C'ZOZO TOWN COUNCIL—

Sunday liquor issue to be on ballot

By RUTH HAMMOND

The Carrizozo Board of Trustees met January 28 and adopted an Amendment of Election Resolution to include the following question on the March 4 ballot, "Shall Sunday sales of alcoholic beverages by the drink for consumption on the licensed premises of licensees be allowed in this local option district?"

A petition had been presented to the Secretary of State with the required signatures to put the issue on the ballot. The Secretary of State then sent the resolution to the town of Carrizozo for the amendment to be adopted.

In other business, Rec Center manager Bill Lynch discussed prior outstanding bills with the board. Lynch said the telephone number was being changed to 648-2871 at the Rec Center. Trustees agreed to a special meeting with Mr. Bridges, lessee of the Rec Center, and Lynch to discuss the outstanding bills.

—It was announced that town clerk Carol Schlarb was pictured in "The Municipal Reporter" as a member of the freshman class of the Municipal Clerk Certification Institute. She attended in October 1985. The three-year course covers subjects including fundamentals of supervision, crisis management, ethics and administrative law, interpersonal relations, parliamentary procedure, election administration, types and format of ordinances and resolutions, conflict resolution, and time management.

—After a 24 minute executive session, trustees accepted the resignation from Deputy Clerk Albert LaFave and hired Margaret S. Lueras as Deputy Clerk.

—Trustees agreed to reimburse town employees for books, tuition, and mileage for attending job related college classes in Ruidoso.

—Trustees agreed to not sell a portion of 16th Street due to future expansion plans.

—The bid from Frank Olmstead, CPA, for audit of Community Development Block Grant funds for 3rd Street was accepted.

—Delinquent water bills were discussed and trustees decided to disconnect the water for users of all accounts that were not paid by the 29th of January. In the future, water will be disconnected if an account is not paid by the 20th of each month and a $50 re-connect fee will be charged.

—Handicap requirements for city hall were discussed. The city building will need one bathroom with a larger door to provide access for a wheelchair, a counter is to be lower, and work is needed on the handicapped parking space.

—Chief of Police C. A. "Choncho" Morales requested compensation for holiday time for his department. Action was tabled on a decision to check with other towns to see how they handle it.

—Trustee Bob Hemphill addressed the rumors of his supposed plans if he should be elected Mayor at the March 4 election. He said, "The rumors are nonsense. The mayor does not have that much power. The mayor can only hire employees with the approval of the trustees." Mayor Harold Garcia agreed with him.

Model computer program in C'zozo

Carrizozo High School Computer Science received a Secondary School Recognition Award from the National Institute of Education and is listed in the publication, "A Networking Tool for the New Basics: Directory for the Southwest".

The Directory contains a listing of schools and programs from the six-state region currently served by the Southwest Educational Development Laboratory, including Arkansas, Louisiana, Mississippi, New Mexico, Oklahoma, and Texas.

All of the schools listed were selected through a national-level process for the recognition of exemplary programs in basic skill instruction, including the "new" basic of computer science.

The criteria to determine which schools to include were high. The Secretary of Education, who announces recipients of The Secondary School Recognition Program, cites schools that exhibit, among other qualities, "clear academic goals; high expectations for students; rewards and incentives for students; regular and frequent monitoring of student progress; teacher efficacy; rewards and incentives for teachers; concentration on academic learning time; well-articulated curriculum; and evaluation for instructional improvement."

Indicators of success include student performance on standard achievement tests and on minimum competency tests, students awards in academic competition, awards for outstanding school programs and teaching, and post-school success either in high school for former junior high students or in college, the military or employment for high school graduates.

Six schools in New Mexico received the Secondary School

Recognition Award. The other five schools were in Albuquerque.

Bob Hemphill is the instructor for the computer science program in the Carrizozo Schools.

BEER AND POT

Got your attention? OK. The following are excerpts from The Washington Post - "The Pot and Beer Phenomenon": "Close your eyes and hear the party sounds: talk of the PGA tournament, summer vacations, gossip about absent friend...

...requests for another Lager, Strohs, Miller's...the smell of pot and a nudge from a guest passing the bong. But open your eyes before 11 p.m. or you'll be all alone. You see, the guests are only 14-17 years old and they have a curfew." (The party is at a dark Arlington school ground.)

