Baudino, 25, was also indicted on possession of a controlled substance with intent to distribute, a fourth degree felony carrying a basic sentence of 18 months in the county jail and/or $5,000 fine.

Baudino was arrested shortly after the murder and has been in held in the Lincoln County Jail without bond.

David M. Greene, 42, was also indicted by the grand jury on 14 counts of fraud. Eight of the counts are petty misdemeanors carrying a basic sentence of six months in the county jail and/or $500 fine, one count is a misdemeanor with a basic sentence of one year imprisonment and/or $500 fine, three counts are fourth degree felonies punishable by 18 months imprisonment and/or $5,000 fine and two counts are third degree felonies punishable by three years imprisonment and/or $5,000 fine.

The petition was filed Oct. 30. District Judge Richard Parsons issued an order in the matter on Nov. 2 denying the petition. The order states: "Mandamus does not lie to control the performance of an act that is discretionary. The District Court does not have authority to compel the District Attorney to prosecute a cause of action nor to prohibit the District Attorney from dismissing or entering Nolle Prosequi in a criminal case."

Gutsy woman may be denied her day in court

DA may dismiss Lietzman charges against US Forest Service

By Ruth Hammond

Carolyn Lietzman may be denied "her day in court" and the amended criminal complaint alleging criminal trespass against Mario Ramirez, Lindburg Abney and the US Forest Service may be dismissed by the District Attorney's office.

Lietzman is the "gutsy woman who placed the two US Forest Service employees under citizens arrest for trespassing on her land on Aug. 19." She loaded the men into her Jeep and drove them to the Lincoln County Courthouse and filed charges for trespass in magistrate court.

The state became involved when Harry Wilcox Jr., senior trial prosecutor for the 12th judicial district attorney's office, entered an appearance to prosecute in the case. According to state statutes, only the district attorney or a party having been duly appointed by the district attorney's office is allowed to prosecute in a criminal case.

Before the matter could be heard in magistrate court in Carrizozo the Forest Service attorney requested that the matter be tried in federal court. After that hearing in federal court on Oct. 22 Wilcox filed a Motion to Remand the case back to magistrate court.

The same day Wilcox filed the Motion to Remand he received a phone call from James J. Weldon, District Attorney for the 12th judicial district, directing that the case be dismissed.

Wilcox responded to Weldon with a letter stating, "It is my opinion that this action (dismissal) will be prejudicial to the administration of justice." Wilcox further stated, "After searching my conscience, I am constrained to ask you to reconsider, and allow this office to continue its posture in the case."

"I knew they were trying to deny me legal recourse," Lietzman told the NEWS. She contacted the Mountain States Legal Foundation in Colorado and was told that if the case were dismissed she would have no recourse.

"They said he (Weldon) could invoke his executory powers to dismiss and that would prohibit me from having a court hearing or determine the case at all and I would not be able to appeal it," Lietzman said.

She then filed a petition for writ of mandamus in district court in Carrizozo stating that the dismissal of this case will violate her right to due process of law guaranteed by both the state and federal constitutions, the District Attorney's duty to prosecute this case is clearly enjoined by law, the dismissal of this case will result in an arbitrary action by the District Attorney James J. Weldon and there is no other plain, speedy, adequate or alternative remedy for this "criminal" complaint to be adjudicated.

In the petition Lietzman asked for a writ of mandamus compelling District Attorney James J. Weldon and assistant district attorney Harry G. Wilcox to cease and desist in their efforts to dismiss the case; she further asked for a preliminary injunction restraining Weldon and Wilcox from dismissing the case, and asked for the court to issue an order to show cause as to why the preliminary injunction should not be issued.

The petition was filed Oct. 30. District Judge Richard Parsons issued an order in the matter on Nov. 2 denying the petition. The order states: "Mandamus does not lie to control the performance of an act that is discretionary. The District Court does not have authority to compel the District Attorney to prosecute a cause of action nor to prohibit the District Attorney from dismissing or entering Nolle Prosequi in a criminal case."

Lietzman has contacted Governor Garrey Carruthers asking that the Attorney General intervene. In the event a district attorney fails to prosecute or carry out his duties the Attorney General's office can enter the case and carry out the duties.

Abuse of executive sessions

Ruidoso Council hamstrung by indecision, lack of direction

By J.A. "Al" JUNGE

The fact that the Ruidoso Council accomplished nothing at the regular meeting on Oct. 27, was not unusual except that the method used to reach that conclusion was very interesting.

The agenda was composed of four items to be discussed in public. Agendas of late are becoming shorter and shorter. Agendas are now printed on regular 8 1/2 x 11 inch sheets instead of the usual legal size. A recent meeting was concluded in less than 30 minutes. The mayor's statement of apology addressed to this writer, to Bill Rawlins, and to members of the Ruidoso Federated Womens Club in which he said "We often let you make us look like idiots and then we turn around and make you look like idiots," was only half right.

The council meets too seldom with the public and, as the result, does little to inspire interest, respect, and loyalty of the taxpayers.

The subject of repairs to bridge #1 in the Upper Canyon was next on the agenda. An ongoing and seemingly no end of controversy was evident again in the discussion of this repair project. The writer inquired, at the council meeting, if an insurance settlement could be expected since the east portion of the bridge had been destroyed by a passing

Homecoming week draws large crowds

Carrizozo homecoming activities lasted all week at Carrizozo schools, coming to a close Friday with the homecoming football game and homecoming dance following the game. The game was attended by the largest crowd of the year at a home game.

Homecoming Queen Claudia Lopez was crowned during a pep assembly held at noon on Friday. The homecoming court rode in the parade through town Friday afternoon and was presented again at halftime at the football game.

