Matt Surratt to stand trial as a juvenile

By Ruth Hammond

District Judge Robert Doughty ruled Friday that Matt Surratt, 17, should be tried in juvenile court for the murder of Katina Chavez, 15. The ruling came after a twoday hearing in Alamogordo.

Assistant District Attorney Scot Key argued that Surratt should be tried as an adult because of the severity of the crime.

Doughty's ruling means that if convicted, Surratt could receive a maximum sentence of two years at the New Mexico Boys School in Springer. If he had been tried and convicted as an adult he could have received life imprisonment, which in New Mexico is term of 30 years.

Surratt, who has been in custody in the juvenile section of the Otero County Jail in Alamogordo since March 4, was released by Doughty following the hearing. Doughty ordered Surratt to stay with family out of state until the Roswell on Tuesday and Mittrial which is to be held within 90 days.

Carrizozo Schools budget tops $1.5 million for fiscal 88-89

The total estimated around the national merit budget for Carrizozo Schools for the 1988-89 year will be $1,622,028.

The budget was reviewed on May 25 by the Carrizozo Board of Education and Isaac Martinez and Michael Davis of Santa Fe. Martinez is financial management consultant for school finance division with the department of education and Davis is accreditation consultant for the state department of education.

Martinez explained the twofold purpose of the meeting pening in Carrizozo," Davis was to have the school budget in Santa Fe by June 20 with the budget to be certified by July 1. Adjustments to the budget can be made on the 40th, 80th and 120th days of school.

Carrizozo School Supt. Danny Burnett gave a summary of the district's education program, accomplishments of students and staff and programs during the 1987-88 school year.

Burnett said the most significant thing the school did in making gains in capital improvements was adding the allweather athletic track. He listed CTBS scores and ACT test scores and noted that one senior received a 26 on the ACT, one junior received a 29 on the ACT and another junior received a 25 on the ACT. The ACT perfect score is 30. These ACT scores are up range," Burnett said. He also listed scholarships seniors received this year, students' science fair activities, FFA participation and awards won, students of the month and athletic winners.

"We are glad to see the emphasis is on students," Davis said. He mentioned that the budget documents had four lines for administration and seven pages of information about students.

Lots of things are hapadded. "It is a very good report." He discussed with Burnett the plan for Carrizozo to continue the seven-period day at school which gives students 28 chances to acquire the necessary 23 credits to graduate and also gives students viable options.

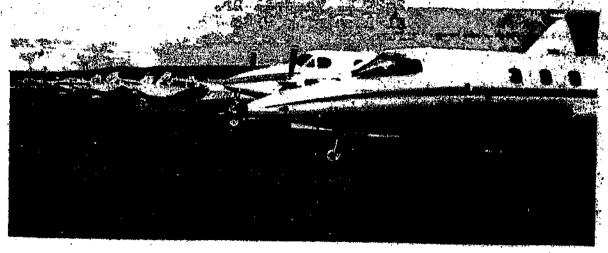

"I will recommend full accreditation in June," Davis said. He was impresses with Carrizozo having the "Biology Teacher of the Year, Mariann Patterson," and said the Write to Read program for kindergarteners and first graders is a good program and he considered the school dropout rate "interesting."

"I personally feel the dropout rate is less than it was a year ago," said school prin-cipal Mel Holland.

Included in the budget is a cash balance of $108.067 from total budget. This money was available due to the district being frugal and cautious with expenditures. The remaining money will come from local sources.

Martinez asked about increases in some line items for next year. He was told one increase is for Holland to attend leadership training, another line item is for funds for the school board election that will be held next spring and another increase is because different pay scales will apply for sharing a band teacher with Corona next year, providing one is hired.

All school employees will receive a 3 percent salary increase next year.

The total budget of $1,622,028 includes all debt service, bond building for sale of bonds for critical capital outlay and the 2 mil levy money for capital improvements from Senate Bill 9.

