Capitan tries to resolve differences

There will be an open meeting, Friday, July 29, 11 a.m., at the village hall in Capitan to resolve differences between the Capitan Volunteer Fire Department and elected officials of the village.

This meeting will be conducted by Jerome Block, chairman of the state fire board. Block is also chairman of the state corporation commission. State Fire Marshal Carl Standefer and Assistant Attorney General Joe Clark will also be present.

Mayor Benny Coker said Monday that police officer Tom Hammonree had been fired for an "accumulation of things." A date for his grievance hearing was to be set this week.

Coker also said that the employment of Terry Cox by the village had been terminated for several reasons, "insubordination would probably be the specific charge." As of Wednesday morning, a date for his grievance hearing had not been set.

The next regular meeting of the Capitan Village Council is Aug. 11, 7 p.m., at the village hall.

Causey trial to be held in Carrizozo

District Judge Richard Parsons will preside and has scheduled the week of Oct. 17-21 for the trial which will be held in the district courtroom in Carrizozo.

Causey is alleged to have murdered his wife Cathleen Causey on or about Aug. 3, 1987 in Otero County.

State EMS awards go to Lincoln County

By Ruth Hammond

Four state Emergency Medical Service (EMS) awards were presented to Lincoln County EMS personnel during the 8th annual New Mexico EMS convention held in Albuquerque July 15.

Dr. Walter Hopkins of Picacho received the Robert Sabine Award, which is the highest award presented at the state level and is given for special people going beyond the call of duty in EMS. Hopkins is medical director for the Lincoln County EMS.

Ruidoso EMS won the Systems Excellence Award for interagency cooperation with Lincoln County EMS and Mescalero health groups.

The Lincoln County EMT team of Ed Jones and Rick Vigil received an award for placing first in the basic skills competition which was held July 14 in Albuquerque.

Eight EMTs from Lincoln County attended the convention. Also attending the luncheon and awards banquet were Lincoln County Commissioner John Hightower and county manager Suzanne Cox.

Dr. Hopkins was one of four people struck by lightning in Picacho July 12 and it was thought that he would be unable to attend the function. He was released from the hospital July 14 and made the trip to Albuquerque the next morning, unaware that he was to receive the award.

Dr. Hoppy, as he is known by those who work with him in the medical field, has an outstanding background. He grew up in the Masonic Home Orphanage and graduated from there in 1941.

Hopkins served as a naval bomber and fighter pilot from 1941 to 1945, participating in battles such as the battle of Midway. He earned the Distinguished Flying Cross and other medals.

After the war he received a BA in biology, chemistry and physics from North Texas State University. He went on to teach all the science classes offered in Lovington High School and coached football, basketball and baseball.

Hopkins then graduated from the University of Texas Medical School in Galveston in 1955 with a medical doctor degree. His first practice was as a family physician in Lovington from 1956 to 1975. During this time he began emergency medical system experience as an on-call physician for area emergencies. He closed his private practice in 1975 and entered the newest specialty of the time: emergency medicine.

Hopkins started his own corporation, Southwest Emergency Medical Services in 1981 and presently provides physician coverage for St. Mary's Trauma Center in Roswell and Guadalupe Medical Center in Carlsbad.

He became District Medical Investigator for the Office of Medical Investigations in 1985 and has served as medical director for Chavez County EMS.

Hopkins and his wife Gail live at Casa Linda Ranch in Picacho. They have five children and 12 grandchildren.

As medical director for Lincoln County EMS, Hopkins has taken an active part in maintaining high quality performance by volunteer EMTs. He monitors many ambulance runs via radio and frequently offers encouragement along with instruction.

He was instrumental in establishing orientation manuals for EMTs and takes an active part in every facet of EMS in the area.

Criminal charges against Capitan mayor dropped

A criminal complaint filed by Capitan fire chief Virgil Hall and assistant fire chief Pat Huey against Capitan Mayor Benny Coker have been dismissed by Capitan Municipal Judge Jimmie Stewart.

The complaint alleged that Coker violated several town ordinances. Coker appeared before Judge Stewart July 14 and entered a plea of not guilty. A hearing had been scheduled for July 29.

