Robbery suspects nabbed

Two suspects in the robbery of a Ruidoso grocery store were ordered held without bond by Magistrate Judge Jim Wheeler on Tuesday.

The two men were charged with the June 21 armed robbery of the Bennett's Shur-Save store are in police custody, said Ruidoso Police detective Mike Lovelace.

Lovelace said that John Natale, 42, of Ruidoso Downs in Ruidoso Downs, and Audree L. McCullar, 30, of Tularosa, were arrested Sunday in Tularosa.

Natale was charged with armed robbery, possession with the intent to traffic heroin and false imprisonment, said Lovelace. He added that McCullar is also being held on the armed robbery charge and a Texas parole violation.

Lovelace said the Ruidoso Downs Police Department assisted in Natale's arrest, and the Otero County Sheriff's Office and the Alamogordo Department of Public Safety assisted in McCullar's arrest.

They are both scheduled to appear in magistrate court on Thursday, July 10 at 1:30 p.m., for a preliminary hearing.

McKnight murder case

'Convene grand jury; Supreme Court orders

By RUTH HAMMOND

The New Mexico State District Judge Richard Parsons must convene a grand jury to investigate the murder of Thomas P. "Cotton" McKnight and Judy Lee McKnight.

The ruling came early Wednesday after Terri Bussey, widow of the slain Judy McKnight, submitted the petition to the Supreme Court. Mrs. Bussey had presented a petition to Judge Parsons on June 2 asking that a grand jury be convened. The petition contained more than 450 signatures of Lincoln County residents. Judge Parsons denied the request.

The Supreme Court ruled that it is mandatory and the court has no discretion in the matter. Judge Richard Parsons shall convene a grand jury. He has 60 days in which to convene the grand jury.

Gary Mitchell, attorney for Mrs. Bussey, said, "I applaud Judge Parsons for taking the stand he has concerning the economics and looking out for everyone's best interest and making sure all procedures are followed and attempting to get all agencies to work together in a proper and legal fashion."

The McKnights were found murdered in their home in a remote area near Picacho on Nov. 15, 1984. The case has been investigated by the Lincoln County Sheriff's Department, the district attorney, the state police and the attorney general.

Disagreements between the sheriff's office and the district attorney resulted in a gag order being issued by Parsons in an attempt to have the agencies work together on the investigation.

The attorney general's office is opposed to the convening of a grand jury at this time.

Ruidoso area hit hard

County seeks help with flood damage

Flood damage assessments should be prepared as soon as possible so that proposals can be made for federal assistance, Lt. Gov. Mike Runnels told Ruidoso Village Councilors and Lincoln County officials during a meeting on Tuesday in Ruidoso.

"What we need to get an overview of what's happened in Southeastern New Mexico," Runnels said.

He told the group that a meeting was planned for today (July 3) with officials from Lincoln, Eddy and Chaves counties and state and federal officials at Eastern New Mexico University's Roswell campus.

Village manager Jim Hine asked Runnels about the possibility of Lincoln County being declared a disaster area by the state.

Runnels said that possibility would be discussed at the Roswell meeting. "I don't want to go around willy-nilly declaring areas a disaster because you can get more money from FEMA (the Federal Emergency Management Administration) than you can from the state."

"What we are trying to do is make sure people know what the options are. We don't want to put a Band-Aid on something that needs a cast."

Runnels added that what he hoped could be worked out would be a more long-term solution to the flooding problems in the area.

Assistant village manager Frank Potter said that officials from the State Office of Military Affairs Civil Emergency Preparedness Division had surveyed damages during a visit on Monday.

Potter said flooding had caused damage to almost every bridge or river crossing in the village. "We think about $500,000 will be needed to repair and redo the crossings, drainage and sewer and water lines."

Potter said about 40 feet of 8-inch water line in the Upper Canyon had been washed out and the sewer line going to the main treatment plant near Conley's Nursery had also suffered extensive damage.

"There's about 60 feet of sewer line that could go at any time," Potter said.

The bridge on Paradise Canyon Road had been repaired, but was washed out again during a cloudburst on Tuesday.

"It washed down more debris and caused more damage in and around bridge crossings," village engineer Mike Davalos said Wednesday.

"I don't even have a real estimate of the dollar amount of the damage," Davalos said, "it's just a guess."

On Tuesday he had estimated a total of $160,000 in repair work would be needed. Some $30,000 to remove debris from the river, $30,000 to clean the river channel, $50,000 to repair bridges on Paradise Canyon Road and Breese Drive, $15,000 in street repairs, another $20,000 for sewer repair and $15,000 for repairs to the water system.

Runnels said that in order to get federal disaster funds Lincoln, Eddy and Chaves counties would have to be combined for damage estimates.

"They don't like to be bothered with totals less than $3 million," Runnels said.

He added that at least $1 million worth of water damage had been caused by flooding in Chaves County.

"Don't you dare declare Lincoln County a disaster area because they will really cut us on the paper work at the state," Suzanne Cox, Lincoln County manager, told Runnels.

She said that the county was still in the process of assessing and estimating the damage.

County Road Superintendent Earl Craig said 11 people had been stranded when three river crossings washed out on Monday. He said most of the damage had been along Eagle Creek, but that a bridge had washed out in Glencoe.

Village Councilor Jerry Shaw said she did not want to minimize the flood damage in Ruidoso, but "there's nothing out there that should deter the July 4 weekend."

"We should be able to handle the regular flow of tourists," Shaw said.

Plans to acquire present airport site

By RIGO CHAVEZ

At least three proposals to acquire the location of the present Ruidoso airport will be presented to village councilors when they meet on July 8.

Village attorney John Underwood said he had met with the attorney for the Sierra Blanca Airport Commission (SBAC) Steve Sanders, to discuss possibilities for the village to buy the current airport site.

Among the proposals to be made will be that the village pass a revenue bond and buy the airport outright from the Federal Aviation Administration for its appraised $2.6 million value.

Another proposal would be for the village to impose a half-cent Jan. 1, 1987 and revenues from the new tax be used to pay for the 160-acre site.

A third proposal, which Underwood said was probably the least desirable, would be a time payment plan where the village would pay the FAA for the land over a five-year period.

Underwood said the reason the time payment plan was seen as undesirable was because of concerns that it might delay the development of the new airport on Fort Stanton Mesa.

"The airport commission would like to have the money to present to the FAA for the new airport up front. It's not clear whether the FAA would allow them to take five years," Underwood said.

Fred Heckman, contract administrator for the Sierra Blanca Airport, made a presentation to village councilors last week whereby the village could borrow money from the Farmer's Home Administration (FmHA) to pay for the old airport land.

Under the plan, the village would be required to deed the old airport land over to the SBAC as collateral for a loan from the FmHA, which would have to be obtained by the SBAC because the village has no power to borrow money.

In five years when the FmHA debt was paid off, the land would revert to the village, Heckman said emphasizing that the plan was only a working document and could be amended.

Attorney Underwood said he was unsure if the village could enter into such an agreement because it would involve deeding public land to a private entity. He did, however, agree to explore what could be done.

"We could probably enter into some sort of lease/purchase agreement with the airport commission," Underwood said.

Village Councilor Dub Holt said he also had a plan for acquiring the old airport property, but details still needed to be worked out and he was not ready to make the plan public.

Underwood said proposals would be made at the village council meeting on July 8 and that it was hoped that the village would be ready to present a plan to the FAA by July 29.

"There seems to be a great preponderance of people who want to keep the airport land," said Mayor Lloyd Davis

Storm to show originals at Artisan's Gallery

Mark Storm, a member of the Texas Cowboy Artists Association, will show original oils and signed prints July 4-6 at the Artisan's Shop and Gallery in Ruidoso.

Storm, who was trained as a commercial and industrial artist before devoting full time to western art in 1973, will be honored at a reception on the evening of July 5.

Storm was one of a crew of artists that worked on the Humble Oil and Refining Company's exhibit for the Texas Centennial celebration in 1936. He illustrated a publication called "Texas Brags," which was widely circulated during and after World War II.

