

Commissioners agree to begin work on landfill ordinance

By Doris Cherry

"Our whole term has been solid waste," said Lincoln County Commission chairman Karon Petty after a large group of Rio Ruidoso valley residents requested help to stop an unwanted landfill in their area.

Michael Hurd of San Patricio, who stood to represent the group that packed the commission room in Carrizozo Monday, said the landfill proposed by the Village of Ruidoso Downs and is located on property owned by Ken Nosker in Glencoe, presents a threat to the natural beauty and environment, the air and water, in the valley. A threat to the very things which attract visitors.

He encouraged the county to take a strong leadership role for determining the best site for a landfill to serve all residents. He advocated regionalized landfills as proposed by Gov. Garrey Caruthers and he challenged the commissioners to draft and adopt a landfill ordinance.

"If we're not willing to take charge of our lives and make grass root decisions we'll find them made in Santa Fe where people don't know us at all," Hurd said.

A young father from San Patricio said he will strongly consider moving from the valley if the landfill goes into the area. "We should look into the future," said Ray Sanchez. "We have the best water," he said, based on water tests of the wells in the valley. "I hate to see it ruined by one man's greed!"

Charles Caperton, a newcomer to the valley and an attorney, presented petitions signed by valley residents concerned about the dump. He said one factor in the permit process for the landfill is that the private land on which the dump is to be located is now in bankruptcy court.

"Just say no," he urged. "All it takes for evil to win is to let good people do nothing," he added.

After many of the group presented their opinions about the proposed landfill and urged the commissioners to do something to prevent it, Petty called a special meeting at 3 p.m. Wednesday to discuss writing a new landfill ordinance for Lincoln County.

A solid waste ordinance does exist. Petty read from ordinance 85-3 which addresses solid waste, and the powers given to the county manager to waive the required 10-day waiting period for contacting the party in violation, if the situation is seen as pressing. Steps can be taken to correct the accumulation of waste and debris, Petty said.

"If we have an illegal dump we need to tell the sheriff to fix it," Petty said.

However, the existing ordinance does not preclude anyone from opening a landfill without permission from the commissioners after public hearings.

"We have been complacent," Petty said. Although Petty has different opinions on a Lincoln County landfill, she agreed there is a need for a special ordinance to address unwanted landfills.

Commissioner Bob Hemphill said he did not think the Environmental Improvement Division will approve the landfill permit, but he supports a special ordinance.

Commissioner Rick Simpson, who represents the area in question, expressed a more emotional side to the situation. Because of proximity of his home and well to the proposed landfill, he echoed the fear many in the room expressed about pollution of the water table and thus the many shallow wells in the valley. The site is located near Rio Ruidoso, two arroyos which drain into the river and two faults.

Simpson supported former commissioner John Allen Hightower who helped initiate a zoning ordinance which would make landfills and other undesirable operations subject to special use permits, available only after lengthy public processes.

"No one paid much attention," Simpson said about the ordinance.

He supported the group's desire to have local control over the landfill situation. Let's put the jurisdiction locally rather than through Santa Fe," he said.

Hemphill agreed the situation is a very emotional issue, but questioned those in the crowd where they were when the zoning ordinance was in public hearings. At that time the commission room was crowded with county citizens protesting the ordinance. It is the "not in my backyard" policy that attracts large groups to such meetings, he said.

"There are suitable places in Lincoln County," Hemphill said.

Gary McCaslin, district supervisor for EID, said the proposed landfill might not be permitted within four months, but the process is moving along faster than expected. He said Ruidoso Downs Mayor Jake Harris talked with legislators to hasten the process.

"It is very political," McCaslin said.

He also said commissioners were dealing with two separate issues: illegal dumps and an application for a new landfill permit.

Also in relation to the landfill situation, the com-

McKnight murders still haunt Lincoln County

Monday, Nov. 13, was the fifth anniversary of the McKnight murders.

Friday, according to a published report, Joe McKnight of Roswell said he intends to raise the reward fund from $5,000 to $10,000 for information concerning the death of his son and daughter-in-law. McKnight said he will deposit the additional $5,000 in the bank on Monday, the anniversary.

McKnight is the father of Thomas P. "Cotton" McKnight. Cotton, 31, and his wife Judy, 38, were shot to death in the kitchen of their isolated ranch home, by someone authorities believe was well acquainted with them.

"We know that someone knows something about this case and can tell us who it was, I'm sure of that," McKnight said. "I think that the increased reward might convince them to come forward and give police their evidence."

The McKnight case has frustrated investigators of three Lincoln County Sheriff administrations, two district attorneys, the New Mexico Attorney General's office, the state police, a grand jury, about a dozen private and official investigators, a psychic and a hypnosis expert.

The case has been the center of mystery and controversy since the bodies were found by concerned friends early Nov. 15, 1984. Investigators believed the murders happened sometime in the evening of Nov. 13.