One youngster interviewed said: "We also have parties at people's home, not just at the school. We go to houses where parents don't care if you drink or smoke or to houses where the parents aren't home."

"Most parents interviewed are either ignorant of their children's habits or are ignoring them, most probably the latter. Parents generally say they are aware their children have experimented with pot and take a drink now and then. But few, if they realize it, are willing to admit the realities."

SMALL TOWN AMERICANS

"Whenever I visit a small town, I feel a twinge of envy for people who have known one another since childhood and found a way to stay on, marry, have children and grow old in familiar surroundings. Small towns make me feel at home, somehow, in the natural center of the world, without any good reason to leave." - "On the Road" with Charles Kuralt.

I enjoy small-town living. I reside in Carrizozo by choice. It's such a friendly little town. I was raised here. During football, volleyball, basketball and track seasons we (the community members) sit side by side to cheer for our favorite team - the Grizzlies.

On Sunday we all go our separate ways to 'worship' at one Catholic Church, six Protestant churches or just into the living room in front of the TV set. This is America. Everyone has their own opinions: about religion, politics and nationalities. (By the way, town elections are around the corner.)

Do Carrizozo teens (Anglo, Spanish and other) gather on weekends to drink alcohol? Are adults the hosts or hostesses at these parties? Are these teens age 14 through 19?

Do the parents of some of these children include Carrizozo's and the surrounding area's most respected citizens or are these under age drinkers just the kids of riff-raff?

Do I have 'stupid' written all over my face?

AROUND THE NATION

Alcoholism among adolescents has reached epidemic proportions. Whether by itself or in combination with pills and pot, it now afflicts many youngsters. Excerpts from various publications show that around the nation, booze, pot and teens make the headlines:

"In Washington's suburbs and throughout the nation, junior and senior high school students are drinking beer, wine and hard liquor at a younger age and in greater quantities than their parents did, making teen-age drinking a new, serious social problem."

"The supervisor of the intake division of juvenile court in Montgomery County, said a parent's first reaction to a report that their child has been drinking is "to cover". If that doesn't work, they blame peer groups, and finally, in some instances, they take positive action." (The Washington Post - "If Booze is Not in the House, It's Just Around the Corner.")

"...getting figures on kids who are alcoholics is impossible because few will admit to it at that early age," said the director of a halfway house for alcoholic men. "Only when they reach their late teens and twenties will they admit they have a problem."

He prefers to view a potential alcoholic as one who has to drink to get comfortable in an uncomfortable situation. A full-fledged alcoholic, he said, is someone who lets alcohol interfere with his home life, job or health. (Courier Journal, and Times - "Drinking...More Teens Believed to be 'Hooked' on Alcohol")

"Boisterous, hard-drinking junior and senior high school students have taken over the parking lots of many shopping centers and drive-in restaurants in Montgomery and Prince Counties for nightly beer and wine drinking parties."

"The rowdy teen-aged drinkers are a nuisance to merchants and some of their patrons. Behind the wheel of a car or with a weapon in hand during a drunken argument, they are capable of unthinking violence." (The Washington Post - "Parking Lots Are Drinking Hangouts")

"Many of the deaths and injuries are caused by the under-21 group, and arrests of young people for drunken driving have skyrocketed since states began lowering the drinking age from 21."

"But parents seem relatively unconcerned about their children's drinking. In fact, children who drink are often simply following the example set by their fathers and mothers."

Teenagers know that their parents make scenes if they catch them smoking marijuana. But if the youngsters come home drunk, most of them are merely sent quietly to bed."

"Often when we report to a parent that his kid isn't acting the way he should and smells of liquor," says a Miami drug-education coordinator, "the reaction is 'Thank God! I thought he was on drugs.' Actually, many teenagers use both marijuana and alcohol." (Times - "Alcoholism: New Victims, New Treatment.")

Ernest V. Joiner

NOW that we are required by state law to ply New Mexico highways trussed up in seat belts like a Christmas turkey, it is fitting to admonish the meddlers in Santa Fe who thrust such delirium into our personal and private lives. Seat belts may be just dandy for those who want them, but what arrogance to force them on people who do not! Another example of this mania the legislature has for intruding into our personal lives is the 55-mile speed limit. It was created, we were told, to save gasoline in a world shortage—and to save lives. Now we have a worldwide oil glut and no need to save gasoline. If the speed limit has saved a single life, name it. Still, we must pay lip service to a stupid, outmoded law to which people pay little attention. Back to those seat belts. A year hence we will learn that welding ourselves to two tons of hurtling iron and plastic has saved no lives on state highways. But we do have a new law and isn't that wonderful?