Lopez was escorted by Richard Guevara. Other queen candidates were seniors Billie Jo Castillo escorted by Angelo Vega, Wendy Wootton escorted by Tom Giordano and Judy Vega escorted by John Vega. Princesses were Junior Jenny Willis escorted by Fred Vega, sophomore Denise Hill escorted by Mark Guevara and freshman Viola Garcia escorted by Kevin Sheehan. Attendants were kindergarteners Jennifer Wootton escorted by Josh Vega.

Class float competition began Monday with judging held during the parade. The senior class won with its entry of Grizzly players pulling in a tiger in the form of an orange Volkswagen decorated as a tiger. The freshman class placed second with its hanging tiger.

The senior and freshman class painted the "C" on the hill on Wednesday, each day of the week was a "dress up" day with a different theme each day, and a bonfire was held at the old softball field on Thursday evening.

The bonfire was attended by young and old as they were led by the Grizzly cheerleaders in team spirit cheers. The school band played and speeches were made to cheer the Grizzlies on for the game.

Activities for the week were scheduled by the school spirit and activities committee.

LINCOLN COUNTY SHERIFF Don Samuels and Deputy Ron Harrison shake hands after their resolution of the grievance hearing on Friday. Harrison is to be reinstated to a permanent position as deputy entitled to back pay and benefits.

Deputy Harrison reinstated without loss of benefits

Ronald W. Harrison has been reinstated as a deputy with the Lincoln County Sheriff's department following an agreement between him and his attorney, Elizabeth Simpson, and Sheriff Don Samuels and his attorney, Dan Bryant.

The four met in private during a recess of the grievance hearing on Oct. 30 and reached the decision for Harrison to be reinstated to permanent duty, entitled to back pay and full benefits from the time of his termination on Aug. 19.

"I feel I was terminated unfairly," Harrison had told the grievance committee at the first hearing on Sept. 10. At that time neither party was willing to start the proceedings and a private meeting of the involved parties ended with the agreement to exchange information and try to settle the matter.

The second hearing on Oct. 30 was an open hearing just as the first one had been. Bryant requested that the merits of the case be held in closed session but he had no objections to the procedural problems portion of the hearing being open.

Entered as exhibit one was a letter listing 14 incidents as reasons for Harrison's termination. Harrison answered questions from both attorneys and at one time in the proceedings stated that the sheriff said, "If I have to terminate you, you will regret it."

Harrison also said his termination came two days before he was supposed to go to the academy to become a certified officer.

The grievance board, consisting of Earl Krieg, Marian Schlarb, Barbara Duff, Israel Miranda and Patsy Sanchez, waited patiently as the sheriff, Harrison and their attorneys met in private.

The agreement to reinstate Harrison also included the fact that there would be no probation and Harrison's training will continue. The county manager and the county attorney are to assist the sheriff's department with budgeting adjustments to fund the back pay and full benefits.

Samuels and Harrison shook hands after the agreement was announced to the grievance board and met later in private to discuss the agreement.

VANDALISM WAS found at the Lincoln County Courthouse on the morning of Oct. 9. The courthouse area is now a restricted area from 6 p.m. to 7 a.m. No loitering signs are also posted.

1987 CARRIZOZO HOMECOMING Queen is senior Claudia Lopez. Her escort was Richard Guevara and the attendants were Jennifer Wootton and Josh Vega.

CONSENSUS REACHED

"Would you care to read the Bible and pray before retiring?" asked the hostess of a clerical delegate she was entertaining in her home.

"Upon being assured he would be glad for the privilege, the lady said to her young son, 'Bobby, go to the other room and bring that big book that mother and daddy read so much.'"

Soon Bobby returned with a Sears, Roebuck catalog.

PRODUCTIVE MEETINGS

Otero County home economist Mable Frary, in tips on how to conduct productive meetings, states that meetings allow people to get together to solve problems and make decisions. They can also be time wasters.

Frary says never attend a meeting which doesn't have a purpose. If you are the chairperson, be sure the group knows the purpose or has agreed on a goal. A written agenda helps to keep everyone on track.

Sometimes the goal is problem solving in nature. For this type of meeting between seven and 12 participants is the best number. Less than this may not generate enough information. If there are more than 20 they will not be able to work together without being sub-divided into smaller groups.

The home economist says that when one person dominates, other members may withdraw from discussion. The leader believes everyone agrees and decides a consensus has been reached. To guard against this the leader should call on a few individuals to express their opinion unless there is a clear agreement.

REVIEW DECISIONS

Try to invite all the relevant people, all of the people who have the information or whose "go-ahead" is needed. If they are not included, they will need to be included later.

Review the decisions at the meeting. Be sure everyone understands his or her responsibilities. A follow-up letter is useful.

Frary advises that if you want to socialize, adjourn the meeting and enjoy the conversation. "A little side discussion may bring out new ideas, but too much makes participants feel their time is being wasted."

LINCOLN COUNTY GROUPS

Good public relations should be one of the goals of civic clubs or other groups. One method of achieving this is by submitting news to a county newspaper. It is necessary for a group's public relations person to know what news is, where it is, how to cover it and how to write it.

Lincoln County News offers guidelines for articles and advises that the article include the full name of a group or organization with the information submitted. It will help the NEWS make sure the correct information is published.

Include the name and phone number of the publicity chairman or person so the NEWS can make contact if necessary. Not all club information needs to be in article form. Information will be accepted in outline form.

An article or outline should contain the five "w's" of news writing: who, what, when, where, and why or how. If possible, type the information, if not write clearly. When typing, double space and do not use all capital letters.

News items must be in the NEWS office by noon Tuesday to be in the Thursday edition. If you need additional details about submitting group news call the NEWS office at 648-2333.

Next week in TV Guide: Teen sex and TV. Maybe TV has grown up some. More likely the impact of AIDS has forced programmers to deal more responsibly with society's lethal new realities. Read a candid commentary in the upcoming issue of TV Guide.

