Lincoln County Officers in Governor's Guard

By LINDA CALDWELL

New Mexico State Police Officers Heriberto (Eddie) Flores and Michael Hill of Lincoln County have been selected two of six agents attached to the Governor's Security Bureau in Santa Fe. Their new duties will include security for the governor and his family and associated duties - similar to the presidential Secret Service men. The officers will be on 24 hour call with designated days off.

According to Public Affairs Officer Capt. John Denko, the Governor's Security Bureau is undergoing structural changes which will result in individuals highly trained in protection. One supervisor and five agents will carry on the job without political connection.

Denko said officers are chosen for the prestigious position based on performance, a personal interview, and profile. Both Flores and Hill have outstanding performance records. "We were looking for bright, intelligent young officers who were experienced and demonstrated maturity," said Denko in explaining profile criteria to be met. In addition, officers must have a good sense of duty and responsibility and show an affinity and personal liking for their job. "These are VERY good people," added Denko.

Flores, 32, was assigned duty in Carrizozo after completing training at the State Police Academy in October, 1982. Prior to that, he had worked in the Grant County Sheriff's Department and Silver City Police Department. Originally from El Paso, TX, Flores graduated from Bel Air High School and attended UT El Paso before embarking on a mission for the Mormon Church in Arizona and Las Vegas.

Hill was assigned to the Corona area after graduating from the State Police Academy in December, 1984 and completing training in Ruidoso. His experience includes service on the Silver City Police force where he gained the rank of detective. He attended Western New Mexico University where he earned a Master's degree in Criminal Justice.

Treasurer/Chief-Deputy

SHIRLEY GOODLOE assumed her duties as Lincoln County Treasurer after the swearing in ceremony on Jan. 2. Mike Hainer is her chief deputy. A reception was held following the swearing in ceremony. The reception was hosted by the Federated Republican Women of Lincoln County.

Sheriff Don Samuels

LINCOLN COUNTY SHERIFF Don Samuels received the oath of office on Jan. 2 along with nine other elected county officials. The swearing in ceremony was conducted by the Honorable Richard A. Parsons.

Sales Slips Needed

To avoid late payments, Fred W. Pfingsten, Chairman of the County Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation Service, said wool and mohair producers should turn in their 1986 sales receipts and file a payment application by January 31, 1987.

Lincoln County farmers who have record of their wool and mohair sales are eligible for incentive payments only if the sales are reported to the ASCS office. Mr. Pfingsten said the quantity sold does not affect the eligibility. However, sales slips should contain the month of shearing, month of sales, number of head shorn, pounds of wool (grease basis) or mohair sold, and net proceeds. Shorn wool and mohair payments will be made only for bonafide sales documented on invoices prepared by the purchaser. "Sales slips for lambs must show the liveweight and state that the lambs were unshorn."

According to Pfingsten, shorn wool and mohair payments are based on a percentage of each producers returns from sales. The percentage is the amount required to raise the national average price received by all producers for shorn wool and mohair in 1986 up to the support prices of $1.78 a pound for wool and $4.93 per pound for mohair.

Applicants who have not completed their application information should complete it and return the requested forms to the county ASCS office at 1909 Cuba Ave., No. 3 in Alamogordo, NM 88310 before February 1, 1987.

Ceremony for Officials

The newly elected county officials and their staffs were sworn in at a ceremony held Jan. 2 in the district courtroom in Carrizozo. District Judge Richard A. Parsons conducted the swearing in ceremony.

Judge Parsons started the ceremony with the presentation of a plaque to S.M. Ortiz in recognition of his years of service to Lincoln County.

After the swearing in ceremony, a reception was hosted by the Federated Republican Women of Lincoln County.

Magistrate Judge Gerald Dean Jr.

JUDGE DEAN PRESIDING: Magistrate Judge Gerald Dean Jr. is now presiding in the full time magistrate court in Carrizozo with offices located in the county courthouse. Judge Dean served as magistrate judge in Ruidoso for the month of December before taking office in Carrizozo on Jan. 2.

These trees were selected to provide benefits every season of the year: lovely spring flowers, cool summer shade, spectacular autumn colors, and winter berries and nesting sites for songbirds, according to the Foundation. The six to twelve inch trees will be shipped postage paid with enclosed planting instructions at the right time for planting this spring. The Foundation makes its spring shipments between February 1 and May 31, depending on the local climate and this year's weather.

75th ANNIVERSARY

New Mexico became the 47th state on Jan. 6, 1912. It had a population of about 330,000. On the state seal, adopted in 1913, the two eagles represent the annexation of New Mexico by the United States. The scroll beneath the birds bears the state's motto, 'Crescit Eundo' (We grow as we go). On the flag, adopted in 1925, the ancient sun symbol of the Zia pueblo of Indians appears in red on a yellow field. The colors represent the Spanish flag, recalling the fact that New Mexico was once Spanish territory.

COLORFUL PAST

New Mexico's colorful past gives the state's important tourist attractions. Still standing are the ruins of an 800-room apartment house built by the Indians hundreds of years before Columbus discovered America. Spain ruled the land for more than 250 years. The Spanish influence may be seen today in the names of places, in the churches of early missionaries, in foods, and in customs and holidays.