MEDDLERS are people who don't mind their own business because they don't have any mind or have any business, like the cabal in Santa Fe that has a God-like compulsion to regulate every facet of a person's private life. The latest invasion of personal privacy is the emasculating of the "happy hour" at bars and taverns. Happy meddlers in the Alcoholic Beverage Control Commission have decreed (without asking you, or you) that you can no longer be served two drinks for the price of one. (You can still buy two pizzas for the price of one—until some joker finds that two pizzas cause dizziness that triggers auto accidents.)

A FURTHER ABC idiocy is that advertising drink specials is prohibited, surely an unconstitutional piece of flummery that will be challenged by lean and hungry lawyers. Try this for logic: It is now illegal to have more than two unconsumed drinks on your tavern table at one time! If you want six drinks you must order them no more than two at a time. All this is done, according to ABC honcho Abe Rodriguez, because New Mexico leads the nation in alcohol-related auto accidents. "I need a workable solution to stop this slaughter that's going on out there," he pontificates. Fine. Then enforce existing laws dealing with drunk drivers, which makes more sense than abolishing booze or automobiles or both.

THERE is no law that requires an imbibor to do his drinking at a bar or tavern. Rather than endure endless restrictions, accept still another invasion of privacy, and carry a medic along to administer frequent checks for safe alcohol blood levels, consider two alternatives to such indignity. He can put a gallon of booze in the back of his pickup and seek its solace at whatever time, place and in what quantity he damn well pleases; or, he can drink all he wants at home where it is still permitted, and without ABC gendarmes peeking through his windows to count his drinks.

PREDICTION: One year from imposition of this governmental foolishness, alcohol-related traffic accidents will have increased by at least 2 percent in this state. When this happens Rodriguez and his fellow meddlers will have enough egg on their faces to compose a state-sized omelette.

BEFORE you are introduced to another new and widely-acclaimed "hero of the people," let us go back to the Jan. 17, 1959 issue of the New York Times and read what Herbert Matthews, the Times' Latin American specialist, had to say about the emerging "Abraham Lincoln of Cuba," Dr. Fidel Castro. Matthews glowed as follows: "The hunted young man (Castro) who for three hours whispered his passionate hopes and ideals into my ear in the gloomy jungle depths of the Sierra Maestra at dawn on Feb. 17, 1957, is now the chief power in Cuba. In the eyes of nearly all his compatriots, Dr. Fidel Castro is the greatest hero that their history has known." Six months later, Matthews bubbled: "This is not a communist revolution in any sense of the word, and there are no communists in positions of control . . . Premier Castro is not only not communist but decidedly anti-communist."

NOW meet Nelson Mandela, who has spent the last 20 years in Pollsmoor Prison in South Africa. The same media that sold us Communist Castro are now presenting Mandela as the "Abraham Lincoln of South Africa." Mandela was arrested in 1962 when they found him in possession of 210,000 hand grenades, 48,000 land mines and 50 tons of high explosives. Also in his possession, and in his own handwriting, was a document entitled "How To Be A Good Communist." Mandela was imprisoned for sabotage and revolutionary action against the South African government. He admitted his guilt.

RECENTLY, the US Congress, largely because of media pressure, petitioned South Africa's Botha government to release Mandela, head of the African National Congress, a Marxist organization. Mandela was then promised freedom by Premier Botha if he would refrain from further revolutionary activities. He refused.

AMONG Congressman immortalizing Mandela and calling for overthrow of the South Africa government are such blacks as Ron Dellums (CA), Gus Savage (IL), John Conyers (MI), Walter Fauntroy (DC) and George Crockett (MD). These worthies are joined by such outfits as the National Lawyers Guild, US Peace Council, National Council of Churches, Maryknoll Sisters and dozens of other radical groups whose hatred of America is well-known and documented.

