CARRIZOZO FIRE CHIEF Albert Najer and volunteer fireman Robert Hemphill watch as asphalt spills out of a tanker truck that blocked Highway 380 for more than 10 hours on Sept. 25. The Groendyke tanker tried to make a right turn on the highway from E Street in Carrizozo, causing it to jack-knife. Efforts by wreckers to pull the tanker caused it to flip over. The load of asphalt had to be pumped into other vehicles before the truck could be moved. The Carrizozo Volunteer Fire Department stood by during the entire process.

Addressing system proposed for all of Lincoln County

Susie Turner of Mountain Bell presented a slide show at a workshop held by the Lincoln County Commission Tuesday afternoon. Turner proposed implementing an addressing system for all areas outside the incorporated areas of Lincoln County.

The project would result in one new and permanent address for all rural residences and businesses in non-addressed rural area with understandable directions as to how to locate these places.

"The primary benefit of a rural addressing system is providing a method by which law enforcement and emergency services personnel can quickly locate where to go when a call for assistance comes to them," Turner said. "Although there are other benefits, this is by far the most important service the county can provide to its rural residents." She noted that it would also be very beneficial for any organization doing business within the rural areas.

Representatives of utility companies, emergency services, the assessor's office, treasurer's office and clerk's office attended the workshop and voiced their approval of the proposed system.

A slide show, narrated by Turner, explained two methods of addressing, one using the mile marker system with residences being numbered in 100 increments of a mile and another system using grids. The mile marker system is the most popular and would allow for new addresses for residences or businesses to be inserted as they are built without having to re-do the entire system.

Confusing directions have long been a complaint of emergency personnel. Nancy Guck of the Emergency Medical Services said that she knew of one death in Lincoln County that could possibly have been avoided if the addressing system as proposed had been in effect.

Turner told of how the program was first piloted in Colorado and then followed by Wyoming. Several counties in New Mexico have since incorporated the program with pleasing results.

County commissioners were receptive to the idea and instructed county manager Suzanne Cox to obtain figures and pursue the costs involved. Mountain Bell and several of the other utility companies have agreed to help fund the program.

State to prosecute O Bar O trespassers

By RUTH HAMMOND

When Carol Lietzman placed two US Forest Service employees under citizen's arrest on Aug. 19 for trespassing on her property, the O Bar O Ranch near Carrizozo, and loaded the men into her Jeep and drove them to Carrizozo to file charges in magistrate court, it was a personal matter.

Now the State of New Mexico is involved. Harry Wilcox Jr., senior trial prosecutor for the 12th judicial district attorney's office, told the NEWS, "After reviewing the evidence with Mrs. Lietzman and researching the legal issues, I have entered an appearance on behalf of the State of New Mexico to prosecute the case."

Rules of criminal procedure for the Magistrate Courts, rule 6-108 (c), non-attorney prosecutions, states:

Nothing in this rule shall be construed to allow a private attorney to prosecute a case for any party without first having been duly appointed as a special prosecutor by the District Attorney for the judicial district in which the court is located. rule (d) states: Nothing in this rule shall be construed to prevent the District Attorney in the judicial district in which the complaint is filed from dismissing the case or entering an appearance and assuming prosecutorial control over the case.

"My oath requires me to seek justice in all cases," Wilcox said. "And after reviewing the totality of the circumstances I am constrained to represent the people of New Mexico in the prosecution of this matter without reservation."

Court documents show that an amended criminal complaint was filed in magistrate court on Sept. 25 alleging criminal trespass against Mario Ramirez, Lindburg Abney and the US Forest Service. A first appearance has been scheduled for Oct. 6 at 10 a.m. in Magistrate Judge Gerald Dean Jr.'s court in Carrizozo.

The issue is apparently included in an investigation of the US Forest Service's management of the Lincoln County Forest. The investigation is being conducted by various government agencies.

"We still have no knowledge of the nature of the complaints or allegations," Steve Sams, district ranger for the Smokey Bear Ranger District, said. "It would be in-

Little Theater melodrama

Hissing the villain pays off for senior Olympians

Beulah Moore reported that $743 net profit was made during the brisket dinner and entertainment at the Carrizozo Country Club on Sept. 26 honoring Dorothy Payne and the Senior Olympians who participated in the state and national contests this year.

The money earned will be used to help with expenses for Senior Olympians attending the state meet next year.

Entertainment included music and singing by Juan Cardiel of Alamogordo and Neel Bingham of Cloudcroft. Moore presented a skit on "It's in the Book" with the help of her monkey arm puppet and the audience singing the chorus to "Grandma's Eye Soap." A cake auction was held following the melodrama.

The melodrama presented by the Carrizozo Little Theater Group was an audience participation program as members of the audience hurled marshmallows and cries of "Boo" and "Hiss" as the villain entered the stage.

Archibald Q. Dudley, the villain out for his own gain played by Ruth Hammond, complete with handlebar mustache, top hat and cape, remained the villain to the end with the final statement, "Curses, foiled again."

Archibald Jr., played by Barbara Ward, turned hero at the end of scene two by announcing firmly, "No Dad, I won't go with you." The audience cheered.

Cheers greeted heroine Nell Trueheart played by Susan Hightower. Grandma Trueheart played by Evelyn Sidwell and tomboy Daisy Trueheart played by Eileen Serna. Other audience favorites were Josh Hammond as Charlie Penman, a Charlie Chaplin type character who drew mustaches on pictures and in one scene drew a beard on the villain, Liz MacVeigh as Count Dracula, Helen Lock as Shakespeare and Lucy Rickman as Buck Stuntman who did dying scenes.