New Mexico has the oldest road in the United States, El Camino Real. It also has the oldest seat of government, Santa Fe. Santa Fe was the capital of a Spanish province in 1610, and is the Capital of New Mexico today.

FABLED SEVEN CITIES

Francisco Vasquez de Coronado explored New Mexico from 1540 to 1542, but could not find gold. The Spanish explorer proved that the fabled Seven Cities of Cibola were only poor pueblo villages.

Coronado led an expedition into the American Southwest, in search of the Seven Cities reported to be rich in gold. Coronado, with a force of 300 Spaniards and several hundred Indians, began his search early in 1540. He visited what is now Arizona and New Mexico, and found Indian pueblos, but no golden cities.

EARLY STATEHOOD

The state's constitution was adopted in 1911, a year before New Mexico became a state. The people elected William C. McDonald as the first state governor, for a term of five years. Thereafter, all governors were elected to two-year terms.

Mexican bandits, probably led by Francisco "Pancho" Villa, raided the town of Columbus in 1916, killing 16 Americans. The US Army sent an expedition into Mexico to catch Villa, but it failed.

Villa (1877-1923) was a Mexican bandit chieftain. President Woodrow Wilson sent General John J. Pershing into Mexico in pursuit of Villa. Hampered by orders not to use Mexican railroads, General Pershing failed to capture Villa. Villa was shot from ambush by enemies in 1923.

HISTORIC NEW MEXICO

The Santa Fe Trail opened a new trade route to New Mexico. Trader William Becknell established it in 1821, when he brought the first goods to Santa Fe from Missouri. Stagecoach service started from Independence, MO in 1849.

El Camino Real, the oldest road in the US, runs from Santa Fe to Chihuahua, Mexico. It served travelers in 1561.

Copper deposits were found by the Spaniards at Santa Rita in 1800. They used convicts to mine the metal and mules to transport it to Mexico City.

The world's first atomic bomb was exploded on July 16, 1945, near Alamogordo. It was produced at Los Alamos.

Carlsbad Caverns were first explored in 1901 by Jim White, a cowboy. He saw large numbers of bats come out of an opening in the ground.

POLITICAL CONTROL

During the late 1870s, cattlemen and other groups fought for political control of Lincoln County. The bitterness burst into open violence with the murder of rancher John G. Tunstall. Billy the Kid and other outlaws took a leading part in the fighting, which became known as the Lincoln War. General Lew Wallace was appointed territorial governor in 1878. He declared martial law and used troops to end the bloodshed.

ANOTHER STORY

In the late 1800s, after the railroad linked the territory to the rest of the nation, New Mexico experienced a cattle and mining boom. Geronimo,

Q. Do all these changes mean taxpayers will pay more or less New Mexico Personal Income Tax for 1986?

A. Due to the 1986 New Mexico State Legislature increasing the state personal income tax rates to about 1980 levels, the average New Mexico taxpayer will pay more in state income tax than he or she paid in 1985. The amount of the tax increase was somewhat reduced, however, by the adoption of higher personal exemption and zero bracket amounts than those provided by the Internal Revenue Service.

Changes in State Income Tax Structure Reflected on Returns

This question-and-answer column is written as a public service. The information contained here is not binding on the State Taxation and Revenue Department.

Q. Two new lines appear on the 1986 New Mexico Personal Income Tax returns. Both the PIT-1 Long Form and PIT-1A Short Form have lines for entering New Mexico personal exemption allowances and zero bracket amounts. What exactly are personal exemption allowances and zero bracket amounts?

A. A zero bracket, or standard deduction, amount is an amount of money that a taxpayer is allowed to deduct from income before computing tax. The zero bracket amount, which is determined by a taxpayer's filing status, is built into the tax tables and tax rate schedules so that taxpayers do not have to do anything to calculate the standard deduction. The zero bracket amount also is used to calculate excess itemized deductions.

Personal exemption allowances also are deducted from income and are based on the number of exemptions a taxpayer claims on his or her return, which is the same number as claimed on the federal return. Taxpayers and their spouses may claim regular exemptions for themselves, plus additional exemptions if they are 65 or older and if they are blind. Also, they are allowed an exemption for each dependent they claim.

For example, a married couple filing a joint return may claim one exemption for each spouse, plus exemptions for each dependent. A couple claiming three dependent children would, therefore, be entitled to claim five exemptions.

Q. Why did the New Mexico State Legislature substitute the state's own personal exemption allowances and zero bracket amounts for those offered by the Internal Revenue Service on federal income tax returns?

A. The Legislature adopted personal exemption allowances and zero bracket amounts for the state in order to reduce the impact of future changes in federal exemption allowances and zero bracket amounts on New Mexico's tax base. Formerly, on the federal income tax returns, a taxpayer deducted the federal personal exemption allowances and excess itemized deductions from federal adjusted gross income to arrive at federal taxable income. New Mexico then based its personal income tax on the taxpayer's federal taxable income. If the federal government increased the federal zero bracket amounts or personal exemption allowances, the increase would reduce the federal taxable income, thereby decreasing New Mexico's tax base.

