County budget will top $13 million

By RUTH HAMMOND

The proposed operating budget for Lincoln County for fiscal year 1986-87 has received interim approval from the department of finance and administration in Santa Fe. Budget fund expenditures for Lincoln County are expected to be a whopping $13,653,800.

The county will begin the fiscal year with an unaudited beginning cash balance of $2,625,303, revenues are expected to be $12,649,222, and budgeted fund expenditures of $13,653,800 during the year will leave the county with an estimated ending fund cash balance of $1,620,725 on June 30, 1987.

The county is required by law to keep five months operating cash balance on hand.

The letter of approval from David Vargas, DFA director, stated that the interim approval is subject to adjustments and/or revisions prior to final approval before the first Monday in September 1986.

$9 million for airport
The largest portion of the budget is the $8,961,600 budgeted for the Sierra Blanca Airport improvement project. Revenues expected: $8,065,440 from FAA and $896,160 from state funds for a total of $8,961,600. Expenditures will be: $687,897 for professional services, $7,468,000 for construction and contingencies for a total of $8,961,600.

Sierra Blanca has a separate line item in the county budget for the Ruidoso Hondo Valley Hospital. RHVH will begin with a cash balance of $643,542 and receive revenues of $471,472 from the 3.25 mill levy that was passed by voters in 1984. This will leave $1,105,014 available for budgeted fund expenditures for capital outlay by the hospital.

This will leave $1,105,014 available for budgeted fund expenditures for capital outlay by the hospital.

The additional 1.0 mill levy passed by voters in 1984 is to be used for the Carrizozo Clinic. This will amount to $141,991 in current taxes and $5,000 in delinquent taxes this next fiscal year. The Carrizozo

Clinic also receives revenue from patient receipts.

County to be lead agency on access road to airport

By RIGO CHAVEZ

Sierra Blanca Airport Commissioners have totally reversed an earlier decision and voted to allow Lincoln County to be the lead agency in developing an access road to the proposed Fort Stanton airport.

In a joint meeting Monday night with the Lincoln County Commission, the SBAC unanimously approved a motion to allow the county to be the lead agency and offered their assistance in planning the road that will go from the airport site west to Highway 37.

The State Highway Commission announced earlier this month the availability of a $600,000 grant to conduct a feasibility study on the alignment of the road.

Tim Morris, the Ruidoso representative on the SBAC, told the Ruidoso Village Council Tuesday night that the reason he'd changed his vote and agreed to let the county take the lead in the road was because "they were so adamant about it."

County Commission Chairman Bill Elliott thanked the SBAC for the work they have already done on the road plan and said the county would move as quickly as possible on the study and the building of the road.

One of the reasons the SBAC had voted to be lead agency was because the members thought they could move faster than the county. County Commissioner Ken Nosker, who is also on the airport commission, said that the SBAC engineering firm, Leeds Hill and Kirkhoff, was already familiar with the road plans and "they could begin next week."

Although it was Capitan Mayor Benny Coker who made the motion to have the SBAC be the lead agency, Coker said he had no desire to put the SBAC in the highway construction business.

"I just think we can get things going faster, at least initially," Coker said.

The county commissioners began the Monday night meeting by going into a one-and-a-half hour executive session to discuss what they termed "personal matters."

It is believed that they talked with Nosker about his vote in favor of having the SBAC as the lead agency in the road development.

Elliott said the county would be talking with its engineer about the road project.

"We could go out to bid for a new engineer or we could negotiate with the SBAC's firm," he said.

Realtor Harvey Foster, who also attended the meeting, said he believed it would be appropriate for the county to go to bid for the engineering services.

At which point, Nosker added, "What does appropriate mean?" Foster responded, "Proper."

Elliott did say that he didn't think time was such a large factor. "I have a lot of time to work on this and I think we need to take our time," he said noting that public hearings would have to be scheduled before plans were approved and road building could begin.

At Nosker's suggestion, the commissioner approved a resolution to be sent the state highway department informing them of the decision on who would be the lead agency.

Several land owners along the road route proposed in the 1976 airport master plan attended the meeting and appeared to be pleased that the county would be the leader in developing the new road.

"I think it's appropriate for the county to be the road builder," said Marshall Peebles, across whose land much of the road will pass.

In other airport business, administrator Fred Heckman announced that the SBAC had notified the SBAC that a finding of no significant impact had been the result of the environmental assessment.

He also said preliminary application was being made for $12.5 million in federal funds to pay for the first phase of the airport's construction.

No plans to close Ft. Stanton, official says

By RIGO CHAVEZ

Officials in Santa Fe and at Fort Stanton Hospital say there are no plans to close the facility, although a state planning council made that recommendation in a report released earlier this week.