At the time of the murders, then-sheriff Tom Sullivan said it was a cold blooded execution-type murder. Nothing was disturbed and nothing was taken from the house.

Investigators believe Cotton, former county commissioner, was shot first, twice in the chest. Judy was then shot once in the back, apparently as she knelt over her husband body.

Both then were shot in the back of the head with a different caliber gun than was used in the first shots.

Investigators speculate the can of beer, two liquor bottles and decanter of tequila and a clean drinking glass on the table were put there as phony evidence.

Telephone records and unanswered calls from a relative indicate the killings occurred sometime between 5:30 and 7 p.m.

Cotton was reported to have been working sheep with friend, Virgil Smith, earlier Nov. 13. Smith said he parted company with Cotton at a fork in the road which lead to the McKnight house, 20 miles south of Picacho. McKnight was headed to his ranch headquarters to unload a trailer of sheep, Smith said.

Smith also said he passed Judy on the road as he was leaving and she was returning home.

No one in the area said they saw a strange vehicle on the road during that evening.

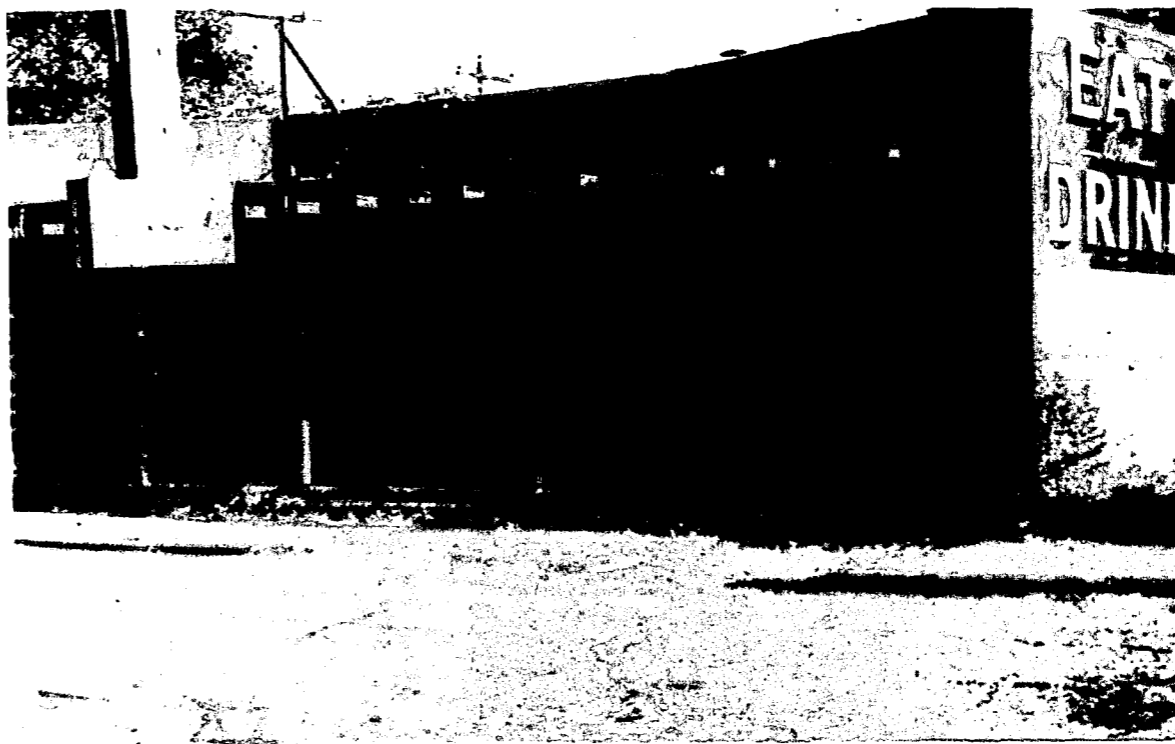

Controversy began almost as soon as the investigation did. Fingerprints were sent to a special lab at Texas Tech University in Lubbock for laser examination. The FBI later was called in to help.

However, no charges came from the investigation. Just more controversy and eventually a "gag order" imposed on investigators by a district judge.

News events listed by the Lincoln County News included the death, a suspect refuses a polygraph tests on Dec. 4, 1984; laser prints sent to the FBI Jan. 1985; a key piece of evidence is

Capitan Village Council

Trustees decide on one police officer

As of yesterday, Nov. 15, the Village of Capitan has only one police officer.

The decision to dissolve the "junior law enforcement" position and utilize the law enforcement personnel available in Capitan was made following a closed session of the Capitan Board of Trustees during regular monthly meeting Monday.

Because of the many law enforcement personnel in the village—a state police officer, the sheriff, several deputies—the trustees decided they would utilize these people during Capitan policeman Randy Spears' off hours.