As a result of the legislative changes, New Mexico no longer bases its personal income tax on federal taxable income. Instead, the state tax is based on federal adjusted gross income which does not include personal exemption allowances or excess itemized deductions. In compensation, the taxpayer may now deduct the personal exemption allowances and zero bracket amounts offered by the state from federal adjusted gross income before computing New Mexico income tax.

Q. How do New Mexico's personal exemption allowances and zero bracket amounts compare with those offered by the Internal Revenue Service?

A. For the 1986 tax year both the New Mexico personal exemption allowances and zero bracket amounts are larger than those offered by the Internal Revenue Service on federal income tax returns. The New Mexico personal exemption allowance for 1986 is $2,000, compared to $1,080 offered by the Internal Revenue Service.

New Mexico's zero bracket amounts are $4,000 for married taxpayers filing jointly and for qualifying widows and widowers, $3,500 for head of household, $3,000 for a single filer and $2,000 for married taxpayers filing separate returns. The federal zero bracket amounts are $3,670 for married taxpayers filing jointly and for qualifying widows or widowers, $2,480 for single or head of household filers and $1,835 for married taxpayers filing separately.

Q. In light of these changes in the structure of New Mexico Personal Income Tax, can the state's taxpayers still deduct their excess itemized deductions on their New Mexico PIT-1 Forms?

A. Taxpayers may deduct their excess itemized deductions on their New Mexico tax returns, but must compute the deductions differently than they did on their federal returns in the past. Total itemized deductions, as figured on the federal return, are entered on the New Mexico return. The state zero bracket amount is then subtracted from the total itemized deductions to determine the amount of excess itemized deductions that a taxpayer is allowed to subtract from federal adjusted gross income on his New Mexico return.

For example, a married couple filing a joint return, having calculated $5,000 in total itemized deductions on federal Schedule A, would enter $5,000 on their New Mexico return. They then would subtract the $4,000 zero bracket amount allowed for married taxpayers filing jointly and enter the resulting $1,000 on their state return as New Mexico excess itemized deduc-

Are We Exaggerating The Drug Abuse Problem?

Critics are complaining these days that the nation's drug-abuse problems are being exaggerated and that there is a danger of over-reaction. They see drug-testing as an unconstitutional invasion of privacy and the intensified war on narcotics as largely a waste of time and money. They also contend that Congress was only pandering to public hysteria when it passed a comprehensive $1.7 billion anti-drug bill last Fall, launching what President Reagan hailed as a new "get tough" crusade aimed at "nothing less than a drug-free generation."

While it can be argued that merely throwing money at the problem is not the answer and that some anti-drug efforts are not working very well, it is whistling past the graveyard to suggest that we don't have a full-blown drug crisis. The latest government-sponsored survey of high school-age drug abuse, for example, shows that "crack," the plentiful and potentially lethal form of smokable cocaine, is fast replacing marijuana as the "in thing" for many teenagers from coast-to-coast.

A recent Associated Press survey said that while abuse of marijuana, LSD, heroin, and many other drugs has declined since the 1970's, "crack" is showing up in schools across the country. Children also are experimenting with drugs at an earlier age," said the AP. "And everywhere, alcohol, frequently overlooked in the anti-drug furor remains the most abused drug of all."

Some of the survey's findings are horrendous. In North Carolina, for example, state officials are worrying not only about crack but the declining age of first drug use - down to age 12 from 16 a few years ago. In Charlotte-Mecklenburg County, the state's largest school system, students as young as six have been caught with drugs.

At Liverpool High School in a middle-class suburb of Syracuse, New York, an eighth-grader now under treatment for drug abuse was found to have been "binging" on drugs since he was eight. Said the school's counselor, Janet Donoghue, "many have their first experience at 10 or 12 and by 13 they have advanced to regular use. Some of these kids can go from experimentation to addiction in a year's time."

In Philadelphia, Hugh Colihan, chief of the district attorney's juvenile division, said: "We've had the kids come into court and say that they go to school to sell drugs." One junior high student boasted to Colihan's assistant, "I make more money on the street than you do as an assistant district attorney all year."

In Los Angeles, youthful undercover officers posing as students have made drug "buys" from pushers in school. At the end of the semester, the sellers are taken to juvenile court. "We have not solved the problem," said Lt. Ron Hall, head of the police department's juvenile narcotics section, "but we've at least put a lid on it. Otherwise it would be totally out of control."

While schools have been the focus of the anti-drug battle, many educators are now saying that changes must also take place in the home if the fight is to be won. Said Billy Walker, assistant principal of Indianapolis North Central High: "It's difficult to educate the children when they see the parents using . . ."

Congressman Gonzales Strikes A Blow Against Slander

WASHINGTON — Congressman Henry Gonzales, a Democrat from Texas, was eating breakfast with his aide, Eloy Aguilar, and one other companion on December 4 in Earl Abel's Restaurant in San Antonio.