Steve Dossey, acting director of the Office of Institutional Services of the State Health and Environment Dept. which oversees the hospital for the developmentally disabled, said officials are just starting to review the proposal prepared for the Developmental Disabilities Planning Council (DDPC).

"Current state finances make implementation of the plan very difficult," he said.

The report urged that the Fort Stanton Hospital be phased out over the next two and one-half years and the Los Lunas Hospital and Training School be closed in five years. Ervin Aldaz called the recommendation to close Fort Stanton totally "inappropriate."

"Ninety percent of our clients here because they're just institutional care. There is need too long a waiting list for community based programs to think that Fort Stanton could be phased out in two and one-half years," said Aldaz, who has been acting administrator at the hospital since October 1985.

He noted that the hospital has just passed a federal audit of its counseling and training services.

The hospital, which currently serves 135 mentally retarded or developmentally disabled clients, gets about 70 percent of its funding from Medicare and Medicaid reimbursements. Its budget last year was $5 million.

Marie Fritz, director of the Developmental Disabilities Planning Council, said the report had been prepared by the Human Services Research Institute which spent two years conducting interviews, surveys and public forums throughout the state.

"I think it's a very realistic plan and well thought out. If the state of Pennsylvania could place 5,000 institutional patients in five years, this state should be able to place 135 in community care in two and one-half," Fritz said.

She said that according to a task force set up to study the care at Fort Stanton, there were no patients there who could not be placed in a com-

JOE WHEATLEY in front of his flooded Ruidoso Downs home.

Drainage problem may trigger suit

A resident of the River Park area of Ruidoso Downs said he plans to sue the village because it has failed to correct a drainage problem he said he notified them about 10 months ago.

Joe Wheatley, who lives in a mobile home on Park Street, said that every time there is a big rain run off from Highway 70 floods his yard and is washing away the foundation on his home.

There is a drainage ditch between Wheatley's home and the highway, but it has long been filled with sediment and no longer channels away the water.

"It looked like the Rio Grande running through the back of my yard, underneath the trailer and out the front of my yard," Wheatley, an appraiser in the Lincoln County Assessor's Office, said on Tuesday.

"I made five frantic phone calls to city hall beginning at 4:30 on Monday and was told that it was too late everyone had gone home at 5 o'clock."

As of Wednesday morning, Wheatley said he had still not been contacted by any village employee.

"That's what's appalling to me is that still no one has bothered to even make a phone call," he said.

Wheatley said he first contacted Trustee Jackie Branum about the problem following a downpour last September. Since then he has talked to the village's contract engineer Barrett Atkins and Trustee Conrad Buchanan several times.

Atkins and Wheatley walked along the old ditch and discussed ways of alleviating the drainage problem last fall.

Ruidoso Downs Mayor J. C. "Jake" Harris said he was made aware of the problem when he spoke with Wheatley on Monday and drove by to look at it.

"We are working on the drainage problem in the village. His is not the only one, but we can't correct it overnight," Harris said.

Atkins said that part of the delay in getting something done was that the village did not own any of the land above Wheatley's property.

"We can't just go up there to someone else's property and start putting in a drainage ditch without doing some other work first," Atkins said.

About the long delay in getting anything done, Atkins said he had been busy with other projects "and didn't have time to worry about it."

"We will get him a solution. But, if we clear up his problem we may create a problem for someone else. It's not as simple as cutting a ditch," Atkins concluded.

Trustee Buchanan echoed Atkins feelings saying the drainage problem for Wheatley was more complicated than it looked on the surface.

"There is a trailer parked across the old drainage ditch so it can't be cleaned out any more," Buchanan said.

THE NIGHT WATCHMAN

Valet parking starts a great evening at GAL&C

Valet parking. Let me write it again, just so you can get the same impression I got when I first drove up. Valet Parking!

The Great American Land and Cattle Company Steakhouse located in the Redman Club in Ruidoso Downs may be the only restaurant in the area with valet parking. I was impressed.

The good impression in the parking lot extended to the meal and throughout my evening at Great American.

As is probably evident by the name, the main items on the menu were beef. Prices range from $16.95 for a T-bone to $7.95 for a chopped steak.

Other specialties of the steakhouse were several barbecue dishes at $11.95 and seafood ranging from red snapper at $9.95 to lobster at $19.95.

My companion and I started the evening by ordering wine. Unfortunately for us, it was Sunday night and village ordinance prohibits Sunday liquor sales. We settled for iced tea served in what looked like small canning jars with handles.

I chose a combination of steak and lobster grilled on a skewer, as did my companion. My steak was cooked to a tender medium well and the wood gave the lobster just a hint of smokehouse flavor.