MANDELA'S criminal activities are matters of record and are undisputed. He admits to all charges. Listen to this terrorist, trained in Algeria, as he addressed the court on April 20, 1964: "I do not deny that I planned sabotage. We felt that planned destruction of power plants and interference with rail and telephone communications would tend to scare away capital from the country." Further: "We Communist Party members are the most advanced revolutionaries in modern history . . . The enemy must be crushed and wiped out from the face of the earth before a communist world can be realized."

THIS is the man the 13 US Senators and scores of Congressmen want freed from prison in South Africa so he can pursue his dream of death and destruction. This is the man that Amnesty International refused to list as a prisoner of conscience or as a political prisoner because "He was sentenced to life imprisonment in 1964 after acknowledging in court his participation in acts of sabotage as a leader of the African National Congress." This is also the man who has prompted US colleges, universities, pension funds, businesses and governments not to do business with any company doing business in South Africa, and to refuse investment there. This is a man who is proud of

Watch Over Washington

By LESTER KINSOLVING

"Is West Point worth maintaining?" asks former cadet Schemmer

By LES KINSOLVING — WASHINGTON — The United States Military Academy at West Point has hatched many an eagle and launched a multitude of stars. That can be seen in the long roll of West Point graduates who are bird colonels and those who have earned one, two, three, four or five stars. "Much of the history we teach at West Point was made by these we taught," as the poster puts it.

But, like all human institutions, the Point has occasionally laid an egg. One of these is Lucian Truscott IV, son of one of Gen. George Patton's most effective combat commanders. After the Vietnam War, young Truscott left the Army. He began writing articles for the military-hating "Village Voice." And he wrote a dreadful potboiler called "Dress Gray." This novel features cadet buggery and homosexual murder, with a plebe's body found floating in Lake Popolopen. Mercifully, author Truscott did NOT suggest that any cadets were into bestiality with the Army mules.

Benjamin Schemmer of West Point's class of 1954 is nowhere near as low as Lucien. But he is editor of an obscure periodical called Armed Forces Journal — which, he is apparently determined, shall make waves at any price.

In this endeavor, Schemmer lampooned Secretary of the Navy John Lehman for his goal of rebuilding the Navy to 600 ships. Lehman laughed at Schemmer — and after this year's upset in football of Army by Navy, Schemmer worked for two hours as Lehman's butler in payment of a bet.

Schemmer has recently turned on his alma mater. "Has West Point outlived its usefulness?" he asked — and then proceeded to answer his rhetorical question.

These answers include questions, such as: "Why should we pay over $40,000 a year for each of 4,417 cadets to study courses they could just as easily, almost as comfortably and far more cheaply take in ROTC at Harvard...?"

The accuracy and brilliance of editor Schemmer is evident in the fact that Harvard got rid of its Army ROTC (as well as its Navy and Air Force ROTC) 15 years ago.

Moreover, Harvard Law School refuses to permit Army recruiters for the Judge Advocates Corps to set foot on their campus — because the Army refuses to recruit sodomists, sadomasochists and other deviant "sexual orientations."

Editor Schemmer contrasts the $175,000 which the General Accounting Office estimates as the cost of graduating each West Point cadet, with the $27,400 to commission an ROTC officer. He does not explain if this ROTC per capita cost includes (A) all of the federal funding of all the colleges and universities with ROTC or (B) all of the state funding of same or (C) all of the loss of tax revenue from tax exemptions afforded these colleges and universities or (D) all of the cost of all of the student grants or student loans provided by state and federal governments. The West Point cadet cost is tabulated by a fiercely all-inclusive system. It includes even the cost of paving the roads at this oldest continually operating post in the US Army.

Editor Schemmer's main thrust is that West Pointers are no longer dominant in the highest echelons of the Army as they once were — for instance during the Civil War, when USMA graduates commanded on both sides in 55 of 60 major battles and commanded one side in the remaining five battles. Or in World War II, when, writes Schemmer: "Virtually every senior Army leadership position was held by a West Pointer."

"Virtually" would hardly justify editor Schemmer's failure to mention that the very top leadership of World War II was a five-star general who was a graduate of the Virginia Military Institute, not West Point.

Did this mean that West Point had somehow failed to justify its Congressional appropriation? General of the Army George Catlett Marshall was a product of a military school whose most distinguished combat commander was a West Pointer who taught at VMI, Lt. Gen. Thomas Jonathan (Stonewall) Jackson.