READ AND WAIT

I pass the time waiting to see a doctor by reading the magazines available in the waiting room. The last time I was in a waiting room I came across Omni, a monthly science magazine. It held my attention until the receptionist said, "The doctor will see you now." She led me to a small room where I waited for the doctor. Fortunately, I had grabbed a handful of magazines from the magazine rack.

Penthouse magazine publisher Bob Guccione also publishes Forum, a pocket-sized magazine featuring articles on sexual matters. I am not familiar with the publication.

A news item in The Wall Street Journal revealed that Guccione has agreed to buy the troubled Saturday Review, a publication built on catering to good taste. The asking price was reported as $3.5 million, according to the Associated Press.

The Review was founded in 1924. Its former, long-time editor, Norman Cousins, once said its mission was "to serve and strengthen the cultural marketplace of good taste."

In the past five years it has had three owners and suspended publication three times. It is now a bimonthly, publishing half as often as it used to.

Guccione is quoted as saying: "I believe it (the Saturday Review) can be updated without harming its editorial integrity and it can continue to play an important role in contemporary American letters."

Lincoln, Otero counties get PILT funding

Lincoln and Otero counties were two of the 32 New Mexico counties to share in federal payments in lieu of taxes (PILT) for 1987.

PILT funds help compensate counties for non-taxable federal lands within the counties. National parks, national forests, military installations, land used for federal water projects and land administered by the Interior Department's Bureau of Land Management are examples of lands within counties that qualify the county for PILT money.

A total of $10.6 million was distributed among the 32 counties. Lincoln County received $374,079 and Otero County received $932,262.

City clerk Schlarb wins coveted certification

Carrizozo city clerk Carol Schlarb is a certified municipal clerk upon her graduation from the International Institute of Municipal Clerks. She received her certification and pin on Oct. 23.

The New Mexico Municipal Clerks Certification Institute is an intensive program of continuing professional education for municipal and deputy municipal clerks. The purpose is to assist clerks in developing and maintaining the high level of administrative expertise needed for the successful operation of increasingly complex municipal governments.

Population changes, increased municipal responsibilities and extensive social and legislative change have increased both the difficulty and the importance of the clerk's function. With increased responsibility comes a need for professional education to aid the municipal clerk in acquiring necessary new skills and knowledge, while developing and strengthening those already in use.

A Certified Municipal Clerk (CMC) certification is a distinction granted by the International Institute of Municipal Clerks to clerks who have completed three years of full attendance at a recognized institute and/or fulfilled other educational or noneducational requirements.

CMC means that a clerk has had 100 hours of continuing professional education in public administration. The institute must provide instruction in public administration and personal development to be recognized by IIMC.

The institute offers a total of 100 hours of study over a three-year period in the categories of public administration: 30 hours of personal development; 30 hours of and electives 20 hours.

Held at Sunrise Springs at La Cienega from Oct. 19-23, this year's session included workshops on municipal bonds, time management, merit systems, municipal budgeting, growth management, managing municipal risk, league update, investments and stress management.

Schlarb attended the institute in Sunrise Springs in 1985 and in Pecos in 1986 prior to receiving her certification this year.

OPINION

How has the gift of freedom affected young people in this, the 200th year of the signing of the US Constitution? At the University of Chicago a political scandal has resulted in the taster of all 50 officers of the student government. They admitted to ballot box stuffing and other corrupt practices more aptly carried on in local and national elections by their adult peers. In Boston, juveniles accounted for 40 percent of arson arrests in 1986, 6.6 percent of which involved children under 10. They caused 705 deaths and nearly $1.68 billion in property damage during the year. In Newark, N.J. an 11-year-old boy set fire to Alyia Babie, 37, and burned him to death. The boy said he stuffed paper bags around the man, doused him with gasoline and used a lighter to set him afire. The boy pleads guilty to murder and faces 20 years in prison. Orange County (California) high schools now offer surfing classes for academic credit, a measure designed to stop students from cutting classes in order to go surfing—God help the kid folks of Orange County if school authorities decide to cut down the incidence of arson by offering academic credit for Arson Studies. . . . Back to Chicago where the mother of Miguel Quinn, 3, fought back against juvenile tyranny by stabbing her son. She told authorities she thought the kid was a vampire.

It was bound to happen. New Mexico touts its Indian, Hispanic and Anglo traditions by describing itself as a "land of three cultures." That has aroused the ire of New Mexico's blacks, and Alice Hoppes, president of the state chapter of the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People, wants the description changed from the state as a "land of three cultures" to one "of many cultures." "What we're fighting for," she says, "is our fair share of the pie." Ethnic New Mexico is broken down like this: 52.6 percent of the population is non-Hispanic white; 36.3 percent is Hispanic; 8.1 percent is American Indian; 1.8 percent is black; and 1.2 percent is "other." It would do no good whatever to point out to over-sensitive blacks, who are lusting after new excuses to scream "racist discrimination," that New Mexico's cultural past was established long before a black appeared in the territory. Blacks are newcomers to this state, as are the 1.2 percent listed as "other" minorities. The state's diverse culture was built upon the American Indian, the Spanish/Mexican (Hispanic) and the Anglo. And long before there was a New Mexico the three cultures were firmly imbedded in the world consciousness. At the time New Mexico became a state, blacks had contributed absolutely nothing to this area's culture. So what's all the yelling and screaming about, except to provide blacks with another, however lame, excuse to raise the issue of racism—something they do very, very well.

First, we made a grave error by abolishing the literacy test as a qualification for voting in this country's elections. Then we did away with the poll tax because it discriminated against people who argued they didn't have $3.75 for a poll tax but did have $3.75 cents for a bottle of gin every Saturday night. Next, we made it legal for non-property owners to vote on bonds which had to be paid off by property owners only, thus advancing the cause of communism's cherished philosophy of taking from those who have and giving it to those who have not. That left the only qualification for voting to be that of registration. But half the otherwise eligible voters don't even register to vote. Now comes the old socialist senator from California, Alan Cranston, to introduce legislation to abolish even registration. He says registration is a handicap in herding people to the polls.