My only quarrel with the main course was two of the four pieces of steak had too much salt for my taste, but not so excessive as to make them unpalatable.

My companion did not complain about the saltiness.

He raved about the pinto beans and the pineapple cole slaw that were served with the entrees.

Not usually a cole slaw eater, he liked the tanginess pineapple added to the cabbage. The pinto beans were cooked in a spicy barbecue sauce. Both were brought to the table in large bowls and we served ourselves in smaller dishes at the table.

Also included was a large baked potato—we are talking a spud the size of two fists—served with sour cream and chives as well as butter. In spite of its large size, it was well cooked.

For dessert, I selected the cheesecake with strawberries. The other choice that evening was an apple strudel.

Moist and creamy, the dessert was marred by the fact that it was served on a dishwasher-hot plate. The heated dish made me think after the first bite the whole cake had been warmed up.

Our waitresses—the one who took our order and served us the main course did not last through the meal—were quick with coffee and tea refills.

The restaurant's decor is a little uneven. We entered through a fairly elegantly decorated lounge and were seated in a dining room with tables that had plastic table coverings.

Also, slightly more subdued lighting in the dining area would have given the space a more intimate and opulent feeling. —Rigo Chavez

The Great American Land and Cattle Company is on DiPaolo Drive, just off Highway 70 across from the entrance to Ruidoso Downs Racetrack. It is open daily from 4:30 until 10 p.m., except Sunday when it opens at 2 p.m. Most major credit cards are accepted.

All restaurants are reviewed anonymously with one or more guests to provide a broader sampling. All meals are paid for and restaurants receiving unfavorable reviews have been visited more than once.

Miniature show opens at La Luz

The Gallery La Luz presents the 12th Annual National Miniature Show which will open Sunday, June 28, with a reception at the Gallery from 1:30 to 5 p.m.

The exhibit will continue through July with the gallery open daily Monday through Saturday, 10:30 to 5 p.m. and Sundays 1:30 to 5 p.m.

More than 750 entries have been received from all parts of the United States, Canada and also Europe. Nearly every state is represented in the miniature art works of oil, acrylics, sculpture, mixed media, watercolor, graphics and drawing. There is a full range of techniques and subject matter in these miniatures that may be no larger than 20 square inches, excluding the frame.

The sculpture that has arrived from Wyoming, Mississippi and many other parts of the country is outstanding. All works of art are for sale and well worth a visit to The Gallery La Luz. It is unusual to have a national art show in this area and to have the opportunity to view art from every part of this country. It offers a beginning into the world of art collecting and appreciation for many who would otherwise not be able to afford it, and it offers art work that will easily fit into small homes or apartments.

The Gallery La Luz is located one mile north of Hwy. 82 in the village of La Luz, north of Alamogordo.

Tryouts for two stage productions

Tryouts for two upcoming Ruidoso Little Theater productions, "The Last of the Red Hot Lovers" and "Barefoot in the Park," will be held June 29 and 30 at 7:30 p.m. at St. Eleanor's Church Hall in Ruidoso.

The plays, both by Neil Simon, will be staged Aug. 20-22, 27-30 and Sept. 3-6.

Cast requirements for the two plays include two men and one woman in their mid-20s to early 30s, one man in his mid-40s or early 50s, and three women of various adult ages.

Anyone interested in helping with the productions should also attend the auditions to sign up.

Amusement park for children

Fantasy Mountain is open again

With high hopes that their dream can come true, new managers have taken over Fantasy Mountain amusement park in Ruidoso Downs.

The park currently has seven rides and attractions and hopes to have 16 to 20 by the end of the summer, Mae Porter, general manager, said.

Strolling around the main part of the 18-acre site, Porter sounds an optimistic tone as she points out areas where new rides such as the Paratrooper and the Spinaroo will locate.

"It's going to take quite a bit of work. But, we think we can attract enough young people to stay open this time," she said, noting that the shuttle bus, the Jolly Trolley, would make regular stops at the park.

Because the park is located directly across Highway 70 from Ruidoso Downs Racetrack, she said it would be ideal for parents who are going to the races to bring their children to the park.

Fantasy Mountain was open for several months last summer, but closed in September due to financial problems.

One of the problems Porter cited was the inability

SHIRLEY BOWINGTON adding life to a portrait of a young woman. Her work is on display at the Artisan's Gallery in downtown Ruidoso.

Artist injects 'feel' into her portraits

Formally trained in character animation, Shirley Bowington is now working in Ruidoso as a portrait artist.

Potential customers need not worry that they'll come out looking like Fred Flintstone or the Pink Panther though, Bowington strives for realism in her portraits of people.

"You can't really be objective as a portrait artist because most people want to see an idealized vision of themselves," she said.