Voters approve beef checkoff

Results of the beef checkoff referendum "have been released by the Department of Agriculture, with voters approved continuing the program by 79 percent. Lincoln County voters were 87 in favor and 9 against. Otero County voters were 84 for and 4 against.

Shirley Goodloe, chairman for Lincoln County in the New Mexico beef checkoff campaign, was pleased with results, which mean the Beef Board will continue to collect the assessment of $1 per head of cattle sold. The money collected will be used to promote beef.

"It is evident the people realize the value of advertising, promotion and research for the future of the beef industry," Goodloe said.

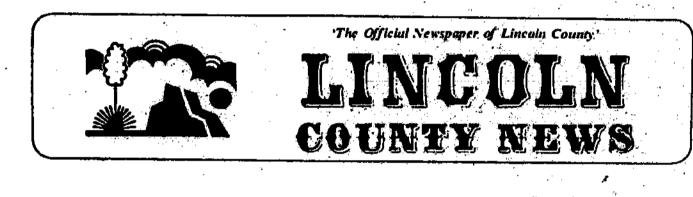

The program began when Congress passed the Beef Promotion-and Research Act of 1985. The entire beef industry worked together to change consumer attitudes towards beef in order to increase consumption and demand for beef.

Federal law mandated that no more than 5 percent of the money collected could be used or administrative costs. In addition, 50 cents of every dollar collected was controlled by each state's own local beef

More than 100 programs were operated by the checkoff, including re-educating including American consumers about beef, research that looked at everything from cholesterol to product safety and microwave packaging, and national advertising.

The most popular television commercials stars James Garner promoting beef. Radio advertising featuring Paul Harvey was also a success. Print ads aimed at doctors, dietitians, homemakers and restaurant owners had an impact.

One survey showed that consumers who believe beef is an important part of a well-balanced diet increased from 51 percent to 56 percent in a six-month period. An indepen-dent study found that 13.9 million Americans who class-ed themselvés as "light" beef users began buying more beef after seeing checkoff ads. "Advertising is impor-tant," Goodloe added. • About every 10 years there is a need to update the dictionary to conform to current language use. The US Constitution is a case to prove the point; its language is reinterpreted almost every day according to who's or is being gored. Nell McCaffrey has come up with some current definitions of words and terms, the meaning of which have changed dramatically with the onslaught of liberal ideology. With no apologies to Ambrose Bierce, Mr. McCaffrey brings us up to date (as of yesterday). United Nations—an international competition more popular than the Olympics because all the players win-except Americans, Israelis and South Africans, Civil liberties—A legal and social program for creating a privileged caste of robbers, rapists, subversives and por-nographers. Gun control—A method of stripping law-abiding citizens of their firearms while assuring that criminals reliain theirs undisturbed. Arms control criminals retain theirs undisturbed. Arms control-Campaigns by the last eight American presidents to demonstrate that liars and killers can be trusted with our lives. Mafla—International crime syndicate whose existence is denied by the governor of New York, who thus loses his card in the American Philosophical Association for attempting to prove a universal negative but gains a lifetime membership in the Flat Earth Society. Disinvestment—A campaign to bar corpora-tions and financial institutions from investing in a country that imposes racial segregation while guaranteeing their right to trade with the two nations responsible for the murder of 70 million of their citizens. Welfare-A method of subsidizing promiscuity and bastardy. Compassion—An emotion discovered by Right-Thinking Persons that makes a subject feel moral and dissolves outmoded notions of justice, morality, divine retribution and common sense, Education—In the US, a device for persuading citizens to contribute upwards of $100 billion a year toward the corruption of their children. •You probably thought American Junacy had peaked out when President Jimmy Carter & Cohorts gave the Panama Canal to Panama-along with hundreds of millions of dollars to make the gift more attractive for them. But that was before Secretary of State George Schultz and his left-to-liberal US State Department came along. Since 1981, secret negotiations have been under way between the State Department and the Soviety Union whereby the US would, without any strings, donate five islands belonging to the US and Alaska to the Soviets. The islands are Wrangell, Herald, Bennett, Henrietta and Jeannette. They stand between Alaska and the Soviet mainland. Tens of billions of barrels of oil and gas reserves lie in this area, according to the US Department of Interior. The State Department wants the Soviet Union to have these resources. Landwise, the giveaway involves more than four times the area of the State of California.