Trustees Jack Pogue, Norm Renfro and David Rouleau voted for the decision:

trustee Myrl Ray voted to keep the second policeman.

Also Monday night, trustees heard two proposals for annexation into the village. Tom Sullivan and Ben Taylor presented formal proposals. Sullivan proposed annexing a 10.36 acre parcel which adjoins his property which is within the village limits. Sullivan said annexing the property will help with the municipal debt service. There was some discussion about the county road tax, which Sullivan now pays on the property, but which has not resulted in road improvements.

Taylor, who lives in Fortales, presented his proposal and said he plans to place a recreational vehicle on his 8+ acres in Mesa Verde Subdivision until he moves to the village permanently. When he moves, he plans to construct a residence.

Although the audience had little to say about the annexations, Rouleau expressed his objection:

Man freed on arson charges

The family of Ruidoso Downs resident Luis Chavez shed tears at the announcement of the jury's verdict in District Court in the Lincoln County Courthouse Wednesday: not guilty.

The verdict was announced after the jury deliberated for one hour after a two-day trial on the charge that Chavez committed arson on the Robert Mazon property in Ruidoso Downs.

Chavez's defense attorney was Raquel Velasquez of Alamogordo.

The Lincoln County Grand Jury indicted Chavez on June 13 on the charge of arson.

District Judge Richard A. Parsons dismissed the case with prejudice and told Chavez he was free to leave.

Judge Parsons commented to the jury that their

Commissioners

missioners earlier in the meeting directed Planning and Zoning to begin the zoning according to the zoning ordinance and to begin the public hearings process.

In other business the commissioners:

—Heard a request from Capitan Gap road resident and owner of the Lone Tree Bible Camp Tim Worrell for improvements to the road as heavy traffic to the camp in the summer is limited and often dangerous because of mud and other road problems.

Worrell said he has offers of materials to improve the road and needs only the equipment and labor provided by the county. "I just ask that you recognize the road is a higher priority than it was 10 years ago."

Pappas said the county might consider the road for a school bus route project.

—Put consideration of a five-person commission on the Wednesday meeting agenda at Hemphill's request.

—Heard a report from George Puckett, executive director of the Economic Development Corporation of Lincoln County. EDC has generated more than 200 prospects and 100 potential investors. At least two high tech enterprises have moved to Ruidoso and Alto. An aquaculture project is proposed for the Carrizozo area and an enterprise is considering locating in Corona. Most progress has been within the last 90 days, Puckett said.

Petty complimented EDC on its brochure and progress.

—Accepted a letter from District Judge Richard Parsons and placed him on the December agenda as he was unable to attend the meeting.

—Tabled the rural addressing system for Alto.

—Approved the agreement which establishes the responsibilities of the State Agency on Aging and the senior employment programs host agencies, as presented by Barbara Ward, Zia Senior Citizens Center Director.

—Approved an amendment in the agreement with the Water Defense Association, to allow for previously approved legal services rates and extension of the contract for research.

—Approved leaving appointments to the Lincoln County Medical Center board of directors to Southwest Services which manages the hospital. LCMC administrator Steve Keller said the current board represents the county quite well.

—Approved the annual contract for base course material with Beavers Sand and Gravel and Bonnell Sand and Gravel, with materials purchased from the supplier closest to the job.

—Approved Hemphill's appointment to the EDC board and Petty to the LCMC board.

—Approved the designated polling places with no changes.

—Met in closed session to discuss possible litigation.

because he thinks the village is responsible to the properties now within corporate limits.

Mayor Benny Coker also was concerned about annexations unless the property will include a home or business which will help with the village debt service or gross receipt taxes.

The trustees referred the proposals to the Capitan Planning and Zoning. P&Z meets at 6 p.m. Tuesday, Nov. 21 at village hall.

The proposed annexations must be separate individual contracts and individual ordinances must be advertised, said village clerk Janet Keel. Each property, regardless of the size, will be allowed one water meter, she added.

A question asked about the cooperative project with Capitan Schools for drainage off of Highway 48 was answered Monday night.

Village attorney Don Dutton presented a packet of statements mailed to him by Tony Lara of the New Mexico State Highway Department, Roswell office. Capitan schools had stated the village owes on their share of the project. Dutton said he discovered an error on the amount charged for wages for the heavy equipment.

He instructed the clerk to adjust the figures listed on the statements to be in line with New Mexico Department of Labor "bluebook" for charges for heavy equipment.

Mayor Coker presented a plaque from the International Institute of Municipal Clerks to Janet Keel Coker commended Keel for her excellent job as clerk and her certification with the institute. Keel completed numerous hours of schooling and training sessions to receive the certification.

In other business:

—Coker asked Keel to be on a personnel policy board to update the Capitan personnel policy to municipal government standards. He appointed Pogue to chair the board and requested Dr. Bernhard Reimann also to be on the board, because both have experience with governmental policies.