"The Trueheart Boarding House Prospers Anew" was the first production of the Carrizozo Little Theater Group and was directed by Moore and assistant Josh Hammond. Crew members: stage property-Liz MacVeigh, costumes-Moore and crew, make-up - Lock, stage setting and lighting - Josh Hammond and Verna Rodman.

Persons wishing to join the Little Theater Group are asked to contact any member of the cast or crew.

appropriate for me to comment at this time." He said there were rumors and innuendos, but the nature of the complaints had not been given to them.

The New Mexico Cattle Growers' Association noted the investigation in their newsletter of Sept. 11, "Responding to dozens of complaints, the New Mexico Cattle Growers' last week joined with Congressional staffers and various state agencies in an informal investigation concerning management of the Lincoln National Forest."

Another article in the same newsletter told of Lietzman's citizen arrest and stated, "The Forest Service wants to condemn parts of the 10,000 acre ranch in order to gain easier access to the Lincoln National Forest."

Lietzman, who was "furious at the sight of the heavy equipment in the middle of my pasture which was not even open for ranch motorized vehicles" at the time she placed the Forest Service men under citizen's arrest, did take into consideration the predicament the men were in.

She told them that if no one came for them, "I would gladly come back and give them a ride to their own private vehicles which they had left in Ruidoso." The road grader and pickup were impounded on O Bar O property for a short time until Lietzman returned them to the US Forest Service.

'On My Own'

By Pat Kite

House guest goodbye

I am again being threatened with house guests and, to protect myself, have sent my usual "welcome" letter:

"Dear Relatives--So glad you will be traveling this way and, of course, I hope you will spend a few days with us. My last house guest strongly suggested I yarn good folk like yourself that my house isn't always quiet, so I am mentioning it.

As you know, I have four daughters. They have a tendency to begin screaming at each other about 6 a.m. over important items as who is breathing too loudly and who is a total animal for not answering the phone promptly. This primal howling continues until approximately 2 a.m. However there is a quiet period between 2 p.m. and 4 p.m. when they are resting between skirmishes. This will give you time to sleep.

In addition to the daughters, I have cats. This is in case you are allergic to cats, or massive numbers of fleas. Old cat sleeps on the kitchen table most of the time. My ex-husband thinks this is an absolutely filthy habit, which goes to show how opposites marry each other and why it often doesn't last.

Plus there are the dogs. The littlest one fancies himself the greatest watchdog in the world, and he does tend to bark a bit. Especially at 3 a.m. The big dog, having to be left out of anything, soon barks too. He is a bit senile, and cannot hear well, so barks long after the little one has decided motus are not truly trying to break through the window. Try not be perturbed about this. One guest screamed "shut up" but then everybody else started to scream "shut up" at the guest, and it was much quieter when the dog was yapping.

Bring slippers, as you will need them at night if you tend to go wandering about. We have been working, these last three years, on toilet training little dog, but he tends to be sneaky. Best to be protected. However the house smells o.k. because I use lots of fresh pine mint deodorant powder on everything, including the chairs. If pine or mint makes you sneeze, I'll switch to honeysuckle.

Be sure to bring your bathrobe too. My daughters' boyfriends tend to camp out in the living room, or sneak out from wherever they snuck into at odd hours of the day and night. We were all upset when 9th cousin Ethel, who forgot to deadbolt the bathroom door, kept shrieking just because a teenage male strolled in and insisted on waiting his turn.

One guest, somewhat jokingly, referred to my house as a "zoo." I really think it's homey. Once you get used to it. And the countryside is really serene, located, as we are, in the middle of nowhere, an hour from the nearest noisy tourist.

blame of substance abuse. The contribution was earmarked for DARE (Drug Abuse Resistance Education) program, implemented to educate public school children on the dangers of drugs and alcohol. More than 50 uniformed officers, working in cooperation with the city's school district, serve as full-time instructors in elementary and junior high schools. Their message is simple and direct: "Just say no" to drugs. The program was established three years ago by Daryl F. Gates, an honorary Rotarian and chief of police of the Los Angeles Police Department. The Rotarians of Bound Brook-Middlesex, NJ sponsored a town meeting to focus public attention on the pro-

RESERVE CROSS BARROW—Kelly Fischer, Capitan, is shown with her prize winning hog following judging in the Swine Show at the 1987 New Mexico State Fair. Fischer and the pig went on to the Junior Livestock Sale. They captured a bid of $3.50 per pound for the 229-pound porker from Mountain Bell. It was then donated to the New Mexico Girls Ranch.

MALPAIS GOAT CAMP

According to a story in a September 1966 issue of the Lincoln County News, the Malpais was once the home of 1500 head of Angora goats and an old shepherd, A Malpais cabin, according to local legend, was built by a rancher in the 1920s, for one of his herders, possibly the old shepherd who shot himself in the head accidentally with a blackpowder gun but survived. This landmark is not very accessible as the road is too rough for travel by rubber tired vehicles. There was a spring at the goat camp in those early days, one of the reasons for it being a headquarters.

This spring attracted another type of business in the prohibition days. The goat camp, built solidly of black rock, became a notorious headquarters for bootleggers. Blondie Evans, probably being the best known, later was in trouble with the law for reasons other than bootlegging.