Capitan Village Attorney Mike Runnels filed a notice of dismissal in the case. In a letter to Stewart, Runnels stated: "In alleged infractions of village ordinances, the duty and responsibility to prosecute lies with the village attorney. Acting as village attorney, I accept full responsibility for the decision not to proceed with the prosecution in this matter."

Runnels continued, "I believe that the municipal attorney's right to file nolle prosequi in any given case is parallel to that of a district attorney in similar circumstances. As such, a decision not to prosecute must be based upon honest motives, good cause, and good faith. It is a discretionary power not to be taken lightly.

"In the present case, I have reviewed the complaints and their substance. My conclusion is that the complaints are based on political and personal disagreements between the parties and that no criminal intent was involved on the part of the Mayor and that the complaint was not motivated by any sincere desire to see that the ordinances of the Village of Capitan were enforced. My sincere belief is that these charges were brought in an attempt to embarrass the Mayor and to create further confusion and dissention within the Village of Capitan. In light of the above, I have no choice but to submit the notice of dismissal to you for your signature."

Stewart dismissed the charges.

ACTOR, AUTHOR Jim Easterbrook will be in Lincoln for the "Billy The Kid Pageant," Aug. 5-6-7, autographing copies of this new book (a Western) titled "The Time Traveler." Easterbrook is currently touring with the stage production, "One More Ride with Billy The Kid." He will be starring in the TV production, "Billy the Kid Country Today," to be filmed in New Mexico.

Commissioners accept bid for road work

Lincoln County Commissioners met in special session Monday to open bids for engineering services for road construction, approve a change order for the Sierra Blanca Airport Access Road construction and approve an amendment for the Community Development Block Grant (CDBG) agreement.

Two bids were received for engineering services for road construction on the old Fort Stanton Road. Commissioners accepted the low bid submitted by Pajo Technical Services. Bohannon-Huston, Inc. of Albuquerque, also submitted a bid.

Funding for construction will come from four separate coop agreements with the state highway department. Two of the agreements are county arterial programs (CAP), one from last year and one for this year, with the state to pay 75 percent and the county to pay 25 percent. The other two are cooperative agreements, one from last year and one for this year, with the state to pay 60 percent and the county to pay 40 percent.

The project is scheduled to be completed this year. Bids for actual construction will be opened in August.

In other business, commissioners approved change order No. 2 for the Sierra Blanca Airport Access road. The change will increase the cost of the project by $14,852.

Commissioners approved an amendment to the CDBG agreement for the historic study being done at Fort Stanton. The amendment will extend the length of the agreement from Feb. 28, 1988 to Aug. 30, 1988 with the final report to be submitted Sept. 15, 1988.

Variance denied by Carrizozo trustees

Carrizozo trustees denied a variance request to allow a travel trailer to be parked permanently behind the old barber shop on 12th Street. Dumas Beaty had made the request.

Action on the matter was taken during the July 26 meeting when a public hearing was held for input. Five letters from property owners objecting to the variance had been received by the town.

Beaty asked for an extension of time on his temporary variance which will expire Aug. 9. Trustees asked Beaty to attend the Aug. 9 town council meeting and present a time frame as to when the trailer can be moved. He agreed.

In other business, trustees approved a request from Jack Garrett to vacate two streets on the north side of Highway 380.

Glen Ellison thanked the council for moving the dumpster from in front of the marker at the Governor William C. McDonald Memorial Park and said, "The light pole is a nice addition," referring to the light that now shines on the marker.

Ellison said the Fred Chavez Park across the street from St. Rita's Church needed work and asked for town help in cleaning the park.

He was told that last year town crews worked in the park but after constant vandalism of the sprinkler systems the work was stopped. Town foreman Faustino Gallegos said that sticks had been put in the holes in the sprinklers and broken off. He said this happened every night.

Other vandalism in the park included damage to the swings. New swing seats had been cut with bolt cutters or a saw.

Ellison suggested forming a Neighborhood Watch in the area to help police the park.

Trustees also received a request to have the animal control ordinance enforced for the safety of people walking and riding bicycles.

Trustees asked that people call 648-2351 to report any dogs running loose.

Trustees approved paying $150 to Bud Payne to help defray fuel costs for his mowing in different areas of the town.

Trustees agreed to pay half the cost for a set of books on new city laws. City Attorney Richie Askew will pay half. The books, costing approximately $300, contain up to date precedent law on town liabilities, duties, rights and responsibilities, ordinances, etc.