The bums who don't vote are considered candidates for the Democratic Party. Therefore, Democratic Party Chairman Paul Kirk is trumpeting that only half the voters go to the polls in a presidential election, and he wants a better turnout which he hopes to get for his party by abolishing any requirement for voting. How long will it be before people will be chauffeured to the ballot box in Rolls Royce limousines, larded enroute with champagne, and larded with money and sex favors to insure the republic is in good hands?

We don't need more people to vote. We do need more people who are literate, educated, and capable of appreciating their country to the extent they would study candidates and issues. Ignorant nincompoops, including the present half of the population that refuses to vote, cannot cast an intelligent vote even if paid to do so. They can only undermine, destabilize and jeopardize constitutional government. For my money, I believe a college degree should be required for voting. Instead, we are heading for government by posse, by a show of hands—and by the rabble. And the bigger the rabble the more our Cranstons like it. They understand the rabble is easily led by spellbinding, emotional, inflammatory demagogues. Worthwhile voters take their responsibilities seriously. They ruled this country through its golden years by rejecting the voice of the disinterested. Then came the New Deal, New Frontier and other Democrat ideologies to put the nation at the mercy of the ignorant and incompetent. How else could we have gotten what we now have?

Universal suffrage is a virtue, why not do as Australia has done—make voting mandatory? In that country, anyone who fails to vote faces fine and imprisonment. If (as is the case in Carrizozo, NM) a per-

—Inside the Capitol

By Jay Miller

SANTA FE—We all worried when the terse cablegram from Fred McCaffrey arrived saying that he and Jan had left their tropical retirement paradise of Montserrat and would let us know of their new whereabouts as soon as they were relocated.

That was a week ago. Today, the following letter arrived, dated Oct. 13, explaining in his inimitable way the further adventures of Fred McCaffrey:

"Jay, you said in a column I left the political-commenting game there at just the right moment. You were right about it.

"But when you pictured me on a cool verandah somewhere in the tropics, clapping my hands for the houseboy to bring me another stengah, you had that wrong. Here is the real scoop on the latest adventure of the McCaffreys."

"One of my first friends on Montserrat was part of a group organizing a new political party aimed at turning out the Island's entrenched rulers. He welcomed me as somebody who evidently knew something about politics as well as someone who might help to improve his party's weekly newspaper. As a result, I found myself happily teaching layout and newswriting to an almost totally amateur staff, as well as writing an occasional commentary, just like back home.

"In one of these, I said building gambling casinos wasn't likely to solve the economic problems of Caribbean islands because the high-rollers in the US now have Atlantic City to flock to. That's true, as I see it—and I even quoted statistics to prove it.

"That apparently irked some of the nation's powers-that-be, who want to go into the casino business, and alerted them to keep an eye on this potential troublemaker.

"A week later I did a straight news story (as factual and objective as one of Bill Feather's, as God is my judge) about a decision handed down by a Supreme Court justice. In it, I quoted complaints of local citizens about the way the case had been managed.

"That gave the government a chance to move in. The nation's attorney general accused me and the proprietors of the paper of contempt of court—not formally, which would have given us a chance to reply, but simply in remarks made in open court. Since the proprietors of the paper are local citizens and I am not, he further made it clear that McCaffrey, the outlander, was going to be made a political football.

"Suddenly, two cops appear at our apartment early one morning, looking very grim and heavy. That's not a very pleasant experience when you're thousands of miles from home.

"All they want to do, they say, is inquire whether I have a work permit from the government. It turns out I do not need one, partly because I am not a 'worker' but a volunteer and partly because their own law says journalists may work for a full year without such a permit. That brings that matter to a close, but it leaves two United States citizens full of the realization that they can be pushed around, even if the nation in question is not Cuba or Nicaragua.

"Just at that point, Jan's and my 90-day visitor's visas expired. We went to the police station to have them renewed, expecting an automatic extension, which almost all visitors are routinely given. That didn't happen.

"Instead, government pounced. We were brusquely told, with no further explanation of why, that we would be expected to leave the country within seven days, 'banished' more or less from one of the crown colonies of Elizabeth II for the offense of believing it lawful to practice freedom of the press.

"Our friends on Montserrat rallied round. One member of parliament insisted we not comply with the deportation order while a local attorney (there are four in private practice in the country) fought to have our departure delayed.

"During all this time, I was anxious to go public with a bang—tell the whole story to AP in Puerto Rico, invite '60 Minutes' to investigate the bullying of an American newsmen, and the whole nine yards. To do that, however, would more or less tear it for us all over the Caribbean and end our tropical idyll forever. So we stood mute, though with lots of mumbling under our breath and side remarks made to one another.

"All this was very tough on Jan. She hadn't done anything offensive, yet here she was getting a kicking-around anyway. When her dander's up, she is a whirlwind of a fighter, yet we were forced to hold ourselves in because we couldn't beat a whole national government. Apparently they can do what they did; it may be lousy, but they can do it.

"So we are now off to look at other islands, specifically Nevis and St. Kitt's, as possible places in which to lay down our heads. I'm feeling much like a second John Peter Zenger, martyr to freedom of the press; and both of us feel abused, disenchanted and ever so much wiser about the workings of closed societies.

"Tell people there not to worry about us. Jan and I are both resilient. In fact, we're tougher than small-minded officials appreciate. We'll get along—but things being what they are, it won't be on Montserrat.

"Watch for further reports on the adventures to follow." Fred.

son can be sentenced to 90 days in jail for "starting a parked car," surely such punishment could extend to a person who neglects his civic duty.