VALLEY OF FIRE

Valley of Fires State Park, 460 acres of Malpais stemming from an ancient lava flow was dedicated in 1966. The park is located on US 380 three miles west of Carrizozo.

Indian legend tells that the area was once a "valley of fire" and that a great eruption turned the area into many fires. Red hot lava flowed like water, searing everything before it. A river of fire, steam and smoke surged down the valley.

The park is on elevated island in the huge flow area that extends from north of Carrizozo southwest through a valley toward Tularosa. The State Park and Recreation Commission installed individual camping-picnicking shelters with tables, benches and fireplaces, a group shelter, fiberglass toilets, a water system and playground equipment at a cost of $25,000.

The legislature appropriated $1600 to purchase land for the park from the Bureau of Reclamation under terms of the Federal Recreation Act. The acreage was in the public domain.

ROUSING SUCCESS

"Carrizozo can go first class. All it takes is people with their minds made up to do the job right," the late Paul Payton, editor and publisher of the Lincoln County News wrote in his editorial regarding the May 6, 1966 formal dedication of the Valley of Fires State Park.

The program began with the Capitan High School band directed by Bartley McDonough. Following the concert by the Capitan band, the Corona band directed by Sherrill Perkins played, then the Carrizozo Grizzly band, directed by Arnold Boyce.

The US Army Band from Fort Bliss played then marched to the high point in the park and performed the flag ceremony which started the dedication ceremony. The special guest speaker was Lt. Gov. Mack Hasley. Clara Snow of Carrizozo was recognized as one of the early boosters for the park.

Johnson Stearns, vice president of Citizens State Bank in Carrizozo, was at the airport early that morning as official greeter for VIPs arriving in Carrizozo for the Valley of Fires State Park dedication.

ROTARIANS REACH OUT

I came across an issue of the September 1987 "The Rotarian," the official magazine of Rotary International. September is a time for Rotary Clubs to focus on helping youth, the leaders of tomorrow. A section of the magazine describes a wide variety of projects, ranging from leadership camps to drug rehabilitation programs undertaken by Rotarians.

OPINION

The good news this week is that Sen. Joe Biden (D-DE) has departed the presidential race in the wake of charges of plagiarizing speeches of other speakers and writers and of representing himself as a high-ranking member of his law school graduating class...

The bad news is that there will be a summit meeting between President Reagan and Secretary Mikhail Gorbachev for the purpose of signing an arms control agreement. The American people demand such a treaty. They don't care what it says, just sign it.

It is unfortunate that Rep. Austin Murphy (D-PA) isn't being tried in a competent court of law or by a Democratically appointed Inquisition of the type afforded Col. Oliver North, Adm. Poindexter, et al.

My brother Stan is an inventor of sorts. Last week he "invented" an idea that, he said, could make us both rich. All he wanted me to do was buy him a plane ticket to Washington, DC and loan him a camera.

Guilt by association note: Does anyone find it strange that the forces fighting the nomination of Judge Robert Bork to the US Supreme Court include the Democratic Party, Communist Party USA, National Education Association, National Organization for Women, National Association of Colored People, the Black Caucus and Gay Liberation Movement?

Bork has undergone the longest and most penetrating hearing of any Supreme Court nominee in history. His credentials remain flawless. He is supported by former Chief Justice Warren Burger and by fully half the court's sitting judges.

Anti-Reagan forces are having a field day blaming the president for "not knowing" about the Iran/Contra fiasco. "If he knew, when did he know?" is a constant topic of speculation.

What a newspaper with six fulltime employees, 20-25 parttime employees, and a circulation of 1,511 are doing at this time?

About 60 days ago the Sierra Blanca Airport Commission (SBAC) was changed from a five unit group including Ruidoso, Ruidoso Downs, Mescalero Apache Tribe, Carrizozo and Lincoln County to a two-member commission comprising Ruidoso and Lincoln County.

And not a day too soon! The new SBAC is showing a new tact in taking control of the costs of construction of the new airport.

After months of lackluster direction, with problems surfacing in increasing numbers, which, in most cases, have resulted in increased construction costs, the new commission has apparently called a halt to casual control over expenses saying "enough is enough."

The SBAC met at the Ruidoso City Hall on Sept. 16. At this meeting statements were presented by former attorney Sanders and by former administrator Heckman.

It was pointed out in the meeting that supporting detail was missing so the commission tabled both bills without payment. The question of whether Sanders should be paid an additional fee for preparing the detail requested by the commission to support his $28,000 bill was discussed.

Another problem developed at this meeting. It seems that neither Sanders nor Heckman are inclined to give the commission their files dealing with their work in connection with the new airport.

I recall that the Heckman contract was signed and then presented to the Ruidoso City Council "after the fact." I spoke before the council on this issue and disagreed on the fact that the council apparently was being asked to approve a contract carte blanche without investigation and prior approval. The council made no comments to my objection.

SANTA FE—The Dog Days of Summer. That's what Fred McCaffrey called them in one of his last columns just before leaving the country.

He said, "The summer doldrums seem even dolder than usual in Santa Fe this year."

He wondered why the state's genuine political experts seem to have hit upon this as time in which to lie fallow.

SMOKESCREEN: Fred, I've figured out all of that just this smokescreen to disguise the fact that you knew exactly when to get out.

Because of a few striking similarities between Anaya and Garrey Carruthers, you tried dusting off some old Anaya-bashing columns and changing the name to Carruthers but it just wasn't working.

It couldn't have been for Attorney General Hal Stratton, you would have been in terrible shape for material. I bet, you even forgot to thank Hal on your way out of town.