—Dorothy Smith reported on the Economic Development Corporation of Lincoln County activities. A new business recently moved to Ruidoso because of EDC's efforts. The next EDC meeting is at 10 a.m. Dec. 14 at Smokey Bear Restaurant in Capitan. The public is welcome to attend.

Trustees approved a $500 donation to Capitan High School for a community and school bulletin board to be placed in the northwest corner of the school property. The school will be responsible for announcements and maintenance.

—The mayor displayed a commendation for the village donation to the Law Enforcement Drug coloring book project. The books will be distributed in Capitan Elementary School.

A certificate of appreciation was presented to the Capitan Police Department for participation in the first Law Enforcement Parade in Socorro Oct. 13.

The mayor proclaimed Nov. 28 as University of New Mexico Centennial Day.

Fatal crash is still 'under investigation'

The accident which resulted in the death of a Carrizozo infant is still under investigation.

Cynthia Morales and her infant daughter Naomi were rearended by a truck driven by Michael A. Velasquez of Santa Rosa on Oct. 7. Both mother and baby were thrown from the vehicle as it overturned two and a half times.

The infant died on the way to Lincoln County Medical Center and Cynthia was flown to Presbyterian Hospital in Albuquerque. Although Morales later came home, she has returned to the hospital for an infection and more surgery.

According to Chris Zeigler, investigating attorney for vehicular homicide and alcohol related accidents in District Attorney Bert Atkin's office, he cannot comment on the case.

"I expect to begin filing action with the next month (December)" Zeigler said by telephone Wednesday.

He said he is waiting on some reports but may not discuss any because he fears it may inhibit the defendants' rights and create a situation where they "can walk."

"There are a fair number of legal questions," Zeigler added. "People think it is a simple accident, but it is far from the case."

Zeigler will file any charges through the DA.

Zeigler said he thinks the men involved in the accident are still at Fort Bliss.

THAT BEAUTIFUL LEVERAGE

QUESTION: What is meant by the word "leverage" when used in conjunction with investing in real estate?

ANSWER: Leverage arises because ALL of the income and ALL of the appreciation belongs to the property holder regardless of the amount of the loan. To illustrate, assume a $100,000 property was purchased for only $10,000 cash and a $90,000 mortgage loan. Five years later, the same property is sold for $150,000 (a 50% gain in value). After paying off the $90,000 mortgage, the investor would realize, not a 50% gain, but rather a 500% gain on his initial cash investment because he only invested $10,000 for the property. That's leverage!

LEVERAGE is the key to multiplying profits from real estate.

Lady Tigers bow to Texico in state semi-finals

The Capitan Lady Tigers are 3rd in New Mexico Class A volleyball.

The dynamic Lady Tigers met their match in the Texico Wolverines Friday night at the state volleyball semifinals in Roswell and found their perfect win record marred by an emotional loss.

The loss put them into the consolation match Saturday and shut them out of the championship.

The spikers went into the match Friday afternoon with confidence high after defeating Roy in the first round of the state volleyball finals Thursday. Roy was no challenge and the girls defeated them in three easy games: 15-11, 15-3 and 15-0. Karie Cox made 4 service points in the first game, Leslie LaRue made 4 in the second and Kim Eckland made 9 in the final game.

But when the Lady Tigers returned to the courts for the semifinals with Texico, they underestimated the Wolverines' desire to win.

"We didn't perform well; there were lots of variables," said Lady Tiger Coach Pam Allen. "Texico knew they had to play the game of their life."

The Lady Tigers fought hard to gain some control of the match and played five games. Texico claimed the first two: 15-8 and 15-13, but the Lady Tigers turned the tide and won the next two: 15-6 and 15-9. The all-important 5th game, the determining one of the match and advancement to the finals the next night, proved too difficult for the Lady Tigers and they lost 9 to 15.

LaRue served consistently well throughout the entire match. She made 3 service points in the first, 6 in the second and third, and 5 in the fourth. Cindy Castillo made 5 points in the third and Cox made 5 in the fourth. Scoring was even in the final game.

Although the Lady Tigers did not win, Allen said they played like "true champions."

"We were down two games to none, and they fought back to tie. Even after the devastating disappointment, they came back the next day, with no emotion and physical fatigue, to win 3rd place. This is an indication of the character and determination of our kids," she said. "It says a lot for their personal and mental quality."

The Lady Tigers defeated Fort Sumner in four games: 10-15, 15-13, 15-7 and 15-7, for the 3rd place berth in the consolation match Saturday afternoon at Roswell High School. Cox made 5 points in the first, Vickie Cedillo and Lora McKay both made 4 in the second, McKay made 9 in the third and 5 in the last. LaRue also made 6 service points in the final game.

The girls ended their season with 21 wins and one loss. The two-season record was 43 wins and one loss.