Resolution No. 88-11 concerning the agreement with the Southeastern New Mexico Economic Development

District was approved.

Pioneer Metals in Denver sent a request to the town to purchase an average of 5,000 gallons water daily. The water will be hauled to a mine site. Contract negotiations will continue in the matter.

Mayor Bob Hemphill reported that several property owners on 5th Street between B Street and E Street had asked to have an assessment district formed to pay for curbing and guttering on that street. The street is scheduled to be paved using state highway coop and town money.

Bill Hoffman spoke to the council about using a foam roof on the Rec Center. The engineer's recommendation had been to use a different type roof. Hoffman said a foam roof would increase the insulation value, be an easy system to maintain and would add no weight to the roof.

The matter will be on the agenda Aug. 9 for further discussion.

No action was taken following an hour-long executive session for personnel.

Zamora will leave Albuquerque Aug. 11 for Hershey. After three days of competition he will arrive back in Albuquerque Aug. 14.

Participants in the final receive all-expense-paid trips to Hershey for four days where they visit a theme park, enjoy a dance, banquet and have a chance to meet celebrity athletes.

The Hershey youth program emphasizes the friendship, sportsmanship and physical exercise aspects of track and field as much, if not more, than it emphasizes competition.

Participants receive an introduction to the fundamentals of track and field. For some, the program offers an opportunity to refine their natural abilities. For others, it may be the spark that ignites their interest in an activity that is mentally, physically and socially rewarding.

Is a power line running through your child's favorite branch of the house?

A power line near a tree can turn your child's favorite play area into a dangerous place.

Before you let your child build a tree house or climb a tree, make sure there are no power lines nearby.

Even if children don't touch a line directly, they can still be shocked if they touch a branch that is touching the line.

OPINION

● The political puffery has subsided in Atlanta. Democrat Delegates are now spreading it across the nation to inspire voters to place them in office in November. The chances are good they will succeed, considering how gullible the average voter is and how anxious he is to share in the promised loot inherent in every Democratic Administration. The convention was quieter than the brawls associated with Democratic national conventions. But the political poppycock level was about the same.

● I attended my first Democratic national convention in Miami in 1972. It was a donnybrook. I was able to write about it at the time: "As I watched and listened to the disorganized and motley crowd of delegates and hangers-on, I couldn't suppress a great feeling of genuine pride and confidence in my country. It is a great country, and I was watching the awesome proof. Any nation that can endure and prosper when its course is being shaped and charted by such an assemblage of clowns is, without question, unique, strong and durable. . . . The fact that the US Constitution has survived this periodic assault upon its every principle is testament to the wisdom of those who forged it."

● Eight years later I was attending the Democratic national convention at Madison Square Garden in New York where Ted Kennedy sought to wrest the presidential nomination from Jimmy Carter. At that time I was compelled to write in this column: "Whatever nuts aren't in California must be here. I was caught up in a 5,000 people protest demonstration outside the Garden Sunday. Two thousand five hundred police looked on and looked worried as the megaphones and bullhorns roared for the downfall of practically everything. Represented were anti-nukes, anti-Klan, anti-Castro, anti-draft, pro-marijuana, pro-Bolivian terrorists, anti-Fascist, pro-abortion, Be Kind to Animals, Restore Husband Rights, homosexuals, lesbians, prohousing for everybody at nobody's expense, environmentalists, blacks, Hispanics, Indians, ERA proponents, various Communist groups, hookers and Back-The-Bible people. Even the farmers showed up with their tractors to dramatize their plight. . . ." I decided then never to attend another such affair. It's bad enough to watch it on television.

● There was something new and startling at the Atlanta convention. Jesse Jackson emerged as the most dangerous man in the United States. For all his foolish rhetoric, his inane aphorisms such as "from the outhouse to the White House" and "From disgrace to amazing grace," he dominated the convention. Everybody from the janitor to Dukakis kissed his political pants. He had the most enthusiastic and loyal group of supporters, not only at the convention, but across the country. Any person who can command the support of at least half the nation, and shape the direction of a major political party, and do it regardless of the fact that his policies are anti-American, racist and traditionally unacceptable, has got to be the most dangerous man in the United States.