At 9:30, in walked Bill Allen, a bearded cowboy with a knife scabbarded on his belt, who was accompanied by two companions. Allen, age 40, had a choice of a number of vacant tables. But they picked the table closest to the Congressman, from which Allen looked toward Gonzales and informed his associates:

"There's our Number One leading damned communist." Congressman Gonzales, who was deep in conversation, did not, at first, notice this taunt. But Gonzales's aide Eloy did. And Eloy responded to the adjoining table: "You're wrong about that, sir." This diplomatic feeler, alas, only served to incite this critic, who repeated this accusation.

Gonzales heard him this time. So the Congressman rose and went to Allen's table, where the following dialogue ensued:

"Which one of you called me a communist?"

"I did," replied Allen.

"Would you like to tell me to my face?"

"Sure," retorted Allen. "In my opinion, you're a communist."

At that point, the Gentleman from Texas, who is 70-years old, responded with a right cross which began almost at the floor and which left Mr. Allen's eye embarrassingly black.

Immediately, Aide Eloy and his half brother, Rudy Villareal, a sergeant, leaped between the assailants. Then Mr. Gonzales walked to the cashier to pay his check, as Allen began walking toward the door. According to Gonzales's administrative assistant Gail Beagle:

"Eloy almost had apoplexy. Allen didn't pull his knife, but Eloy warned: 'He may be on his way to get a gun from his pickup!' But the Congressman told Eloy: 'Will you please calm down! If he gets his gun, I'll stick it up his BLEEP!'"

Instead of getting a gun, Allen summoned the police. He explained that he didn't want "to hit an old man" and that while he "had seen him draw back. I knew it was coming, but I couldn't believe it."

Allen threatened to prefer charges for assault and battery, but he subsequently declined to sign a complaint.

Congressman Gonzales, who was the University of Texas's number two-ranked boxer in 1937, explained:

"The word 'communist' is a fighting word. If I had wanted to coldcock him, I would have."

At the White House, I asked Presidential Spokesman Larry Speakes about Congressman Gonzales's striking aversion to being called a communist, and: "What do you think will be its effect on detente with the Soviet Union?"

The White House spokesman replied: "I'd be willing to bet that nobody else calls Henry Gonzales a communist."

ABC's Sam Donaldson recalled: "Henry Gonzales once pushed Congressman Ed Foreman of West Texas in the cloakroom of the House."

But Gonzales's aide Beagle laughed at this and explained: "He simply poked two fingers at Foreman, and the story got magnified."

Will President Reagan consider a non-partisan appointment of the hard-hitting anti-communist as our next Ambassador to Moscow? We hope so.

SANTA FE—We learned one clear lesson from the Anaya years: "I Did It My Way" is the wrong theme song for a governor.

For one thing, that piece of music puts the emphasis very much on the "I," and that's not where it ought to be in a job that, no matter the size of the ego of its occupant, is essentially one depending on cooperation.

From election night in 1982, while Anaya took the plaudits of the crowd, you could see that fallacy developing. In his acceptance speech, he made it clear to us that he had done it—he had gotten himself elected, and now he felt free to do what he wanted to do.

Remember how he told all those who had contributed to his campaign in the belief that they might gain some reward thereby to come up and get their money back? Right then it was possible for a citizen to say, as many of them did, "This guy is already too big for his britches."

THE GOOD SIDE: Nobody who knows Anaya and has watched him work during these four years seriously doubts his desire to be a good and memorable governor. What was missing was the kind of analytical mind that would have told him what he had to do to achieve that end.

Thus, because it was from the beginning pointed in the wrong direction, all that expenditure of energy did little to get the man expending it to where he wanted to go.

Maybe in Clyde Tingley's day (he was governor from 1935 to 1938) or in Johnny Miles' day (1939 to 1942) it was possible to be a one-man administration. It isn't now. Thus, Anaya's insistence on holding the reins in his own hands—or alternatively in the hands of Shirley Scarafioti—made a successful four-year term unlikely to impossible.

Adding to that was the use of wrong criteria for those who would be gathered around him. Being of one sex or the other is not what matters in such governmental advisors; wisdom is. Those Anaya picked for his team had little or none of that, and in many instances even what they experienced working for him added little of it.

THE SINISTER ELEMENT: And no matter how sincere and well-meaning Anaya appeared in all those interviews he gave during the last couple of weeks he held office, there was always under the surface a steady flow of the sort of unsavory rumors that, by reason of their very plentitude, lead citizens to suspect there must be something to at least some of the accusations. Maybe that isn't fair, but in Anaya's time it was certainly true—and true in a way and to an extent no one has ever seen under previous governors.

Toney himself says things started getting bad for him when Phil Troutman and Ken Johnson were accused of extorting money from a New York bank. That's not literally true. Things probably started really getting bad when Troutman and Johnson were found guilty of that offense, under circumstances that made it seem to most of us as if they had been acting on Anaya's orders, or at least with his connivance.

NEW DAYS: What New Mexico needs is professionalism in all parts of government, starting at the top. Just wanting the job so badly you can taste it isn't enough justification for holding it.

We'll see, won't we, whether things are better under the new Republican administration now in power?

Correcting Missed Opportunities

One of the most frequently asked questions I've heard from New Mexicans over the past few weeks is, "What will Democratic control of the Senate mean to me?"