And VMI has, along with West Point, an absolutely invaluable attribute which is found in hardly any of the hundreds of colleges and universities with ROTC.

West Point and VMI have a functioning and deeply cherished and workable — and priceless — honor system.

There have been times when West Point's honor system has malfunctioned — as in the case of almost an entire Army football team three decades ago — or more than six dozen members of one class, who in 1976 were found to have cheated on an electrical engineering examination.

But the football team was expelled, and so were these six dozen cheats. The cheats were ordered reinstated by one of American history's worst Secretaries of the Army, Clifford Alexander. But he is gone now, and so are the cheats, whose identities are known throughout the Army.

For the inimitable environment of four years under a rigidly enforced devotion to Duty - Honor - Country, the cost of West Point is hardly unjustified. One honest officer can shortstop the grand larceny of a regiment full of thieves. And this is of enormous importance to the Army of this democratic republic of ours, where thieves are neither shot on the spot, nor do they have their hands cut off, as in some armies of the world.

Even though West Pointers no longer comprise the percentage of commanders during the Civil War before there was any ROTC, they still give a good account of themselves in achieving the highest level of command, in a far higher ratio than the ratio of West Pointers to other officers:

+ Thirty-seven percent of the Army's generals are West Pointers, from classes which commissioned only 12 percent of newly commissioned lieutenants.
+ As of July of 1984, 26 percent of the 515 combat battalion commanders were West Pointers, from classes that provided only 13 percent of newly SANTA FE — They talk a lot about educational reform, but then never deliver it. All we ever get could be accurately described as an educational rearrangement.

This year's fat bill on the topic was prepared, at the expense of great investments of time and energy, by a hard-working group of legislators and their voluntary advisors, almost all of whom were professional educators. Since they worked so hard, it's tough to have to say to them that what they produced was a plan with almost nothing in it in the way of innovation.

Even education, an area that tolerates about as much meaningless and virtually endless palaver as any known to the mind of man, must finally get tired of simply shifting the same old modules into new configurations. What's worse is that those who do this then crow about what miraculous new accomplishments they have come up with.

TRADE-OFF: What many of those who worked on this year's "new" blueprint saw as being located at the very heart of the matter was a symbolic relationship between salaries and tenure. As those who connected this measure perceived it, you couldn't touch one of those two without also affecting the other.

The relationship was put into words by one of those guiding the bill through the Legislature like this: "I wanted to see if teachers are really professionals or not."

When asked to amplify that cryptic remark, he explained that "I'd like to see teachers in elementary and secondary schools paid like professionals, which I don't think they presently are. Hence the raises in salary we committed to work for. But I don't know of a profession in the world that has the degree of job safety teachers are presently given under title of tenure. I think if they are truly professional they ought to give that up."

In short, give something to get something.

RAISED EYEBROWS: But some of those who sat in on those private meetings between Governor Anaya and legislative leaders that were aimed at ironing out all their disagreements on this topic before the legislative session began appeared to wretch a little on the agreement.

When the bill was introduced in the Senate, it had been shorn of the dollar figures having to do with raises in salary, and the proposed substitution of arbitration for tenure had been watered down to a point at which many teachers could no longer accept it.

It was perfectly clear what educators were being asked to give, but now all at once it wasn't clear what it was they were getting. Understandably, a lot of people who thought they were going to be able to see this bill through the process with little or no reason for debating it were now raising their voices in shrill chorus.

Among others, Governor Anaya was busy saying, "Hey, folks. That's not the way we agreed to do this thing."

All this did little to add to the level of trust between the Governor's office and the Legislature.

HARD CASH: As they argued, of course, one fact was abundantly clear: Nobody having anything to do with all this could say where the money for a raise was going to come from even if they worked out their other problems. As it turned out, this was simply not the year for us to be talking about one of our periodic educational rearrangements.

Letters TO THE EDITOR

EDITOR—Liberals, Commies, and fellow travelers never overlook an opportunity to take a vengeful swipe at the late, hard-hitting Senator Joseph McCarthy of Wisconsin. While these hate-inspired attacks have produced little of substance relating to the man's difficult work or bulging FBI files (A. Hiss, W. Chambers, J. Coplan, I. Kravchenko, to name but a few), they do have much to say about the Senator's relentless detractors.