Storm became a charter member of the Texas Cowboy Artists Association in 1973 and served as its president in 1976. His work includes a variety of western landscapes including cattle and cowboys. Although his Ruidoso show will focus on his painting, Storm also does sculpture.

In the early 1930s, Storm's family bought a ranch in the Ruidoso Valley and the young Mark returned to the valley for many summers.

He used to ride in the local rodeos and is proud of the fact that he won the bronc riding event in the Fort Stanton Rodeo for the Fourth of July in 1933.

Storm now makes his home in Houston and is still active in local rodeo and horsemen's association.

He was commissioned to paint a special commemorative poster for the 50th anniversary of the Houston Livestock Show and Rodeo in 1982.

ROBERT ROWE with one of the reed organs he has restored.

Restoring relics of the past

By NORMAN ASHLEY

Not many people know or remember what a reed organ is, although at the turn of the century more than 200 companies were manufacturing them in the United States. Robert Rowe is keeping the memory alive.

At his home near Monjou Peak, Rowe restores and repairs these relics from the past, assembling a history with ingredients from such diverse places as Chloride, NM, Chicago, IL and Brattleboro, VT.

In Rowe's living room stands a reed organ in dark wood with scroll work and gold leaf built by the David C. Cook Company in Chicago, which was delivered new in 1886 to a school in Chloride.

Reed, or pump organs as they are commonly called, were made by the millions beginning in the 1880s. One maker, the Jacob Estey Company of Brattleboro, VT, had built more than 250,000 by 1982. Being the largest employer, the whole town turned out for a party to celebrate the event.

One of the first, J. Estey & Co. was also the last to manufacture reed organs. The business was closed in 1961 and is recalled now only in memories of the good old days.

Pump organs were of two types. Parlor organs were solo instruments, a fixture in many homes long before radio or television. Electricity was unheard of in the home, so each organ was fitted with pedestals for candles or oil lamps to see by.

Chapel organs were quieter for accompanying a choir. They were usually low in height and ornamented on both sides so as to be attractive, standing along in the church.

Most reed organs were highly decorated, the fashions changing from year to year, much as clothing and automobiles do today. They ranged in price from $250 to $400.

During this era of mechanical inventions, reed organs were combined in a single cabinet with desks, bookshelves or pianos. One model was a combination sewing machine organ! Needless

Popular art classes at Carrizo Lodge

By M. DeBERGE

This is the 30th year of art classes at the historic Carrizo Lodge located two miles outside Ruidoso.

Carrizo Lodge was first owned in 1879 by Colonel George Purrington, a commander at Fort Stanton. President Rutherford B. Hayes signed the patent granting title to the colonel. Then in 1923, New Mexico Military Institute bought it and used it for summer camp. In 1930, it became a dude ranch and in World War II the Army used it for rest and recreation. After that, Carrizo Lodge was bought and sold to several different private owners. Finally, in 1956 an artist and teacher bought it and taught the first art class that would be followed by many more in the years to come.

This summer there is an art school program taught by talented artist from all over the country. A different artist teaches a seminar each week and sometimes two. Oil, pastel, watercolor, and acrylic painting, drawing, calligraphy and creative writing are some of the seminars being offered.

All the artists are professionals and are well known. The small classes are held in large studios lit by northern light through skylights and windows, and are occasionally held outside.

All classes have 25 or fewer students so that individual attention can be given to each. The classes are mixed with beginner and advanced students. The seminars are inexpensive, $175 for the five-day seminar. Each class begins at 9 a.m. and ends at 4 p.m. The artists usually give a free lecture, demonstration and occasional slide show for students, guests, and the public in the evening.

This is the first summer Carrizo Lodge has been open under its new owners and management. Carla Tam, manager, has plans for improvement of Carrizo Lodge. There are two large darkrooms that should be used in photography seminars in the near future. She would also like to have pottery and ceramic classes.

The downstairs studios are large enough for seminars on the performing arts that Tam plans for the very near future, possibly next summer.

Carrizo Lodge has three large suanas, two weight rooms and an exercise room that soon will be available for use. There is a convenience store and a restaurant that serves "home-style cooking."

F. Samuelson

'If you paint what you see, you get junk'

By M. DeBERGE

Fred Samuelson is presently teaching a seminar at Carrizo Lodge in Ruidoso.

His workshop includes opaque and transparent techniques in acrylic, approaches to collage painting, experimentation with various painting surfaces, sketch development, and elimination of perspective without the loss of representational image.

Samuelson received his BFA and MFA degrees at the Art Institute of Chicago. He has taught many seminars and workshops since 1964. He has done 17 group shows and 11 one-man shows since 1955. He has had numerous awards and is listed in Who's Who in American Art, Who's Who in International Art, Men of Achievement and many other publications. Samuelson's work is represented in galleries in Florida, Texas and Arizona.

During Samuelson's slide show and presentation June 30 at Carrizo Lodge, he explained his many techniques. He said that horizontal, vertical, diagonal, and curved lines are used in all of his paintings. Horizontal lines give space and quietness to a painting. Vertical lines give stability and when extended, flatten out space. Diagonal lines give movement in a painting. Curved lines soften the painting's feeling.

All of his work has atmosphere conditions, but he uses no three-dimensional qualities, just second dimensions. Samuelson told his audience, "I try to paint themes, not things" and "If you paint what you see you get junk; interpret, please." He feels that one should be creative when painting and not be afraid to experiment.

In his early years of painting, 1948 to 1964, he worked with oils. Since then he has been working with acrylics. The past "200 or 300" of his paintings have been done with a new technique where he first saturates his paper with water, then lays different types of napkins, paper towels, and toilet paper on the wet paper. Then he puts acrylic paint on top of it all and lays it in the sun for 20 to 30 minutes to dry. After it is almost dry, he takes off the different papers. Once the painting is fully dry, he uses pastel pencils to make the paint designs to his liking and completes the painting.

Samuelson's work is presently being displayed at the gallery in Carrizo Lodge. His seminar at Carrizo Lodge is June 30-July 4 on acrylics, canvas and collages with new creative techniques.

Mini mall may change the Carrizozo scene

By M. DeBERGE

Robert Wadsworth, Crossroads Motel owner, and Glen Ellison have begun a project that will soon affect all of Carrizozo—a mini mall and tourist information center near the intersection of Highways 54 and 380.

The mini mall is designed to look like an old western town and is surrounded by green grass. The plan is to rent out the individual shops to local arts and crafts people and artists. They feel that it will be profitable not only from the location, but also from the tourists of the Greyhound bus that stops across the street and others who see the mini mall while passing through or by Carrizozo.

In the main building, they plan a tourist information center, a small store and a snow cone stand. The lawn is a place where many activities for the tourists and locals can be held and be centrally located. They plan to have small gun fights, picnics with live music, and much more.

Robert Wadsworth is from Ruidoso. He used to play music at Win Place Show and wants to play every Saturday night for Carrizozo in the new mini mall. He first saw and liked Carrizozo when passing through one year on the way to the Balloon Festival. He still enjoys the Carrizozo community.

On July 6, they are sponsoring a Pony Express Flea Market. It will cost $10 a space to set up a booth and all the money earned from renting these spaces will go the Pony Express Race. They plan to have live entertainment and a street dance. This would mark a new beginning for the Carrizozo mini mall.

OPINION

● HAPPY Independence Day, one of the few holidays this country's labor unions haven't succeeded in changing to the date of the Monday following or the Friday preceding July 4. This plan to observe holidays enables people to have three holidays instead of one, which results in extended visitation, socialization and/or bacchanalian debauchery—with full pay, naturally. So strong is the three-holiday-for-one syndrome that even when July 4 falls on Saturday or Sunday, Monday is commonly thrown in. While this may bring joy to the something-for-nothing crowd, it is a disaster to business and industry which must interrupt business and commerce, dislocate production schedules, and still pony up a day's wages to millions of workers for doing nothing. I hate holidays.

● PLEASE stop saying that July 4 is a national holiday. There is no such thing as a national holiday. The president and Congress can legally designate holidays only for federal employees and the District of Columbia. Each state determines whether to observe any holiday. Actually, there are only five legal holidays observed by all the 50 states on the same day—New Year's Day, Independence Day, Labor Day, Thanksgiving Day and Christmas Day. Armistice Day is observed by some states on the original date, Nov. 11. Lately, it's name has been changed to Veteran's Day and observed in some states on the fourth Monday in November—to get that three-day holiday, get it?