CONSULTANT: You may not be too surprised to learn that despite his protestations that he wanted to get out of the political grind, the first thing he did upon arriving on the shores of his tropical island

"after the fact" situations. The new SBAC, under Bill Karnes as chairman, along with Ralph Dunlap, who is not reluctant to ask questions, has the opportunity, however delayed, to take control and place the Sierra Blanca Airport under a close fiscal scrutiny long overdue.

was to go to work for one of the political parties as an adviser.

He didn't say how his party did in the election but this party also owns one of the island's two newspapers. Fred has been asked to turn their propaganda sheet into a legitimate news medium.

Despite the political warfare, Fred insists it is a delightful nation—full of innocent people, who still speak when they pass someone on the street. Fred, they still do that on any small town street in New Mexico, today.

It appears that Fred has decided that he has found the promised land. He has just bought a used Datsun and a television set and signed a one-year lease on his condo.

Fred and Jan's greatest need is to hear from back home. If any of you out there are charitable enough to have a good word for Fred, I encourage you drop him a line.

State FFA president visits

State FFA president, Marvin Pounds, visited the Carrizozo Chapter Sept. 2. He spoke to all the 70 ag classes about opportunities in the FFA and what it takes to be a good leader.

In the national interest

EDITOR—As president, Mr. Reagan has denounced Communist deceit and barbarism but his policies have aided the World communist advance. Although his 1980 platform declared that "Republicans pledge to stop the flow of technology to the Soviet Union," the Reagan Administration has sent enormous amounts of US technology to the USSR and its satellites.

Through the technology transfers, loan guarantees, subsidies, foreign aid, trade policies, most-favored-nation status, and various other means, the Reagan Administration has assisted Communist dictators from Afghanistan to Zimbabwe.

Look who was appointed to the Court! EDITOR—Seldom has a Supreme Court appointment generated more controversy than the proposed appointment of Judge Robert Bork by President Reagan.

PAUL PRESNALL, Ione, CA.

Look who was appointed to the Court!

Oh, there was a squawk went up when President Franklin D. Roosevelt appointed Harvard Law School Professor Felix Frankfurter. But then, Frankfurter was considered by many as far too radical.

FDR appointed Robert H. Jackson to the court. Jackson had no previous judicial experience; he never even had a law degree.

President Harry Truman appointed Harold M. Burton to the Supreme Court. Burton had no judicial experience. His principle claim to fame seemed to be that he had once been mayor of Cleveland.

President Dwight Eisenhower appointed Earl Warren Chief Justice of the Supreme Court knowing full well that Warren had never judged a case. Ike further knew that while serving as California's attorney general, Warren had been one of the principal authors of the infamous War Relocation Act of 1942.

But, for pure appointive outrage, it was FDR's appointment of Hugo Black that takes the moldy cake. Black's judicial experience consisted of 18 months as a police court judge. On a nationwide radio broadcast, Justice Black admitted that the charges were true that he had been a member of the Ku Klux Klan.

If the nation could swallow and somehow or other digest the likes of that unholy quartet, Robert Bork should go down as smooth as Cool Whip with never a burp.

RAYMOND C. WILSON, San Juan Bautista, CA.

(EDITOR'S NOTE—We strongly disagree with Mr. Wilson's assertion that Japanese-Americans were forced into internment camps during WWII. First, those were relocation centers, not internment camps, from which they could all depart any time they wished.

not possibly answer in terms other than "I don't know." Would my memory be improved if I had 1,651 employees in my office, and three million more outside it? So it isn't that the president just can't remember, is senile, or covering up. It's that it is impossible for him or any man on earth to keep tabs on so many people and to remember what he said to whom and when, and what they said to him and when.

Eagles beat Corona's volleyballers

Corona volleyball team traveled to Vaughn Saturday and met a tough Eagle opponent.

According to Coach Devra Post, the Cardinals looked good during the first game and made Vaughn work for every point. Even so, Corona lost 11-15, then went on to 15-1 and 15-6 defeats.

"We forgot some things we had been working on, but I think the girls are continuing to develop as a team," said Post.

Corona meets Mountainair Friday at 5 p.m. at home, then plays a Homecoming Day match at 2 p.m. Saturday against Hondo. Special presentations and recognitions will be made at that time, including introduction of team members' parents.

Elida wins invitational

Elida captured the Capitan Tiger Invitational Volleyball Tournament Sept. 26.

Capitan came in 2nd, Hatch 3rd, Cloudercroft 4th, Fort Sumner (consolation) 5th, Carrizozo 6th, Hope High School 7th and Moriarty 8th.

Elida defeated Capitan in the championship series 15-11, 15-6 and 15-9 to win the tournament.

The following were selected to the all-tournament team: Capitan, Lora McKay, Sherry Gowen, Colynn Washburn, Marlene McDaniel, and Nanette Boyd; Elida, Tamerae Moorhead, Kelli Thurman, and Rebecca Clemmons; Cloudercroft, Warren Gillian; Carrizozo, Marcella Sandoval; Hope High School, Reiner; Hatch, Trujillo. The Capitan Tigers were awarded the sportsmanship trophy.

Capitan travels to Carrizozo Thursday, Oct. 1, for games beginning at 5:30 p.m. The Tiger JV is in Hondo Oct. 6 for a game scheduled for 6 p.m. On Oct. 8 the Tiger JV is in Ruidoso for a 6 p.m. encounter.