Arrogance of the State Department apparently knows no bounds. But it does understand that there is no treaty setting an international boundary between the US and the USSR in this area. It also knows that such a boundary cannot be established except by treaty. In the US, all treaties must be ratified by two-thirds of the US Senate, Wheeling and dealing in secrecy, the State Department is ignoring the law, a stance now being challenged by Rep. William Dannemeyer of California. The Alaskan Senate has passed a unanimous resolution reiterating that state's rule over the islands.

SANTA FE-Many of you have heard of the Mama Lucy Gang that controlled the House of Representatives for most of the 1970s.

By Jay Miller

Inside the

There is increasing evidence of another gang that is slowly creeping into posi-tions of power and influence around our state. It differs greatly in form and substance from the Mama Lucys but in some ways its roots are more real. First, let's remember the Mama Lucys for a minute. The Gang was truly a phenomenon. There was a spirit of excitement that bound its members. Most were young. Many were first-termers. They signaled the beginning of a movement-away from control of the legislature by rural interests.

At the suggestion of Dick Carbajal of Belen, the group became known as the Mama

Lucy Gang; named for Mrs. Lucy Lopez, a Las Vegas restaurant owner who played host to scores of politicos and would-be-politicos in her Plaza restaurant and lounge.

Included among the would-be politicos was always a group of Highlands Univerliberalism was bein rocked by Mama Lucy in Las Vegas, another gang was being spawned on the campus of the University of New Mexico in Albuquerque.

This gang gathered around the family-size lunch table at a fraternity house on Mesa Vista Rd. Since the fraternity name will not mean much to most of you, let's call this the Mesa Vista Gang.

Included in the gang were US Sen. Pete Domenici, Lt. Gov. Jack Stahl, US Sen. candidate Corky Morris, new Albuquerque Public Schools Supt. Jack Bobroff and former New Mexico state legislators George Shaffer, Mel Evans and Doug Michelson.

Unlike the collegiate luncheon crowd at Mama Lucy's, these were all local boys, who didn't have time for the long drive at noon in the big Duke City.

And that is not the end of the dissimilarities. In fact, the group almost appears to be the Republican answer to the Mama Lucy Gang except that will alw politics and political middle.

topic of lunchtime discussion. Neither was this group eager to grab the reins of power. They were much more willing to wait their turn in the proper Republican way. Getting a good start in business was-much-more-importantthan getting a good start at saving the world.

This was not the rich boys frat lodge, however. That was a block up the street on Sigma Chi Rd. That group never got its act together well enough to be called a gang. In fact, it produced leaders of the fival factions that have contended for control of the New Mexico House the last 10 years—Gene Samber-son and Raymond Sanchez. The speaker's post jockeyed-back and forth between the two on three different occasions.

Although the two gangs bear little similarity, they do share one common bond. Whenever college males gather around a table, there will always be food in the Three of these islands lie in the Arctic Ocean from 300 to 900 miles off Alaska's northwest coast. Wrangell and Herald islands are located 100 miles north of Siberia. All were discovered by US explorers and claimed by the United States. Wrangell, largest of the group, has been under Soviet control since 1924 when the last 14 Americans occupying it were captured by Russian forces and shipped to Siberia. Since that time the Soviets have operated a prison camp on the Island. We allowed the Soviets to get away with the occupation of Wrangell, even though that island was claimed for the United States in 1881. These islands are strategic militarily, for at one point the US-claimed islands are only two miles from Soviety territory-something that could give the US a headache in a war with its avowed enemy, the Soviet Union.