The senatorial lynching team that strung up Judge Robert Bork got little relief when last week President Reagan nominated Judge Douglas Ginsburg for the US Supreme Court. Judge Ginsburg is a Jew. Rest assured he will not, because of his race, be subjected to the abuse heaped upon Bork. They are not going to face alienating and angering the Jewish community and in the process subject themselves to charges of racial prejudice. The dilemma now facing Ted Kennedy & Associates is to figure out how to kill the nomination in a nice, friendly way while saving their own political hides. If the Inquisition does succeed in defeating Ginsburg's nomination, I suggest that the president nominate an outstanding black without a law degree, such as Thomas Sowell or Walter Williams, and watch how the yellow-bellied congressional canines handle that one!

truck. The answer was "no" since Bill Rawlins, a local resident who lives near the bridge and who had witnessed the accident, did not call the police to report the accident.

This conclusion was apparently a coverup as the writer had contacted the administration a week after the accident to find that no one was aware that an insurance claim should have been filed.

Mr. Rawlins, the city attorney, engineer, and city manager had met, all or in part, several times to reach an agreement with Rawlins. Rawlins' input and acceptance to the planned repairs was imperative since he was deeding a small area of his property over to the city. What should have been a quick acceptance of an agreed upon plan became a long discussion when the city engineer began to cite his own recommendations, not in keeping with the plan as agreed upon. This upset the appraiser, and there will now be more meetings and discussions, all of which are not necessary to complete the project.

The repairs to this bridge were thoroughly discussed a year ago and the mayor was given plans at that time to do a minimum amount of work to correct a problem which had caused many accidents at the bridge site. The mayor ignored the suggested plans and the whole project was placed on "hold." Now we have a truck damaging the same bridge and repairs are now needed to make the bridge safe once more. As in the past, we have the same problem with the city engineer: If we continue to talk there is a guarantee that winter will soon be here and the weather will delay the bridge project until next year.

Why it should require the combined efforts of the city manager, engineer and attorney to solve this simple problem accentuates the idea that Bureaucracy just doesn't work.

Next, City Manager Frank Potter discussed the possibility of appointing an ad hoc committee to coordinate the efforts of various local groups and committees to work for the betterment of Ruidoso.

This is a great idea if the efforts of committees were successful. However, past experience has shown the reverse to be true. Committees accomplish very little. Members of committees are appointed by the mayor subject to council approval. The customary practice has not proved that the best people are always chosen to serve on committees. Most are friends of the mayor and not all are qualified to sit on a committee. Recently committees in Ruidoso have not been able to meet because of members failing to show up for a meeting. For reasons difficult to understand, the mayor often takes an adversarial attitude towards the committees he appoints. To make matters worse, the council is not inclined to question or reject the appointment made by the mayor. This only exacerbates the problem. The idea of "advise and consent" is not in the playbook at city hall.

The next agenda item was the mayor's appointments to committees. There was none, with the mayor saying, "Committees did not need a full force to operate." This may be part of the problem with committees.

Then—Mrs. Charlotte Jarrett, president of the Ruidoso Federated Womens Club (RFWC), read a letter to the council and addressed to the State Transportation Coordinator asking that the RFWC be relieved of the ownership and operation responsibility of a new van which was originally planned to assist in the transportation of the elderly and handicapped in Ruidoso. It seems that more than a year's time had been spent in an attempt to secure a van, with federal funding, which would have the proper equipment, correct title, and a valid lease agreement.

Here again, the key word was communication. Unable to do so, the Women's Club decided it was not worth the effort and gave up on its attempt to assist the needy in Ruidoso. The letter requesting withdrawal from any responsibility in the matter was the last straw.

After Mrs. Jarrett completed reading the letter, she hesitated a moment, waiting for a comment from the council and, receiving none, she sat down. She deserved better than she got.

Finally, and most importantly, the council called for an executive session (closed) to discuss "pending litigation." Coincidentally, the Ruidoso News, in an editorial dated Oct. 29 commented on the use of closed meetings and the rules regarding same. The editorial cited no governmental body as the culprit, but it can be assumed that the comments were the result of the closed meeting called on Oct. 27 which is the subject of these comments.

As the result of the closed meeting it was decided to make payments to the following individuals: Jack Atkins, engineer, $25,000; Neil Stillinger, attorney, $65,000; Total, $90,000.

Atkins check for $25,000 brings his total to date to $150,000. Stillinger's check for $65,000 brings his total to $115,000. Ruidoso's total investment to date to fight Tribe water suit, $265,000.

Let's go back about a year ago.

When the Tribe filed suit to obtain just about all of the Ruidoso River water, a Water Defense Fund was organized to defend against this suit by the Tribe. Involved in the suit were the interests of Ruidoso, Ruidoso Downs, Hopdo Valley, Roswell, Lincoln County, Otero County and others. The City of Ruidoso opted not to join the joint effort of the Defense fund which had obtained the services of the best water attorneys in the State of New Mexico. Instead, Ruidoso hired Atkins as the engineer and attorney Stillinger to represent Ruidoso. This was the equivalent of a duplicated effort. Thus far the unilateral effort of this city has cost the taxpayers $265,000, with more expense to come, and with no assurance that the WDF could not have represented this city along with the other entities.

There are some questions which should be asked: How can the council spend $265,000 without an input from the taxpayers? Where does the $265,000 come from? What account? How much more will be needed before the water suit is decided in the courts?

It would seem that the taxpayers have the right to control the spending of their tax dollars.

Perhaps, as is done in the game of football, we need some replays to find out what is really going on or some new players.

Finding water turned desert to paradise

By CHRIS HARKEY

The following article by George M.T. Fowler, was printed in three parts by the Lincoln County Leader, White Oaks, N.M., William Caffrey, Editor. This first article gives a good account of the development of the area around Roswell 100 years ago.

We enjoy reading the reminiscences of White Oaks and the Territory so much that I will try and give you a little of our experience in that far off land of health, wealth and beauty, down to the modern times of '88 and '87.

It was in the merry month of April, 1886, that we withdrew from the high school in the picturesque little town of Crawford, bid adieu to our friends and schoolmates, and with our parents and other friends took up our journey overland to the distant but famous region of New Mexico. The grass was green and the landscape beautiful; the birds sang gayly in the fresh, leafy boughs, and all earth, and the bright shining heavens above, seemed to be joyful on the morning of our departure toward the setting sun. Our hopeful journey lay across hill and valley, creek and river; till we reached the famous Llano Estacado. Here, the world seemed to be flat, with nothing to check the vision's weary flight but the vast herds of antelope, perhaps miles away, magnified to the size of elephants by the mirage. Onward we went, with prospects brightening every day, until one pleasant evening in May we struck camp on the banks of the little brook Hondo, at the town of Roswell, N.M., one of the most picturesque little towns that ever bedecked the valley of the Pecos.

After prospecting about the town and county a few days for an opening to benefit myself and profit the country, we made a business adventure with William Roberts, the owner of the old Jno. Chisum cattle ranch. This wealthy gentleman employed us to drill wells for him on the plains, fifteen miles east of the Pecos River, in what is known as long arroya. This section lies in a district waving with the finest of grama grass, where there was, at that time, no beast to feed upon it save the deer and antelope, as it was destitute of surface water and a place that had baffled the arts of man. There being signs in the way of pits and drill holes in various places, and seeming as old as the conquest of the country by the energetic white man.

So, ordering a drilling machine at a cost of $1,000, we began work at the place indicated, in search of water. We were to get $3.75 per foot where we found water and $1.80 per foot for a dry hole in the earth. Every day, almost, some older settlers, or natives, would tell us that our efforts were foolish and would be in vain, seeking water in a place that had proven fruitless to the labor and skill of so many in years gone by.

Not heeding the advice of others we kept our drill sinking into the bowels of the earth, hauling our camp and slack water 20 miles until the end of the fifth day, when the glad news went through the camps that "water was found." Oh, how changed the scene. Well do we remember how joyful the camp was, where some were drawing and others drinking, and praising the cold, new found water—when lo, a dark sandstorm appeared in the north near by, and potting the side-boards of a wagon body, with sheet and bows on, sitting on the ground, in which our grub was stored, we leaped beside it to make it safe.

But alas, on came the roaring storm and picked us up like a feather, carrying us hurriedly through the camp and on down across the plain, where we were deposited amidst a bunch of stampeding horses. Notwithstanding the perilous storm, while passing through camps we could still hear those below shouting an-ternas of praise to the spring that had broken out in the desert.

When the glad tidings reached Mr. Roberts he was so elated that he came out and ordered us to drill wells for him five miles apart until we got tired of the business. So the work went on until 8 wells of cold, fresh water had been found within the distance of 20 miles up and down the arroya. This brought us $2,500 for pocket money. But the expenses of the work were heavy. Our provisions had to be hauled from Roswell, 30 miles away; besides, the Pecos was bank full during the whole time, across which we floated our merchandise in a little skiff; and made our horses paddle their own canoe. This same little skiff was the only one known from Pecos station, in Texas, on the entire river above to its source, therefore it was considered the pride of the "Cottonwood Crossing."

Once upon a time, while the river was still on a boom, there came down a flood-tide and deluged the Valley from hill to hill and on subsiding it was discovered that the skiff was gone; no one knew where; some thought down the river. Old Dr. Sutherland walked up the Rio Hondo one day from its mouth till he came opposite Barney Mason's, where he found the skiff tied up. On asking Barney about the matter he told the Dr. that he met it floating up stream and thought he would do the neighbors a favor by tying it up.

By this time three months had elapsed. We had made $2,500.00 and had paid nearly half of it to Roswell merchants. We had also seen explored a good portion of the surrounding country. We indeed thought we had arrived in Paradise. The ranchmen seemed to be prosperous, the cow-boy happy and gay, with his rig of a 10 oz. hat, California pants, $60 saddle, $10 spurs, a brace of six shooters and a $10 bridle on. Everything seemed to be prosperous. Even the "Neeters," as the farmers are denominated by the cow-punchers, on North and South Spring Rivers seemed to be progressive and in good circumstances, more than we had seen the same year in Texas. Roberts had now located wind-mills over the wells we had drilled for him, put several thousand head of cattle on the fine range adjacent, and soon had that arid, desolate district converted into an oasis which was truly in the desert, and it no doubt stands there to-day as a blessing to the way-worn traveler, as a place for man and beast to stoke their thirst after a journey across the desert under a midsummer sun.

The worth of the oasis to Roberts, to say nothing of its value to others, can hardly be counted. Having to dig for wood and climb for water in all the country about Roswell, and as winter was soon coming on, we concluded to go further west until we found wood more plentiful. So, about the middle of September, 1886, we left the good people and beautiful country of Roswell for Clefuga Del Macho, or Black Ranch. Here we found plenty of pine knots to keep us warm, and plenty of work, fat beef for chuck, and many other good things, besides good people and a beautiful country. (Continued next week.)

On My Own . . . by Pat Kite

As a single parent, I'm a great one for romantic fantasy. Sure tomorrow, or maybe the next day, some tall, dark handsome, rich and sensuous, stranger will appear at my door, office, the supermarket checkout lane, a PTA meeting. This stranger will, of course, ask me to dinner and propose over crepes, suzettes. That is my fantasy. The reality goes something like this, I'm taking one of my kids to the orthodontist's office. We are riding the elevator up to the fourth floor. On the second floor in walks this six-foot-two, sandy haired, tan slacked, white shirted, absolutely gorgeous guy who does not happen to be wearing a wedding ring. He smiles at me. I smile back. There is a moment of heart-thumping silence. And then my kid says, "Mommy, you have a piece of buffalo meat stuck in your teeth." The gorgeous fellow is still chuckling as he gets out on the fourth floor by himself. I ride the elevator back down to first, all the while encouraging my daughter to step out while we are in transit. She can't understand what she's done wrong. After all, is it her fault Mommy snacked on the "doggy bag" buffalo meat leftover from the prior night's political fund-raising barbecue?

Certainly not. It's just that kids can clobber prospective romance with one broadsword swipe of the fat mouth. For example, a girlfriend once fixed me up with an engineer friend of hers. I asked if he would like a cup of coffee before we left. That was fine. We sat in the kitchen making various pleasantries. A daughter enters, reviews the scene. "Mommy," she says, "Can you explain to me again what fornicate means?" (this is the polite word for the four-letter word she used).

The fellow raises his eyebrows. Maybe this is not such a staid, respectable household after all. Maybe I have prompted my daughter to ask this question as a behavior hint. Maybe he won't have to wait until the third date, or whatever, to make a pass.

So he does this even before he starts the car's engine. The next day I berate my girlfriend for fixing me up with such a lout. She replies that it was something my kid said which made him think the pass was expected.

This type of thing never happens in romance novels. The heroines may have children, but they are always sweet little darlings who are generally playing elsewhere or else asleep. Mine are right here. All four of them. Which is why I end up with fantasies instead of tall, dark, handsome and sensuous reality. I'd complain, but there's always a single parent who can top the story. I only laugh when it doesn't happen to me.

Tigers spoil Carrizozo's homecoming

By BART McDONOUGH

The Capitan Tigers spoiled Carrizozo's homecoming Oct. 30 defeating the Grizzlies 38-8. The Tigers now advance to the regional playoff game on Saturday, Nov. 7. The Tatum Coyotes will provide the opposition for a 1 p.m. game to be played in Capitan.

The Coyotes defeated Capitan 27-14 in the Tiger's 2nd game of the season. Capitan came on strong in the 4th quarter of this game scoring both of their touchdowns.

Richard Guevara scored the only Grizzly touchdown on the opening kickoff going 65 yards down the west side of the field. Carrizozo passed for 2 points and briefly took the lead. Capitan's Anthony Sanchez had his "bell rung" by Grizzly Mark Guevara on a clean block and the game was delayed some 18 minutes before the 1st play could be run from scrimmage.

The Tigers scored on their 1st two possessions of the game. The 1st tally came on a 25 yard scamper by Tino Gallegos to climax a 63 yard drive. Kerry Clements added the extra two points.

Capitan scored again on its next possession on a 51 yard drive, Clements and Jerod

Martin leading the way. Clements got the final 9 yards after a penalty had nullified a Jerod Martin TD. Martin added the extra points. The rest of the half was played with numerous penalties being called by game officials. The score at halftime, Capitan 16, Carrizozo 8.

Midway in the 3rd quarter Capitan mounted a 70 yard scoring drive in three plays after stopping a Grizzly threat on 4th down. Kerry Clements found daylight and romped 69 yards for the TD. Gallegos passed to Johnny Castillo for the 2 point conversion. The Tigers now found themselves out front 24-8.

Carrizozo was forced to punt on its next possession and Clements returned the ball to the Grizzly 45 yard line. Six plays later Clements carried the ball in from the 3 yard line. Gallegos again found Johnny Castillo for the 2 point conversion. Capitan 32, Carrizozo 8.

The Tiger's final touchdown came with 4:53 left in the game. Martin's 4 yard run climaxed a 53 yard drive in six plays. The Tigers could not add the extra point and the final score was posted, Capitan 38, Carrizozo 8.

Fred Vega intercepted a pass on the Grizzly 16 yard line to stop a Tiger scoring threat just before the game ended.

Silvers derailed in overtime play

The Little League football playoff game between the Zotan Silvers and the Ruidoso Lions held Saturday in Ruidoso ended after the game went into overtime.

The Lions came from 6 points down to tie the game at 6-6 in regulation play and went on to defeat the Zotan Silvers by the score of 12-6 in the overtime action.

The Silvers were able to cash in on but one of many opportunities during the game when fullback Ernie Trujillo scored on a 73 yard gallop in the second quarter. Zotan was repeatedly on the goal line of the Lions but was stymied by too many penalties.

Leading ball carriers for Zotan were Ernie Trujillo with 89 yards on four carries and Avron Sumpter with 83 yards on 16 carries. Jacob Caldwell was recognized for his fine play on both sides of the line, as were Tommy Seay, Gabe Murray, Jonathan McCarty, Justin Serna and Rodney Zamora.

Zotan will play in the consolation game at 9 a.m. on Saturday, Nov. 7 at White Mountain elementary school in Ruidoso. The Zotan Silvers are boys 8 and 9 years old from Capitan and Carrizozo.

Carrizozo volleyball season ends

The Mountainair Mustangs ended the volleyball season for the Carrizozo Grizzly girls by defeating coach Ron Becker's club by 3 games to 2 in district playoff action Thursday night in Mountainair.

Carrizozo thus ends its season with a 7-11 won/lost record, falling one short of advancing to district finals and regional playoffs.

Playing their last game for the Grizzlies were seniors Marcella Sandoval, Claudia Lopez and Judy Vega.

Returning next year will be juniors Marcia Hefker, Jeanna Sims, Johnna Gibson, Diana Najar, D'rese Aguilar and Leah Patterson.

THE CARRIZOZO Little Theater Group presented "The Trueheart Boarding House Prospera Answer" in Capitan Tuesday. This second performance of the melodrama was again an audience participation program as members of the audience hurled marshmallows and peanuts at the villain. In this scene the heroine (right) introduced Grandma Trueheart to the villain (in black top hat) and his inept son Archibald Jr. The Little Theater Group welcomes members of the community to join the group for future production.

The BEST Heater You Can Buy is a Heat Pump

"The best" is a strong phrase to use, but it's a fitting description of the heat pump. The heat pump is the most efficient heater made. Better yet, it is an air conditioner and heater all in one. No other heating and air conditioning system — using any other energy source — can make your home comfortable as energy efficiently as the heat pump.

How does the heat pump work? In winter, the heat pump draws heat from the outside air and pumps it inside. In summer, it pumps the heat out of your house.

When it comes time to replace your old heating and cooling system, consider the most energy efficient system made — the heat pump. For more free information, contact the neighborhood professionals at Texas-New Mexico Power Company.

Corona FFA to compete in national contests

The Corona chapter of the Future Farmers of America will travel to the National FFA Convention Nov. 9-14, and while traveling to the convention will compete in the National FFA Parliamentary Procedure Contest in Carthage, MO.

The Corona chapter won the right to be invited to the National Parliamentary Procedure contest by winning the New Mexico State Chapter Farmer Parliamentary Procedure contest last June. The team consists of Julie Furgason, Jason Gibbs, Traci Kelley, Michael Pounds and Tommy Mulkey. The contest is sponsored by the Carthage FFA Alumni and has been held for 10 years. The team from Corona will be competing against state winners from 18 other states.

After the contest the Corona members will go on to Kansas City, MO where they will attend the 60th Annual National FFA Convention, which will follow the theme, "FFA - Agriculture's New Spirit."

There will be six other members attending the convention along with the five members of the Parliamentary Procedure team: James Miller, Tye Lightfoot, Sandra Copeland, Tina Aaron, Alvie McKibben and Emmet Sullemeier. They will join more than 22,000 other FFA member from across the nation.

Along with all the pageantry that goes with the convention members will have the opportunity to watch as two members of the Corona chapter receive the American Farmer Degree, the highest honor that can be bestowed on an active FFA member. Marvin Pounds and Steve Copeland will receive the degree during ceremonies at the convention. These two members are the first-ever American Farmers in the history of the Corona chapter.

Members will also see motivational speakers in the likes of Roger Staubach, former quarterback of the Dallas Cowboys and member of the NFL Hall of Fame; William Bennett, Secretary of Education under President Reagan; and George Bush, Vice-President of the United States.

Another treat for Corona members will be a keynote address by Lee Iacocca, CEO of the Chrysler Corporation. This will be an honor because the Corona chapter carries the theme, "We have one and only one ambition. To be the best. What else is there?" A quotation that Iacocca used during the years when he was bringing Chrysler back to respectability.

Along with these inspiring speakers the members will be treated to the best speakers in the nation when they watch the National FFA public speaking contests.

FIRST PLACE WINNERS in the annual Corona Halloween Carnival Costume Contest were (front) Krystal Sandoval, Forrest Tracey, and JoJo Romans; (back) Nancy Riley, Randy Lesly and Dorothy Nell Lightfoot.

Corona beats Magdalena goes to state semi-finals

Corona Cardinals advanced to the New Mexico State Championship semi-finals after romping past Magdalena Saturday in a 71-33 win. The Cardinals will play Roy this Saturday at 2 p.m. in Corona.

In the Magdalena encounter, Tommy Mulkey gained 374 yards on the ground in 28 carries and passed for 61 yards. On the receiving end were Heath Brown, Tye Lightfoot, Dan Bell and Chad Brown who ran for two TDs. Bell intercepted and capitalized on the Magdalena error with a return for 6 points while the Brown boys each had an interception. Shane Owen contributed to the Corona score by blocking a punt for a safety.

Coach G. Ray Johnson was happy with the Cardinal win, the first in playoffs in several years. Johnson noted that his team took a while to "warm up." "We didn't play well in the first quarter; it rained on us a little, even snowed a little, and we had a three-hour drive, too." He added that the home field will be a big advantage this Saturday. "We would have been on the road four weeks in a row" if the Roy game had been at Roy, he said.

Corona played at Roy on Sept. 12 where the Cardinals lost 28-18. Johnson thinks his team has improved "a bunch" since that meeting and expects the game on Saturday to be a good one.

Chaparral 4-H Club sign-up

Chaparral 4-H Club of Corona will have sign-up for the new year on Nov. 5, Thursday, 4:30 p.m. at the Corona School recreation room. Parents are welcome.

4-H is for youth 9-19 years old regardless of race, color, religion, sex, handicap or national origin.

For further information call the county office at 648-2311; Barbara Furgason, 849-8186; or Sandy Hendricks, 648-2862.

Corona paving project near completion

Hale Construction Company crews are working in Corona this week on Phase II of the street paving project. According to Mayor Ernest Lueras, the project is scheduled for completion by next Monday.

The construction will complete paving funded by Community Development Block Grants. Village councillors are considering applying for additional funds to be used for other paving in the community. "We would like to see all Corona streets paved," said Lueras, citing the muddy conditions which exist most of the winter. A public hearing held on Oct. 8 did not reveal any objections to the idea.

Mountainair ousts Corona at tourney

Corona volleyball team ended its season last week at the district tournament in Mountainair with a 3-1 loss. Denise Lightfoot was selected to the All-District team.

Devra Post, Corona coach, said, "We played some good ball this year," adding that the girls stayed with their game and demonstrated some determination through the 6-7 season. "We are looking forward to a better season next year," she said.

KATRINA ARCHULETA was crowned Halloween Carnival Queen during the annual Corona Carnival Friday night. Representing her 7th grade class, Katrina collected more jar money than other candidates. She was escorted by Orlando Chavez.