Corona smashes Ramah, 45-0

Corona walloped an undefeated Ramah team last Saturday in a one-sided affair that resulted in a 45-0 victory with more than five minutes remaining on the clock.

It took a little time for the Cardinals to size up their bigger opponents, but after the Corona crew scored first on Tommy Mulkey run, it was to be Cardinals for the rest of the day. Tye Lightfoot received a Mulkey pass to put another 6 points on the board before the first quarter ended.

Corona came up with more of the same in the second period and scored on a Mulkey to Lee Land pass, then got a safety with 8:47 left in the half.

Corona penalties nullified two consecutive TD's and the rattled Cards had to punt after a third and 49 situation.

Ramah couldn't put together a drive and Corona again took possession. The result was a Dan Bell TD on a Mulkey pass. On Ramah's ensuing possession, Bell came up with an interception and the Cardinals scored again three plays later. Ramah managed to hold on to the ball and steadily move down field, but the drive was not enough for a score before the half; it was 32-0 for Corona.

Shane Owen set up the second half scoring series when he received a long bomb from Mulkey. Heath Brown scored seconds later on a Dan Bell toss; then brother Chad Brown ran it across for the PAT. Corona suffered off-sides penalties on the following kick-off and turned the ball over on downs. Ramah was riddled by miscues and failed to make the necessary yards. Corona second string got some experience before the final TD ended the game with 5:15 remaining on the clock.

Corona Coach G. Ray Johnson said he was pleased with the team's efforts, but he noted that there was a disappointing amount of penalties. "We cut down on the mistakes we made at Mountainair, but we made other 'hustlin' mistakes," Johnson thinks his team will be ready for Hondo this Saturday at 7 p.m. for the Cardinal Homecoming celebration.

Corona plans Homecoming activities

Corona students are celebrating Homecoming this week with a variety of fun activities to be highlighted by the crowning of a queen during halftime ceremonies at the Hondo football game Saturday night.

Candidates for queen and their escorts are Sandra Copeland and Chad Brown; Julie Furgason and Tommy Mulkey; Teresa Jimenez and Clay Post; Wanda Miller and Lee Land. Princesses representing each class and their escorts are juniors Mary Romero and Heath Brown, sophomores Tina Aron and Emmet Sultemeier, and freshmen Nancy Riley and Les Owen.

During this week students are enjoying dressing with a theme in mind, i.e., cartoon characters, rock stars, punk rock characters, beach bums, and "nerdy day." A pep rally and bonfire will be held Friday.

Saturday's activities include a volleyball match beginning at 2 p.m. versus Hondo, Booster Club meeting at 5 p.m., football versus Hondo at 7 p.m., and dance immediately following the game until 1 a.m. Kountry Kin will provide music. Admission is $3 for singles, $5 for couples.

Springer runs past Capitan Tigers, 32-8

Featuring a dandy passer, Springer scored from near and far last Saturday to defeat the Capitan Tigers 32-8.

Springer scored twice in the 2nd quarter to lead at halftime 14-0. The 1st TD came on a 20 yard quick pitch play set up by a pass. The 2nd TD came on a pass play.

The lone Tiger tally came in the 3rd quarter on a long drive with Jerrod Martin leading the way. Martin eventually scored the touchdown and Anthony Sanchez added the 2 point conversion.

Both teams traded punts before Springer scored as the 3rd quarter came to an end. The TD came after a long drive on an off tackle play. Springer 20, Capitan 8.

Springer scored twice in the 4th quarter but failed to convert both times. Tiger Coach Blane Miller played his 2nd unit through most of this quarter. The final score Springer 32, Capitan 8. Jerrod Martin was named player of the week by Capitan coaches.

The Dexter Demons visit Capitan, Friday, Oct. 2. This game is scheduled for 4:30 p.m. on Tiger Field.

19 enrolled in basic EMT training course

The week of Sept. 20-26 has been established as "Emergency Medical Services Week" to educate citizens of New Mexico about steps they can take to prevent an emergency, actions they should take at the scene of an emergency, and to recognize the accomplishments of all members of the emergency medical care team from first responder through definitive hospital care.

Prehospital medical care has grown rapidly during the past two decades. More than 31,000 licensed Emergency Medical Technicians (EMTs), both paid and volunteer, are trained to care for patients before they reach the hospital and provide services in New Mexico.

These EMTs are a crucial link in the provision of emergency medical care. Under direction of physicians, EMTs have been responsible for reducing death and permanent injury associated with illness and injury.

An EMT basic course is now being given in Carrizozo under direction of the University of New Mexico School of Medicine, Emergency Medical Services Academy. They train instructors and provide training materials and certification upon completion of the course.

Lead instructor for the course is Devil Bill Adams, assistant instructor is Kathleen Williams, CPR instructor is Trudy Torrison and guest instructor is Nancy Guck. Nineteen students from Corona, Carrizozo, Ruidoso, Hondo, Fort Stanton and Holloman Air Force Base are taking the course.

The students will be tested for state licensure, both written and skills demonstration, by the State of New Mexico EMS Bureau. Students must pass the state test to be licensed as EMTs.

Course contents include medical-legal documentation, patient assessment and vital signs, CPR and blocked airway, bandaging, shock, immobilization for spinal injuries, splinting for fractures, cardiovascular disorders and strokes, seizures and diabetes, burns, environmental emergencies, poisons, substance abuse, childbirth and pediatric emergencies, moving and transferring patients, extrication and access to patients and vehicle operations and communications.