Without question one of the most pressing problems before the 100th Congress will be the lagging competitiveness of American industry. Whether a copper miner in Silver City, a semiconductor manufacturer in Albuquerque, or simply a customer in a shopping center in Roswell, the average New Mexican is being affected by the way heavily subsidized foreign concerns are clobbering American business.

For far too long the Administration and the Congress have ignored this critical problem, but some people can't ignore it. The miners in Silver City who have seen their wages cut by 25 percent can't ignore it. The 29,000 General Motors workers who recently were laid off from their jobs can't ignore it. The thousands of other unemployed workers in the steel, manufacturing, and mining industries nationwide, the middle class whose standard of living is declining, or the American students who score near the bottom in academic competition with youths from other developed nations -- they can't ignore it either.

It's not that we have lacked opportunities to deal with the problem. We haven't. But the opportunities have all been missed. A comprehensive bipartisan package to attack our trade deficit problem was passed by the House in the 99th Congress. A trade bill was also introduced in the Senate, but was never brought to the floor for a vote by the Republican leadership.

The Senate Democratic Working Group on Economic Competitiveness, which I chaired, produced a 10-point legislative package to help make the country more competitive. It was introduced, but not brought to the floor.

The Administration sponsored a study over a year ago by its own Commission on Industrial Competitiveness, only to ignore its recommendations and its urgent call for action.

These initiatives may see new life in the Democratically-controlled 100th Congress.

Several of my Democratic colleagues in the Senate have promised to make trade a top priority in the coming session. Sen. Lloyd Bentsen (D-TX) is slated to be the new chairman of the Senate Finance Committee -- a committee that will play a pivotal role in pushing trade legislation. Many of the proposals drafted by the Senate Democratic Working Group on Economic Competitiveness will surface now in the work of various committees in the new Senate. The Administration is also reportedly, at long last, preparing a competitive initiative of its own.

The chances for passage of legislation to enhance America's competitiveness, therefore, are better than they have been in a long time -- and that's good news for all of us. I hope to be in a position in the new Senate to play a leading role in shaping the new national competitiveness strategy.

That is one of the things the new Democratic control of the Senate means to me -- a chance to correct some missed opportunities.

Domenici Introduces Two Bills to Aid Oil and Gas Industry

(WASHINGTON, January 6, 1987)—As a high priority for the 100th Congress, Senator Pete Domenici (R-NM) today joined in introducing two bills in an effort to aid New Mexico's ailing oil and gas industry.

On this first day of the new Congress, Domenici introduced bills to repeal the Fuel Use Act and the Windfall Profits Tax. The Fuel Use Act of 1978 prohibits new electric power plants and major industrial fuel burning installations from using natural gas or oil energy to operate.

The second bill repeals the Windfall Profits Tax, a tax imposed on domestic crude oil. Domenici said, "The effect of this tax has done nothing to help our domestic oil and gas industry, and has put the American industry at a real disadvantage. Our oil and gas industry has had to unfairly compete with foreign producers, which is not charged this tax."

"Everyone in New Mexico knows that the health of our oil and gas industry has had a bad effect on our state's economy. Today I cosponsored these two bills in an attempt to help. I am under no illusion that these measures are a cure-all for New Mexico's economic ills, but these are necessary steps toward restoring vitality to our oil and gas industry," Domenici said.

"We want to send the word out today to New Mexico's domestic oil and gas producers that we have not forgotten them. We need to be selling New Mexico's oil and gas. I'm ready to get on with repeal of both of these bills, and will do all I can in this Congress to insure that our domestic industry will soon be on the road to recover," Domenici added.

Suspect Arrested for Fraud

The Lincoln County Sheriff's department has arrested Robert Glenn Vines, 34, of Buidoso on charges of fraud. Vines is wanted for fraud and parole violation in Lubbock County, TX.

Sheriff Don Samuels was alerted on Jan. 2 by the state board of pharmacy that a person using forged documents was attempting to obtain a controlled substance.

Vines was arrested after an investigation by the sheriff's department.

Last week the weather was so very cold with terrific winds. There is lots of ice left to date. We did have three days of sunshine, but we knew it was winter and still realize that.

The Smokey Bear Museum had 1,250 registered visitors in the month of December 1986. The first four days of January 1987 there were 255. That is great and we are proud and happy for that. Our darling Belle D. Wilson of Lincoln passed away Friday, Jan. 2 at St. Mary's Health Center in Roswell. Laid to rest in the Lincoln cemetery Tuesday, Jan. 6. Church services in Roswell were at 10 a.m. Tuesday with graveside services.

She was born Feb. 26, 1907. She is survived by one son William Wilson of Roswell, one daughter, Silva Dorn of Texas, three granddaughters and two great-grandchildren.

She had been a resident of Lincoln for many years and was loved by all who knew or ever met her. She was a precious neighbor and friend and left a good example for all of us to follow. Her motto "Love Thy Neighbor" was truly lived. She lived in Roswell for 15 months due to her illness.

We have missed her and kept in touch. She is now at peace, no suffering and at rest. We truly will miss her, her love of flowers, garden and home. We were so blessed to have her this long. Those beautiful memories will linger always of her. She was one fine person.