To make her portraits lifelike she tries to instill life and personality in the images she draws and paints.

Her favorite medium is pastels, although she also does work in oils and watercolors.

Her training in animation came as she studied storyboard art and character design at the studios of Hanna-Barbera in California. The Hanna-Barbera Studios, recognized as legends in the animation industry, created such classics as "Tom and Jerry," "Tweety and Sylvester" and the "Flintstones."

Bowington has also studied with photo-realist Wade Reynolds and at the Otis-Parsons School of Design and the University of California at Los Angeles.

Bowington moved to Ruidoso in February and has been working part-time at the Artisan's Gallery, where she also displays her work.

Her portraits are in collections in the United States and Europe and her works include William Hannam, president of Hanna-Barbera, and Gene Upshaw, president of the National Football League Player's Association.

Currently on display at the Artisan's Gallery is a portrait she did of Don Johnson, star of NBC's "Miami Vice."

She has never met Johnson and painted his pastel portrait from photographs in a magazine and the TV show. "I video taped the show and studied his movements so I could get more a sense of his personality."

"It was pure agony," Bowington added jokingly. Contrary to the widely held myth that only the rich can afford portraits, Bowington's start at $20 for a profile in pen and ink.

Her Don Johnson, which features three-quarters of his body, sells for $450.

Through her work, Bowington said she not only sees the person she is drawing, she "feels" them.

"I love people and this is my way of reaching out and sharing that love."

"We need to appeal to the older kids in order to make it work," she said.

CARRIZOZO SENIORS 1956

HERE'S HOW the Carrizozo High School senior class looked at graduation time 1956.

School board hires new coach, adopts policies

By RUTH HAMMOND

Carrizozo schools have hired Mel Holland as high school head teacher, football coach, track coach and girl's basketball coach for the 1986-87 school year. The board also hired Jodie Heckendorn as of-ice education and home economics teacher.

During the June 17 school board meeting, the board adopted policies on home schooling, contagious disease, purging of student records and open meetings.

The adoption of the open meeting policy is an annual procedure. Five days advance notice must be given for regular meetings, three days advance notice for special meetings and 12 hours advance notice must be given for emergency meetings of the school board.

The policy on home schools is in accordance with the procedures for home schooling in New Mexico as set forth by the state department of education. The policy contains guidelines for the home-school instructor.

The policy on communicable disease and health threats does not name any one disease. It states:

"Students who have a contagious disease or a communicable disease and pose a potential threat to the health of other students and school employees shall remain out of school until such a time as the communicable period has ended."

The school board reserves the right to deny admission or attendance to any student who poses a health threat to other students until such a time that a school board approved medical doctor provides a written statement which certifies that the student does not pose a health threat to other students.

The policy on purging of student records is that after graduation all materials in a student's file will be destroyed except for grades, standard-ed test scores and attendance records.

In other business, Judi Sidebottom, guidance counselor, explained the credit check letters that will be sent to parents of students who will be in the 9th grade next year. The credit check letters are a first step in preparation for SB 106 which will require 23 credits for graduation in 1990.

The letter explains that the state government has made changes in education the public should know about.

The class of 1990 will be required to complete 23 credits to be eligible for graduation and will also be required to take and pass a state competency examination. These changes mean that a student will only be able to fail one course and still be able to graduate on time without taking summer school or correspondence courses.

The letter further states that parents should be aware that earning 23 credits does not assure a student of a high school diploma. The student must also pass the graduation exam. The new state requirements will result in tougher course work, more homework and more effort by the student, parents and school in all academic areas.

The letters will be sent to parents the week before school starts and will include a copy of the four-year plan and the student's schedule.

—The board agreed to give $200 to help pay expenses for Jamie Patterson to attend the Washington Leadership Conference in July.

—Resignation was accepted from Sandy Peterson, special education teacher.

—A letter was received from Lincoln County Manager Suzanne Cox stating that the county would not maintain the school bus route that goes by the vo-ag barn because the road is in an illegal subdivision. The board discussed alternatives.

—Board members took a final look at the 1986-87 budget before the formal budget hearing in Ruidoso on June 18 by the state board of education. Carrizozo had voluntarily reduced the budget by 2 percent to comply with a request made by the governor to help with state finances.

—The computer at the administration office had a broken part that cost $9.94. The total bill for technical assistance and mileage plus the part was $932.36.

checked time and time again. When the new rides are completed the park will be able to handle some 12,000 riders per day.

"It's a long range program. We don't expect to have everything just the way we want it right away," Porter said pointing to flower beds that are yet to be planted.

She said plans are to keep the park open as long into the fall possible. In October and November they hope to be open at least on weekends.