The class which began Aug. 11 will be completed in mid-December. Another class is scheduled to begin in October in Hondo. Persons interested in taking the basic EMT class are asked to contact Guck at Box 711, Carrizozo, or call 648-2385.

Lincoln Ramblings

By Rosalie Dunlap

Congratulations to Gary Morton, Gov. Carruthers appointed him to the New Mexico Arts Commission.

Things have been rather hectic around the Dunlap household the past month.

One weekend was spent in Chimney Park, CO attending the funeral of my uncle, Charles Blundell.

Mr. and Mrs. Milton Guffmeyer, formerly of White Oaks, was also there. They are now living in Pagosa Springs, CO. Then we also went to Willcox and Tucson, AZ to see Lois.

She has been in the hospital in Tucson almost three weeks now with a staph infection in her knee. She still doesn't know when she will get to go home.

Nearly everyone in Lincoln is suffering allergies and sinus infections.

Betty Shreengost and Rosalie Dunlap went to Santa Fe recently where Betty attended the State Acequia Commission meeting.

Friends, neighbors and church members of Father Burdette Stampley surprised him recently with a party on his 44th birthday.

September has been a wet, cool month for Lincoln.

Rosina Locké has reported a brisk business this month. She has also been having some remodeling work done in her house.

Bob Hart of the Lincoln Heritage Trust celebrated his 40th birthday recently.

Maggie Leyba is back home again after spending some time in an Albuquerque hospital.

The Wortley Hotel will be closed Oct. 1, 1987 to May 1, 1988.

"I know a lot of them (people) ignore me," the evangelist told Laird, "but the Lord said to tell the word to the people whether they wanted to hear it or not."

People paraded past the podium, but they all seemed to ignore the evangelist, who has come to the Plaza once or twice a week for about a year.

"Why?" questions Laird. "Because this is where I can do the most good. In the Plaza I see winos, drunks, prostitutes, drug addicts."

"Even newspaper people?" asks Laird.

"Yeah, even you folks, too. I see all types of bad people and lots of good people, too."

The long struggle for New Mexico's statehood

By CHRIS HARKEY

The 47th star in the United States flag was not easily won by New Mexico.

The struggle for statehood began almost as soon as the American occupation. At almost every congressional session a bill for the admission of New Mexico was introduced, generally reported favorably in the House, and more or less considered, but without any definite result.

In 1869 an attempt was made, though not by New Mexicans, to have New Mexico become a state to be called "Lincoln." This bill was defeated in the Senate and dropped. This was also the year a new county was formed from Socorro County and named Lincoln.

In no other part of the United States has a territory been forced to fight as long a battle for self-government as did New Mexico. There were more than 50 statehood bills submitted in the 60 years of effort.

There were numerous reasons for the delay. Some were because of bickering among the political parties. Another reason could have been the adverse publicity which reached the eastern delegates. Relating to the uncontrolled range wars, such as the one in Lincoln County in the middle 1870s when the United States government was obliged to send investigators west, as was in this case, New Mexico was treated as a boisterous, unrestrained juvenile with growing pains, and with good reason.

Another cause for defeat was made unintentionally by delegate Stephen B. Elkins, who had labored incessantly in behalf of his constituents in New Mexico and for statehood. It happened this way. In the 43rd Congress (1873-75) the Enabling Act for statehood was introduced by Mr. Elkins. On May 21, he delivered a carefully prepared speech on the bill, which contained the best collection of arguments and facts that had been presented to congress. The bill passed the House and was sent to the Senate for concurrence. In that body it passed in a decisive victory on Feb. 24, 1875 with a slight amendment. When the bill was returned to the House, after passing the senate with amendments, only 10 days of the session remained, and the difficulty was to get the bill before the House again in this short time. To suspend the rules required a two-thirds vote, which would be necessary if the bill was to be considered at all.

It was at this time when, what has been known as the historic "Elkins Handshake" occurred. While Hon. Julius C. Burroughs of Michigan was making an inflammatory speech not complimentary to the Southern States, Mr. Elkins, who had been conversing with friends in the lobby, and had not heard a word of the speech, re-entered the chamber, and joined those who were congratulating the speaker, and cordially shook his hand. This was observed by the southern delegates, who gave Mr. Elkins no help towards the required two-thirds vote, and so the Enabling Act was not passed.

Colorado, which was at the same time trying for statehood on a joint effort with New Mexico, succeeded, and when finally admitted to the Union on July 4, 1876, the new state acquired a considerable amount of New Mexico land, which was everything north of the 37th parallel of latitude.

After this unfortunate incident, Mr. Elkins continued to be actively engaged in serving New Mexico and the nation, having been appointed Secretary of War in the Harrison cabinet serving from 1891 until February 1894 when he was elected United States Senator. He was also a member of the law firm of Catron and Elkins in Santa Fe. He died on Jan. 4, 1911, just short of realizing his dream of seeing the Territory of New Mexico become a state.

The question of forming one state, uniting Arizona and New Mexico, known as the joint statehood movement in 1906, was encouraged and pushed by Eastern States who were not familiar with the western geography, considering the distance which one would be required to travel from one end to the other, and crossing the Continental Divide in the process. This joint statehood bill was not popular with either territory, being especially disagreeable with New Mexico because of the proposition to call the new state "Arizona." Also, Arizona did not want to be ruled from Santa Fe.

Congress passed this joint statehood bill, and it was up to the two states to vote on it.

