as carefully as you would care for cut flowers, says Widmoyer. Let the tree remain outdoor or on a cool porch or patio, in the shade, until you are ready to decorate. If possible, bring the tree into a partially-heated area, such as a basement, garage or porch, the night before decorating.

Make a fresh straight cut on the trunk, removing at least one inch, and place the tree in fresh water. Trees will use about two quarts of water per day. If you allow the water level to drop below the trunk end, a seal will form and the tree will not absorb water.

As long as the tree keeps using water, it will be fire resistant. Check the water level frequently and add water as necessary. Use of small or blinking electric lights reduce the demand for water and keeps the tree from becoming a fire hazard. Turn off the lights whenever you leave home, Widmoyer suggests.

PFK meets tonight

People For Kids will meet Thursday, Dec. 5 at 7:00 p.m. in the Carrizozo Schools District Conference Room. Main topic of discussion will be a report of the State Education Reform plans by Mr. Dennis Sidebottom. This should be a program of interest to parents of all age groups.

PFK extends its thanks to the following businesses for their generosity in donating money for "walking signs" during the Halloween Parade: King's Food Mart, United New Mexico Bank, Phillips 66, Monte Vista Texaco, Zamora Well Drilling, 4 Winds Motel, Gift Gallery, Shop Rite, Nick's Auto Repair, J. ## Heritage . . .

(Con't from P. 6)
The dark rim of Sandia Crest above the village and a magical light washed over the entire hillside like a slide show. For a few precious minutes every tiny pottery fragment and stone flake was visible.
Suddenly Donna stopped, the first to discover a fragment of scarce, early Santa Fe Black-on-white pottery. She touched it, treasured it a moment, then reverently put it back just as she found it. She would have made a great archeologist. Archeology is a science, but it is easy to become too clinical. After all, Puebloan society is ten times older and twice as tough as our own. That alone deserves reverence.