● A NEW holiday was born last year, Martin Luther King Day, and its first celebration lasted an entire week, an overblown tribute to the old scoundrel. By contrast, neither Washington's nor Lincoln's birthdate is a legal holiday in every state, which may say something about how American values are being rearranged. Except for Christmas, no religious holy day is a nationwide legal holiday, something the American Civil Liberties Union has overlooked in its successful attempt to stamp out all religious symbols in government. Christmas is a religious holiday, observed and recognized by government at every level. The ACLU just hasn't mustered the guts to get Christmas declared unconstitutional. Anyway, have a jolly Independence Day, and give thanks that it is still observed on July 4 and not on the first Monday following the first weekend in July.

● ON July 4 we will be celebrating the 210th birthday of the United States of America. The occasion is highlighted by the 100th birthday of the restored Statue of Liberty in New York Harbor. The statue has come to symbolize America's invitation to the world's poor and huddled masses to seek sanctuary in the US. Not so. The statue was intended to cement Franco-American relations, to woo support for France in restoring political stability in that country following the disastrous regime of Napoleon III. After all, France helped Washington in the American Revolution and helped the Union side in the Civil War, and it wanted the favors returned. The statue by Frederic Auguste Bartholdi, dedicated in 1886 in New York Harbor over the protests of the US government, The New York Times, and the state and city of New York, demonstrated the use of art as a political weapon to involve the US in France's troubled political and economic plight. The gift was also condemned by US Protestants who viewed it as idolatrous and Catholics who thought it was a false idol for pagan worship.

● THE STATUE was originally called Liberty Enlightening the World. It did not originally symbolize this country as a haven for the "poor and huddled masses" of the world, but as one of liberty and opportunity. The "poor and huddled masses" business was conceived in 1903 with the attachment of a bronze plaque to the base of the statue bearing the closing lines of a poem written by Emma Lazarus before her death in 1887. These lines from her poem The New Colossus changed the entire meaning of the nature of the statue: "Give me your tired, Your poor, your huddled masses, yearning to breathe free, The wretched refuse of your teeming shore; Send these, the homeless, tempest tossed, to me; I lift my lamp beside the golden door." It influenced Americans to believe that government has the duty to help the poor and oppressed, here and worldwide. The idea peaked with Roosevelt's New Deal in the 1930s, and is firmly ingrained in our political character to this day. Had such been its original purpose, it would have been placed, not on Bedloe's Island in New York Harbor, but on the US-Mexico border.

● PERHAPS the face of New Mexico Gov. Toney Anaya should be placed on the statue's base near the Emma Lazarus inscription. He recently told the National Press Club in Washington that his declaration of New Mexico as a sanctuary for illegal aliens had boosted his spirits. I suppose it could be spiritually uplifting to conspire to violate federal laws that make it a felony to aid and assist an illegal alien. Offering sanctuary is such a felony, as the governor well knows. By his own admission, the governor is a criminal. But what the hell, his spirit has been boosted.

● NOBODY will be cheering Lady Liberty on her 100th birthday with more enthusiasm than I. But my thoughts will be devoted to the Statue of Liberty as a symbol of liberty, enlightenment and opportunity—not to the bastardization of it as a sanctuary for the poor and huddled masses of the world.

HAPPY BIRTHDAY, AMERICA

Cooperation is the key

A spirit of cooperation is essential if a new airport is to be built in Lincoln County.

The five government entities represented on the Sierra Blanca Airport Commission must work with one another if a new airport on Fort Stanton Mesa is to become a reality. The airport commission (SBAC) was formed to bring the county, the villages of Capitan, Ruidoso Downs and Ruidoso, and the Mescalero Apache Tribe together in a cooperative effort to replace the existing Ruidoso airport.

SBAC members threw their cooperative spirits out the window when they voted to become the lead agency in developing an access road to the new airport. Lincoln County Commissioners had already decided they would be the leaders in developing and designing the road.

The county's decision did not deter SBAC members from unanimously approving a motion to put themselves in the lead to develop the road. They had to reverse that decision when it became clear that the county would not back down.

This tug-of-war between the SBAC and the county presented a very poor picture to the New Mexico Highway Commission and particularly Commissioner Bill Lee, who had worked so hard to get a $600,000 grant to study the road route and alignment.

Although he didn't come right out and say it, Lee had indicated to members of the SBAC that it would be most logical to have the county as lead agency. The new road is, after all, going to be a county road.

If the SBAC had insisted on being the lead agency, was it ready to maintain the road after it was built?

SBAC members who voted in favor of putting themselves in the lead said they did so to expedite the process. The process is going to take time no matter who is in the lead. The developer, whether it be the county or the SBAC, can not change the fact, and the SBAC should have avoided a confrontation with the county in the spirit of cooperation—cooperation that will become increasingly important as the airport project progresses.

Raw power

SANTA FE—Two vignettes give you the beginning and the end of a story.

The first is of that same Houston's closest associate, on the day Houston was elected to lead our state senate, telling everyone who would listen that New Mexico was about to get a lesson in the use of "raw power" it will never forget.

The second is of that same Houston, on the day that leadership post was stripped from him, swearing that, if he ever has such power again, four Republicans who contributed to his humiliation that day will pay a bitter price for what they did.

Given those two scenes, almost anyone can write the middle of the story.

EXCESS: One who revels in the exercise of raw power will almost inevitably over-use it to muscle others into doing his will. What good is the power he has acquired otherwise?

And anyone who over-uses power lets himself in for blindsiding by those who resent being muscled around by him.

So we had in our state senate in the last two years almost a classical situation. Call it The Rise and Fall of Les Houston.

First, with almost magnificent chutzpah, he, a Democrat, extorted from the Republicans in the senate, most of them greenies serving their first terms, a letter that, we are told, committed them to follow wherever Houston led.

He used that ironclad group of votes to overthrow Ike Smalley, who had served for many satisfactory years as president pro tem of the body.

But Houston asked too much of others and gave them too little. Senators outside his band had been reduced to almost total insignificance, and some of those who had originally pledged to go where he led grew restive. There was little "give" in Houston, they complained, as they grew tired of what they saw as his arrogance.

THE SHIFT: Meanwhile, Houston himself did two uncharacteristic things. He changed his own registration from the Democratic party to the Republican one; and he, the preeminent resister of gubernatorial power, threw in his lot with Toney Anaya, for whom he had originally showed little but contempt and whom he had once schemed to block at every step of the way.

He evidently believed "raw power" would see him through—and that could be the point at which hubris began to do him in.

Anyway, his power didn't protect him. Those who opposed him and resented him joined with those who were presumably pledged to him but also resented him to show they could exercise power as well. That they did, and when the smoke cleared, Houston's leadership role had been taken from him by a vote of 23 to 19. What's worse, from his point of view, the senator chosen to replace him was Ike Smalley, whom he had previously pushed so unceremoniously aside.

CONTRADICTION: Probably the largest irony of the day as these dramatic happenings stirred up an otherwise routine special legislative session was the horror expressed by those in the losing group, the Senate Republicans who stuck with Houston. They were aghast, they told us, that four of their one-time conferees had strayed off the reservation to vote for Smalley, a Democrat. That, they implied, is a mortal sin—though all those expressing that view had voted for Houston to take the leader's job when he was an active member of that same Democratic party they resented so much this day.

to say, there was little demand for such a contraption.

Most parlor organs were built to be maintained by the owner. Rowe said most can be disassembled with a screwdriver, a slotted one. The Phillips screw hadn't been yet invented.

Unlike pianos, once a reed organ is tuned at the factory, it never needs tuning again. Rowe's Cook organ is still in tune 100 years later.

Another surprising feature is the plastic keys which haven't cracked yet. Of course, some problems occurred. Sears, Roebuck & Co. issued a pamphlet dealing with such problems as "What to do with mice living inside your organ."