Anyone who doesn't make the same mistake twice - Isn't getting the full use of it.

We are enquired of daily why we don't publish some R.R. news. For the reason that there is none to publish. Occasionally we catch on to a rumor which has no basis, and we long since tried publishing such. The first fall of snow this season occurred on the night of the 14th, and the fall continued until Sunday morn'g the 16th. As soon as the play began old Boreas took a hand in the game and the way he banked up the beautiful snow was a caution. ## Preparing Your Tax Return: Should You Do It Yourself?

Right around this time of the year, taxpayers across the country glance at the calendar to see how long they can put off preparing their taxes. But don't procrastinate, advises the New Mexico Society of CPAs. Now is the time to make the job easier.

Preparing your taxes does not have to be a chore. But, if you find it is because your financial situation is growing more complicated, perhaps it is time to consider hiring an expert to do it for you. Many taxpayers have opted to leave this job up to someone else and there are many professionals who specialize in tax preparation who will gladly take on the task.

How do you know if you need a professional to prepare your taxes? Take a look at some of the information that is required on a tax form and gather the necessary receipts and vouchers required for filing. This will include information about your income such as salary, dividends, interest, and gains from tax shelters. If you have had an increase in your income over the past year or two, if you got married or if you had a child, your tax situation may have changed making your preparation more detailed.

Take a look at your deductions. Items like medical expenses, interest expenses, taxes, charitable contributions and business expenses all fall into this category. If any of these amounts increased over the past year or if you incurred expenses for the first time, this is going to warrant additional attention.

Did you buy or sell a home this year? There are a number of costs involved in buying or selling a home and some of them are tax deductible. This will more than likely change your tax status.

If, after reviewing this information, you still feel uneasy about completing your tax return, you should consider hiring a professional such as a certified public accountant, an enrolled agent, an attorney or a general tax preparer.

How do you go about finding one of these professionals?

The first choice you need to make is whether you need a general tax preparer or a certified public accountant. What is the difference?

The basic distinction between a certified public accountant (CPA) and a tax preparer is that a CPA is trained and licensed to give you advice on how to handle your financial affairs. He or she can also represent you before the IRS if your tax return is audited; a general tax preparer usually cannot.

The easiest way to locate a CPA is by asking other trusted professionals, such as your lawyer, business associates or friends who they use. If they are happy with their CPA, chances are you will be too.

Besides being able to represent you when your taxes are audited, a CPA will be able to offer counsel on all your financial matters on a day-to-day basis. In doing this, he or she can help you to fully understand your financial position and help you to plan strategies for the future.

Most CPAs bill on an hourly basis so the more time they spend with you and your return, the more it will cost. Having all of your records organized before you meet with a CPA will help cut down on time.

Another option for having your taxes prepared is with a general tax preparer. As their title suggests, tax preparers use the financial information you provide to properly prepare your tax return. A tax preparer will help you choose the best IRS forms to file, make sure you take all your deductions and calculate your taxes. It is relatively easy to find a tax preparer. Every year during tax season you will begin to see advertisements for their services in your local newspapers. One major attraction of tax preparers is their relatively low fee for preparing your return.

Whoever you decide to hire, be wary of any preparer who starts to make guarantees of a refund, refuses to sign the return once it is prepared or who asks you to sign a blank form before the work has begun. All of these things have been known to happen and may cause problems later.

Whether you use a preparer, a CPA or complete your own tax return, organizing your information is the key. Have all of your records and receipts - such as those for investment income, bank statements, medical costs and child care - in some kind of filing system. This will cut down on preparation time and will help you in case your preparer or CPA has questions.

The decision to prepare your own tax return or to let a professional do it may depend on the complexity of your financial situation. If this is the year you got the big raise, got married, had a child, bought a house or made any other changes affecting your financial situation, you might want to seriously consider using a professional. Remember, it's never too early to get started on your taxes to make that April 15 deadline.

The Capitán varsity boys traveled to Tularosa, Jan. 2, and were soundly defeated by a team in a higher classification 90-56. Ronnie Sanchez had the hot hand for the Tigers with 20 points. John Parker found the hoop for 10 points. Four Wildcats scored in double figures led by Salcido with 26 points.

A big 22 point 4th quarter enabled Tularosa to win the junior varsity game 50-44. Tino Gallegos, Anthony Sanchez, and Lee Payne scored 11 points each for the Tigers. Rocha led the Wildcat attack with 17 points.

The Tiger junior varsity got into the winning column Saturday evening. Capitán jumped out to a 28-19 lead at halftime and went on to defeat the Dexter Demons 71-50. Tino Gallegos led the way for the Tigers with 15 points. Also scoring in double figures were: Clements 12, Warren Russell 11, and Johnny Castillo 10.

Coach Bizell got 19 points out of Katherine Sanchez as the Tigerettes defeated the Dexter Lady Demons 52-20. The Tigerettes also won the junior varsity game taming the Lady Demons 32-10.

Coach Bizell reported that the girl's team play was the best of the season. Team hustle showed improvement. The defense was obviously effective with the girls showing good coverage. The Tigerettes are now beginning to improve on their block-out techniques.

