Hunters assault rancher

Kent Huckelbridge, 50, a ranch hand on the Harkey Upper Range ranch, was seriously beaten Friday morning by two hunters, and was flown by helicopter to UNM Hospital in Albuquerque for treatment.

Huckelbridge saw two men, one Hispanic and one Anglo, trespassing on legally posted Harkey ranch. He approached them and advised that they were trespassing on private property, told them there was nothing in the area to hunt, and asked them to leave. He Hispanic then struck Huckelbridge over the head three or four times with the butt of his rifle. While on the ground and unconscious, he was hit and kicked by both men. He suffered several broken ribs.

Huckelbridge was able to crawl to his pickup, but lost consciousness and drove into a ditch enroute to the ranch house. He was found by "Chevo" Baca, who helps patrol the ranch during hunting season, and taken to the ranch house where aid was summoned.

The sheriff's office took the call at 12:45 p.m. and an ambulance arrived at 1 p.m. to take him to Willard where the helicopter picked him up.

The two men were driving an older brown van with two women in it. The Hispanic is described as having the Nazi Swastika tattooed on the back of one hand and as wearing an earring. Sheriff Deputy Jim Rethmil arrived at the scene and is investigating the assault, along with Lt. Paul Wersich, investigator for the sheriff's office. They have descriptions of the two men and an all-points bulletin has been issued.

Huckelbridge has been released from the hospital and is said to be recovering from the attack in which he also suffered two cardiac arrests.

Labor survey begins Monday

The Economic Development Corporation of Lincoln County has received endorsements from every municipality and chamber of commerce in Lincoln County concerning the upcoming telephone labor survey.

They are encouraging the people of the county to cooperate with the survey if they should be called. The labor survey will be performed during the dates of Nov. 28 through Dec. 3, from 6:30 p.m. through 9 p.m.

People answering this random sampling will remain anonymous and the survey will only last two to three minutes. Volunteers from every community as well as the valley and outlying rural areas are helping

J.E. "SHORTY" Hollis, Oscura, is undergoing blood testing and diabetic screening at Zia Senior Citizen Center Tuesday. Theresa Luna, public health nurse with Lincoln County Health Services, said the Center is part of her department's Out Reach clinic program. A total of 64 people, 40 years old and over, were checked Nov. 15.

County commissioners

Controversial zoning ordinance is adopted

By Ruth Hammond

Lincoln County's zoning ordinance was adopted by county commissioners late Tuesday following a public hearing.

Minor changes were made in the ordinance before the commissioners adopted the ordinance by unanimous vote.

Commissioners heard comments from the audience of more than 70 people during the final public hearing for the proposed zoning ordinance for the county Tuesday afternoon.

In addition to hearing complaints about the ordinance, the commissioners received letters from 52 residents in the county who were in favor of the ordinance.

The board of directors of the Ruidoso Board of Realtors sent a letter to the commissioners asking that the vote on the proposed ordinance be postponed until further study of the ordinance could be conducted.

Dick Mounds, speaking for the Economic Development Corporation of Lincoln County, asked the commissioners to pass some kind of ordinance.

Mounds said EDC/LC had received word from the state that Lincoln County would need a zoning ordinance before EDC will receive recommendations from the state.

According to Mounds, prospective businesses will only be interested in locating in areas where zoning is controlled.

Commissioner-elect Karon Petty was concerned that the zoning ordinance is controlled by the board of county commissioners and interpretations of the ordinance could mean different things to different boards.

Several people objected to the county passing the ordinance under the guise of trying to regulate landfills.

When asked if the state regulated landfills, Jim Edwards of the Environmental Improvement Division (EID) office in Ruidoso said the state cannot deny a landfill application.

Edwards said the state can say how a landfill should be operated but cannot designate where it can be located.

After hearing comments for three and a half hours, commissioners took a 10-minute

The area covered by the report team includes all lands of the Lincoln National Forest and adjacent private lands located in the counties of Lincoln, Otero, Chaves and Eddy.

The issues and concerns related to the forest were identified through intensive and broad ranging personal interviews with users and employees of the forest. Users included sportsmen, representatives of environmental organizations, ranchers, businessmen and recreationists.

To conceal the identity of the people interviewed, names were omitted from the report and interviewees are identified by assigned serial numbers. All interviewees are referred to by "he." Factual statements from those interviewed are cited in the report.

Among the concerns addressed: the failure of the forest administration to properly manage and conserve the soil, vegetation and wildlife resources of the forest; forest service road policies and plans to acquire access through private lands by condemnation or through county acquisition of easements; road closures and the impact on users; failure of the forest administration to establish consistent road policy guidelines.

queries were directed to the New Mexico Department of Agriculture and the New Mexico Energy, Minerals and Natural Resources Department during the summer of 1987.