Residents of Dublin, CA face fail sentences today for hanging clothing out to dry, if the clothesline can be seen from the street. Once upon a time clothing was hing on clotheslines in the yard because sun and fresh air killed germs, make clothes fluffy and smelling nice. Today in Dublin, CA don't even think about it. Anyone doing it is also sure to be sued; according to an article appearing in the Chicago Tribung. First, the culprit who hung out the clother would be sued, along with the maker of the clothes, maker of the soap or delergent in which the clothing or sheets were washed, the maker of the washing machine used on the day of the transgression, and probably all neighbors who failed to stop the culprit-hanging out those sheets and other items to dry. The way liability claims are being handled in the courts these days, even one's parents could be sued for having spawn-ed a baby who grew up and hung a sheet out to dry in his/her backyard. Whatever happened to the good eld days? Tune in next week for a comprehensive look at folbles of the past and of the present.

sity students. These were young men, such as Carbajal, who lived on the nearby campus but chose, for economic or culinary reasons, not to eat college cafeteria food.

Mama Lucy let these outof-town students run a tab and pay as they could. Whether it was caring generosity or good business on her part, it was the former attitude that stuck in the minds of the liberal-Democrat Mama Lucys. The Gang was responsible for the creation and expansion of many social programs by the state of New Mexico.

The college crowd that hing on the periphery of wheelings and dealings at Mama Lucy's was always aching to get in and be a part of the aciton. Las Vegas Rep. Sam Vigil, who has been in the House ever since the 1971 takeover by the Mama Lucys, was not a part of that college luncheon crowd because he lived and dined at home. But he was aware of the developing phenomenon. Vigil says the unwillingness to "walt for their turn" on the part of these college students began with the World War II vets and continued with vets of Korean conflict. These men had the attitude that they had already served their country for a greater cause and "no one is going to stand in my way now."

This same eagerness to take over the reins of power characterized the mostlyyoung Democrats who name "Mama Licy Gang" was most fitting.

The image projected by Gang members was that many of them were a part of that college crowd at Mama Lucy's restaurant many years before. But how many actually were?

HomeChores, a teenager typically is matched up with two or three senior citizens who need help with such tasks as painting, yard work, washing dishes, and other chores around the home.

"The program was such a hit last year that we've decid-ed to expand it this year to include more jobs, more comcitizens, who receive assistance," said Wesley, Lindsay, Carrizozo spokesman for U S WEST. He said HomeChores is funded through . a $65,000 grant from US WEST and the Mountain Bell Foundation.

Administering the program again this year are the three New Mexico Area Agen-cies on Aging: the Southwestern NM Area Agen-cy on Aging, the Eastern NM Area Agency on Aging and the North Central NM Economic Agency on Aging. Senior attizent who need

US ARMY WHITE SANDS MISSILE RANGE WHITE SANDS MISSILE RANGE, NEW MEXICO 2002

NOTICE OF A FINDING OF NO SIGNIFICANT IMPACT

LONG-TERM HIGH-EXPLOSIVE TESTING AT WHITE SANDS MISSILE RANGE PERMANENT HIGH EXPLOSIVE TEST SITE

TO ALL INTERESTED AGENCIES. GROUPS, AND PERSONS:

DESCRIPTION OF PROPOSED ACTION:

The Defense Nuclear Agency plans to conduct a series of high-explosive tests in the area west of the Oscura Mountains on White Sands Missile Range (Socorro County), New Mexico. These tests are a part of an on-going program which began in 1976 and is scheduled to continue thru the year 2008. This Environmental Assessment (EA) references earlier tests, EAs and assesses anticipated effects of planned actions. The test area, referred to as the Permanent High Explosive Test Site (PHETS), is southwest of Trinity Site, the location of the first atomic detonation. Part of this test site is within the Trinity Na-. tional Monument.

The proposed testing over. the next 20 years consists of small and large high explosive + events. A small event is defined as one of 20 tons or less TNT equivalent. An estimated average of one 20-ton and five 1,000-fb events per year is planned, although as many as four of the former and 10 of the later could occur in any year. Large scale events up to 16-KT are envisioned. One large event of this magnitude, 1-KT (500 tons) to 16-KT (8,000 tons) is planned every other year.

