CARRIZOZO, NEW MEXICO, FRIDAY, FEBRUARY 10, 1939

NUMBER 98

Judith Davis Pilant

The death of little Judith Davis Pilant, which occurred last Sunday, Feb. 5, on her 12th birthday was indeed a sad blow to everyone. She had been ill only a short time following an operation for appendicitis, which was apparently successful. Judith was popular with her little friends and active in school affairs. She was in the sixth grade and was a member of the public school band.

She was a devout child having been baptized, and united with the Christian church in Clovis, N. M., when she was 9 years old. She was a member of Mrs. J. P. Turner's Sunday school class at the Methodist church here.

Heaven itself must have grown a little brighter and the celestial choirs made sweeter music when the soul of this lovely child entered the gates celestial.

Rev. J. M. Glazier conducted funeral services at the Methodist church Monday afternoon at 2 o'clock. Mrs. Don English sang Judith's favorite song, "By the Bend of the River" and also "Face to Face."

Pall bearers were her young classmates: Herbert Harshman, Gene Hines, Dan Conley, Jr., Milton Evans, Bobby Shafer and Dewey Stokes, Jr.

Flower girls: Betty Beck, Jane Gallacher, Marion Joyce, Margie Beth Meaton, Nell Joy and Eta Loy Bowlin, Margaret Myers and Ida Dell Bunch.

She is survived by her father, Mr. George Dewey Pilant, her mother, Mrs. Elsa Muriel Pilant and her grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. M. U. Finley, with whom she was living at the time of her death.

Interment was in the Clovis cemetery, beside her sister, Ann Elizabeth.

Last Friday night the Carrizozo "Grizzlies" met defeat when they played against Capitan. The score was 19-11. On Saturday night the Grizzlies went to Clouderoft but the Altitude didn't affect their playing and they won over Clouderoft by a score of 21-8. Both teams displayed fine sportsmanship and the game was a very exciting one.

Tonight the Grizzlies meet Hondo on the local court. The Hondo Grads also meet the 'Zozo Grads, and Hondo boasts of good teams so they ought to be good. Library Extension Service

There are 282,470 people in New Mexico without library facilities. The State Library Extension Service in Santa Fe was created for the purpose of making books available to these people.

This is done through the mailing of large collections to schools, libraries and all responsible groups and may be kept for three months.

Any individual living in outlying districts may borrow three books and keep them for three weeks.

Borrowers are asked to pay transportation costs which are nominal because of special book rates.

The books available are children's supplementary and recreational reading, novels, and non-fiction and Spanish novels.

S. P. Plans Big Display

At S. F. Exposition

With the Golden Gate International Exposition scheduled to open February 18 on Treasure Island in San Francisco bay, finishing touches are being given the elaborate exhibit of Southern Pacific Lines, according to F. S. McGinnis, vice president in charge of passenger traffic.

Southern Pacific's display, to be known as the "Round House", will be the largest railroad exhibit at the exposition, occupying 5,142 square feet, McGinnis said. It will feature a model railroad system running through spectacular dramas depicting Southern Pacific's four transcontinental routes. The company's earliest equipment will be contrasted with its modern luxury trains.

Other exhibits will include an animated full-size reproduction of the drive wheels, connecting rods and valve gear of one of the company's largest streamlined locomotives, and a map showing the territory served by Southern Pacific with the location of every freight and passenger train at 10 p. m. on an average night.

Rounding out these unusual exhibits will be displays of the railroad's fast overnight merchandise train service, together with the operations of its perishable freight service, with talking accompaniment. There will be also a colorful section devoted to old Mexico and its products and the projection of pictures in natural color taken in that country and elsewhere along the company's widespread lines.

Chocolate Highly Concentrated Food

Often Proves Useful to Restore Failing Energy

By EDITH M. BARBER
 "THE devil has erected a new university," stated Roger North, in criticizing an English public house of the day—and not because of the spirits which were served there, but because of a new-fangled drink known as chocolate, which had been introduced from Mexico by way of Spain.
 It is said to have been a boon to Spaniards and Mexicans who established the custom of having it brought to them in hot beverage form in church in order to stimulate wakefulness during long services.
 Actually, chocolate in contrast to tea and coffee, is a food with a concentrated value which often proves useful to restore failing energy. Soldiers, explorers, and hikers consider sweetened chocolate a necessary adjunct.

The rest of us are likely to use chocolate more for the sake of its fine flavor than for its food value. In cakes, in candies and in desserts, it provides what is probably our favorite flavor. We occasionally use it for that beverage which we call hot chocolate and which we generally serve with whipped cream. Oftener, however, we serve cocoa, which is actually chocolate from which most of the fat which is called cocoa butter, has been removed. Nothing is better on a chilly day than a steaming pot of cocoa which the children will be sure to acclaim. Made with milk, it provides just what the doctor would order if he were consulted.

When chocolate is used in cooking, it should be melted over hot water, as too high a temperature changes the flavor. Instead, it may be cut in pieces, to which a little cold water may be added and the two stirred together over a low fire until a smooth thick syrup results.

Chocolate Souffle.
 1/2 cup flour
 1 cup milk
 1/2 cup sugar
 4 eggs
 2 squares melted chocolate
 1/4 teaspoon salt

Mix flour with half a cup of cold milk and stir this mixture into one-half cup of hot milk. Add half of the sugar, stir over fire until mixture thickens and boils. Remove from fire, beat 4 egg yolks, one at a time. Add remaining sugar, melted chocolate and salt. Fold in beaten egg whites. Fill baking dish, greased with softened butter and sprinkle with sugar, three-quarters full, and bake 20 minutes in a hot oven, 425 degrees Fahrenheit.

Chocolate Angel Food.
 1/2 cup sifted cake flour
 1/2 cup cocoa
 11 1/2 cups egg whites (10 to 12 egg whites)

1 1/2 teaspoon salt
 1 teaspoon cream of tartar
 1 1/2 cups sifted granulated sugar
 1 teaspoon vanilla
 Sift flour once, measure and sift with the cocoa three times. Beat egg whites and salt on a large platter with a wire whisk. When foamy, add cream of tartar and continue beating until the eggs will stand in peaks. Fold in sugar carefully, two tablespoons at a time, until all is used. Fold in vanilla. Sift a small amount of flour over the mixture and fold in carefully, continue until all is used. Pour batter into ungreased angel cake pan and bake in a slow oven, beginning at 275 degrees Fahrenheit and increasing to 325 degrees Fahrenheit after the first half hour of cooking. Bake one hour all together. Remove from oven, invert pan for one hour or until cold.

Chocolate Sponge Cake.
 1/2 cup sifted cake flour
 1/2 teaspoon salt
 1/2 cup cocoa
 1 tablespoon lemon juice
 5 egg yolks, beaten until thick
 1 cup sifted sugar
 5 egg whites, beaten stiff
 Sift flour, measure and sift with salt and cocoa. Add lemon juice to egg yolks and beat until light. Fold sugar gradually into egg whites and then fold in egg yolks and finally fold in flour. Bake in ungreased tube pan in a slow oven, 300 degrees Fahrenheit 50 to 60 minutes. Invert pan for one hour or until cold.