● Here's why. Jackson traveled to Cuba to embrace and praise Fidel Castro. He went to the Middle East to embrace and praise PLO leader Yasser Arafat and Syrian dictator Hafez Assad, a sponsor and supporter of several terrorist organizations. Jackson was, and remains, a close friend of Louis Farrakhan, Black Muslim leader dedicated to wiping out the white race. Jackson is a Communist sympathizer and an anti-anti Communist. He is the voice of Third World radicalism. He wants the US out of Central America domestic affairs but would have the US intervene, by force if necessary, in the internal affairs of South Africa over the apartheid issue.

● Jackson is anti-defense. He is against everything from the MX missile, the B-1 bomber, Trident submarine to the SDI. He believes in arms control, negotiated peace in Nicaragua and El Salvador, and lots of new taxes on big corporations. He wants to pay off Arafat by establishing a Palestinian homeland, and give more money to Third World countries.

● Ever heard of Hunter Pitts O'Dell, also known as Jack O'Dell? He testified before the Senate Internal Security subcommittee in 1956 about his membership in the Communist Party. He took the 5th Amendment. On July 30, 1958 before the House Committee on Un-American Activities he was again questioned on his Communist ties. He again took the 5th Amendment. In 1961 he was identified as a member of the National Committee of the Communist Party USA. He has never repudiated his Communist affiliations. Today he is Jesse Jackson's foreign policy adviser, and today O'Dell is still affiliated with several Communist-oriented organizations in the US and is a honcho in Jackson's Rainbow Coalition.

● Jackson wants special privileges for organized labor, cradle-to-grave health care, government control of all industry, new and higher taxes, affirmative action and more welfare. He is for government-financed abortion. He supports homosexuals and lesbians in their fight to become a privileged class. He marches and carries banners in their parades. He's a liar, as witness his account of how Martin Luther King Jr. died. He's a thief, as witness the fact that he refuses to repay the federal government $1.4 million given him for his Operation PUSH, an amount he refuses to account for.

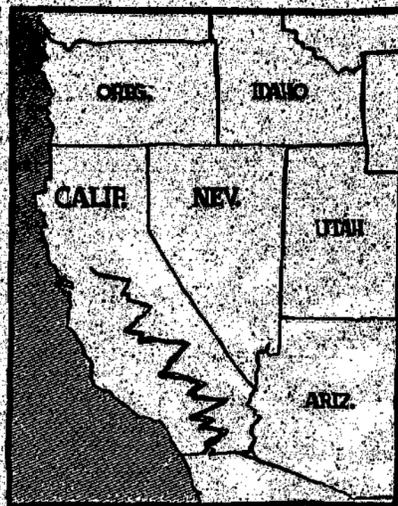

● Jackson is a charismatic demagogue who holds people spellbound while issuing such statements as "Some people are making hysteria while I'm making history," "old wineskins are expanding to make room for new wine" and "I'm a tree-shaker not a jelly-maker." Does anybody ever ask him what he means by such idiotic poetry? No. But they raise goosebumps, put lumps in people's throats while tears of joy stream down their cheeks.

● According to an article in American Spectator by Andrew Ferguson, Jackson "hasn't done an honest

CRACK PROBLEM #2

Inside The Capitol

By Jay Miller

SANTA FE—The Democrats' Southwestern strategy was quite evident at their convention in Atlanta last week.

It allowed some of our New Mexicans their time in the national spotlight.

Former Gov. Toney Anaya got the biggest share. Besides serving as a convention co-chair on Tuesday night, he also got to speak on the Central American plank of the Demo platform and then, in prime time, introduced Jesse Jackson and his family.

On Wednesday night it was Jeff Bingaman's and Bill Richardson's turn.

Bingaman was given the time as a US Senator with a 1988 election campaign. Richardson received a prime time slot shortly before the presidential nominating speeches began.

But the battle for the Texas electoral votes gave that state's contingent a truly featured role.

In addition to vice-presidential nominee Lloyd Bentsen, House Speaker Jim Wright served as convention chairman, state Treasurer Ann Richards delivered the keynote address and Agriculture Commissioner Jim Hightower spoke supposedly on farm policy.

Hightower's role was supposed to be very minor but he is a man to watch, as convention officials discovered.

On the convention platform, next to the podium, was a large red light which went on when a speaker's allotted time had expired. Hightower strode to the podium in a 10-gallon cowboy hat which he conveniently tossed over the light and proceeded to extend his one minute of agricultural remarks into five minutes of Republican jokes.

If you don't live close enough to the Texas border to have heard of Hightower before, you will before his political career is over.

Although Richards' keynote address will not go down in history with the passionate oratory of Mario Cuomo four years ago or the scholarly style of the only other female keynoter, Texan Barbara Jordan, she did set the tone for the convention, and maybe the campaign, with a large dose of feisty Bush-bashing.

She and Hightower received misplaced credit for authoring two of the convention's more memorable Bush jokes.

Richards' quip about Bush having been born with a silver foot in his mouth had been making the rounds back on the Potomac for at least a couple months.

Hightower's remark that "Bush was born on third base but thinks he hit a triple" has been around for years.

I consider myself somewhat an authority on old jokes. My father J. Cloyd Miller was a popular speaker on the national circuit for over 30 years. He was known for the number of jokes he could artfully weave throughout his remarks.

He has an entire filing cabinet of jokes categorized alphabetically. He never used one in a speech that he had not tried out on the family at the dinner table.

Since my mother was his constant companion on the rubber-chicken circuit, the jokes had to be good so she could laugh just as enthusiastically the 20th time she heard the story.

We heard a lot of jokes—and rejected a lot.

Hightower's extended stay on the podium was far exceeded the following night by Arkansas Gov. Bill Clinton in his nominating speech for Dukakis. Each candidate was allowed 15 minutes for nominating speeches, seconding speeches and a "spontaneous" demonstration.

Clinton took over 30 minutes. The Dukakis demonstration turned out to be spontaneous as supporters decided to start their chanting and flag-waving during Clinton's speech.

The Arkansas Gov. was obviously irritated, possibly because he intended the speech to launch his own national political career.

Clinton was the featured speaker for the New Mexico Democrat Convention last month. Delegate packets sent out before the national convention contained copies of two lengthy Clinton speeches.

Obviously the young governor is up to something.

The visit by GOP Rep. Manuel Lujan ruffled some Demo feathers when he showed up in the New Mexico delegation on Tuesday night. Part of the irritation was caused by the fact that in the relatively small convention auditorium, some of the good Demo guests who had traveled from New Mexico, could not get on the convention floor.

But Manny, with his charming ways, sweet-talked someone into letting him in as a congressman. Who would have thought to ask if he was a Republican congressman?

LAWN LORE

DO-IT-YOURSELF LAWN CARE HAS MANY ADVANTAGES

DIY (do-it-yourself) is the "hot" category in retail marketing these days, as evidenced by the growth of home centers and warehouse stores. Lawn care activities rank near the top of the DIY list, with good reason: do-it-yourself lawn care offers homeowners some real advantages, beyond just saving money.

Lawns are a lot like people—no two are exactly alike—and each has different needs, according to the lawn experts at The O.M. Scott & Sons Company. Doing your own lawn care enables you to feed your lawn just what it needs. You know exactly what you're getting when you buy DIY lawn products, because by law the package label must state exactly what's in the product, what it's for and how to apply it.

The label information is an integral part of the requirements for registration by the Environmental Protection Agency (EPA), an agency of the federal government. When you buy it and apply it yourself, you can be assured of the product's content, quality and quantity. Since you are doing it yourself, you also know that the product will be applied only when you want it to be.

Most DIY lawn products, including all but one of the many Scott's retail products, are granular products designed for dry application. This offers many benefits.

Granular products are precisely formulated for use directly out of the bag, eliminating the need for mixing, measuring or diluting the product. This is not only more convenient, but it greatly reduces the possibility of over- or under-application as well as scattering out steps that could involve contact with concentrated product. You don't have to worry about what to do with left-over granular lawn product, since the unused portion can be returned to the bag and stored safely for later use.

During and after application, granular products are safer to people, pets and surrounding vegetation because the granules are not prone to drift in the atmosphere. You can easily put the product where you want it, without jeopardizing your flower beds or vegetable garden.

Another reason to use DIY lawn products is to save money. When you do it yourself, you pay only for the product you need—when you need it.