Seniors McKay and Eckland played their final season. "I certainly will miss the two seniors," Allen continued. "They are the two best players in (Tiger) volleyball. They both play extremely well for a lot of reasons—they love the game and they are outstanding athletes, both physically and mentally. They are gracious, unselfish and team players. They gave a lot of leadership and stability with their consistent and excellent volleyball."

Allen predicts the Tigers will be a strong team again next year, as she has some excellent young players coming up from the junior varsity and junior high ranks.

Allen also expressed her appreciation of the Capitan High School faculty and student body and the fans who packed the gyms at all three finals matches and throughout the entire volleyball season.

The Floyd Lady Broncos, which the Lady Tigers defeated last year for the state title, were the winners this year.

The Capitan girls will take a breather before they begin basketball season.

● A Gallup bar owner has been found guilty of violating the New Mexico Dram Shop Act which allows bar owners to be held liable for damages resulting from alcohol sales. The bar, it was claimed, continued to sell drinks to one Wilson Devore after he was drunk. The drunk then drove off to an accident which left one man dead and his wife injured. A jury said Devore was only 30 percent liable and the bar was 70 percent liable in a $1.25 million lawsuit filed by the victims. This may be one way of bringing Prohibition back. If this Dram Shop Act isn't repealed nobody but an idiot would own a bar.

● How does a bartender (much less a bar owner who isn't present) know when a customer has had too much to drink? Do you throw him down when he enters and give him a breathalyzer test, and repeat the process after every drink the person orders? You have 50 customers in a bar; must they all walk the chalk line every few minutes? It is difficult for anyone to tell when a person is drunk because there are many kinds of drunks. Some stagger, fight, flail and fall down. That's the easy way to make the determination. Language has little to do with drunkenness. I know a man who, sober, is loud, vulgar and abusive. But the drunker he gets the more polite he becomes and you couldn't pick a fight out of him for any reason. A friend, who weighs about 250 pounds, sets down to a poker game nearly every Saturday night. By the side of his chair is a washtub containing a case of beer covered with ice. The game ends when his beer is consumed—by him. A case of imbibed beer did not affect his judgment, for he nearly always won, and handsomely. Under the Dram Shop Act I suppose he could be convicted of taking the money of sober players. Suppose the same man consumed a case of beer at a bar, left and drove down the highway only to be rear-ended by a minister on his way to a temperance meeting. The very sober drunk would be tested to find that his blood alcohol was .20 on the Alcohol Richter Scale. Never mind that he may have been exercising caution and restraint. He is automatically convicted of an accident he had nothing to do with. And the owner of the bar where he consumed the beer is guilty, and the errant minister winds up with $1.25 million of the bar owner's money for reflecting on Jesus when he should have been watching the road. One can't sue Jesus so they settle for the bar owner. That's justice.

● Not long ago a pregnant woman consumed a fifth of bourbon a day until the time her baby was born handicapped. She sued the distillery for not having a warning on the whiskey bottle that consumption of alcohol endangers the health of an unborn baby. She lost her case, but it demonstrates a growing moral issue that somebody else is responsible for whatever bad happens. Today, if something bad happens to a person, it's somebody else's fault. If something good happens to a person, that person prides himself on his good judgment. We must only take responsibility for acts that please us. All others are the responsibility of somebody else.

● This same moral depravity applies to the current rage over abortion. Most Americans seem to agree that a woman is entitled to an abortion if she wants one. The trouble is, that woman wants taxpayers to pay for her abortion. She wants the freedom to get pregnant, but she wants somebody else to pay for her Saturday night fling in the hay. She wants to play but she doesn't want to pay. She shifts responsibility for her actions to the taxpayers. After all, she fumes, society encouraged me to get pregnant through its liberal views, so let society pay for the results. The day of personal accountability is in twilight.

● Today when a baby is born with physical or mental defects, the cause isn't heredity or genetics or fetal neglect. No, it is malpractice on the part of the doctor and the doctor will pay millions for having tried to do something good. Which is why medical treatment is skyrocketing and why obstetricians are leaving their profession in droves.

● If a person loses a job it isn't his fault, so he hits taxpayers for unemployment compensation. If by poor management, laziness, drunkenness and general unworthiness a person is left homeless, society is responsible and the person is entitled to a taxpayer subsidy in the form of public housing. Parents who can't or won't care for their children can now put them in day-care centers, which will cost taxpayers some $2 billion a year. Put together a mud monstrosity, dub it art, and the taxpayer-funded National Endowment for the Arts will pay good money for it. Let some dummy enter a supermarket and pull a row of shelves down on his head and the owners pay handsomely for his stupidity. Drug users assume no responsibility for their decision to become addicts, leaving it to taxpayers to fund rehabilitation centers and stop the flow of drugs. The addict just can't say no, so the public bears the cost in money and morality. Teachers put the blame for increasing illiteracy in public schools upon parents; parents put the responsibility upon teachers.