Based on preliminary input from residents regarding actions and proposed plans of the Lincoln National Forest, Carruthers approved the request of the secretaries of Agriculture and of Energy, Minerals and Natural Resources to start a fact-finding study and review on the Lincoln National Forest. As a result of the governor's action, the Lincoln Report Team was formed from staff of the two departments.

The governor's objective in establishing the report team was to identify and document concerns and issues voiced by users and employees of the forest. Initially, the issue of forest road policy and forest access across private lands was the focus of the study. However, during the three months of field study by the report team, the relevant issues expanded to include overall forest management, forest resource conditions, private property concerns, water rights, boundary disputes between forest and private lands, and the working relationship between the general public and the Lincoln National Forest.

The report was started after a group of concerned citizens spoke to Governor Carruthers in May 1987. Additional concerns and among the general concerns: a widespread perception among forest service user groups that Forest Service policies are not implemented objectively and fairly; a declining morale among Forest Service employees and a serious deterioration of relations between the Forest Service and landowners in and adjacent to the forest; and forest users perceive that certain administrators of the Lincoln National Forest exempt themselves from laws governing everyone.

County commissioners hold 42-minute session

Lincoln county business was conducted in 42 minutes Tuesday as county commissioners met in regular session and discussed the new Glencoe bridge, roads and other business.

Road superintendent Tommy Hall reported the new Glencoe bridge is open for traffic. He said fencing has been placed around the old bridge. The county commissioners agreed to give the old bridge to Gerald Tully in exchange for land for the new one. A stipulation will be that fences remain around the old bridge and the bridge not be used.

Commissioners gave Hall permission to purchase salvage material such as guard rails and culverts from the state highway department. The salvage material is offered to the county at greatly reduced prices.

Commission chairman John Hightower asked that letters of appreciation be sent to Louis Medrano and Dewey Lonsberry of the state highway department. Hightower said the highway department was cleaning the sides of Highway 54 north of Carrizozo and putting the trash in plastic bags. "We appreciate it," Hightower said. The other commissioners agreed.

The county received a request to vacate a road in Capitan north subdivision. The road review committee of Bill Rawlins, Leota Pfingsten and Patsy Sanchez with Frankie Silva as alternate was appointed to review the road and make their recommendation to the commissioners.

Commissioners received information that prehistoric and historic sites in the lower Rio Bonito valley in Lincoln were entered in the National Register of Historic Places on Sept. 13, 1988. Some of these sites are in the Lincoln Historic District.

Commissioners accepted the recommendation of the road review committee to close the road running north and south on the very east end of Los Corralitos subdivision and the east end of the road named Camino De La Vista from lot 6, block 1 and lot 6, block 2, Los Corralitos subdivision to the end of the road on the east. The utility easements will remain.

Property owners asked the county to maintain the end of Gavilan Hills Drive.

Serious conflicts between forest management, people

Serious conflicts between the Lincoln National Forest administration and the public have been investigated and results of a study are contained in a 347-page report concerning the alleged problems.

Among the general concerns: a widespread perception among forest service user groups that Forest Service policies are not implemented objectively and fairly; a declining morale among Forest Service employees and a serious deterioration of relations between the Forest Service and landowners in and adjacent to the forest; and forest users perceive that certain administrators of the Lincoln National Forest exempt themselves from laws governing everyone.

Plenty of trouble in Carrizozo

Carrizozo city police had a busy weekend.

They were called to the Four Winds for disturbances three times Saturday. The person alleged to be causing the disturbance, Leroy Silva, had left by the time the officers arrived each time.

Also on the 19th, police were called to the Four Winds twice. Bartender Jackie Bryant filed complaints against Johnny Morales for verbal abuse and breaking the front door.

Tastee Freez reported a breaking and entering Monday morning. Police found entry to the building was made by removal of the air conditioning unit at the back of the building. Cash in the amount of $725.19 was the only thing taken.

Police Chief C.A. Morales, assisted by Lincoln County Deputy Gilbert Archuleta, took fingerprints at the scene. The incident is under investigation.

School board election set

By Bartley McDonough

The Capitan Board of Education adopted a resolution and proclamation at its Nov. 17 stated meeting calling for a school board election on Feb. 7, 1989.

Purpose of this election is to fill the following positions: Position 1 for a four-year term and Position 2 for a four-year term. These two new positions begin March 1, 1989.

A declaration of candidacy must be filed with the county clerk of Lincoln County during the period commencing at 9 a.m., Dec. 20, and ending at 5 p.m. the same day.

terms and conditions as the board may determine?

Supt. Scott Childress told the Lincoln County News "In 1987 the tax rate was $4.31. If the bond issue passes, the tax rate will be $6 or an increase of $1.69 per assessed $1,000.

"This is a more valid comparison than using the 1988 tax rate which declined substantially to $1.37 due to the district, having a cash balance of $40,000 which was re-applied to the principal thus causing a substantial decrease in the 1988 rate.