Rowe became interested in pump organs about five years ago when he and his wife, Charlotte, were visiting friends in Leads, SD, who own one. "As soon as I saw it, I knew I wanted one," Rowe said. "I love mechanical things, and with my interest in music it was a natural."

Rowe added he has played piano and organ since he was 10 years old. "A long time," he said. He is also interested in

Letters TO THE EDITOR

Carrizozo's hospitality

EDITOR—Several weeks ago a friend of mine and I were held up in Carrizozo for two days waiting for a replacement for our blown water pump.

We were on a trip to Santa Fe to celebrate our graduation from SMU and were mighty disappointed when we discovered we couldn't make it.

But, it wasn't long before our disappointment turned to wonder as we began to explore Carrizozo. What I found most wonderful was the people, the older man at the Napa parts, like the whole town, always seemed to go the extra mile to help us out. We were honored to get a visit from the mayor as we sat at the park. "Bob" (as his belt buckle indicated) made us feel welcome and even let us in on some of his cattle raising philosophy.

The next day we decided to walk to Fire Valley and though we weren't hitchhiking, at least four people offered us a ride.

One of the things I remember most fondly was the Four Winds Restaurant. I am a native of New York and my friend is a native of Lubbock, TX and we have eaten in many restaurants all over the country, but I can honestly say that The Four Winds Restaurant served the best Mexican food either of us have ever had! The huevos rancheros was my favorite.

My friend and I were in a disappointing situation, and the time we spent in your town could have been stored away with memories of rained out picnics and broken plans, but the warmth of the people of Carrizozo made the time, if not idealic, certainly something special. Thank you, and God bless you!

LISA E. SEYFERT, Dallas, TX.

US money for Sandinistas

EDITOR—Instead of giving $100 million in aid to the Contras in Nicaragua, President Reagan could strike at the heart of the matter by issuing an Executive Order as he did in the case of South Africa, prohibiting US banks from loaning huge sums to Communist-bloc countries which then turn around and loan funds to the Sandinistas.

A case in point is the $1.1 billion that US banks raised last spring for East Germany, which funneled $20 million to Nicaragua (Wall Street Journal, Feb. 5, 1986.) Why isn't the president stopping this commercial bank lending that is being used to undercut his own stated objectives?

Why should US banks be making money on loans that help the Sandinistas while taxpayers are being asked to finance the Contras?

Although these loans could be stopped by Executive Order there are also several bills pending in both the Senate and House that would accomplish the same thing. The president could be supporting these bills yet we have heard nothing but silence concerning HR 97 and HR 1345. The American people should be asking, why?

MILLIE COLE, Lodi, CA.

Harassed at the Nike

EDITOR—On the night of June 27, several people were sitting on the porch of the Nike Tavern at Carrizozo at approximately 1 a.m.

We were approached by a county officer by the name of Watson. He stated that he had been dispatched to the area because someone was breaking into cars. He asked us if we were the ones breaking into the vehicles. We told him the vehicles belonged to us. He started getting verbally abusive, threatening to arrest us for no reason at all.

Then he went to some other people and started breaking glasses and bottles getting physically abusive, swinging his big flashlight, almost striking the citizens around him.

Everything was alright until he came and started the disturbance himself. He showed himself as a poor example of the law. He should take lessons from our city police.

HELPING HAND

It is true that compared to other communities Carrizozo has very little crime—reported crime, that is.

This may be typical of small town living where citizens may be afraid to call the police because of retribution (repayment) by the alleged law breaker.

Crime prevention is the major goal of any law enforcement agency and a duty of all law enforcement officers.

Chris Gomez, Carrizozo's new town police (and new resident of the town) can better perform his duties with the aid of concerned citizens.

Gomez and Chief of Police C. A. Morales can do so much in the way of crime prevention, but with community involvement their job can be much more effective.

With the additional eyes and ears of the community members the town police ability to apprehend a law breaker is greater.

If a resident is not intimidated by law violators, they will not care who knows that they help their town by calling police attention to suspicious activity.

If a person wishes to remain anonymous to the public, that is fine also. But the only way to deter crime is by people getting involved, anonymously or not.

OK, so Carrizozo has a low crime rate. Let's keep it that way. This type of atmosphere is great for raising a crop of children, especially teenagers. Right? Parents need all the help they can get.

SUSPICIOUS SIGHTINGS

Evenings, weekends, and holidays seems to be the times when law enforcement is most needed. If you suspect anything unusual in Carrizozo, call the Lincoln County Sheriff's Department anytime at 648-2341.

They are available to immediately dispatch a town police officer 24-hours a day. The radio and telephone communications provided for Carrizozo town police by the sheriff's department is a valuable tool in crime prevention for our little town.

Although a police secretary is stationed at the town hall's police department (648-2351) she is only available Monday through Friday, 8 a.m. to 5 p.m. Just like you, she too can phone the message to the sheriff's dispatchers, unless at the time the town police officer is in her office or she can reach him with her little CB from her office at city hall.

In addition there is a 911 number at the sheriff's department for cases where there is immediate danger to life or property. In incidents like this a county deputy will assist the town police officer.

Keep the above telephone numbers posted by your phone. Teach your children and their babysitters how to call for help.

It is better to be a pest than a victim.

OUR LITTLE ANGELS

The poor attendance of parents at the Carrizozo town meeting when curfew was discussed does not mean that youth will be allowed to loiter until the wee hours of the morning.

Our present mayor and trustees, like all past administrations, face the job of updating or improving certain ordinances. Mayor Hemphill is doing all he can to "put teeth into" our present law on curfew and has informed parents about a public hearing. If parents did not remember to show up, it is not his fault.

Town fathers (and mothers) who serve on Carrizozo's council will consider a proposed curfew ordinance on July 22.

If parents could not be present to give input before, perhaps they would like to attend the July 22 meeting to learn first hand what penalty we parents face if "our little darlings" decide to sneak out to town without our permission after an established curfew hour. (For now curfew is at 10:30 p.m. every evening, including weekends.)

It would be a good idea if our little angels could also be present to learn the new rules of curfew, otherwise parents and offspring are in the dark until the news is published in this newspaper, sometimes days later.

ONE PARENT

Spectators at town meetings are rare, generally, so word-of-mouth travels slow in some instances.

Take for example the public input at the curfew meeting.

People present on other official business who are parents of curfew age children: James Aske, town attorney (his wife came later); Carol Schlarb, town clerk; Choncho Morales, chief of police; Faustino Gallegos, town foreman; and Polly Chavez (me), representing the NEWS for police-related news items. I have the most curfew age children.

The other people present in the audience: Ruth Hammond, NEWS reporter; Bill Smith and Marvin Rowan, interested members of the community, and Chris Gomez, town policeman.

Last but not least, one (1) lone woman voiced her opinion on curfew. Her input was interesting and helpful.

POWERFUL DEPARTMENT

Back in March, Chama mayor Harry Apodaca was advised that he had no authority to make policy changes in the police department in his role as police commissioner.

Village Marshall T. E. Maez and his officer had earlier received a letter from Apodaca indicating that they would be required to park their police cars at the village yard during hours specified by Apodaca.

Village attorney Bill Keller said that according to the NM Municipal League Manual for Municipal Police Departments, the police commissioner (in this case the mayor of Chama) has no individual authority whatsoever over the department. Keller stated that the entire council must make policy with the police chief's advice.

"In other words, in order to establish a specific policy the matter must be brought before the trustees at a duly convened meeting, and formal action must be taken approving the proposed policy after the chief gives his input," Keller stated.

MANIPULATION AVOIDED

"A police commissioner simply does not have any authority to set any policies on his or her own," Keller stated, adding, "The commissioner for the police department is in a very different position than commissioners for other departments, who do, in fact have real authority."

The reasoning behind not giving authority to the police commissioner is very sound, Keller said: "The situation removes the possibility that a police commissioner will manipulate a police department for his/her own political or other improper ends."

"This is very important since the police department is the most powerful department in any city government, and since the potential for gross abuse of power is so great," the Chama village attorney concluded.

PARADISE FALLS: The Paradise Canyon Bridge in Ruidoso became the site of a waterfall after heavy rains washed it away.