Chocolate Walnut Dollars.
 1/2 cup butter
 1 cup sugar
 1 egg
 2 tablespoons milk
 1 teaspoon vanilla
 2 1/2 cups flour
 1 teaspoon baking powder
 1/2 teaspoon cinnamon
 1/2 cup chopped walnuts
 2 squares chocolate
 Cream butter and sugar. Add egg lightly beaten. Add milk, vanilla, sifted dry ingredients and walnuts. Add the chocolate melted and form into roll two inches in diameter. Wrap in waxed paper. Chill. Cut in 1/2-inch slices. Bake in moderate oven (375 degrees Fahrenheit) 8 to 10 minutes.

Preserved Quinces.
 4 pounds prepared fruit
 4 pounds sugar
 Wash, pare, core and quarter quinces. Put into a preserving kettle and add enough water to prevent fruit from burning. Cook until the fruit is tender. Add sugar and cook slowly until syrup is thick and fruit is red. Pour into clean, hot jars and seal.

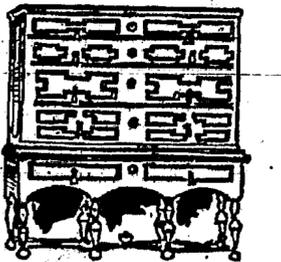

Household Hints

By BETTY WELLS

IF YOU have a piece or two of furniture of the style of William and Mary, you will enjoy it more if you know something of its story. While, if you are considering purchasing new furniture of this type, you will be more sure of yourself for having a few facts handy.

William was a Dutchman, of the house of Orange—the same family that the present day Princess Juliana of Holland belongs to. William married the English Princess Mary and the two of them ruled Britain from 1689 to 1702. They were a simple domestic pair by contrast to both the Stuarts who had ruled England before them and to the Bourbons who were still holding forth in the grand manner in France. They didn't go in much for formality or ceremony, but they did like their comfort.

The furniture popularized by William and Mary is near kin to that made in Holland at the same time. Typically of walnut or oak, William and Mary furniture can be identified most easily by the legs

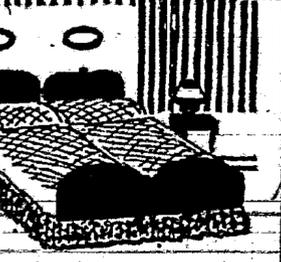

A William and Mary cupboard. The upper part of the leg often has a ball and inverted cup design and the feet are bun shaped. Stretchers are flat and curved and in X shape. These legs are the most important details in William and Mary furniture. The chests and cabinets are raised high off the floor on six or eight legs.

Chair backs are rather high but they are comfortably curved to fit the back—the first recognition furniture had made of the shape of the human form. Chairs are either covered or upholstered. The top line of the chairs is usually rounded in a semi-circle; the tops of the chests are often finished with two semi-circles though you'll also find them straight across the top. Drawer fronts are sometimes plain, sometimes paneled, and drop handles are used. There was little or no carving but some marquetry on this style of furniture originally; today it is usually the plainer pieces that are reproduced.

Pink and Mauve Bedroom.
 Eloise has that knack of enjoying life. Oh, she has her troubles and meets them with more fortitude than a lot of the rest of us, I often think. But she finds so much pleasure in everyday living—and after all I guess that's the only happiness we can be sure of—and some way when people get a kick out of little joys, the big ones take care of themselves.

You can tell, just going into the house, that Eloise is a gay soul—that she takes pains about fixing up the place and running it smoothly and jauntily.

Her bedroom is a pride and joy. She's just done it over in pink and mauve. There is a pink dado with pink and white striped wall paper above. To give the bed importance she has papered a plain pink panel in the center of one wall that looks almost like an alcove. The carpet in the room is deep mauve, almost a powdery grape tone. The bedspread itself is plain pink quilted chintz with a founce of flowered chintz which has a mauve ground and pink flowers.

Sheer white curtains made full and ruffled, two easy chairs in the flowered chintz, a dressing table skirt of the pink quilted chintz (made with a gored flare), accessories of amethyst glass—and isn't that a charming room! I forgot to say that the window shades are of flowered chintz too.

Eloise has papered the sides of the dresser drawers in the striped wall paper then made pads for the bottoms of the pink quilted chintz. The closet boxes are all papered in the pink and white stripes while the walls are lined with pink quilted chintz; with hangers covered in mauve velvet and clothes bag of the flowered chintz.
 It takes an enthusiasm and eagerness to do all that... they are qualified more important than savings or a bulging budget.

A Bit of Embroidery For Small Son's Suit

By RUTH WYETH SPEARS

DEAR MRS. SPEARS: Those pages of embroidery stitches in your Book 2 have interested me greatly. I can never remember from time to time how to do even feather stitching. It is ingenious the way you show how to make each kind of stitch and I turn to your book often. I have a small son, now four and a half years old, and have always enjoyed making his clothes and trimming them with little touches of embroidery. Do you think he is too old for this? B. H.

You still have a year or so if you keep the suits smart and boyish. I am sketching an embroidered trimming idea for you here. The thread should match the color of the trousers. Mark an outline for the embroidery with pencil as at A. Work over this with tiny chain stitches as at B; then make larger chain or loop stitches as at C and D.

Mrs. Spears' Sewing Book 2, Gifts, Novelties and Embroideries, contains 48 pages of step-by-step directions which have helped thousands of women. If your home is your hobby you will also want Book 1—SEWING, for the Home Decorator. Order by number, enclosing 25 cents for each book. If you order both, a crazy-quilt leaflet with 35 authentic patchwork stitches will be included free. Address Mrs. Spears, 210 S. Desplaines St., Chicago, Ill.

Tale of Two Brothers

A man of 75 told a judge the other day that he had only had one brother—and he died 125 years ago.

His father, it seems, was 70 when this man was born in 1833. He had been married before—at 20—and had had a child, who died a day or two after birth, in 1813.

So the man told the truth. Only his brother was really a step-brother.
 A lengthy "step" too.

Colleges Prepare to Train Civilian Aviators

The plan of the United States to train 20,000 civilians annually as reserve pilots will receive a practical five-months test at 13 leading universities this year. One of the first to try out the plan is Farnham Junior college of Los Angeles, Calif., where 15 young men between the ages of 18 and 25 started the course in February. In June they will have qualified for private piloting certificates. Students rebuild smashed aircraft "from the ground up." poet Robert Burns received $50 for this edition of his work. When the heavily wrapped single volume was transferred from the Morgan Library in New York to Kearny, N. Basketball Goes Big Time

Picture Parade

In December, 1891, a staff member of the Springfield (Mass.) YMCA training school invented a new game by corralling two peach baskets, a soccer ball and a smooth floor. That man was Dr. James A. Naismith, now a 76-year-old professor emeritus at the University of Kansas. Basketball, now played by 20,000,000 people each year, got its real start at Lawrence, Kan. A member of the first girls' team, organized there, was the future Mrs. Naismith, now deceased. The "parents" of this remarkable game are shown above, in 1928, during a celebration in their honor.

Here is basketball's first team, at Springfield, Mass. There are nine players, whose number was later reduced to five. Below is an artist's conception of the first game, played in black, full sleeves, wool jerseys, with long trousers. The ball-retriever on the ladder was soon replaced by boys in the gallery.

Basketball now attracts more fans than baseball or football. Partly responsible for this growth is Ned Irish (inset), who brings big college teams to New York's Madison Square Garden each year. The above photo was taken during the Fordham-New York University game in January, 1936, when 10,074 people attended. This tilt established a new attendance record.

Daintiness in Women Wins Men's Favor

By PATRICIA LINDSAY

MEN loathe careless grooming. In fact I think that men are inclined to be more fastidious about us than we are about ourselves! That statement will probably bring an avalanche of mail contradicting me. Well anyway, men do like us sweet-smelling, tidy in our dress and noticeably well-groomed. It isn't too easy to keep fresh as a flower, or crisp looking as a lettuce leaf. It takes special little rituals. We must bathe more frequently and more thoroughly. We must think to apply a deodorant powder or liquid under our arms, on our feet and across our backs (if there is where you perspire). Light floral scented colognes help to keep us cool and the alcohol which they contain plays a part in personal daintiness.

Fresh as the French countryside from which she comes is pretty Annabella, whose exquisite daintiness is one of her greatest assets on the screen.

But more than that we have to be ever so careful about wearing fresh underthings and hose each day. If you haven't an abundant supply you must form the habit of rinsing yours out each night.

Job-Hunting Girl Over 30 Has Competition

JUST this week a girl over 30 came to me in sheer desperation. She needed a job and couldn't get one. "I am a secretary," she said, "with eight years of experience here and there. I'm not keen about secretarial work, but I'll take any job. I simply have got to work! Yet every place I apply they more or less tell me they want a younger girl. What shall I do?"

Her plight is a common one to girls over 30 who, married or single, find it necessary to seek employment this summer. When industry slackens, jobs become scarce and applicants for the jobs increase.

It is quite obvious why the younger girl is preferred. She asks a smaller salary, she is more easily trained to the work, she has no home ties to distract her during the day, and usually she is more attractive because she is about 10 years younger! All in all she is stiff competition for the older girl.

If the girl who sought my advice had asked me for a job I would not have given her one. Why? First of all she had let herself grow discouraged. I know it isn't easy to show enthusiasm when your stomach wants food and your room rent is due. But where will she get by solving her troubles to a prospective employer? He has his own; he will hire good spirits more quickly than experience. He doesn't want to look up from a knotty problem and see a drab, disheartened female dragging herself around his office, does he? "I'm not keen about secretarial work," she had said. Well that's just too bad if she wants a job as a secretary! Who is going to hire her knowing she will have little interest in her work? Not a soul!

Martyr Type Has No Place

"DON'T" enjoy feeling depressed," is the advice Mrs. Richard Mather Boardman gives to women, especially women over fifty. "Almost nothing is important enough to upset one's peace of mind if you look at it squarely. We should enjoy life, for living is fun. Don't make it hard for yourself and for those around you. How much we are inclined to worry over problems which never materialize! You can overcome every difficulty by going a step at a time."

This is the philosophy which Mrs. Boardman practices. And she has reached prominence by living the very rules she teaches the young girls who flock to her unique New York school. Though a grandmother several times, she has the vitality and alertness of a woman half her years and she carries on a busy social life along with the running of a large institution.

Her progress has not been a path of roses. She has met difficulties which would have felled many a woman, but her approach to life has been positive—never negative.

C. Houston Goudiss Offers Timely Advice on Keeping Children Well in Winter; Warns of Several Dangers

By C. HOUSTON GOUDISS

ONE of the ways by which her community judges a woman's success as a mother is by the health and well-being of her children. If they are energetic, rosy-cheeked normal boys and girls who have a high resistance to infections, such as the common cold, and if they display the good dispositions that we usually associate with buoyant health, then the verdict of friends and neighbors is usually that of a job well done.

To help her children maintain top health and vitality, a mother must constantly be alert to the various factors that help produce this ideal estate. And at the same time, she must likewise be on guard against the common conditions that may contribute to lowered resistance, especially fatigue and improper diet.

Winter Hazards

It has been said that in winter the body is on trial—and this is as true of children as of adults. Extremes of temperature require adjustments on the part of the body, and in most parts of the country, children are called upon constantly to switch their environment from a house which is all too frequently overheated to an outdoor temperature that may be below freezing.

While cool, outdoor air is stimulating to children in normal health, some children withstand it much less successfully. This is particularly true of those who are improperly nourished; who are over-fatigued or suffer from poor circulation.

When it is very cold outdoors, it is wise to have children come in from their play periodically to warm up. And if a child appears to suffer from the cold unduly, it is wise to have a physician check up on his health.

Guard Against Frostbite

Over-exposure must be avoided, particularly in cold, damp weather. For under these conditions, doctors warn, there is always a danger of frostbite. They say that whenever the temperature falls below 32 degrees Fahrenheit, children should not be permitted to play outdoors. If they do, the cold may act upon the tissues so that part of the body is deprived of its blood supply. This is most likely to occur in the fingers, toes, nose or ears which thereupon become frozen. The combination of wind and low temperature is especially dangerous and frostbite frequently occurs at temperatures up to 14 degrees Fahrenheit when there is a strong wind.

Mothers should be on guard against frostbite when the temperature is below 24 degrees Fahrenheit, however, and at all times during the winter, see that children are warmly clad. This need not mean that they are so bundled up as to preclude the possibility of active play. Suitable clothing consists of garments which provide warmth and protection against dampness, without restriction at any point.

Two layers of wool, such as that provided by a woolen sweater and playuit are considered preferable to one too-bulky garment. Feet and hands should, of course, be well protected.

Don't Overheat the House

Only a little less serious are the consequences of dry, overheated indoor air. It is unfortunate that so many people keep their rooms entirely too warm in winter. This not only widens the gap between indoor and outdoor temperatures, but may be extremely irritating to the delicate membranes of the nose and throat. Most authorities consider an indoor temperature of about 68 degrees Fahrenheit satisfactory.

Is Your Child Lazy?

We often hear mothers complain that their children are lazy in cold weather. . . and they seem to have less pep and energy than in other seasons. If by that they mean that their children are less active, it may be that this can be attributed in part to the bleak, shorter days that do not always invite outdoor play. But sometimes a child displays such a reduction in his activities as to appear indolent. Then the mother must seek the physical or emotional factors that may be responsible. For true laziness suggests a body that is not functioning normally.

Quite possibly the child's diet is not meeting his bodily requirements. An undernourished child usually tires easily and is disinclined to exert himself. The food may be adequate as to quantity, but not as to quality. For example, a diet that is too highly concentrated, contains too little bulk or cellulose, may cause a tendency to faulty elimination. This, in turn, is frequently responsible for lassitude. The remedy is often a simple dietary change—the addition of a salad to the daily diet; or possibly the use of stewed dried fruits in addition to a fresh fruit or fruit juice daily. Of course, the child should also have two servings of vegetables besides potatoes, one of which should be of the green leafy variety. Also a quart of milk daily; breads and cereals, at least half of which may preferably be the whole grain variety; an egg daily or at least three or four weekly; one serving of meat, fish or chicken, and another serving of a protein food, such as cheese. Some form of vitamin D should be included in the diet of young children, especially during the winter months.

It is also most important that children follow a daily routine that includes plenty of time for sleep. And for younger children a daytime nap is usually advised. Mothers must give attention to the children's health. But let them give some consideration to their own. The tired, nervous mother is very apt to transfer some of her own fatigue and nervousness to her child. So in arranging your child's rest periods and diet, in looking after proper habits of elimination, make sure that Mother, too, and better still every member of the family, follows this same sound health program.

Questions Answered

Miss B. W. J.—As a rule, no special consideration need be given to the amount of sulphur in the diet. That is because sulphur in food is found almost entirely in the form of protein, and in a well-balanced diet which supplies sufficient protein, the requirements for sulphur will be adequately met.

Mrs. B. F.—Between the ages of 60 and 70, and indeed thereafter, there is a gradual decrease in the need for energy. All the body processes function more slowly. The amount of proteins, minerals and vitamins is also less, as no new tissue is being formed. An excess of food is less readily handled by the body in later years, so it is advisable for older people to guard carefully against indulgence in food.

HERE'S a practical, slenderizing dress that large women will thoroughly enjoy for their busiest days of housework. And a trim little bolero frock that's gay and fresh as a spring morning, just the thing for shopping, business and general wear. They are so easy to make that even beginners will enjoy working with these easy designs—each of which includes a step-by-step sew chart.

Comfortable House Dress

This dress is so easy to make that you'll turn out half a dozen of it in practically no time; it's a diagram design that you can complete in a few hours. And it's so easy to work in that you won't be satisfied with less than half a dozen. Wide armholes, a darted waistline that looks slim, a skirt with sufficient width, all assure freedom for action. It's easy to put on, too, as well as to iron, because it buttons down the front. Percale, calico and gingham are good materials for this.

Tailored Bolero Dress

Even without the sleeveless bolero, this dress is a charming style for runabout and street wear. The darted waistline makes you look slim and supple. A scalloped closing, edged with braid or binding, and puff sleeves narrowed into the arm by shirring, complete the effect of youthful charm. Make this right now of flat crepe, silk print or thin wool. Then repeat it later in summer cottons; it's a design that you'll use many, many times. No. 1615 is designed for sizes

Enlightening Dictionary

It is rarely one finds much in the way of humor in dictionaries. When one does, they are sometimes quite refreshing. In "Chambers' Twentieth Century Dictionary," for example, its compiler, Reverend Thomas Davidson, gives these definitions: Sea-Serpent.—An enormous marine animal of serpent-like form, frequently seen and described by credulous sailors. Imaginative landmen, and common liars. Land of the Lest.—The home of the blessed after death—Paradise, not Scotland.

The Livestock Situation

By J. A. McNaughton

Los Angeles Union Stock Yards, Feb. 9.—Faced with the prospect of larger supplies of all livestock during the next few years, the entire livestock and meat packing industry is giving serious thought to a comprehensive and merchandising campaign as a means of broadening market outlets and stabilizing prices.

The respect must be paid packers, both large and small, for their individual efforts, to advertise meats under their own trade brands. Most of such advertising has been devoted to pork products, and more particularly to hams and bacon. But it must be admitted that generally speaking, practically all of the advertising that has been devoted to meats has featured price, and that such advertising has been carried on almost entirely by retail meat dealers.

Livestock interests feel that it is important to advertise the good qualities of meat as a highly necessary food, and to broadcast to the world through a national advertising program the facts developed by the National Livestock and Meat Board about meat essential to good health.

There also is a feeling on the part of many stockmen that all meats sold at retail should bear a Federal stamp, indicating the quality of the product. They feel that such a move would protect consumers in making their purchases, and would tend to establish fair price differentials, based on quality and finish. In my opinion standardized grading of meats with a Federal stamp showing the grade, would in the long run be a valuable contribution to the livestock and meat business. However, there are two sides to the question. Many range men believe that their beef might be discriminated against under such a system; and some of the leading men in the meat business insist that grading alone cannot indicate tenderness and flavor. Their point is that it is necessary to properly "age" beef, no matter what the finish, in order to attain tenderness; and that no grading system can actually assure the consumer of a standard product. The attitude of many people is that more education is needed, through advertising, as to how to best prepare meats.

But western beef producers on the whole have given the matter of compulsory meat grading and stamping a great deal of consideration during the past several years; and many producer organizations have come out strongly in favor of local and national legislation which would call for the grading and stamping of all meats sold.

Regular Army Include Reserves

After a lapse of exactly 18 years the national defense forces of the United States again include a Regular Army Reserve. Not since June 30, 1920, has the War Department carried on its records a Regular Army reservist. The new Regular Army Reserve came into being on July 1, 1938, in accordance with an Act of Congress passed on April 25, 1938.

The Regular Army Reserve of today is a revival of the "Minute Men" of the Revolutionary War. These "Minute Men" of today will provide the Regular Army with immediate reinforcements in the event of an emergency just as the "Minute Men" of 1776 furnished the Continental Army with trained reinforcements in the Revolutionary War.

Within four years it is expected that the Regular Army Reserve will count 75,000 men—all trained—as its ranks are open only to former soldiers of the Regular Army who are under 36 years of age at the time of enlistment in

The Reserve and whose services in the Regular Army have been honest and faithful and terminated by honorable discharge after at least one year's continuous service.

The newly formed Regular Army Reserve is expected to prove popular with men who leave the active ranks of the Regular Army to return to civil life, but who desire to continue their connection with the Army. Obviously, such a Reserve force of trained men constitutes a notable bulwark for the defense of the Nation.

Unlike the 1920 reservist, who received no pay, the Regular Army reservist of today is paid a monthly enlistment allowance of two dollars a month payable at four-month intervals. In return for this allowance the reservist has only to keep the War Department informed of his address.

The civil pursuits of the reservist are in no way interfered with as he is required to undergo no further training and only in the event of an emergency declared by the President of the United States is he subject to call to active duty. But even in the event of such call the reservist stands to gain. The Congressional Act creating the Regular Army Reserve provides that each reservist called to active duty who is found physically qualified and is accepted for such duty will receive, in addition to his two dollar monthly enlistment allowance, an additional lump sum at the rate of three dollars a month for each month he has served in the Regular Army Reserve, the total not to exceed $150.00. If accepted the reservist immediately enters upon the full pay and allowance status of a soldier of the Regular Army.

Background for the Coming Crisis: France vs. Italy in Mediterranean

Rebel Victory in Spain Leaves II Duce Free to Press Demands

By JOSEPH W. LABINE

As the first month of 1939 drew to a painful close all Europe sat watching bombs burst over Spain. Barcelona, the Loyalist capital, fell by inches before Rebel troops who claimed to be Spaniards but came largely from Italy and Germany. One of the closest observers of this holocaust was Edouard Daladier, premier of France.

For M. Daladier knew that once Barcelona fell, Italy's hands would be freed from their Spanish obligation. Then Benito Mussolini would be ready to press the program of expansion which he hopes will make Italy the dominant nation of the Mediterranean.

France would be the chief victim of this expansion because French and Italian interests clash at several key points in northern Africa. Each wishes to rule the Mediterranean, France because she has done so for 20 years, and Italy because her Fascist government believes this is Italy's "destiny."

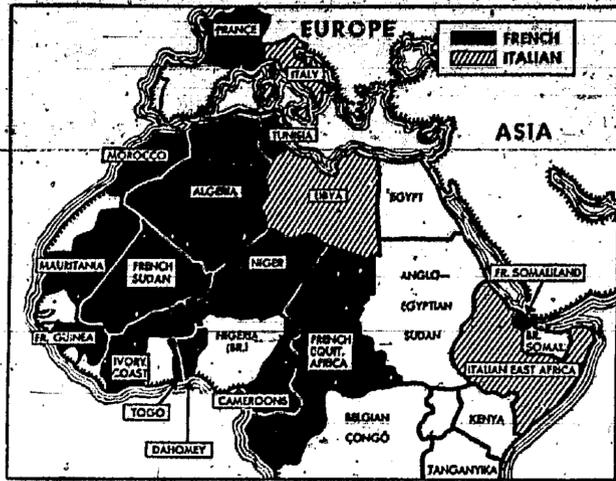

What of the future? Most questions are therefore pushed to the front as Spain's civil war draws near its inevitable Rebel victory. Will the romantic Mediterranean be Europe's next battleground? Will France and Italy come to blows over proprietorship of Tunisia, Corsica, Nice and Savoy? Will their conflict over Suez Canal proprietorship and the Addis Ababa-Djibouti railroad draw Great Britain into the battle?

The background for this crisis-to-come dates to 1915. That year, in the treaty of London, England and France won Italy's aid against the central powers by promising to split Germany's African colonies should the Allies win.

That Italy once had a grievance is the opinion of most European observers. At Versailles the treaty of London was completely overlooked. Not until 1924 did Great Britain get around to ceding Italy the unimportant territory of Jubaland, and that under protest. Stubborn France held out until 1935 when Premier Pierre Laval agreed to give Italy a worthless strip of desert south of Libya, another between French Somaliland and Italian Eritrea, and the island of Doumeirah.

Treaty Never Ratified. The Mussolini-Laval treaty had few merits and even less honor. It was never ratified and therefore the ceded territories have never been turned over to Italy.

Since 1936 Italy has been busy consolidating her Mediterranean gains and fighting the Spanish civil war. If the past two years have nurtured imperialistic aims in the

THE MEDITERRANEAN—Map showing how France and Italy now dominate north African lands, also how Italy, by gaining control of Tunisia, could easily shut off commerce through the sea by a blockade.

Fascist breast they went unspoken because Mussolini knew he was too weak to fight.

But last year's German-Czech crisis changed that. One of its most outstanding results was the shift of European domination from France and Britain to Italy and Germany, resulting in a subsequent parade of Franco-British "appeasement" offers. Today Mussolini is in a posi-

Adolf Hitler plucked territorial plums at the other end of the Rome-Berlin axis. Mussolini has always given the Reichsfuehrer his moral support but in return Italy has received nothing. If Mussolini wishes to retain his dictatorship he must soon begin asserting himself for new colonies.

Germany is willing that this should happen. It would be advantageous for Hitler to have world attention focused on a Mediterranean conflict during the next few years while he proceeds quietly to carve a Nazi-dominated republic out of the vast southeastern Ukraine. Meanwhile Berlin could conveniently send Nazi "volunteers" to aid Italy without risking official involvement.

Italy's campaign thus far has been very crude. It began last November 30, an especially bleak day when France was quaking in fear of a complete labor strike and when Premier Daladier was clawing tooth and nail to stay in power after France began feeling the disastrous backwash of the Czech crisis. For the first time since 1935 a French ambassador was in Rome, Andre Francois-Poncet having been shifted from Germany to Italy after Paris belatedly recognized Mussolini's Italian conquest.

"Tunisia! Nice! Corsica!" M. Francois-Poncet celebrated his arrival by attending a session of the Italian chamber of deputies where Foreign Minister Count Galeazzo Ciano (Mussolini's son-in-law) was to make a speech. Hardly had his address started before two deputies jumped to their feet and began yelling "Tunisia! Tunisia!" From the galleries came cries, too, not only for "Tunisia!" but also for "Corsica! Nice! Savoy!"

Through he sat quietly through the demonstration, M. Francois-Poncet lost no time demanding an explanation. Italian officialdom disowned all responsibility but the controlled Fascist press picked up the echo from the chamber of deputies and has been amplifying it ever since under direction of Propagandist Virginio Gayda.

There have been daily threats; there have been insults, such as that in the Rome newspaper, Il Tevere, which pictured 40,000,000 Italians "spitting" on France while "the Third Republic (France) is patiently wiping her face with newspapers." There have been well substantiated reports of Italian troop concentrations on the west frontier of French Somaliland.

The net result has been to defeat Italy's purpose. France, only a few months ago torn by strikes and ready tooust Premier Daladier, is today better united than at any time in the past five years. Desperately proud, the French now dislike to discuss the settlement proposals Paris first made last summer, because such discussions would leave the impression that France yielded to force.

France May Yield. These proposals, incidentally, are substantially what many observers think Italy is hinting for today in her diplomatic fashion. They include Italian participation in administration of the Suez canal, Italian control of the railroad leading from Italy's Addis Ababa to France's Djibouti on the Red sea, and more privileges for Italian residents of Tunisia.

But if Mussolini presses his advantage after Barcelona, and if Germany wins not only the Ukraine but her African colonies lost during the World war, the Mediterranean will almost positively be the scene of Europe's next fireworks. Britain would be drawn in because she could not afford to have her "lifeline" broken by Italian capture of Tunisia. This would enable Mussolini to throw a blockade from Tunisia to Pantelleria Island to Sicily, completely controlling traffic from Gibraltar to the Suez canal.

Such possibilities are admittedly more theoretical than practical. But within a few weeks the story of peace or war on the Mediterranean may be told.

tion to dictate the outcome of the Spanish war. Moreover he can afford to stick out his neck on territorial demands against France, knowing powerful Germany stands behind him.

Dictators Must Drive. This is not only Mussolini's privilege, but his duty as well. For almost two years the Italians have watched enviously while daring

Only Clergymen Were Immune From Comic Valentine of 90's

Why St. Valentine's day should at once be an occasion for tearful sentimentalism and raucous buffoonery is not the mystery it appears at first glance.

The bleeding heart decorated with old lace and scented with lavender—once a favorite token of love—sprang from an early Roman festival in honor of the goddess, Februaria Juno, which Christians abolished by way of making it less objectionable. But then it became too sentimental, which paved the way for the cheap comic valentines which sprang into favor late last century.

As celebrated in England and Scotland, St. Valentine's day brought maids and bachelors together at a festival where they drew lots to discover which maid would be each youth's "valentine." These imaginary engagements lasted for a year, during which the young man was bound to the service of his valentine. Sometimes they ended in real engagements but more often one or the other party was dissatisfied with his lot. This gave rise to a custom of ridiculing the valentine custom.

A comic valentine, first popularized late last century.

The sentimental valentine, heavy with lavender and old lace, which grew from an early custom.

ably expressed by the satirist, Alexander Pope: "You struttin' cockade of man You are my Valentine, I know. And for a year I'll have to see Your face and form wher'er I go. But get this through your leather pate— A year is all you'll get of me. For after that you'll get the gate And never mair my face shall see."

In later years St. Valentine's day has developed into a time for exchanging gifts, though the comic valentine has retained most of the favor it enjoyed 30 or 40 years ago. In these days nobody in the community was immune from receiving one of these anonymous shafts of criticism except members of clergy. The name, Valentine, comes from a religious of the Third century who reconciled lovers by his interest in their lives. Because of this interest, and because his life ended in martyrdom, he became the patron saint of lovers.

New Wash Materials Remind It's Time for Spring Sewing

By CHERIE NICHOLAS

AS A proper approach to the perennial spring sewing program that soon will be staged in countless households, we know of no gesture that will so inspire to hurry and get going as to take a day off and go fabric sight-seeing. We make the prediction that at just a mere glimpse of the new textiles with their refreshing departure from the old, in the way of texture, patterns and colorings, you will feel an urge stirring to cut and to baste and to sew.

In this day and age when wonders are being performed in the way of textures and weaves, it becomes absolutely imperative that the woman who would sew successfully must know materials. This is especially true in regard to wash fabrics that are a revelation as to what science is achieving in the way of non-shrinkage, color-fast-boil-proof tones and tints and in the way of weaves of entirely new origin. Consider for example the new spun rayon fabrics that are so lovely and exquisite in texture as imagination can conceive.

When you ask to see these fascinating new spun rayons take note of their marvelous colorings that are so refreshingly different from the usual run. Many of the beautiful hues and motifs for design are traced to fine Chinese porcelains that excel in subtle soft blues and canary yellows, lime greens, peach-bloom pinks and cherry blossom reds. You'll love these new wash fabrics that are so handsome they really do not look like washables, but they are and what's more they are treated to an anticrease process that greatly enhances them from the practical standpoint. Some of the smartest washable crepes combine the newest fabric (spun rayon) with one of the oldest (pure linen).

You can get these winsome spun rayon crepes in delectable monochromes or in prints that are so lovely mere word pictures fail to describe them. On your fabric sight-seeing tour be on the lookout for prints that stylize a flight of snow white birds against a sky of penchbloom pink or a seashell motif on a lime green background and you will thus sense the charm and beauty of the new spun rayon crepes.

Softer to the touch than all wool, yet cooler than cotton by far is an imported material that looks like and feels like a million, yet it can be sent to wash with a carefree mind for the fabric has been sanforized-shrunk. See to the left in the picture a housecoat made of this new flannel (half wool, half cotton) which is lightweight as thistledown. This particular smart plaid fabric tailors to perfection.

To the right in the illustration unusual charm is expressed in a quaint dirndl dress of flowered cotton poplin—one of the dependable modern cottons in that it does not shrink out of fit when washed. It is trimmed with Czechoslovakian embroidery and buttons in authentic Czech design. Wear it over shorts and cumbersome when en route to active sports, or as a full-time daytime dress. Either way, it is perfect with its matching bonnet.

You will find a bolero costume made of gingham (faithful standby) much to your liking. Why not enter it on your sewing list, for this two-piece is easy to make, so why not look up a reliable pattern and have it in readiness to wear this spring with dainty blouses? The model centered in the group is in blue and white check. The skirt is flared for fullness. The long-sleeved bolero jacket has wide revers and exposes cuffs of white pique caught with large mother-of-pearl links. Matching gingham trims the rough straw sailor hat she has in her hand.

Rebirth of Amber

It's amber jewelry you will be wearing if you are up to the moment in style. The revival of this familiar gem is important fashion news. The new amber jewelry reveals untold beauties. The colors range from golden yellow to rich antique mahogany tones. The lovely transparent quality of the stone is especially effective in the new Royal designs. The leaves and foliage of many flowers are formed of delicately shaded or veined amber. In the picture a very up-to-date young woman enhances her gown with amber flower jewelry.

Petticoat, Tiered Frocks Real News

If you see a glimpse of lacy froon peeping from under her neat little afternoon dress of silk crepe, don't make the mistake of saying "Pardon me lady, your petticoat is showing." If you do misty lady is apt to reply, "Sure, that's the intention." Yes, it's only too true, petticoats are in fashion and furthermore the so-called petticoat dress that is causing so much excitement in fashion's realm is actually styled so as to reveal a tantalizing glimpse of its frail.

Another sensation on the dress program is the flounced silhouette. Fashion is flouncing everything that will gracefully yield to flouncing. Daytime skirts rise tier upon tier done in a restrained way while soft afternoon and evening frocks are widely flounced in the good old-fashioned now very new-fashioned way.

Open Toes, Heels In New Footwear

The vogue of open toes and open heels has reached a state that it will be difficult before many weeks to find even an Oxford which supplies good foot coverage. Shoe styles for spring have been placed on exhibition and indicate that pumps and Oxfords as well as sandals expose the toes and the back of the heels.

Robust weather calls for rugged footwear.

SAFETY TALKS

Rural Traffic Accidents Increase. Traffic accidents in the rural districts are mounting by leaps and bounds. Since 1923, the National Safety Council says, motor vehicle fatalities have increased 172 per cent. In cities over 10,000 population they went up but 39 per cent.

Of course, the council points out, a large part of this increase may be the result of much-increased rural travel. But most traffic authorities believe, however, that the more favorable city record can be traced to the more effective traffic control measures in municipalities.

In 1937, the loss of life to traffic accidents in rural districts and cities under 10,000 population was 27,400. In cities over 10,000, there were 12,100 killed.

While collisions with pedestrians constituted the major fatal accident problem in cities, rural districts had their greatest difficulty with collisions between two or more motor vehicles.

Chap Found Swankin' It Required Some Effort

Sir Cecil Fitch on his trip to Hollywood told the story of a chap who suddenly got rich somehow. One day a piano was delivered at his cottage. A neighbor said on seeing it arrive:

"You're fair swankin'. But you won't keep that long, mark me!" The very next day the newly rich chap wheeled his piano out on a hand cart and started down the road.

"Ho, ho!" laughed the neighbor as he saw him. "I told you you wouldn't keep it long." "Shut yer face, fool," said the other. "I'm off to take me first lesson."

DOAN'S PILLS

CRUCIBLE

By BEN AMES WILLIAMS

When Phil again looked at his mother, he saw that she had dropped the telegram, had bent down to pick it up; and he saw that she seemed unable to do so. Her arm hung straight down from her shoulder; and her fingers lay with their backs on the floor, two or three inches away from the telegram, her knuckles touching the rug. Her hand was white and bloodless.

He stooped for the yellow paper; and she said, laughing uncertainly: "That's funny, Phil! I was trying to pick up the telegram and I couldn't seem to reach down far enough and then I saw my hand was touching the floor; but I couldn't feel it at all."

Her utterance was hurried; she mumbled the words as though her tongue were thick. One side of her face, Phil saw, was lifeless, sagging as though the flesh were dead upon her bones.

They could hear Dan's voice, swift and eager, up in Barbara's room.

CHAPTER XIII

When in that moment after Dan went racing to find Barbara, Mrs. Sentry stooped to pick up the telegram she had dropped, and could not do so, and saw—though she felt nothing—her own nerveless fingers lying like a dead hand on the rug, she thought: This is the beginning of the end for me. As she thought: Oh, I am glad, glad! Let it not be too long. To be with Arthur soon!

But then when Phil returned and she spoke to him, mumbling her words, feeling her tongue thick and clumsy in her mouth, she saw the terror in his eyes, and she made herself smile to reassure him; and he came toward her, urged her quickly: "Sit down, mother. Lie down. I'll call Doctor Mainton."

"I'm all right, Phil," she said. "It's nothing. My hand went to sleep, that's all." He started toward the telephone; but she checked him. "No, Phil. It's nothing, really. I'm all right now." Her tongue was normal; her hand too. Only she saw that her thumb was uncontrolled, when she tried to straighten it she could not, and she thought: It's my left side, of course. As though it were asleep. If only it would not wake. If only I could sleep, sleep, all of me. Till Arthur comes.

Dan's voice above-stairs was no longer audible. Phil said heartily, fighting his own fears: "Of course you're all right! But just the same, Doctor Mainton—"

"I'll see him tomorrow," she promised. "At his office."

Phil looked toward the hall, no longer expecting his sister to appear. "How do you feel—about that?" he asked. "About Dan?"

"Barbara is the one to decide. If she is—if she loves him, then I shall be happy too." She was thinking: Since I am to die, what does it matter? Certainly not to Barbara. She is so young, such a child. Dan will love her; and she will forget. . . .

Then she heard their voices, their steps on the stairs; and they were here, their eyes shining, yet with a sober gravity. Barbara came to her mother; and Mrs. Sentry waited, and Barbara asked slowly, "Dan has told you, mother?"

"Yes, Barb."

"We've been hoping and hoping he could find something!"

Mrs. Sentry smiled almost teasingly. "Oh, you had it all decided, already planned?"

"If he could—and the job he wanted, yes," Barbara confessed. "And I hoped it would be soon."

Mrs. Sentry's eyes fell, so that Barbara might not read them. Dan said quickly, "I have to be ready to start work out there on Monday, Mrs. Sentry."

"That is—July first?"

"Yes."

Phil thought her voice was miraculously steady. "You will come back for Barbara later?"

"I thought we'd be married at once, go to Cleveland together!"

Mrs. Sentry nodded gently. "I used to think hurried weddings lacked dignity," she confessed. "But I expect they are sweeter than—dignity. Nellie came to announce dinner, and she said, 'Stay, Dan!'"

But he could not. "I've still a job here," he reminded them. "I'll have to run." Barbara went with him to the door; and Phil asked his mother in a low tone, "All right now?"

"Of course, Phil."

"If Barbara knew about you, she'd wait!"

She shook her head, smiling. "I won't cry-baby, spoil Barbara's happiness. She loves him, Phil. Only—it will be hard to have her go."

They heard Dan depart, heard the door close. Then Barbara, as they moved toward the dining-room, met them in the hall; and for a moment she held her mother close.

"Thank you, mother," she said. "You're wonderful to me. Dan wants to take me with him; and—I want so to be a coward and go. She looked at Phil, reading his thoughts. "He says—even if we get married this week—he can fix it so there wouldn't be anything in the papers."

Mrs. Sentry said, "I'm sure he can!" Barbara looked at her keenly; and after a moment the girl cried: "But—I'm not going! I'll stay with you till—till afterward, mother. I'll go to Dan then."

Mrs. Sentry spoke carefully. "It's for you to decide," she said. "But—I should be glad to have you stay."

"I shall!" Barbara promised. "Oh mother, I shall." She was suddenly mature, a woman; and yet, Phil thought at dinner, she seemed conscious of this, and faintly diffident, so that beneath the clear maturity which she put on he saw still the child, terrified yet brave. . . .

He thought with a deep affection and solicitude: I wish she could marry Dan and go. She could if mother did not need her so. But mother will need her, tomorrow, after we see the Governor.

Barbara was still asleep in the morning when he took Mrs. Sentry to Doctor Mainton's office. The doctor heard their story, and then with that calloused insensibility characteristic of physicians, left Phil to

"She will not come?" said Phil. "She will not come," said Phil. He waited a little before returning to the others. They had gone out into the garden together; and he saw them through the window, walking arm in arm, his mother with her head bent, Barbara talking in swift eager fashion.

When he came out to them, she was still chattering; and he asked with a wry grin, "Broadcasting, Barb?"

"Oh, what did Mr. Falkran want?" she demanded. "Nothing," he said. "Business." He spoke to his mother. "That meeting is off," he told her in tones which he tried to make casual.

"Falkran is satisfied it would do no good."

He saw her instant understanding; but Barbara protested: "What meeting? Don't be so mysterious!"

"Why, I wanted to see Dan's boss," Phil said with mock gravity. "To see if he wouldn't meet that Cleveland offer, try to keep Dan here; but he says Dan isn't worth what they're already paying him, much less money. Says Dan can go and welcome!"

Barbara laughed. "All right, have secrets if you want to. I can't both-ere he goes." She hesitated. "But I'm not going to leave you yet. I'll wait with you, go to him by and by."

"There's nothing to wait for here."

The girl spoke bravely. "I think there is. I can't help thinking there will be—something. But if you don't mind our getting married first, before Dan goes—"

Mrs. Sentry smiled. "No, I don't mind."

Barbara caught her mother rapturously, kissed her hard, whirled away toward the house like a dancer. "I've got to telephone Dan this minute!" she cried, and was gone.

Mrs. Sentry looked after her; and Phil put his arm across his mother's shoulders. "That was great, mother!" he said. "You've made her so darned happy! And—I know what it meant to you to let her go."

She said, half to herself: "I've built my life, Phil, on—pride. And I've been selfish too, but we've nothing of pride left, and—I'll be happier if Barbara is happy. I'll have to start rebuilding my life on—some other foundation besides pride and selfishness now."

So Dan and Barbara were married, in the big living-room, with Phil, Linda and Mrs. Sentry as only witnesses. Mrs. Sentry during the intervening days and on that wedding day sometimes clung secretly to Phil's arm; but she managed to do nothing to alarm Barbara or distress her. They were married just after noon; then Dan took train for Cleveland and was gone.

This was Friday, the twenty-eighth of June. After Dan's departure, Phil proposed to his mother that they all drive away to York. "Just for the week-end?" he suggested.

She hesitated, asked then, "Phil, when will it be?" She added firmly: "What day? What hour?"

He spoke in a low tone, "Why, usually just after midnight," he said. "The first day?"

"Yes, Monday."

"I wanted to know," she explained, apologetically. "I'm—much better here than in York, till then."

He urged: "But—Doctor Mainton—"

"Afterward, possibly," she said decisively. "For how, we will stay here."

So they stayed. Saturday morning, at Mrs. Sentry's insistence, Phil went to the office as usual. He and Linda drove in together, Phil at the wheel, Linda close against his side; and they spoke little. At his desk he ran through the morning mail with her; and when she had gone to her typewriter he sat idle, his hands in front of him, palms down upon the top of the desk, and he stared at his own hands as though he had never seen them before.

Then Linda came back in. He raised his eyes heavily; and she said, "Phil, Mr. Wines is here."

For a moment the name was meaningless to him.

"Mr. Wines?"

"Her father," Linda reminded him. "He—wants to see you."

Phil came faintly to his feet. "What about, Linda? Is there anything—?" He could not shape the words.

But she shook her head. "No," she said. "It's about a letter he's had from Mr. Hare. Some money your father's sending him."

Phil remembered that his father had created a trust for the old man; he said miserably, "I didn't want to see him, Lin." He picked up his hat. "You take care of him. I suppose he wants more. Try to satisfy him. I'm going home to mother. You can handle him, can't you?"

"Of course," she promised.

walk alone for two hours while he applied to Mrs. Sentry every test known to scientific medicine.

But his report in the end was reassuring. He said to them both: "Well, Mrs. Sentry, I've checked up in every possible way; and—there is nothing organically wrong with you. I am satisfied there has been no cerebral accident. Your nerves are worn out, and just before this happened you had your arms tight folded with your clenched fist under your left arm. That shut off the blood supply, perhaps; and the strain you have been under, and a cramped position, and fatigue did the rest. That is all, I am sure."

Phil asked, "Ought we to do anything about it?"

Doctor Mainton hesitated. "Take your mother away somewhere," he said then. "To your summer home at York Harbor, perhaps. Can you go today?"

Mrs. Sentry said, "I am to see the Governor at two this afternoon." She thought Doctor Mainton might forbid this, tell her not to go; and she prepared to resist him. But he did not.

"Then—afterward?" he urged.

"Later in the afternoon. Go up there and get plenty of rest and sleep. Those are the only drugs you need."

At home they found Barbara awake, and wondering where they had been, and surprised to find Phil not gone to his office; but she was too much absorbed in her own happiness to be diligent with questions, and they put her off. Then she remembered that Mr. Falkran had telephoned, to speak to Phil.

"I told him he could catch you in town," she said. "Maybe you'd better call him up."

Phil met his mother's eyes, and he went into the library to phone. Falkran said, "I've bad news, Mr. Sentry."