Scott's offers a wide range of lawn products that are custom-made for your region and its weather, soil, grass and weed conditions. These products were developed and tested on regional grass varieties at five Scott's research stations across the country. To find out exactly which products to use on your lawn, visit your Scott's Lawn Pro retailer or just call Scott's toll-free Hotline: 1-800-549-TURF. (In Ohio, call 1-800-762-4010.)

EDITOR—So you want to know who is going to win the election come November? Well, Dr. Murray N. Rothbard thinks he knows. He just might be right.

A distinguished economist of the Austrian School of Economics, Rothbard predicts that the Keynesian economists will win.

Named after the British socialist, John Maynard Keynes, the Keynesians have been advising administration after administration that there is nothing seriously wrong with a government spending more than it takes in. (Don't try to run your own business that way.)

It is Keynesian economics that has guided (or misguided) America's deficit spending policy since the days of Roosevelt's New Deal. Rothbard sees the Democratic Party as the party of "liberal Keynesianism." Our choice in November is between Mike Dukakis the liberal Keynesian or George Bush the conservative Keynesian. (See MONEY WORLD, Aug. 1988.)

Remember when Alabama's Governor George Wallace was stumping the nation telling folks that there is not a dime's worth of difference between the two old parties. Of course, a dime was worth more then.

And besides, some radical shot him.

day's work in 20 years." He made his money (he is reputed to be a millionaire) by "squeezing tithes from middle-class blacks, mau-mauing corporate liberals, conspiring with federal bureaucrats, shaking down television stations for thousands of hours of free (and highly sympathetic) coverage" and blackmailing corporations with his threats to unleash boycotts against them—a process that cost Coca-Cola millions of dollars to shut him up. In a recent column Paul Harvey said of Jackson: "He has lived almost all of his life on other people's money. From 1966 to 1971 Jesse Jackson's Operation Breadbasket survived on other people's money. . . . He has lived all his life on handouts; it is the only economics he knows."

● Every word here is a matter of public record. But he remains a towering political colossus. And that makes him the Most Dangerous Man in America. He makes people feel good about destroying their own country. Unless the nation sobers up, his "vision for America" will become reality eight years down the road.

IS THAT SO?

A surprising new study shows that spicy food burns through your system faster and winds up delivering less calories.

Volunteers for an Oxford Polytechnic study burned up to 76 more calories off the same meal if two teaspoons of fiery mustard or chili pepper were added to their food.

Researchers concluded that the hot spices temporarily speeded up the metabolic rate by 25 percent. That means spicy treats can help you lose weight.

And a health and nutrition expert in another publication says: "Eat hot, stay cool."

This summer, do what people in hot climates have done for centuries, eat more hot peppers, such as jalapeno chile which can help us feel comfortable by making us sweat. When the sweat dries, it cools us off.

In addition, chile peppers are sources of vitamin C, which helps reduce stress. They also contain Vitamin A, iron, magnesium, thiamin, riboflavin and niacin. And they're low in calories.

Forget the myth about peppers causing stomach ulcers, or adversely affecting an existing condition. According to Dr. Arnold Levy of the American Digestive Disease Society, spicy foods not only do not cause or aggravate stomach ulcers, peppers actually help improve digestion by increasing the production of saliva and gastric juices.

This is good news for those addicted to chile, like me.

QUILT TALK

A quilting friend showed me a quilt she recently acquired and we both wondered what the pattern name was. Michele Walker's "The Complete Book of Quilting" gave us an answer. American Turkey Tracks is an applique design and the book shows a late 19th century quilt using the pattern.

Applique quilts became widely popular in the middle of the last century when fabrics became more readily available, although they were usually kept for best. This particular applique block was originally called Wandering Foot and carried a superstition that any child, especially a boy, who slept under a quilt of this type would grow up discontented and become a wanderer. Not surprisingly, the name was later changed to Turkey Tracks.

FOUNDING FATHERS

This year I became intrigued with this constitution stuff. Gouverneur Morris with his strange first name caught my attention in Giants of America—The Founding Fathers.

Morris of easy manners and far from puritanical morals, plunged with a will, his caustic wit and rather brusque self-assertion making him both admired and feared. He enjoyed it all to the full, and in his letters to his friends pictures himself as working hard, but having fun also: "up all night—balls, concerts, assemblies—all of us mad in the pursuit of pleasure."