Two new zonings approved by P&Z

The Ruidoso Planning and Zoning Commission approved two new zoning classifications, an environmental conservation zone (EC-1) and a public lands zone (PL-1), at a special meeting last week.

The new zoning classifications must be approved by the Ruidoso Village Council before they can be incorporated into the new zoning ordinance.

The EC-1 zone will replace the old forest hillside protection zone designation and is designed to preserve and protect trees, fauna and flora within the village.

Public land zones will be principally park areas, but other permitted land uses include golf courses, day care centers, public buildings, airports and planned area developments.

P&Z chairman Mike Callaghan said the principal reason the new PL-1 designation was being considered was because the current airport lands will be vacated when a new airport is built on Ft. Stanton Mesa.

"We want a way of controlling the airport land once it is vacated," Callaghan said.

The new designation will also apply to existing golf courses such as that at Cree Meadows Country Club.

Commission member Mary Underwood cast the lone dissenting vote against the PL-1 designation.

"If Cree Meadows decided they didn't want a golf course, I wouldn't think the village would have any right to tell them what they could do with their land," Underwood said. "I think you're taking those rights away from the people."

Callaghan said that the village needed some way of controlling the development of both the airport land and those lands currently dedicated to golf courses.

"This (the new designations) keeps us just of the woods," he said.

In other business the P&Z accepted commercial development plans for a new drive-through bank at the Ruidoso Financial Center on Mechem Drive and for an addition to the Ruidoso Chiropractic Center on Horton Circle.

Capitan News

By Margaret Rench

This area received 2.6 inches of rain last week. It is great and so appreciated, refreshing and enjoyed. The country has turned green and lovely.

The Village of Capitan Billing Department has the June billing on the computer and requests everyone's patience with errors that will undoubtedly crop up. It has been a long process, but thanks to the remarkable work of Bill Allred, it has all fallen together. There are still a few problems, but with Bill's help everything should be running smoothly.

Let's all attend the 27th Annual Smokey Bear Stampede with all its activities. The parade, barbecue, rodeo performances, crowning of the new Lincoln County Queen, and the dances should make for a grand holiday. The parade is at 10:30 a.m. Let's make this a happy and grateful holiday and enjoy this one together with sincerity and joy.

Anyone wanting their brand on the CowBelle Brand Board, get in touch with Janice Herd, 354-2489, Capitan, by July 7. It's not too late.

The Capitan 4-H Horse Judging Team won 4th place in district judging in Portales last week. Do not be discouraged. Just keep being sincere and working hard at it and you will come out on top. We are proud of you.

The Smokey Bear Museum had 1344 registered visitors, June 23-29. Pauline (Closner) Hampton Lasiter of Edinberg, TX and ngw of Westlaco, TX visited there this past week. She said she and Charlette (Jesse) LaMay of Capitan were aboard a troop ship, the Athos II, Dec. 21, 1945 on the Atlantic Ocean. They were WACS at that time, and weathered a storm at sea. She said to ask Charlette if she remembered C deck? This lady is spending the summer in Ruidoso: Pauline Lasiter, Recreation Village, P.O. Box 1385-Sp, 64, Ruidoso, 88345. Charlette, if you read this, contact your friend. She would be happy to hear from you.

Another visitor at the museum was Mrs. Campbell (Lenor Keller) Freeland, daughter Joan and granddaughter Mickie and grandson Chad. She was a resident of Capitan from 1938-1942. She now resides in Bakersfield, CA. They were enjoying a family reunion at Mayhill.

Happy birthday and many more to Gerald Dean Sr. whose bright day was June 20. May you have many more with good health and happiness.

I, too, Mrs. Rench had her 64th birthday Monday, June 30, 1986. A very happy, grateful day. This is a beautiful time of life. Thanks to all my friends. May God bless you.

The Capitan Church of Christ will hold its Vacation Bible School July 14-18. Buses will pick up all children ages 2-high school, 9-11:15 a.m.

Sharon Darby and son Devon and Anthony Montes will visit the White House on July 15. They will tour the White House and hope to see the president.

Wendy and Mosty Hobbs of El Paso are visiting their father and grandparents, Grady, Willis and Wayne Hobbs.

Mr. and Mrs. Wayne Hobbs attended the wedding of Tammy Dean and Andy Willingham in Ruidoso last Saturday. They are a lovely couple and we wish them many happy years together.

Stephen, son of Mr. and Mrs. David Strickland, returned this weekend from spending one month with his aunt Judy and Mathel Green in Jal. Their son Clay Strickland will be married in Hobbs Aug. 1.

Hank Means' son and family from Texas visited his family last weekend.

Sixty-five-year-old L. A. Greenfield of Lubbock, TX died June 20. His sister, Ellen Faye Hammons, spent a week there during that time.

I enjoyed a delicious dinner at K-Bob's in a party of six given by Rosemarie D'Elia honoring her father, Dr. Mark J. D'Elia's employees: Janice Bellon and her husband Ralph, Richard Portillo, Margaret Rench, Carl Ducept and Rosemarie. It was a farewell instance. We had many years of joy and happiness with them and memories are the greatest. Thank you, Rosemarie. May God bless you. The joy has been ours.

Southwest Airlines

Interest in airport 'a bit premature'

An announcement that Southwest Airlines is interested in serving the proposed Sierra Blanca Airport may have been premature, said airport manager Fred Heckman.

Heckman said a letter had been received from Phil Watkiss, director of market planning for Southwest in Dallas.

"He said they would be watching our development and they look forward to talking with us someday about service," Heckman said.

"It's a little bit premature being that we don't even have our first funding allocation or construction deadlines set," he added.

Watkiss could not be reached for comment.

John Hall, a local realtor, said he and a group of Ruidoso businessmen had made a presentation to Southwest Airlines' marketing staff.

The presentation had been handled by Kevin Clear of the Clear & Company marketing firm. The firm prepared a 75-page report about the Ruidoso area.

"It includes statistics like the number of beds, eating establishments, bank deposits and gross receipts," Hall said.

He noted the report also compares Ruidoso to other resort areas.

"It points out that we had more skler days than Jackson Hole, Wyoming," Hall said.

The businessmen will be working with the Sierra Blanca Airport Commission in the future to make presentation to other airline companies.

"What we wanted to do is make sure that we're not building an airport (runway) that's 400 feet short and can't handle jets," Hall said.

Heckman said he has offered to sit down with Southwest's technical staff and pilots and staff of other airline companies to see what their technical requirements are.

"We're offering to do this principally to get the benefit of their ideas and give the public some awareness of what we're doing," Heckman said. "We want to learn from others mistakes, it's not that we don't have confidence in our airport engineers."

United New Mexico buys Capitan bonds

Capitan voters went to the polls on March 4 and passed a $600,000 general obligation bond issue. The Village Council met June 26 and sold these bonds to low bidder, United New Mexico Bank of Vaughn. The effective yield is 7.799108 percent.

Nan Halligan of Stern Bros. of Albuquerque, financial adviser for the village, opened the paying agent bid. Village trustees accepted Sunwest Bank of Albuquerque with a set up fee of $300, an annual fee of $200 for 12 years for a total of $2,700.

Mayor Coker appointed a financial advisory board to oversee the general obligation bond structure and handle finances. Trustee Rouleau was named chairman. Also appointed were R. L. VanNorman and Leon Eggleston.

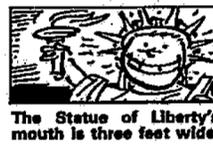

Closing date for the bonds will be within 30 days. At this time the Village of Capitan will receive the proceeds.

A public hearing will be held on July 14 at 6 p.m. concerning the CDBG application. The regular meeting of the council is 7 p.m.