● A couple of years ago at a California school a young hanger, bent on robbing the school, fell through a skylight of the building he had targeted. He LAS CRUCES—Folks down this way are getting excited again about a border crossing linking New Mexicans with Mexico.

Most of them are tempering their enthusiasm with the knowledge that border crossings have been about to happen for at least 20 years. Former state Sen. Ike Smalley of Deming was an early advocate for a crossing. Governors for years have met with Mexican governors to plan the crossings. Legislative committees have met with all sorts of Mexican officials. Many toasts have been drunk to the project's success in the night clubs of Juarez and Chihuahua.

A few ribbons and a barbed-wire fence have even been cut by past governors at a site known as Anapra, which is now a part of the municipality of Sunland Park. But conferences, toasts and ribbon cuttings have not proven to be what it takes to get an official port of entry established between the two countries.

Why all the false starts? Reasons given down here are numerous. Obviously a border crossing in a populated area can be very lucrative in terms of international trade, shopping areas and tax collections, to name a few.

It is the value of the crossing that may make one so difficult to get. There are now two crossings between El Paso and Juarez. Both cities do quite well off them. Neither city can be expected to do anything positive to encourage a competitor to the west of town.

Neither can the state of Texas be too excited about New Mexico siphoning some of its liquor tax revenue away. Pressure from Texas, El Paso and Juarez may have something to do with why, despite many promises, a road has never been built from Juarez to the proposed site some six miles away.

Then there is the problem that border crossings between countries lie in the province of national and not state governments. For all these years, meetings between New Mexico officials and those of the state of Chihuahua were not much more than good excuses for a party. The action should have been taking place at the national level.

And that is just what has been happening recently as a result of efforts by US Sen. Pete Domenici and the New Mexico congressional delegation. Domenici has gotten President George Bush and Mexican President Carlos Salinas de Gortari talking together about the crossing. It looks closer than it has ever been.

But there is another fly in the ointment. Domenici and his group are working toward a crossing farther west at Santa Teresa in conjunction with land developer Charlie Crowder who has been putting millions of dollars of improvements into the area.

As this effort gets close to fruition, New Mexico Gov. Garrey Carruthers has come into the picture. Recently he and Gov. Baeza of Chihuahua met and took a helicopter ride along their mutual border. Following the aerial survey, Carruthers announced the two had decided the old Anapra site would be the better location.

Reportedly Pete Domenici is not the least bit happy with the wrench Carruthers has thrown into the smoothly functioning gears that were grinding toward a solution.

The problem seems to be that Carruthers and Crowder have not been too fond of each other. Crowder may have even given Carruthers' 1986 Democratic gubernatorial opponent Ray Powell a little too much support. Whatever the case, there are feelings our governor may be involving himself in some vindictive behavior that will sour the deal one more time.

Will New Mexico experience as many years of frustrations in achieving another border crossing as we did in becoming a state? If that's the case, we are only a third of the way there.

We must be cautious not to say or do the wrong thing at crucial times. During the Toney Anaya administration, there was a point at which it appeared we couldn't miss. Everything had been done correctly with the Mexican government but then Anaya managed to fire off a volley of criticism at Pres. Ronald Reagan just as he was getting ready to OK the deal. So here we are again.

Southern Dona Ana County residents are holding their collective breath hoping nothing goes wrong this time.

Ruidoso councilman says city budget overspent by $1 million

BY J. A. "AI" JUNGE

The sun is out and there is not a cloud in the sky—but it is snowing heavily where our local newspaper operates.

"Snow jobs" are now the course of action in Ruidoso. To agree with the actions of the administration while glossing over the financial problems plaguing the city are now the norm.

The city administration, by overpassing budgets and by rationalizing that excess expenditures are really not DEFICITS as long as cash reserves and an increase in taxes will enable a continuance of a loose fiscal policy, will continue to deplete our cash reserves.

The obvious cause of deficit spending pointed out by this writer and supported by documents produced by the city's financial administrator is ignored by the local press and, instead, emphasis is placed on documents by the administration and by the city council's official statements that are in error.

from July 1 of the year to end on the following June 30. These budgets are guides for departmental spending and are approved by the administration and by the council.

To insure that overspending does not occur periodic quarterly reports are supposed to be made of the spending of each department.

Normally these departments exceeding their budgets are required to reduce spending and to stay within budget limits. In Ruidoso there is no evidence of the control of budget expenditures. A department which overspends the first quarter of the budget continues to overspend the rest of the year.

During the period from 7-1-88 to 6-30-89 it was extremely difficult for this writer to obtain actual departmental spending from the administration. The information was most apparent as the budget was in

And keep your nose out of my business.)

Turning the tables

EDITOR—As a subscriber to your newspaper, and a person interested in property preservation, I was compelled to remark on your community's problems with bureaucracies' interference in personal liberties.