Your recent column regarding M. L. King, and Mr. R. C. Wilson's followup letter quite properly focus attention on a massive, baldfaced coverup orchestrated by Judge Smith, liberals, and the liberal-dominated media. After all, during the Watergate witch hunts, all we conservatives heard were frantic, shrill screams urging "the people's right to know!" Well, I'm convinced: The known facts regarding Dr. King should be put on the table for all to see.

UNM Regent Jerry Apodaca, with Governor Anaya's support, is preparing to unfairly remove UNM President Tom Farer. All will suffer if Farer is forced to leave.

UNM is a major employer, educating our children, providing intellectual inspiration and recreation for all who wish to partake of its programs, as well as holding the key to our high tech commercial development. Our university's future requires that Farer be permitted to complete his mission.

Farer negotiated a two-year contract with the prior regents. Two years is a short time to establish an effective presidency—a task which should not include political attacks by the regents.

Able academic administrators are rare. The prior regents spent a year locating Farer. If Farer is forced to leave without just cause no qualified replacement would seriously consider the position knowing that Farer had been removed unfairly, leaving only political types to fill the position—the kind Apodaca and Anaya thrive on controlling. Farer, an able attorney, can find work elsewhere. UNM will be harmed more severely than Farer by his removal because it would communicate instability and political meddling at UNM, an image New Mexico cannot afford.

There is no doubt that Farer is under attack. When Apodaca became a regent he said, "I stand for excellence at UNM." So far "excellence" has meant conflict, unrest, insecurity, and dissension.

Apodaca's first act of so-called excellence was overruling the disciplinary reprimand of a law student—this was petty political meddling. This kind of meddling demoralizes UNM's administrators. Excellent regents would develop broad based policies directed toward campus harmony, stability, financial solvency and growth. They would not interfere in UNM's daily activities.

The minority hiring issue, recently raised by Apodaca, was also directed at discrediting Farer. Farer supports minority hiring. Apodaca knows or should have known this. He could have determined Farer's position in this area without publicly suggesting that Farer was not performing his job.

If Apodaca really cares about minorities let him become a role model, a paragon of fairness and success in his personal relations, business matters and political affairs—an object of praise and admiration; let him instruct Farer to retain and hire quality professors at whatever cost, regardless of their race, creed, or color. Students, minority or otherwise, who are educated by less than the best will suffer for not having been prepared to compete with those educated by the best.

Unfortunately, UNM's quality of instruction, rather than improving is deteriorating, in part because of low salaries and in part because of campus instability fostered by Apodaca. Quality instructors are departing. Insecurity and restlessness have become the norm. No one on or off campus knows what to expect next. Faculty morale is abysmally low; witness the faculty letter delivered to the Regents on Jan. 7, 1986, complaining about campus instability.

Apodaca verbally answered the faculty letter by saying, "...there's no reason for alarm. Ultimately, we have one thing in common, and that's the interests of the university." This answer is too similar to Apodaca's assertion of "excellence" to be taken seriously. What he thinks is excellent and in the best interests of the university are not consistent with the facts, otherwise the faculty would not be asking Apodaca for a return to stability on campus.

I have discussed this situation with faculty, legislators, and alumni. All are predicting that Apodaca will terminate Farer this summer and that Apodaca will then try to take the job himself, offer it to Anaya, or offer the presidency to someone they can control. The jobs and substantial budget at UNM offer an untapped political fiefdom.

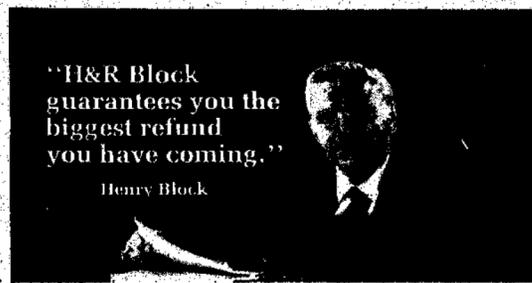

Those on the side of President Farer and UNM must unite and act quickly and loudly to save Farer. We must immediately write letters to newspapers, legislators, Anaya, Apodaca, and the other agents telling of our concern, while simultaneously organizing to speak with the regents, attend regent meetings and make sure that the regents remain Farer with a new contract. If they refuse we should take whatever measures are necessary to protect President Farer and UNM from Apodaca-Anaya. UNM's future hangs in the balance.