New Mexicans were urged to vote for it to show how much they desired statehood in any form, being fairly certain Arizona would reject it. So on Nov. 6, 1906 the people of New Mexico and Arizona went to the polls to cast their ballots to decide this important issue. The "yes" vote in New Mexico was 26,191; the "no" vote was 14,735, giving a majority for statehood of 11,460. Arizona voted "no" to the statehood proposition by an overwhelming majority, as had been expected, thereby ending the Joint Statehood Act.

The long-sought Enabling Act to enable the people of New Mexico to form a constitution and state government and be admitted into the union on an equal footing with the original states, was approved on June 20, 1910. Much credit for its passage was given to William H. Andrews, New Mexico's last delegate to congress, for his arduous labors and in defatigable energy on its behalf. Over the years, many men had worked hard and long for the New Mexico's statehood, and with some it had become a lifelong obsession, but Delegate Andrews succeeded where other delegates for more than half a century had failed. He had many influential friends among other members of congress, who were willing to help him, for his support on their projects. Those who were opposed to the admission of the two remaining territories to statehood, were no match for Delegate Andrews in political maneuvering.

On Saturday, June 18, 1910, Speaker Cannon laid the bill as amended in the Senate before the House. There was no demand for a roll call. Having an unanimous voice vote, and the deed was done!

The news was flashed to Santa Fe, and by order of Acting Governor Jaffa, the national flag was flown on the tall staff at the historic palace, and all the buildings on the plaza were quickly covered with red, white and blue.

On Monday morning the Statehood Bill was signed by Speaker Cannon and then by the vice-president. From there it was conveyed to the White House, the president congratulated the delegates from New Mexico and Arizona who were present. Then proposed to affix his official signature. Postmaster General Hitchcock, presented a gold pen to be used, and delegate Andrews produced a unique gold-banded quill taken from an American Eagle captured in Taos, and furnished for the occasion by George B. Paxton, who, because of his death, could not be present. President Taft signed half of the signatures with the former pen, and the remainder with the latter.

This signing set the stage for a Constitutional Convention which was held at Santa Fe, New Mexico from Oct. 3, 1910 to Nov. 21, 1910. For the proposed state of New Mexico in Convention Hall. There were 98 delegates-elect present who answered the roll call and two absent. Delegate Albert B. Fall of Otero County, in eloquent words, nominated Delegate Charles A. Spiess of San Miguel County, for the position of president of the convention. He was elected with a vote of 68.

On Oct. 3 a gavel was presented to the convention by Mary C. Beardsley Prince, wife of ex-Territorial Governor L. Bradford Prince, who had been appointed governor by President Hayes in 1889. Accompanying the gavel in a letter was this description: "It was made from a portion of the mantelpiece in the room which Mary, the mother of Washington, spent the greater part of her life and in which she died. The piece of bark which ornaments the handle is from one of the three oaks planted by General Washington at Mount Vernon when he was President of the United States, and which survived the distinguished owner of that historic residence, nearly 90 years.

"May the deliberations of the Convention over which you preside, be as fruitful of good works, wise legislation and just laws as were those which were enacted under the beneficent judgement of the Father of our Country."

(Signed) Mary C. Prince, State Regent, Daughters of the American Revolution of New Mexico.

A motion was made to accept the gavel and it was properly acknowledged by Mr. Spiess, stating that after its use it would be placed in the historical museum with other treasures of the state of New Mexico.

After more than 50 days of labor and deliberation, the Constitution was certified as being finished; "Certification - done in open convention at the City of Santa Fe, in the Territory of New Mexico, this twenty-first day of November, in the year of our Lord, one thousand nine hundred and ten." (Signed) Charles A. Spiess, President of the Constitutional Convention, and (Signed) Geo. W. Armijo, Secretary.

Afterwards, with an air of festivity, there were presentations of tokens of esteem and appreciation to Charles A. Spiess, the presiding officer; to the secretary, George W. Armijo; and to the sergeant-at-arms, Major H.R. Whiting. Jose D. Sena presided gracefully during these pro-with a tribute to Major Whiting for his service to the grand army of the republic and for his residence and service to New Mexico for the past 44 years.

The three presentations and speeches of acceptance were all eloquent and memorable.

The constitutional convention, having performed its duties and adjourned, requested the Governor of the Territory of New Mexico to issue a proclamation ordering an election to be held on the 21 day of January, 1911 to determine whether or not the Constitution so framed should be ratified and adopted as the fundamental law of the proposed state of New Mexico.

The election was ordered by Territorial Governor William J. Mills on Nov. 22, 1910.

The Constitution was adopted by vote of the people by a majority of 18,343 votes.

On Monday, Aug. 21, 1911, at 3 p.m. President Taft affixed his signature to the resolution giving New Mexico complete political autonomy, and authorized the appearance of one more star to the American banner.

On Aug. 29, 1911, President Taft sent official notice to Governor Mills that the Enabling Act was in force, and ordered him to issue a Proclamation for the Election of State Officers.

On Aug. 30 Governor Mills issued his proclamation for the election of two representatives to the Federal Congress and of the state and county officers, and fixed Nov. 7, 1911 for the election.

The election was held as ordered and on Dec. 29, 1911, the official canvassing board met at the Capitol, and issued certificates of election to the successful candidates and placed the result of the election in the hands of Congressmen Fergusson and Curry to be delivered to President Taft.

So it was that on Jan. 4, 1912, the certificate was delivered by the two New Mexico congressmen, who were accompanied by delegate W.H. Andrews and others from New Mexico who were in Washington.