But the Revolution was at hand; and both pleasure and office-work had to give way to something more important.

WORTH QUOTING

"Dear Momma—

Wherever you are, if ever you hear the word 'nigger' again, remember they are advertising my book."—Dick Gregory in his autobiography, "Nigger."

"An informed public," says the author of "Six Against Crime," "is the most effective weapon against crime. It is my hope that this book will make a good ammunition for that weapon." (Harry Edward Neal writes about treasury agencies in action: US Secret Service, Bureau of Customs, Bureau of Narcotics, Intelligence Division, US Coast Guard and Alcohol and Tobacco Tax Division.)

"He makes himself the common denominator of immigrant aspiration and achievement, a kind of 'Every ethnic.'"—Garry Willis about Michael Dukakis in his Time story, "Born to Bustle."

"Some Duke City residents are trying to close down the dirty book stores on East Central. It'll never happen, however, since too many Albuquerque bigshots and city hall employees patronize them."—Chuck Mittlestadt in the Hobbs Flare.

"People believe if you use the same pillow your dog uses, you will dream what he dreams."—anonymous.

HEALTH BEAT

Antihistamine? Decongestant? Or Both?

You're congested, your nose is running, your eyes are itchy and you are sneezing. You want relief, but you don't know whether you need a decongestant, antihistamine or both.

Drugs for stuffy noses, sinus trouble, congestion and the common "cold" constitute the largest part of the over-the-counter market according to the American Academy of Otolaryngology—Head and Neck Surgery—a national society of physicians who treat the ear, nose, throat, and related areas of the face and neck. Antihistamines and decongestants relieve the symptoms of allergies, upper respiratory infections (ie, sinusitis, "colds," and flu) and vasomotor rhinitis (a chronic stuffy nose caused by unrelated conditions such as emotional stress, thyroid disease or pregnancy).

Antihistamines block the effects of histamine, a body chemical responsible for the congestion, sneezing and runny nose associated with allergy or infection. For the best results antihistamines should be taken before the symptoms get well established.

You may want to take antihistamines at bedtime because they produce drowsiness, which may be hazardous for persons operating equipment or driving a car.

Congestion in the nose and sinuses is caused by swollen, expanded blood vessels. Decongestants cause constriction or tightening of these blood vessels, opening the air passages. Decongestants are chemically related to adrenalin so they also act as a stimulant. The side effect is a nervous, jittery feeling, which can cause difficulty going to sleep and elevate blood pressure and pulse rate.

Theoretically, if the side effects could be properly balanced, the sleepiness caused by antihistamines could be cancelled by the stimulation of decongestants. Numerous combination drugs are available.

"Cold" remedies are a combination, but add drying agents, aspirin and cough suppressants. You should choose the remedy with the ingredient combination best suited to combat your symptoms.

For a free copy of "Antihistamines, Decongestants and 'Cold' Remedies," send a stamped, addressed envelope to: Colds, c/o AAO-HNS, 1101 Vermont Ave., NW, Suite 302, Washington, DC 20005.

White Oaks in the News

By Willa Lee Martin

Lincoln County Pony Express has been active since 1969, 20 years. This year's Pony Express Committee is comprised of executive chairman Bob Watson, secretary-treasurer Diana Hankin, promotional chairman Kay Madera, race chairman Alan Lewis, co-chairman Willa Lee Martin, rodeo chairman John Vega, co-chairman Michael Barela and horseshoe chairman Jim and Bill Payne.

Lincoln County Pony Express is temporarily closed for a short period of time. The next fundraiser event, a team roping event, is set for Saturday, July 30, starting at 11:30 a.m. To be followed by a dance at the White Oaks Casino featuring Young Country, a new group to our area.

Larry and Annie McCulloch of Michigan have moved to the White Oaks area and own the L & M Mining Company. They are readying their gold mill and mining operations to go into full production soon. Don Collum and friends have been helping them get ready to move the mill presently behind the Brown Building to their mining site a few miles from White Oaks.

In 1987, the Pony Express came back and had a successful program and a good clean race. This year 1988, we have as a committee and with numerous volunteers worked extremely hard to raise the money needed for an even better program. Which brings me to the Lincoln County Pony Express Auction and Dance that took place at the Carrizozo Country Club July 23.