"The board of education chose the early retirement schedule in order to save approximately $427,000 in interest. The schedule chosen will have all outstanding bonds retired by 1999. The tax rate of $6 will decline by approximately 10 percent per year until the bonds are retired."

Band director Dick Valenzuela thanked the school board for its support. He said the Capitan Band would like to serve as a trend-setter. Valenzuela recognized outstanding soloists Beth Swenney and Nanette Boyd.

Coach Pam Allen presented her state championship volleyball team to the board of education. The team went 22-0 on the season. It was learned that Allen has been named Coach of the Year for the second straight year.

Comments on the team were made by board member Kenneth Cox and booster club president Don Eckland. Board President James McDaniel said the girls showed good sportsmanship. "You gave us a fun year."

Mrs. De'Aun Willoughby, auditor for the Capitan Schools, made a report on the financial condition of the school district. This report was for the fiscal year 1987-88. She was highly complimentary of the manner in which the district conducted its financial affairs.

A report was given on the recent parent/teacher conferences. Ninety-eight percent of the parents showed up at the elementary level and 93 percent at the high school level.

High school principal Larry DeWees commented on the recent ACT scores. The results of this test showed that half the students who took the test were substantially above the national average. Several students who had re-taken the test showed an increase of 10 or above in the composite score. Eleven students scored over 20 on the composite. Board member Preston Stone praised the faculty.

Childress said "I feel that the recent results of the ACT is a highly positive indication that the curriculum development which began a year and a half ago is beginning to pay huge dividends. Our goal of making Capitan High School a truly competitive academic high school is being realized even though Capitan High School has always maintained an excellent academic reputation."

The board approved sections 7 and 8 of the school board policy. These sections deal primarily with the activity program.

Booster club president Don Eckland said the club had presented the junior class a check for $988. Childress commented on the school's good relationship with the booster club.

Several board members will attend the state convention of the New Mexico School Board Association Dec. 2-3 in Albuquerque.

The next regular meeting of the Capitan Board of Education is scheduled for Dec. 8 at 7 p.m. The board room is located in the old elementary school building.

lines; forest service responsibility for activities which have allegedly resulted in private land damage; forest service placement of road signs on private property without the consent of the owners; improper and/or preferential allocation of range betterment funds by the forest administration; and disposition and control of waters on or adjacent to the forest.

The report states, "The magnitude of concerns, critiques and allegations regarding management and administration of the Lincoln National Forest has led to a decline of confidence in the Forest Service among forest users, forest employees and adjacent residents and property owners. The decline of confidence is highlighted by public perceptions of a forest administration committed more to secrecy than to openness and cooperation in the affairs of the forest. At the heart of the decline, however, lies a growing public belief that the Lincoln National Forest administration has abused the powers granted to it by the people of the United States, has discriminated in its treatment of forest users and in its enforcement of agency rules and regulations, and has created an environment of fear among forest users - an environment in which fundamental constitutional liberties have been eroded." Specific circumstances and controlling factors which have allegedly contributed to the decline of confidence are listed.

The report states, "Documentation and clarification of the issues and concerns, however, have not been completed to the extent desired due to the failure of the Forest Service to provide access to relevant files."

Apparently the study team requested material from the Forest Service and a portion of the requested documents and information was provided but the Forest Service refused access to relevant files.

Offsetting the disadvantages of closed Lincoln National Forest files has been the willingness of interviewees to provide personal copies of relevant documents, the report continues.

Included in a conclusion about the study, the report states, "It is important to note, however, that the current situation on the Lincoln National Forest is not simply the result of overzealous or misdirected forest staff. Devoted, caring, and professional Forest Service employees are found on all districts of the forest."

Also included in the conclusion, "Interviewees have repeatedly stressed to the report team that the origin exists in the administration of the Lincoln National Forest and in the structure and objectives which that administration has imposed upon the forest and its users. Interviewees have also expressed the opinion that current problems on the forest are attributable to the preoccupation of forest administrators with enhancement of internal organization; expansion of program budgets; and the exercise of power over the forest, its uses, and its users. Although Congress has delegated to the Forest Service the responsibility of managing the Lincoln National Forest, the administration of the forest has, in the view of many forest users and forest employees, overstepped the bounds of the forest service's legislated mission."

The report team recommends that the four-page summary report along with the 347-page complete report be sent to higher levels in the US Forest Service for review and appropriate follow-up. The report team also recommends sending the study results to members of the New Mexico Congressional delegation. Included in the report are letters to and from the forest service, information on the White Mountain Wilderness and the Capitan Wilderness areas, federal-private land boundary records, maps, correspondence concerning boundary disputes, water dispute information, permit reductions, range maintenance and allotment grazing agreements, property disputes, newspaper clippings and affidavits concerning a forest service trespass and a letter of resignation.