GIRLS VARSITY

JAN. 31
Ft. Sumner at C'zozo

Carrizozo was unable to get its offense untracked most of the night as the visiting Ft. Sumner Vixens handed the Grizzlies their second district loss of the year.

The Grizzlies' season-long nemesis (free-throw shooting) or the lack of it... kept them from making a close game of it... as the local team managed but 16 out of 38 attempts at the charity line.

Grizzly season record fell to 7-10 and 2-2 in district competition.

Marcella Sandoval and Claudia Lopez paced the Grizzlies with 7 points each, followed closely by Billy Jo Castillo with 6.

Sherry Gowen led the way for Capitan with 9 points. Marnie McDaniel, Della Joiner, Mandy Morton, and Kimberly Huey had 6 points each. Coach Blizzell likes the fact that the "girls help each other."

The Tigrette Varsity girls saw a 4-4 first quarter lead slip away and wound up losing their game 36-28 to the Lady Bears. Harris was top scorer for Capitan with 12 points.

The Varsity Tiger boys, playing one of their better games, defeated the Bears 58-52. The Tigers pulled away in the 4th quarter. With 4:14 left in the game the Tigers led 49-42. With 3:29 left the lead was increased to 51-42. The Bears outscored the Tigers in the last 2 minutes of play 8-3 but it wasn't enough. Ronnie Sanchez had a fine night with 20 points. Keller contributed 16 points.

The Grizzlies from Carrizozo were in Capitan Saturday night. The Tiger JV boys had no problem with Carrizozo but the varsity game was another story.

The Tiger Junior Varsity jumped out to a 24-9 lead at halftime and went on to win 60-33.

Reynolds and Shanks led the Tigers with 8 points each.

McInnes found the hoop for 7 points. The Grizzlies were led by Saucedo with 11 points. R. Guevara and T. Giordano followed with 8 points each.

The Capitan Varsity boys jumped out to a 15-10 lead at the end of the 1st quarter, but saw the Grizzlies take charge and go on to a 57-42 victory. Tommy Escamilla was the big gun for the Grizzlies with 16 points. Crenshaw followed with 13 points and Gabe Chavez scored in double figures with 10 points. Ronnie Sanchez led the Tigers attack with 10 points. Keller was 1 point behind with 9 points.

BOYS VARSITY—

JAN. 31

Ft. Sumner at Carrizozo

Carrizozo's offense was unable to solve Ft. Sumner's tight zone defense and lost its first district game of the year by the score of 59-45.

The visiting Foxes jumped out to an early 15-6 first quarter advantage and extended their lead to 29 to 18 by halftime, while holding the Grizzlies high scoring Tommy Escamilla scoreless in the first half.

Ft. Sumner kept the Grizzlies at bay in the second half by outscoring them 30-27 in last two quarters of action... and hit some crucial free-throws in last period to maintain their margin of victory.

Loss dropped Grizzly record to 11-5 and 3-1 in district play. High point for Carrizozo was Kenny Crenshaw with 19, Gabriel Chavez added 10 points.

For a new slant on child photography, crouch down and take pictures from their level.

For portrait shots, move in very close to your subject. The best portraits highlight the face and diminish the amount of background in the picture.

TIP CLIPS

COOKIE BAKING
A plateful of homemade cookies are just about the nicest welcome you can extend to neighbors, friends or family who drop by on a cool day. The following cookie making tips may encourage you to take out a favorite recipe.

NOW AND LATER
Save time by making two batches of the same recipe. Bake one batch now. Freeze or refrigerate the other batch for later.

SUGAR SHAKER
Unbaked cookies can be quickly and easily sprinkled with sugar if a sifter top salt is used to hold the sugar. (Store cinnamon-sugar in the shaker for sprinkling on buttered toast.)

FROSTED COOKIES
Allow cookies to cool completely before frosting with butter icing...otherwise the icing will melt into them.

TINTED COCONUT
To tint coconut, combine 2 to 4 drops food coloring with a small amount of water. Toss with coconut until evenly colored. Allow to dry. Use to decorate frosted cookies.

SPECIAL SHAPES
To make cookie cutters in special shapes, trace the desired design on heavy cardboard. Cut cardboard with razor blade or craft knife. Lay the pattern on top of rolled dough and cut around it with knife.

SWENOR SPEAKS AT FRWLC MEETING—

"Lost Children" is topic

"New Mexico has one of the best child protection laws in the country," Police Chief Richard Swenor said, speaking before the Federated Republican Women of Lincoln County Jan. 23.

Introducing his topic of "Lost Children," Swenor noted that throughout history children have been abused and exploited. He said that not until the "Mary Ellen Case" in New York was a law passed in 1875 that could protect children, and in that case the child had to be protected as an animal, because of the Society to Prevent Cruelty to Animals.

Swenor said that statistics show that two of every 100 children in the US are neglected or abused and that seven children die daily in the US because of this.

Crediting the National Center for Missing and Exploited Children for doing an "excellent job in informing police" throughout the country, Swenor said that the Ruidoso Police Department receives notice of missing children daily.

The police chief also said that often "missing" children are "runaway" children. The reasons that most children run away, according to Swenor, are: domestic violence, the breakdown of the family unit (which also often causes parental kidnapping), the breakdown of the neighborhood and the community, decreased moral restrictions, and substance abuse, usually in the case of drug-alcohol dependent parents.

Stressing that the sooner the police are notified about missing children, the more they can do, Swenor said that parents should not wait even four or five hours to report a missing child. He added that in the Ruidoso community, the age of the missing person has nothing to do with the attention the police give to the search for the missing person. "In this community," he said, "missing persons are searched for immediately after the report is received."

Persons who are suspicious of a case of child abuse or neglect should report it to police immediately, Swenor said. He added that the reports can be made anonymously and that those who report such cases are protected by law. Swenor also said that the teachers in the Ruidoso community have been especially helpful in reporting cases of child abuse and neglect and in identifying missing children.

"Any person suspecting such a case should call the Crimestopper number, 257-4545," Swenor said. In such a situation, he said, only the police can take immediate custody of an abused or neglected child.

Swenor said that he expects a stronger law protecting children to be passed in the next legislature, but the immediate need in the Ruidoso community is a place to keep runaway children for their own protection. He said, "The last place most of the kids need to go is home, and we need a place for them to go."

Recently, Swenor said, the Crisis Hotline has been connected to the police department for after hour emergencies and that local hotels and motels have cooperated by giving rooms for abused children and battered women and men to stay in, under the supervision of the Crisis Center.

"It's OK to Say No," a coloring book designed to teach young children about possible sexual abuse, needs to be distributed to elementary school children in the community, Swenor said. He said that it will take about $1,000 to provide each child with a copy of the booklet and that he is looking for community support to finance the distribution of the booklet.

Giving credit to the Ruidoso community, Swenor distributed copies of "Let's All Fight Drug Abuse" to the Republican women and said that it had been paid for by the businesses advertising in the booklet. Printed to discourage drug abuse, Swenor said that copies of the publication had been given to high school and middle school students in the community.

In other business, Fran Siddens, Lincoln County clerk, was named the FRWLC's representative in the Ruidoso Women's Club Today's Woman program.

Voter registration and the recruiting of new members will be the theme of the "Champagne Tea" the group will hold Feb. 8 at the home of Opal Mills at 208 Mountain Shadows. During the tea Vivian Petura, state president of New Mexico Federated Republican Women, will speak on "What the NMFWR Offers Today's Woman" and Suzanne Cox, Lincoln County manager, will discuss "Women in Politics." The tea will be from 2-4 p.m. and all interested persons are invited to attend, according to Lois Aldrich, president of the local organization. Special guest will be Fran Merrill, district director.

Jack Page, acting chairperson of the county Republican party, announced the "Visit with Senator Pete Domenici," which will be held Sunday, Feb. 16 from 11:30-1:30 p.m. at Cree Meadows Country Club. He said that all citizens are welcome to attend and that Domenici will be present at the brunch from 11:30-1:30.

Donations from club members were collected for the Home Services of Lincoln County organization. The donation will be presented by Siddens at a later date. Because of the cancellation of the Christmas party of the FRWLC, the collection was made at this time.

Yvonne Lanelli, member of the state executive board, reported that the next state convention will be held in Santa Fe Oct. 16-18, 1987, and that the state board will meet April 19 in Las Cruces.

Inez Tanner was appointed publicity director upon the resignation from the position by Daisy Meacham.