On Saturday, Jan. 6, 1912, at 11:35 a.m., New Mexico time, President Taft, in the presence of delegate Andrews, Congressmen Curry and Fergusson, A. C. Ringland, A.B. McGaffey and Mrs. McGaffey, Charles Curry, and John W. Roberts, affixed his signature to the proclamation admitting New Mexico to the American Union. The pen used by the President was made of gold with a pearl handle which Delegate Andrews had furnished for the occasion.

After the signing the President remarked, "Well, it is over. I am glad to give you life, I hope you will be healthy." A photograph was taken, and those who were present, saw him smile.

US ARMY WHITE SANDS MISSILE RANGE

NOTICE OF A FINDING OF NO SIGNIFICANT IMPACT OF THE SUPPLEMENT TO THE FORWARD AREA AIR DEFENSE PROJECT (FAAD)

TO ALL INTERESTED AGENCIES, GROUPS, AND PERSONS:

PROPOSED ACTION: The US Army is conducting test and evaluation programs of the Forward Area Air Defense weapons systems on White Sands Missile Range, New Mexico (WSMR). The second part of these tests, the Forward Area Air Defense, Ground Base Sensor, Command, Control, Intelligence, Line of Sight-Forward-Heavy (FAAD GBS C2I LOS-F-H) System is proposed with Candidate evaluation of not more than six units is proposed near the WSMR headquarters beginning about November 10, 1987 and further evaluation of 2-4 of the successful units in the area east of North Oscura Peak (Lincoln County, NM) beginning about January 5, 1988, and continuing about four months. Tests will include tracking of aircraft using radio frequency (RF) radar from one site near headquarters and five fixed sites between Hunters Lodge and North Oscura Peak. Tracking equipment mounted on medium trucks and range instrumentation vans will be moved primarily over existing roads. Minor access road construction and site preparation will be required before tests begin. Some upgrading of existing roads will be required. Fixed wing and rotary aircraft and drones will fly an estimated 300-500 missions to allow testing of sensor tracking capabilities.

ALTERNATIVES CONSIDERED: Alternative locations were considered during the preparation of the EA, as well as the no action alternative. These are described below.

1. Location. Seven Army installations were evaluated as potential sites of the programs. Evaluation criteria included drone control, tactical employability, detection ranges, European terrain, masking, instrumentation, communication, electronic countermeasures, infrastructure and weather, and background terrain. WSMR ranked first among all installations for the sum of these criteria. Other sites on WSMR were also evaluated.

One of the primary reasons for selecting the proposed area as the test site was the vegetative clutter background provided by the area. Every effort must be made to maintain this background throughout each engagement.

2. Schedule. Numerous schedules were considered; however, the proposed schedule is the only one which coincides with both the production phase of the FAAD system and the available schedules at other installations.

ENVIRONMENTAL CONSEQUENCES: Potential environmental consequences of the FAAD tests were addressed primarily towards the FAAD-LOS-F-H in the original EA, with only general reference to the remaining tests which were in the developmental stage. As more details become known and specific impacts can be better assessed, additional supplements will be prepared. The FAAD Ground Based Sensor tests are the subject of this supplement and environmental consequences from these actions are similar to and adequately covered by the EA except as follows:

1. General. There will be no significant hazard as a result of use of sensors or electronic countermeasures. Sensor beams could damage eyesight of wildlife but only within a very narrow and short corridor. Animals would have to look directly into the beam for a period of time to suffer significant eye damage. Most wild animals would leave the area as a result of operations and thereby avoid any effects. Humans will be kept out of any zones of potential harmful effects. Countermeasures planned are electronic and result in no harmful environmental effects.

2. Geology and Soils.

Grading and clearing of roads and sensor staging areas will impact on additional areas and disturb additional soils. The area of impact will be extended in a northerly and northeasterly direction into the Chupadera Mesa and the east slopes of the North Oscura Peak. The soils impacted are those common to this rolling and mountainous terrain rather than those of the lower valleys and plains primarily being impacted under the FAAD-LOS-F-H test presently in progress.

3. Ecological Resources. Vegetative communities will be altered as a result of clearing and grading operations. The clearing and grading operations for the GBS should be much more limited than the LOS-F-H. The potentially disturbed areas will be primarily grassed open areas (valley bottoms or knolls) within a tree covered landscape (primarily one-seed Juniper and scattered piñon pine). Operations planned will have much more limited equipment and personnel than on the LOS-F-H test and will include no live firings. Wildlife types and diversity will be those more common to these upland areas. Potential to affect the White Sands pupfish should be less, due to the greater distance and primary drainage to the Jornada del Muerto basin.

4. Cultural Resources. All archaeological and historic sites which might be impacted will be identified, avoided and protected.

CONCLUSION: The above mentioned analyses demonstrate the conclusion that the proposed action would not cause significant impact upon the area's environment. Accordingly, the US Army White Sands Missile Range has determined that an Environmental Impact Statement (EIS) pursuant to the National Environmental Policy Act of 1969 (PL 91-190) is not required. All interested agencies, groups, and persons not in agreement with this decision are invited to submit written comments for consideration to the Commander, White Sands Missile Range, within 15 days of this notice. The proposed action will not be implemented prior to the expiration of the specified comment period. A copy of the Environmental Assessment and this supplement will be available for study at Building 1740, White Sands Missile Range (phone: 505) 678-2224. Address all correspondence in reference to this notice to:
