Register to vote by May 10

All people planning to vote in the June 7 primary election must be registered to vote. Lincoln County Clerk Fran Siddens announced that prospective voters have until 5 p.m., May 10, to register.

Voters may register at the clerk's office in the county courthouse in Carrizozo or in any city or village hall in the county. Registrars will also be sent to homes of home-bound citizens wanting to register to vote.

For information contact the county clerk's office at 648-2394.

Valuation notices are mailed

Lincoln County Assessor Marian Schlarb announced that 1988 notices of valuation of property in Lincoln County were mailed April 22.

The forms list the full value and the taxable value of land, improvements, personal property, mobile homes and livestock.

"If anyone has a question regarding their valuation notice, or has not received one, he should contact our office," Schlarb said. She noted that the state required that the 1988 valuations be based on 1986 market values and there were changes in most notices from last year.

Schlarb urges each property owner to compare the valuation and classification information included. Property owners have only 30 days from the date of mailing in which to file a protest of valuation. Any protests should be made in writing before the May 23 date.

Contact the assessor's office at 648-2306 for more information regarding the notices of valuation.

Water project bids rejected at Capitan

At a special meeting April 27 the Capitan Village Council rejected all bids for phase 2 of the water project.

All bids were over the engineer's estimate. Also, the bids were not uniform as to the gross receipts tax. Another meeting will be set up with P&Z people and the water advisory board to determine what direction to take.

Mayor Benny Coker proclaimed May 8 through 14 as Municipal Clerks Week.

The council approved the fire department budget of $40,106 after questioning certain items. Attorney Rannels said he would bring the fire department ordinances up to date and in compliance with state law.

Ray Woodard of Clovis was once again approved to audit the village books. He will be paid $4,584.

The council meets May 9 in the back portion of the village hall at 7 p.m.

Nurse's Day is May 6

May 6 is Nurse's Day and public health nurse Theresa Luna has invited the public to visit the public health office to learn more about the services provided by the public health office.

Luna is in the Carrizozo office in the courthouse on Tuesdays and Fridays from 8 a.m. to 5 p.m. and in the Ruidoso office in the county sub-office on Monday, Wednesday and Thursday from 8 a.m. to 4 p.m.

Siddens vs. county commissioners

Clerk asks court to 'compel' compliance with agreement

By Ruth Hammond

Lincoln County Clerk Fran Siddens kept her word to the county commissioners by filing a motion asking for enforcement of an agreement reached on March 18 between Siddens, her attorney Dan Bryant and the county commissioners and county attorney Gary Mitchell.

Siddens filed the motion in district court late Friday. According to the motion, Siddens and Bryant met with the commissioners and Mitchell for five hours on March 18. Upon conclusion of that meeting an oral agreement had been reached among all parties present regarding each and every element of the settlement agreement.

Siddens' motion states that Bryant then prepared a stipulation for dismissal outlining the terms and conditions of the settlement agreement and presented it to Mitchell on March 19. After making one minor change in phraseology, Mitchell signed the stipulation on behalf of his clients the county commissioners. Bryant signed on behalf of Siddens.

An accompanying order dismissing the application and petition for writ of mandamus against Siddens was prepared by Bryant and signed by both Bryant and Mitchell. The stipulation and the order for dismissal are attached to Siddens' motion as exhibits.

'Up With People' to present musical in Carrizozo May 16

Up With People will bring an all-new show to Carrizozo May 16 when members of the international cast present "Time for Music" in the Carrizozo School old gym at 7 p.m.

The performance is sponsored by United New Mexico Bank and Carrizozo Municipal School.

The advance public relations team of Holger Weissberger and Nazuko Nagumo arrived in Carrizozo last week to begin preparations for the new musical. They will make guest appearances at different locations in the county and will be contacting local people for host families for cast members.

The cast is to arrive in Carrizozo May 15 and will leave early May 17. Host families will be needed for more than 100 cast members while they are in Carrizozo.

Whenever they travel, Up With People cast members stay with host families. During the average one-year tour, each student will stay with 80 to 90 different families from every walk of life and many different cultures.

The cast member learns about the hosts' customs, foods, jobs, values, language and more. In return, the host family learns about their guests. The benefits flow both ways. Many of the friendships formed during these visits last throughout the years.

Up With People is unique because it is a learning experience for cast members. It encompasses four distinct but related learning centers; intercultural education, performing arts, community service and career skills development.

It is the combination of these types of practical, first-hand, real-life learning opportunities which most distinguished Up With People. It is the interaction of the four learning centers which helps participants develop leadership skill, greater understanding of themselves and their abilities, sensitivity to others, awareness of the global community and a commitment to service.

"Time for Music" is a contemporary musical event that features diverse talents of the cast representing 15 different nations. The show is performed in Up With People's well known style of energy and excitement that literally envelops the audience.

The first-half of the two-hour show takes the audience on a "world tour" featuring popular and traditional songs, dances and costumes from various parts of the world in-

Aftershock of Katina's death involves an entire community

By BONNIE CHRISTINA CELINE

The death of Katina Chavez on Feb. 20 or 21, 1988, disrupted the serenity of the Hondo Valley community of San Patricio.

Katina was beautiful, popular and accomplished. The 15-year-old high school sophomore was a basketball champion and all-around athlete, who hoped to win a basketball scholarship to attend college. She had twice been named All-District Players and among her many awards were trophies for baseball and cheerleading.

Around noon on Saturday, Feb. 20, Katina and her mother, Yolanda Chavez, shared a pizza for lunch, and Katina said that she was excited about going to Cloudcroft that evening with her coach, Andrew Herrera, to accept an award for her basketball prowess. Herrera was to pick her up around five, she said, and after lunch she left her mother's trailer house and traveled to her father's house, a mile or so away, to get ready for her evening out.

Katina Chavez seemed like the last person in the world to have been found face-down in the Ruidoso River the next morning.

She was a native San Patrician and was related to dozens of residents in the Hondo Valley. She was found by a neighbor the morning after she disappeared—the morning after a hundred or so members of the community, White Mountain Search and Rescue, and the Lincoln County Sheriff's Department combed San Patricio until three in the morning searching for clues as to her disappearance.

When coach Herrera drove up to Arturo Chavez's mobile home around 5 on that Saturday afternoon to pick Katina up, he found to his surprise that no one was home. The door was ajar, and Herrera climbed the cement steps and called her name inside the trailer, but there was no answer.

Herrera thought that possibly Katina had gone to her mother's house, so he drove to Yolanda's. Yolanda Chavez told the coach that there must be a mistake—surely Katina was at her father's, they had spoken on the phone just an hour or so ago.

But when Herrera returned to Arturo Chavez's residence, Katina was not there. Her purse and jacket were inside the house, and it appeared as if she had changed from shorts to other clothes recently. There was no trace of the missing girl.

Alarmed, Herrera, Yolanda and Arturo Chavez, who had returned home from a trip to Ruidoso with his youngest son, Issac, began to make phone calls, calling friends and relatives and asking if they had seen Katina. None of them had.

The sheriff's department was called, and a search began within the hour. "Katina would never do anything like this," an aunt said later. "She was dependable and she would never let people worry about her. That's how we know something must have happened. She didn't 'just forget' about going to Cloudcroft."

The autopsy report showed damage to her larynx and water in her lungs, and bruises on her face, head and mouth. Cause of death was listed as "... a result of a combination of cervical compression and drowning. . . . The manner of death is homicide."

Katina had not been sexually molested, and she had not been consuming alcohol before she died.

Sheriff's deputies and State Police investigators questioned several initial suspects, including Katina's coach, family members, and several teenaged boys who knew her and who lived near Arturo's trailer.

The last person who admitted seeing Katina alive was a 16-year-old boy named Charles Matthew Alfonso Surratt, a life-long friend of Katina's. Surratt, a heavy, mild-mannered boy with a hearing disability, and speech impediment, told authorities that he had been walking near Arturo's trailer, when he spotted Katina shooting baskets at the hoop in the front yard.

Surratt admitted to playing a little one-on-one with the young woman, and said that he noticed Katina smelled like hair spray. At one point they went for the ball at the same time, and Katina scratched Matt lightly on the hand.

According to Surratt's testimony, Katina asked him to stay while she waited for her ride to Cloudcroft, but Matt said that he had to feed his animals, so he left the girl alone and walked up the hill, across Highway 70, to the modest home he shared with his mother, Mary Lee, grandfather, Alfonso Soto, sister Leann Rodriguez and nephew Fonso.

According to his account, Surratt stopped to talk to some neighbors at the highway, and continued home.

On Friday, Feb. 26, Surratt was taken from his class at Hondo High School and driven to the sheriff's office in Ruidoso. Upon hearing that her son was being held, his mother, Mary Lee Surratt, called the sheriff's department and asked that he be returned to her. Within minutes, the boy was dropped off by sheriff's

Capitan Schools approve $2 million budget for 88-89

By Bartley McDonough

A special meeting of the Capitan Board of Education was called April 28 to discuss personnel, review and approve the 1988-89 budget, go over high school curriculum and discuss a transportation agreement.

Because of enrollment, Carol Turner will not be employed as a 5th grade teacher next year.

The board of education approved a budget of $2,066,552 for the 1988-89 school year. The teachers and non-certified personnel will receive a 1.6 percent raise, which was the intent of the state legislature.

Capitan Schools will receive $1,975,499 from state sources. Local sources will generate $17,225 and federal sources $4,892. Investments and cash carry over will produce $56,529.

Budget for teacher salaries, grades 1-12, $688,485.

This is for 26.25 teachers. $106,772 is in the budget for six teachers in special education. Two teachers in early childhood education will receive $24,832. There will be a full-time certified librarian, an occupational therapist, a speech therapist and a school nurse.

The budget still must be approved by the state at a hearing scheduled for May 25.

Superintendent Scott Childress told the News, "I feel we have a good budget even though the line items are very tight. We will watch spending closely and hope that our enrollment projection (501) materializes. Our cash balance can be used sparingly if enrollment does not meet projection."

"I feel that we have had a fine school year and this attributable to the teachers,

LEA COUNTY FIRST

Agnes Kastner Head in her Hobbs Flare column, "Via the Grapevine" writes that Sheriff George Teague is faced with opposition in the Republican party by one of his own deputy sheriffs, Kevin Burnam. Head says that this is probably a first in politics in Lea County.

Burnam has accrued enough leave time to take off and run against his boss and if he wins he is free to go back and work until the term ends in December.