Phil felt the blood pound in his ears against the receiver. "Yes?"

"I saw the Governor," Falkran explained. "He is willing to see Mrs. Sentry if she insists, but only as a matter of courtesy. His decision is already taken."

Phil found himself nodding, without speaking; and then Falkran's voice came in his ear. "Hello? Sentry? Did you hear?"

"Yes. Oh, yes."

"He says the interview would be useless, but of course he will see her if she wishes."

Phil's shoulders straightened, he assumed the responsibility of decision. "Thank you, Mr. Falkran," he said. "I should say it will not be necessary."

er with you. I've too much on my mind."

He strolled with them around the house toward the tennis court, thinking he ought to go to town, but reluctant to leave his mother. Watching her, while Barbara's gay tongue ran, he saw that she in turn was watching Barbara, as though in wonder that the girl because she loved Dan could even in this hour be somehow happy; and he saw a change in his mother's demeanor, a slow dawning resolution in her eyes.

Till at last she spoke, interrupting Barbara's bright chatter. "I've been thinking, Barbara," she said, "about you and Dan. I suppose there's really no reason why you two shouldn't be married at once. Then you can go to Cleveland with him." Barbara's eyes were bright with sudden bliss, and Mrs. Sentry said, "After all, it would be inconvenient and—expensive, for a struggling young newspaper man—to come way back here just to marry you."

Her tone was light, affectionate, full of understanding. The girl stood very still, and her eyes filled and overflowed. She said gratefully, "You're sweet, mother! And I do want to marry Dan right away, before he goes." She hesitated. "But I'm not going to leave you yet. I'll wait with you, go to him by and by."

"There's nothing to wait for here."

The girl spoke bravely. "I think there is. I can't help thinking there will be—something. But if you don't mind our getting married first, before Dan goes—"

Chlorophyll as Essential to Flower Foliage as Is Blood to Human Beings

It is generally understood that growing plants require light. But few gardeners know the effect that certain colored rays have upon green stems and leaves. Dr. Earl S. Johnston, of the Smithsonian Institution in Washington, has carried out some interesting experiments with colored light to discover what hue is the most favorable for growing plants.

Sunlight is necessary for the formation of chlorophyll. Chlorophyll is as essential to flower foliage as is blood to human beings. It is the substance that gives the plant its green color. Without it, leaves turn brown, wither and die.

Doctor Johnston has discovered that chlorophyll is formed better under red light than blue. Sunlight, we know, is made up of many colored rays. The plant seems to pick out the colored ray it needs for sustenance.

Plants require blue rays as well as red, in order to produce starch and sugar. Both red and blue rays are necessary to absorb carbon dioxide, which is part of the process involved in the manufacture of starch.

Doctor Johnston has made a rotating wheel, which varies the hues. He has found that as the mixtures of color rays closely meet the combination of rays in pure sunlight, the plants grow normally. While, on the other hand, plants appear to grow abnormally if any particular hue is accentuated.

The shapes, heights, and types of plants in one part of the world seem to differ from those in another locality. This seems to prove that the sunlight in the polar regions is unlike that in tropical places.

Steamships on the Atlantic

The Savannah, built in New York, is usually considered the first ocean steamship. On May 25, 1819, she left Savannah, Ga., and reached Liverpool in 25 days, during 18 of which she used her engines. Regular steamship service across the Atlantic was started by the Great Western and Sirius. Both ships arrived in New York on April 23, 1838, the Sirius having finished the trip from London in 17 days and the Great Western from Bristol in 14 days.

Famed Engineer Used Murderer To Attain End

NEW YORK.—John F. Stevens was self-educated as an engineer. Therefore, he was an eclectic and readily made use of a retired murderer to accomplish a desperately important end, regardless of the lack of engineering precedent. He is now 88, one of the greatest of American engineers, the first engineer in charge of planning and building the Panama canal, recently awarded the Hoover medal by the American Society of Civil Engineers at its eighty-sixth annual meeting in New York.

The murderer, who came in handy was a Montana Blackfoot Indian. Jim Hill's new railroad, west-bound from St. Paul, was rather impulsively started. It ran slanting into the impenetrable wall of the Rocky mountains. There was an Indian legend that there was a pass over the divide, along the course of the Marias river. Mr. Stevens, a young engineer for the railroad, talked to the Blackfeet about it. There was such a pass. They knew all about it. But not all of Jim Hill's wampum could bribe them even to point in that direction. This Marias pass was the dwelling place of evil spirits, of sorcerers, of dreadful demons, and all who went that way lost either their lives or their reason.

Mr. Stevens munched over the mountains with the thermometer at 50 degrees below zero and found no pass. But, by chance, he found a wanderer in the wilderness, a Blackfoot driven out by his tribe because he had killed a man. The Indian had been having a difficult time. A few devils and monsters, more or less, meant little to him. They made a deal. The story of their days-on-end scramble to the roof of the continent through five feet of snow and bitter cold, with Mr. Stevens sleepless as he kept an eye on his homelidial guide, is one of the classics of the conquest of the wilderness. They found the pass, and their return was another desperate adventure. But soon the screeam of locomotives was crying down the demons, who, presumably, moved on.

When the Panama canal was projected, John F. Stevens fought through, against weighty opposition, the lock principle against the canal plan. The engineer in charge, from 1905 until he was succeeded by General Goethals, he flattened all the demons of disease and disorder which had licked De Lesseps. General Goethals rated his work among the greatest of engineering achievements. He was minister plenipotentiary to the Soviets in 1917, remaining six years and reorganizing and rebuilding their railroads.

DR. VANNEVAR BUSH, testifying on the patent system before the national economy committee at Washington, is the inventor of a "mechanical Scientist's Brain" or "Machine Downs" "thinking machine." It is as big as a sawmill that solves problems too difficult for the human brain. It works nicely, and Franklin institute awarded him a medal for it.

One can blink offhand of a lot of vexing problems that might be tossed into a hopper these days. Set up in a congress, dealing the answers on war and peace, national defense, relief and a balanced budget, it ought to save a lot of money.

Dr. Bush, former vice president of Massachusetts Institute of Technology, became president of the Carnegie Institution on January 1 of this year. He is one of the most distinguished mathematical physicists in America. A tall, genial, bespectacled scientist, with a slightly stooped and somewhat stringy figure, with untamed hair, he leads reporters quite out of their depth. His metallic cerebration was just one of many of his interesting devices and discoveries, including, particularly, research in the transmission of electric power, to which he has made notable contributions.

The son of a distinguished Boston clergyman, he romped through Tufts, Harvard and M. I. T., picking up three degrees in three and one-half years, thereafter teaching at M. I. T.

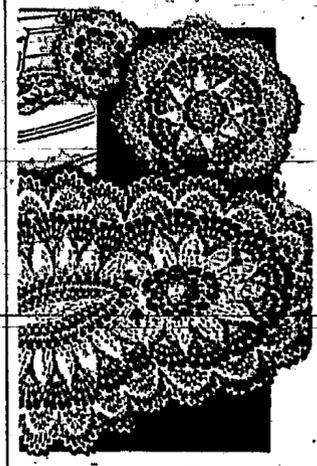

On February 10, 1938, addressing the New York Patent Lawyers' association, he was severely critical of the American patent system, for its "appalling slowness and lack of adaptability." At the current committee hearing, he commends it, but both meager news reports are out of their context, and Dr. Bush doubtless could defend himself against charge of inconsistency.