Completed by Frank DuBois, secretary of the New Mexico Department of Agriculture, and Tom Bahr, secretary of the New Mexico Department of Energy, Minerals and Natural Resources, the report has been sent to Governor Carruthers.

Corona cagers win opening season games

The Corona Cardinal boys and girls basketball teams were in Weed Saturday to open season play against the Bulldogs.

The boys also captured a win with the help of Michael Pounds 17, Dan Bell and Shane Owen 13, Tye Lightfoot 12, J.J. Young 6 and Emmett Sultemeier 3 for a final score of 64-50.

"The Cardinals' press worked at times and helped in the victory. Conditioning and rebounding, both offensively and defensively, are

Ernest V. Joiner's

When Plymouth Colony held a festival of thanksgiving in December, 1621, celebrants thanked God that they were still alive and had food to eat. Those two gifts, held so precious at the first Thanksgiving, wouldn't suffice today. Life and food for all Americans are deemed to be guaranteed by the government, and regarded as "rights" rather than as a bounty from the hand of God. The American Thanksgiving was a religious celebration, we are told, but similar thanksgivings are as old as recorded history. In the Old Testament, Noah erected an altar to the Lord in thanksgiving for having been delivered from the flood. It was this religious significance that caused Thomas Jefferson, Andrew Jackson and Zachary Taylor to believe that Thanksgiving Day was unconstitutional—separation of church and state, you see.

According to the Saturday Review of Science (Nov. 26, 1972) Thanksgiving is regarded as an original American holiday, and one with strong religious significance. But, according to this account, it is neither an American creation nor did it begin with any pious sobriety and heaven-directed expression of gratitude. According to this story, the only eyewitness account of that first Thanksgiving (said here to be Feb. 22, 1680, a strange time to celebrate a harvest) was one Edward Winslow. Nowhere in his account is there any reference to the occasion being one of thanks to God for a good harvest. According to the writer, "what took place on that fall day some three-and-a-half centuries ago is best understood as the first 'harvest festival' held on American soil, the acting out of an institution of great antiquity in the England the Pilgrims had left behind. It was a time for joy, celebration and carousing far removed from any suggestion of solemn religious concern." Americans are taught that the Pilgrims chose "a solemn day of thanksgiving" to give thanks to God. Instead, they opted for a day of "revelry, sports and feasts—a custom long known to them back in England, as 'Harvest Home.' Thanksgiving must have been a lot of fun before the old kill joys got hold of it and turned it into a religious observance. So, if you are disposed to watch a football game on Thanksgiving, box off a few horns of Old Squareface, do some feasting, and you will be following the tradition of the day as it was in England a thousand years ago. Of course, a few expressions of Thanksgiving wouldn't be out of order, but isn't it nice to have a choice?

Now, just when we are beginning to accept the notion that Thanksgiving was invented by Pilgrims in Massachusetts Colony in 1621, along comes disturbing news that the rightful founder of Thanksgiving was Spanish explorer Vasquez de Coronado who celebrated America's first Thanksgiving 79 years before the Pilgrims thought of it. Would you know that this "first" event was observed on the High Plains of Texas, in Palo Duro Canyon, 25 miles southeast of Amarillo, in 1541? This version is advanced by Byron Price, director of the Panhandle Plains Museum, Canyon, TX. Well, you know how these Texans are. It would be nice if we could get our Thanksgiving acts together.

Several years ago P.J. Wingate wrote an article for the Wall Street Journal in which he proclaimed that what we should be thankful for on Thanksgiving is ingratitude. He sees ingratitude as being "at the root of most or perhaps all progress." Ingratitude properly begins at home with the children, who in spite of all effort by parents and teachers, retain enough ingratitude to eventually go their own way in the world. Ingratitude is the cornerstone of the free enterprise system in America, Wingate says. No matter that a company's supplier stays with that company through thick and thin, the loyal supplier will be ditched by the first competitor offering a better and/or cheaper price. Ingratitude thus becomes the sparkplug of competition and the cornerstone of the free enterprise system!

Despite such logic, I must manage a little gratitude this Thanksgiving, so long as it isn't overdone. We can't help but be grateful for the law in Winnetka, IL that people with stinking feet can be thrown out of theaters and restaurants by their managers. I find myself being grateful that across the country teachers are walking off their jobs because they aren't paid more money. Gratitude should be shown especially if they stay off their jobs, for the kids would be better off in other pursuits. Joiner's Law is that the reading and math skills of students decline in direct proportion to teacher salary increases. I am also consumed by gratitude that George Bush has been elected president, and by the biggest popular vote margin since Eisenhower. Bush got 54 percent of the popular vote, more than Harry Truman in 1948 (49.5 percent), John F. Kennedy in 1960 (49.7 percent), Richard Nixon in 1968 (43.4), Jimmy Carter in 1976 (50.1) and Ronald Reagan in 1980 (50.7). He took 426 electoral votes in 80 percent of the states. Yet Democrats are saying Bush has no mandate from the people!

Traditionally, Americans enter the Thanksgiving/Christmas season with thanksgiving and joy. Not so much so today, when such qualities have been tempered with a national guilt feeling. We feel guilty about producing and protecting the most outrageous crop of criminals in our history (Happy Thanksgiving, Willie Horton!) We feel guilty that we are well-fed while others are not, housed when some are homeless, healthy while many are ill, disturbed when others are sad and despondent. Somehow, somebody had led us to believe that the misfortune of others is our personal responsibility. Instead of feeling joy and thanksgiving, we are going door-to-door to gather canned food for the hungry. The malls are full of checks to charitable institutions to ease some unfortunate's pain on Thanksgiving and Christmas. Businesses are being badgered for money to provide shelter for the anonymous homeless.

Inside The Capitol

By Jay Miller

SANTA FE—Many are still questioning what sort of transformation has come over New Mexicans that would cause us to approve six out of seven constitutional amendments this year and 10 out of 11 in the 1986 election.

Last week I suggested that most voters did not take time to study the proposals before reading them in the voting booth and consequently were tricked by the sneaky wording of several amendments. I still believe this to be the case and feel strongly that something must be done to stop the subterfuge.

But I am willing to concede that there is probably some other variable at work also. Is it a new-found positive, optimistic, trusting attitude that permeates the Land of Enchantment? We couldn't be getting "liberal" in our old age, could we? No, it's probably the former.

Maybe we can credit or blame Pres. Ronald Reagan, whom some like to call "Dr. Feelgood." Ever since his 1980 election, Reagan has enjoyed taking a rosy view of our nation and has done everything he could to infect the rest of America with that attitude.

In the last three elections, we have approved 17 of 19 amendments proposals. That's almost a 90 percent success rate. During the same period six statewide bond issues also passed by wide margins.

The prior three elections saw approval rates in the 60 percent range. Maybe that had to do with the "general malaise" that former Pres. Jimmy Carter feared had come over the American public. In case you have forgotten, what "general malaise" feels like, it is a vague feeling of uneasiness and discomfort, according to Webster.

The two presidents did project very different vibrations to their nation. But if that had any effect on approval of our amendments, what could have caused a success rate of only about 40 percent for the first 60 years of our state's existence?

Our first constitutional amendments were passed in 1913, the year after we became a state. There were three of them. Two reduced the terms of state and county elected officials from four years to two. The other abolished property taxes.

In the following 60 years, New Mexico voters passed 48 amendments and rejected 75 of them.

Some of the proposals paralleled amendments to our US Constitution such as the approval of prohibition in 1917 and the approval of its repeal in 1933.

During that 60 years, four-year terms for state and county elected officials were rejected seven times. Compensation for legislators was defeated eight times. And the granddaddy of them all, absentee voting, was rejected nine times.

In all fairness, the reason for this frequent rejection was that any change in the elective franchise of our constitution must be approved by at least three-fourths of the voters in the whole state and two-thirds of the voters in every county.

Voters in two heavily Democratic Northern counties consistently refused to provide a two-thirds majority for 58 years until they finally relented in 1967. The New Mexico Democratic party now wishes those two counties would have kept their feet dug in. It didn't take the state GOP many years to figure out how to completely dominate absentee voting by mailing applications to every registered Republican in the state.

The state Democratic party says it realizes it should be doing the same but just can't afford the expense. Don't be surprised to see a legislative effort to make it illegal for a political party to mail absentee ballot requests.

Another Democrat-sponsored bill on this subject passed the Legislature four years ago requiring county clerks to mail absentee voting requests to the handicapped and all persons over 65.

The only other portion of New Mexico constitution that is protected from change by a required super-majority is the section that provides for "children of Spanish descent to... forever enjoy perfect equality with other children in all public schools and educational institutions."

What then could be the reason constitutional amendments are being passed at such an increased rate? Are mass communications bringing New Mexicans closer together and possibly eliminating some fears about what might be happening in the rest of the state?

The answers are undoubtedly too complex for this columnist to fathom but a good place to start would be to require that amendment proposals be worded on the ballot in a straightforward manner so as to not confuse the voter.

Do you suppose that will require a constitutional amendment?

State Corporation Commission

911 service to improve, telephone rates lowered

The State Corporation Commission today authorized US WEST Communications to install enhanced 911 emergency service throughout its service territory and approved rate reductions amounting to $3,397,206.

Commission Chairman Jerome Block said the commission's action regarding emergency service is "precedence-setting."

He said, "We are probably the first commission in the country to authorize a company to provide enhanced emergency service on such an extensive basis."

Block said that, as a result of the commission's order, the new emergency service should be available in all communities served by US WEST by the end of 1991.

Also approved by the commission were reductions in monthly rates amounting to 42 cents for residence subscribers and 80 cents for business customers. The rates charged for connecting service will be reduced by $2.50 for residence and $7 for business subscribers.

Block said the new rates will become effective Dec. 1.

The ruling on the rate reductions and enhanced emergency service resulted from an investigation by the commission into the level of intrastate earnings authorized for US WEST Communications.

Block said the commission initiated the inquiry because of the significant economic changes that have occurred since the SCC last set rates and charges for US WEST Communications, previously known as Mountain Bell in December 1983. The commission ruled that the company's rate of return on equity should be reduced from 14.23 percent to 13.75 percent, resulting in a total reduction of $6,062,000 in annual revenues, of which $2,664,794 will be earmarked for deployment of E911.

Block said E911 is an enhanced version of basic 911 emergency service.

With 911 service, information received from callers is referred to the appropriate public safety agency, such as a police or fire department.

The more advanced E911 service automatically identifies the telephone number and geographic locations of the caller, and automatically routes the call to the appropriate public safety agency.

Where 911 service is in place, the appropriate enhancements will be made to provide E911 service, Block said.

The cost of deploying E911 includes the investments required for installation and the monthly operat-

Letters to the Editor

Ever wish you were a Soviet?

EDITOR—Suppose you went to your bank and told the friendly loan officer, "I want an interest rate below what you charge your best customers. I don't want to put up anything as security. I don't plan to make payments for six years. And how I use the money is totally up to me."

No matter how solid your credit rating might be, no banker in his right mind would grant you a loan under such conditions. Yet, as former Secretary of the Treasury William Simon reports, "The First National Bank of Chicago, for example, last year arranged such a loan to the Soviets—for $200 million! Asked if the money could be used for missiles, a bank representative replied, "It could, of course, but we hope not. We can't control that."

Maybe not, but they sure go to great lengths to control whatever money an American citizen might borrow. A similar but much larger loan was arranged for the Soviets in the 1970s enabling them to construct the world's largest truck plant on the Kama River. With the eager assistance of the Export-Import Bank, a massive loan was arranged at an interest rate far below prevailing rates for American businessmen and consumers. In addition, the repayment period was arbitrarily extended well beyond the usual term of three to five years. Would you believe 12 years?

It is important to remember that the Export-Import Bank is financed by you, the taxpayer. When it lends money, it lends tax money taken from your paycheck.

Yes, there is a library

EDITOR—Writing to the editor is a first for me but I could not let an erroneous statement in your editorial column go uncorrected.

The following quote was printed (Thursday, Nov. 10, 1988) concerning Bond Issue 1. "I hope you enjoy all those library books that will be bought out of bond money, especially since Carrizozo doesn't have a library to benefit from those books."

It is unclear whether you are stating there is not a library in Carrizozo or whether the bond money is unavailable to us should a library exist. In either case, you are in error. We do have a library in Carrizozo. Over fifty patrons from the community use the library regularly. Many more members of our community use it occasionally. We also serve preschool through twelfth grade.

Secondly, we can benefit from the bonds passage. $15.5 million in the Capital Outlay package is available to school districts throughout New Mexico. This money can be used for buildings as well as for purchasing books and materials.

Furthermore, I am very proud of the library and thankful the bond passed. Mr. Joiner, being editor of a newspaper, you realize how powerful the printed word and how important to be as accurate as possible even though you do not support the majority vote.

What ACLU is all about

EDITOR—Many of us thought that the most revealing highlight of the recent presidential campaign was when George Bush called Mike Dukakis a card-carrying member of the American Civil Liberties Union. Dukakis never recovered from that blow.

The ACLU was founded by a multi-millionaire, Roger Baldwin, who was an avowed anarchist. The ACLU enjoys a tax-exempt status.

Back in 1928, a committee of the New York State Legislature reached the following conclusions: "The American Civil Liberties Union, in the last analysis, is a supporter of all subversive movements... It attempts not only to protect crime but to encourage attacks upon our institutions in every form." (See, Biographical Dictionary of the Left, by Gannon, p. 5)

In 1931 the Special House (of Representative) Committee to Investigate Communist Activities in the United States issued these findings: "The American Civil Liberties Union is closely affiliated with the communist movement in the United States, and fully 90 percent of its efforts are on behalf of communists who have come in conflict with the law." (Gannon, p. 6)

Then in 1948, California's Senate Fact-Finding Committee on Un-American Activities reported that it "reiterates the findings of former legislative committees concerning the Communist character of the American Civil Liberties Union." (Gannon, p. 6)

From these different investigating committees it seems that one of the main functions of the ACLU is to provide legal protection to communists who have long advocated the overthrow of our government by violence and force. That seems clear enough.

SURVIVED GUNFIGHTS

No period of American history has been more celebrated in songs, stories and movies than the "wild West" days of buffalo hunters, wagon trains, cowboys and Indians. Wyatt Earp, Bat Masterson and many others survived the gunfights and dangers of the trail and lived well into the 20th century.

What happened to gunfighters when the West was tamed?

One of them, Bat Masterson became a New York City sportswriter. He was a young man of 20 years of age when he was deputy marshal and then sheriff in Dodge City. After several years of operating gambling halls, Masterson became a boxing promoter in partnership with Otto Flotto.

The partnership eventually dissolved and there began a feud that lasted for the rest of their lives. When both Flotto and Masterson became sportswriters, the angry rivalry was a regular subject of their columns. Both were considered the foremost experts on boxing. Each of them prided himself on demanding perfection from pugilists and scorned any who failed to meet their standards.

One day they bumped into each other on the streets of Denver and began to fight. A young man, Gene Fowler, later to become a top reporter and biographer, witnessed the battle. Fowler said an expectation that the fight would be the ultimate in precision ended when both men began to kick each other.

SURVIVED KICKS

Flotto eventually became involved with the Sells-Flotto Circus, a major circus for many years. He married one of the circus stars, the top bareback rider.

The ex-gunfighter Bat Masterson, died a newspaperman's death on Oct. 25, 1921, slumped over his desk at the New York Morning Telegraph.

Later, co-workers discovered one last paragraph that is often quoted but seldom attributed:

"There are many in this old world of ours who hold that things break about even for all of us. I have observed for example that we get the same amount of ice. The rich get it in the summertime and the poor get it in the winter."

COLD TURKEY

The Great American Smokeout is held each year on the Thursday before Thanksgiving. This year's date was Nov. 17. Thousands of clubs, businesses, schools and hospitals, in addition to millions of individuals joined in the nationwide effort to kick the habit for a day.

For Smokeout 1968, the puffers were urged to "Take a Breather." In addition to the familiar programs such as quit-smoking clinics, "Cold Turkey" luncheons and "Run your Butts off" races, there were button logos such as the one with a Teddy bear: "I've quit smoking. Please bear with me."

LITTLE KNOWN FACTS

At holidays, family gatherings, or any special occasion, hams are seen in kitchens and dining rooms all across the nation.

Did you know pigs were first domesticated over 5,000 years ago by the Chinese?

In this country, ham goes back to 1542 when the Spanish explorer Hernando de Soto brought 13 pigs with him to what is now Tampa, FL.

COOKING CORNER

Have any readers ever tried Tomato Spice Cake? Thanks to Dolores Delano of Roswell I now have this recipe to add to my collection of unusual recipes. She has also sent, via McDonough Express, recipes for Rutabaga Cake and Kraut Cake.

SCHOOL DAZE

Last week was report time for school students. Have these excuses made the rounds at your house?

"My pen is dense, Mom . . . My eraser doesn't know the difference between right and wrong answers . . . Actually Mom, I didn't even sign up for English this year . . . The teachers all wanted to test parental reaction to grades and I just happen to be the guinea pig for the experiment this year . . . I already know everything, but I just don't want the teachers to feel dumb . . . Don't worry, all my friends did bad on their tests too . . . My pencil won't write the things on exams that my brain tells it to . . . It's probably your fault Mom, since you're the one that does my homework . . . So Dad, what do you think we ought to do about the teachers who gave me these awful grades?"

ing expenses for those systems.

Block said the telephone networks in several northern New Mexico communities will be upgraded ahead of schedule so that they can receive E911 within the three-year deployment period authorized by the commission.

The communities are Taos, Questa, Red River, Penasco and Angel Fire.

We are funneling millions overseas to help starving people in Ethiopia, Angola, Mozambique and other Marxist-ridden countries who are being starved by the Soviets as a matter of policy. Any money we send them is a subsidy to the Soviets, who use food as a weapon of war against anyone opposing communist views. We don't blame the Soviets, only ourselves, for such genocide.

• What should be required reading for every school student, grade one through college years, is a book titled "How Democracies Perish" by Jean-Francois Revel, distinguished French writer. In the book he writes "Clearly, a civilization that feels guilty for everything it is and does will lack the energy and conviction to defend itself."

• This Thanksgiving I am going to be of good cheer, giving thanks for what we have, and expressing joy in the traditional American manner. So don't come to my door begging for food for the hungry, prayers for the oppressed, and money for the unfortunate. None of this is of my doing, and I'm damned if I'm going to feel personal guilt over the plight of someone without a ham sandwich.

• Happy Thanksgiving!

Secret aid to Soviets

EDITOR—The October issue of the Reader's Digest has an article written by John Barron on how the Soviet K.G.B. is involved with the United States Trade and Economic Council headquartered in New York.