Gates will open at 10 a.m. everyday and rides will keep running until there are no more riders.

The park will employ about 20 local people initially, and as many as 50 when all the new rides are in place.

Porter said she was looking forward to working with people in Ruidoso. "It's going to be a real family park with something for just about everyone."

FLAT-OUT DENIAL: That, of course, is no trouble at all compared to the one Ray Powell has. The Democrat hopes to stay so far away from Toney Anaya in every way that no potential voter will ever connect their names. Yet, politics being what it is, Powell can't be so bold as to directly repudiate Anaya, who is after all a member of the same political party Powell belongs to. Do that, and the voters will pile on him for deserting a brother.

So there's plenty of reason for both Powell and Carruthers to busy themselves elsewhere and not be seen as having exerted the slightest influence over this week's special legislative session, called to undo many of the things that the lawmakers and governor did in such unwise fashion earlier this year.

DEEP INTEREST: Yet, though they stayed offstage, you can be sure each of these two was biting his fingernails. The decisions of the lawmakers this time will have much to do with the state of affairs the next governor will find on taking office.

Toney Anaya, for instance, came in just as a major fiscal decline took place, and his whole subsequent career has been affected by that fact. If the state had the money he thought it had when he was running, he might have done all the rosy things he proposed to do. Instead, he had to deal with tough times, and he proved not to be prepared for those emotionally or intellectually. Hence his four bad years.

Whoever takes over in January, Carruthers or Powell, at least knows he's in for a tough time. What the legislature did this week, however, could relieve some of that pressure.

Married, -On Tuesday morning, March 1st, by Esquire Jose Cordova, Bruce H. Marsh and Mary Isabel Copeland, all of Lincoln county.

The above was a sort of Gretna Green affair; the young couple leaving home without the knowledge of their friends and reaching Lincoln about daylight after an all night's ride on horseback. Unrelenting parents and obdurate guardians opposed the match and the young folks took their fate in their own hands. That their future may prove that the fears of their friends were groundless is the wish of the Independent.

Died, -At her home in Tularosa, Feb. 23d, Mrs. Ida Roberts, wife of Geo. T. Roberts, leaving a daughter of a few hours old. The motherless little one has been placed in good hands where it will be well cared for.

Mr. Isaac Ellis is damming the acequia on his grounds, in such a way as to throw the water into a hollow and form a pond of considerable size, for the purpose of storing the water for a time of need.

There is still a great deal of sickness in White Oaks. Grippe and measles have been the prevailing diseases, with a few cases of pneumonia. There have been but a few fatal cases.

Monday next is the day for the vote on the bonds. Let everybody turn out and vote for a school house which will be a credit to the district.

We learn from the O. A. Eagle, that Mr. and Mrs. G. R. Young, of White Oaks, have lost another child by death, this time their youngest, Mary Florida, aged one year. Little Ella, their oldest daughter, who has been very sick is said to be improving and there is hope of her recovery.

Friday, March 11, 1892
Mr. Morris R. Locke writes to friends in this city that he has about concluded arrangements for all the money needed to build, equip and operate the White Oaks railroad, and open up the coal mines at White Oaks. Mr. Locke says he has had a long siege but has finally succeeded, and that his parties are in Chicago where he will join them in a few days and the negotiations be closed. M. L. and his party expect to be in El Paso this month, and make a tour of the line to White Oaks.

The new Southern Pacific time card went into effect on the 7th. This reduces the time between New Orleans and San Francisco twelve hours. Only four days are now required for the trip between the two cities.

Within 62 years Mexico has had 54 presidents, one regency and one empire, and nearly every change of government has been effected by violence.

This is a queer world. One man commits suicide in Los Angeles because he had too much whiskey, and another committed suicide in Salt Lake City because he couldn't get any.

On March 3rd, '54 the Territory of New Mexico was organized under organic act of September 9th, 1850, and John S. Calhoun was inaugurated governor, and Hugh N. Smith was secretary, the latter not being confirmed; on March 3rd, 1856, an act of Congress appropriated $213,000.60 for militia service in the Territory, the union forces evacuated Santa Fe, retiring to Fort Union and March 3d, 1873, the road from Santa Fe to Taos was completed.

We were shown today by Mr. Joseph Quaid, a handsome paper weight, dressed by that gentleman, which will be sent to The Old Abe Eagle, of White Oaks, for the use of its editor; Mr. Ross, The weight is dressed from the black marble which has been discovered about three miles from White Oaks and shows a stone that will no doubt be shipped extensively when the Denver and El Paso short line is completed. This famous quarry is owned by Messrs. Hewitt and Schell. —El Paso Herald.

It is reported that arrangements are being made to bring a colony over from Holland to locate on the Maxwell grant. It is a matter of much consequence to the future of New Mexico whether these people come as purchasers and owners of the lands they are to occupy; or as tenants of the Dutch Colony and the nucleus of a system of tenantry and landlordism in New Mexico. —Headlight.

The farmers of Lancaster county Pa., are up in arms against Dyrenforth and his rain-makers. They look upon the scheme as sacrilegious, and have destroyed several thousand dollars worth of dynamite bombs and other rain-making paraphernalia. They regard it somewhat as the pious old Scotch lady did the fanning mill upon its first introduction. To attempt to clean wheat in that way, or any other way but throwing it up in the air for the wind to blow out the chaff, was "flein" in the face of the Laird," and she would have none of it.

Forty thousand girls are studying in the various colleges of the land, and are living witnesses to the falsity of the old tradition about the unloveliness of women who cultivate their mental powers. At Wellesley the girl students are as healthy and rosy and genuinely feminine, in the best sense of the word, as if they were in utter ignorance of Greek verbs and co-tangents. Mental health and physical health are complements, as the college girl is constantly proving.

The Denver Times says: "There is apparently a gang of No. 1 counterfeiters at work in the west. The secret service has secured one of their coins. It represents some of the finest work in this line ever turned out. It is a $5 gold coin of 1858, having no mint mark, and being but a few grains lighter than the regulation weight. It is a trifle thick, but otherwise almost perfect. The acid and scale tests detected the falsity. It is regarded by the secret service as one of the most dangerous counterfeiters made, because the most perfect.

Coins are weighed at the mint to a hair's weight. Not long since a hair fell into the weighing machine and until it was discovered a large number of coins were rejected.

Living dangerously nothing new to this Texas couple

By ROSALIE DUNLAP

Mr. and Mrs. Ronald Weindorf of Austin, TX stopped in Lincoln enroute home from Durango, CO. They had spent a few days fishing with his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Clem Weindorf.

Ron and his wife Joan talked about their experience at the Rome Airport last Christmas holidays when the terrorists attacked.

They were at the ticket counter when the shooting started, so they ducked behind the counter. A hand grenade was thrown nearby, and they were saved by their luggage and a travelers dolly. Ron commented they were still using some of their luggage that had been riddled by the flying shrapnel. Six people around them were killed.

His wife Joan received shrapnel in her left arm and one leg. The shrapnel entered the back of her upper arm and exited in front without hitting the bone or nerves. She still has some small shrapnel around the elbow area.

This is not the first time Ron has been involved in dangerous conditions. In August 1966 he was caught in the snipers bullets at the University of Texas Tower. He escaped injury, but 13 people were killed.

He also escaped without injury when hit head-on by a DWI driver, but his car was totaled.

community based care setting. "The problem is that right now the state is not putting an emphasis on serving the developmentally disabled. The city with the largest number of group homes is Albuquerque, and yes, some of the people at Fort Stanton could not function in a city like that. "They could function in small town though."

Aldaz said the state has been working towards deinstitutionalization for a long time. "We need community support and funding to get it carried out. It's not a new concept thought," he said praising some of DDFC recommendations.

He defended the Fort Stanton facility saying that the federal audit "proves we're doing things right."

According to national studies, Fort Stanton's client population is at an optimal size with a capacity for 145 patients, Aldaz said.

"We run a clean, well-kept and well-cared-for hospital here," he said, adding that he was preparing a reaction to the report for officials at the state health environment department.

Dossey said his office was planning to make a formal statement on the DDFC report next week.

"The plan addresses all aspects of the developmentally disabled in this state and the recommendations will be given careful consideration. With our long waiting lists, limited and dwindling resources, I don't see how we could phase out either Fort Stanton or Los Lunas," Dossey said.

Drainage

delay, Wheatley said he was tired of waiting and vowed to sue.

"I've put a lot of work in my yard pulling out thousands of dandelions, spreading fertilizer, putting in railroad ties and planters. I want to have a nice yard, but I can't when everything gets washed away every time it rains," Wheatley said. "The water even tore off my back screendoor this time."

Susan Warren, who lives about a block from Wheatley, also had her back yard flooded on Tuesday.

"It's the first time it's gotten this bad. I guess the lot is just in a low spot," she said adding that she had only lived in the neighborhood since February.

"I haven't complained to anyone at the village yet, but like I said, this is just the first time."

Mayor Harris said he would be going to Santa Fe on Thursday to apply for more Community Development Block Grant funds, which could be used on drainage projects.

A Safe Choice

We're here to Help

- Teach your children about power line safety. Never touch a power line with anything, including antennas, tree pruning tools, ladders, kite strings, or sailboat masts.
- If you see a fallen power line, do not get close to it. Report it to either our office or the local law enforcement officials.
- You can use and enjoy the benefits of electricity—the safest and cleanest power choice—but you have to make sure that it is not used carelessly. Call our office today for more information.

Incorporating our electrical safety tips into your lifestyle is a safe choice for ensuring the security of your family. If you want to make a safe choice, remember to follow our advice below.

- Avoid the use of water around electrical outlets or appliances. Water conducts electricity, so keep all electrical wiring away from water, especially around bathtubs or sinks. Child proof your electrical outlets with Child Safety Plugs, too.

ON MY OWN

By Pat Kite

Status phone calls

I have just read that a most status-impressive item in today's world is "getting swamped by telephone calls" when you are visiting friends.

This creates the impression you are a "popular" and "important" person, with an "urgent and vital" lifestyle few others manage to achieve.

I have always wanted to be an important person and if there's anything I can use right now, it's status. However the phone calls I receive at other people's homes are not exactly calculated to make anyone think I'm this side of sun splendid.

For example, I am having dinner at the Smidgins, who just happen to have a single well-to-do male cousin about my age, so you know that I am trying to build up my image.

The telephone rings. "It's for you," Mrs. Smidgin calls out, looking impressed.

It's one of my kids. "Donald's at the door," she says. "He wants to know when you're going to be home?"

Donald is a bachelor I carpooled with and I happen to think he's weird. "For heaven's sake," I holler. "Don't let him in!"

The kid states she didn't let him in. "Good," I sigh. "Now tell him I won't be home for hours. Tell him I'm out on a date with my fiance, the sumo wrestler." This is what I always tell Donald, which makes him go away for a while. The only problem is I usually don't say this with Mrs. Smidgin staring at my chin.

The next phone call comes during the lasagna course. "It's for you," my hostess says, looking somewhat questioning. Perhaps it's my fiance, the sumo wrestler?

Nope. It's my kid, who shrieks, "That [unclear] sister stole my sweater. You have to talk to her!"

"It's not my problem," I say smoothly, conscious of Mrs. Smidgin's amazed eye and quivering ear.

"You're a [unclear], and I hate you and you've always liked her better than me!"

At home, when one of the kids calls me a name like that, I chase her around the house with a broom. Now I merely put on my best "kids will be kids" choking smile and say sinisterly, "We'll discuss it later."

During dinner, the Smidgins mention about 3,000 times that children today don't seem to receive any discipline. I try to fake my way by stating that in my household I try to achieve a balance between discipline and self-expression, not wanting to smother my children's ambition or creativity.

The telephone rings again. My kid informs Mrs. Smidgin that her sister just kicked a hole in her bedroom door. "Tell her I hope it's the same size as the other one," I comment, "so the door looks symmetrical."

Before I leave, the Smidgins mention several times that their well-to-do bachelor cousin just happens to have a girlfriend who is a heavyweight boxer.

Personally, I doubt if they're telling the truth. It is possible they want to improve his status, make him seem more popular, give him a lifestyle filled with urgency and vitality. Like mine.

Parent support lacking at curfew discussion

By P.E. CHAVEZ

Police Commissioners Eddie O'Brien, during his trustee report at Tuesday's town meeting, asked who had hired the town's newest man on the police force.

Prior to the start of the town meeting, Police Officer Chris Gomez and O'Brien were introduced to each other.

At a June 10 town meeting, O'Brien along with the rest of the council, met in closed session. On resuming the regular meeting Mayor Robert Hemphill announced that Gomez would be temporarily hired beginning June 18, Wednesday. "How come I wasn't called for the interview?" inquired O'Brien Tuesday referring to a day to be scheduled for Gomez to meet with O'Brien, Hemphill and Chief of Police C. A. Morales before Gomez started his first day at work.

Hemphill informed O'Brien that he had driven to his place to tell him.

"Was I asleep or what?" In other police related business, Tuesday's meeting included a public input on curfew.

Town attorney James R. Askew Jr. was available to answer questions regarding the draft of a proposed curfew ordinance, which addresses parents or guardians as follows:

A. Restrictions (1.) It shall be unlawful for any parent, guardian, or person having custody of a minor under the age of eighteen (18) years to permit or allow such minor to be upon or remain upon any public thoroughfare or any public place any time between the hours of 10:00 p.m. and 5:00 a.m., Sunday through Thursday, and the hours of 11:00 p.m. and 5:00 a.m. on Friday and Saturday of each week unless accompanied by a parent or guardian.

(2.) This shall not apply to any minor who shall be accompanied by a parent, guardian, or adult acting with the authority of the parent of any minor upon an errand of necessity, or attending religious services, any legitimate athletic event, legitimate shows, or public events, and shall not apply to a minor on his way home from such events as stated above.