Teague served as Democrat sheriff for two two-year terms; then two years ago changed his registration from Democrat to Republican and the next day filed for sheriff and was elected.

POLITICAL HOT SEAT

April 23, Agnes Kastner Head, 84-year-old editor and publisher of the Hobbs Flare, was the target of a headliner roast in Lovington. The event was attended by a large crowd of people (and politicians) both Democrat and Republican from Hobbs and Lovington and from all over the state.

Among the roasters were Fern Sawyer, a rancher in Nogal and a member of the National Cowboy Hall of Fame. Fern's mother, Dessie Sawyer, who Head often called "Lea County's Democrat Queen," also attended the roast.

Head for more than four decades has put politicians in the hot seat and "held their feet to the fire." Head, a staunch Republican is known as the grand lady of New Mexico journalism.

Roasters included former governors Bruce King, Democrat, who lives in Stanley, and David Cargo, Republican of Albuquerque. King said he first met Head at the 1969 New Mexico State Constitutional Convention and often labeled him the "wild-eyed liberal."

SMARTY PANTS

Children are very smart these days. At 6 years of age they know all the questions, and at 16 they know all the answers: Teacher: What is a flood? Pupil: It's a river that's too big for its bridges.

THREE R's

Johnson Stearns of Carrizozo noticed that Mrs. Blaney was in the group of Lincoln County teachers in last week's 1914 photograph. Blaney taught Stearns the 3-Rs in 7th and 8th grades.

She was the wife of the local dentist. The couple made their home in the residence now owned by Mr. and Mrs. Fred Lopez on 10th Street.

FABRIC ARTISTS

The Carrizozo Woman's Club is sponsoring a quilt show, May 14. Quilts from far and near will be displayed. There will be no competition, the event is only for exhibition. No advance registration is necessary. Club members will be on hand as early as 8 a.m. to receive and tag the quilts (maker and owner). Public viewing begins at 9 a.m. (Read the club's ad in this newspaper for details of the event.)

Everyone has their own degree of creativity. This is developed by seeing what other quilters do and combine it with their own tastes. Some people go to quilt shows to look for unusual color schemes; to see how some quilters put their blocks together or to see all the different borders.

Quilters and non-quilters will have an opportunity on May 14 to view a testimonial to the art and craft of quilting. Admission fees of the event will benefit the club's annual scholarship fund. A Carrizozo High School graduate will be awarded the scholarship on May 20.

THIRTY-FOUR YEARS AGO

Class sponsors of the graduating class of Carrizozo High School 34 years ago were teachers Clyde A. Shults and Miss Emelia Garde. Rev. Francis McGowan, assistant pastor at St. Rita Church, gave the baccalaureate address. Rev. C.E. Burch gave the invocation and Rev. H.T. Ray the benediction, according to our newspaper files.

That was in May of 1954 the year that:

—Truman Spencer Jr. was elected president of the Carrizozo Lions Club.

—Marvin E. Roberts was inducted mayor.

—Carrizozo school board sold the Coyote school house to F.E. Bond, high bidder.

—Ruidoso, through its mayor, Dan D. Swearingin, requested the county commissioners to provide a paid deputy for that area, "to handle some of the many law enforcement problems that arise everyday."

If 4000 people moved next door, your phone bill might be lower.

In densely-packed cities, there are more people-per-mile to share fixed costs like telephone poles, trucks and tools. So phone bills can be a few dollars lower than living where we live.

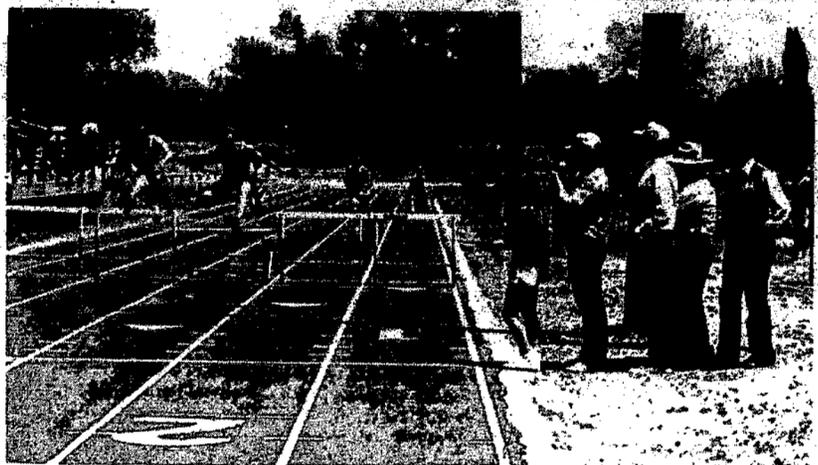

Luckily, you don't have to endure crowds and traffic jams to save money on your phone bill. Contel's digital switches, for example, let us detect problems and sometimes even make repairs without having to make an expensive trip to your doorstep. That's a practical investment Contel is making to hold down costs... right here at home.

Cattle producers to vote May 10

May 10 is the date for the Beef Referendum election to decide the future of the Beef Checkoff program. Cattle producers across the nation will vote on continuation of the most extensive marketing effort the beef industry has ever undertaken. Agricultural history was made when the Beef Checkoff program began Oct. 1, 1986. Producers of beef invested $1 per head each time cattle was sold and everyone paid, even importers. The program had no complicated formulas and everyone paid the same and received the same treatment.

The money earned from the Beef Checkoff was used to promote beef with the program being run by a 113-member beef board. Representatives from all major parts of the industry decided how the money should be spent.

In addition to low overhead due to a limit of 5 percent to be spent on administration costs, up to 50 cents of each dollar was controlled by local state beef councils.

The dollars invested have been used for more than 100 programs including consumer education, research, health seminars for dietitians, beef promotional campaigns and advertising.

National advertising has been the most visible part of the program and the television commercials starring James Garner promoting beef have been especially popular. Radio spots featuring Paul Harvey have been equally successful. Surveys have shown that the Checkoff program is working. Positive shifts in consumer attitudes are being credited to response to the Checkoff advertising campaign.

Shirley Goodloe, chairman of the Lincoln County Beef Checkoff Campaign, has asked all area cattle producers to vote "Yes" in the election. "This is one of the most important issues to face the beef industry in our lifetime," Goodloe said. "We need to vote Yes to make sure we, as cattle growers, stay in control of our own futures."

Referendum voting in Lincoln County will be held in the County Extension office in the county courthouse in Carrizozo from 8 a.m. to 5 p.m. All cattle producers who owned cattle during the period from Oct. 1, 1986 through March 31, 1988 are eligible to vote, including 4-H members and FFA members.

Being a spoilsport could save your child's life

When your children want to listen to the radio in the bathtub, be a spoilsport and say no. You won't win a popularity contest, but you could save their lives. Water and electricity are a dangerous combination.

If your children want to climb a tree or fly a kite near power lines, don't worry about spoiling their fun by saying no.

Power lines are dangerous if anything comes into contact with them — including a tree branch or kite string.

Saying no to dangerous activities helps you say yes to electrical safety.

There is ample reason to believe that there is a conspiracy to delay a resolution of charges filed against Sheriff Don Samuels and Fran Siddens, county clerk, until after the June 7 primary election.

In January, county commissioners filed a court action against Samuels, alleging several criminal violations committed by the sheriff or his deputies. On Jan. 28, the commissioners filed an action against Fran Siddens, county clerk, on grounds she refused to alter the minutes of a commissioners meeting to suit the wishes of the commissioners and the county attorney, Gary Mitchell. Then Siddens and Samuels filed a motion asking the district court to disqualify Mitchell from representing the county in the two cases. At the hearing on the motion to disqualify Mitchell, District Judge Robert Doughty stated that he could have resolved the issues in less time than it took for both sides to present their arguments.

His statement indicates that there are no deep questions of law involved in either Samuel's or Siddens' case. Either the sheriff and the county clerk violated the law or they didn't. If this is the case, why has four months gone by without the court ruling in the matters?

The answer, in my opinion, is that there exists a conspiracy on the part of Lincoln County Commissioners and county attorney Mitchell to stall any court decision in the matters until after the June primary election. If so, there is a political overtone to all these executive sessions and negotiations which delays final action by the court.

As to why this delay and political stone-walling, it became apparent to many that as early as March 1987 there was launched a movement to discredit the newly-elected sheriff to the point where he would resign his office, whereupon the commissioners would then appoint their choice for the sheriff's office—which wasn't Samuels.

I suggest that the county commissioners' filing of charges against the sheriff in January was, and remains, part of the effort to force Samuels' resignation; or, failing that, to so discredit him and his administration that voters would turn him out of office. If so, the plan is working well to date. Why?

Because Samuels has been charged with gross misconduct in office in media headlines. Samuels, on advice of counsel, has refused to answer the allegations other than to issue a blanket denial of those charges. As the matter stands, many voters believe that because the charges against the sheriff have not been refuted, he must be guilty. If he is not guilty, they reason, why has he not responded? He has already been tried and convicted in the minds of many voters. Unless the court acts before the June primary, voters may assume he is guilty and turn him out of office.

The delay also gives incumbent commissioners running for re-election a political advantage in the June election. For, as it stands, they are vindicated and likely to be re-elected. However, if the court rules against the commissioners before the election, their chances of retaining office is diminished. This situation provides them with an incentive to stone-wall a court decision until after the election.

Speculation is that if the commissioners really had a case against the sheriff, they would welcome a court decision now, not later. Both Samuels and Siddens are asking for a speedy court appearance; but the commissioners are engaged with executive sessions, negotiations, and delaying tactics which might indicate their charges against both elected officials are flimsy.

For a classic example of stall tactics by the board of county commissioners, take the case of Fran Siddens. On March 18, after a day of negotiations the commissioners and Siddens agreed upon a Stipulation for Dismissal of the writ filed against her and a Settlement Agreement which called for dropping charges brought against Siddens by commissioners. The agreement was approved and signed by attorneys representing both parties, and by Siddens, Mitchell, attorney for the commissioners, asked for a minor change in the Agreement on March 19, which was agreed to. Commissioners again stalled on signing the Agreement. Instead, new and drastic changes in the Agreement were asked by Mitchell on April 4. Siddens said, "to hell with you," and said she would ask the court to enforce the legal agreement orally arrived at March 18 and signed by attorneys for both sides. The commissioners still have not signed the Agreement they unanimously agreed upon on March 18.

Last week Siddens took matters into her own hands and filed a writ to compel enforcement of the Agreement. She isn't running for office and can't benefit from a quick decision. But she understands that Lincoln County voters should know the court's ruling before the election, so that commissioners up for re-election will not "have the benefit of any doubt" plus the advantage of incumbency.

It is the citizens of Lincoln County who pay for this kind of political hankypanky. All these executive sessions, conducted in secret, results in mountainous legal fees which taxpayers must pay. The morale of the sheriff's department is low, as must be the case in other departments. That means less services to the public, which deserves better. Now the federal government has entered the picture and it appears that long-suffering taxpayers will be saddled with something like $48,000 in overtime pay for sheriff's deputies. When the political smoke disappears and reality sets in, we will have paid a stiff price for the campaign of our governing body to rid themselves of a sheriff they don't like.

If the sheriff is guilty of the charges brought against him, he should be removed from office. If those agents at the Wal-Mart, where Mary Lee works.

Later, the sheriff's department contacted Mary Lee and asked her to bring Matt to the Ruidoso office, that he was under arrest for the murder of Katina Chavez. "I could not believe this was happening," she recalls. "Matt kept saying 'don't worry, Mother, they're only going to question me so that they can straighten this whole thing out.' He had no idea what 'arrest' meant."

Matt Surratt spent the night in custody, and the next day was moved to Otero County Jail in Alamogordo, where they have juvenile facilities.

Mary Lee retained Gary Mitchell, a resident of near-by Glencoe, an expert in criminal law in New Mexico. "I called Gary because he is our neighbor," said Mary Lee. "Now that I think about it, I should have called him before Matt was arrested."

"I was so naive, so dumb," says Mary Lee, her brown eyes filling with tears. She sometimes cries spontaneously, out of the blue, since Matt has been taken away. "You know, I loved Katina, everyone did. The idea that my son could have harmed her, well, I could not believe anyone could think that! If Katina called over here to talk to Matthew once, she called a thousand times. They were children together. They were friends."

Matt Surratt is still being held in Otero County Jail, pending a June 2 transference hearing to determine whether or not he will be tried as an adult.

According to Mitchell, evidence against Surratt, is circumstantial. There is no confession, no weapon, no witness, no fingerprints and no tissue under Katina's fingernails.

Surratt continues to maintain his innocence of the murder.

Matt joined the search party the night Katina was missing, he searched until 3 a.m., said Mary Lee. "I never thought anything like this could happen here. These things happen in cities, not here," she repeated.

"Katina, murdered, I just could not believe it. Everyone in the valley was shocked, shocked and stunned. I never, for one minute, considered Matt to be a suspect, even after he was questioned. Matt is very non-violent, he will walk around a bug on the floor rather than step on it. That boy can stay outside, playing with a dog or cat, all day long. Once we had a rat in the house, in the walls, and Matt made friends with it."

Matt had an unusual rapport with animals, his mother says. It was his responsibility to care for two calves, a horse, cats, dogs, goats, chickens, ducks, guinas and geese. He also did yard work, took out the trash, milked the goat to feed the calves, and babysat for his 8-year-old nephew, Fonso Rodriguez.

Mary Lee and her daughter, Leann Rodriguez, think that Matt's communication skills with animals are because he makes good eye contact, owing to the hearing disability due to an ear infection when Matt was an infant.

According to his mother, Matt had never been in any kind of trouble. "He never got into trouble in school, and he was never in trouble at home.

Someone said to me once, when I was telling this to them, 'you don't have a boy there, you have a saint! But Matthew was just one of those easygoing, happy kids. He's calm and does things slowly, and he is not nervous or in a hurry.' Leann notes that Matt has changed in the seven weeks he has been incarcerated. "He is not a boy anymore," she says. "He's a man now, a man of experience. We kept Matt kind of protected, and now he is living in a completely different world."

Matt Surratt wrote a letter to a friend in the first few weeks of being in jail. The letter, written in pencil on notebook paper, describes Matt's surroundings in jail; the spelling is his:

I see no day and I see no night. All I have is books, music and memories of what it is like out side my little room. I search my heart to see what I've done wrong. . . my little room has no windows. The only fresh air I get is from a vent they turn on once in a while. My little room is 6 ft. by 12 ft. I have a bunk and a 1 1/2 ft. square table, a sink and toilet that is connected and a 3 ft. square shower (no shower curtain). A foot square (scratched) mirror. I met a dude through a vent (not exactly). We talk through the vent.

Because of his disabilities, Mary Lee and Leann say, Matt was very sensitive to others. "When I had rhumatic fever, but didn't know it, I would come home from work completely worn out, and Matt would come out to the car and help me make it up the steps and into my room," remembered Leann.

In Matt's letter, he wrote: I remember when I was free I never let a day go by when I didn't smile and laugh, and if I didn't have a reason I made one up. To not have friends is not to live. Now even my least favorite friends seem so important. But one I miss the most is Katina. Because I know when I get out I will see you and everybody else but never her. To you this might seem like old news but to me it is as fresh as before. Because I think of it every day. I have nothing else to do.

Family members are victims of the crime, grief and wishful thinking. The Chavez family and the Surratt family will never be the same. Mary Lee Surratt said: "I called the high school last week to ask for Matt's assignments, and the secretary told me that once a student misses 10 days of school, he or she is automatically dropped from enrollment. Matt is missing this whole semester, and he will have to make it up at some point."

There is expense involved to the Surratts, too. They received a medical bill for $78, the cost of Matt's lab tests when he was arrested. Mary Lee drives from San Patricio to Alamogordo twice a week for a fifteen-minute visit with her son, who can only be seen through thick glass. Mary Lee has to talk to Matt using a telephone receiver. "For some people, that 250 miles per week would not be a big deal, if you have the money," she says. "But if you don't have it— She shrugs her shoulders.

"This time could be even more demoralizing for us," she states. "But people have been so good to us. No one has mistreated us in any way, strangers come to me at Wal-Mart and tell me their church is praying for us and the Chavez's. But I can't rest until my son is home. I want my boy back. I want them to find out who really killed Katina, and to let Matt come home where he belongs. He'll have to get some therapy, I know, we all need help coping with what's happened. Not that he'll ever be like he was before."

In the letter from his friend, Matt wrote: I am sorry this is so sloppy. But I'm not even supposed to have a pencil. . . and no, I can't smoke. I weigh the same, No Cokes, and the food is worse than the school's. They get up at 5:30 a.m. and turn out the lights at 10:30 p.m. . . soon I will leave my little room not for a visit, but for good.

Ruidoso Council decision:

If it's broke don't fix it; just throw it away'

By J.A. "AJ" JUNGE In a quickie majority vote by the Ruidoso Council in an executive meeting on April 26, action taken at that meeting will prove a total disregard of the rights of those who pay for city services.

A few weeks ago a resident who was emptying trash from a vehicle into the trash transfer system located on Gavilan Road, accidentally fell some distance into the trash holding area and was injured.

The Ruidoso Administration immediately ordered that residents could no longer bring trash to the Gavilan facility and, as a consequence, would be forced to drive 25 miles to the Ft. Stanton landfill as was customary prior to installation of the local depository of trash being placed in operation in April 1988.

This change in policy is in contrast with an agreement made by the 1983-84 city council when an increase in trash rates was inaugurated with the expressed promise that the additional income would be used to fund the transfer system. The new system would eliminate five trucks driving over a mountain to the landfill several times each day for a daily total of 250 miles. One truck, with trash compacted, would now make one trip each day instead of five trucks doing the same job. Estimated savings in labor, fuel, and depreciation were in the range of $100,000 annually.

In return for the increase in trash rates, better service, and for those who would prefer to eliminate the 25-mile trip to the landfill, arrangements would be made to use the in-town Gavilan facility. This was a promise made to the citizens of Ruidoso.

Now, the local facility is closed to those who desire to haul their trash.

In April, 1986 the Compactor/Transfer System was placed in operation. It was suggested at that time that an operating procedure be created. This was apparently not done. Visits made to several cities using the transfer system revealed that those persons who wanted to haul their own trash to a local trash depository were permitted to do so under supervision of city employees. In the Dallas/Ft. Worth area there were many pickup trucks waiting in line to dispose of trash into the trash transfer pit. There were no problems reported as relating to the use of the pit by private citizens.

The Peabody-Gallon Company has installed systems in over 250 cities in the US and in South America. The same company has installed the system now in use in Ruidoso.

So, why did we deprive citizens of right to haul their own trash?

There was an accident, and rather than investigate the cause and effect with plans for corrective action, it was a simple matter to just stop the effort of citizens who were willing to haul their own trash and debris.

In response to this argument, the administration says, "No problem, just call us, place the pine needles and trash in plastic bags and cut tree limbs to four feet and we will pick them up."

However, lots of folks own and operate pickup trucks in Ruidoso. When raking pine needles, as I often do, you don't take the time to place the needles in plastic bags. Instead, you pick them up with a hay rake and toss them into your pickup. The same for limbs and trash. So, would a trip to the local transfer system or a 25-mile trip to the landfill be my choice?

I asked the city council to allow our citizens to continue to haul their own trash to the local facility. Their vote was no—with one vote yes.

It is doubtful that council members have visited the operation which was subject to their vote. When Mayor Davis expressed his opposition the resulting vote was already decided.

In the meantime, a rock slide on Gavilan Road caused damage to a pickup truck. Will this road be closed or action taken to prevent a recurrence?

Councilman interviewed by the local news stated that "insurance exposure" resulted in the negative vote. Insurance exposure relates to every city operation.

What makes the transfer compactor operation any different?

Lack of planning is the problem.

And who pays? You do.

Opinion . . . (Cont'd from opposite column)

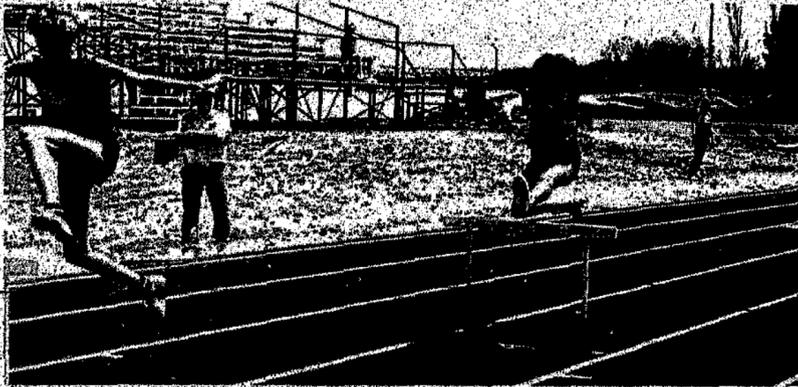

who brought the charges cannot substantiate them, they deserve to be removed from office. If Fran Siddens has violated the law, she should suffer the consequences. If not, her detractors should be made to suffer the consequences. This is why it is so important to Lincoln County voters that there be immediate action by the court so we can make the proper judgement in this June primary.

Although the prime target of the commissioners is to "get Samuels," they are using the suit against Siddens as a tool in getting shed of Samuels. For the first time, the public is going to learn why Siddens was drawn into the fight with the sheriff. In the minutes of the Dec. 23 commissioners meeting, compiled by Siddens, it was recorded that Samuels appeared before the body and read a prepared statement, prefacing it with an apology for having to leave the meeting quickly because of an appointment in Ruidoso. He did just that. That's the way Siddens recorded it. But commissioners didn't like that, and wanted the minutes "corrected" to read that at the conclusion of his prepared text, the sheriff "walked out" of the meeting after Commissioner Karnes had called to him, "Sheriff, don't you want to talk about this?" By changing the minutes, they would have evidence that Samuels refused to stay and discuss issues he raised in the prepared statement. That's what the commissioners wanted—official verification in the minutes that the sheriff was unreasonable, refusing to discuss problems with his office, and uncooperative. Because Siddens refused to alter the minutes, commissioners brought suit against her to force her to do so! Try to think of something more ridiculous than that!

This is a plea to Judge Doughty to give top priority to all the motions filed involving the sheriff and county clerk, and set them for hearings now. Unless he renders decisions within two weeks of the June primary, Lincoln County voters will not be able to cast an informed ballot for sheriff and county commissioners running for re-election. Voters deserve a better shake than that.

ALL Beef Producers: May 10th Determines Your Future

In this year of elections, the last thing you need is someone else talking to you about politics or your responsibility to other beef producers. It's a busy time of the year, and you've got your mind on your operation, not on going to town.

But, on Tuesday, May 10th, if you don't stop for a few minutes, go to your County Extension Office and vote, you'll miss the referendum that decides the fate of the Beef Checkoff Program.

Just a couple of years ago, our industry was being beaten up, and we were backing up... taking it. But we got our backs up and did something. We drew a line in the dust. We began to fight back. And you know what... it's working. Many people are eating beef more often, and the newspaper headlines read that beef is coming back.

Now, we're not telling you how to vote. That's your business. But, on Tuesday, May 10th, the National Beef Checkoff Program is going to continue, or it's going to stop dead in its tracks. It's totally up to you. So take a trip to your County Extension Office and vote. You'll be glad you did.

Vote May 10th

Beef Checkoff Referendum at your County Extension Office

Don't let someone else determine your future.

ELECT

AUDEAN FRANKLIN

County Commissioner Dist. II

★ REPUBLICAN

★ QUALIFIED

Filed for by the Committee to Elect Audean Franklin, Calvin G. Gowder, Chairman; Albert Richardson, Treasurer.

Page seeks re-election as county probate judge

John Watt "Jack" Page has filed for re-election as probate judge of Lincoln County, in the Republican primary. He feels well qualified for the position due to experience, extensive study, and attendance at all judicial education courses offered in compliance with New Mexico law.

Prior to 1987, there were no requirements for a probate judge to have any judicial education; nor were any schools available to prepare a candidate to hold that responsible position. However, upon being elected to his first term, Page did extensive lobbying to correct that situation. The State Supreme Court has since made it a requirement that any one elected as probate judge must attend a school prior to taking office and must complete additional training each year thereafter.

Page, a graduate of Texas A&M University with a BS and Masters degree, served over six years in the armed forces during WWII, including three years in North Africa and Italy and subsequently retired as a major.

Page and his wife Noema moved to the home they built in Rancho Ruidoso Subdivision in 1981, following their retirement from the Ysleta Independent School District in El Paso, TX. He had served as a teacher and administrator for 32 years, retiring as an associate superintendent.

The Lincoln County Board of Commissioners recently appointed Page to the New Mexico Association of Counties Board of Directors. He is vice-president of the Ruidoso Shrine Club, and has served as vice-chairman of the Lincoln County Republican Party and on the county and state central committees.

It was decided to change the scholarship requirements to include graduate students and be open to residents of Lincoln County with preference to Capitan area residents. A change was also made from an agriculture major to extended to anyone majoring in a field of study that would directly or indirectly benefit the beef cattle industry.

DAVE PFEFFER

Pfeffer in sheriff's race

With 13 years of New Mexico Law Enforcement experience, Dave Pfeffer has announced his candidacy on the Democrat ticket for the office of Sheriff of Lincoln County.

Beginning his career in law enforcement as a police dispatcher, Dave worked his way up the ladder through the patrol division, to the criminal investigation division where he earned the rank of lieutenant. He was subsequently promoted to the rank of captain, with the title of Operations Commander. Supervising 34 police and civilian personnel, Dave was responsible for daily operations, liaison between county, state, local and federal agencies; training, hiring, public relations, educational programs in the schools, coordination of parades and large community functions, bank personnel training and fiscal budgeting for each of his divisions.

He was instrumental in originating and implementing the Crime Stoppers Program in Lincoln County and was its first police coordinator. Along with others, he also helped institute the Neighborhood Watch, Police Athletic League (P.A.L.) and Drug Awareness Programs in the Ruidoso area.

Pfeffer is a 1976 graduate of the New Mexico Law Enforcement Academy and has since achieved it's highest accreditation possible, the "executive" level certification.

Married to Roxann, they have five children; David 13, Brandy 12, Crystal 11, Billy 10, and Tristan 2. Tristan resides in Dallas, TX and is a police dispatcher.

"I want to be your sheriff," says Pfeffer, "and I feel I can well serve the people of Lincoln County, regardless of political pressures and influences."

Bryant then sent the stipulation to county manager Suzanne Cox along with the original proposed order and a letter asking that Cox obtain the signatures of the three county commissioners on the stipulation and then forward it to the court for execution and subsequent filing.

Cox notified Siddens on March 24 that the county commissioners wanted to review Bryant's letter with Mitchell and had not signed the stipulation. Mitchell then notified Bryant on April 4 that he had some minor changes to the stipulation that did not substantively change the agreement.

After reviewing the revised stipulation, Bryant noted that substantial changes had been made. These changes were unacceptable to Siddens and Bryant, and Bryant wrote to Mitchell on April 23 that if the commissioners continued to refuse to sign the original stipulation that Siddens intended to file a motion to enforce settlement of the agreement.

Siddens and Bryant then met with the county commissioners in an executive session during the April 26 county commission meeting to discuss the matter. No decision was reached and the county commissioners met in another executive session in the afternoon to discuss the stipulation.

At the end of that executive session the commissioners approved a motion to have Mitchell meet with Bryant to work out a final draft of the agreement that had been reached concerning the pending lawsuit.

Siddens then told the commissioners, "That is totally unacceptable to me." She stated that the matter had gone on for four months and was adequate time to resolve the matter.

Siddens' motion filed April 29 cites several cases where attorneys have settled lawsuits on behalf of their clients and states, "In addition, parties may be bound by their settlement, even if certain details of the settlement are not completely worked out."

The motion further states: "New Mexico case law clearly demonstrates that, in order to set aside or avoid a written settlement or release, there must be evidence of misrepresentation, fraud, undue influence, coercion, or mutual mistake and such evidence must be clear and convincing." The motion further states that under the circumstances, petitioners cannot claim any of the above.

This ongoing battle between the commissioners and Siddens began earlier this year when the commissioners objected to the preparation of the minutes of the county commission meeting. An agreement could not be reached and the commissioners filed a writ of mandamus asking that Siddens prepare the minutes as they specified.

Siddens then filed a motion to have Mitchell disqualified from representing the county commissioners and another motion asking that the county allocate funds to pay for her attorney.

The hearings was held in district court in Carrizozo March 14 with District Judge Robert Doughty presiding. No decision has been announced in that matter. The new motion filed by Siddens has been sent to Judge Doughty.

NOTICE TO PROPERTY OWNERS OF LINCOLN COUNTY PROPERTY TAXES DUE

Notice is hereby given that 1987 property taxes became due November 10, 1987 and will become delinquent December 11, 1987. Taxes may be paid in full by December 10, 1987, or in two equal installments, with the second half becoming due April 10, 1988 and delinquent if not paid by May 10, 1988.

Pursuant to Section 7-31-50 of the New Mexico Property Tax Code, a minimum penalty of five dollars ($5.00) or one percent per month must be charged on all delinquent taxes, and pursuant to Section 7-31-49, one percent per month must be collected on all delinquent accounts.

Owners of personal property such as mobile homes or office equipment, who have allowed taxes to become delinquent more than two years will be served with a demand warrant for collection of these delinquent taxes, pursuant to Section 7-38-53 of New Mexico Statutes Annotated 1978. If delinquent taxes are not paid in full.

Pursuant to Section 7-38-53, property taxes are the personal obligation of the owner of the property and the sale or transfer of property within that tax year does not relieve the former owner of personal liability for property taxes in that year. Failure to receive a bill is not sufficient cause to ask to have penalty and interest waived.

Should you have questions concerning your property taxes, please contact the Lincoln County Treasurer's Office at 505/648-2397 or 505/648-2525.

Shirley A. Goodloe, Lincoln County Treasurer.

MIKE JOINER, Defendant.

NOTICE OF SUIT
STATE OF NEW MEXICO, TO: The above named Defendant.

GREETINGS:
You are hereby notified that the above named Plaintiff has filed a civil action against you in the above entitled Court and cause, the general object thereof to collect on an "open account".
That unless you enter your appearance in said cause on or before the 26th day of June, 1988,

students, parents and board of education.

High school principal Larry DeWees presented News and others a copy of the course description handbook. DeWees said that this is a "big school curriculum in a little school." He also said that "we're going to challenge the kids."

Some 32 parents out of 40 answered a questionnaire. They indicated they would like to have more themes, more essays, more note taking skills, along with more guidance on how to study and budget time. These parents would like more lab time in science, more research in history classes and more essay tests.

A feature of the curriculum is that a student has other options if he decides not to go to college. One of the courses being offered is a History of Lincoln County.

Some 35 students attend the Capitan Schools from the Ruidoso School District. A like number attend the Ruidoso Schools from the Capitan district. The board of education decided to let this situation stay as it is for one more year. The school cafeteria con-judgment by default will be entered against you.