Trout Fishing Enjoyable in Winter Too

SANTA FE, NM—Even in warmer areas of New Mexico, winter temperatures cool rivers and lakes enough to support trout. The Department of Game and Fish plants catchable rainbow trout in winter trout waters from mid-October through March, so cool weather need not curb one's urge to fish.

More than 100,000 pounds of trout, or about 245,000 rainbow, are stocked in winter trout waters located at lower elevations, said Gary Thorne, assistant chief of fisheries. The fish would not survive there in the summer, however.

Winter trout waters include Stilling Basin, Ned Hook and Green Acres lakes, Oasis Park, Rosque Redondo, Berrendo Creek, Bottomless Lakes, Van, Chaparral, Green Meadow, Eunice and Jal lakes; Carlsbad Municipal and Bataan lakes, the Black River near Higby Hole, the Pecos River near Bolling Springs, Burn Lake, the Gila River from below Redrock to House Canyon; Bill Evans and Bear Canyon lakes; Carrizozo and Esccondida lakes, Conservancy Park Lake, and these irrigation drains: Bernalillo, Corrales, Peralta, Atrisco, Tama, Belen and Albuquerque.

A trout validation or stamp must accompany an angler's fishing license on those waters between now and March 31. Only one pole may be used on water trout waters.

When catchable trout are planted in these waters, thousands of anglers are given a chance to fish for rainbows much closer to home than is the case in the summer, said Thorne. Stocking is normally determined by the amount of use a lake or stream receives. In some cases, angling effort is so great that 75 percent of an allotment of catchables can be removed from the waters within five days of the stocking date.

Catchable trout are generally eight inches or larger and come primarily from the department's Rock Lake Rearing Station in Santa Rosa in the winter.

Bag limits in winter trout waters are the same as in other trout waters: up to eight rainbow, cutthroat or salmon, and up to 16 in possession. For anglers under 12 years old, who need no license, the limits are four per day and eight in possession.

ON MY OWN

By Pat Kite

I Want to Go Home

I want to go home again. I want to be there, safe, 15, 16, 17, snug under the covers, looking up at the guitar-embellished figure of the Elvis-crooner on my flowered paperwall, dreaming dreams. Marvellous dreams that made my toes curl.

Dreams about the fellow, Paul whatshis-name, that had the locker above mine in the stark high school corridor which echoed so many footsteps, including my own.

Dreams about the Joel who sat behind me in Life Science class, so tall, so beautiful, so witty even if he never said a word.

Dreams about Ron, white T-shirt, white slacks, that had the locker above mine in the High school letterman's jacket he even let me wear once. Once before he passed it on, he wouldn't tell me to whom, it didn't matter anyhow. Only his kiss good night was important, there, under the porch light. Slight brush of lips, I still remember it. Like paradise, only yesterday.

I want to go again. To a world where the nearest problem was "would he ask me out?" and the nearest disappointment was "he never did."

I want to go home again to where Mother was there waiting, making a very good excuse for things I didn't want to do anyhow. And even if I complained "You don't have to wait up for me. I'm not a baby," at least there was somebody who cared at the 2 a.m. door. So long ago.

My Daddy he would sit there tall and strong, listening to the radio, Tchaikovsky he liked, and I would always be respectful. If somebody had asked me, 15, 16, 17, whether I loved my father or respected him, giving me the choice, I would have said the latter. Nowadays I would say, "both, no choice." But my father is long dead. There is nobody to listen to me anyhow.

I want to go home again. But I don't know how.

Sometimes my shoulders get so tired, it's such a heavy load being Mommy and Daddy and wage earner and caretaker and dream soother and soothsayer that sometimes I want to quit. But who will take my place?

I don't want to be everything to everybody. I don't want to worry where the next dime is coming from. I don't want to bleed from invisible wounds at the same time I am making everything all right for my kids who mean everything to me. I have nothing else. Except my words. Who wants them. Somebody maybe, I hope. Wouldn't it be nice to curl up in past again? To always feel soft breezes while walking lazily home from a "local team wins" football game. To be able to share most important of secrets with your very best friend at a "giggle for hours" slumber party. To hum a dream tune on a spring night because you had just seen him, seen him, and you were very much in love and the future was a starburst just out of sight.

I want to go home again. But I am home. Only it's not the same.

LEGALS

Happy 75th Birthday to The Land of Enchantment, On Jan. 6, 1912, New Mexico became a state after several futile attempts over 60 years. New Mexico history is a fascinating story, one which leaves your appetite whetted for more knowledge of this fair land. If you have not already taken it, I recommend the courses offered by ENMU-Roswell, by Elvis Fleming. I think the true treasure of New Mexico is its people and our heritage, both which are reflected nowhere better than right here in our own Lincoln County.

Congratulations to Mr. and Mrs. Earl Ashley, Riverside, who were married 48 years on New Year's Eve. Earl and Evelyn were married at a double-wedding ceremony with friends in 1938 at Alamogordo.

Visiting with Rowena Radcliffe, Tinnie, Christmas Day were her son Preston and his wife Barbara from Alamogordo. Grandchildren Laura Ann and Harold stayed the following week until New Years Day.