B. Parent or guardian liable (1.) It shall be the duty of any peace officer to take into custody any minor under the age of eighteen (18) years found in the violation of this Article. The taking into custody of such minor by any peace officer shall not be termed an arrest. The peace officer or juvenile authority shall thereupon, at the earliest possible time notify such parent or guardian and such parent or guardian found guilty of the violation of this section shall be guilty of a (petty) misdemeanor.

(2.) In the event that the said parent or guardian cannot be located within a reasonable time, said minor shall be remanded to the custody of the proper juvenile authorities. In no event shall such minor at any time be unduly detained in any jail or lockup except as provided by the Children's Code of the State of New Mexico or except where the minor has been found to violate any provisions of the Criminal Code of the State of New Mexico, in addition to any curfew violation as stated herein.

(3.) That, if in the event, there is no proper juvenile authority available, then any law enforcement agency or peace officer shall make all effort to locate a responsible relative or other responsible adult willing to take the care, custody, and maintenance of said minor until his parent (s) or guardian (s) are located."

Askew asked the council if they thought the ordinance should include the penalty to a parent or guardian found guilty of a curfew violation. His personal opinion was that the existing penalty ($300 fine and/or 90 days in jail) is "too stiff" in comparison with the violation of the other town ordinances.

The maximum penalty can be reduced according to the judge's discretion. It was suggested by O'Brien that a penalty be "set" for the first and subsequent violations. The penalty was not agreed to be lowered or set.

The town officials will consider adopting the proposed ordinance on curfew at their July 22 meeting. The lack of interested parents concerning curfew input was evident by their absence at Tuesday's meeting. The few parents present voiced their opinions.

Meanwhile town police will enforce the current 10:30 p.m. curfew, seven days a week.

In addition, police will continue to enforce the restricted area parking after 9:30 p.m. These areas include all town parks, the Industrial Park (by the airport), the cemeteries (at dusk), the property between Ruidoso State Bank and J. G. Moore Insurance Agency and the property between the Lincoln County News and the Fina Convenience Store.

Hemphill said at Tuesday's meeting that Askew is drawing up a sample ordinance prohibiting consumption of alcohol in public.

ASC office will close

The Gramm-Rudman Act has worked its way down to Lincoln County, where the Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation Service office will be closed due to budget cuts as of July 1.

According to the ASCS newsletter, the office's workload was not high enough to justify one employee working there. Herein records will be located at the Otero County office. Lincoln County producers may contact the office at 1909 Cuba Avenue Room 3, in Alamogordo or call 437-3100. They may also contact the Lincoln County ASC Committee, Ronald L. Merritt, chairman, at 849-1128, Bill K. Stephenson, vice-chairman, at 648-2477 or Fred W. Pfingsten, member, at 653-4382.

NEWSWORTHY TRENDS
BETTER MEDICINE PACKAGING

The over-the-counter (OTC) medication industry has come up with more and more ways to protect its products from criminal tampering. There are now 11 different methods that can be used singly or together to form a variety of barriers against tampering. Food and Drug Administration (FDA) Commissioner Frank E. Young says the TRP regulations have added a clear layer of safety to non-prescription medication.

An important safeguard, all experts stress, is for consumers to be aware of the self-medication they are taking. The PA has published a brochure, "Tips Against Tampering," to help consumers in this effort. An educated public can enhance the trend toward safe OTC medication in our nation. For a free copy of the brochure, write to PA, Office of Public Affairs, 1150 Connecticut Avenue, NW, Washington DC 20036.

Carrizozo Police Beat

By P. E. CHAVEZ

Sunday, June 22
An officer was requested at a residence on C Avenue where a rattlesnake was believed seen in a dresser drawer. After his arrival at the scene after 5 p.m., Policeman Chris Gomez said a friend of the apartment dweller had removed a bull snake from under the dresser drawer.

Friday, June 20
A resident called Lincoln County Sheriff's Dept. at 1:40 a.m. in reference to a noise problem in the neighborhood. Chief of Police C. A. Morales was on duty.

Morales and Gomez spotted a man sleeping at 2:59 a.m. by the Outpost Laundry. The man, apparently a hitchhiker, had been seen in town earlier.

Thursday, June 19
A resident reported juveniles drinking at 8:27 p.m. in a car behind Hobbs Auto. Morales later located the vehicle fitting the description and advised the youth not to park in private property.

Wednesday, June 18
A resident on C Avenue called LCSO at 1:04 a.m. to report that someone was trying to kick in the neighbor's door. The information was dispatched to Morales.

Gomez responded to a 4:30 p.m. complaint from Pete King, who reported that someone had placed trash outside his dumpster at King Food Mart.