Any event projected to result In more than 5.5 kPa (0.8 psl) overpressures on the McDonald Ranch house will require a relocation of the detonation area or additional protection to the ranch house. Any significant reguirements in these areas will be covered in an Addendum or Revision to this EA. By reference, the MISTY PICTURE test in 1987 generated 5.68 kPa over-pressure at the house.

ALTERNATES CONSIDERED Alternate locations for high explosive testing were discussed

thoroughly in earlier EAs and are still an alternate for some curs when meteorological condi-tions are not satisfactory. Test requirements include avoid ance, project activities shall be found of unfavorable conditions and significant detrimental effects from the noise and shock wave should not occur.

Moderate dust will occur during construction and cleanup. with significant amounts of dust, debris end explosive pollutants occuring at test execution. Detrimental effects should be localized or of short term dura-tion. Harmful amounts of residues are not anticipated.

· Little effects on surface or subsurface water are anticipated. Surface water resources are at some distance and subsurface watertables are quite deep and not likely to be impacted.

Archaeological resources have either been located and avoided or mitigated on surfaces affected. Similar procedures will be in effect during future operations. Effects on the Trinity National Monument, and par-project activities shall be found to significantly impact on these resources corrective methods shall be implemented.

CONCLUSIONS The high explosive testing proposed in the PHETS area of White Sands Missle Range is reguired for the satisfactory defense of the United States and its allies. The PHETS are is well adapted to the proposed testing and no reduction in environmental effects could be expected from use of other areas. The area contains significant facilities developed for testing planned which would require expensive duplication if tests were moved. Planned conduct of con-struction, test execution and clean-up should result. In In-significant, or short term effects on the environment, including natural resources (solis, vegeta-tion and wildlife). Monitoring for possible effects on endangered species and filstofic/ar-chaelogical resources will be conducted and significant impacts avoided. Conduct of planned high explosive testing as discussed in this Environmental Assessment should result in no significant en-Vironmental impacts and is not environmentally controversial. It is therefore determined that an Environmental impact State ment is not required. Any in-dividuals agencies or groups not in agreement with this conclu-sion are invited to submit write ten comments for consideration fo the Commander, White Sands Missile Range, NM, within 15 days of this notice. A copy of the Environmental Assessment will be available for study at Building 1740, White Sands Missile Range, NM (Phone (505) 578-2224.) duplicate facilities now present In the PHETS make alternate sites less feasible. The use of blast tubes and no actions are considered as alternates to high explosive tests. Blast tubes may be used where possible but a need for high explosive tests is still recognized. No testing has been determined to be an unacceptable alternate due to its failure to meet Defense needs of the United States and Its alites.

ANTICIPATED ENVIRON-MENTAL EFFECTS OF PROPOSED ACTIONS:

Environmental effects*are discussed under construction (pre-fest), fest execution and cleanup phases. Major en-vironmental considerations are surface disturbance and attendant destruction of resources, potential effects on wildlife and plant communities (including endangered species), shock waves and noise and possible effects on air and water quality: Detrimental effects on historic and archaeological resources will be avoided.

Large areas of virgin soll have been altered and will be alfered by on-going operations. Most of the plant/soll disturbances should not suffer signifi-cant long term detrimental etfects. A magnesium chloride soil stabalizer has been used to reduce dust and soil losses and reduce ousr and soil tosses and its continued use is platined. Wildlife in the immediate area will be disturbed by on-going operations and test execution phenomenon could result in a wide spread impact, including possible effects on the en-dangered Pereprine falcon should they be resting along the face of the Oscura Mountains, east of the PHETS, Effects on wildlife are dependent on size of the test, meteorological conditions and season of the year. Large tests in the early spring and summer prior to June 1 will be avoided unless there are reasonable certainty, that no falcon are nesting in the polen-tially effected areas.

Significant noise and shock were effects should be primeri-ly confined within the boun-tiaries of WSMR unless a fest oc-