The red-trade lobby is riding high, so high that it can prevent the American people from finding out who the Red traders are and what companies they head. Freedom of Information Act suits by concerned Americans like Richard Landkammer have been unsuccessful in uncovering information about USTEC and its 320 corporate members. President Reagan ordered the Commerce Department to give Senator Jesse Helms computer print-outs on who is giving goods and sophisticated technology to the Communists, but in a cover letter with the printouts told Helms he couldn't pass this information along to the American people.

The real shame of this blood trade is that it is being increased at a time when the enslaved people of the Soviet Empire are revolting against their masters and the 71-year-old Soviet system is on the verge of collapse. Why then are American politicians, business executives, and bankers collaborating to save this corrupt and dangerous system? Why are the American taxpayers being forced to underwrite the military establishments of both the United States and the Soviet Union? If the American people really understood this bizarre situation, they would surely demand that it be reversed.

We must insist on a total boycott of the Evil Empire—no aid, trade, "cultural exchanges," or any kind of assistance that would help the Communists achieve their goal of world domination. We could wipe the Evil Empire off the map without firing a single shot. The "Soviets are depending on us to continue to supply them with 'the rope' until they have enough to hang us," said Senator Armstrong. But there is still time to yank the rope away.

Gene Viele named EMT of the Month

By DOROTHY GUCK

The benefits of EMT trained volunteers given to the people of Lincoln County have been stressed, and certainly evidenced in the 1988 summer tourist and hunting seasons. But the side perks to the volunteers themselves should also be noted.

With EMT training and subsequent activities of the Lincoln County EMT Association, each member experiences a camaraderie with one's fellow members. The ambulance runs of new trainees are always accompanied by an experienced veteran to lend support and knowledge. Personal and work related problems can be shared, to give self-confidence in the care of patients. Team work among the EMTs extends to all community units that serve the county. They help each other.

The EMT for November is Gene Viele of Alto, who received his first training in 1985, along with his wife Pam (EMT of June 1988). Gene was born and raised in Pottersville, NY and still has one brother and four sisters living in the area. In 1976, he left New York State to travel for four months to various places in the United States looking for a place he hoped to call home. He found that place in New Mexico, working as an auto mechanic in Albuquerque. There he met his wife Pam, who had traveled from Ohio with her parents, Lillian and Howard Puckett.

Gene and Pam moved to Lincoln County in 1983, and have a home near Alto. She is account manager at Lincoln County Medical Center. He is an independent mechanic. Gene joined the Alto Fire Department and became an ambulance driver before he and Pam took the EMT training.

"About 6 months after my training," Gene said, "I was driving my personal car when I came upon a two-car head-on collision near Cloudcroft. Seven people were injured, four critically and two trapped in their car. I radioed for help, but only gave first aid and moral support until the ambulance arrived. That initiation into such a big accident was the most memorable to me."

He and Pam have continued their EMT education at every opportunity, well exceeding the requirements of 24 hours training for every two years for state and 48 hours for national certification.

Gene is rescue lieutenant for the Alto Fire Department, and has dual paging for all the emergency needs for wrecks. As a mechanic, he is especially adept in evaluating extricating procedures of trapped victims, and using the Alto Hurst "Jaws of Life."

"Pam and I are determined to continue proficiency courses," he said, "but know it is important to recognize our own limitations. Whenever in doubt of our capabilities in handling emergency, we call for help. Lincoln County has the best coordinated EMS in the state. Pride can't stand in the way of asking for help from our co-workers, whether they be from any other community. Calling for reinforcements is only common sense, and may be the balance needed to save a life. Our county has excellent teamwork to give our patients the quickest and best care."

NOTICE TO PROPERTY OWNERS OF LINCOLN COUNTY PROPERTY TAXES DUE

Notice is hereby given that 1988 property taxes became due November 10, 1988 and will become delinquent December 11, 1988. Taxes may be paid in full by December 10, 1988, or in two equal installments, with the second half becoming due April 10, 1989 and delinquent if not paid by May 10, 1989.

Pursuant to Section 7-31-50 of the New Mexico Property Tax Code, a minimum penalty of five dollars ($5.00) of one percent per month must be charged on all delinquent taxes, and pursuant to Section 7-31-49, one percent per month must be collected on all delinquent accounts.

Owners of personal property such as mobile homes or office equipment, who have allowed taxes to become delinquent more than two years will be served with a demand warrant for collection of these delinquent taxes, pursuant to Section 7-36-53 of New Mexico Statutes Annotated 1977, if delinquent taxes are not paid in full.

Pursuant to Section 7-38-53, property taxes are the personal obligation of the owner of the property and the sale or transfer of property within that tax year does not relieve the former owner of personal liability for property taxes in that year. Failure to receive a bill is not sufficient cause to ask to have penalty and interest waived.

Should you have questions concerning your property taxes, please contact the Lincoln County Treasurer's Office at 505/648-2397 or 505/648-3525.

Shirley A. Goodloe, Lincoln County Treasurer.