New Years guests of the Royce Griggs family, Picacho, were Adrian, Chance, and DeLette Laney of Lubbock, TX, and also Missi Griggs, Royce's daughter who is a senior at Texas Tech University, majoring in advertising.

1987 was welcomed in style at Glencoe. Paul and Nellie Ruth Jones entertained friends and family with a dance on New Years Eve.

Break-in robberies are the concern of Valley residents for several weeks as the list of victims grows. It seems that the vandals are most interested in VCRs, electrical appliances, guns and other items for fast resale. As a measure of protection, keep a list of serial numbers from personal belongings and help watch neighbors' property. A community suffers when any of its members suffer.

Barbary sheep season opened Saturday and continues through the 25th. Thanks to the McKnight Ranch, the Valley has a population of these animals which are not native to New Mexico. One night I watched a herd of about 20 magnificent barbaries run across the ranch road in front of my car. As if on stage by my headlights, they leaped and kicked, flexing their thigh muscles like Russian ballet dancers. Bringing up the rear was one huge grandfather sheep with his long grey beard. He challenged my car like Billy Goat Gruff, then he too disappeared into the darkness, almost soundlessly.

Whatever happened to the kids who were satisfied to play ball or roller skate during school break? A friend told me her telephone didn't stop ringing from the time her college-age daughter pulled into the driveway. The girls' father finally threatened to answer the telephone, "She doesn't live her anymore." Whoever thinks parenting grown children is easy hasn't tried to juggle meals around ski trips, offer advice that doesn't sound like advice, apprehend borrowed credit cards ("Just this once, Mom"), or explain why income tax is a fact of adult life, at least in my lifetime. I understand now what my mother meant when she would say, "It was good to see us come and good to see us go." One year when we all showed up with our families, she and Big Dad left us the house and went to a motel. All that's left now in my guest room is a full wastepaper basket and one large crew sock. And a mother's heart already missing the foot that wore it.

Back to normalcy. Classes resumed at Hondo School Monday. The Eagles basketball team prepared to meet Lake Arthur on the court Wednesday, Jan. 7 at Lake Arthur.

The name January comes from the Roman god Janus who was represented in mythology as having two faces, looking in opposite directions — retrospective to the past, and prospective to the coming year. In our lane which leads to the river crossing I've noticed that between patches of snow there are tiny blue Vinca flowers peering out from their winter beds. I wonder if they are looking back or forward. Or perhaps, like Janus, they remind us that life is a paradox, and beginnings always have two faces.

Barbary Sheep Hunt Jan. 3-25

By BEN HANSON

One of the most challenging of all hunts will begin in the southeastern part of the state in early January. The season on Barbary sheep will begin on January 3 and run through January 25.

Barbary sheep are not a native animal to New Mexico or the United States. They were introduced in 1950 by the Game Department into the Canadian River Canyon. However, the Game Department cannot claim the first introduction of Barbary sheep into New Mexico. The first sheep escaped from the McKnight Ranch into the Hondo Valley.

Since these first plantings, the Barbary sheep population has greatly expanded. As a matter of fact, Barbary sheep began to spread out into areas where they weren't welcome. They began competing for habitat with our native species such as the mule deer, Rocky Mountain bighorn sheep and the endangered desert bighorn sheep. Therefore, the Game Department adopted more liberal hunting seasons, such as a year-long hunt in the southwestern part of the state, in order to try to eliminate this competition. The bag limit for Barbary sheep was also increased to two sheep of either sex in most areas. However, sheep hunters wanted some areas set aside as "trophy" regions so there are now three areas where seasons and bag limits have been reduced.

The Largo Canyon area near Farmington and the lower Hondo Valley southwest of Roswell are two such locations. Only one Barbary sheep may be taken in these areas and the season runs from January 3-25. The third area, the Canadian River Canyon, has a limited number of permits, a shorter season and a bag limit of one Barbary sheep with horns at least 15 inches long. The boundaries for these special areas as well as the other regulations for Barbary sheep are contained in the New

Good Neighbors

Mr. and Mrs. Lee Delano of Roswell were hauling furniture to their cabin in Ruidoso recently when the axle on their pickup broke. The Delanos tried to flag down passing traffic to help but no one would stop. No one, that is, until Amelia Trujillo of San Patricio came along.

Amelia stopped and offered assistance. She refused any pay. This lady even went to Hondo and brought back coffee causing her to be late to church.

Mexico Big Game Proclamation

Those who wish to hunt these hardy animals may get a Barbary sheep license at any Game Department office or mail in the form on the last page of the Proclamation to the Santa Fe office. The cost for a Barbary sheep license is $38 for residents of New Mexico and $63 for nonresidents.

If you do decide to pursue a Barbary sheep, be prepared to do a lot of hiking. Barbary sheep are found in rugged terrain. And, don't forget a good pair of binoculars as well as a hard hitting rifle. Barbary sheep are tough to spot and are also tough to bring down once they are located.

feels that such good neighbors should be recognized. It's nice to know that such wonderful people live in Lincoln County.