Recently, as you may have read, some politicians in my area also adopted arrogant attitudes towards constituents and sought to impose all sorts of restrictions. The ordinary people thought they could not fight city hall. We showed them that they could.

We (a group of home owners who believe in property rights) felt that if the politicians busy condemning property in the name of "no growth," "historical preservation" and the like, were sincere, they would show it.

We began to circulate a ballot petition. The ballot measure would effectively preserve our history by virtually condemning the property of every city and county official, placing such property in the status of having "historical value." Since politicians generally hold

CITY BUDGET BY ONE MILLION DOLLARS? I doubt that only a few taxpayers knew the facts. They certainly did not get it from reading the News. Out of 24 departments of record five underspent their budgets while 19 departments overspent. Not a very tight operation!

These figures were available to the News—apparently not interested.

It is very difficult for one person, however well intentioned, to point out problems within the administration when the leadership and the council itself has a predetermined rationale that "all is well" and no interloper is going to "mess around in our operation."

Too many 5 to 1 votes at the council meeting points up the problems that face a council whose sole reason for being there is to serve their constituents—the taxpayers.

At the time in July when it was necessary to approve the budget for the coming year, a resolution was presented to the council. This resolution was to transfer

● I hope you see the point I'm making. The burglar had no accountability and no responsibility for his actions. But the school district was guilty of having a skylight through which the burglar accidentally fell. The responsibility fell 100 percent upon an innocent party, and that innocent party had to spend taxpayer dollars to reward an acknowledged criminal.

● I could go on for days with such cases where people are not responsible for their actions in this convoluted society. But I have to run to the bathroom and throw up.

themselves out as saviors of the land and the people, we felt they could not possibly object to the people taking the initiative by restricting a politician's use of his land, making it undevelopable, making it impossible for him/her to improve said property or alter or demolish structures on said "stateman's" land.

Of course, the politician would be allowed to live in the house — under certain restrictive codes — and the house could be sold, providing that the deed included restrictive wording imposing use conditions upon the new owner.

Our Historical Preservation Initiative was most effective in ensuring that politicians share the same benefits as the rest of the populace in preserving the heritage of our community. As you might expect, the Historical Rights Initiative has met with much public approval.

Standing in one supermarket parking lot, I was able to gather 2600+ signatures so I am sure that local people in Carrizozo could do the same in order to restore and equalize property rights.

After all, how can politicians argue against the taking of their property, if they insist on taking voters' property and restricting the voters' enjoyment of dwellings upon which they pay inordinately high taxes, mortgages and levies . . . to keep the politicians and their lackeys in the luxurious lifestyles to which we have allowed them to become accustomed.

We fought back — and won! So can you.

NOW'S THE TIME

Now's the time to think about rules for healthful holiday eating. Weight control tips spoil our feasting, but along comes January. We wish we had cautiously nibbled our way through the months of November and December.

I chomp my teeth through mountains of calorie laden holiday goodies. We need to keep in mind that not every turkey or person need to be stuffed. Every year about this time I get amnesia.

The following tips may help control your appetite, but at the first sight of pumpkin pie or cornbread dressing you too will suffer from loss of memory (and digestion).

"Seconds" tempt, serve plates from the stove.

Store leftover food in opaque containers.

The slower you eat, the less you eat.

Put down your fork while you chew each bite.

Wear a tight belt or fitted waist when you eat. Do not loosen it as you near dessert.

Make a pinecone turkey, rather than a batch of frosted turkey shaped cookies.

Eggnog is nice but try sugar-free hot chocolate, hot spiced tea or cranberry juice.

Holiday potluck dinners are already in the planning stages. Don't skip meals before the event.

Drink a large glass of water before you eat.

ASK FOR ICE

A direct relationship between eating and moving on to a larger pants size is not a new scientific discovery. Here are additional weight control tips to spoil your holiday spirit.

Broil, boil, braise, bake, steam. Do not fry.

Season with herbs and hold the sauces and butter toppings.

Serve yourself lots of raw vegetables and fruits.

When alcohol is served, ask for extra ice or nonalcoholic beverages.

Choose single-crust pie with whipped topping or meringue instead of whipped cream.

When baking cut back on optional ingredients in holiday recipes. Coconut, chocolate chips and nuts add big calories.

Floss and brush your teeth right after eating. Do not even think of eating a dab of toothpaste.

HOLIDAY COUNTDOWN

To help keep your mind off the pie with whipped topping start following a week-to-week checklist for the holiday season.

Start today to mark all special dates for the season on your calendar. School and church programs. Club meetings and parties.

Start collecting a box of inexpensive stocking-stuffers.

Gather your favorite holiday recipes and avoid a last-minute frenzy looking for them later.

Decide what holiday decorations you're going to make.