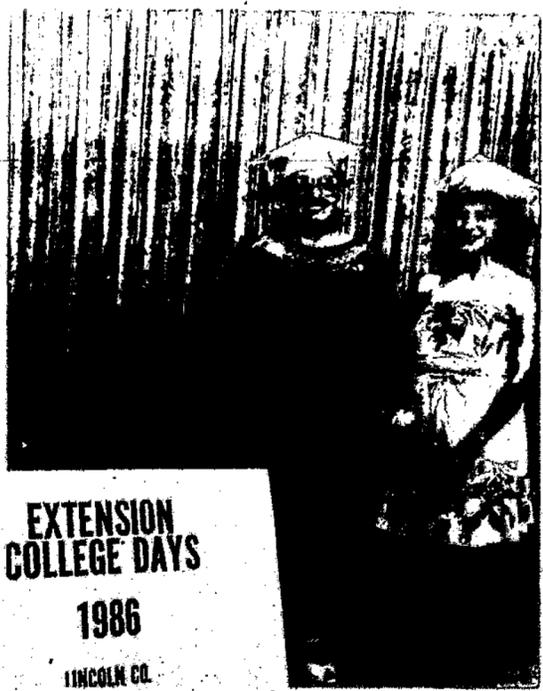

The Village Hall will be closed July 4.

The Village of Capitan has issued the following public notice: "Notice is hereby rendered that during the past few days, of June 1986, the turbidity analysis exceeded the maximum allowable limits as set by the Environmental Protection Agency subchapter D of the Safe Drinking Water Act.

"The Village of Capitan has made and is making every effort to reduce the levels of turbidity incls. We do not feel that the public health is endangered, and we will continue with the necessary steps to lower turbidity levels. However, we do recommend that cooking and drinking water be boiled until further notice."

Lincoln County

'Long Ago'

By Ruth Hammond

The Lincoln Independent, published at Lincoln, Lincoln County, New Mexico, every Friday, Mrs. A. L. McGinnis, Editor and Publisher, Friday, March 11, 1892.

Statehood
The New York Sun says: The Territory of New Mexico has a better chance of statehood, and a better right to it, than any of the other applicants for it. Its population is about three times as large as that of Oklahoma at this time.

The last census showed that its population is greater than that of the states of Idaho and Wyoming combined, and three times that of the state of Nevada. It is a fine grain-growing country; it has rich mining interests, and extensive industries of many kinds; it attracts a steady stream of immigrants, and it has enjoyed unusual prosperity within recent years.

As far back as 1874, both houses of congress voted for a bill to admit New Mexico into the union as a state, and this bill failed to become law merely because the conference committee of the two houses could not come to an agreement over some of its details. Ever since that time, or for eighteen years past, the voters of New Mexico have been desirous of statehood, but congress has steadily refused to grant it, and the only objection to the granting of it has been that there is an incongruous muddle of races in New Mexico, and that but a small portion of the voters understand the American political system.

If this objection ever had any force, it lost all that force by the rapid advancement of the New Mexico people and the growth of education among them. There are many members of congress of both parties who now take the ground that the Sun took on this subject a month ago, when it said, editorially, that, as soon as the gates of the union are opened for the admission of a Territory to statehood, New Mexico should be the first Territory to come in.

If New Mexico be kept out through the action, or inaction, of the senate, its exclusion will be owing to the fact that the overwhelming majority of its voters are democratic. And this is a ground for exclusion that is certainly very discreditable to those who stand upon it. The chances are against admission of any new state until after the presidential election.

A remarkable trial of the possibilities of long distance telephoning was made last week in Philadelphia, when conversation in Boston was distinctly heard after a roundabout circuit of 1200 miles. In operating over distances the same difficulty is met with as in use of telegraph wires. The current loses its power by the earth's induction. A contrivance, however, has been partly perfected which answers the same purpose as a telegraphic repeater, and this new device was used the other day. The results were particularly satisfactory, and it is now felt certain that with the device used to strengthen the current at intervals along the line it will be but a very short time before a permanent wire is in operation between Chicago and eastern cities. —Ex.

9 new appointments to village boards

Ruidoso Mayor Lloyd Davis Jr. made new appointments to nine village boards and commissions during the regular village council meeting last week.

Newly appointed to the Planning and Zoning Commission were Eddie Nichols, Pete Thompson and Marie Rooney. Ken Carr was reappointed.

Don Samuels, Don Weems and Jim Carpenter were appointed to the village personnel board. L. Ray Numley was the only new appointment to the village parks and recreation board.

Dan Kelly was named to the lodger's tax advisory board and Ruth Schockley to the library board.

Village councillor Jerry Shaw and Slover Cape were named to the economic development board and councillors Victor Alonso and Dub Holt to the Ruidoso Valley Chamber of Commerce Economic Development Task Force.

Charles Land and Jeanne Moore were appointed to the cemetery advisory board.

Airport advisory board members Roy Parker, Wayne Dacy, Howard Tate and Myrt Vitlow were reappointed.

Suzie Rapp, Cece Griffin, Ellen Long and Leo Romero were added to the adult recreation advisory board, while Burdette Stampley, Flora Elliott and W. O. Rucker were reappointed.

All the new applicants were accepted by the village council.

Old-time camp meeting is still going strong

By DOROTHY GUCK

The Nogal Mesa Ranchmen's Camp Meeting in Lincoln County for 1986 will be held July 16-20.

Forty-six years ago, this camp meeting was started to fulfill a family need for friendship-gathering and religious experience missing in the lives of many ranchers. There were few churches, poor roads and means of transportation.

All is changed today, but camp meetings continue to serve the purpose of friendship-gathering, and renewal of active interest in the religious welfare of each individual's home town church. This four-day once-a-year meeting acts as an incentive to work the rest of the year in the denominations of our choice, to further local church fellowships. Ministers of various congregations cooperate to use the camp meetings for a revival and refreshment of their parishioner's faith.

Reminiscent of covered wagon days when our pioneers camped each evening on the trail to share their lives and beliefs, the camp meeting on 23 acres of land in the mountain coolness of Lincoln County offers chuck wagon meals with plenty of barbecued beef and beans, volunteer singing, and inspiration to better cope with all life's problems.

This is the year America joined hands across the nation in a pledge of fellowship. This is the year we honor the centennial of construction of Our Lady of Liberty. Camp meeting comradeship is a means of continuing that fellowship, and thanking God for the democratic freedom we Americans enjoy.

Opening services will be held in the tabernacle Wednesday evening after the first chuck wagon meal on the 16th. They will continue through Sunday evening, the 20th. This year, the preachers will be the Rev. Boyce Evans, Lubbock, TX; and the Rev. Randal Martin, of Las Cruces. Paul Biggs will be in charge of music, accompanied by Jane Shafer.

Officers in charge of running the camp are the Reverends Rick and Randy Steele, managers; LaMoyné and Opal Peters, Wesley Lindsey, Scott and Bob Shafer, Walt Wilson and Johnson Stearns; with a complete roster of New Mexico residents and their committees.

A memorial service for those who died during the year will be held Saturday afternoon under the direction of Chloe Peters and Glenda Armstrong. There are prayer meetings for men, women, youths and children. A schedule of fun activities, bonfires, hay rides, horseshoe pitching, etc. is planned.

For those attending for the first time, there is camping space available at no charge for those participating in the services. Some simple rules are posted for everyone's comfort. All youngsters must be sponsored or accompanied by adults. Bring your own campers, tents or bedrolls. Water, electricity and restrooms are provided. The altitude is 7,000 feet, so rainwear and jackets are essential.

If camping is not possible, everyone is welcome to attend daily services. Meals are served from large cauldrons by the ranchmen at 6 to 8 a.m. and 12:30 and 6:30 p.m. Tabernacle services are at 11 a.m., 3 p.m. and 8 p.m. Group prayer meetings are held at 5 p.m. There is a registration booth to provide other needed information or directions. The camp is financed by unpressured freewill donations. A business meeting will be held Sunday afternoon, the 20th.

There are nine camp meetings held in the southwest, with a new one added this year. They are in Colorado, Arizona, Texas, New Mexico and Oklahoma, all with general management of the Steele brothers. Each has its own independent meeting programs.

The Nogal Mesa grounds can be reached by the Lincoln National Forest road at the sign turning off US 380 about five miles west of Capitan and 15 miles east of Carrizozo, or by the road turning off State Road 37 past Nogal Lake. Further information may be obtained at United New Mexico Bank, Carrizozo, NM 88301. Reservations are not necessary.

July 12 will be a work day for volunteers, to put the camp in readiness. Bring a basket lunch and enjoy the day.

School board wrestles with test score problems

CORONA—Corona School Board met twice during June and considered controversial issues on each occasion.

Standardized test scores were reported during the regularly scheduled meeting on June 10 where a group of parents voiced their concern about those scores.

Corona head teacher Patricia Perkins reported that students who took the ACT compiled an average composite score of 12.12 (of a possible 36), down from 16.12 last year.

The standardized test, designed to test academic capabilities of college-bound high school juniors and seniors, attempts to measure knowledge in English, math, social studies and natural science. Corona students scored highest in the natural science category; individual scores ranged from 6 to 27 making the average score 14.66. The national average in that same subject was 20.4.

English scores averaged 13.66, with social studies ranking next at an 11.6 average. Lowest scores occurred in math where the average was 7.9. A national average math score of 15.6 also reflected the lowest level of mastery among the subjects tested. Corona's scores were similar to those of schools with comparable enrollments.

On the Comprehensive Test of Basic Skills (CTBS), no trends could be expressed, although scores in reading and language arts were generally down. The class of 1988, however, improved its scores in almost every subject area and compared well with students on the national level. The ANCE scores show the level of performance on each test, typified by students like Corona's—students of similar age, grade, and academic ability. This year's sophomores at Corona were above the anticipated achievement normal curve equivalent (ANCE) scores in all but two categories.

Other classes showed a mixed bag of scores, with students showing progress or regress in a variety of subjects.

Mrs. Jeannene Gibbs reported CTBS scores for elementary students and showed that some scores in the language area were generally down.

"I am disturbed with the drop in language scores in the intermediate grades," she said and added that several variables affected the scores. "We have new textbooks which, I feel, do not stress grammar as much as the old text did in grades 4 through 7." She added that certain study skills are not stressed enough in the new texts.

Other variables could include the effect of multiple grade groupings and the number of students enrolled whose primary language is not English. "We don't know exactly why scores drop, but we can do several things to address the problem," she said.

Among these things will be shoring up individual weaknesses, giving more attention to grammar and vocabulary, and giving particular attention to sentence and paragraph structure.

Mrs. Gibbs praised library aide Marie Owen for her work with elementary students: test scores were up in the Reference Skills category. Spelling scores also improved. Other scores—those in science, math, social studies, and reading—were mixed.

Mrs. Gibbs cautioned those present about placing too much emphasis on test scores as many variables affect an individual's score, and even more variables affect an "average" class score.

She explained that probably at least 10 students need to be tested for an average score to be considered valid; for example, if a class has only three members, and one of those three students scores extremely high, his score pulls the others disproportionately high. The class score really isn't a fair reflection of those students' abilities, she said.

In other business, the board agreed to continue the volleyball program with Teresita Stewart as coach.

Lee Sultemeier, a parent concerned about test scores, had asked to be put on the agenda. She questioned the quality of education that students at Corona are receiving. A lively discussion ensued with no resolution being made.

The board was called into special session on June 24 to discuss a personnel matter.

After more than 1 1/2 hours in executive session, Board President Ernest Copeland called the public meeting back to order and reported that the board had laid out specific budgetary and program guidelines to be used in the expanded vocational agriculture program. The board agreed to allow vo ag teacher Jamie Widner and his students to participate in a variety of activities including the Lincoln County and New Mexico State Fairs, National FFA Convention, state judging contest and State FFA convention. Transportation, gas and expenses were to be shared as specifically set out by the board.

Widner voiced his satisfaction with the resolution although parents present at the meeting expressed their feelings that the ag program was not receiving fair treatment. Board members explained that under the current financial crunch, their solution was, in their opinion, as fair as any could be.

The board then proceeded to change the 1986-87 school calendar. Board members agreed to delete the Labor Day holiday in Sept. 1 and let school out the week of Sept. 8 for the State Fair. Spring break was changed to March 30 through April 3. May 30, will be the last day of school.

The board will hold its regular scheduled meeting on July 8 at which time curriculum revisions and graduation requirements will be discussed.

Lincoln Town

Ramblings

By Rosalie Dunlap

We are happy to have Cy Salas home. He suffered several broken ribs, a punctured lung and severe bruises, both internally and externally, when he fell from a ladder.

He was doing repair work on the house when one leg of the ladder sunk in the dirt, causing the ladder to fall with him.

His sons, Art Salas of Ft. Bayard and Robert Salas of California came to see him while he was in the Ruidoso hospital.

Mr. and Mrs. Jerry Burchett are parents of a boy, Robert Grey. Marilyn says they are already calling him Robbie.

Work has begun on Double Crossing, Salazar turnoff again. It has turned into a major undertaking, but it should be safer for traffic going onto the highway from the county road.

Barry Hale's (our area deputy sheriff) daughter Nita is visiting him this summer. They are living up Alamo Canyon.

Sharon Daughtery and son Kevin have moved to the Mill house on the Betty Martin property.

The new "Old Patron Store" is now open Friday through Tuesday. They feature items of handspun wool, soap, folk art and lots of other items.

Mr. and Mrs. Virgil Peters of Tularosa were recent visitors in Lincoln. He worked on the highway 46 years ago and he and his wife lived at the Bonito Inn (Dolon house).

The Lincoln Park improvements are really nice. The bramble brush was taken out, replaced with new pansy beds; the steps have been reworked and the new lawn is in great shape.

Thanks to Mr. and Mrs. 'Shorty' Carl for the loan of some old photos of old Lincoln Courthouse and Carrizozo scenes.

The archeologists from Canada are in the area again. There are 15 members divided into two groups looking for early Indian sites. They will be working in the North Capitan and Bonito Valley areas.

Another group of archeologists from New Mexico State University, under sponsorship of the Lincoln Heritage Trust and Lincoln County Historical Society, will be looking for early settlements in Bonito Valley.

The McSween dig seems to be on schedule. So there is going to be a lot of activity going on in Lincoln this summer.

Mr. and Mrs. Ralph Dunlap attended the funeral of Ralph's step-mother, Buena Dunlap, at Willcox, AZ. They also visited Ralph's brother and family, Mr. and Mrs. Kenneth Dunlap and Mr. and Mrs. David Coleman of Sierra Vista. Their granddaughter Patricia returned home with them for a few days' visit.

EXTENSION CLUB NEWS
Rosalie Dunlap and Phyllis Zumwalt of La Junta Extension Club, Inez Marrs and Jan LaRue and son Kelsey of the Capitan Extension Club, and Mary Stroemer of the Ruidoso Hondo Valley Extension Club attended the New Mexico Extension Club meeting on New Mexico State University campus, June 16-17. Phyllis stayed for Homemakers College while the others returned home.

The La Junta Extension Club met at the home of Alice Blakestead last Wednesday. Following roll call with name and garden hints and favorite vacation, the installation was held. Officers for the coming year are Amanda Torrez, president; Hazel Day, vice-president; Louise Joiner, secretary; and Dorothy Talley, treasurer.

The next meeting will be at the home of Louise Joiner. The program on Egypt will be given by Rosalie and Ralph Dunlap.

ON MY OWN

By Pat Kite

A true friend

My eldest daughter, who refuses to attend parties alone, invited a girlfriend to go with her. One hour before the long-awaited festivity began, Heidi calls and says, "An old boyfriend just asked me out to dinner. So I'm going with him instead of you. I hope you don't mind."

"My daughter said she did mind. 'I hope you realize that you're ruining my evening,' she added. 'I don't see why you're mad,' Heidi remarked huffily. So my daughter asked me, 'Don't I have a right to be angry?'"

Good question. I asked my cousin, the bachelor, who considers himself an expert on such things. He informed me that a man would never stand up a buddy to go out with a woman. Women did this all the time because "they didn't understand true friendship." In a similar circumstance, if a gal called him up on a last-minute date, he would try to arrange another time. "If she won't go for that," he stated, "then she doesn't like you enough in the first place, and why are you wasting your time with her?"

Out of curiosity I posed the same problem to the next five single people who entered my abode. The question was: "Would you break a date with a buddy to go out with a (guy) (gal) who called you at the last minute?"

Male: "I've never broken a date with a buddy to go out with a woman. I can always go out with her another time."