Get some of your gift shopping done early at church and club bazaars. Start looking for bazaar ads in this issue of the Lincoln County News.

Find your Christmas card list. Any address or name changes?

Buy or make your Christmas cards and borrow a small loan at your favorite bank to purchase postal stamps.

To cut down on returns, update clothing sizes for everyone in your family. Hope that if someone gives you an item of clothing that you will need to return it for two sizes smaller.

OVERHEARD

Wife: "Let's go out tonight and have some fun."

Husband: "Good idea. If you get home before I do, leave the porch light on."

GIFTED POLITICIAN

One of Chuck Mittlestadt's readers in Farmington sent this definition he shared with the Hobbs Flare:

"The gifted politician is the one who can give the type of answer that makes you completely forget the question."

additional funds from the cash reserves to clear up the budget overspending for the last six months for the current budget year. (This is an additional amount needed after the December resolution had required a one-half million dollar transfer.) Now additional funds were needed to close out the remainder of the year ending on 6-30.

At the council meeting I inquired as to the amount of the resolution. The finance director answered, "I don't know." On this basis I refused to vote for the resolution which passed 5 votes to 1. The two resolutions covering the entire year amounted to more than one million dollars withdrawn from the cash reserves.

At the same council meeting the new budget for the oncoming year was presented. Normally the council has several weeks to study, revise, and approve a budget. This particular budget had been received by the writer only a day or so before the meeting, so I asked the mayor to set up a workshop to study the new budget. Overspending the former budget by such a large amount made a study of the new budget a must. So I thought. Wrong again. Mayor Davis, instead, talked about raising taxes, saying that Ruidoso had not had a tax increase in some time and then asked the administration how much would be needed to "continue" city services. The answer was the more than 5 mills tax that was passed. Councilman James stated that the new tax should be tied to an overall increase in city employee salaries.

I explained to James that I did not object to an increase but reminded him that the city manager had recently showed the council a study made by the Municipal League which showed that Ruidoso employees, excepting the fire and police department, were receiving the highest wages in the state. The subject closed at that point.

So at this one meeting (1) a new budget was passed without discussion, (2) a resolution was passed for an unknown amount without discussion, (3) taxes were raised without discussion—All motions on a 5 to 1 vote.

Shortly thereafter all employees received an across-the-board increase in pay. I don't recall that this action was approved by a motion on the council. In fact, one councilman learned only this week that the increase had actually gone into effect.

There was no mention in the News that the council had passed three important items, all of which would only add to the problem of too much spending and to the fact that they were all passed without discussion.

With so much disagreement between most of the council, the administration, the mayor, and myself it is of little wonder why there are those who would prefer that I "just disappear." Since none of the above elected me to office I will stick around until those, who elected me, make that decision.

Lincoln Ramblings

By Rosalie Dunlap

The weather has been beautiful—cool nights, warm breezy days.

Pam McArthur has received her masters degree and is now working at St. Mary's Hospital. She did her internship at St. Mary's.

Ralph Dunlap is doing fine following his surgery.

Our sympathies to the family of Judge Bill Payne. Bill will be sadly missed by everyone. Several area residents attended the funeral Monday afternoon. Mr. and Mrs. Franklin McKay and Mrs. Steven Payne of Las Cruces were visitors of the Ralph Dunlap's Saturday evening. They had attended the volleyball play-offs at Roswell. Franklin's daughter, Lora, was a member of the Capitan team.

Lincoln had its share of deer hunters. The warm weather and wind wasn't too conducive to good hunting.

Mr. and Mrs. Bob Hart and Beth returned from a quick trip to Durango, CO last week.

A number of area residents attended the county commission meeting in Carrizozo Monday night.

Matt Borowski has been doing a lot of rock work on the grounds of the Lincoln Work shop.

Brenda Zumwalt worked one day last week at the Lincoln post office. Zumwalt also makes the cutest bear music boxes etc. for the Smokey Bear Museum.

La Placita, Torreon Shop and Lincoln works will be open on weekends in December with Christmas gift items.

The Episcopal Home Church will begin Sunday services Nov. 19 at 9 a.m. The services will be held at San Juan's Church. Coffee and refreshments will be at the Dunlap home following the services.

There will be a Lincoln Pageant and Festivals meeting Saturday morning at 9. The Lincoln water meeting will be 2 p.m., Saturday. Both meetings will be at the Dr. Woods Annex.

The Capitan Cub Scout Troop 124 will have a pack meeting Sunday at 2 p.m. at the school cafeteria. Danny Kiper and Randy Spears will be guest speakers. The scouts are collecting toys for needy children for Christmas. Anyone who would like to donate toys can take them to the meeting Sunday afternoon or to any Cub Scout member.

The scouts are also selling boxes of popcorn, either buckets or in the microwave boxes, for five dollars. The Cub Scouts master is Jerry Longbotham. He can be contacted for further information.