Female: "My best girlfriends and I have an agreement that if a fellow asks us out, it's ok if we cancel our plans together."

Male: "If I'm supposed to go someplace with a buddy, I go. Besides, if a gal calls me up at the last minute and wants to go to dinner, I figure she's just looking for a free meal and wants me to pay for it."

Female: "I would try to arrange another time with the fellow. However, my good girlfriends and I always have an agreement that if a guy calls that we like, we cancel our plans and make them another time. After all, we can always see each other."

Male: "I would break the date with my buddy. My friends and I have an understanding that if a gal calls us up, we can break any plans we've made because we figure if she calls us, we have a better chance of getting some sex."

Anyhow, I told my daughter to telephone all her girlfriends and find someone to attend the party with her. This she did, and had a good time after all.

Myself, I figure if a fellow likes you, he'll call back again given any reasonable excuse. And if he doesn't, he's just filling time and who needs him?

I also figure that a good friend is hard to find and should be treated well.

Skinner clan holds reunion

The journey to Bonita in Lincoln County for the first reunion of the Skinner clan was not as primitive as that of their pioneer grandparents who made the journey over a 100 years ago.

L. W. Bourne, a former Confederate veteran from Virginia, was lured by tales of the mountain area of the territory of New Mexico and arrived in Bonita Canyon by ox cart with his wife and children in 1880.

The next year, his married daughter and husband, John and Pinkie Alice Skinner, came to join them. John Skinner was a minister and because there was no church there for some time he was a circuit riding preacher and after the first schoolhouse was built, conducted services in it.

His wife, after the death of her mother, Julia Bourne, took her mother's place as the area midwife and took care of the sick as they had no doctors in those early days.

The reunion was organized by Pauline Hudson of Clovis and Bess Jones of Portales and the arrangements were completed for the location by another cousin, Chloé Peters of Capitan. The Bonita Park Nazarene Church Camp was selected because it was about four miles from the first Skinner and Bourne homes and a portion of the grounds was on land donated by the Skinner family.

Many of the group began to arrive on Friday, June 13, although plans had been made for only Saturday evening and Sunday. This gave time for visiting and picture taking. Pilgrimages were made to the old ranch home where the Skinner family homesteaded in 1904, and various locations where the family had lived. Tables were set up in the dining hall and these held family memorabilia and pictures.

Sunday morning members of the group enjoyed a waffle brunch. The highlight of the day was the noon meal. Bess Jones introduced the emcee for the festivities, Travis Foster of Tracy, CA, husband of Janelle Skinner Foster. Chloé Peters gave the invocation and after the meal, a brief history of the family's "roots" was given by Travis, followed by introductions of each family.

It was observed that although Grandpa Skinner was first a minister, he also had many occupations, but in later years he became a boot and shoemaker.

His grandson and namesake, the late John Skinner of Portales, followed his occupation, and the Skinner's Western Wear has been in the same family for three generations.

The longest distance traveled was by Arch Await, a former ENMU student, now an engineer in Anchorage, Alaska. He flew into Albuquerque on Friday morning, rented a car and surprised the entire group, including his mother.

There were 125 registered who came from Alabama, Arizona, Arkansas, California, Colorado, Iowa, Texas, Wyoming and New Mexico.

Carrizozo grads plan their future

By M. DeBERGE

The valedictorian and salutatorian of the 1986 Carrizozo graduating class have high hopes and goals for the future. Both plan to attend New Mexico State University in Las Cruces in the fall.

Kenneth Crenshaw, the valedictorian, participated in many activities in his high school years while still maintaining his 3.7 grade average. He was class president for his freshman, sophomore and junior years and in his senior year he was student council president. Kenneth was also an active member of the FFA and played sports all through his school years. Upon graduation he received many scholarships which will help finance his college education. While attending college, he plans to play football and major in either animal science or sports medicine. His dream is to become a veterinarian. In achieving this dream, he hopes to study four years at New Mexico State and then attend Colorado State Veterinary School. Kenneth hopes to work with horses at the race track in Ruidoso once he becomes a veterinarian.

Both students are spending the summer resting up for college, playing golf at the local golf course, and lying in the sun.

James plans to major in wild life science and become a game warden. He loves the outdoors and has a special place in his heart for all animals. He would like to work in one of the national parks in his native state of New Mexico. In the future years, he plans to seek summer employment at one of the neighboring national parks. By P. E. CHAVEZ

According to Carrizozo's ordinance on possession of fireworks it is unlawful to manufacture, sell, offer to sell, own, possess or discharge any firecracker, Roman candle, sky rocket, torpedo, bomb, blank cartridges or any other type or form of explosive commonly known as fireworks within the municipal limits unless the state fire marshal has declared that such item is not dangerous to persons or property.

Town policeman Chris Gomez has responded to citizen regarding fireworks and has made the offenders aware of the ordinance.

The law does not prohibit any municipal or civic organization from conducting a supervised and controlled fireworks display. (July 4 Carrizozo Lions Club will sponsor a fireworks display at the golf course park.)

Chief of Police C. A. Morales, last Tuesday indirectly suggested that incident reports in the Police Beat be accurately copied. Morales was assured by the writer that all information gathered from official sources is checked out.

P. E. Chavez asked if any police NEWS accounts were doubtful. Robert Hemphill, mayor, who happened to be at the town police headquarters that Tuesday, told Chavez that he knows of one incident that was brought to his attention.

For the record: The June 15 complaint of a hit-and-run involving a Southern Pacific vehicle was parked (at the time of the incident) at the residence of the SP employee at 11th Street and not at the depot, as the Police Beat incorrectly stated.

Wednesday, June 25
A resident on 5th Street reported to the police clerk that her son had been shot at with a BB gun. The incident occurred in the alley near the home of the boy believed to have shot the gun. The complainant's son was hit on the corner of the right eye.

responded to the 9:32 p.m. report of the alleged sexual assault of a woman. The local woman, in her early 20s, sought assistance from a convenience store clerk, who called the sheriff's department and an ambulance. Gomez joined Baker in the investigation which continues.

Thursday, June 26
A citizen complained that a loud party in the neighborhood lasted until 4:30 a.m. and that the dog barked all night and into the morning. Morales contacted a C Avenue resident who said the party started across the street and ended at her home. The complainant was told that to call the sheriff's department at the time of the disturbance so that an officer can stop the party or ask the participants to tone it down.

A citizen reported at 3 p.m. that fireworks at Drexel Avenue at 12 midnight caused sleeplessness and fear of fire. Gomez was dispatched to the address where the fireworks were believed to have been discharged the previous evening. Gomez could not locate the house and the unidentified complainant could not be reached for more information.

Friday, June 27
Gomez was dispatched to the Taster Freez by the sheriff's department to pick up an injured male illegal alien and transport him to the county jail. The man told Gomez that he had injured his leg when he had jumped off the train.

A citizen reported at 11:05 a.m. to the town police clerk that fireworks had been set off for approximately one hour on Drexel Avenue. Gomez contacted and explained to the offenders the town ordinance on possession of fireworks.

Bob MacKenzie, 11th Street, informed the police department at 3:35 p.m. that he had found a white poodle, which he kept at his house until the owner is located.

Saturday, June 28
Gomez checked out a 6 p.m. report of fireworks being discharged on 12th Street.

The sheriff's department received a 7:05 p.m. report of juveniles drag racing at the Industrial Park. Gomez spotted the vehicle later.

A woman resident of Laya Vista Courts called the sheriff's department at 9:16 p.m. in reference to someone outside her house. Gomez learned that it was the woman's husband.

Monday, June 30
On patrolling the golf course at 10:30 a.m. Morales noticed that the pro shop had been vandalized again. Windows were broken and papers scattered inside.

Morales gave Michael Lafayette, nurse practitioner, a ride to a residence south of town, scene of an accident in which a horse reared up and fell on the rider. Lafayette joined Rosemary Zink, nurse practitioner, and other ambulance staff already at the scene at 8:30 p.m. Glenn Ellison, who sustained a leg injury and other unknown injuries, was transported to Gerald Champion Memorial Hospital in Alamogordo.
